Independence Celebration

by Vern Elliott

On Monday, October 9, the Sechelt Indian District held its Third Annual Self-Government Celebrations. Preceded on Sunday, October 8, by an all ages Sports Day, the celebration program on Monday was highlighted with a feast, dancing and songs.

Assisting in this event, was the Vancouver dance and singing troupe "Arrow's to Freedom" with its intriguing motto "Sobriety in Action".

This event got underway shortly after 12 noon, following an introductory informational talk by Chief Tom Paul, in which he outlined briefly the reasons and purposes of this annual celebration. Tom Paul also paid respect to the past chiefs and council members, by reading out their names, and their periods of office in the SIB Council.

He emphasized the great effort put forward by these past chiefs and council members in bringing about the successful realization of the self governing Sechelt Indian District. Noteworthy, all through this event, was the friendly feeling of family which was everywhere.

In their customary feeling of love and respect for family, and the elderly, the feast got underway with a group of young lady band members, first serving the elders of

Band moves to settle claims

by Dave Fraser

"British Columbia, this bountiful land, will not fulfill its potential unless the Indian land claim question is resolved.

There is too dark a shadow looming over its development, its attractiveness for investment, its role within Canada, its very future. The claim by Indian people that most of the province is their's by unextinguished aboriginal title will not go away. It must be faced. And, in our view, it must be settled soon."

That preamble precedes a 20-page proposal released last week by Sechlet Indian Band Chief Thomas Paul. The proposal intends to resolve the band's outstanding land claims with the provincial government.

The proposal, presented to Premier Vander Zalm on October 4, 1989, calls for the band relinquishing title to an area approximately 70 miles by 70 miles, but retaining 2800 acres that were originally set aside as reservation lands.

In return the band is asking for a $54 million monetary compensation package to be paid jointly be the federal and provincial government over 20 years, plus a 50-50 split of natural resource revenues.

The payments will be deposited into a heritage fund which is expected to "grow substantially over the future decades and, eventually, will enable the Sechelt Band to become a complety self-sustaining group of people," the band notes.

According to the proposal, the BC government has taken a total value of stumpage and royalties from timber from their aboriginal lands worth at least $420 million. The land taken from the band is estimated at $118 million in 1989 dollars.

The band says its approach to land claims settlement is based on the "good neighbour" principle. "That means that we will play our part in the larger community, that we will be contributors and that we will not seek to diminish the rights and interests of our neighbours."

As examples the band cites its donation of 11 acres of land to St. Mary's Hospital Board in 1961; permitting the regional district to put a 14 inch water line through their reserve during a 1979 water shortage, even though no compensation was ever paid and the planned development of its Lot 74 into a cultural and educational centre for the benefit of all residents of the Sunshine Coast.

The band also notes its political participation in the local regional district, hospital district and school board. As well, through self-government, tribal and municipal institutions are mixed and natives and non-natives live and work side-by-side on band lands.

The proposal also calls for the province reconveying title of Highway 101 to the Sechelt Indian Band at such time as the status of the highway is downgraded and it is no longer the main throughway for the peninsula.

The band also asks for long term waterlot leases in front of all the band lands at nominal rental rates and a 50-50 split of any revenues earned should any of the water lots be subleased.

Through co-operation and the settlement of land claim issues the band says wealth can be generated to benefit both native and non-native alike. As examples, it cites its partnership with Construction Aggregates Limited in what could become the largest gravel operation in North America.

Although the band is not asking for additional lands as part of settlement it calls for the opportunity to buy lands that are available on the market. These would be created as Sechelt Band lands within the meaning of the Sechelt Indian Band Self-Government Act.

There would be two conditions to this - the lands being purchased would be within Sechelt aboriginal territory; but wouldn't fall within the jurisdiction of the municipalities of Powell River or Sechelt, unless these two neighbouring municipalities agree.

Gordon Wilson denies ratepayers allegations

by Ellen Frith

Allegations at last week's regional board meeting by Pender Harbour Ratepayers' President Joe Harrison that a full-page "open letter to Residents of Area A" ad by Area A Director Gordon Wilson, published September 19 in The Press, had been paid for by the Sunshine Coast Regional District (SCRD) was adamantly denied the next day by Wilson who had been unable to attend the previous day's meeting.

"The allegations are absolutely false," Wilson told the Coast News. "Who is paying for the ad? I am. Joe Harrison only had to ask me and I would have told him."

Harrison, in addressing the SCRD board members last week, said he had asked Administrator Larry Jardine if Wilson had paid for the ad and Jardine had said the SCRD had done so after a board decision. In the question period after the meeting, Jardine refused to answer if the SCRD had, in fact, paid for the ad stating: "I'm not saying anything."

"I asked Larry if Wilson had paid for the ad," Harrison later told the Coast News, "and he didn't answer. I then asked if the SCRD had paid for it and he said 'yes', it was a board decision."

SCRD Chairman Peggy Connor told the Coast News the next day: "We did discuss it and we agreed that it (the ad) was fine, but we never discussed paying for it."

"There was no board decision as such," Area E Director Jim Gurney said. "We support a director in communicating with his constituents. There was no board decision in regards to paying for it and there should be."

Gurney said he didn't think the ad was a particularly good way of reaching constituents and that perhaps a bulk mailing was better.

According to Wilson, paying for the ad was never a real issue. The ad, which was meant to "clear up the allegations about the proposed new by-law", was, Wilson said, the cheapest way to reach as many Pender Harbour residents as possible.

"Since I was paying for it myself, I went for the cheapest way," he said. This particular ad was discussed "informally" with the other directors but apparently Wilson told them: "If you people have any problem with it, I'll pay for it."

Jardine, when he receives the invoice for the ad from The Press, is to "pass it on to me," Wilson said.

Sechelt Chamber hosts Harcourt

The Sechelt and District Chamber of Commerce is hosting an informal luncheon on Thursday, October 19 with Mike Harcourt, Leader of the Provincial NDP, as the guest speaker.

The luncheon will be at the Bella Beach Motel, Davis Bay, 12:15 to 1:30 pm. Tickets are $10.50 and can be reserved by calling the chamber office at 885-3100. As space is limited please book early.

A former alderman and mayor of the City of Vancouver, Mr. Harcourt was elected Leader of the New Democratic Party in April 1987. He is visiting the Sunshine Coast to meet with members of the community, local organizations and government representatives.

Warning

Last year at Hallowe'en there were a number of incidents including the defacing of property and property damage. One business almost caught fire which could have caused extensive fire damage to the whole downtown area.

In response to this situation the downtown Merchants Association, The Chamber of Commerce, RCMP, Gibsons and Elphinstone Secondary School request the help of parents in dealing with this matter.

This year the merchants and police will be present in the downtown area throughout the evening. All the students at Elphinstone have been talked to regarding this problem.

All that is needed now is your help.

Correction

The Joan Warn Exhibition can be viewed at the Show Piece Gallery in Gibsons until October 21 and not October 31 as previously noted.

Ruby Lake logging opposed

by Myrtle Winchester

The Ruby Lake Environment Committee (RLEC), strongly opposed to any logging and barging activity on the lake, was formed on October 8 to work towards preserving the natural and human environment of Ruby Lake.

The committee, chaired by Ken Hawkins, consists of John Field, John Pass, Dick Pincock and Ruby Lake Landholders Association (RLLA) Secretary Roy Milne, is appealing to the Sunshine Coast Regional District (SCRD), Minister of Crown Lands, Pender Harbour Wildlife Society and other private and government bodies for support.

Last Tuesday the committee presented the Area A Planning Committee (APC), chaired by Gordon Wilson, with a three part motion opposing current and future lease applications for the purpose of logging, barging and land development in the Ruby Lake area. After deleting the reference to land development, the APC endorsed the motion.

The day before the committee meeting, full-time and part-time residents and users of Ruby Lake attended the October 7 RLLA meeting to discuss implications of crown land and foreshore leases applied for by David Vaughan Inc. of Saltspring Island and Dave Craig, owner of Ruby Lake Resort. Proposed uses by Vaughan of the leased land include barge loading and unloading, docking and storage to facilitate removal of logs from a site on the west side of the lake.

The property to be logged by Vaughan was purchased directly from MacMillan Bloedel and road access to the site is impractical, if not impossible. The leases were applied for a term of 10 years.

Dave Craig has applied for a lease for a dock, but he assured the Ruby Lake Landholders Association that no logs would go across the dock if the RLLA didn't want them to.

The concerns of the RLEC will be addressed at the October 22 Pender Harbour Ratepayers Association meeting, and the committee will hold its next meeting on November 11.

Comment

Wisest to applaud

Because of the Stein Festival, the fight for South Moresby and other pockets of native Indian resistance to incursions of logging on their lands in BC, it is easy for the environmentalists of this province to see the Indians as the leaders in the battle to save much of what is left of the old growth forests and river valleys of the West Coast. But the court system is slow and Indian land claims are bogged down in much red-tape. Because of this inept system, the Sechelt Indian Band is, understandably, growing weary and impatient with the process.

Last week the Sechelt Band Council submitted a "practical proposal" for resolving the Indian Land Claim problem to the provincial government and many environmentalists drew sharp breaths. The immediate reaction was one of disappointment that this autonomous Indian Government which has shown itself single-minded and so capable was seemingly "giving up the fight". the fight".

It was felt by many that if any Indian band in BC could win its land claim, the Sechelt Band was it.

Obviously, that is a first reaction only. The proposal, when read, is a thoughtful and well presented argument for a possible side-stepping of the court procedure which would enable the Band leaders and the government to sit down and discuss a proposition for the 70 miles by 70 miles parcel of land around Jervis Inlet which could well benefit all sides. And do it sooner than later.

The uneasy feelings that this step might win a battle but lose the war for the native peoples of BC may linger for a while but in these early days of the proposal being submitted, it is wisest to applaud the initiatives taken by the Sechelt Band in seeking at least some solution and to wait and see what the provincial government has to say.

In a nutshell

Do we face endless boredom?

by S. Nutter

You would not have thought that an article in a limited readership American conservative periodical, National Interest, saying that history is coming to an end, could have 'set off a vast international controversy in the Western world', but so it seems to be.

One reason for it is that the article is written by Francis Fukuyama. Not a name to ring bells, but Fukuyama is a top man in the Rand Institute, and the Rand is the principal advisor to the US State Department on the future, as seen in the widest possible perspective.

So we listen to Fukuyama right? And here he is saying that history is coming to an end. Well, we have pretty well all grown up with notions of history coming to an end - the planetary atom war - the various plagues of various microbes - the greenhouse effect. In Star Trek, history came to an end on one planet or another pretty well every week.

But this is not at all what Fukuyama is saying. Not at all, in fact, quite the reverse. He is saying that we will survive. He is saying that what is happening in Russia under Gorbachev has driven the last nail into the Marxist-Leninist coffin; that neither religion nor nationalism can ever mount so serious a challenge to democracy; that in fact democracy's victory is assured forever.

Well and good? But then the man goes on to evaluate the world of unchallenged democracy. This world he says will sink into a great 'boredom' and 'sadness'. Gone will be the ambitions of the past. No real philosophy, no real art. Just economic calculation, the endless solving of technical problems, ecological concerns, meeting consumer demands. He doesn't say it of course but one is reminded of the old bit: ants don't have history, bees don't have history.

Fukuyama was taken seriously in the capitals of the Western world. I am going here on two lead articles, one from the Washington Post and one from Le Monde, Paris, both written in late September, and both reprinted by the Manchester Guardian.

Both the view from Washington and the view from Paris de-bunk the idea that history is coming to an end. There will be sufficient turmoil, they seem to reassure us, to keep us on our toes in the years ahead.

In a view from Gibsons, I would agree about the history. But other of Fukuyama's remarks it would be dangerous to slough off.

Sinking into a state of great boredom and sadness is surely something that we have been experiencing in North America for some time. Drug-taking is a form of suicide, and suicide comes from sadness. Drug-taking is also a result of boredom. Boredom also leads to disinterest, and disinterest has been plaguing our schools for what, 30 years?

Boredom may be in fact our main and most vital problem today. Can we fight boredom? It cannot be done by switching production values on television, or with better highways and faster cars, cheaper travel, more Club Meds. It cannot be done with anything we can buy.

What then? If we don't manage something by the year 2000, my guess would be that Fukuyama is going to be right.

Grand Forks visit

by Dick Kennett

Grand Forks, where the Kettle River sings as it meanders through this beautiful valley, comes face to face with the Granby. A stone's throw from town, where I now call home, on Riverside Drive; Gibsons hometown now further from my grasp.

On June 17 it was here the widow attended her grandson's graduation and fell in love with the valley, put the north 40 in Port Moody up for sale on our return and headed for the Kootenays. An old saying goes "once in the Kootenays, always in the Kootenays". Time will tell.

Talking to one old timer I said, "Isn't Grand Forks noted for its Netted Gems?" and he put forth, "There are only a couple of large farms producing potatoes in any quantity the rest have turned in their ploughshares for fancy wheeled logging trucks and power saws."

Two large sawmills swallow up the timber using the local CP line to export from both Grand Forks and nearby Midway.

Like the Sunshine Coast, two newspapers vie for the hearts and minds of the area residents. One dates back to 1897 and has, like the Coast News, a "Remember When" column called "The Way It Was".

And the way it was item in 1909 - Provincial Constable Ritchie of Grand Forks caught George and Joseph Brown at Parron, charged with stealing blankets from the Bertois Hotel at Cascade. The two men were out for mischief as each had a set of iron knuckles and a revolver in his clothes when arrested.

I saw evidence of the Russian presence here and they are real farmers. One such heritage location marked 1907 on a stone denoting the time they first came to settle, I expect.

Long time mining country too, and just nearby a tremendous pile of slag now being utilized and shipped for some manufacturing abrasives purpose and one tram-way tunnel near Greenwood is development into a tourist attraction deep into the bowels of an old mine.

That's the bottom line -tourism, while a new RCMP building takes shape on Central Avenue.

Desire for peace in wartime

by Frank Fuller

The 50th anniversary of the beginning of World War II and Ellen Frith's recent column "War, Love and Consequence" gave me call to reflect on my own war experience. I was motivated to a re-reading of my journal and war letters, kept over the years.

Each person who lived through that war has his or her own memories. For me it was the days I spent in the Aleutian Islands from late 1942 through 1944 as a member of the US 11th Weather Squadron.

A most poignant moment of those times was brought to the fore for me in 1988 when the skeleton of a member of my war time weather squadron was found wedged in between two rocks on an island in the western Aleutians – 44 years after he met a lonely frozen death.

I too, was lost in an Aleutian snow storm in 1943, but survived - so this last casualty of that war filled me with profound sadness. It made me recall that the Aleutian war was too cold, too windy and rain driven, too foggy and too bloody.

The Japanese were our enemy but the weather was our enemy, too. It took its own toll of men and planes.

I spent the early part of this conflict through March, 1943 on Adak Island in a weather tent beside a bomber runway. B-24 and B-25 airmen took off for air raids over Kiska and Attu and late Paramishiro in northern Japan. We prayed for their safe return but too often they came back with wounded or dead crew men. Some did not come back at all.

In the foggy spring and summer of 1943 from an Amchitka Island weather outpost we played a support role to heavy attacks of US and Canadian infantry on the Japanese base on Attu and to heavy bombardment of nearby Kiska Island.

The reality of the war forced us in that isolated outpost to think deeply about its meaning and its consequences. In late 1942 Leland Stowe, a war correspondent, stirred us with news from the Russian front.

He wrote "The next 40 days will decide the fate of the world." Scarred by the depression we wanted a future of peace and no more depressions.

In a letter to my girl friend, Doris Dean in May 1943, I wrote, "It is apparent that the war we are fighting has deeper implications for humanity than our leaders have led us to believe. I have only a vague idea of what fascism is, but it is enough to make me feel that the war is a deadly struggle."

Unforeseen by us at the time were the bitter consequences of the war - the atom bomb, the cold war, and a dozen other conflicts arising out of the ashes of our war. However, our desire for peace in the midst of war has had other more hopeful consequences. Another generation has taken the dream of peace of that era, and built in every country the most powerful peace force the world has ever known.

Time to recycle economic process

Editor:

The Economics Department of the BC Central Credit Union recently joined the growing demand for an environmentally sound, sustainable economy. Here are some of the salient points of their August 1989, "Economic Analysis":

"Environmental degradation threatens humanity...The quality of our (BC) environment, compared with many areas of the industrialized world, is first rate. Increasingly, this sound environmental base could be regarded as a valuable asset, sought by investors world-wide."

"This issue is an experiment in using recycled paper. Manufacturing recycled paper requires less energy and water, and produces less air pollution than making virgin paper products. Therefore, its use contributes less air pollution than making virgin paper products. Using recycled paper also conserves forests and landfill space."

"Environmental preservation does not require abandoning free-market resource allocation. Rather, market forces can be employed toward sustainable development, by charging for environmentally damaging activities which cannot otherwise be eliminated."

"The cost of changing to a policy consistent with sustainable development may be high in the short-run but it is a matter of global responsibility to ensure that this cost is measured against the long-term costs of not changing."

This paper is available through local credit unions throughoout BC and is entitled "Is It Time To Recycle The Economic Process?" It is informative reading.

Parents' concerns said to be valid

Editor:

In response to Mayor Strom's comment in the Coast News article 'No Change in Speed Limit', that "roads are not playgrounds for children", she is quite right, but, where are they to play or even walk safely?

The Town of Gibsons lacks adequate sidewalks, crosswalks, and boulevards on the busy streets and highway which passes directly through high density residential areas. Daily, children are forced to break common safety rules while walking to and from schools, playgrounds or friends houses. They must negotiate the hazardously narrow shoulders along the roadsides. It is obvious to any parent that "roads are not playgrounds for children", but the roads in Gibsons are not even safe places to walk, let alone play.

Citizens of the area are obviously concerned as is shown by their actions. Last fall, Langdale Elementary School students and teachers took matters into their own hands by creating their own safety signs. No one who witnessed the event will forget the sight of the children along the highway begging motorists to slow down and watch out for them.

Is this the type of action that the children of Gibsons will be forced to take? Recently council has received petitions from both Seaview and Sargent Road residents requesting speed bumps and speed zone signs, as well as numerous requests over the years for speed bumps on Kilarney Lane.

Since provisions for pedestrian safety are not met in the form of sidewalks, crosswalks and boulevards, are we not obligated to provide alternative safety measures such as speed zone signs, children playing signs and speed bumps where necessary?

Considering the various petitions and requests for the safety of our children and pedestrians in general, is it not becoming apparent to council that it is a problem which needs to be addressed, instead of ignored?

Thank you, Alderman Ken Collins, for seeing the validity of our concerns. After all, should not the safety of its citizens be one of the priorities of town council? What, if anything, is going to be done about it?

In praise of Alderman Collins

Editor:

Since moving to this beautiful place a few years ago, I have greatly enjoyed the talents of Mr. Ken Collins and his wife Arline. I have tried hard to understand the problems Mr. Collins has had with this community, mainly from reading the local papers. It would seem to me we would be grateful to welcome young people who contribute their time and talents and take an interest in public affairs.

I have also, from reading the papers, tried to find out what Mr. Collins has done to face a court case. As far as I read, he has practised the age old 'barter system' which is still much used today in small communities between neighbours and friends, and is not against the law, but enhances people's lives when incomes drop.

I feel, and have heard this from many others who feel the same, that there are some self-righteous, unkind people here who should do some soul searching.

I would congratulate Mr. and Mrs. Collins for rising above such pettiness and continuing to enhance our community.

Please reconsider

Editor:

I am a senior attending Chatelech Secondary School. I would like to voice my opinions of the new lawn bowling project that is to take place in Hackett Park. I speak for myself and a majority of the younger generation of Sechelt.

Hackett Park is useful for many people not only me. It is the only public park that is easily reached by everyone in the downtown area. Many activities take place in the park such as, soccer, football, baseball, rugby, craft fairs, celebration days, tennis, loggers sports, playing on the playground, picnicking and just hanging around.

Plus the schools use the park for physical education sports as well. Why change our park, when you can just as easily relocate the lawn bowling where there is plenty of room that isn't already occupied.

Our growing years have been spent in Sechelt with no recreational activites. Other than having to travel 17 kilometres to swim, or go see a movie. Or at least three miles to go skating at the arena.

These three activities cost quite a bit after a while. They are also hard to reach because young teenagers and children don't drive. We also have no kind of bus system to make use of.

All we ask is you (Mayor Tom Meredith) please reconsider your decision on the location of the lawn bowling project.

Sincerely yours,
Christine C. Toynbee
and 175 fellow students

Please save Hackett Park

Editor:

If the Mayor of Sechelt has his way, many of the trees in Hackett Park will be cut down! On November 1, the council will vote on Tom Meredith's proposal to place a lawn bowling green in Hackett Park in the area where most of the trees now stand.

Hackett Park, with its activity areas, is used by the general public - people of all ages. A lawn bowling green would be for members of the bowling green club, thus limiting part of the park to one group. The loss to the community would be enormous! To see the trees come down and replaced by grass and a fence would be a sad sight indeed.

To prevent this destruction of our park, all residents should call the aldermen and express their disapproval. If four aldermen vote against the proposal, Hackett Park is saved.

Appreciation

Editor:

I wish to express my sincere appreciation to the people of Sechelt for once again supporting the community Terry Fox Run, held Sunday, September 17.

Eighty-seven people participated in the ninth annual 10 kilometre run, walk, jog or wheel.

When all donations and pledges are collected and turned in, this year's run will contribute over $1700 to cancer research through the Canadian Cancer Society.

A number of people assisted in making this year's run so successful. They include Bob, Bill and Bobby Dall, Drew and Chris McKee and Gordon Stubbs.

For the seventh straight year, Shop Easy and Sechelt Supermarket generously donated refreshments for the participants.

Also thanks to the Coast News and Gibsons Building Supplies for the advertising, and to Trail Bay Sports, Robbie's Barber Shop, Seecoast Living, the Press and the Coast News for distributing pledge sheets.

Thank you to all the people who donated funds and who pledged participants in the run.

Council acknowledges error

Marina Place seen as 'hard lesson'

by Dave Fraser

By refusing to place a restrictive covenant on a Gibsons development the Town of Gibsons has learned a hard lesson.

The developer of Marina Place retirement village has exceeded a plan approved for 38 units by building an additional four units. But there is nothing the town can do about it, said Rob Buchan, Gibsons' Municipal Planner and Approval Officer.

Now, from a legal standpoint, it seems the developer (Casper Holdings Ltd.) "is in a virtually unassailable position," noted Buchan in a written brief presented to Gibsons Council at last Tuesday's Planning Committee meeting.

Buchan said he first became aware that the approved 38-unit plan had been exceeded at a public hearing on August 15, 1988.

At the hearing, local resident Kirby Carson pointed out a restrictive covenant under Section 215 of the Land Title Act "would give the public the assurance that the development would be completed as presented to the public."

Instead, noted Carson in a recent letter to the Coast News, "this well-used vehicle of developmental control was later voted down in an unorthodox meeting chaired by ex-alderman Norm Peterson - with only Alderman (John) Reynolds still voting for the restrictive covenant."

A letter of undertaking was signed by the developer which required that any material change should be approved by council. Gibsons Council at first voted to approve the development of the property only if a restrictive covenant or equivalent would be accepted by the Marina Place developer, Art McGinnis.

But when McGinnis argued that a covenant would threaten his retirement village, the majority of council voted down the idea of imposing a covenant on the property, opting instead for a letter of undertaking, which was signed by G. Arnold Armstrong, an authorized signatory for the company, on August 23, 1988.

In describing the letter of undertaking Buchan writes: "...it is my interpretation that the wording is such that the responsibility for drawing any change to the council's attention rests with staff."

But he said building inspector Ralph Jones did not have a copy of the letter of undertaking in his file. Buchan said that for some years, the policy has been in, all matters other than single-family residential development, plans are circulated to the planner for approval. "Unfortunately, in this instance this was not done."

At Tuesday's Planning Committee meeting Gibsons Clerk-Administrator Lorraine Goddard took responsibility for not providing Jones with the letter.

Buchan said the letter is a sort of professional gentlemen's agreement, but it has little legal weight because it can't be registered against property titles.

A restrictive covenant, on the other hand, has a legislative basis in the Land Title Act and can be registered against the title of properties.

As a safeguard to communities and property-purchasers, Buchan said a restrictive covenant is the only guarantee available to prevent developers from diverging from their original development plan for once zoning is in place, the municipality loses some control of the property.

Although Buchan said the developer was within his zoning rights, he added: "I think it is a fair statement that the developer has been less than frank in his dealings with staff in this matter.

"You may recall that, immediately following the successful rezoning, a sign was erected on the Dougal Road frontage of the development advertising a number of units in excess of the 38 approved, which was corrected following staff intervention.

"Since the rezoning, all our liaison and correspondence with the developers has been based on the approved total of 38 units."

At Tuesday's council meeting Mayor Diane Strom said the changed development will not cover any more property than what was approved at last year's public hearing and that it won't exceed allowable density under the RM 1 zoning.

Buchan said the change won't significantly affect the traffic flow or density of the adult-oriented development. He said if the developer had made the building inspector aware of the change in the number of units he would have recommended the change. "And no doubt, council would have approved. In fact, they would have no other choice for the zoning allows for 42 units."

At Harmony Hall

by Frankie 886-3504

At the last general meeting of OAPO Number 38, held October 2, the following new members were welcomed: Gwen Varcoe, Kay Haugh, Lynne and Howie Foley and Bill Dockar.

During the meeting Doreen McAdams of the Choosing Wellness Drop-In Centre Committee, spoke regarding the possibility of using Harmony Hall as a drop-in centre for seniors. It was decided that a joint meeting between the Choosing Wellness group and a group from Harmony Hall would be held to discuss the matter further.

The first regular carpet bowling session was not too successful as there were quite a few members not present and also not too many spares available.

For all those interested in doing ceramics, this class will commence on Thursday, October 19 at 12:30 in the hall.

On Friday, October 20, (Friday Fun Nite) there will be a pot luck supper prior to the crib and whist games. On this night the members will be honouring Mr. and Mrs. Victor Eckstein, charter members of the club, on the occasion of their 60th wedding anniversay.

If there are any people interested in going to the Moscow Circus October 22, there is still one seat available with the Gibsons group and several seats available with the Sechelt group. I am sure everyone will enjoy this well-known circus. Phone me for further information at 886-3504.

There will be a Hallowe'en party on November 4 with dancing, entertainment and good food. Tickets are only $5 and can be obtained by phoning George Withnall at 886-8945, or Eilie Eidet at 886-9000.

You can also phone Eilie regarding the pot luck on October 20.

The next executive meeting is Monday, October 30 at 9:30 am, and the next general meeting is Monday, November 6 at 1:30 pm.

Roberts Creek

Seen at Roberts Creek

by Bev Cranston, 886-2215

Colin and Kay Cole bought their beach house in Roberts Creek back in the 50's and have lived there ever since. Their house is close to the water with a level rocky beach in front. They can see clearly across the beautiful expanse to Vancouver Island.

Colin and Kay both love to watch the sealife in front of their house. They even have two pairs of binoculars with each pair set for their own eyes. Colin only wears glasses for reading.

On a rather misty day in January 1985 when Colin went to sit down in his living room with the sandwich he had just made, he was surprised to see a rather foolish man standing in the bow of a 12 to 14 foot boat. He was just off the beach and Colin certainly didn't need binoculars to see what he thought was someone fishing.

His sandwich landed on the floor when he took a second look and shouted "My God, it's a creature!" The man standing was, according to Colin Cole, the head and neck of a sea creature and the boat was actually the body forming a swan-like shaped back.

As he grabbed for his binoculars to get a close-up look, the creature disappeared into the mist which was drifting around on the surface of the water. Colin says he is "absolutely sure" it was a creature. He has watched everything from porpoises, sea lions, various birdlife and sea otters to even a young Grey whale feeding on the ocean floor in front of his home. And all this for almost 40 years.

No distinguishing features were visible on this creature but Colin is so sure of what he saw that his sighting has been recorded along with other sightings of this same type as far up the coast as the Sointula/Port Hardy area.

Have any of you other Coast News readers seen such a thing? If you have perhaps you and the Coles would like to compare notes and drawings. Too bad no one has a photo of the Roberts Creek sea creature. After all, photos are undeniable.

BLACK & WHITE BALL

A Black & White Costume Dance on the Saturday night before Hallowe'en (October 21) is being put on by Driftwood Players. The very popular smash band 'Brain Damage' will be playing.

Tickets are on sale for $7 at Pastimes in Sechelt, Seaview Market in Roberts Creek and Richards in Gibsons. The dance will be from 9 to 1 with lots of prizes.

HALLOWE'EN

Plans are now underway for the kids' Hallowe'en Party at the hall.

There will be no fireworks display by the volunteer fire department this year. Apparently the big show the Sechelt Indian Band puts on has drawn a lot of spectators away from the Roberts Creek display.

The community hall is booked for a wedding on the weekend of October 28/29 so there also will be no dance.

LEGION LINEUP

The return of 'Blue Moon' with middle-of-the-road music happens October 20 and 21.

There will be prizes for the best costumes on October 28. The bartender will be mixing up some wild Hallowe'en potions, so come on out and enjoy the 'sure to please all ages' band 'White Gold'.

Apparently it is still summer at the legion as every Saturday night for $6 you can have BBQ steak from 6 until 8 pm. Also still on is the Friday night smorgasbord, all you can eat for the same price.

There has been a good turnout for Boy Cubs and Scouts this year. Cub meetings will be on Wednesday nights. We have enough leaders this year but are looking for new or used uniforms, all sizes. Please call 885-7980.

WORD OF MOUTH presented by College of Dental Surgeons of B.C.

CHILDREN'S DENTAL EMERGENCIES

The beginning of a new school year brings to mind schoolyard activities and unfortunate injuries to the mouth that may be sustained from energetic play. When a dental trauma occurs as the result of an accident, a little knowledge may prevent permanent damage to your child's teeth and mouth.

Johnny falls on the school steps and bangs a front tooth, which later turns dark. The discoloration is an indication that the pulp, or soft inner tissue, of the tooth has been injured. The damaged pulp represents a possible source of infection that should be assessed and monitored by a dentist. Similarly, if the tooth is loosened in an accident, immediate attention is also required. The dentist may recommend attaching a splint to the tooth to prevent its loss.

What if your child has a tooth knocked out by accident? If it is a permanent tooth, there is a good chance it can be successfully replanted if you act quickly. A clean tooth should be placed back in the tooth socket - if it is not too painful and the child is old enough to hold it in place - otherwise, deposit it in a container of milk. In either case, do not clean or handle the tooth roots, and take the child and tooth to the dentist immediately. The child should receive professional attention within 30 minutes for best results; the prognosis, if treatment is delayed beyond 2 hours, is not good.

If your child knocks a "baby" tooth out, take him or her to the dentist as soon as possible for examination, but don't expect the tooth to be put back. Bring the tooth with you so the dentist can see if the whole tooth came out or whether it broke inside the gums. A space maintainer may be recommended to replace the tooth until the permanent tooth comes in, thus keeping the remaining teeth from drifting out of place.

Injuries that result in a broken tooth should be attended to right away. Gently clean any dirt or debris from the injured area with warm water. Apply cold compresses or ice to the face over the injured tooth to keep swelling down, and take the child immediately to the dentist for examination. A crown or cap may be required if the damage is severe, but minor restorations may be made by "bonding" plastic material to the tooth.

Nothing short of locking children in their room will keep them completely safe from oral injury. However, by teaching them to play safely on the schoolyard, while skateboarding, bicycling or diving into the swimming pool, you can help protect them. Discourage children from eating hard items such as popcorn kernels, ice or nutshells. Make sure seat belts, sports mouthguards, and approved infant carseats are used. And if, despite your good advice, your child sustains oral injury, know what to do to give him or her the best chance for permanent recovery.

Information within this column is not intended to diagnose or plan treatment; readers should consult their dentist for individual dental care. Readers' questions are welcome. Please write: Word of Mouth, College of Dental Surgeons of B.C., 1125 W. 8th Ave., Vancouver, B.C., V6H 3N4.

Sechelt Indian Band counsellor Stan Dixon made a presentation to the Sunshine Coast Regional District last week on band proposal aimed at resolving land claims, indicated on map.

Dixon defends Sechelts' proposal

by Dave Fraser

Sechelt Band counsellor Stan Dixon makes no apologies to critics of the band's proposal for resolving its land claims.

"These guys have the right to criticize but I sure would like to see them phone or fax us or write us a letter."

Dixon, chief of the Sechelts from 1983 to 1987, made a presentation to the Sunshine Coast Regional District last Thursday, asking the board to support the proposal which he says has been 20 years in the making.

Last week the band drew fire from Ernie Crey, spokesman for the United Native Nations (UNN) and Union of BC Indian Chiefs (UBCIC) President Saul Terry.

Dixon agrees the Sechelt proposal could set precedents, but he said they would be positive ones for other Indian bands, particularly those in urban areas, such as the Squamish, Musqueam, Tsawwassen, Burrard and Katzie Indian Bands.

He says none of his critics have bothered to read the proposal. "The UBCIC has said they will respect what an individual band does. They should be offering support by writing the federal government."

"What's their solution? Prolonging negotiations until we're all assimilated? Or until we're all dead?"

Pointing at a yellowing map of BC Native land claims, Dixon notes Sechelt's land claims ranks 20th on a list of 20.

He says the Nishga (number one on the list) have been dealing with senior governments over land claims for 18 years, with little success.

"If we went the traditional route established by Indian Affairs it would take 20 years for our claims to be accepted."

Dixon says he is optimistic the provincial government will go for the band's proposal because it is not asking for large tracts of land. He says Premier Vander Zalm has agreed to meet November 6 with the Sechelt Band and council and Indian Affairs Minister Jack Weisgerber to discuss the proposal.

Davis Bay News & Views

Monthly general meeting tonight

by Jean Robinson, 885-2954

It's tonight folks. Your opportunity to attend the Davis Bay/Wilson Creek Community Association general meeting. It starts at 7:30 pm at the community hall, where Laurel meets Davis Bay Road.

After a short meeting where you will be informed of coming events, we will have coffee and listen to Joanne Dickeson tell us about her efforts to save the injured birds brought to her.

BIRTHDAYS

Happy birthday to Jordana and Kenny. Teddy Bear Day Care welcomes back Kenny who has been away two weeks recovering from multiple burns to his body due to a recent accident.

Marg Pearson says there are many colds, flu and ear infections among the children at the moment. Hope they all recover soon.

DAVIS BAY ELEMENTARY

There will be a Professional Day on October 20 so watch for children where least expected.

There is a Hallowe'en party happening on October 31 of course, from 1 to 3 pm at the school.

Grades 1, 2 and 3 are in need of a few items in order to help with their mathematics. They could use tiny toy cars, buttons, old keys, nuts and bolts, used thread spools, bits of Lego, building blocks, old cutlery, seashells, small plastic people or animals, old jewelery or beads, measuring cups, spoons, old coins and ice cream buckets.

Deliver all items to the school or bring them to the general meeting on Monday night and I will deliver them. The children would be most grateful.

The Parents Group meet in the school library at 7 pm on October 18. The new executive is Jane Darling, president; Sherry Kelly, vice-president; Bruce Lasuto, treasurer and June Jennings, secretary.

Please come and bring any ideas for future guest speakers.

KIRKLAND CENTRE

The Adult Day Care clients will have a booth at the Volunteer Fall Harvest Fair on October 21 in the Sechelt Elementary School. Starts at 10 am. They have oodles of garden ornaments, Christmas decorations, arts, crafts and creative things for sale.

They are most grateful to Joe Bellanger for all the help with design and cutting and creating.

Tony Greenleaf will give a talk on birds in November.

The Volunteer Tea held last month was well attended. The tables were beautifully covered with quality table linen which complimented the silver tea service used for the occasion. The cake and sandwiches were delicious.

The librarians wish to thank Paula Newton for her donation of children's books and Mr. and Mrs. Cree for their book donations.

Susan Mendelson's book Let Me In The Kitchen has been missing for a year. Please look among your cookbooks to see if you have overlooked returning it by accident.

The library will be closed on November 11.

Halfmoon Bay Happenings

Fire safety drill a success

by Ruth Forrester, 885-2418

The Halfmoon Bay Fire Department carried out a surprise fire drill at the new Halfmoon Bay School last week. It was an exercise to see how quickly the school could be evacuated in such an emergency, and the fire department fellows were proud to announce it took just under 50 seconds to have all the children safely out of the building. The staff and the children are to be congratulated on this good showing.

The date for the official opening of the new school is set for the afternoon of Tuesday, November 7 when Minister of Education the Honourable Anthony J. Brummett will be in attendance. The opening will be followed by an open house and plans are underway for a social event in the evening. Watch this column for further details later.

FLEA MARKET

This coming Sunday, October 22 is the date for the flea market, bake sale and plant sale at the Welcome Beach Hall on Redrooffs. Doors will be open at 10 am so be sure to get there in time for the bargains and to pick up some of the best home baking in the area.

Independence celebration

the band with their choice of food, after which the remaining adults and young folk served themselves in an informal and orderly fashion.

The 'Arrows of Freedom' dancers started the next part of the celebration by introducing a dance called, "The Friendship Dance". This consisted of the dancers circling throughout the crowd of spectators, who in turn joined the circle, and everyone greeted everyone they met with a kindly greeting, a handshake and, sometimes, a hug.

The event continued with much high energy singing, drumming and dancing in which it appeared every muscle in the body was exercised. Some of the dancers displayed great timing control in stopping and starting in perfect unison with the drum beat.

Because of the time element involving this writer, it was with regret that he had to depart before the completion of this event. However he left with more energy, higher spirits and with a greater understanding of getting together with people, than he had had previously.

One really has to attend such an event in person, to realize and appreciate the immense depth of togetherness, energy and joy which such an event generates.

10th Annual Small Business Week

Sechelt Seniors

Circus trip

by Larry Grafton

As reported in the October 2 issue of the Coast News a joint endeavour was underway by the Gibsons OAPO and the Sechelt Senior Citizens Association to provide a bus trip to the Moscow Circus.

Reservations since that time have proven the Moscow Circus is to be a very popular day trip, which has necessitated each organization to provide its own specific bus for the occasion. For the Sechelt seniors, May Widman has arranged a trip for October 22 which will leave the area of the Royal Bank in Sechelt at 9:20 am.

The return trip will catch the 3:30 pm ferry out of Horseshoe Bay. Please note especially that the date, as previously listed has been changed to October 22 from October 15.

There are still 8 or 10 seats available on the bus. Cost of the trip is $26 per person. For further information and reservations please phone May Widman at 885-5200.

Because of the necessity of reserving seats at the performance, time is of the essence if you intend to go.

Midst the heated controversy over the suggestion that a lawn bowling green may eventually be located in Hackett Park, there has been a rumour in Sechelt that our seniors have promoted this location. I am safe in saying that nothing could be further from the truth.

Granted the initial meeting to discuss location was held in the Senior's Hall but certainly not under our sponsorship. At that initial meeting there were only about 40 people in attendance and not all of them were those of the reported 400 odd who signified an interest in having a bowling green in Sechelt.

GEMS TO RAGTIME

Each spring and fall for the last number of years, Nikki Weber has produced a variety concert. Proceeds from these concerts for the last few years have been directed to our new building fund and this next one coming up on October 28 is no exception.

Tickets for 'From Gems to Ragtime' are available from Books and Stuff, Talewind Books, Strings and Things and your scribe in Sechelt. Under normal circumstances because of the voluntary participation of a number of local talented artists, the limited number of admission tickets printed are soon taken.

At annual meeting

Rockwood elects executives

by Ruth Forrester

The annual general meeting of the Rockwood Centre Society was held last Tuesday with approximately 20 members present.

Kay Little, who was one of the instigators of the obtaining of the lodge facilities for community arts events, stepped down as president, handing over the position to Mary Pinneger.

Kay gave a most interesting and encouraging report of the activities and achievements accomplished during the two years of operation by her committee, all of whom were volunteers. She expressed her appreciation of the financial help given by the Sunshine Coast Regional District, Sechelt Council and the government's employment program.

The centre is now able to have three employees: manager, custodian and live-in caretaker.

The facilities are being well used both for local and out-of-town groups, and it is expected the demand by groups will become even greater.

Election of officers took place with the following elected: Mary Pinneger, president; Roger Handling, vice-president; Mary McKinnon, secretary; Lorna Huggins, treasurer; Eve Siemens, finance chair; Helen McCormick, house/buildings and Kay Little, past president.

Board members appointed are Ene Falkenberg, Pat Chamberlin, Joyce Erickson, Ruth Forrester, Pat Crucil, Donna Bolger and Anne Gregory.

Board advisors are Bill Bailey, Kay Bailey, Donald Fairweather, Peter Morris and Ken Moore.

Guest speaker Betty Keller emphasized the fact it was thanks to a very small group who thoroughly believed in Rockwood and to the help given by so many willing people that the project is proving such a success.

Plans are already underway for the 'Light up for Christmas' event which attracted hundreds of people last year. If you would care to lend a hand with this project you would be welcome if you showed up at the lodge tonight, Monday, October 16 at 7:30 pm.

Nature walk

Every autumn hundreds of coho and chum salmon begin their journey up Angus Creek to spawn. To view this spectacular event come to Porpoise Bay Provincial Park for free guided walks with the Park Interpreter.

Public walks begin at the beach bulletin board at 1 pm and 3 pm Sunday, October 22, October 29, November 5 and November 12.

Pender Patter

New faces behind meat counter

by Myrtle Winchester, 883-9099

Welcome to Tony and Helen O'Brien, the new faces behind the IGA meat counter. They are replacing Bill and Vi Grant, who are retiring to their fish shop in Gibsons.

SATURDAY NIGHT

If you missed getting a ticket to the Lions Ladies Diamond Night or you're not a lady, tickets are still available for the Louise Rose jazzy/bluesy/-gospel concert at the Pender Harbour School of Music. Tickets are on sale at the Pender Harbour Paper Mill and Miss Sunny's Hair Boutique.

LITERARY NOTES

Another name to add to the already impressive list of Pender Harbour writers: Guy Bennett.

He's published a couple of books and I was lucky enough to get a copy of his most recent and already out of print Guy's Guide to the Flipside which Max Wyman of the Province called, "...a piece of wry, beautifully observed writing about the underside of this city (Vancouver)...a modest joy."

The book is mainly a guide to the 'Big Smoke' and I leave you with this excerpt:

'The Drake (beer parlour) has made the dubious decision to go upscale while preserving the tradition of continuous dancing girls. Now, while sitting in a room full of drunken men, you may contemplate, not only that you are doing this, but that you have dressed up to do it.'

Welcome to Pender Harbour, Guy, and hope that you find your new home as inspiring as your last.

MONDAY MEETING

A general meeting of Branch 112 of the Royal Canadian Legion, members only.

TUESDAY MEETING

Pender Harbour and District Wildlife Society, 7:30 pm at Madeira Park Elementary School, everyone welcome.

WEDNESDAY MEETING

Seniors' housing will be discussed at the Legion Hall at 7:30 pm. This meeting is to organize a society to get seniors housing in Pender Harbour and it's not affiliated with any specific organization, just a group of people interested in providing a place for our seniors to live.

THURSDAY MEETING

Mikey's coming! Mike Harcourt will meet with the Pender Harbour Centre NDP on his way to Sechelt from Powell River and the meeting will be open to the public. Refreshments will be served at the meeting at 9 am at the Community Hall.

The Madeira Park Elementary School parents' group will meet with School District 46 Secretary-Treasurer Tim Anderson at 7:30 pm at the elementary school to discuss school funding (where it comes from, where it goes and future plans). All taxpayers should be interested in this one.

SATURDAY MEETING

The Pender Harbour Ratepayers Association will meet at the Community Hall, and I don't dare say anything about this one.

NEXT MONDAY

The Pender Harbour and Egmont Chamber of Commerce will meet next Monday evening at the Legion Hall to vote on adopting (or adapting) the revised by-laws for the organization. Members are urged to attend this important meeting and non-members are welcome to come and see what the (born-again) Chamber of Commerce is all about.

Egmont News

Seniors housing

by Ann Cook 883-9907

If you live in the community of Egmont, Earls Cove, Nelson Island, Garden Bay, Medeira Park or Halfmoon Bay, and have plans of being a senior citizen some day, and are interested in Senior's Housing in our area, then please come to a meeting at the Legion in Madeira Park at 7:30 pm on October 16, specifically for your input regarding the formation of a non-profit society to obtain funds for senior citizen's housing.

I didn't plan on being a senior, but somehow it's just happening. Wouldn't it be nice not to have to worry about wood for winter, the porch falling off from old age, trees falling on the power line, frozen water lines, etc. It's enough to have fallen arches, teeth falling out, hair falling out, eating less and gaining more, without the struggle and worry to keep up property and dwellings.

So I'll be there, and Al Lloyd said to me "See you in the old folks home".

My friends don't like me to say I'm old, but I'm not a teenager or a young woman, so I must be an old woman. (Then, what's old?)

BIRTHDAYS

Happy Birthday to Kate Paterson and Harriet Williams.

GIB'S HOME

Gib's home, and not as well as he'd like to feel but with Liz on duty with lots of TLC he'll keep smiling.

BC Tel didn't want to be outdone by BC Hydro so they're working on the corner in downtown Egmont, all to help make Egmont a better place to live.

The school building, well, who knows? I don't.

Gardening notes

by Marguerite

We are fortunate to still be enjoying warm sunny days giving the home gardener a chance to tidy up the main growing areas of flowers and vegetables.

Large perennial plants can be split and re-planted or give excess to a friend. Take geranium cuttings, plant spring flowering bulbs with some bonemeal in each space, their colour in the spring uplifts everyone after the winter.

Have you ever planted seed potatoes in the fall?

Organic gardening articles suggest potatoes grow best under cold weather conditions and are more resistant to blight, and have more body when cooked. Nennebac, Anoka and Pontiacs are good choices, with Norgold Russett being a good keeper.

Plant the potatoes four to six inches deep with 12 to 15 inches apart.

Fall planted potatoes need about 12 to 15 inches mulch of straw or hay cover.

The Gibsons Garden Club meeting takes place in the Marine Room below the library on Thursday, October 19 at 7:30 pm, members and guests welcome. Slide presentation of this year's garden tour of Victoria's gardens will be shown.

The plant sale is on Saturday, the 21st at Sunnycrest Mall front entrance.

King of Safecrackers
The Reckoning

by Peter Trower

The bruises and contusions inflicted are more painful than serious but they are severe enough for a man of Herb's advanced years. He is obliged to seek the services of a doctor. Even in this exigency he is loath to involve the police.

"I fell out of bed," he tells the skeptical physician.

The doctor is not deceived. Injuries of this sort could not possibly have been incurred in such a fashion. He is obviously dealing with a case of grievous bodily assault and the law requires that he report such cases. After Herb leaves, the doctor picks up the phone and dials the police department.

Back at the Miller Block Herb is assauging his aches and pains with a glass of whiskey when two uniformed officers call on him. There is no point in further lying; he grudgingly tells them the truth and names his attacker. However when the case comes to court no witnesses can be found to support Herb's story and the German, whose friends testify he was playing cards with them on the evening of the attack, is acquitted. The glower he directs at Herb across the courtroom suggests there may be further trouble.

It is definitely time for Herb to leave the Miller Block and retire to some sanctuary beyond the German's ungentle clutches, and what safer place than a rest home? Not just some ordinary place, but one with a good address, a bit of class, and reasonable rates. Herb scans the classifieds and finds an establishment catering to "cultured, retired gentlemen." That sounds like just the ticket, he nods to himself.

With Peter Sayko's help he cleans out the apartment. It is goodbye to his silent friends, Alphonse and Clara, and the jugged, broken mummy, Antiochus. Reluctantly he fobs them off on a curio dealer. The Arcade of Mysteries becomes obscure history.

The stacks of unsold, unwanted books present another problem. Herb takes a few dozen and puts them in storage. As for the rest, he rents a truck and sadly has them hauled to the city dump. Another vain dream goes down the pipe. Herb takes one last look at the bare, high-walled room that has been his home, shrugs, and picks up the two valises. Pete Sayko is waiting outside to chauffeur him to the hopeful tranquility of the rest home.

The rest-home's genteel promise/facade is soon shattered by Herb's first encounter with the Proprietress, a large Teutonic woman who lays down the rules of the house like a regimental sergeant-major. Herb is aghast when she informs him that part of the admission procedure is to take a bath. Not a shower, she insists firmly, but a full tub immersion.

At The Arts Centre

Marcel Carne (Children of Paradise) is known as one of the world's greatest film-makers and his Le Jour Se Leve made in 1939 is as much of a masterpiece as any.

The Arts Centre's Fall Film Series includes Le Jour Se Leve and it will be shown on October 18 at 8 pm. Starring Jean Gabin, Jules Berry and the unforgettable Arletty in a violent love triangle, Le Jour Se Leve is pure poetry.

It was almost lost when Hollywood's RKO bought the rights for a Henry Fonda version and tried to have all original copies destroyed. To our good fortune, they failed.

Admission to all screenings in this series is $3.50, $3 for seniors and students at the door.

JURIED SHOW

The 11th Annual Juried Show continues at the Arts Centre this week and next, closing Sunday, October 29. The selections include photography by Ingrid Grainge, Bill Perry, and Angel Honey; recyclage by Trudy Small; drawing by Jacquelin Spark, Susan Fletcher, Pat Chamberlin and Althea Rowe; carvings by Ole Pii; ceramics by Katie Janyk and Alda Grames; a mono-print by Fran Ovens; and paintings in several media by Christel Fuoss-Moore, Gordon Munro, Donna Balma, Vivian Chamberlin, Cindy Rudolph, Kim Almond, David Burns, Maurice Spira, Ursula Fritsch, Sirkka McKerral, Marilyn Guertsen, Jack Leyland, Noreen Marshall, Russel Buchanan, Vi Tyner and Phyllis McCrimmon.

The sole fabric piece is one of the most interesting in the show. Susan Fletcher's 'Sea Creature' is adventurous in many ways: it is composed and presents like a painting, is boldly patterned, rises well of the wall into sculptural space and incorporates discarded magnetic recording tape as a major component - a good example of successful risk-taking.

You'll want to see this show. The Arts Centre is open 11 to 4, Wednesday to Saturday and 1 to 4 Sunday.

Rhythms of Life

Categorizing the prophets

by Penny Fuller

Two thousand years ago there was an abundance of prophets, just as there is now. But back then, their influence was rather restricted to those they could personally contact. It kind of put an upward limit on how many followers a single prophet could gather in his lifetime.

Today, however, those limits are gone. With television and newspapers, a really colourful prophet can reach millions of people without ever leaving the sanctity of his Beverly Hills luxury home or his ivory tower on some university campus.

We have so many prophets that we've had to categorize them: there's pollsters and scientists, channellers and economists, televangelists and, of course, your more traditional freelance prophet. They all have about the same track record in terms of accurate prediction. And these days, that's not good.

We have a little over 10 years before we emerge into the 21st century and just about anywhere you turn, there is some dismal prediction that this complex organism we live on is not going to survive to the New Year's Eve party on December 30, 1999. A quick overview is warranted.

Scientists have pointed out the greenhouse effect, which could melt our polar ice caps and create world-wide havoc in weather and water patterns.

Other hazards threatening our extended existence include water pollution, toxic emissions (separate from the ones creating the greenhouse) and of course nuclear holocaust.

Author Ruth Montgomery tells us her guides say the magnetic poles are going to switch before the end of the century creating disastrous conditions. And Edgar Casey, when he was alive, gave detailed descriptions of the widespread earthquake action leaving non-oceanfront property in North America at a premium.

Armegeddon has been predicted by thousands of people to occur before the year 2000 AD, and you can't really deny that all the signs are present, although some point out that's been true for several centuries.

The outstanding question seems to be: do you or don't you plan a big bash for New Year's Eve 1999? Let's take an astrological look at the situation.

The four outer planets, the slow moving ones, are the indicators to look at when you're questioning changes that will permanently affect all of earth's inhabitants. Near the end of 1984, Pluto, the furthest out, entered Scorpio indicating a time when the darkness and depths the people and societies of this world would be exposed to the light. This includes any issue touching on sex, power, internal disease etc., and points to a need to let go of the attitudes that perpetuate abuse in those areas.

Pluto leaves Scorpio at the end of 1995.

At about the same time Pluto entered Scorpio, Neptune, its nearest neighbour, entered Capricorn, where it will wander around until the beginning of 1998. During this time, we should see the exposure of deceptions within socio-political and religious structures. It is the structures that will be dissolving.

A year ago, the other two outer planets, Saturn and Uranus joined Neptune in Capricorn. While Saturn is in that neighbourhood, until 1991, we will still see a fight to maintain the status quo. After that, Uranus indicates a real shaking up of all those structures until it leaves Capricorn in 1996. Between the shaking up by Uranus and the dissolving effect of Neptune, the only thing that you can accurately predict is that things will be different.

All in all, I'd say go ahead and plan your party, but leave the guest list and the location to be determined in 1998. These days, nothing is a sure bet except changes.

Library Open House

Gibsons and District Public Library will hold an Open House from 10 am to noon, Friday, October 20 to thank voters who gave overwhelming support to the recent referendum.

During the open house at the library on South Fletcher Road, Regional District Director Jim Gurney of Area E will make a presentation to the library. Refreshments will be served and library staff and board members will be on hand to show visitors around the library and to answer questions.

In the September 23 referendum in Area E and F, 97 per cent of the voters who turned out agreed to a modest tax increase to support the library. Since these taxes will not be collected until next year, the regional district has offered to lend the library substantial funds for the balance of 1989, with the loan to be repaid in 1990.

Toast of the Coast

It was Friday the 13th when my son Jason (much like his movie counterpart) and I were shopping for school clothes and Hallowe'en costumes. He was killing me with indecision about what he wanted to dress up as; I guess he didn't catch the subtlety of the suggestion he need not dress up at all.

His father met us just in time. It was way past Jason's meal time and I needed some refreshments as well. Let's go see if 'Andy' is home, we said.

Andy's on Highway 101 in Gibsons was open with promise of homecooked meals. Keith Senderling met us at the door and seated us. I didn't miss the quick bribe Keith gave my son. I knew now what Jason would be for Hallowe'en...an angel!

After contemplating the menu between "what do they have for dessert, Mom", we chose Chicken Fingers for him (four breaded filet of chicken breasts served with honey barbeque sauce), BBQ Baby Back Ribs for my husband and Steak Neptune for myself.

Steak Neptune was an eight ounce sirloin topped with crab, asparagus spears smothered in Bernaise sauce. The waitress coaxed us into having their new salad dressing on our salads - honey dill. Paul Newman eat your heart out!

It was quiet for the next half hour as we all busily ate.

The meals were hearty, mouth-watering and thoroughly satisfying.

Next time, I think I'll try the Veal Parmiggianna, the Thai Fried Noodles or maybe the Baked Zuchinni with Green Peppers. Oh,oh, reality is tugging on my arm.

"Yes, Jason?" "Dessert, Mom..." Talk about just desserts!

He chose the ice cream pie. This was a coffee flavoured sensation topped with a rich chocolate syrup and sprinkled with almonds.

Thanks, Keith, same time next week?

Ladies Tournament

by Frank Nanson

The ladies held a four ball-best two ball tournament last Tuesday for their final day of organized golf this season. The winners of the first place were Edith Woodman, Helen Steeves, Peggy Connor and Rita Hincks with 133 points.

Second was taken by the team of Helen Milburn, Kay Bailey, Ruby Head and Barb Mercer with 134 (bb-9) points. In third were Isabel Rendleman, Ann Burton, Mary McKinnon and Greta Patterson with 134.

Please pick up tickets for the wind-up luncheon for ladies at the pro shop.

Remember the big event of the year, Awards Night November 1 at 7:30 pm. The tickets are available at the pro shop at $7 each. The English Pub entertainers, Bernie and Red, will no doubt keep us in laughter for most of the evening.

This is more than likely the end of my news items for this year. I hope you who are responsible for the gathering of information for me will give next year's editor the help you have given me over the last three to four years. I actually forget how long I have been doing this.

Thanks to all who helped and in particular Bill McKinnon who came in to help fill the void in the Sechelt area.

Students learn scuba diving

by Rose Nicholson

The Sunshine Coast is known internationally as one of the prime scuba diving areas in the world and Grades 11 and 12 Physical Education (PE) students at Chatelech are taking advantage of that fact.

Clint, Fox, PE teacher at the school, described the course for trustees at last week's school board meeting.

"Scuba diving fits very well into my PE 11 and 12 program" he said, "because it emphasizes lifetime sports, and scuba diving is certainly something you can do all your life.

At the completion of the course, students are PADI certified which means they are fully qualified and can rent scuba equipment anywhere in the world.

Tidalwave Diving, a local company, is providing the instruction.

"Instructors come to the school for 10 hours of classroom instruction. They provide the main diving equipment and then take the students out for protected water and open water dives. To pass, students have to attain a 75 per cent average. Even answers which are wrong have to be corrected so students will know the right answers.

"Students learn the basics, like learning to clear masks of water, buddy breathing, emergency ascents, how to avoid getting into difficulties, and, if they are in difficulties, how to get out of them.

Fox went on to say that the students pay for the course themselves and use their own basic equipment of fins, snorkel and mask. Suits, tanks, regulators, buoyancy compensators, gloves and boots are provided by the company and included in the package price.

Hockey

Men's ice hockey at the arena concludes the last week of its exhibition game schedule with a full slate of games this coming week.

On Friday the 20th at 7:30 pm, Gilligans host the Creek. Saturday the 21st at 7 pm the Hawks and Buccaneers conclude the exhibition schedule in the early game of a double header.

In the late game at 8 pm the Sunshine Coast Men's League schedule will begin with its first official game of the season.

The winning team in Mixed Twilite October 9 was Dutch Haddon and Cathy McQuitty. Second place went to Lamor Muse and Neil Reeder, next were Pete Waycott and Shirley Grout. KP number 3 was Pete Waycott.

A reminder to past and present directors of the tournament November 5. Spouses may play but only a director can win. The 9 hole event begins at 10 am, and there will be low net winners.

The golf season is slowing down so this will be the last column of the year. Thanks to the Coast News for their support of our club and remember the course is open year round and everyone is welcome.

WHAT CLIENTS SAY:

"I have not smoked since 9:16 p.m., April 6, 1987. Prior to this I smoked 3½ packages per day. If I had a real stressful day, I would smoke as many as 5 packages."

"My mother and brother have lost a total of 60 pounds in two months."

"Both quit after 28 and 40 years."

"My friends laughed at me at the start but now they all say I have a lovely figure. I feel wonderful and enjoy buying new clothes that look good on me. I went from 157 to 115."

"I attended the seminar 40 months ago. I have not wanted or had a cigarette since."

"My husband was so impressed that I have quit smoking with no discomfort, he is willing to try."

"The morning after the session I completely changed my eating habits. I no longer battle, I just lose the weight. And I feel fantastic! This works. I've lost 21 pounds.

Equestrians shine nationally

by Dave Fraser

Thanks to Jeanine Ellingham and Jody Custance and their horses, the Sunshine Coast now has a reputation as a hotbed for equestrian competition.

Ellingham of Roberts Creek and Custance of Gibsons gave outstanding performances at a national three-day event in Lloydminster, Saskatchewan, October 6, 7 and 8.

The pair won two divisions out of four possible divisions. They joined 10 other BC riders in representing BC in three different divisions at the meet, which also included riders from Alberta, Saskatchewan and Manitoba.

Ellingham and Custance both earned individual and team awards in each of their divisions.

Custance, a Grade 12 student at Elphinstone Secondary School, competed in the Young Riders (21-and-under) Division and with her thoroughbred, Riot Squad, came first in her division.

Custance has owned a horse for 12 years but has competed for only three years.

Ellingham and her seven-year-old Belgian-thoroughbred cross, Gibraltar, won the Training Division, which consisted of 20 competitors.

For two riders and their horses from the Sunshine Coast to place so high in a nationally-sanctioned event, or even to be selected to go, is quite an accomplishment, considering how many riders there are in other parts of the province, particularly the Fraser Valley and Vancouver Island.

The demanding three-day event is like a triathalon. During the first day's dressage test, horses are judged on their obedience and movement, while the rider guides the horse through a prescribed pattern in a small ring.

An endurance test on the second day has horses negotiating a 3000 metre cross-country course over varied terrain and natural obstacles - such as ditches, ponds and log fences.

Ellingham says horses are not judged on speed but rather on their ability to finish the course within an optimum time.

Stadium jumping on the third day demonstrates the horse's obedience over a course of jumps within a riding ring. "It's a real change of pace for the horse," says Ellingham.

She says frequent veterinarian checks are done throughout the competition to verify the horse's soundness.

Ellingham says when she moved to the Coast from Vancouver 10 years ago there was very little English riding going on. She now operates Ellingham Stables offering boarding, training and lessons and works with approximately 15 up-and-coming provincial competitors.

Ellingham is hopeful that in the near future an equestrian park, including a cross-country course, can be developed locally so that the Sunshine Coast can host its own recognized event and attract visiting riders.

On the Rocks

by Harry Turner

This is it, the week we start curling. Tonight is the first draw and it starts at 7 pm. Good curling everyone.

There is still room for some late entrants if you want to fill in your winter with some fun. We still have room for five teams on the Monday night men's league.

We would like to see this league fill up so come on out on Monday night and join up. On the Tuesday night ladies, we have room for three or four more teams. The ladies always have a fun night so come out and join them, they would love to have you.

Wednesday night mixed is full (well done gang!) and should make for some interesting games. Thursday has an excellent draw time, a 7:30 start time, because we only have six mens teams. It sure would be nice to see two or three more. We can handle the extra people and we sure would like to see the draw full.

This is a fun league, not too competitive, so it is a good league to start in if you have never curled before. Friday night has 12 teams so there is room for four more.

We invite anyone in the community to start a team or, alternatively, come down to the rink and we will get you on a team. If you have any questions or enquiries, call the rink at 886-7512.

You could also contact drawmaster Larry Penonzek at 886-9134 or Ed or Joy Hill at 886-3925. We wish you all a good season at the club. We will try to keep you posted about coming events throughout the season.

Youth Soccer

by Jim Brown

We are still getting kids coming to our different teams wanting to sign up for soccer. Unfortunately most of our teams are filled and some are overfilled.

The maximum amount of players on a regular soccer team should be 16. There are waiting lists for almost all age groups.

Parents, we have soccer registration the same time each year which is the first weekend after school starts in September.

We have a slight problem in the 12 and 13-year-old age group; we could use another coach and we might be able to make a third team. So if there is someone out there who would like to coach a team, please give me a call at 885-9223.

Suzanne Hacking has been confirmed as the new postmistress at Gibsons Post Office. (See story.) —Ellen Frith photo

Postmistress wins contest

by Ellen Frith

Gibsons new post mistress, Suzanne Hacking, no longer has to face sleet and snow and dark of night to deliver the mail as she once did as a letter carrier on a rural route in the area, but she does begin her day earlier than many, at 6 am, and her new duties do include managing the financial and supervisory side of the post office and dealing with complaints from many an irate customer which is no easy task. "To tell the truth," she says, "dealing with the complaints is sometimes the hardest part of the job!"

Hacking, who has been Gibsons acting post mistress for the past six months was officially appointed to the job October 2 after running against five other applicants for the position from across the province. It wasn't simply a case of stepping into the job, she told the Coast News, the process involved an application and both written and verbal examinations in Vancouver.

Nanaimo-born Hacking, 32, has been on the Sunshine Coast for 15 years and with the post office for nine. "I began by sub-contracting on a rural route while a friend was off having a baby," she said. "That job lasted two years and afterwards Canada Post asked me to join them inside the post office."

Being physically fit was obviously a necessity when she started out delivering the mail, Hacking admits, and she did the route in approximately two hours of moving fast but she finds it is still an asset in her new job which involves a lot of physical work as well as administrative and other duties. "The only thing I don't do," she says, "is serve at the counter when it involves cash."

According to Hacking, most of the complaints from Canada Post customers have been caused by the increased volume of mail over the years. She estimates the Gibsons Post Office has around 1500 to 2000 new customers mainly because of the effects of the mill expansion at Howe Sound Pulp and Paper.

"The volume of mail from Port Mellon is tremendous," she says. And how does she deal with the complaints? "By being genuinely honest with the customers and showing them we're doing our best."

Citing figures she knows by heart, Hacking says there are 2000 post office boxes in Gibsons as well as 700 customers on rural route (RR) number 1; 950 on RR2; 65 on RR3 which is Gambier Island and 600 on RR4. That adds up to a lot of mail.

Ten "lettertainer" with approximately 1500 pieces of mail each arrive in Gibsons six days a week on the early ferry from Horseshoe Bay to join the mail already at the post office from Vancouver Island and the rest of the Sunshine Coast; parcels come in a separate truck. This seemingly incredible volume for a relatively small area does not faze Hacking however. "I love my job!" she says.

What does she do when she isn't at the post office? Hacking laughs and proudly shows off a picture of her very pretty 14-year-old daughter Margaret. "I spend a lot of time being a Mom," she says.

Parents of a YD graduate write:
As our son reached the top of a blind hill there was a car stopped about 3 car lengths ahead. Thanks to your "Brake and Avoidance" teaching, our teenage son avoided an accident that could have resulted in serious injury to a mother and young child. When he needed to know what to do in a split second, he had the knowledge because of you. Keep up the good work, and God bless you.
Sincerely,
Rev. and Mrs. Luke Pare

No fish morts at landfill

by Ellen Frith

The Sunshine Coast Regional District (SCRD) will stand behind its decision to close the Sechelt landfill to any fish farm morts as of October 20 in spite of a September 12 letter from Minister of Agriculture and Fisheries John Savage requesting a consideration of a 60-day extension on the deadline. The letter also outlined a mort disposal proposal which has apparently recently fallen through.

Area E Director Jim Gurney told the SCRD at last week's board meeting that since the proposal outlined in the ministry's letter had "fallen through" the deadline should stand as is. "We are not prepared to allow an extension as there is no concrete proposal. This puts the industry and ministry in a bind but they've had six months."

The ministry's proposal suggested a "private sector developer with extensive experience in compost production and marketing has been found", which "present an opportunity to transform the current waste disposal problem (morts) into an investment and employment opportunity". But Savage said, although he is optimistic the plan can be operational by October 20, the ministry would like more time "to avoid the possibility of threatening the success of the project, or the operational capabilities of the area fish farms by being so close to your closure deadline."

However, because the proposal referred to was apparently no longer viable, as of October 20, mort disosal is no longer the SCRD's problem, the board decided. "It's the industry and the ministry's problem," Gurney said.

Herbicides

The issue of herbicide spraying on the Sunshine Coast "raises its head every so often", Area D Director Brett McGillivray told the Sunshine Coast Regional District (SCRD) at last week's board meeting, and it has done so again. According to McGillivray, the Forestry Services has several applications for herbicide spraying pending including an area containing 48 water licenses in Roberts Creek.

"Heart" awards presented

by Vern Elliott

On October 12, Gibsons Elementary School was presented an award from the "BC and Yukon Heart Foundation", in recognition of its support for the "Jump Rope For Heart" program.

The award was presented by Mrs. William A. Gibb of the BC and Yukon Heart Foundation, to Adam Scotte, who represented the participating students. The total amount raised by the school was $5600 with $4600.03 of that being net.

Five per cent of the net was given to the school, 20 per cent was for expenses for materials etcetera and 75 per cent went to the BC and Yukon Heart Foundation.

Madame Dufour, a French Immersion teacher at Gibsons Elementary, was actively involved in skipping with the students, and raising the pledges.

Sechelt parents' group seek task force support

by Ellen Frith

Five parents, members of the Breakaway Drug Abuse Society, addressed the Mayor's Task Force on Drugs last Wednesday night and by sharing their personal experiences with teen-aged substance abusers and the Breakaway program which is similar to Alcoholics Anonymous, emphasized the real need for a similar type of drug and alcohol education, prevention and counselling program here on the Sunshine Coast. At the moment, there are only three Breakaway programs in Canada and, since the recent disbanding of the group in Vancouver, the nearest to this area is in Penticton.

One of the parents, April MacKenzie-Moore, told Mayor Diane Strom the group from Sechelt had attended the task force meeting after it had read of the apparent apathy to the drug problem shown by the low turn out at last month's meeting. There were approximately 10 people at last week's meeting.

"We wanted to show you there were parents in the community who cared and were trying to do something about the problem," she said.

Strom reiterated that although the task force's initial interest lay not with the treatment of drug problems but with their prevention, she was willing to give possible support to the group.

MacKenzie-Moore read the numerous letters of support from various groups in Penticton praising that local Breakaway program and stressed the Sunshine Coast parents need such letters to help them get available government grants to initiate the program here. So far, she said, the group has raised $2000 on its own with $500 coming from the District of Sechelt. According to the group, $20,000 is needed to start the program.

"We need money and support and a place," MacKenzie-Moore said. "I don't know why people are so reluctant to recognize that there's a problem."

"It's easy for people to turn their backs," Strom said.

According to MacKenzie-Moore, the program would need a director, who is usually a reformed young offender, and a church to host the program. A church is essential, the group stressed, because the teenagers apparently view the building as a sanctuary no matter what its denomination and it therefore works better than any other shelter.

Sergeant Ed Hill of the Gibsons RCMP also addressed the meeting. He reported on a "brand new" 10-year program utilizing different video messages for Grades 1 through 10, offered by the RCMP cross-Canada working in conjuntion with the schools. Hill reported Gibsons is one of the few communities in the country where the program is already being set up.

"The schools were great," Hill said. "As soon as the program arrived in the mail we phoned the schools and they said, 'let's go'!"

The video tapes and accompanying literature address the problems of drugs, alcohol and peer pressure at the appropriate age level for each group and on an on-going basis.

Elphinstone Secondary School Principal Martin Wilson said he hoped to organize a parent workshop for next month which the Breakaway group could address and Strom said she hoped to have news in regards to the government grants the task force has applied for within a week or two. Once the grants are in, she said, the task force can begin organizing in earnest.

Private logging concerns SCRD

by Ellen Frith

Supporting initiatives instigated by the Powell River Regional District (PRRD), the Sunshine Coast Regional District (SCRD) voted at last week's board meeting to endorse a motion to the provincial cabinet requesting a moratorium on "inappropriate commercial logging on private land in the Gulf Islands", and a petition requesting the provincial government establish a Royal Commission or Commission of Inquiry to undertake an independent public inquiry on forestry practices in BC.

"I have no trouble supporting the moratorium on logging on private land," Area D Director Brett McGillivray said although he added, "moratorium is a very heavy word."

"The real issue is that we need much more order in regards to how logging takes place in this province. There is a general cry for a full-scale commission on the forestry industry."

Gibsons Alderman Gerry Dixon voted against supporting the moratorium although he agreed with the establishment of an independent public inquiry on forestry practices because he said he felt the major offenders were not private land owners cutting down trees but rather major forest industries doing so.

McGillivray pointed out that in the case of the Gulf Islands, the problem was "the logging of half or more of these islands".

"We're talking about very large private ownership," he said.

The PRRD states in its letter to the SCRD in regards to a moratorium: "Perhaps it is time the provincial government acknowledge there are inappropriate logging practices being used on private land and set in motion legislation to address this issue.

"We believe the Island's Trust should be given the means to control and regulate forestry practices on private land as a test case for future legislation for the province. This seems appropriate due to the Islands Trust's mandate to preserve and protect the unique nature of the Gulf Islands."

The request from the PRRD concerning the establishment of a public inquiry reflected "exactly the sentiment of the public," McGillivray said. The petition resolves the provincial government establish a Royal Commission or Commission of Inquiry to undertake the following tasks:

Conduct a full investigation of the forest inventory, forest tenures and the sustainability of the current annual allowable cut for all crown and privately owned forested land in BC;

Investigate means to protect all forest uses, including domestic watersheds, fish and wildlife, tourism, hunting and trapping, wilderness, old growth forests and native concerns;

Conduct a thorough examination of current silvicultural practices, wood utilization and export practices and recommend appropriate improvements needed to achieve sustainable, wholistic forestry;

Investigate ways to protect future jobs for loggers and mill workers;

Recommend means available to BC's forest industry to minimize detrimental effects of global warming; and Recommend means to effectively deal with conflict resolution and fully incorporate local decision making input in resource management.
