THE SANITARY BEE
Close study by naturalists show us that our bees are a very sanitary lot. If a bee should die in one of the hive cells, he is instantly pushed out by his fellow workers and then the dead atmosphere in the cell is aired out by two of the little creatures standing at the doorway using their wings as ventilators.

BAKED HALIBUT STEAKS topped with spears of freshly cooked asparagus and splashed with a golden Hollandaise sauce, make a tasty and colorful spring treat.

This week's RECIPE

From now until summer, fresh Pacific halibut will be appearing in good supply on food markets. In eastern Canada some fresh Atlantic halibut will also be available. Firm, meaty halibut is one of the most highly prized of the white-fleshed fish and in fresh form is notably a spring delicacy.

Another popular food which is now in season is asparagus. With or without embellishment, crisp, green asparagus is a welcome addition to spring menus. For a doubly enthusiastic response from family or guests, steam baked halibut steaks with freshly cooked asparagus and splash the combination with a tart, golden, Hollandaise sauce. The following directions have been supplied by the home economists of Canada's Department of Fisheries.

Halibut Hollandaise

- 2 pounds fresh halibut steaks
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- Dash pepper
- 2 tablespoons butter
- 1 pound asparagus freshly cooked

Sauce

- 3 egg yolks
- 1/4 teaspoon salt
- 2 tablespoons lemon juice
- 1/2 cup butter, melted
- 1/4 cup boiling water

Cut steaks, if necessary, to give 4 serving-size portions. Season with salt and pepper. Place in a shallow, greased baking dish and dot with butter. Bake in a hot oven at 450 degrees F. until the flesh will easily separate into flakes when tested with a fork. Allow about 10 minutes cooking time per inch thickness of the steaks. Meanwhile cook asparagus and prepare sauce.

For convenience the sauce may be prepared in advance and then reheated over hot water before serving time. Make it this way: Beat egg yolks lightly. Add salt and lemon juice. Stir in melted butter and then boiling water. Place mixture over hot, but not boiling water. Cook and stir for about 5 minutes, or until thickened.

When steaks are cooked, remove to a heated platter and top each portion with a bundle of hot, freshly cooked asparagus. Ladle with a ribbon of Hollandaise sauce. Serve remaining sauce at the table. Makes 4 servings.

IDEAS WITH FRUIT

Here are some fruit ideas that will put "something special in the lunchbox."

1. Cooked prunes, pitted, then filled with a mixture of cream cheese and chopped peanuts. These filled prunes make a fine contrast with a meat or cheese sandwich.
2. Dates, too, are tasty when stuffed with creamy peanut butter which has been blended with a bit of orange marmalade.
3. Quartered apples, unpeeled, may be frosted with cream cheese and dotted with chopped nuts. The fruits thus coated with cheese will not discolor.
4. Partially peeled, an orange will add nutrients, flavor and a refreshing contrast to the rest of the lunch. Fixed this way it is easy to eat, too.

These ideas with fruit, all of which may be prepared the night before, can be carried out because each fruit dessert when protected with the new, see through lunchbox wrap will retain the moist goodness that makes it so good to eat at lunchtime.

FIRST FIRE REPORT

The first weekly report of the 1961 Fire Season indicates the early spring fire hazard usually experienced in the Kamloops and Prince George Forest Districts is not as dangerous as past seasons.

Since April 1, these two districts reported 38 fires compared to 83 for the same period last season. In the Vancouver District one fire was reported in cedar snags at Ryan Creek near Pemberton Meadows, and was extinguished at one acre.

CARS WITH COE By MICKEY COE

I have had many inquiries about the meaning of the term "MIRACLE DEAL," and I think it's about time that I spelled out Brown Bros. Miracle Deal Plan in dollars and sense.

The Miracle Deal makes good sense because it's a unique and simplified approach to buying a car. We at Brown Bros. believe that most people would rather have a new car or better used car than they presently own. With this in mind, we have found a way of reducing the down payment to a point where everybody can have the car they want. We have also arranged the lowest monthly payments at the lowest rates of interest, anywhere (less than bank rates).

Dollar-wise, there just couldn't be anything more straight-forward and easy than the following:

61 FORD FAIRLANE	$75 down	$75 per month
61 FORD FALCON	$65 down	$65 per month
(and this year, something new has been added — one-owner used cars)
60 FORD FAIRLANE	$65 down	$65 per month
59 FORD MAINLINE	$55 down	$55 per month
58 FORD MAINLINE	$45 down	$45 per month

LESS THAN BANK RATES OF INTEREST — CASH REFUND IF YOUR TRADE IS WORTH MORE THAN THE REQUIRED DOWN PAYMENT

Call me collect now and I'll bring a Miracle Deal Car out for a test-drive.

TVIF will start June 1

The Traffic Victims Indemnity Fund, which starts June 1, will pay injury and damage claims to innocent victims of uninsured drivers. But the offending driver will have his driver's license suspended until arrangements have been made to repay TVIF what it has paid the victim, a sum which could be up to $25,000.

This aspect of B.C.'s new insurance legislation was outlined today by Ken Malthouse, B.C. manager of All Canada Insurance Federation which will finance and operate TVIF on behalf of all companies underwriting auto insurance in the province.

Mr. Malthouse outlined the procedure to be taken by a person who becomes the innocent victim of a hit-and-run or uninsured driver:

Contract TVIF at 602 West Hastings, Vancouver, Suite 817. The facts will be investigated and a settlement offered by TVIF. If you accept the settlement, it will be paid at once by TVIF just as if your claim had been against an insurance company. If you and TVIF cannot agree, the matter will be settled by the courts, just as if you and an insurance company could not agree.

Having paid you, TVIF will notify the superintendent of motor vehicles, who will suspend the license of the offending driver until arrangements have been made to repay TVIF what it has paid you.

Top scholars to get books

At the last meeting of Gibsons Elementary School PTA it was decided 20 books would be purchased so they can be presented to the top student in each grade next June.

A Sports day will be held May 19 with Mrs. M. Clements as convener. A donation was authorized for the Fall Fair committee. Rooms taught by Mrs. Scott and Mrs. McMillan won books for having the highest percentage of parents at the meeting.

Mrs. M. Alsagar reported on the PTA convention and said there were 558 delegates present from 227 PTAs in the province. Mrs. G. Wiren, primary grades supervisor spoke to mothers of pre-school age children on how to prepare the child for grade one. The next meeting will be held Mon., May 15 at 8 p.m. in the Elementary school. All parents are invited to attend.

One family in 9 now owns boat

Today one family in six owns a boat of some sort and indications are that 1,000,000 Canadians spent upwards of $250,000,000 in 1960 for fun afloat. Among other things, they bought more than 50,000 new boats, and 60,000 new motors. They also spent millions for servicing, parts, accessories and stopover fees at some 75 marinas.

More than 50 of these marinas — some with "boatel" accommodation for overnight visitors — cater to an estimated 50,000 pleasure-boaters in British Columbia alone.

The greatest surge of buying has occurred in outboard engines. The total number of inboard engines on Canadian waters last year was about 100,000 against 900,000 outboards.

The past 10 years have seen the most startling advances. Boating has tripled in this time, and by the early 1970's may be the week-end goal of as many as one in four Canadian families.

WORKING WITH CANADIANS IN EVERY WALK OF LIFE SINCE 1817

Solitary vigil on Hopkins wharf preferred

Article 3

By Eric Thomson

In our wanderings my wife had spotted a strawberry farm, and, on our way back to our ship, our driver stopped at one, where the ladies got boxes of strawberries, which later appeared at the supper table, of prime flavor, before the end of March.

The next day my wife and I took a bus from Wilmington to Redonda Beach, a trifle of about eight miles. We first had to walk about a mile from the ship to the bus depot, and what struck us about that mile was that all the cafes, and nearly all the other places of business, sold alcoholic drinks in one form or another, and this seems to be a custom of the country.

The road to Redonda was mostly along boulevard streets with comfortable little well-kept homes on either side, more in keeping with our pre-conceived ideas of California. This little town exists for wharf fishermen but their activities are for the present confined to a small wharf-head, while an area about twice the size of Gibsons Bay is being transformed into a marina behind a breakwater. What is left of the wharf is lined with fish stalls where there is on sale a weird variety of marine life from octopuses on the hoof to tuna in slices. I watched a Japanese girl heft a thin, ferocious-looking fish about a yard long with intent to buy, and was told that it was a barracuda.

The fishermen were lined up, elbow to elbow, each with his rod in a holder stuck in the railing, the line having four single hooks to gut, a foot apart, above the sinker. While we watched one had hooked a fish, and it was very interesting to see how his neighbors allowed him to move his gear under and past theirs until he got to where he could wind his catch right up and in, when a neighbor took the line just above the fish. Having seen these men fishing under these crowded conditions, I'd prefer Mary Carmichael's solitary vigil at the end of Hopkins wharf.

On our way home, I noticed a curious localization of industry, a used car lot, a law office and a drug store, repeated three times in one block, which leads to speculation as to which one of these places one goes to first.

The next day was Sunday, and it was sailing day for us. In the morning, my wife and I visited the Matson Line Terminal nearby where the Lurline was lying and ready to sail. We had a good look at this sea-palace from the dock and picked up a couple from Minnesota of our own age, whose daughter, a travel agent, had business aboard the Lurline, and they were waiting for her. They referred to our ship as a tramp steamer, so we corrected them on this, and asked them to come and look her over, which they did, with manifest surprise and appreciation.

Having seen San Francisco and Los Angeles under ideal and identical weather conditions, I prefer San Francisco. It is a clean, serene and concentrated city. Los Angeles is untidy, hurried, and spread over miles of hill and plain. It contains many places of outstanding interest, but, like the currants in an All-bone bun, you have to look for them.

From Los Angeles to Panama is about seven days' voyage of 400 miles a day. Blue sky, sapphire sea, just enough breeze to ruffle the water, warm enough to do without a coat, but not too hot. The crew have filled the swimming pool and my wife comes in to report that she has been skipping, so, if this is the life of Riley, we are living it.

This letter has been written during the week which has passed since we left Los Angeles. We shall be at Parama early tomorrow morning and shall pass through the Canal in daylight. During the past week the temperature has been a little over 80, the general condition being just about the same as with us on a hot summer day. The sea is much warmer than with us, being about one degree warmer than the air, and much saltier.

There is always a fresh breeze blowing, in fact yesterday we ran into the trade winds with their accompanying dolphins and flying fish, and today at noon the sun is for a few minutes directly overhead so we cast no shadow. Sunset is something very different from what happens with us. The sun sets about six and you can see it drop for the last 15 minutes of daylight. There is twilight for a few minutes after sunset and then comes the dark.

NIGHT LOGGERS

An old superstition among certain natives of Central and South American is that mahogany trees should be cut by the light of the moon because, according to this theory, they're sounder, freer of sap and of a richer color at night than during the day. Actually, the National Lumber Manufacturers Association says, this belief has no basis in fact.

"THEIR MOTHER WANTS THEM TO!"

One of the joys of Spring is watching baby chickens with their mother. In a charming verse in Viola Pratt's "Journeying with the Year" (Ryer-son) are these lines which are very suitable for Mother's Day.

"The little chickens clean their bills;
When mother starts to cluck
The goslings splash beside their bath
So does each frog and duck
They like to keep their faces clean
For their mother wants them to.

I hope, that little children Behave as well, don't you?"
On the second Sunday in May boys and girls make a special effort to behave "as their mothers want them to."

Little did Miss Anna Jarvis dream when she originated the idea of a Mother's Day in Philadelphia where it was first observed in 1908, that it would become so widely observed on this continent. During her later years she objected strenuously to the commercializing of her original plan of a day to honor mother.

Scoffers still laugh at special days as a plan to promote the sale of gifts. Others may complain that it is a poor kind of child who needs a Mother's Day as a reminder of his debt to his mother. Nevertheless, Mother's Day has grown each year in popularity. The good effects far exceed any undesirable results.

In a home where there are small children, this is one time when father can "go into a huddle" with his youngsters and plan a surprise for Mother. How little boys and girls love a secret! It may be very hard to keep, but what fun it is!

The gifts for Mother's Day are varied and they range from inexpensive ones to costly presents. As soon as a child is old enough to make a purchase for himself, and especially if he has his own allowance, a mother will appreciate very much some little article which he has chosen all himself.

One little girl went into a store and picked out a large, colorful mixing bowl which took her eye. Her mother did not particularly need another mixing bowl, but on the morning of Mother's Day, when she unwrapped the parcel, her small daughter said with shining eyes, "Mummy, it was the very nicest thing I could find anywhere!" Mothers value the gifts on Mother's Day, not just for their value, or usefulness, but because they are an expression of love.

Plans for Mother's Day may well include one Sunday in the whole year when Mother does not get breakfast. Why not make the whole day a special holiday from housework for Mother?

If this is carried out, both father, and the children in a home, may be surprised to discover from their own experience, just how much time, and thought and energy are required for the routine tasks of making beds, tidying, preparing meals, and doing up the dishes!

This novel experiment might even lead to the family offering to take a little greater share in the regular home jobs. How much easier Mother's Day would be, on ordinary days in the year, if a son at school kept his own room "ship-shape" or a daughter could be counted on to wash the dishes and tidy up after supper!

It is customary on Mother's Day to wear a flower in honor of her to whom the day is dedicated — a colored flower if one's mother is living, a white one if she is no longer alive. Flowers often best express the sentiments of love which we find it difficult to put into words.

Fathers whose mothers are alive will want to take time to give their mothers pleasure on Mother's Day as well as show appreciation for the good job of being a mother which their wife does. Mothers of little children realize now they themselves have small ones to care for something of the love and devotion which their own mothers once bestowed on them. They will tell their mother, "I love you" because they know that "their mother wants them to" on Her Day.

BOMB SHELTER

Civil Defense officials suggest that seeking shelter on the first floor of a frame house would cut exposure to atomic radiation by 50 percent. For mass sheltering, these officials say one answer may be miles of trenches along main roads — plain dirt trenches covered with boards.
