Two meetings required to take expected heavy hospital vote

Following the request for a special general meeting, trustees of St. Mary's Hospital have scheduled this meeting for Sunday, Oct. 29.

Since the present membership of approximately 1,200 makes it impossible to hold the meeting in a single hall, it is to be held in two locations.

For society members in the northern end the meeting will be held between 11 a.m. and 2 p.m. Sunday at Kleindale High School. For members in the southern area, the meeting will be held between 3.30 p.m. and 6 p.m. at Elphinstone High School, Gibsons.

All society members have been advised of the business of the meeting by letter. In essence, a motion has been proposed which asks that "construction of the new hospital be postponed since the present building is adequate." It is suggested that the "anticipated occupancy" has not materialized. If the new hospital is to be built this motion must be defeated.

The British Columbia Hospital Service in its study of this area made no reference to the future occupancy of St. Mary's Hospital. The recommendation to build a new 35-bed hospital in a more central location made predictions of occupancy in the existing hospital unnecessary.

The BCHIS report showed that for the last five years and has St. Mary's Hospital had operated at over 100 percent occupancy still not provided hospital care for an approximately equal number of patients who were hospitalized in Vancouver or other hospitals.

In short, once the BCHIS had recommended the construction of the new hospital it made all its predictions on the anticipated occupancy of the new hospital and not of the old.

The BCHIS report indicated that had there been a new 35-bed hospital in Sechelt in 1961 local residents would have recorded 50 percent more patient days in this new hospital than the maximum capacity of the existing hospital. Under no circumstances could the existing hospital have handled the load of cases that would normally be anticipated from this area.

The construction committee is still awaiting approval from Victoria of the construction estimates submitted several weeks ago. These figures when approved by Victoria will be published so that every landowner will know exactly what the community will be required to raise from taxation. At that time the anticipated mill rate increase will be known.

All this information will be sent to every landowner before he is asked to vote on the money by-law. In short, every landowner will be in possession of the true facts, approved by Victoria before he is asked to cast his vote. This makes the rumored tax increase currently circulating in the northern area completely erroneous.

DeMolay officers installed

In School Hall, Oct. 14, some 100 residents of the Sunshine Coast watched the installation of officers of Mount Elphinstone Chapter, Order of DeMolay.

Elected officers were: Steve Mason, master councillor; William J. Peterson, senior councillor; Richard Ludwig, junior councillor and David Leslie, scribe treasurer.

Puppets will be one of three concerts

Overture Concerts Association now has its season's program lined up and it is expected this year will be one of the most interesting it has presented so far. Big attraction will be the Lord's Puppets which have been acclaimed internationally and is now touring centres in North America.

Another big attraction will be the Chanticleers who made such a hit when they appeared in Gibsons a couple of years ago. The remaining concert to be presented will be Hautzig, a famous concert pianist who will appear at the first concert on Nov. 18.

Lord's Puppets will visit Gibsons on Dec. 13 and the Chanticleers on April 5. In the meantime the annual membership drive is underway and is reaching out to attract more members to take in and enjoy the three concerts to be presented this year.

A meeting of the association executive was held Monday night at the home of Mr. W. S. Potter in Gibsons where final arrangements for the season's concerts were made. Next executive meeting will be at the home of Mrs. Wynne Stewart at 8 p.m. Oct. 30.

Ratepayers to be given copies

There will be a new wrinkle at annual meetings to be held by Sechelt District School Board. Instead of trustees outlining vocally the year's activities of the board, ratepayers attending will be given mimeograph sheets with the year's activities typewritten on them, the board has decided.

From these sheets questions can be asked of board members. In the past questions depended on what ratepayers could remember from the speech.

Dates, places and times of these meetings will be found in a school board ad on page 5 of this issue.

Tenders for furnace oil for the schools were opened and of the four received B A Oil Company was the lowest at 15.76 cents per gallon. The tender was awarded B A Oil Company.

Scouts host P.R. troop

On Oct. 14 and 15, 1st Gibsons Boy Scouts once again was host to the 3rd Powell River troop under Scoutmaster Jim McDermott and his assistant Pete Palmer.

Under ideal weather conditions the 18 Powell River lads got together with the 22 Gibsons boys at the site of the former B & K Logging camp. A program of campcraft, hiking and observation kept all the boys occupied. The Council campfire on Saturday night under leader McDermott and the "Scouts Own" under Gibsons Scoutmaster the following morning formed two highlights. Both Scoutmaster Hank Brendregt and his assistant Al Raynor report good progress in their troop, now that the newly acquired camp equipment can be put to good use.

The Powell River boys, who had been donated a small bus by Mahood Logging Co. for the event left the campsite at 3 p.m. for the journey back home. Everyone is now looking forward to next spring for the get-together in the Powell River area.

The following boys were invested recently: Ian Hunter on Sept. 22; Mike Skellett and Godfrey Robinson on Oct. 6; Ian Hunter and Mike Skellett also received their Leaping Wolf badges from District Cubmaster Geoff Thatcher. On Sept. 29, second Russ Thomas earned his Rescuer badge.

Donation to hospital

Sechelt's Auxiliary to the Hospital met on Oct. 12 with the president, Mrs. R. Alan Swan in the chair. Mrs. Nelson and Mrs. J. Redman reported on the regional meeting of the auxiliary's division of the BCHA which they attended on Sept. 29 at Lion's Gate Hospital. A number of new ideas for fund raising were introduced.

Mrs. Carter, sewing convener, reported 11 pairs of drapes and 12 half-sheets had been made and delivered to the hospital. Special thanks were extended to Mrs. Arch Williams for making the drapes so beautifully.

On Oct. 17, 18, and 19, the BCHA auxiliary holds its annual convention in Vancouver and two delegates are present from Sechelt.

Tickets will soon be on sale for the raffle to be held on Dec. 14, the prizes being a cradle and dressed doll, a basket tray and an Indian plaque, all described in an earlier report. Forming of a drama group was discussed and a further report on this will be made.

It was decided to continue holding regular meetings in the afternoons till further notice. The next meeting will be held on Nov. 9 at 2 p.m. in St. Hilda's hall. All members are urged to attend and any one interested in joining will be welcome.

SURPRISE PARTY

Relatives and friends surprised Josie and Doug Davies of Gibsons on their 25th wedding anniversary with a party at the Davies home. Games occupied most of the evening and a smorgasbord followed.

SMALL TALK

By Syms

"We're apartment hunting again..."

"Oh... noisy neighbors or nosey landlord?"

Did June census man miss you?

Municipal authorities have written the Dominion Bureau of Statistics in Ottawa complaining that the census figure covering the village of Gibsons, showing an increase of only 21 persons is unreasonable.

The village council had only ten days in which to lodge a complaint. The letter was decided on at the regular meeting of village council, Tuesday of last week.

Sechelt up 33

According to the 1961 census Sechelt's population has increased by 33. The 1956 figure was 439 and the 1961 figure 472.

The 1956 census was the first taken of Sechelt as a municipal area because Sechelt did not become a village until Feb. 15, 1956. The census was taken in June of that year.

The figure is regarded as being satisfactory to municipal officials in Sechelt.

PTA discusses nylon problem

The monthly meeting of Sechelt's PTA was held on Thurs., Oct. 12 in the Activity Room. There was an interesting discussion of whether students in Trail Bay School should be permitted to wear nylons.

A total of $31 was realized from the recent PTA sale of good used school children's clothing. Many favorable comments were made about this successful event and it was gratifying to know what a help it had been.

A corsage, given as a special event of the evening for a lucky new member or visitor, was won by Mr. W. Dooley.

The highlight of the program was an informative talk on "Radiation Hazards" by Dr. D. L. Johnson.

An intermission with coffee, tea, sandwiches and cookies was followed by an enthusiastic question and answer period.

IN AIR AGAIN

Mrs. C. A. Broughton of Gibsons, 102 years old recently visited a daughter who was ill at Terrace, B.C. Mrs. Broughton flew both ways via CPA and enjoyed taking to the air again. She came to Vancouver from the east by jet plane early in the summer.

Most business men and officials who have dealing with the public and who have observed the influx of people and the amount of new building of homes are of the opinion that the census figure of 1011 people for Gibsons is too low. Compared to the 990 figure for the 1956 census which showed an increase of 278 persons, the 1961 census shows an increase of only 21 persons making the total for the village 1,011.

This increase, taking into consideration the number of homes built in the village since 1956, is regarded by practically all who deal with the public, either with merchandise or other requirements, as being a ridiculous figure.

To ascertain how many people have been left off the census records, those people in Gibsons village specifically, are asked to mail or drop their names into the Coast-News office. The best way to allow a correct total to be made would be to write down all the names of the parties who should have been included. It should be remembered that any births after May 31 will not be considered as the census is the population total at May 31 of this year.

There have been reports of people on Seaview road having been missed. There are also reports of people outside the village of Gibsons in the rural route area having been missed. These people too should report their names to the Coast News but they should signify that they are not living inside the village.

Efforts will be made to get some rectification of the 1961 census figure of 1,011 because it is so unrealistic when compared to figures covering other five year periods.

Chrysanthemum show on Oct 25

Gibsons Garden Club will hold its annual Chrysanthemum Show at the Kinsmen Hall, on Wed., Oct. 25 at 8 p.m.

Mr. Hawley of Brackman and Ker Milling Co. will address the meeting and present slide pictures.

Those who were present last year when Mr. Hawley spoke will readily agree that an instructive and enjoyable evening will be the result. Suitable garden items will be distributed as door prizes. Tea will be served at the close of Mr. Hawley's address.

This is the last meeting of 1961. There will be no further meetings until March, 1962, so a good turnout is desired.

Christmas lights!

To give impetus to the street lighting plan outlined previously by Gibsons businessmen a fund has been started and contributions can be handed in at any store in Gibsons. You will be given an official receipt. The name of the fund is Gibsons Christmas Lighting Fund.

Some businessmen have made their contribution to the fund and are now at work seeking ways and means to have the lights strung up as soon as they can be prepared.

Prepare for Night school

A final effort is being made to see what can be done about continuing night school classes if sufficient people want to attend them.

Sechelt School district board at its last meeting named R. G. Gordon, principal of Pender Harbour High School as director for the upper half of the district and Gene Yablonski of Elphinstone High School for the lower portion, extending as far as Sechelt.

Pender Harbour area will hold a meeting Thursday evening in Madeira Park Elementary school at 8 p.m. to organize and see what can be done. Mr. Gordon is prepared to teach drama, English or mathematics according to demand; Mr. Tjorhom, copper tooling; Mrs. Lowe, women's keep fit; Mr. Olson, navigation; Mr. Payne, electricity in your life; Mrs. Hatley, glee club; Mrs. Anderson, sewing, and art will be included if enough people sign up.

Joke of the Week

"The doctor says, you're to have a dose now and another if you wake up in the morning."

Cookhouse on fire?

It could have been serious but it had its humorous side when an alarm was turned in to the Sechelt Fire Brigade at 7:15 p.m. on Sat., Oct. 7.

The call was apparently to the Cookhouse on the boulevard so the brigade proceeded with due dispatch to the Calypso Dining rooms but finding no fire there went on to the Sechelt Inn where also there was no fire. From there they were directed to the home of E. F. Cooke where a chimney fire was raging. This was quickly extinguished without damage.

The brigade had just returned to the fire hall when an alarm was turned in from the home of Lou Hansen where another chimney was on fire. This was also extinguished and no damage incurred.

When turning in an alarm residents are requested to be clear and concise regarding the location of the fire. It is also suggested that this now being the open season on fires all residents of the area have their chimneys cleaned without delay and avoid danger.

During the past ten years fires in Canada have taken 5356 lives and destroyed property valued at $1,000,000. In 1959 560 Canadians died in fires and in 1960 524, of whom 205 were children. So be careful of fire!

We must protest!

When Gibsons census figures show an increase of only 21 in the last five years, it opens a door wide on doubt that the census was as complete as it should have been.

Quite a number of persons informed the Coast News, mostly just after the census was completed, that they had not been approached and as far as they knew were not counted.

If Gibsons population in the June census had been close to an estimate of 1,200 it would not have aroused any objections. Such a figure would be regarded as reasonable.

For those who prefer to say the census figure is possibly correct, ponder on the following official census figures from Dominion Bureau of Statistics compilations:

Year	Population
1931	131
1941	262
1951	722
1956	990

The increase from census to census shows a growth of 131 between 1931 and 1941; 450 between 1941 and 1951 and 289 in the ten years from 1951 to 1961. Another point of view would be to take the difference between 1951 and 1956 which is 272. The difference between 1956 and 1961 is only 21.

Surely there is something wrong. For any person in his or her right mind to argue that the turnover of population in Gibsons, taking into consideration natural decrease and increase, would result in an increase of only 21, dwells closely on the fantastic when the increase in the previous five years was 272. In that five years there was far less home building than in the five years from 1956 to 1961. There is no argument on this point because the visual picture and the building permit figures at the Municipal office are just too, too obvious.

In the two years 1959 and 1960 there were at least 25 new homes constructed but not all by newcomers. However a percentage, and a large percentage were built by new people moving in. If 13 were built by newcomers and only two lived in each home there would be at least 26 persons added for two years. However the two per home might be low.

Take such a sample over a five year period and one can be sure the average Gibsonite would not settle for a 21 increase in population from 1956 to 1961.

One might ask why worry about census figures? They are only a guess. This idea will not sit well with village council members who have to take a municipal grant from the provincial government on the basis of the most recent census figure. This means Gibsons will not get a fair deal because of faulty census taking.

Further, there is a basic figure necessary for hospital construction purposes. One will look with great interest at the total census figures for this entire area, from Port Mellon to Jervis Inlet.

Newspaper week

CONTRIBUTED

National Newspaper Week focuses attention on the newspaper serving the Sechart Peninsula, the Coast News. The Coast News is a vital part of that institution dedicated to telling the public about themselves, their government, and the economy of their locality.

In the past the influence and power of newspapers has excited debate concerning their ownership and control. Should such an institution be completely controlled or completely free? In the United Nations and in commission hearings in Britain and the United States this question in its international and national aspects has been hotly argued. In the western democracies the newspaper continues to be an independent institution, a "fourth estate," responsible with other institutions of authority for the public well-being, yet not a part of the ruling authority.

Aware of this responsibility newspapers have drawn up and adopted their own code of ethics; that the main job of the newspaper is to inform its readers and to inform them correctly, and that the main obligation of the newspaper is to guard our heritage of freedom. Despite all this concern for ethics, certainly no one is more aware than the newspaper publisher that he is in business to make his living. Yet the ethics and the business end are quite compatible and it is up to the readers to insist upon, by their considered criticism — eagerly accepted by the newspaper — that this compatibility is maintained.

In keeping with the object of newspapering the publisher of the Coast News has constantly brought us impartial reporting and sincere editorial opinion. In doing this the Coast News is by no means unique among newspapers, but it is satisfying to realize we are well served. The Canadian press does no more for newspapering in the dominion than the Coast News does in the Sechart Peninsula. — GAC

The Devil's Beeftub!

By ERIC THOMSON

(Article 20)

During our second visit to Peebles we visited St. Mary's Loch, which lies high up in the hills above the Yarrow valley.

From reading Scott's novels, I had pictured it as a wild and inhospitable place, but it was far from that. It is a fairly small, placid loch, the spawning ground of the Yarrow salmon, and at the far end of it is Tibbie Shiels' Inn, the howf of generations of fishermen.

The road continues on over the hills and drops suddenly into Moffat. This is a town full of hotels, and it used to be a health resort but now is a resting place on long distance bus tours. There is a nice little park at the foot of its High Street, of about five acres; but in this area, without crowding, there are gardens, tennis courts, a putting green, shelters and wash rooms, and two lakes, one small one for paddlers and small boat sailing, and a much larger one with row-boats on it, and waterfowl.

The layout makes thrifty use of the land available, and if Gibsons ever gets round to developing the Centennial Park, a letter to the town clerk of Moffat for a sketch of this park would produce useful information and ideas.

We climbed out of Moffat by a different road up and up the Moffat valley until we reached the top of the hill that forms the backbone of the whole district. On one side of it springs the Clyde, on another the Tweed, and on a third side the Annan.

We stopped alongside an amphitheatre with steep, naked sides about 200 feet high, and this is my recollection of our driver's remarks: "Down below you see the source of the Annan, and this is the Devil's Beeftub. It got this name because it was here that the Johnston clan, who were notorious cattle thieves, used to store their beasts after a raid until they ate them."

There followed miles of road across the Border moors which were ablaze with heather in full bloom, back to Peebles.

I made friends with a lady and gentleman who had a fishing tackle and tobacconists shop across the road from our hotel. They told me of the famous fishing dog of Peebles, who stands in the burn at the foot of their garden, and when he spots a trout, stalks it, then snaps it out on to the bank and eats it.

The night before they told me about him the dog had visited their shop and had been caught as he made off with a fishing reel, of all things. As we were laughing at this, the dog came into the shop, and introductions were made and received. He is a cross between a Border collie and a retriever, black with a white shirt front. The next thing was a shout from the boss, and a chase up the street after the dog who this time was making off with half a pound of tobacco.

The next morning while we were waiting for the train to Edinburgh, we were talking with a man who had one of those saws which we call Swedish fiddles, but he called his a bush saw. His saw had a blade that had four cutters, a space and then four more cutters, but no rakers. It had also a detachable aluminum hand-saw handle which seemed an advantage.

We had just previously seen our fishing dog sitting in the door of the Post Office nearby, and mentioned this to him. He countered with a cat story. It seems that a Peebles cat had one of its forefeet run over and crushed. The owner managed to amputate, and replaced it with a wooden club foot and suitable harness, which the cat soon got used to. After puss became mobile again, its owner noticed that it disappeared from time to time obviously on business. One day he followed it, and found that it had taken to fishing in the burn. It, too, stalked a trout, flipped it ashore with its good foot, then knocked it on the head with the club foot, and ate it.

I went to a lamb sale at Peebles, one of the big sales of the borders. It was a rainy morning, so my wife didn't come, but the afternoon was sunny so we both went and sat in on the sale of some 8,000 lambs which fetched from £6 to £4 each.

We were much more interested in the shepherds and their wives and dogs and in the bidders than in the sheep. The surroundings, and the personalities of the men and women were exactly as depicted in "Of Sheep and Men." The dogs, having delivered their sheep to the pens, slept soundly. I haven't seen a sable collie in Scotland who was doing anything other than looking beautiful. The collie used with sheep is black with a little white on him, short in the nose and short-haired. They are a work from the Borders to the Orkneys and they are all descended from one famous dog, and while they are not show dogs a good worker commands a price of up to £200. They seem to have the ability to hypnotize the sheep.

On our road to the Devil's Beeftub we watched two dogs move several hundred sheep up to and past our bus on a very steep hillside, and the sheep seemed to flow by the vehicle, while one dog watched at the side, on the hill, and the other gently moved them forward from the rear along the road.

After Peebles, we were a week at Perth. This was the ancient Pictish capital of the country before the Scots or Romans came on the scene. It continued to be a Royal residence for the kings of Scotland, darkened by murders and conspiracies, but the old buildings were demolished over 100 years ago when the city was rebuilt in its present form, and the only reminders of its past are plaques reciting that here stood a palace, there an abbey or tower.

For parents only

"Children are so different!" a mother complained.
"I never know what to expect."
"That's what makes home life exciting!" her friend answered.
If parents would accept at the time of a baby's birth the fact that all children differ, how much happier life would be! How much unnecessary sorrow arises from parents, especially mothers, wanting their child to be taller, or heavier, or brighter, or more friendly to others, than he is naturally? There is no one pattern for all children.
In every home with several children, parents often notice how different they are. It is important to remember that youngsters have "feelings" which can be hurt. They are sensitive when they hear disparaging remarks about themselves, such as, "Tom is not nearly so clever at school as John," or "Jean is such a careless, untidy child — quite different from Mary who is neat as a pin about her clothes and play things," or "Billy is just naturally at home with strangers. He'll make up with anyone. But Helen is painfully shy. She runs and hides when I have visitors."

Put yourself in Tom's, or Jean's, or Helen's place—How would you like to know your mother held such a poor opinion of you?

Another mistake busy parents sometimes make is in failing to look for some one thing each child does well. He needs sufficient encouragement and praise so that he feels he is a success. Every person chaves, not only the good opinion of others, but he also needs to think well of himself. "I'm not much good at anything," a teenage girl remarked to a friend. That girl's mother should have helped her to find out what she was good at, so that she wouldn't have had such a poor estimation of her own ability.

In some homes a child may be good at something and we praised for his skill, and because praise is pleasant he wants that job always to be reserved for him. But unless there is a system of taking turns in work as well as in other things, the other children in the family get no practice at this particular thing. Dorothy may be a marvel at making pie but her younger sister Linda needs to try her hand at this too!

Boys and girls are made on a different plan. Serious harm to a child's normal sex development in later years may often be traced to a mother's disappointment in the arrival of a son when she wanted a daughter (or visa versa) resulting in her treating her boy like a little girl, overdressing him, keeping his hair long and "protecting" him from "those rough little boys in the neighborhood." A girl who is over-encouraged to be a "tom-boy" may also discover it hard in adolescence to find her place easily with other girls in the collegiate "gang."

The differences in children of about the same age can easily be observed at a birthday party. Of a dozen children eight years old some will be tall, others short; some fair, others dark. But the contrast in their social aptitude is also noticeable. Some children will be friendly and enter the group eagerly, with the expectation of having a good time. Others will be shy, retiring, leaves be the cooking water.

uncertain whether or not this is going to be "fun."

When active or mental game are played the varying proficiency is again apparent. One child is quick of mind, with excellent muscle co-ordination; another is rather slow at a guessing game and a bit awkward in a motion demanding skill. In the physical, emotional and mental growth, the children will vary in their development.

Parents must think not only of the immediate present but of the future when they accept their children as they are and show them that they love them and are proud of the ways in which they excel.

EASY ON WATER

Don't add extra water when cooking leafy vegetables. Just wash greens thoroughly and let the water retained on their leaves be the cooking water.

VACATION MONEY

Expenditures by foreign travellers in Canada in 1960 reached a record total of $420,000,000, larger by 7.4% than 1959's previous peak. Canadians travelling in foreign countries in the year spent $627,000,000.

Aloha Land greetings

Here are some excerpts from letters written home by Shirley Linton, former teacher at Gibsons Elementary School, who this year is teaching in Hawaii.

"Greetings from aloha land. In spite of the arrival hour being one o'clock in the morning we were greeted at the plane in the traditional Hawaiian manner, hula dancers and lovely flower leis. The air was full of a ginger perfume and Hawaiian music. It was very warm, but not much different from what it was like in Vancouver all summer.

As you know the hour was too late to go to the Y.W. where I will be staying, so my first night was spent in a cottage, attached to a hotel, on Waikiki Beach. What a fabulous place this is! The sea is an impossible-to-believe deep blue, and at my first morning glimpse of it I put on my bathing suit and went splashing in first thing! The water is wonderful, about 75 degrees, very salty and even more buoyant than at Lyncrest, Roberts Creek.

The white ships, bright flowers and exotic trees of those travel folders I used to pore over, all are here for real, and just as exciting as my imagination had pictured them. To my delight there is greenery everywhere. They've gone out of their way to preserve the trees and swaying palms line the streets.

Billboards are banned so there is nothing to spoil the natural beauty. Music is everywhere and there's a perpetual feeling of gaiety, along with a casual relaxed manner of living that is most refreshing. The Hawaiian people that we've met seem to exude a natural friendliness, and the one thing they have in common we've noticed, is that they all love Hawaii.

As you can imagine, I couldn't wait to catch an outside glimpse of the school where I am to teach and I must say it more than measured up to what I had pictured. The setting is beautiful, in country like surroundings, apart altogether from Honolulu. Frear Hall, the building in which I will be teaching, is one of the oldest buildings on the campus, and at one time was a governor's mansion. Two huge banyan trees frame the front of it, and there is lots of grass for the children to play on, and oh yes, I even saw little bicycles on which they may ride during "break" time. I can hardly wait to see my class!

Jeanie and I went for a ride in an outrigger canoe yesterday, and it was quite an experience! You paddle like mad to catch up with the big waves, then ride in on them for what seems to be a long time. It's really fun!

We also have had a trip around Oahu Island by jeep. It was a drive yourself deal and we had the jeep for a day. It was a most interesting experience, and gave us our first glimpse of how life is lived and has been lived by the Hawaiians on their lovely islands for many long years. Actually life, outside of Honolulu, is continuing much the same as it did a hundred years ago.

At Laie Bay, a lovely spot, we attended a hukelaui, which is a fishing party where everyone helps pull in the nets. I shall remember it most for the Hawaiian music. Everyone sang and sang, and there were lots of guitars and ukeleles. Then there was a luau, the native feast when a pig is roasted, after being wrapped in taro leaves then buried in the ground to be cooked. I did not enjoy the Hawaiian meat dishes, but the fruit is delicious, and I don't think I will ever tire of either papaya or pineapple.

In spite of the green mountains which are the background of Oahu Island, the scenery is very different from B.C. The green growth is tropical and lush, leaves are huge on many plants, flowers are exotic, and the birds are colorful, and the ones I've noticed, very different from any we have around Lyncrest but I'm going to learn more about them, and their names. Another interesting thing I've noticed... the day and night are sharply divided with no twilight!

As school begins next week, my next letter will be all about teaching in Hawaii. Greetings to all our friends."

PLENTY OF ELBOW ROOM FOR THE GROWING FAMILY IN THIS FOUR BEDROOM HOME

Plan No. 1300 (copyright No. 117093)

If a well planned home with plenty of bedrooms for a growing family is your desire then this is the home for you, especially if you wish to attain this in not too large an area.

It's designed with living room, dining room kitchen and one bedroom across the back, and is particularly suitable for a lot sloping to the rear with a view so that the balcony can be used to fullest advantage.

Entry with open stairwell, three bedrooms and carport are the front features of this good family home. Your lot should slope fairly sharply to the rear so that you can have the benefit of a full depth of the house at the back and still maintain a sleek low look at the front.

The carport roof extends over the entry of the house so that there is protection from the weather when entering from the front, but there is also an entry to the kitchen from the carport. The U shaped kitchen, planned for efficiency features an eating bar, while the effect of a hallway is created by a louvered wall at the end of the dining area.

The fireplace on the end wall of the living room leaves a spacious uncluttered area for furniture arrangement. Master bedrooms features double clothes closet for Mr. and Mrs. Vertical siding with cedar shakes would look very attractive on the outside of the house, and of course planters and shrubs at a later date will do a most effective job of glamorizing its appearance.

Working drawings are available for this home, designed for N.H.A. approval, from the Building Centre (B.C.) Ltd., 116 East Broadway, Vancouver 10.

New edition of Select Homes Designs Plan Book available... send 25c to cover cost of mailing and handling.

When moving heavy furniture, slip old woolen socks over the legs to prevent marking floors. If furniture has flattened the pile of a rug, steam it for a few minutes either with a steam iron or with a folded wet cloth under a dry iron.

MOTORIST MAGAZINE

A new full-color magazine, called B.C. Motorist, will be published by the B.C. Automobile Association. First issue will appear Dec. 1. It will replace Headlight, the house organ which has been sent to BCAA members for the past 12 years. Mitchell Press will print the new magazine which will start with a circulation of 60,000. Editor is Don Bruce, BCAA public relations manager.

DON'T PAINT WAX

Paint will not adhere to wax and care should be taken in painting anything which might have been waxed. Otherwise, the paint may peel or chip. The surface should be scrubbed first with soap and water, then given a good rubbing with turpentine to remove every trace of wax. If any gloss remains, rub it lightly with a fine sandpaper.

Have electrical wiring checked before winter sets in.

As you know the hour was too late to go to the Y.W. where I will be staying, so my first night was spent in a cottage, attached to a hotel, on Waikiki Beach. What a fabulous place this is! The sea is an impossible-to-believe deep blue, and at my first morning glimpse of it I put on my bathing suit and went splashing in first thing! The water is wonderful, about 75 degrees, very salty and even more buoyant than at Lyncrest, Roberts Creek.

The white ships, bright flowers and exotic trees of those travel folders I used to pore over, all are here for real, and just as exciting as my imagination had pictured them. To my delight there is greenery everywhere. They've gone out of their way to preserve the trees and swaying palms line the streets.

Billboards are banned so there is nothing to spoil the natural beauty. Music is everywhere and there's a perpetual feeling of gaiety, along with a casual relaxed manner of living that is most refreshing. The Hawaiian people that we've met seem to exude a natural friendliness, and the one thing they have in common we've noticed, is that they all love Hawaii.

As you can imagine, I couldn't wait to catch an outside glimpse of the school where I am to teach and I must say it more than measured up to what I had pictured. The setting is beautiful, in country like surroundings, apart altogether from Honolulu. Frear Hall, the building in which I will be teaching, is one of the oldest buildings on the campus; and at one time was a governor's mansion. Two huge banyon trees frame the front of it, and there is lots of grass for the children to play on, and oh yes, I even saw little bicycles on which they may ride during "break" time. I can hardly wait to see my class!

Jeanie and I went for a ride in an outrigger canoe yesterday, and it was quite an experience! You paddle like mad to catch up with the big waves, then ride in on them for what seems to be a long time. It's really fun!

We also have had a trip around Oahu Island by Jeep. It was a drive yourself deal and we had the Jeep for a day. It was a most interesting experience, and gave us our first glimpse of how life is lived and has been lived by the Hawaiians on their lovely islands for many long years. Actually life, outside of Honolulu, is continuing much the same as it did a hundred years ago.

At Lailie Bay, a lovely spot, we attended a hula, which is a fishing party where everyone helps pull in the nets. I shall remember it most for the Hawaiian music, everyone sang and sang, and there were lots of guitars and ukeleles. Then there was a luau, the native feast when a pig is roasted, after being wrapped in taro leaves then buried in the ground to be cooked. I did not enjoy the Hawaiian meat dishes, but the fruit is delicious, and I don't think I will ever tire of either papaya or pineapple.

In spite of the green mountains which are the background of Oahu Island, the scenery is very different from B.C. The green growth is tropical and lush, leaves are huge on many plants, flowers are exotic, and the birds are colorful, and the ones I've noticed, very different from any we have around Lyncrest but I'm going to learn more about them, and their names. Another interesting thing I've noticed, the day and night are sharply divided with no twilight!

As school begins next week, my next letter will be all about teaching in Hawaii. Greetings to all our friends."

PLENTY OF ELBOW ROOM FOR THE GROWING FAMILY IN THIS FOUR BEDROOM HOME

Plan No. 1300 (copyright No. 117093)

If a well planned home with plenty of bedrooms for a growing family is your desire then this is the home for you, especially if you wish to attain this in not too large an area.

It's designed with living room, dining room kitchen and one bedroom across the back, and is particularly suitable for a lot sloping to the rear with a view so that the balcony can be used to fullest advantage.

Entry with open stairwell, three bedrooms and carport are the front features of this good family home. Your lot should slope fairly sharply to the rear so that you can have the benefit of a full depth of the house at the back and still maintain a sleek low look at the front.

The carport roof extends over the entry of the house so that there is protection from the weather when entering from the front, but there is also an entry to the kitchen from the carport. The U shaped kitchen, planned for efficiency features an eating bar, while the effect of a hallway is created by a louvered wall at the end of the dining area.

The fireplace on the end wall of the living room leaves a spacious uncluttered area for furniture arrangement. Master bedrooms features double closets for Mr. and Mrs. Vertical siding with cedar shakes would look very attractive on the outside of the house, and of course planters and shrubs at a later date will do a most effective job of glamorizing its appearance.

Working drawings are available for this home, designed for N.H.A. approval, from the Building Centre (B.C.) Ltd., 116 East Broadway, Vancouver 10.

New edition of Select Homes Designs Plan Book available... send 25c to cover cost of mailing and handling.

When moving heavy furniture, slip old woolen socks over the legs to prevent marking floors. If furniture has flattened the pile of a rug, steam it for a few minutes either with a steam iron or with a folded wet cloth under a dry iron.

MOTORIST MAGAZINE

A new full-color magazine, called B.C. Motorist, will be published by the B.C. Automobile Association. First issue will appear Dec. 1. It will replace Headlight, the house organ which has been sent to BCAA members for the past 12 years. Mitchell Press will print the new magazine which will start with a circulation of 60,000. Editor is Don Bruce, BCAA public relations manager.

DON'T PAINT WAX

Paint will not adhere to wax and care should be taken in painting anything which might have been waxed. Otherwise, the paint may peel or chip. The surface should be scrubbed first with soap and water, then given a good rubbing with turpentine to remove every trace of wax. If any gloss remains, rub it lightly with a fine sandpaper.

Have electrical wiring checked before winter sets in.

BOWLING

FROM PUSHAWAY TO FOLLOW THROUGH

A good bowling delivery is made up of two parts — the proper footwork, and the proper movement of your hand and arm. The secret of good bowling is to get your timing co-ordinated, so your feet, your arm, your body and the ball are all moving as a unit.

No matter what type of approach you use, the first thing to think about is starting the ball into motion. This is done by the "pushaway." If you make a mistake in timing this, the rest of your approach will be off too.

When you start your delivery — move your hands first. You'll find your feet follow naturally.

At the start, you should be holding the ball chest-high, in your right hand (if you are right-handed). The left hand may be just touching it, to steady it.

As you step off, lift the ball slightly upwards as you push it out forward from your body. As your arm straightens, the ball will swing forward and downward in a natural arc, like a pendulum.

Push the ball outwards firmly and smoothly. Don't be jerky, or too hurried. As your arm swings down, keep it in close to your body. If your backswing doesn't go close to your body, your forward swing won't be close either. The closer your arm is to the side of your body, the straighter your ball will likely be.

The pushaway starts the ball down into its arc. During the rest of your approach steps, it will be carried backwards in the backswing, then forward until it is released on your final step.

Your backswing, to a large extent, determines how fast the ball will travel. The higher the backswing, the faster the ball goes. It should be just high enough to give you the speed you want.

With too high a backswing, you'll find yourself losing control of the ball, and your timing will be upset. Too little backswing will also upset your timing, and force you to "drag" your ball through the forward swing by sheer arm strength. This will tire you out, and also cause you to lose good control.

If you let the ball curve in behind you during the backswing, you'll end up tossing it out to the right when you deliver it.

If your backswing swerves out away from your body, you'll deliver the ball to the left side of the lane.

On your forward swing, the ball is released just as it is starting to swing upwards from the bottom of its arc. You don't "throw" the ball—it just has a slight lift as it rolls off your fingers naturally. At this point, your forward foot, your arm and the ball should all be travelling in a straight line, aimed directly at the target.

How to hold the ball

After you've released the ball, let your arm continue its natural forward motion. Your arm should come all the way through after delivery, until it is about shoulder level. Your hand should be outstretched, reaching for the target.

A good follow through helps direct the ball to the spot you have your eye on. It is the key to good form, and good accuracy.

If you get your follow through perfected, the natural result is to smooth out your forward swing, and eliminate many faulty habits. If your follow through is short, or abrupt, you will tend to pull the ball; or you may drop it sooner than you should.

The ball is released on the final step of your approach, which is ordinarily a slide. Your slide should be no longer than two feet.

Too long a slide will lessen your control.

The slide is really part of the final push you give the ball, and it smoothes out your delivery. If you just took a normal step, and planted your foot in front of the foul line without sliding, your body would jerk to a stop, and the ball wouldn't be released with the same accuracy.

Throughout your arm swing, keep your elbow straight. And, throughout your entire delivery, keep your eyes pinned on the target. If you get part way through your delivery, and it doesn't feel right — stop, and start over again.

Remember, the most important single factor in good bowling is good timing. You must get your arm, your hand, your feet and the ball moving easily and in rhythm. If the ball feels heavy, or is dragging, chances are your timing is off. Practice delivering without the ball, until the motions feel right.

Next: Footwork counts on the approach.

SOCCER

A game on the High School grounds Sunday between Gibsons United and Sechelt Indians was won by Sechelt, 7-0. A fast, clean game was played and Sechelt deserved to win their second victory over the local team.

There was an encouraging number of spectators and the juveniles raised $11 on their silver collection. This money goes towards buying the juvenile team strip. While the Gibsons team was disappointed in defeat they were happy for the experience they gained.

Every player must be fit and able to last one and a half hours of actual play and he also has to co-ordinate with the rest of the team to beat the opposing team. Within the next week the club coaches are planning to hold a tournament on team play and team co-operation. The club is also getting a team from Powell River or Vancouver to visit Gibsons for a game and help promote the sport here. Judging by the crowd at Sunday's game it would appear that local residents like to see soccer on a Sunday
