4 Gibsons homes to cost $51,000

Building permits valued at $51,000 were issued at Tuesday night's meeting of Gibsons village council covering four new homes for Gibsons. One was for $16,000, two for $12,000 and another for $11,000.

There will be two homes for Abbs Road, both will have five rooms and use oil heat. One cost- [illegible] $16,000 will be built for August and Verda Schneider and the other, also five rooms with oil heat will be built for Victor C. P. Dickson, Gibsons, and will cost at least $11,000.

Georgia View gets one house, five rooms and oil heat, to be built for Annabelle McGown of Vancouver at a cost of $12,000. The fourth home will go up on Stewart road. It will also be five rooms with oil heat and will be constructed for R. Alsager of Gibsons. It will also cost $12,000.

Accounts totalling $1,674.39 were scrutinized and ordered paid. Of this amount $823.43 went to roads; $468.25 for winter works $280.10 for the water department and the remainder for general and fire department expenses.

When the subject of the placing of moving electric signs on a building was brought up, Councillor Wes Hodgson was dead against any type of moving signs anywhere in the village. The subject was held over until the next meeting. A motion for a stationary sign at a different location was passed.

Council also decided on a $5 permit fee on electrically constructed signs.

Athletes workout

The track and field team of the Sunshine Coast Athletic Club commenced daily workouts under coach John Little and assistant coach Jack Macleod at Hackett Park, Sechelt, Thursday evening, March 7.

A number of veterans from last year's group are turning out to get in shape for the track season. Those who have reported for training from last year's team are David Macleod, a sprinter and silver medal winner in the 1962 Caledonian Games; Kirsten Jorgensen, another second winner in the sprints at the same meet; John Thorold, a middle distance runner; Glen Davis who will run in either the two or three mile events; Davis' younger brother, Garth, and Ross Gust who should both develop into good pole vaulters, and Valerie Swanson who does very well in the high jump.

The coaches hope that Eloise Delong, shot putter, Fred Blakeman, quarter miler and Laurel Postlethwaite, sprinter and broad jumper will soon be working out with their last year's team maes.

The Sunshine Coast Athletic Club is sponsored by Sechelt branch 140 of the Royal Canadian Legion. Legion officials and coaches announce that anyone wishing to join the club will be made welcome.

Tribal meeting will be held

An Indian tribal meeting will be held in Sechelt at Easter time with members of the Sliamon, Squirrel Cove, Church House and Sechelt bands taking part.

Chiefs and members of each band's council will take part. It is expected this meeting will eventually see the third tribal area constituted in British Columbia. There are now two, one in the Nass River area and the other in the Naskina River area.

Formation of a tribal council would allow a closer co-operation between bands to place before federal authorities the problems that face Indian bands in this new tribal area.

Clarence Joe has been re-elected vice-president of the Native Brotherhood of British Columbia at a meeting held in Terrace. This means that Clarence Joe will cover the area from Squamish to Stuart Island on behalf of the brotherhood.

Both cars were headed towards Gibsons at the time.

Fashion show for April 3

Spring with all its beauty is here once more — winter's drab months are forgotten and thoughts turn to outdoors and sun.

Spring to many means the latest of fashions — Easter is just around the corner.

Gibsons branch of St. Mary's Hospital Auxiliary is again putting on a Spring Fashion Show in conjunction with local merchants.

There will be plenty of variety in all levels of fashion, be it dresses, suits, coats or accessories for milady — little miss will be modelling too with frills and crinolines or perhaps your tastes are for something prim.

Teenagers will shine and even the latest of men's fashions will come to the fore. Interested in hair styles? — you won't be disappointed.

The date, April 3 and the place high school auditorium, Gibsons.

Tax relief turned down

Seeking relief from taxation on Sechelt property presented St. Mary's Hospital Society as a gift the society board of trustees by letter asked Sechelt's council to exempt the property from taxation.

The letter written by the hospital administrator, William Milligan, was read to Sechelt's council at its first March meeting Wednesday evening of last week.

Council after discussion decided it did not have the power to exempt once the tax roll had been set by the provincial assessor. Taxes on the property, donated to the society during 1962 total $177.

Tug sinks 4 saved

W. J. Vernon of Gower Point area figured in a rescue episode following the sinking of the Texada Towing company tug Black Fir some five or six miles offshore in Georgia Strait Saturday while on its way to Tahsis.

At about 3:30 p.m. Capt. R. T. L. Alexander, acting mate noticed the bow of the tug was rising. His son R. C. Alexander, 22, was sleeping below and Capt. Douglas Lewis, skipper, was asleep in his cabin. I. C. Kennedy was engineer.

Shouting a warning all four hit the water as the tug rapidly sank. Kennedy went down an estimated 40 feet in the suction of the sinking but managed to reach surface. Meantime the other three managed to get into a lifeboat which drifted from the sinking craft. Heading for shore the quartet landed at the Vernon home where the RCMP were called for help. What caused the sinking is unknown.

Clearing started

The joint Kinsmen - Kiwanis committee met at Bill Wright's home on Sunday night, and authorized Mr. A. E. Ritchey to commence clearing the land for the new Health Centre.

Earlier the same day, members of the committee erected an artist's drawing of the Health Centre on the property. Other signs will be set up shortly in the Gibsons area.

The committee has now taken delivery of the circular letters and expect to commence delivery shortly.

The Kinsmen Club will be holding another car wash on March 23 at Gibsons Shell Service.

Scout cost discussed

At a meeting of the council of the Sechelt Boy Scout association J. H. Macleod, president of the organization drew to the attention of the council the cost of keeping a Boy Scout Troop in operation, he estimated that $5 per boy could be considered conservative.

During the meeting plans for the annual Boy Scout financial drive were discussed. It is hoped that with the co-operation of the troop group committees and the public the association will have a successful drive.

Other business of council was the election of E. L. Widman as camp chairman and Mrs. Harold Sandford as second vice-president Next meeting of council will be held at the home of first vice-president, Edward Surtees at Halfmoon Bay on Thursday evening, April 4.

Guide patrol leaders weekend at Camp Olave

Patrol leaders from the Girl Guide companies of Gibsons, Roberts Creek, Sechelt, Powell River and Texada Island gathered at the North Shore Hide-away at Camp Olave, Wilson Creek for the weekend. Seconders were given hospitality in Sechelt and joined the day's activities on Saturday. Also taking part in the weekend camp was Miss Gwen Pawson from North Burnaby completing her Gold Cord Challenge.

In charge of the 33 girls were Mrs. Dunbrack, Powell River; Mrs. Fielkowick, Texada Island. Mrs. Stockwell and Mrs. Williams, Sechelt and Mrs. Allen, Roberts Creek. Mrs. Aldred R.N of Sechelt was tester for Home Nursing and First Aid.

The girls settled in happily on Friday evening ready for a busy day Saturday. Work started with instruction from Mr. Allen in the use of tools and axes and a tree was felled to replenish the wood pile. At the same time an expedition into the woods brought back twigs of 12 different trees and 9 shrubs for identification and recognition of their individual characteristics.

Following a break for cocoa Gwen Pawson gave an hour's instruction on Home Nursing Cook's patrol served an excellent dinner, meat loaf, mashed potatoes, and creamed carrots followed by fruit and cookies. Amid the after-dinner hustle of dishwashing, tidying up and bringing in wood for the fires a mock accident was staged at the woodpile. To test Gwen's reaction to an emergency she had to deal with a badly cut arm, bleeding profusely and a fainting helper.

The afternoon's activities included a talk on the history of Guiding from the Divisional Commissioner Mrs. Williams, a hike through the woods and a discussion on the Guide Law and suggestions for new badges and improving present ones.

The highlight of the evening's camp fire was the celebration of three birthdays with cake and ice cream and a walk down to the beach in the moonlight to identify constellations.

Sunday morning the Guides conducted their own service in the outdoor chapel and the camp was a hive of activity tidying up, leaving everything spotless and stocking the woodpile for the next campers. Guides from Powell River and Texada left on the morning bus and Sechelt and Gibsons Guides returned home after lunch.

Fall Fair finished?

A simple statement mailed to the Coast News by the executive of the Sunshine Coast Fall Fair which explained there would be no fall fair this year was one which, while it did not contain one word of regret, did harbor a great deal of unwritten regret.

It was not an easy decision for the fair board executive to make, but make it it did, because it was forced into the position like many other organizations in this area. It was run into the ground because of inertia on the part of people who could have helped.

There was considerable interest in the fall fair. People liked to have their produce exhibited. But there was a great lack of interest in what put the fall fair "on the road." Volunteers were not available.

There have been 14 fall fairs organized by practically the same committee over the same number of years. To suggest they worked would be an understatement. They worked hard year after year, watched it grow and strived to make it a bigger and better fair each year.

Now it appears to be at the point where someone will have to step in and take over. The Sunshine Coast Fall Fair executive and members at large have mostly reached the age where they feel someone else should take over and accept the responsibility of staging what has become one of the bright spots for this district.

It is regrettable that members of the executive have been forced into this position but facts are facts. They have done their bit for many years. Who is there who will step in and take over?

Let battle be joined

With an election in the offing people of all parties can take out and polish up ready for use their political prejudices owned from birth or acquired. Everyone who likes a good argument looks forward to the period of disputation that comes at four or five-year intervals in this democratic land.

Prejudices serve a double purpose. They fiercely satisfy those who possess them and stimulate those who do not. Oliver Wendell Holmes described a man of prejudices thus: ". . . he has good solid prejudices, that one can rub against, and so get up and let off a superficial intellectual irritation, just as the cattle rub their backs against a rail . . ."

Prejudices are also self-propagating. To argue with a man of solid prejudice not only clarifies your own thinking, it also often forms your own prejudices in the process. You may, of course, call them sincere convictions. It is probable that some believers in protective tariff for native industry were influenced more by argumentative free traders than by Sir John A. MacDonald's National Policy. And vice versa. Such is human nature. Such is the party system.

They say people used to have stronger political prejudices than they have today. If George Gallup had lived back in the seventies and had started his Poll in grandpa's day, there might have been few people in the "undecided" column. The thing politicians will be trying to do between now and election day is to develop some healthy prejudices in the minds of the uncommitted voters. Every politician will hope naturally that they will become prejudiced in his favor.

Argument on a national scale, stirred up by people of solid prejudices, is needed to shake voters out of their lethargy. TV political debate would never have satisfied the voter of a century ago. He wanted the fun of talking back. The wish to and the ability to talk back are the very basis of an informed electorate, and that wish and ability grow when there is a man of solid prejudices in the conversation. Just one will do it.

A look at unity prospects

National unity is one of the subjects discussed during the present political campaign. There are five parties involved. This is how they stand based on general knowledge of each party's strengths and weaknesses:

The Social Credit party, now represented by three factions, Quebec, Alberta and British Columbia and all different, will have to get party unity first.

The New Democratic Party has aligned itself with the Labor movement in which unity is faced with regional struggles.

The Progressive Conservatives had their chance during the last five years without success.

The Liberals have the men, the experience and political weight. Consider this when casting your vote.

THE CRIMINAL MIND

The detective story has a long and honorable history. One of the earliest on record is to be found in The Apocrypha, which incidentaliy contains more good reading than is to be found in any of the canonical books of The Bible. That is the story of Susanna and the Elders, in which Daniel, acting as a Perry Mason of about 600 B.C., confounds false witnesses by exposing the discrepancies in their testimony. Some centuries later, Edgar Allan Poe displayed his inventive genius in the medium. In 1878, Anna Katherine Green published The Leavenworth Case, held by some authorities to be the first modern detective story. Nine years later, Conan Doyle created Sherlock Holmes, and for years no writer appeared to challenge his supremacy. Then came a flood of new authors dabbling in crime for profit without incurring the penalties of the professional burglar, blackmailer or murderer.

It cannot have escaped the notice of the real fans of the detective story that many of the best new writers are women. Across the Atlantic there are Agatha Christie, the dean of the craft, Margery Allingham, Ngaio Marsh, the late Dorothy Sayers and Josephine Tey, whose death was a loss to literature as well as to entertainment. In the United States there are Charlotte Armstrong and Hilda Lawrence, both writers of the first rank. the other sex is represented in both Britain and the United States, but only a new male writers have reached the eminence in the field that has been attained by their female rivals.

The question naturally arises whether women have more criminal minds than men. Statistically, of course, it may be shown that fewer women than men land in the hands of the police, but this may only demonstrate the greater ingenuity of the female criminal. The male criminal usually blunders sometime and pays the penalty for his carelessness. Does his sister escape because of her greater care in planning her crime and covering her traces?

It looks like a good subject for investigation and a Ph.D. thesis. Pending an authoritative answer, one may conclude tentatively that the statistical superiority of male over female criminals in real life is owing to the fact that the women are sublimating their criminal instincts by writing best-selling detective fiction.—The Printed Word.

Defensive alliances necessary

Address delivered at the Liberal nominating convention for Coast-Capilano at Norgate Elementary school, North Vancouver Saturday, by Dr. Jack Davis.

Today, with nuclear power balanced between two great blocs, each capable of destroying the other, the only defence is a constructive and enduring peace. No one can survive, let alone win, in any nuclear conflict. Hence the primary aim of our defence policy is the preservation of peace; the prevention of war.

A realistic defence policy also recognizes the interdependence of nations. No country can defend itself alone. The only security, especially for a country like Canada, lies in collective action through defensive alliances such as NATO, and rests, or should rest, insofar as its military side is concerned on the combined strength of its friends and allies.

The accent, therefore, must be on co-operation. Suspicions and narrow nationalistic thinking must be put aside. Jingoism is not only out of date but downright dangerous. Collective action must, therefore, take the place of petty patriotism. We cannot afford to be quarrelling among ourselves at a time when the fate of mankind hangs in the balance.

Collective defence must be based on treaties: on obligations undertaken, and on commitments given. In dealing with our allies, we have to assume that a change of government would not mean a sudden and unilateral renunciation of their treaty obligations. Our friends have the same right to assume that the commitments of the present Conservative government are the commitments of Canada as a whole.

A new Liberal government, in other words, must honor the nuclear commitments entered into by the Conservatives. It can alter our role as defence strategy changes as equipment becomes obsolete and as progress is made towards the attainment of a lasting peace. But meanwhile let us face the facts. Such changes cannot be made overnight. They must also be made in close consultation with our friends and allies. They will take months, even years, to bring about.

No member of parliament knows all the details. Some of these commitments furthermore, are in the top secret category. Others are interpreted one way by former Defence Minister Harkness and in another way by External Affairs Minister Howard Green. But it disturbs me to know that one hand in Ottawa hasn't known, or wanted to know, what the other is doing; that our allies have frequently been told one thing and that the opposite view has been released for consumption at home. Conflicting policies add up to no policy at all. This is serious, not only because we have been spending billions of dollars on defence, but because defence is too serious a subject to be left to the generals. The military have been impatient and the government has refused to govern. If it were otherwise, nuclear weapons would not be an election issue at this time.

No thinking Canadian wants us to become another France. No one, in other words, wants us to manufacture our own nuclear bombs. Nor should we get into the business of producing long range rockets. Canada cannot afford to become a full blown member of the nuclear club. Nor should she try to break away from the present arrangements whereby the control of nuclear weapons rests in American hands.

Nor do I want Canada to become another India. Preaching at others in time of peace and crying out for help whenever we are attacked doesn't fit with our Canadian tradition. We must be strong, and we must negotiate from strength. We are not, and have never been, a neutral nation. Nor will we command any respect from other countries by dropping our guard and sticking out our chin when it comes to defence.

The question of nuclear weapons must also be fitted into its proper perspective. The Conservatives, following Mr. Harkness's advice, have bought certain equipment — defensive equipment. But the Americans won't let us handle, let alone own, the nuclear warheads which these weapon systems are designed to carry. Nuclear warheads can be placed on Canadian soil but United States officers will accompany them. They guard them. They are not for sale. We couldn't pay for them now if we wanted. United States congress has passed laws, definite laws, which actually prevent us from becoming a member of the so-called nuclear club.

Some people are restive about these controls. They don't want the U.S. to have so much authority over Canada's defence program. Their quarrel, of course, is with the people who decided to scrap the Canadian designed and Canadian built Arrow jet fighter back in 1959. It was the Conservatives who then decided to buy Bomarc-B anti-aircraft rockets and Voodoo jet interceptors from the United States. They were U.S. designed and U.S, built. But, being the tail-end of U.S. production runs, they were cheaper than if we had made them ourselves.

We got them on the cheap. But to be really effective they need nuclear warheads. Mr. Harkness, the former minister of national defence, says so. Mr. Sevigny, the former associate minister of defence, says so. Mr. Hees, the former Conservative minister of trade and commerce, says so. And General Foulkes, for a dozen years chairman of Canada's Joint Chiefs of Staff, says so. They all say that several links in the North American Air Defence chain are missing.

These are the links which Canada, time and again, has said she would provide. This is the sort of commitment which we are failing to honor. Mr. Pearson has grasped the nettle. He has said that we will honor these nuclear commitments until they are changed. Changes in the sense of new equipment and new roles may be three or four years away.

Most of us want to know more about our commitments. Also we want to hear about the new roles which are proposed for the future. We can, however, agree on one thing; that we are not getting much for our defence dollar at the present time. A new government, a new Liberal government, with a will to decide and the courage to make some unpleasant decisions is needed to put our house in order again.

(Canada has already spent more than $700 million on aircraft and rockets designed to carry nuclear warheads.)

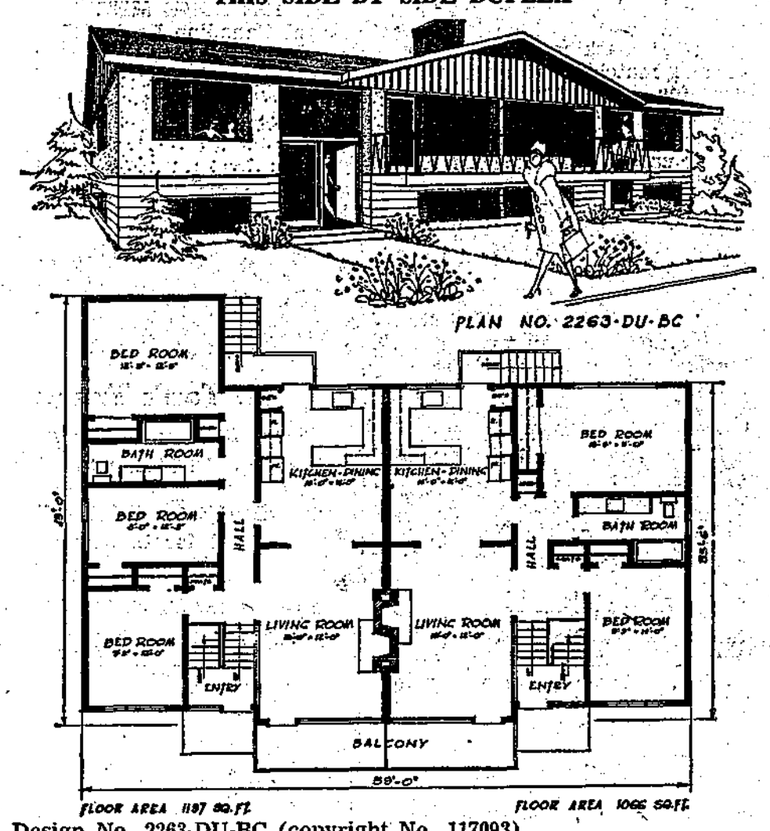
CATHEDRAL ENTRY A FEATURE OF THIS SIDE BY SIDE DUPLEX



Design No. 2263-DU-BC (copyright No. 117093)

Something different in a side by side duplex — each unit featuring a cathedral entry controlling traffic to the basement areas, away from the living room. One side shows two bedrooms, the other a three bedroom unit which makes it ideal for owner/rental purposes. Large living rooms with usual back to back fireplaces, and through halls to direct traffic away from living areas, while well planned large kitchen and dining area complete the layout of each unit. An especially good feature of the kitchens are the cupboards which give ample space for storage.

This duplex is so designed that the basement has large window areas above grade, and would lend itself to future expansion. A balcony at the front is accessible from the living room. Picture windows and an interesting combination of stucco and siding give the exterior a look of individuality.

Designed for low cost construction, this duplex would be an excellent investment, either for rental of both units, or for owner/rental possibilities.

Blueprints are available for plan No. 2263-DU-BC designed for N.H.A. financing, from the Building Centre (BC) Ltd. Send for FREE plan book, enclosing 25c to cover cost of mailing and handling, to 96 Kingsway at Broadway, Vancouver 10.

Defensive alliances

ing power of nuclear missiles has increased the importance of non-nuclear or conventional weapons. Without strong conventional forces, the slightest skirmish may lead to a nuclear Armageddon. Western military thinking is therefore putting more emphasis on the strengthening of conventional forces. For the smaller powers, including Canada, this, I believe is the only reasonable form of defence.

Certainly our policy should take into account our industrial structure. We must specialize. We cannot do a little of everything. Thus we should resist commitments which require expensive equipment that will soon be obsolete.

Undue dependence on our neighbors is also bad. We already buy a great deal more than we sell to the United States. Many Canadians are also out of work. Acceptance of nuclear assignments which require us to import most of our equipment should therefore be avoided. Instead let us utilize to the full our own facilities in the defence of the free world.

The Canadian government, in my opinion, should support any move for genuine collective control of all NATO tactical nuclear weapons. If this can be brought about, it would be restricting, rather than enlarging, the nuclear club because the three NATO members now possessing such weapons in NATO forces would have to give up their independent control of them.

The Canadian government should also support the strengthening of NATO conventional forces so that undue reliance would not have to be placed on nuclear tactical weapons for defence against every attack; even a limited and conventional one.

Canada should not contribute to the strategic, nuclear deterrent. The defence of the West now rests largely on nuclear retaliatory power. This is primarily in the hands of the United States. It should be left there. We should oppose any additional independent and national nuclear forces.

Canada should, however, continue to take part in early warning systems and in anti-bomber aircraft and antimissile programs which will make North America more secure against a sudden and unprovoked attack. We should also train and equip our forces so as to be able to respond at short notice to any call for non-nuclear support from the United Nations, NATO or any other peaceful and defensive organization with which we continue to be associated as genuine friends and neighbors.

This being the case, I believe that the government should re-examine, at once, the whole basis of our Canadian defence policy. It must prepare to discuss with the United States, and other like minded nations, a role for Canada in continental and collective defence which is more realistic than the present one. A will to face the facts of our present situation is, however, essential. Only by proceeding firmly, and behaving in a predictable manner, are we likely to have any real influence amongst the peace loving nations of the world.

In summary I believe that Canada should:

(a) Honor its existing commitments, nuclear and otherwise:

(b) Negotiate new roles which involve a much higher Canadian content and hence are essentially non-nuclear in character.

(c) Leave the big bomb, long range missiles and the nuclear deterrent roles to the United States;

(e) Increase our technical and economic aid to underdeveloped countries; and

(f) Continue to press for disarmament through the United Nations.

What we need, in defence as well as other matters, is real leadership. Our government in Ottawa is elected to govern. It must be decisive. And once it starts making decisions again subjects like nuclear weapons will fall into their proper prospective. Canadians as a whole will be much better informed and the sense of frustration which is so widespread today will have been dispelled.

We are floundering in a vacuum at the present time. We have a government which refuses to govern. It has presented us with several policies — commitments which involve nuclear weapons on the one hand and policies which imply their rejection on the other. Emotions have been aroused as a result of this lack of a clear-cut policy on defence.

A new and confident government which knows where it is going can do much to dispel these fears. It will also let the public in on the decision making process and stand or fall on the firm policies which it presents to the Canadian public.

This issue in respect to nuclear weapons may be magnified out of all proportion. It does, however, provide us with a testing ground as to the willingness of each of our political parties to face the facts. Only the Liberal party, I believe, has faced the facts. It is facing facts in coming up with decisions before, and not after, the election on April 8. We are going to be judged on the basis of a realistic policy and this decisiveness is bound to carry over into other fields of administration.

We have the leadership and we are demonstrating an ability to govern. I know that we can, therefore, count on your support to put a new Liberal government at the helm and to set our ship of state on an honorable and promising course towards peace and prosperity once more.

Many attend Open House at schools

Education week was busy and successful for Sechelt's Elementary school. On Tuesday there was a showing of Treasure Island in full color to which the students invited the neighboring schools.

Wednesday night saw active and loudly cheering group of 35 fathers and sons competing in relay races and team games. Points for relay races were divided evenly, the fathers won the floor hockey and the volleyball games, but the sons rallied to win the indoor baseball. Fathers came out best for evening by 20 points to 15. Everyone felt the evening was the best get-acquainted event for parents, pupils and teachers that had happened in a long time. Mr. James, who initiated the idea, sponsored a successful mothers and daughters evening in a previous week.

Thursday's open house in the evening brought out over 120 parents and others interested in the school. Most agreed that open house gives the parents a wonderful opportunity to discuss school matters with the teachers and to examine their children's notebooks and other school-work. Audio-visual aids also attracted a great deal of attention. The ladies of the PTA were hostesses to coffee and doughnuts in the Activity room following the open house.

On Friday each class was able to have a half hour session examining the shell collection of Mr. Charles Bedford of Gower Point and to ask him questions about the variety of shells and sea life in our coastal waters. The shell talk was fascinating and highly instructive.

The PTA thanks all who assisted the Dental Clinic committee under the chairmanship of Mrs. Hansen in informing parents of the service available to them starting March 11.

Blackboards in Mrs. Galliford's room testified that either Mr MacLean had recently visited there or that her grade ones and twos are well-nigh perfect writers.

A food-laden table of goodies and tea awaited the visitors when the last bell rang, provided by the Parents' Auxiliary and convened by Mrs. A. Danroth.

Local history idea explored

If residents of Roberts Creek have suddenly become curio conscious, relic responsive and history minded, the blame, or credit, must go to Mr. Les Peterson who, on Monday, addressed the Parents' Auxiliary meeting at the school. His subject was local history. He discussed his recently published book, "The Gibson's Landing Story," telling of the difficulties in tracking down information, of checking and re-checking and matching story against story for reliability. Some bits of historic interest must be rejected because of numerous conflicting versions, he told his rapt audience.

He suggested the people of Roberts Creek start work on a history of their own, reminding them that there are still living here several pioneers who could be helpful. He spoke of the Dutch oven which was discovered on Henderson Avenue when the road crew were converting a footpath, and which has crouched there unseen for many years. From the path it looked like a large, round rock, its opening hidden from view on the opposite side. It is anyone's guess as to who built it, or when. Mr. and Mrs. J. H. W. Sear are responsible for bringing it to Mr. Peterson's attention.

Mr. Peterson showed slides of scenes taken while cruising beautiful Jervis Inlet and explained the Indian legends pertaining to them. He suggested that a group might hire a boat and take the same cruise.

Present at the meeting were Mr. Francis Paquette and Mr. Gordon Reeves, cousins who spent their boyhood here and who were helpful in recalling odd bits of local history. Still discussing the lecture, groups formed in the hall to partake of refreshments served by the Parents' Auxiliary.

Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth B. Linton of "Lyncrest" R.R. 1, Gibsons, announce the engagement of their daughter Shirley Ruth to James Franklin Hemphill, son of Mr. and Mrs. Franklin Hemphill of North Vancouver. The wedding is planned for July 13 in Hawaii where, for the past two years, the bride-to-be has been on the faculty of Punahou School. She originally taught in Gibsons Elementary School. The couple will reside in North Vancouver where Mr. Hemphill is on the staff of Argyle Secondary School.

Second for Roberts Creek

Another Open House has taken place at Roberts Creek School; the first at the beginning of the year to show off the new building, and the one on Wednesday to show the work of the pupils, and incidentally, the prodigious work of the teachers, for it was immediately noticeable that these people do not just sit around.

At 8 o'clock the parents congregated in room 2 and were greeted by the principal, Mr. J. Fleming. He presented his views as to the duties of pupils, parents and teachers, and pointed out that education is not the sole responsibility of the school; that children are in the care of their teachers but 5½ hours a day.

He suggested several ways in which parents can aid in furthering a child's general development and knowledge, and stated that such aid is of immeasurable assistance in the mastering of the problems in the classroom. The three teachers held classes in their respective rooms, demonstrated the teaching of several subjects and explained new systems of teaching, particularly the subject of arithmetic which, the Chivers Method, is one outlined by Mrs. Roberta Chivers who was a former teacher here.

Samples of the pupils' work were placed on desks and walls for inspection. Many handsome dinosaurs paraded along the walls in Mrs. Warn's room proving that many of her children have drawing ability. A scrap book gave evidence of successful and rewarding practice in writing and composition.

Ferry needs better P R

Speaking during the Premier's estimates Thursday, Tony Gargrave, MLA, told the government that he was proud of the new Toll Authority giving ferry service in B.C

But Mr. Gargrave told the government that breakdowns, sudden schedule changes and overloads on the ferry system had driven ferry patrons to distraction. He said that much of the public dissatisfaction was unnecessary and could be remedied by ordinary public relations procedures adopted by all public utilities. He said that at times during the past year there had been a breakdown in communication between the authority and patrons.

He recommended to the premier as authority chairman that advisory patron committees be set up in each locality to advise the authority on the success or lack of success in the administration of the system. He said that at times there appeared to be a lack of firm administration of the Howe Sound and Jervis Inlet routes.

The local member told the house how pleased he was with the Queen of Langdale on Howe Sound. He hoped that the authority would provide stand-by service in the event of future breakdowns, if this could be done without excessive cost. The objective, he said, was to provide fast, efficient service at the minimum of cost to the ferry patrons.

He also spoke up for the waitresses on the system. He told the premier that some waitresses were paid $1.44 an hour with 1¼ for overtime, which gave them $266 per month during the slack winter periods. He told the house that these waitresses have now had their responsibilities increased and their salaries reduced to $232 per month. This without overtime pay.

He said that this was inequitable. The local member said that no big institution could operate efficiently without an employees' organization representing the employees.

Here's something to give the field hands a hand. A wise move, especially if you are married to the field hand.

Mother's garden or commercial berry operation will go smoother with these neat berry boxes to provide a steady flow of berries from pickers to packers.

The box holds 16 standard-size berry boxes, a substantial number, yet not too heavy.

Another advantage is that you can build them yourself in off time. They are inexpensive and simple and will last many seasons.

Just cut the parts as shown from a sheet of 3/8" waterproof glue fir plywood and assemble them with nails and glue.

To make sure you are getting waterproof glue fir plywood, look for the industry mark on the edge of the panel, "PMBC Exterior."

Legislative views

(By TONY GARGRAVE, M.L.A., Mackenzie Consituency.)

A politician's life is not necessarily a happy one, but it is fascinating. There are few affairs which touch the lives of men that a politician is not exposed to.

Last week, the attorney-general's estimates were up for discussion. Crime, the sale of stock and securities, gambling, capital punishment, alcoholism, mental illness, and probation were talked about.

The attorney-general, Mr. Robert Bonner, defended his department's past and future policies well. The afternoon session had been somewhat stormy. In the evening the pace was more measured, and the house in a relaxed mood. The premier was absent from the house, and the attorney-general was house leader.

Deliberately, he kept his voice low, and his style of talking casual. All of this, no doubt, an attempt to create the best possible atmosphere in which to discuss his controversial department. Law enforcement is bound to be controversial regardless of who fills the post.

The first question was from Alex Macdonald (NDP-Van. E.). Did the sheriff at New Westminster almost hang a man by mistake? No, the attorney-general said. The man's appeal was pending, and the attorney-general was not even sure that the hangman had come all the way from Quebec by mistake to perform his macabre task.

I spoke in turn, putting my argument forward that, hanging a man by the neck until he was dead was a punishment not fitting a civilized and sensitive society. Nobody agreed or disagreed with me. Perhaps they did not want to discuss it that night.

The question of capital punishment is in the hands of the federal parliament. Though the criminal code is within the jurisdiction of Canada, the sentence is carried out by the local sheriff, a provincial officer. A professional hangman is provided by Ottawa to actually spring the trap.

When Dave Barrett (NDP-Dewdney) joined the debate, he said that the government makes a $28,000,000 profit out of the state monopoly liquor sales. He was of the opinion that we should do more for skid-row drunks who do life on the installment plan in deporable living conditions at Oakalla. Certainly, picking up drunks and sentencing them to three days in jail and then dumping them on the streets again is a costly and useless process.

St. Aidan's tea

At the regular meeting of St. Aidan's Church W.A. on Tuesday Feb. 26, interesting reports of the annual meeting of the Women's Auxiliary to the Anglican Church, held in Vancouver, were read by the delegates( Miss E. C. Harrold and Mrs. G. Mould.

Advance arrangements were made for the St. George's Day tea and sale of home cooking and plants, to be held April 23 in St. Aidan's Parish Hall.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Editor: Will you kindly send me further issues of Coast News for so long as the enclosed sum will cover the cost. Presumably I'll see in the paper what the subscription rate is.

If you have any pictures available of Gibsons I would very much appreciate a copy. My husband and I are considering the feasibility of moving to Gibsons which we have visited briefly a couple of times.

Mrs. M. Bader,
Downsville, Ont.

Editor: I received in the mail a copy of your paper, sent to me by your one man crusader to boost the tourist trade, Mr. A. R. Simpkins, Sechelt. I read Mr. Simpkins article in the Toronto Star Weekly and wrote him a letter, a reply came back by return mail, and a very encouraging report it was.

I am a retired superintendent of the Canadian International Paper Co., and the article you wrote up on the pipeline for chips was very familiar to me as the Canadian Pulp and Paper Research Centre is located at Point Clair, Que., a suburb of Montreal and we provided all the chips from our mill here for the experiments. I happened to be the woodyard superintendent and became very friendly with the superintendent from the research center who always came up with his trucks to select the chips. They started with spruce and balsam, then to pine, then to hardwood chips. I have never visited the centre but had many invitations, and motored close to their plant when I drove to Montreal.

I have been retired from he company two years this May, and will be 68 next month, however I am very active due to the training I had and gave at the Canadian Corps school at Pernes, France, in the First World War where I was a physical training instructor, and director of physical training. I served 30 months in France, Belgium and Germany and finished up the latter part of the war as RSM of the 1st Canadian Motor Machine Gun Brigade, and at the tender age of 22.

Mr. Simpkins should be given due credit for the article he wrote to the Star Weekly. It certainly will give a lot of well deserved publicity to your coastal area. I have sent for the Beautiful B.C. magazine as suggested by Mr. Simpkins.

One of my hobbies is prospecting. I have spent some 20 years at the game and found it very relaxing, and of course I mixed a lot of fishing in on my trips to the Laurentian mountains. I am also an expert gardener.

J. E. Chapman,
Hawkesbury, Ont.

Editor: I have just received another nice lot of the Coast News from a friend in Roberts Creek. Find it a very nice paper, and, so many interesting things in it.

I used to cut-out these various bits of interest to paste into scrap books. But, I have found there is so much of interest in the paper, to myself that is, that I have now commenced saving the whole paper.

In spite of errors, as one person wrote you about, still look forward to the paper. Who doesn't make mistakes at some time or, other? It is very easy to criticize but, far better a bit of praise I think.

The whole state of things seems to be so full of mistakes that we should put up with those little errors, which the editor states are unintentional. I am sure he corrects them when pointed out to him. It would be horribly boring to be perfect I think. The best of luck for a very nice paper. I am. Dorothy R. Gibbeson, Vancouver.

84 honored at dinner

Eighty-four long-term employees of MacMillan, Bloedel and Powell River Limited were honored at an annual dinner and ceremony in Vancouver on Friday, Feb. 22.

Representing 22 divisions of the company, the 84 came from the logging camps of Vancouver Island, coastal pulp and paper mills, Fraser River sawmills and New York and Winnipeg sales offices. They were accompanied by their wives.

The occasion was the annual 25-year Club presentation ceremoney and dinner, and marks 25 years of service with the company for each of the 84 employees.

The 84 new members of the M.B. and P.R. 25-year Club will bring the active membership — those presently employed who have completed 25 years of service or more — to about 870. A total of 1,045 company employees have received 25-year Club awards but some have since retired. M.B. and P.R. has about 13,500 employees.

– Hon. J. V. Clyne, chairman of the board and chief executive officer, will address the group and present each new member with an engraved gold watch. A. C. Kennedy, vice-president of industrial relations, will be chairman of the meeting.

You're in luck when you want to contact an out-of-town firm that lists a ZENITH number in the telephone directory.

You can make an enquiry, get a quotation or place an order as easily as if that firm were located across the street from you.

All you do is ask the Long Distance operator for the ZENITH number you wish to call.

Right away she'll connect you free of charge, no matter whether the firm you want is 40 miles away or 4,000.

You don't have to request a "collect" call. The firm you call automatically pays the toll charge.

Companies with a ZENITH number have made an extra special effort to cater to your convenience. For that reason they are usually good companies to do business with.

Remember with ZENITH it costs you nothing to call!

If you happen to be a business man yourself – and if you are located outside Vancouver – test ZENITH service right away. Merely ask your local operator for ZENITH 7000. That's the number of our Marketing and Sales Department, which will be glad to give you full information.

Menacing fire

A small grass fire, near the area fire hall, North Road, called out the Gibsons Volunteer Fire department last Wednesday afternoon, March 6. The Area Ford pumper responded to the call and quickly brought the blaze under control. Little damage occurred.

Once again the fire department reminds residents that care should be taken with fires when clearing land. Watch the direction of the wind, and have sufficient water on hand in case the fire does get out of control is the department's advice.
