Rockgas explains drop out reason

Gibsons council, at Tuesday night's meeting received a letter confirming the Rockgas company desire to drop its plan to open a servicing plant on the present Co-op store site on Marine Drive The letter stated its reason for dropping the proposal was because of complications arising in the Co-op store transaction. The letter stated the local opposition which had arisen to the plan had no bearing on the desire to drop out.

Accounts totalling $509.72 were scrutinized and ordered paid.

Building permits were granted L. G. Smith for a $10,000, four room, one storey home on Park Drive and to Wally Peterson for a $1,000 garage.

The last meeting in December will be held on Monday, Dec. 30 instead of Tuesday, Dec. 31 which would be New Year's Eve. The first official meeting of 1964 will be held by law on the first Monday of January.

Council is considering removal of the old United Church to be part of the present Gibsons library, where it will be used as part of the library and a museum. Action is possible shortly.

A bylaw to increase water service connections was given second reading. Present cost is $35. The new cost will be in the village $50 and outside the village $50 flat to $50 plus installation costs according to the circumstances surrounding the installation.

Mainly about people

Mrs. W. S. McFie of Pratt and Chaster roads writes: "We have purchased a very lovely home at 416 Pioneer Crescent, Parksville, Vancouver Island. Mr. and Mrs. Eric Bushnell of North Surrey have purchased our property and will move in shortly."

Mrs. McFie adds: "I have lived in Gibsons 32 years so no doubt can be classed as an old timer. During that time I worked 10½ years in Gibsons post office when Mr. Robert Telford was postmaster. I lived in Parksville before coming to Gibsons. We enjoy your Coast News."

Fifteen years of driving a bread truck has ended for Norman Stewart. He was retired last week and will now turn his mind to the bee business.

During the 15 years he delivered bread in this area he estimates he has trucked something like three million or more loaves of bread plus pies, cakes and buns.

Many people in the area as far as Pender Harbour will remember Mr. Stewart's daily appearance until more recently when the area was split into two sections. During the last war he served three years in the RCASC and on demobilization joined the Co-op in Gibsons. He became a McGavin's driver in 1948. Freeman Reynolds from Vancouver has replaced Mr. Stewart on the truck.

Linda May, 15, daughter of William May, Sunshine Coast Tourist association director for Sechelt is the proud owner of a six - year - old strawberry roan horse. She took it to Vancouver for shoeing some while ago and friends were warned she was on her way. So what did they do? They entered Linda and horse in the Cloverdale Horse Show unbeknown to her.

Linda entered the musical sack event in which riders dismount, jump into a sack. The catch is the horse has to stand right where it was left. Linda apparently had her horse well trained. She came in second.

A letter from R. J. Bezdeck at Fort Churchill, Manitoba, with a letter to the editor to be found on another page contained this: "I really like your paper and think that your heading where it says Serving the Sunshine Coast is a very modest statement."

2 brothers die

One death in a family at a time is usually what occurs, but for Harry Mylroie, proprietor of Peninsula Cleaners in Gibsons, two brothers died in the space of about two days. Brother John who ws 60 died in Vancouver on Friday of last week. Brother Tom 59, who lived on Pratt Road near Gibsons village died sometime Saturday night.

How about some Gibsons Fried Chicken or Sechelt Apple Pie?

A committee to look into what can be done to make Gibsons area more attractive to tourists was formed at a Gibsons and Area Chamber of Commerce dinner meeting Monday night in Danny's Dining room where close to 50 persons heard and took part in discussions.

Speakers included John Buckley, travel representative to the B.C. Government Travel Bureau and John Toynbee of Sechelt, president of the Sunshine Coast Tourist Association. Others present included Tony Gargrave, MLA for Mackenzie constituency and Royal Murdoch of Pender Harbour Chamber of Commerce. Charles Mandelkau, president of the Chamber of Commerce, was chairman with Digby Porter, chairman of the tourist committee taking charge of the discussion on tourism.

28% for food.
22% for lodging.
20% for retail sales.
19% for gas and oil.
8% for tires and repairs.
3% for entertainment.

Generally about 60% of this business comes from the United States and the other 40% is divided between British Columbians and other Canadians.

"You have some of the finest scenery in the province," he said, "including some of the most scenic inland waterways, safe and sheltered to cater to the ever-growing breed of people who travel by yacht and cruiser. Are you catering to them? Do they have adequate facilities? Can they trail their boat to your community and launch it safely and easily to enjoy a carefree and relaxing holiday in your many picturesque communities?

"Does the traveller enjoy all the comforts that he would expect? Place yourself in his position — what are the necessities? Are you providing them? Put yourself in his place for a day or two and add up the shortcomings. Motel owners — sleep in your units for a night or two — are you as comfortable as you are in your own home? Are the lights in the most convenient position? Does the TV set in unit 9 actually work?

"Does your next door neighbor's dog howl under the unit window at three a.m.? Is the soup that is served in your restaurant really hot by the time it gets to the table? Are your employees working with you or against you by being impolite, abrupt or surly? And above all, are you maintaining that different appeal that we as Canadians and British Columbians should be justly proud?

One of the fastest ways to kill this our unique appeal is to continue to fly American flags and to specialize in Southern Fried Chicken. Why can't we specialize in Gibson Fried Chicken or Sechelt Apple Pie? How about Sunshine Coast shell fish or salmon? Americans come to Canada expecting to feel that they are in a foreign country. We are nitwits if we do not use Canadian names to give ourselves more of a Canadian flavor."

Mr. Toynbee dwelt on the effect of tourism on the area and termed it as an industry without a smokestack. He felt that as a conservative figure, tourists left in this area something like $1,000,000 a year. Tourist dollars penetrated the entire community and it was time merchants took a longer look at the possibilities arising from tourist income.

He was also of the opinion grants from municipal councils should not be of token support but the kind of support a major industry warrants.

During the discussion period the problem of ferry service which would be augmented by another larger vessel next summer, the Squamish Highway, use of the waterfront in Gibsons harbor and other subjects were brought up.

Hospital auxiliaries meet

At the monthly meeting of Sechelt's hospital auxiliary, Mrs. C. Connor read Mrs. S. Dawe's report on the BCHA 19th annual convention recently in Vancouver. Delegates were kept busy for three days hearing executive reports, medical and psychiatric talks, saw a film and had a panel discussion on volunteer work in hospitals. This she found very informative, and brought back many good ideas.

A vote of thanks was extended to Mrs. S. Dawe for her excellent report. The secretary was asked to write a letter of thanks to Mr. S. Dawe for constructing 8 tables for the auxiliary to be used at the smorgasbords.

Volunteers are asked to come out on Friday night at 7 p.m. to prepare the Legion hall for the smorgasbord on Saturday, Nov. 23, and also again on Sunday morning at 11 a.m., to clean up.

Any members with energetic husbands, are asked to bring them along for the heavier jobs, like setting up tables.

A reminder also to anyone who has not bought raffle tickets on the tapestry picture, do so right away as the draw will be held at the dance.

In lieu of sending Christmas cards this year, several of the members decided to donate their money to the Sechelt Hospital Auxiliary memorial fund.

A bride doll has been donated to the auxiliary to be placed in the gift box and sold.

Election of officers will take place at the next meeting Dec. 12. Mrs. W. Burtnick and Mrs. R. Swan will be phoning members for nominations.

Aprons being made and donated to the sewing committee are being sold as quickly as they are received and anyone wishing to help with this project may phone Mrs. F. Wyngaert, 886-9340.

Details are being worked out for a cabaret to be held in February and Thriftee Store's annual Spring Fashion show put on by the auxiliary is being prepared. Members are also taking time out to look after a coffee concession at the bi-monthly Kiwanis bingos.

Anyone interested in the Auxiliary's work will be welcomed at the next monthly meeting, Jan. 9, 8 p.m., in the Anglican Church Hall. There will be no December meetingg.

Nominations close Monday

Considerable interest is being shown in the coming Gibsons municipal election early in December and so far the retiring members of council, Chairman A. E. Ritchey, Mrs. G. Corlett and Mr. Wes Hodgson have decided to run again.

For school board two names have been mentioned, one is John Harvey, trustee and the other, Mrs. Marven Volen. Nomination day for both council and the school board will be Monday, Nov. 25 with nominations closing at 12 noon.

HOWE SOUND PIONEER

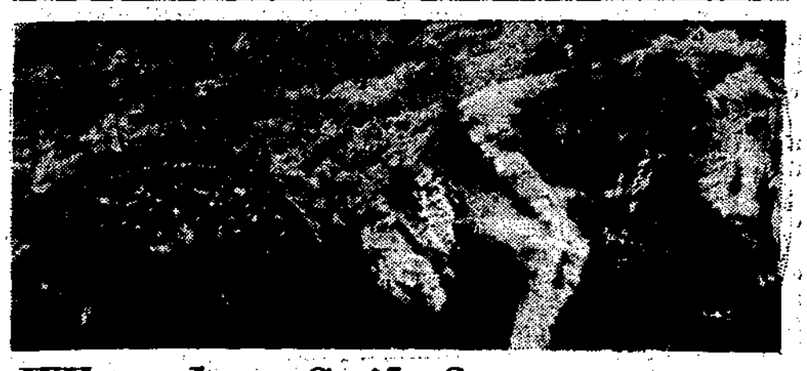
Mr. Oliver Becker of Gambier Island died in his 79th year, Mon., Nov. 18. He was one of the pioneers of the Howe Sound area. He leaves a sister and a son and grandchildren on Gambier Island. The funeral will be held Friday in Vancouver. Fuller details on Br. Becker's life will be carried in next week's issue.

Big donation

This past week, Halfmoon Bay Improvement Association donated to St. Mary's Hospital the sum of $783.90 to furnish a one bed ward in the Sechelt hospital. This brings Halfmoon Bay's total contribution to the new hospital to $1,976.43.

SMALL FIRE

Fire broke out in the William J. Dockar home at Hopkins Landing about 8:30 p.m. Thursday evening of last week but the damage was slight amounting to a hole punched in a plywood wall. The fire started from some electrical wiring.



Who shot Spike?

Spike was a tame deer raised by the Chris Johnson family who live north of Langdale on the highway. He was about five months old and still quite small, and illegal to shoot.

He was first found beside the highway in front of the Johnson's property, weak, able to walk only a few steps. At first they had to use a plastic baby bottle to squirt milk down his throat. He soon learned to suckle by himself. He house in rainy weather.

was quite tame within an hour. The Johnson's golden retriever quickly made friends and the two would sleep together in the dog

Spike was weaned at six weeks and rustled most of his own food from the plants and flowers nearby although he and Tim shared porridge in the morning and dog food in the evening from the same dish. He was never fenced in and wandered off but not for more than a few hours at a time.

Visitors with their children from all the area and an occasional one from Vancouver would stop to pet and play with Spike and take photographs and motion pictures.

The Johnsons went bowling at 4 p.m. Sunday, Nov. 10. Spike was there when they left but he was gone when they came back at 6 p.m. This was unusual since Spike usually waited until the family returned but they didn't worry much until he never showed up for his morning porridge and would not come when he was called. Since he was so tame he must have been shot.

AID FOR HOSPITAL

How minorities rule

An interesting point was raised at Gibsons rural school attendance area meeting last week when it was brought to the notice of the school board officials that the two villages, Gibsons and Sechelt were without public meetings at which village taxpayers could get reports on school board activities.

It appears that the method applicable to organized municipalities is that the council of the municipality can call on their school board trustee to appear before council whenever needed and offer information as required. With growing school costs, some people are becoming a bit disturbed over the general upward trend.

On the one hand we have organized areas desiring to have ratepayer annual school board meetings and on the other, meetings are called in smaller areas and the attendance is pitifully small. Take for instance one area which will not be named. At one annual meeting two years ago the school officials concerned showed up but no one else came. Phone calls were put in to two or three people to come along so a school representative could be officially selected for that attendance area. That is how the representative got to the school board.

What happened this year? Exactly the same thing, except for the fact the representative decided that if the public was not interested the representative would be quite happy to drop out of school board affairs. This is the way the school board can be denied the best of voluntary help. One volunteer is worth two government appointees.

An explanation!

A novel explanation of the rising price of beef in the United States has been advanced by the Wall Street Journal. That paper finds that one important reason for the rise is the increasing use of plastics.

With prosperity among consumers the demand for beef has risen, and normally this would have an upward effect on prices, as the raisers of beef find themselves in a sellers' market; but there is more to the price situation than the simple working of the law of supply and demand.

The big packing houses, which figure their profits on the basis of what they can get for the whole animal after it is separated into meat products and by-products, find that the demand for beef hides has dropped sharply in recent years. They have to sell the hides at lower prices than they could get a few years ago, and to make up their profitable price on the whole steer, they have had to get more for steaks and roasts.

One has only to look around to see that the explanation is plausible. Plastics have displaced leather in luggage, women's handbags, upholstery for furniture and cars and even in some shoes. The leather manufacturers used to boast that there was nothing like leather, but many of the consumers who used to buy leather goods are now satisfied with the imitations. It is they who, indirectly, are responsible for having to pay more for beef.

The Davis Ottawa Diary

By JACK DAVIS, M.P.
Coast-Capilano Constituency

During its six years in power the Diefenbaker government appointed no less than 15 Royal Commissions. Some dealt with relatively trivial matters. Others had more important assignments. Heading the list, as far as savings to the Canadian taxpayer is concerned, was the Report of the Glassco Royal Commission on Government Organization.

Interest in this five volume report was heightened by a recent statement, made in the House of Commons, by the president of the Privy Council, Monsieur Maurice Lamontagne. M. Lamontagne said no less than 68 of the Glassco Commission's 111 recommendations would be implemented at once.

Among them are proposals which will free the government department from much of the red tape which they now encounter in hiring staff and spending money. This decentralization implies a watering down of the powers of treasury board and the Civil Service commission.

Other ideas which are to be put into effect immediatly include the creation of a central purchasing agency; one which will do all of the buying for the various departments of government. This function is now scattered throughout numerous agencies and frequently involves conflicting policies and wasteful expenditures.

Standard procedures for auditing are to be set up and travel regulation will be streamlined. Bilingualism in the civil service will be encouraged and Indian hospital and school services will be gradually withdrawn with a view to admitting Indians to community hospitals and provincial school systems.

M. Lamontagne's statement was only a first installment. He did not deal with many of the more controversial ideas contained in the Glassco report — that the government should close its veterans' hospitals, farm out more work to private enterprise, charge government departments the full cost of the services which they receive and stop the spending of so much money on public relations services for the Armed Forces. These recommendations, M. Lamontagne said, are still under review.

The leader of the opposition, Mr. Diefenbaker, was sceptical. He suggested that the rest of the Report was going to be pigeon-holed. We hope not. Fifty milion dollars a year can be saved on paper work alone. Full

November notes By A.J.C.

The migration of geese this year was a record in my experience both in duration and the number of flights. Whether this was due to favorable hatching conditions on the Arctic tundra region or to the chance that more geese than usual chose the coastal flyway would be only a guess but the flights began promptly with October and did not cease until the end of the month — only to be followed by a rear guard five days later flying high and fast.

Flying conditions were good this year, the squally Southwesters that brought the needed rain were not violent, not a branch cracked in my woods or I would have heard it, and at the peak of the season the southward bound flights were passing over day and night.

Geese are weatherwise birds and my place is flavorable for observation being high and open; flights passing overhead, on the inland side or the seaward are all equally visible. Also it is quiet, however busy the roads are the sound of traffic is muted and since one hears an approaching flight before seeing it the sound gives early guidance to the direction in which to look. Sometimes there are strays, following the main migration at top speed, which is not unusual when great numbers of creatures on any kind are on the move.

Some years ago a lone goose suddenly dropped in on us. She did not seem to be injured so perhaps she was just tired and hungry, but the place suited her and she stayed some days. There was water in the little pond, young clover and grass that had followed the last mowing in abundance so we were hoping that a ration of grain would induce her to winter with us until a flight bound north in spring called to her with the call that few can resist. But she began to take short flights for a look around the place, on one of them the green of the playground below attracted her, she came down — and was a dead goose in a few minutes, the incident being ended by the squeeze of a trigger.

Canada geese taken to England settled down happily on the preserved waters and lush meadows of the southern counties. They are much admired being, with their clean-cut black and white markings and shapely bodies, more handsome than the Greylags and other native varieties.

Being free, not penned and also fed, they return from visits to other ponds, sometimes bringing strangers with them. With a little patience on the part of their human hostess they learn to feed from her hand. With all that it still seems remarkable that they forego the gratification of what must be their deepest instinct, the spring flight northward, and remain at their adopted home to nest and reproduce.

Smart birds I would say! The sagacity of geese above all other waterfowl has long been known nor has it been lost by the long-domesticated varieties. During the war it was noted that geese on farms outside the London area and particularly on the side facing the Continent would sound the alarm of approaching aircraft before the most sensitive electronic ears had picked up or recorded a single vibration. So they are as good on the watch now as when they aroused Rome in time to repel an attack.

Teenage problems

(By C. D. SMITH)

THE WEEK'S LETTER: "I am just entering my teens, am 5 feet, 5 inches tall, have big bones and a big frame. I should weigh 143 pounds, but I weigh about 180 pounds. People are always staring at me and kids are always making fun of me. My boyfriend said to lose weight or we will be through. I try to lose weight, but I am always "cheating," as I like to eat. Another thing, my parents say I should wear tight clothes, but I like to wear loose clothes. They say I look thinner in tight clothes. What should I do?

OUR REPLY: Take your problem of excess weight to the family doctor — and follow his recommendations. If you want to lose weight, and lose it properly, you have to exercise a bit of will power and determination. To do this, you will have to convince yourself that it is worth it — which it is. You probably "cheat" because your plan to lose weight hinged on not eating. A properly recommended diet, aimed at cutting down your weight, is no guarantee you won't be "hungry" — but such a diet will certainly include the foods that your growing body needs.

As to the matter of clothing—it should be neither too loose, nor too tight. If the kids make fun of you, they may do so not only because you are overweight, but as well because your clothing does not fit properly. Your parents want you to look your best. They do not want you to wear clothing that is too tight—they just want it to fit properly. The manner in which you wear your clothing can affect your appearance as much as anything else. Try to look your best at all times.

THIS WEEK'S RECIPE

CHOOSE A CASSEROLE

Piping hot casseroles are chill-chasers during sharp fall days. And for busy homemakers, they're time and budget savers too. Excellent substitutes for more elaborate meals, these one-dish oven-baked creations provide flavor, variety and good nutrition for lunch or supper. The combination of meat, fish, eggs, or cheese, with enriched bread slices, cubes or crumbs, and usually milk and a vegetable, provides a hearty meal for family or guests. The next time your menu needs perking up, choose a cool weather casserole.

Scrambled Eggs and Cheese Casserole

Make 2 cups of cheese sauce, and add one cup cooked or canned peas. Pour one-half the sauce over a layer of soft enriched white bread crumbs (1½ cups) arranged in a buttered casserole. Cover this with a layer of well beaten eggs (6 eggs). Repeat with a second layer of bread cubes (1½ cups) and top with the remainder of the cheese sauce. Bake in a moderate oven (350 deg. F.) for about 40 minutes, or until eggs are firm. Serve with a green salad and hot rolls.

Yield: 6 servings.

Devilled Ham Casserole

Spread six slices of enriched white bread with a well seasoned devilled ham mixture. Cut into one-inch cubes. Alternate bread cubes with 1½ cups grated cheddar cheese in a buttered casserole, ending with bread cubes as the top layer. Dot with butter, and pour an egg-milk mixture, made from 1½ cups milk and 3 beaten eggs, over the bread and cheese. Set casserole in a pan of warm water, and oven-poach in a moderate oven (350 deg. F) for 1½ hours. Serve with lettuce and marinated onion rings, and crusty French bread.

Yield: 6-8 servings.

Corn 'n Green Pepper Casserole

Combine 3 cups soft enriched white bread cubes, with ¾ cup milk, ¼ cup corn liquid, 2 beaten eggs, one 20 ounce can kernel corn, 2 tablespoons chopped green pepper, one teaspoon salt and ¼ teaspoon paprika. Pour mixture into a buttered casserole, and place in a shallow pan of warm water. Oven-poach in a moderate oven (350 deg. F) for one hour. Serve with waldorf salad and raisin bread.

Combine 1 cup milk and 3 beaten eggs, and add one teaspoon chopped onion, ¾ teaspoon salt, and a dash of paprika. Pour egg-milk mixture over layers in each casserole, and bake in a moderate oven (350 deg. F) for 45 minutes. Serve with a jellied fruit salad and assorted rolls. Yield: 6 servings.

Sabine vaccine for all

The provincial health branch program of polio immunization will resume in November and attempt to cover every citizen, Hon. Eric Martin, health minister announces.

Sabin vaccine will be offered to everyone in British Columbia who has had either a series of at least three injections of Salk vaccine or one dose of Sabin oral vaccine. Everyone who has not taken polio vaccine in any form will be urged to have a series of three injections of Salk vaccine.

In announcing the program, Mr. Martin said it had been developed in accordance with the recommendations made by thhe national technical advisory committee on live poliovirus vaccine which completed studies early in 1963 and subsequently made recommendations as to the use of Salk and Sabin vaccines. These were endorsed by the Dominion Council of Health.

These policies, Mr. Martin said, were as follows: Salk vaccine will remain, for the present, the basic vaccine for first immunization against polio for all age groups and particular emphasis will be placed on the use of this vaccine for children under one year of age; Sabin oral vaccine will be routinely used for the required regular reinforcing immunizations against polio; in the event of a threatened polio epidemic, consideration will be given at that time to the use of Sabin oral vaccine for primary immunization of the whole community.

Sabin oral vaccine was offered to everyone in the interior of B.C. during May and June of 1962 and 274,105 or 68 per cent of the population of the area took advantage of the program. Sabin vaccine can be used only through clinics since the life span of the vaccine is very short unless kept at much lower temperatures than can be maintained in an ordinary refrigerator. To ensure potency, it must be kept packed in dry ice until just before use.

Seek funds for Bibles

Dr. William J. Platt, former general secretary of the British & Foreign Bible society, London, England, begins a series of meetings in British Columbia next week. Dr. Platt is here to promote the world-wide funds drive of the United Bible societies to treble the output of the scriptures in the next three years.

Dr. Platt opens his B.C. itinerary in Courtenay on Nov. 22, then speaks in Nanaimo and Duncan on Saturday, Nov. 23. After speaking in Victoria on the 24 and 25, he speaks in Abbotsford on the 26. On Thursday, Nov. 28, Dr. Platt will address a large city-wide rally and dinner in St. Andrew's Wesley Hall, at 6 a.m.

The special funds drive, under the slogan God's Word for a New Age, calls for a B.C. budget of $10,000 for the balance of 1963. The B.C. district of the Canadian Bible society, working in conjunction with the protestant churches, hopes to raise this special sum as a prelude to a much larger program in 1964.

Payroll sales grow

Purchases of Canada Savings bonds under the payroll savings plan are now running ahead of any comparable date in the last 18 years.

The Ottawa progress report was hopeful that a new record might be set by the organization. Last year set the record at some $232 million.

So far 588,000 employees have subscribed for $203, million.

The B.C. region current report shows 42,274 applications for $13,880,100, close to 90 per cent of the 1962 final.

Armed forces and federal civil servants have added $5,000,000 to the total. The payroll campaign winds up Nov. 15.

B.C.'s BIG STICK

Experts still argue about the dimensions of British Columbia's Big Stick. Old-timers report that the tree, a Douglas fir felled near Vancouver in 1895, exceeded the giant Sequoia of California in overall measurement. The gargantuan fir was allegedly 417 feet high, with 300 feet clear to the first limb. Butt diameter was 25 feet and the bark was 16 inches thick. Butt circumference was 77 feet and 207 feet from the ground it measured nine feet through.

Harbor improvements for Westview

Hon. Jean-Paul Deschatelets, federal minister of public works, has announced the award of a $347,600 contract to the McKenzie Barge and Derrick Company Limited of Vancouver, B.C., for harbor improvement work at Westview, B.C.

The firm submitted the lowest bid of five in response to advertising for public tenders which closed on October 23, 1963. The highest bid was $425,048. The work is scheduled for completion in six months.

In order to provide adequate harbor facilities to handle the heavy volume of freight traffic, the proposed work has been divided into two phases.

This contact is for phase one and includes dredging and the construction of an excess road and a breakwater, while phase two will consist of the construction of a wharf, ramp and a shed.

The access road will be about 530 feet long by 33 feet wide, while the rock breakwater will have a crest six feet wide by 325 feet long. About 42,700 cubic yards of material will be removed in the dredging operation. The area to be filled measures 250 feet by 170 feet.

When the entire work is completed it will provide a new freight loading wharf for the Powell River area. Westview has a population of 11,000 and is part of the municipality of Powell River, situated on the mainland 75 miles northwest of Vancouver. The largest newsprint pulp mill in Canada is located here while fishing and logging are also important industries in the community.

Plans and specifications were prepared in the Vancouver District Engineer's office of the Department of Public Works. A. W. Walkey, District Engineer of Vancouver, B.C. will be responsible for supervision of the work.

Take pieces of hardboard or plywood about four to six inches larger than each picture, and cover with gingham in a color that harmonizes or contrasts pleasingly with the main colors in the picture.

The fabric can be glued to the board or stapled on the wrong side. Glue your picture in the centre of the board.

As throw pillows have come back in favor recently, anyone handy with a needle could easily make an interesting selection of these. Made in cotton, it is highly recommended that you slipcover them —this way they can easily be laundered.

Farewell gift

At the monthly meeting of St. Aidan's W.A., held on Tuesday last, Mrs. D. M. Manns, the president, regretfully tendered her resignation. For health and family reasons she will, in future, make her home in Vancouver. Her wise counselling and friendliness will be missed by all her friends, who wish her health and happiness in her new home.

As a farewell gift, Mrs. Manns will be presented with a W.A. life membership as soon as necessary arrangements are completed.

Final arrangements were made for the fall sale, to be held in the Parish Hall on Friday, Nov. 29 at 2 p.m. Mrs. J. Fergusson will open the bazaar, and everyone is invited to attend.

"Has anyone ever told you that you have beautiful eyes?"

Prepare costumes for concert

Members of the Roberts Creek children's Christmas concert committee met at the home of Mrs. P. Christmas Thursday night to plan costumes and prepare for their sewing.

The Parents' Auxiliary is sponsoring a dance at the Community Hall on Dec. 14, the proceeds of which will aid Santa in the matter of presents when he appears at the concert.

RESCUE TECHNIQUES

The Provincial Civil Defence fall and winter training program starts at Vancouver on Nov. 25 with the opening of the Heavy Rescue course at the provincial rescue site at 1572 West 5th Ave. Thirty candidates from all parts of British Columbia will participate, and will study basic rescue techniques with special emphasis on instruction for trainees to teach in their communities.

Roberts Creek roads in news

The attendance at the Roberts Creek Community Association general meeting was very encouraging, and in spite of the weather four new members turned out and paid their $1 annual dues.

The question of roads appeared to be one of the main subjects of interest, and it was felt that immedate action should be taken After discussion it was decided to send a petition from every resident on the lower road, Beach Ave., Elphinstone Rd., and Flume Rd., requestingg these roads be paved along with a description of the property they reside on.

The hall committee is painting the stage in the hall and having the curtains cleaned. Emergency lighting on the hall was discussed, and a committee appointed to look into the cost of this.

The bus stop shelter is near completion and a luminous road sign will be added.

The next meeting will take place on Wednesday, Dec. 11 in Roberts Creek hall.

The Happy Wanderer

(By MARY TINKLEY)

Naming a boat seems to be just about as chancy as naming a child. The fond parents who call their daughter Joy, only to find themselves the parents of a squalling spoilt little grumbler, could understand the feelings of Jo Dhooghe, who last spring, built a boat and named it The Happy Wanderer.

This craft, with its somewhat unusual appearance, created considerable interest in local waters during the past summer and elicited many outspoken comments. some of which were unfortunately overheard by its proud owner.

The Happy Wanderer was constructed in the style of a float house on two 24 ft. pontoons and equipped with two 40 hp. outboard engines. Jo's ambition was to travel to Skagway, where he planned to leave the boat and take the railway to Whitehorse.

Sixteen year old Bill Summers, of Salem, Oregon, hearing of the project, begged Jo to take him along. Bill knew nothing of salt water navigation, but what he lacked in experience he more than made up for in enthusiasm. So, one day in June, although the weather was rough, the crew of The Happy Wanderer could tolerate no further delay and set out from Halfmoon Bay.

Before they even reached Pender Harbour, the weather became worse and the front end of the boat buckled in. Jo steered for the shore where he beachcombed enough lumber to repair the damage and they continued on to Lund, making close to 30 miles per hour. There they visited Leonard Emmonds who said they would never get to Skagway in "that thing."

Ten miles beyond Bliss Landing No. 1 motor died, but the intrepid travellers continued as far as the Yucatah Rapids on one engine. While waiting for the tide. Jo filled a hole in the piston with plastic steel, while Bill, breathless with excitement, watched fish jumping all over the place.

Next morning they negotiated the Yucatah and Whirlpool Rapids on one motor and visited Hardwicke Island. No. 1 motor was still not running satisfactorily, so in order to lighten their load, they went ashore at Port Neville and cached the motor and some other equipment in the bush and continued on their way to explore Knight Inlet. A mile beyond Cracroft Island, No. 2 motor started running on one cylinder.

They were three miles out from shore when it finally quit and they drifted in to shore and tied up to a log boom. "Where's the nearest bus?" said Bill. Jo, taking the No. 2 motor to pieces, found a hole through the cylinder wall and the head gasket blown off. He carried out repairs, reassembled the motor and reluctantly decided to turn back.

At Port Neville, they picked up their cached stores and limped southward, again with some engine trouble which Jo was able to cope with. They made a side trip to Bute Inlet, fishing on the way up, until the water became too muddy. They enjoyed the magnificent vista of peaks and glaciers rising to 10,000 and 11,000 feet. At the head of the inlet they camped and followed the Southgate River on foot for a mile or so.

Touring around Cortez Island, they found water in one of the pontoons. After carrying out repairs and working on both motors, they were able to set off again with both working. At Lund they stopped overnight just to give Leonard Emmonds a chance to say I told you so.

Halfway over to Harwood Island they ran into heavy seas. Both pontoons were taking water and the front end of the boat was wide and the Happy Wanderer returned to its home base at Halfmoon Bay in fine style, even if not in very good shape. The trip had taken seven days.

Once in home waters, the Happy Wanderer behaved splendidly. She gave Jo and Ronnie Susbauer some fine water skiing and did some log towing. A few days ago, a big hole in one of the pontoons was made by a boom chain and the Happy Wanderer had to be taken out of the water. Jo intends to break her up and build another boat on different lines. Skagway is still on the agenda — but for next year.

Halfmoon Bay

(By MARY TINKLEY)

Halfmoon Bay Improvement association is planning its annual Christmas dinner and get-together for members and friends on Dec. 14. Those requiring reservations should advise Mrs. G. Rutherford or Ray Fleming immediately.

Carson Graves, who is in Australia, is enjoying a vacation at a 45,000 acre sheep station near Broken Hill. Apart from the 9,000 sheep on the station, Carson has emus, kangaroos, parrots and an eagle for pets.

Lorraine Moffat and Wayne Gallant were in Halfmoon Bay last weekend and, after visiting Lorraine's parents, the Stan Moffats, they made a trip to Saltery Bay to visit Mrs. Gallant.

Sunday last was the 75th birthday of Bill Grundy and friends called to offer gifts and good wishes. Among the visitors were the Ernie Pipers, the Harold Allems, Mrs. B. McCaul and the Charles Tinkleys.

Visiting the Joe Adams at Middle Point is Miss Rowena Gilbert of West Vancouver.

The next expedition of the Lovers of Life League will be on Saturday, Nov. 23 at 2 p.m.

On Sunday, Nov. 24 there will be a special childrens service at 11 a.m. at the Church of His Presence with Evensong following at 3 p.m.

KNOW YOUR Canada

Prepared by the Research Staff of ENCYCLOPEDIA CANADIANA

How many grain elevators has Canada?

In 1879 there was one country elevator in the West. By 1890 the number had increased to 90. In 1900 there were in Canada 421 elevators and 97 warehouses for the storage of grain, with a total capacity of about 12,500,000 bushels. By 1916 all grain in storage was handled in elevators, of which there were 3,300 with a capacity of some 105,000,000 bushels. Today about 5,500 elevators are capable of handling approximately 600,000,000 bushels. More than 99 percent of all elevators and more than 84 percent of total storage capacity are located in the prairie provinces.

Who used soldiers as road-builders?

When Governor Patterson arrived in Prince Edward Island in 1770 he was dismayed to find that the other settlements on the island could be reached from Charlottetown only by water. The governor proved to be an enthusiastic road-builder. He asked for five companies of soldiers on the pretext that they were necessary to guard the settlement against insurrection of French inhabitants and against raids of privateers and Indians from the mainland. But secretly he intended to employ them on road projects. Within a year after his arrival Charlottetown and Princetown were linked by road. Travellers between the two settlements, who formerly had to endure an arduous journey of two weeks, now could use the new road, which was only 33 miles long and avoided "all swamps, difficult rivers and steep hills."

Legion branch shield winner

Sparked by the enthusiasm and hard work of the acting president, Roy Fenn, Pender Harbour branch of the Royal Canadian Legion is taking on a new lease of life.

Last Friday's general meeting was followed by a successful oyster fry and bull session, when, the business of the meeting finished, the members sat down to an excellent oyster supper. Oysters were supplied by joint efforts of Bill Edgett and Bill Gardiner, wth culinary arrangements by Mrs. Peggy Pockrant.

Guest of honor at both meeting and dinner was Mr. L. A. Schon, zone commander. Mr. Schon pulled a pleasant surprise at conclusion of the meeting by announcing that the branch had been awarded the command shield for outstanding branch membership effort for 1962-3. Presentation of the shield was made to Mr. Fenn who chaired the meeting.

Hugh Hornsey, chairman of the entertainment committee received an ovation in appreciation of his successful organizational work in connection with the Remembrance Day social, which proved a happy occasion.

It was announced that nominations are in order for the 1964 slate of officers. Members desiring to nominate candidates for office are asked to contact Peter Trappitt, chairman of the nominating committee.

In view of the success of the Oyster Fry, it was decided that the next general meeting should be followed by a clam chowder feed.

MOVE TO EDMONTON

Rev. and Mrs. Edward Kemp, were visitors at Gibsons United church service Sunday morning. They intend to reside permanently in Edmonton, Alberta, to where they journeyed Monday.

LESSON FROM OTTERS

The sea otter obtains most of its food by diving to the sea-bottom. Folding its front legs near its body it uses its webbed hind feet to reach the shellfish far below the surface. Crabs, oysters clams and similar creatures are its main diet, although its favorite food is squid. Sometimes it will bring a stone to the surface, lie on its back with the stone on its chest, and beat a stubborn clam against it until the shell is broken. This playful, shy defenceless creature was the animal which Bering's men used as their chief source of clothing. At nia to the Arctic Ocean in thousands, a source of valuable furs untouched by man. Now it is that time it existed from Californarely, if ever, seen, and its survivors are numbered in tens It affords a lesson in why we need conservation measures.

You can avoid fire in your home if you choose only recognized and approved home heating equipment.

NAPOLEON — By McBride

A handbag wardrobe

An inexpensive envelope bag with a set of fabric slip covers makes an excellent Christmas gift for a teenager or career girl. If you sew, a handbag wardrobe is not hard to make.

Choose a handbag with a simple shape. Use fabrics that match favorite dresses, or make a corduroy cover for everyday and a cotton velveteen one for dress-up. A third purse cover could be made of gingham or denim for summer use. Add a monogram or school letters to slip covers with simple machine embroidery. Sew the design on first, when the fabric is flat and easy to handle.

Make your own basic slip cover pattern on heavy paper. First, draw an outline of the bag from flap to tip to inside front. Then spread the bag's side panel to its fullest width and outline. For each slip cover, cut a centre and two side panels from fabric, adding a half-inch seam allowance all round. Cut matching pieces of lining from non-woven interfacing.

Make an envelope cover flap to hold the handbag's flap securely. Add gripper snaps at top centre points of the side pieces. Close the bag with a button and loop, or punch holes through fabric opposite snaps on the bag. Finish holes with an overcast stitch.

LETTERS to editor

Editor: The writers feel sure that many of you will recall that five Christmases ago before the deluge of locally sent and received Christmas cards decorated the mantlepiece for a short time before their inevitable fiery end, a small group agreed to send a donation (equal to the dozens and dozens of cards we send to friends and acquaintances we come in contact with frequently) to the Central City Mission in Vancouver.

This was done rather than sending Christmas cards locally, so that some less fortunate may better enjoy his or her Christmas and possibly appreciate that Christ did not die in vain after all.

This small group has been growing each passing year so this letter is directed to any and all who wish to contribute in this manner to ensure that more and more people will have a happier and brighter Christmas as it was intended.

This year half of the proceeds will go to Central City Mission and the other half to the new hospital.

Those wishing to join with us, please contact Mrs. F. Feeney at 886-2121 or Mrs. A. Drummond at 886-2390. Money must be in by Dec. 15.

SCOUTERS' CONFERENCE

Halfmoon Bay

(By MARY TINKLEY)

On Saturday last, a Halfmoon Bay Auxiliary to St. Mary's Hospital event thronged Rutherford's Store with people from surrounding districts. Mrs. Q. Burrows, the president, received guests.

There was an infinite variety of goods for sale at the stall presided over by Mrs. G. Jorgensen and Mrs. P. Murphy — aprons, table linen, hand-knitted children's wear, plants and flowers, calendars and copper tooled work done by local artists. Mrs. B. Robinson and Mrs. R. Warne, in charge of tables laden with cakes pies, bread and rolls did a thriving business, particularly among the inhabitants of Bachelor's Row Dainty teas were served by Mrs. G. Rutherford and Mrs. E. Holgate.

In charge of raffles and tea tickets was Mrs. M. Meuse, the group's secretary. The first prize in the raffle, a $15 gift certificate donated by Mrs. Joan Hansen of the Toggery, Sechelt, was won by Bill Grundy. Owen Edmunds was the winner of the second prize, a hamper of groceries. Pete Jorgensen won the lovely doll which was dressed and donated by Mrs. Jean Robinson. The door prize, a set of six silver teaspoons, was won by Mrs. B. Charleton.

Members of the auxiliary thank everybody who helped in any way to make the afternoon such an outstanding success. It will be an porters to hear this hard-working group has donated the sum of $1,192.53 to St. Mary's Hospital to be used to furnish a two-bed ward in the new hospital.
