SECHELT RURAL MAIL SERVICE ANNOUNCED

Rural mail service for Sechelt area and an increase in the rural service now given Halfmoon Bay area was announced by W.H. Payne, Conservative M.P. for this constituency during his recent visit to the Sunshine Coast.

He also said work on Gibsons harbour breakwater would commence within two or three weeks. Dredging is underway now with men at times working day and night.

Mr. Payne added that he is working hard on obtaining a $25,000 grant for the Sechelt-Gibsons Municipal Airport.

As regards Halfmoon Bay rural route mail service he said it would be increased to six days a week from the present three times a week. The Sechelt rural mail service will start he hopes at the first of the year as he understands tenders for the work will soon be sought.

The route will start at Sechelt's Cowrie St. to a point one-and-a-half miles past Wakefield Inn where it will join with the Halfmoon Bay route. It will also take in up to the end of School road and Mason road. There will be eight groups of mail boxes established along the route.

He was also hopeful of getting a TV repeater station established somewhere along the coastline to give better reception but this might take a little time, he said, as there are other areas now being processed for repeater stations.

While in the area Mr. Payne addressed Legion groups and also held a meeting of the area executive.

Lest We Forget

By Ron Haig

As the years roll by and another Armistice Day approaches it seems to some of us that the real significance of this day is being forgotten. It is becoming just another Public Holiday and not as it should be,, a day on which to think reverently and thankfully of those who, on Sea, on Land and in the Air gave up their lives in the hope of preserving the Freedom we now enjoy.

As someone very aptly said and I quote "They gave their Yesterdays for your Todays."

Remember this when on Saturday next you are asked to donate to the Poppy Fund. Give generously. The money thus collected is used exclusively for Welfare Work among Veterans and their dependents. It is never used for the general purposes of the Legion.

It is deposited in a special fund and can only be expended by authority of the Legion branch president and the president of the Ladies Auxiliary, acting on the advice of the branch welfare officer who is charged with the responsibility of investigating all requests for assistance.

Also remember that the actual Poppies are made by disabled Veterans, thus providing employment for a large number of those who by reason of service disabilities are unable to obtain normal gainful employment.

Loose cattle for debate

A resolution concerning cattle at large will be placed before the Nov. 17 meeting of the Old Age Pensioners association which will be held in the Kinsmen clubhouse.

The resolution follows:

The "Pound District Act" of British Columbia was enacted and became statute law in 1936 and an act passed 22 years ago, is now out of date according to the population of the Peninsula of Sechelt.

The present act is unworkable due to the impossibility of obtaining competent Poundkeepers and

Where there is no established pound cattle, horses, sheep, goats, geese, etc. can roam at large, break through fences that are not what is termed a "legal fence" and the owner of the land has no recourse under the law against the owner of the said cattle, horses, sheep, goats, geese etc.

This condition means that the owners of cattle, horses, sheep, goats, geese etc. if there are only five such owners, can let these cattle, horses, sheep, goats, geese etc. damage the gardens, lawns, property of approximately 2500 home owners in the vicinity of Gibsons Landing alone, many of them Old Age Pensioners who depend on their garden produce but have not the required capital to build what is termed a fence that will make their property enclosed land as defined in the Trespass Act,

Therefore be it resolved that the Gibsons and District branch of the Old Age Pensioners Organization hereby petitions the Premier of British Columbia to have such new legislation enacted at the coming session of the provincial legislature as will be in the interests of the majority (and not in the interests of the very small minority) as is customary in all democratic countries governed in a democratic way.

South Africans hear about Sunshine Coast

In June of 1957 the Junior Red Cross of Elphinstone High school prepared a model house, typical of modern west coast homes, together with a tape recording describing the Gibsons area. This was sent to the Canadian Junior Red Cross for eventual shipment to South Africa. The school has just received a letter from the Canadian Government Trade Commissioner in Cape Town advising that he had seen the model and heard the tape recording. Here is a copy of the letter:

The Principal,
Elphinstone High School,
Gibsons.

Dear Sir:

I attended the opening of the International Art Display sponsored by the Cape Town Junior Red Cross and was very pleased indeed to find that contributions from Canada formed a well located and most attractive display.

I should like particularly to mention the model of a Canadian home which came from your organization. Also the following tape recordings:

Marie Heggie — tells story about the scenery around Gibsons; Margaret Herrin — tells of the climate; Marilyn Plows — tells of the way they earn their living; Avril Lucken — tells of recreation and tourist attractions; Glen Wicklund introduces singers: Joyce Inglis Jean Hague, Pat Wilson, Heather Bracewell, Barbara Olsen, piano, Lynn Vernon.

Congratulations on the good work.

Yours Sincerely
M.R.M. Dale

PTA officers

At the Elphinstone Elementary school PTA meeting in Sechelt Gerald Fahrni, school trustee installed Mrs. Sims as president, Mr. Hubbs, vice-president; Mrs. Nelson, secretary and Mrs. Zral, treasurer. He also presented Mr. C. Oviatt with a past president's uin.

Mrs. Toynbee and Mr. Hubbs were appointed council members. The 28th annual Border conference will be held at Langley Fri., Nov. 21. The next PTA meeting wll be held in Elphinstone High school and the January meeting in Roberts Creek school. The next meeting will be in the form of a back to school night with teachers available to answer whatever questions are asked.

Big squash

It would seem that when you plant by design the results are not as good as when nature takes its course. John Corlett of Gibsons had a chicken house and squash seeds and rinds were thrown to the chickens to eat.

This fall Mr. Corlett reports finding four plants that had flourished from discarded seeds to produce 20 squash weighing 473 pounds. The largest was 43 pounds and the smallest 10½ pounds. The largest had a 47 inch circumference

Nov. 11 services

Remembrance Day services will be held in Gibsons, Roberts Creek, Sechelt and Pender Harbour by the Legion branches.

At Gibsons where Rev. Dennis Harris has been elected chaplain there will be a service in Legion Hall and one at the Seaview cemetery. Services will be held in the halls at Roberts Creek, Sechelt and Pender Harbour.

Cookerama

A gas Cookerama will be held in Roberts Creek Community Hall Monday, Nov. 10, starting at 8 p.m. which will feature modern gas range cooking and demonstration by E.H. McCaffey.

This Cookerama has toured Alberta and British Columbia points and has a heavy schedule ahead of it. It packed houses at Calgary and Edmonton and in the Okanagan valley area. At a recent Hadassah meeting there were 2,000 present.

There will be a free bus service leaving Port Mellon and Madeira Park at 7 p.m. and the buses will return to those points at the end of the meeting. There will be no charge for transportation but there will be a small admittance charge which goes to the Roberts Creek Community association. There will be door prizes.

New pulp drying plan under test

Canadian Forest Products Ltd., Howe Sound Pulp Division at Port Mellon, has been running test runs on a new method of pulp drying. The new machine is the "Flash Dryer." designed and built by the C.F.P. staff.

Briefly the operation is as follows: The wet pulp sheet is shedded into fine fluffy bits and fed into the bottom of a tall ventrical tower, up which is proceeding a high-velocity stream of hot combustionable gas, from an oil burner below. The gas stream carries the pulp fluff upwards, as the pulp dries.

The pulp becomes lighter as it dries, and moves up faster. The heavier with moisture the fluff is, decides how long it takes to reach the top, therefore pulp should arrive at the top at the required degree of dryness. During this process the moisture is literatally flashed off as steam, under suitable conditions.

From the top of the tower the pulp passes into a cyclone seperator, similar to the sawdust cyclones seen in sawmills. The pulp falls from the bottom of the cyclone into a pressing machine not unlike a hay baler, from which it is discharged for final baling operations.

This drying process is advantageous in that the pulp slushes up again very readily. This reslushing is the first stage of preliminary paper making in paper mills. By pioneering this process, C.F.P. expects to be able to increase its pulp sales.

In an article from the Port Mellon Thunderbird it, states, "that the 'secret,' of flash drying, if it may be said to have one, is in shredding the pulp finely enough to expose a large area to the gas stream." Other technical considerations apply too, the design of such a drying machine is no simple task.

Chanticleers from the past

The Chanticleers, William Diard, tenor, Richard Wright, tenor; Raymond Keast, baritone and James Martindale, bass, are often individually asked for the derivation of their quartette name. Webster notes the first use of Chanticleer as the name of the cock in the medieval beast epic Reynard the Fox; no one knows for certain the origin, or even the country of origin, of Reynard.

Webster notes also the Old French equivalences of chanter and to sing and of cler and clear. The quartette, which will sing at Elphinstone High School in Gibsons, on Thurs., Nov. 29, usually refers its questioners to Chaucer's Canterbury Tales and the following lines from the Nun's Priest's Tale:

A cock called Chanticleer,
In all the land for crowing he'd no peer;
His voice was jollier than the organ blowing,
In church on Sundays, he was great for crowing.

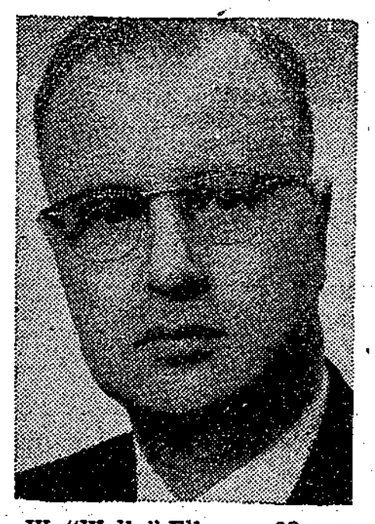
Burn mortgage

Sixty members of St. Hilda's congregation gathered in the Parish Hall for a potluck supper with guest Rev. J.A.G. Wilson, rural dean and Mrs. Wilson. The highlight of the occasion was the burning of the mortgage loan for the Parish Hall which is now free of debt. Many old timers were on hand to witness including Mrs. E.E. Redman and Mrs. C. Jackson and Mr. E.S. Clayton.

Rev. Mr. Harris in his address complimented the pioneers of the church and hoped newcomers would carry on in like manner. Mrs. B. Rankin showed films taken on a recent trip to the Atlantic.



W. "Wally" Ellsay, a 33-year-old chief clerk at the Land Registry Office in Vancouver is the newly elected president of the 11,500 member B.C. Government Employees' Association. He takes over as chief executive of the association during a critical period in the assocation's struggle to achieve equality in both wages and barganing rights with their counterparts in business and industry.

Golden Wedding

Remembrance Day, Nov. 11, will mark the Golden Wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Dowling of Wilson Creek.

They both came from Folkstone, England, Mr. Dowling arriving in Canada in 1906 and Mrs. Dowling, the former Miss Jessie Bradley Lee, in June, 1908. They were married in November of the same year at Winnipeg, Man.

They have one married daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. J.H. McLeod, also of Wilson Creek, and five grandchildren.

Among the festivities honoring the couple will be a dinner planned by their daughter and son-in-law which will be attended by a few close friends and relatives on the evening of Nov. 11. Earlier in the day Mr. and Mrs. Dowling will be at home to friends from two until five o'clock.

One of the highlights of the anniversary will be the attendance of Mr. and Mrs. T.A. Hoyle of West Vancouver who were present at the Dowlings' tenth anniversary in Winnipeg on Armistice Day, 1918.

Pender Harbor harvest service

All those attending St. Mary's Anglican Church, Pender Harbour, Harvest Festival service at 11 a.m. Sunday are asked to bring as a special offering, home canned fruits and vegetables. They will be given to St. Mary's Hospital.

At Nelson Island Harvest Festival service Oct. 26, a splendid assortment of home canning, including canned salmon, and some magnificent vegetables were brought by island residents to the school where the service was held by Canon Alan Greene. He later took their generous offerings to St. Mary's Hospital on the John Antle.

Bring canned fruits and vegetables to church Sunday morning and they will be used to decorate St. Mary's Church. It is a practical, happy way of helping the hospital, and of expressing thanks to God for the harvest.

Ramps needed

President James Parker of Sechelt Board of Trade announces that at the regular meeting held in the Totem Room Oct. 29, Capt. Sam Dawe and John Toynbee were appointed as a committee to investigate the feasibilty of small boat ramps at Sechelt.

It was pointed out many owners bring boats to Sechelt on trailers and find it difficult to have them launched. Establishment of ramps would benefit local as well as visiting boat-owners.

Elected to membership were Mrs. Muriel Greggs, Halfmoon Bay and R. Branca, Sechelt.

Night school classes are explained

Speakers representing this year's Night School spoke to a good gathering at the October meeting of the Roberts Creek PTA.

Mr. G. Cooper, director of evening classes, emphasized the growing interest in the classes pioneering in their second year in this area.

Mr. Booker talked interestingly of his art and photography groups and gained at least one new adherent from his audience.

Mr. Yablonski outlined his orderly and practical driving classes by which students may acquire the theory and confident, gradual practical knowledge of handling a car. Other classes were outlined, mainly by Mr. Cooper.

The need for Scout and Cub committee members was discussed after a plea by Mr. Harbord who has served loyally and actively in various capacities of scouting in Roberts Creek and is now retiring from the active work. Suggestions to drum up more interest were made by a lively meeting.

The school's hopeful need for a new projector since the old one bowed out disgracefully, gathered plenty of attention. Ideas for raising funds to fatten the PTA finances to help meet school needs and community book needs came with vigor and active support.

Roberts Creek is pleased to welcome several men within its PTA ranks. Due partly to their enthusiastic ideas the October meeting was a most successful one.

1st Guides to resume

Mrs. R. Kruse will again assume her position as Brown Owl to lead First Gibsons Brownie pack and meetings will commence Nov. 18.

All Brownies will meet at Nov. 11 to parade to the Lethe School Hall at 10.15 a.m. gion Hall for Remembrance Day services.

At a meeting of the local association plans were made for a sale of children's used clothing and coffee party, Nov. 7 at 9.30 a.m. Parents of Guides and Brownies are asked to donate baking and to come help at the sale. Funds will be used to meet the cost of hall rental which amounts to $2.50 per week.

As there is need for Guide and Brownie uniforms anyone having such is asked to contact the leaders or the auxiliary. The next meeting will be held Dec. 1 at the home of Mrs. Cartwright, starting at 8 p.m.

Organ fund

St. Hilda's Anglican church at Sechelt has launched an organ fund, for a Memorial organ to honor pioneers of the church at Sechelt.

The church now plans a canvass to raise funds and will welcome all possible help so those who desire to help can contact Mrs. C.K. Redman at phone Sechelt 151H or Mrs. T. Duffy at Sechelt 158. Contributions will be accepted be either person.

Crowd small

Mart Kenney orchestra and entertainers which appeared in Elphinstone High School hall, Oct. 28, did not draw as large a crowd as was expected. The same occurred in Powell River where the aggregation appeared earlier.

The Gibsons attendance was about 50 couples and at Powell River with a much larger population to call on 175 couples turned out.

The entertainment provided was tops and nothing better has been seen in Gibsons in the line. The orchestra provided some excellent dance music.

Remembrance Day

Remembrance Days roll around with regularity and memories with them, memories which cannot be effaced. For instance there is the memory of lying in a tent at Camp Sewell in late August, 1915. The boys were having their usual period of gassing before getting between the blankets, Bugles sound the Last Post in a camp a mile away, It is taken up by a nearer camp. As one fades out another takes it up.

Here C.E. Montague in his remarkable book Disenchantment, takes up the theme. "I believe the whole tent held its breath to hear the notes better. Who wouldn't, to listen to that most lovely and melancholy of calls, the noble death of each day's life, a sound moving about hither and thither, like a veiled figure making gestures both stately and tender, among the dim thoughts that we have about death, the approaching extinguisher — resignation and sadness and unfulfillment and triumph all coming back to the overbearing sense of extinction in those two recurrent notes of Lights Out. One listens as if with bowed mind as though saying 'Yes; out, out brief candle.' A moment's silence to let it sink in and the chaffing and laughter broke out like a splash of cool water in summer again."

Those two recurrent notes denoting Lights Out, crowd the memory with crosses row on row, the harvest of two gigantic wars, crosses which are now the only visible remembrance of men who once lived, laughed and loved, men who have more right to be alive today than many who are.

A contribution to the Poppy Day fund and the memories of those men and women who died that others might live are all we have left as the passing of each Remembrance Day sees fewer and fewer of the living who remember.

The best time for flies

This is the best time of the year for flies. Not the house variety. This is the season when the expert gets out his collection of little feathers, snips of mink tails, dyes and horsehair. These with a few barbed hooks and a pair of pliers put him to work in real, creative earnest. The ingenuity of the designers and the variety of their works prove the endeavors are creative; some folk who lack understanding say that the multiplicity of models also proves that no one of them is consistently any darn good. Now the biologists have come along and announced that fish are discovered all to be color-blind.

Devoted fly-tiers are urged to ignore science. If they keep thinking attentively that they are engaged in a worthy, though unsubsidized cultural activity, that they are probably the mainstay of Canada's horsehair industry and that anyway the things look fine in the band of a battered old hat, they will suddenly find the months have slipped by, the streams have opened up and the exduse of trying out the new ones will be taking them out into the healthy open air again. — The Printed Word.

Hazen Argue once youngest in Commons

Hazen Argue, CCF party leader is to speak on Sat., Nov. 17, at an evening dinner meeting in Danny's Dining room at the close of a CCF-Trade Union meeting. A biographical sketch about him follows.

Hazen Argue, elected to the Canadian House of Commons on June 15, 1945, to represent the riding of Wood Mountain, Sask., at the age of 24 years, established the record of being at that time the youngest man ever to win a seat in the federal house. Politics have always figured largely in his life and his freshman year at University of Saskatchewan saw him as a CCF member of the student parliament. Appropriately enough, he became the minister of agriculture in the first CCF "government" which was formed on the campus. He was also very active in debating and for three consecutive years represented the university on travelling debating teams. He graduated in 1944 with a bachelor of science degree.

Following his election to parliament in 1945 Mr. Argue soon became recognized as an outstanding spokesman for agriculture. His ability as a fluent and forceful speaker has a solid foundation in his practical as well as scientific, knowledge of farming problems. He owns a half section farm in the Kayville district and is a member of various local co-operative enterprises, as well as the Saskatchewan Wheat Pool and the Farmers Union.

Mr. Argue's activities have not been limited to the problems of the farmer. He fought a vigorous campaign for reduction of interest rates on small loans. The result was legislation which did reduce interest rates somewhat, as a result of which Canadian borrowers were estimated to have saved $10,000,000 a year. He has also taken a keen interest in world problems and led a delegation of M.P.'s to discuss world food disposal problems with American senators and congressmen.

Mr. Argue has been re-elected to parliament at every election since 1945. In the last election his was the distinction of being the only opposition member elected from the Prairie Provinces. Despite the Conservative landslide he was able to increase his majority.

Following the 1958 election his colleagues in Commons recognized Mr. Argue's leadership ability and elected him leader of the parliamentary group. In this role he has led the CCF in maintaining its reputation as the really effective opposition in the Parliament of Canada.

Mr. Argue is married and has three daughters and a son.

Collection of great value

A huge collection of books relating to Canada, weighing ten tons and containing an estimated 20,000 volumes, has been presented to the University of British Columbia library

The collection was acquired by an organizaton called the "Friends of the Library" from the estate of the late Thomas Murray, a Montreal manufacturer who died in 1955. The "Friends of the Library," was formed two years ago to encourage an interest in the development of the UBC library.

The acquisition will give UBC one of the finest collections of Canadiana in the world according to librarian Neal Harlow, who announced the purchase.

"We know we have ten tons of books because we paid transportation charges on that weight," Mr. Harlow said. "As for the number of books contained in the 300 cartons, that's anyone's guess. Only 4,000 of them were catalogued and described."

The collection contains the first book printed in Montreal, a tiny volume of 37 pages measuring 5¼ inches by 3¼ inches, valued at between $500 and $600. The book outlines the regulations of a lay association associated with the Seminaire de St. Sulpice.

Another volume valued at $850 was written by Nicolas Denys, an early governor of Acadia and contains an early map and description of the Maritimes.

Two other interesting volumes are personal accounts of the 1837 rebellion written by Louis Joseph Papineau and William Lyon MacKenzie.

Mr. Harlow expects it will take UBC librarians more than a year to catalogue the collection and get it ready for general use.

"The chief value of the collection lies in the fact that it is rich in publications relating to Eastern Canada," Mr. Harlow said.

The late Thomas Murray, who was born in Toronto in 1878, became a book collector at an early age. He moved to Montreal at the turn of the century and retired from the garment business at the age of 50 to open a book store.

THEIR LIVES—HIS LIVELIHOOD—DEPEND ON OIL

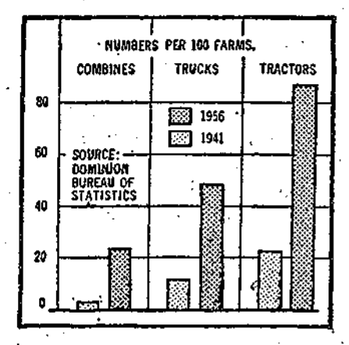
Imperial contributes to a better life for Canadians through constant leadership in oil... finding new supplies... pioneering more useful products

There are more than five tractors for every six occupied farms in Canada... one motor vehicle for every four Canadians. More than half the homes in Canada are heated by oil.

Canadians consume half again as much gasoline today as they did in 1946, nearly five times as much heating and diesel fuels.

Imperial has been a major contributor to this better life, more productive economy. In 1946, Canada produced less than one-tenth of its oil needs. In 1947, Imperial discovered oil at Leduc, in Alberta. Today, Canada's own fields produce nearly 60 percent of our requirements.

Through its nine refineries from coast to coast... and in its research operations, larger than the rest of the Canadian oil industry put together... Imperial has constantly been able to lead in the development of newer and more useful products ... to make a fuller life for Canadians.



Since 1941, gasoline-fueled equipment on farms has risen sharply.

Fred Feeney, phone man, good citizen

Telephone Talk, the B.C. Telephone's monthly staff magazine devoted a full page with picture of Fire Chief Fred Feeney of Gibsons who is also chief repairman for B.C. Telephones in this area. Here is how the story in the magazine read:

Telephone people are traditonally good citizens, with a well-earned reputation for unsparing devotion to volunteer community service. Typical of the way in which this proud reputation has been won is the story of Fred Feeney, B.C. Telephone Company district repairman at Gibsons.

When Fred took over as chief of Gibsons Volunteer Fire Department in 1955, local fire-protection arrangements were badly in need of re-organization.

At that time fire-protection was available only within the limits of the village itself, and one of the most urgent needs was for the creation of a "fire-improvement district" to include the surrounding unorganized areas.

Before this could be achieved it was necessary to acquire a tank truck to provide the necessary water for fire-fighting in these rural areas. The purchase of this was made possible by the formation of a 600-strong "Gibsons and Area Volunteer Fire Department." Last June a new water truck rolled into Gibsons and the fire-improvement district became a fact.

Fire Chief Feeney's association with the force began in 1946 when the only piece of equipment was a two wheel trailer that had to be loaded on a truck and lashed down before the fire-fighters could leave for the scene of a blaze. In 1950 he helped with the building of Gibsons' own fire hall and today he is in charge of 20 men and four trucks — an inhalator vehicle, the tank truck, and two fire trucks, one of which was built by voluntary labor in 1951 — plus an item of which he is particularly proud. This is a 500-gallon-per-minute pump which was largely donated by the Canadian Forest Products' operation at Port Mellon. "Pride of the force," Fred calls it.

Dramatic proof of the efficency of Gibsons' progressive young fire department came last July 28, when, at a few minutes past midnight, Mrs. Ethel Bryant, night operator at the local telephone office, sounded the fire alarm in response to a call reporting a serious fire in a commercial block in the centre of the village.

Within minutes the department was mobilized and on the scene with all available resources. So bad was the fire that an SOS was sent to the Port Mellon fire hall, the call being made just moments before the cable carrying the circuits melted in the intense heat.

The battle lasted until dawn when the tired but triumphant fire-fighters knew they had succeeded in preventing the fire from spreading to the waterfront area.

And then, in his other role of telephone repairman, and pausing only to snatch a quick cup of coffee, Fred pitched into the urgent task of repairing fire ravaged telephone communications. With the help of telephone crews rushed in from other points on the Sechelt Peninsula and from as far away as Vancouver, the Port Mellon-Vancouver circuits and practically all the affected telephones in the village itself were back in service by the end of the same day.

The people of Gibsons know their "telephone man" as a person who devotes a lot of time to the good of the commuity. One appreciative person expressed this recently when he said: "... he has built us a strong volunteer fire department — out of the goodness of his heart."

Gargrave backs Squamish road

The Minister of Highways, has received a letter from Tony Gargrave MLA urging the Minister to include in the planning concept of B.C. highways a road around the Howe Sound. In his recent letter Mr. Gargrave said:

"From time to time while travelling in the Mackenzie Constituency I have been approached by many individuals and organizations with regard to a future road which could be constructed around the north-east corner of Howe Sound from Port Mellon to Squamish.

"The people who live on the Sechelt Peninsula and at Powell River would like ready access by road to the highway system of the province, and the people at Woodfibre would also like to be linked into the provincial highway system.

"This is no doubt a difficult project and must accept a greater or lesser position of priority compared to other pressing road projects in the province. However, I feel, and you will no doubt agree, that this is a road link which should have a place in road planning in the province.

"It would seem wise that areas outside Vancouver and particularly on the coast of British Columbia, should be connected to the provincial road system to aid even growth and development in British Columbia. This project would no doubt be costly, as is all road building these days, but a complete road circuit around the Howe Sound would be a great advantage to the people living in the large land mass north of Vancouver. It is also probably unnecessary to mention that the road, when constructed, will be one of the most beautiful highways on the Western coast of North America.

Port Mellon news notes

BY ANNETTE MARLEAU

Mr. and Mrs. Tom Lusk with Cathy, recently from Duncan, presently living in Vancouver, visited Port Mellon over the weekend, to see friends.

Mrs. E. Enemark is back at Longview. For some months she has been visiting her son John Enemark and family in Vancouver. Mrs. Kitty Durling of Vancouver accompanied Mrs. Enemark home and plans to stay on while Mrs. T. Enemark goes to Vancouver to await the arrival of a baby.

The Port Mellon Volunteer Fire Department as in years past sponsored a children's masquerade and fireworks display. There were three divisions of judging of the costumes. Mr. and Mrs. Wilson of Gibsons and Mrs. MacDonald were judges. Fire Chief Don Dunham handed out the prizes. Jim Swan was "Emcee" and Mrs. Mae Freer supplied music for the marches. Mr. Wilson was so taken with one small masquerader, he issued a special prize of his own. When the party was over and the children left to watch the fireworks, firemen were on hand to distribute Hallowe'en treats at the door.

Saturday evening the firemen hosted a masquerade ball, cabaret style for the adults. The music was provided by the Mellonaires. There were three judging divisions for costumes and costumes were good, proving a difficult job for the judges to choose winners. Jim Swan was Emcee for this party.

Mrs. Ross Calder of Calgary is visiting her son Mr. Jim Calder and family.

David Sherman visited his family over the weekend.

Miss Donna Clements was a guest in Port Mellon for Hallowe'en.

Peter Madison, head first aid attendant for the mill, has commenced first aid classes for the 58-59 season in preparation for the competition in the spring.

Miss Diane Harris is leaving Port Mellon for Vancouver where the position of secretary awaits her.

How secret are your old family secret recipes?

How exclusive or secret is your recipe?

The chances are it's owned by some 500 other Canadian cooks.

At least that's the opinion of home economist Sally Henry who with her staff annually reads about 100,000 recipes and makes up hundreds to determine the top 210 recipes for the $25,000 Domestic Bakefest, Canada's largest cooking contest.

"It would be heart breaking," Miss Henry commented, "if the women who tell us their entry is an old family secret, could see the hundreds, exactly like it, which pass over my desk during the contest."

And Miss Henry's family is no different from any other. Last year, their special spice cake appeared about 200 times among the Bakefest entries!

What are the most popular recipes?

"Chocolate cakes, brownies and oatmeal cookies. . .at least that's what we believe," Miss Henry said. "Usually about 30 percent of the Bakefest entries are made up of these recipes."

What does Miss Henry and her staff look for in a recipe?

"Something different; something that's original," she declared. "Perhaps a new twist to an old favorite."

Like most women, Miss Henry and her staff spend hours trying to perfect their recipe ideas for a test kitchen is just the same as the kitchen in an average home. With a smile, Miss Henry confessed, "we have our failures too."

"When the top Bakefest recipes are selected, we often wonder why we didn't think of doing what the contestants did," she commented. Recipes, Miss Henry believes, are quite like jokes. You start with a basic one and add and subtract until you end with something quite different.

Miss Henry offers this tip to women who are interested in cooking competitions. "Try to vary your recipe so that you have some originality in the ingredients to give a new flavor and streamline the method of preparation. Another point to keep in mind," according to Miss Henry is that. "the recipe should be as economical as possible."

To illustrate her point, Miss Henry cites the second prize winner in last year's Bakefest namely, Lemon Apple Crunch Pie.

"We've been using this recipe at cooking schools and Fall Fairs because we feel it's an excellent example of the type of recipes we look for among the Bakefest entries," she said.

"Although basically an apple pie, the addition of lemon juice and rind has given it a new flavor. It's physical appearance has been changed too," she pointed out. The crumb topping does the trick."

Miss Henry passes along the recipe in case you'd like to try it yourself.

Lemon Crunch Apple Pie

Pastry: 2 cups sifted all-purpose flour; ½ teaspoon salt; ⅔ cup shortening; ¼ cup cold water (approximately).

Filling: 1 cup granulated sugar; 2 tablespoons flour; 1 egg, separated; 1 tablespoon grated lemon rind; 2 tablespoons lemon juice; 1 tablespoon melted Margarine; ¼ cup hot water; 2 cups pared and sliced apples.

Topping: 1 tablespoon Margarine; 1 tablespoon sugar; 3 tablespoons flour.

Sift flour and salt together. With a pastry blender or two knives, cut in shortening, until the consistency of coarse cornmeal. Gradually, add water stirring with a fork until mixture holds together. Divide dough in half. Roll each on lightly floured surface. Line an 8-inch plate with one piece of pastry.

Mix sugar and flour together. Beat egg yolk and add lemon rind, lemon juice, Margarine and hot water. Blend in flour and sugar and add to apples. Fold in stiffly beaten egg whites. Pour into pastry lined pie plate. Cover with top crust. Seal and flute edge.

Mix margarine, sugar and flour together until crumbly. Brush top crust of pie with milk. Sprinkle with topping. Bake in a hot oven (400F) for 40 minutes or until pie tests done.

Portugal has been an independent state since the 12th century.

"NO PLACE LIKE HOME," SAYS BURGLAR BILL

If you took the advice of Burglar Bill, you'd keep all your valuables at home. Under the mattress, maybe. Or in that old teapot which has lost its spout.

But Bill's advice isn't entirely objective. He figures if you leave your valuables at home — even in a "safe" hiding place — he stands a better chance of getting his hands on them.

Much better advice comes from Don McNab, manager of the Sechelt branch of the Bank of Montreal. "Keep your valuables really safe in a B of M safety deposit box," says Mr. McNab. "Your personal strong box, exclusively yours, costs less than two cents a day, and it pays for itself over and over again in peace of mind alone," he adds.

Hundreds of thousands of Canadians use B of M safety deposit box facilities. Their valuables — bonds, leases, stock certificates, insurance policies, deeds, birth certificates, passports and other important family papers — are safe and sound behind the steel doors of the B of M vault.

Forget what Burglar Bill says. Mr. McNab says, "Clean out those closets, drawers — and teapots. Bring your valuables into the bank instead."

Mounted Life Guards head State procession

Article 11

By Thomas Humphries

On Tuesday, May 13, we took the Tube to Picadilly Circus and called at B.C. House to get some visitors tickets to the House of Commons and, having a little time to spare before lunch, we took a walk down the Mall towards Buckingham Palace with the intention of getting a few pictures.

The Mall was crowded with police and crowds of people and, on enquiry, we found that the President of Italy was arriving shortly at Victoria Station. He was to be met by the Queen and Prince Philip and driven in a full state procession back to Buckingham Palace at 1 p.m. This was an opportunity not to be missed as a state procession taken place very occasionally, so we found a good spot on the curb, kindly helped by some Italian students who were very interested in the fact that we came from Canada, and we waited one and a half hours for the procession.

It was not too tedious a wait as it was perfect weather and it was quite interesting to watch the platoons of Guards marching up the Mall to be lined up with great precision, ten or twelve paces apart and with much shouting from the sergeants and stamping of feet, on both sides of the Mall extending from the Palace to Admiralty Arch.

At long last the state procession came into view and it was a thrilling sight. First came the mounted Life Guards in their resplendent scarlet uniforms riding jet black horese perfectly groomed even to their shining hooves, followed by the open state coach drawn by four horses with outriders. Riding in the coach were the Queen and Signor Gronchi followed by another coach in which were Prince Philip and Signora Gronchi. We had an excellent view and I managed to get some very good color shots with my movie camera. Following the coaches were another platoon of mounted Life Guards and a procession of cars carrying the prime minister, members of the cabinet and other notables.

After lunch at an Italian restaurant on Jermyn Street we walked another mile or so to the Houses of Parliament, and from the visitors gallery, watched a debate. It was quite an interesting debate too, and we were fortunate to hear exchanges between the prime minister and labor front benchers, including Hugh Gaitskill and Nye Bevan. For full measure, while we were there, we took in a debate which was proceeding at the House of Lords and later had tea in the visitors tea room. To finish the afternoon, and refreshed by the tea, we went over to Westminster Abbey and heard an evensong service.

After this somewhat full day, with a lot of walking, we felt that we were entitled to splurge on a taxi back to the Cumberland, which we did at a cost of six shillings, so it was not much of a splurge after all. We never ceased to admire these London taxi drivers. The way they weave through the traffic is amazing and for courtesy they are quite on a par with the London policemen than which there is no greater compliment.

I might mention that English policemen still wear helmets and carry truncheons instead of revolvers. In the country we never failed to be amused by the sight of policemen in full uniform riding bicycles. Another sight in London at which we were continually amused was the conventional dress of the London business man which was a dark suit with the inevitable bowler hat and a beautifully rolled umbrella under his arm.

On Friday evening, May 9, we took the Tube to Waterloo station on the south side of the Thames to go to an all-Beethoven concert at the Royal Festival Hall given by the London Philharmonic Orchestra.

This hall, built for the Festival of Britain on the banks of the Thames, is surrounded by beautiful gardens and is reputed to be one of the most acoustically efficient halls in the world. It was a magnificent concert, needless to say, and was a great treat to us musically starved Gibsonians.

As we walked over from Waterloo station to the Hall we passed an elderly man on the sidewalk near the entrance sitting on a stool and playing on his violin, most artistically, themes from Beethoven's Violin Concerto, with his cap on the ground for the public to throw in small change. We could not help wondering if at one time he had been a member of a symphony orchestra himself and, if so, what had been the cause of his downfall.

After this soul satisfying and cultural evening we felt that it would be somewhat of a letdown to fight our way back to the Marble Arch on the Tube so we treated ourselves to a taxi again and so to bed with the memories of Beethoven lulling us to sleep.

The baby feels secure . . . but is he?

Family safety involves more than physical protection. There should be guaranteed financial security. Millions of Canadians get this through Life Insurance. They own more of this valuable property, in relation to national income, than any other people in the world.

Waste no time worrying about that small boy. He has a two-fisted grip on security. He belongs to a family which considers Life Insurance an essential part of its progress towards financial security.

Canada is rich in families that treasure life insurance as a present pledge and future promise of security obtained by their own initiative.

Friendly, helpful agents have shown 7½ million Canadians what a valuable property life insurance is. Every year an increasing number of families buy life insurance as their major source of family and personal security.

Nowadays, living policyholders receive 5½ million dollars, every week, from the Life Insurance Companies in Canada.

LETTERS to editor

Editor: At the request of the members of the Choraliers, I wish to answer an unsigned letter which appeared in your paper dated Oct. 9.

After investigation from every conceivable angle, I have come to the conclusion that there has been a mistake somewhere along the line. This affair happened between 8 and 10 p.m. and according to the writer, two ladies alighted from a car, one of which went to the Mrs. Hazel Evans home, whilst the second member was asked the question which brought forth the controversial answer: "Not for kids to fool around."

As this was the first practice, there were only ten members present. Three came in the first car while the second car with one member and myself followed immediately and I being last to enter, definitely did not observe any other person in the vicinity.

The third car came several minutes later and contained four ladies, the president and two members of the committee. These three ladies have tried their utmost to encourage our young people to join the group but without avail, the fourth member of this party was a stranger in our midst and could not be expected to answer questions with regard to membership in a group, of which she knew very little at the time. One member arrived after the time the letter writer stated she had left, and that accounts for the arrival of all our members.

Whilst there is no point in dragging this unfortunate incident before the public, I feel justified in asking your indulgence and assistance. I trust the integrity and honesty of my group, who give their time and talent and cash, to help in any charitable or benevolent cause.

We would still welcome new members, and give a special invitation to our young adults, especially to the writer of the letter, whose name you yourself refrained from publishing.
