Bank managers do help!

Two Irishmen going to the races took a keg of whiskey to sell there. Keenly aware of the temptation the liquor would offer to their own thirsts, the partners firmly agreed that neither should take a drink from the cask without paying for it. One man had three-pence, the other nothing.

Presently the man with the three-pence grew thirsty, and paid his coin to the other for a drink. The other man soon felt parched and gave his partner back the three-pence for a snifter. This went on all the way to the races, first one paying and the other until all the whiskey was consumed.

The partners stopped to count their profits. "Begorra!" they cried. "A whole keg o' whiskey sold, and what have we got to show for it—only three-pence!"

Now if before starting out on their trek these two gentlemen had visited their banker and placed the proposition before him, it is likely the result would have been different. The banker would have raised the price with the result they would have sold the liquor for sixpence a drink instead of threepence. Which goes to show that bank managers have their place in this world of ours.

Further information about what a bank manager can do for the average Joe Blow is contained in an advertisement in this issue, likely on page three, which is worth reading.

We welcome a worker

Lieutenant-Governor Frank Mackenzie Ross is now a life member of the British Columbia Weekly Newspaper Association. He was presented this honor because he had been a hard worker.

Anyone who joins a weekly newspaper association is working as hard as any man wants to work. The idea that turning out a newspaper is sitting down and dashing off a few remarks ranging from witty to profound, is very nice but a long way from reality.

One can also imagine the idea a lieutenant-governor lives merely to go around looking important is an understatement of fact. When one is on speaking terms with a lieutenant-governor one discovers he, like many other people would just like to be left alone for a period.

Weekly editors also relish being left alone at times. However life for the weekly editor or the lieutenant-governor provides rare moments when either can be left alone. So Lieutenant-Governor Ross is now a member of a fraternity which can sympathize with him as a man whose time cannot be called entirely his own.

Commas and more commas

It seems to us, generally speaking, and without ulterior motives, that, by and large, surveying the total situation, and with due regard for unity, coherence, and emphasis, that, without wanting to be picayunish, and taking due notice of modern trends, we are, as a nation, so far as can be judged from papers, magazines, and books, rapidly approaching the point, or at least getting within hailing distance, of the time when something, whatever it may be, will have to be done about the indiscriminate use of commas.

One can, without too great effort, if he wishes, sample, or at least investigate, the underlying, basic, comprehensive truth of this admittedly broad, but, nevertheless, direct, pointed, and succinct assertion. Too many writers, at least, it seems that way, although, in all fairness, one doesn't wish to be too dogmatic, use commas too frequently, too indiscriminately, and, it seems, without reasonable excuse. Commas, of course, are easy to put in, but, it does seem on occasions, like this one, as if, without too great effort, a bit of careful, incisive, revision would eliminate many of the small, pinheaded, upside down curlicues.

Praise for the intellectual

In the movement of degeneration known as modern education, writes Clifton Fadiman in the current issue of Reader's Digest, the guilt must be assigned to our belief that we have a 'right to happiness' which, in our day, we interpret as 'having a good time'.

"In education this idolization of the Good Time," says Fadiman, "is translated into the child-centered school; into an elective system gone insane, to the point where a high-school graduate will choose a college because it offers sailing; into the religious enshrinement of athletics. Once we accept the Good Time theory of happiness it is inevitable that our children, instead of being taught to read, write, speak and reason, will be taught to train dogs, use the telephone and wield drum-majorette batons."

Unless we change our minds on education, Mr. Fadiman continues, "the school will become a purely custodial institution and its staff an army of baby-sitters." And changing our minds involves agreeing with Aristotle who tells us that all men, by nature, desire to know, and also that education must be accompanied by pain.

"Somehow or other the child

Elphinstone Junior Red Cross has been active during the past term. With Heather Bracewell and Pat Lloyd as co-chairmen, regular meetings have been held twice a month. Lyn Vernon has been a busy secretary and Kathy Holland an active treasurer.

Helen McSavaney, as head of the sewing committee, has been working with a group of girls to prepare a layette which the Public Health nurse for the district will give away if the need arises. Jeremy Rowand has been in charge of the wood-working project and with Mr. Dombroski's assistance and that of senior boys in the shop, is making a library wagon for the use of teachers in the Children's hospital.

Some girls have prepared Christmas card albums to send to head office for distribution to children's wards or hospitals. A successful pie, cake and cookie sale was held to raise funds in November.

The big Christmas project was a draw. The girls of Mrs. Evans' home economics classes baked the Christmas cake, a pudding, cookies and candies, and donated them to the club. The lucky winners were: Cake, Mrs. I. Lockhart; pudding, Bill Morrison and candies and cookies, Frances Volen. Maureen McKissock, Dorothy Cartwright, J.R. Blake, Mrs. H.

The true story of one small borrower... and 'MY BANK'

A few weeks ago, Julian Janvrin, an Englishman by birth now living in Toronto, came upon this headline in his daily newspaper: "Bank of Montreal Deposits Top the Three Billion Mark". A depositor at the B of M since shortly after his arrival in Canada five years ago, Mr. Janvrin was prompted by the headline to write a letter to Gordon R. Ball, president of the B of M, outlining his experiences as both a depositor and borrower at Canada's first bank. We thought Mr. Janvrin's story of his struggle against adversity was worth repeating, and with his permission, have made it the basis of this advertisement.

The Success Story of Julian Janvrin...

Julian Janvrin is the last person in the world to say that his is a success story. We think it is. But you can judge for yourself.

FIVE YEARS AGO, shortly after his arrival in Canada with his wife and three children, Mr. Janvrin had occasion to cash a cheque at his local B of M branch in Toronto. "Although I had told the manager that I was just an immigrant," he recalls, "he invited me to open an account, and it was gratifying to me to feel that my confidence in the future of Canada was reciprocated by the Bank of Montreal. Two or three weeks later I opened an account at that branch."

Like most newcomers to Canada, Mr. Janvrin had only enough capital when he arrived to get himself settled, and eventually he found himself short in meeting the final payment on his car, which was essential in his new job as a salesman. So he talked over his problem with his B of M manager, who considered him a good enough risk to advance him the money he needed.

But let Mr. Janvrin continue the story in his own words: "I mention this because bankers are sometimes charged with being little more than moneylenders and usurers, but in this instance, I knew that the Bank of Montreal was acting as it were on behalf of the people of Canada in helping me to get established in much the same way as in pioneer days the Bank of Montreal must have advanced funds to immigrants to purchase seed, a few implements and maybe a team of horses.

"Soon afterwards I gave up selling, disposed of the car and took a regular job by night, while my wife by day quite literally took the holes out of doughnuts. One of us was able always to be with the children, two of whom were not then of school age.

"Fifteen months later we decided to obtain cheaper rental accommodation outside Toronto. A car, however, would then be essential. Again the bank went along with us. "Two years ago the landlord of the house we were renting decided to sell the house. Again the Bank of Montreal helped us and advanced the down payment that prevented our home being sold over our heads.

"This summer my son, having passed through six grades in three years at public school, sat for the competitive entrance examination to a school for which I would have to pay an annual fee. . . . For this, too, I am in large measure indebted to the Bank of Montreal, for in June my financial circumstances were such that had I not been confident of my banker's support, I might not have ever considered sending him to this school.

"We have now again moved into Toronto to be nearer the school, but our circumstances have improved, inasmuch as our teenage daughter has now left high school of her own wish and is now working; and as the two younger children are now at school, my wife in the New Year will be in a position to take an office job. "This is not a success story, for the struggle, believe me, is still on. But our bank account is now in better shape than it has been for the past five years and will now perhaps bear scrutiny. "I am now, therefore, at last in a position to write to thank My Bank and in particular my bank manager, for the confidence it placed in us and for the help, encouragement and courtesy it has always extended to us.

"To me it is no surprise that the deposits of the Bank of Montreal should have topped the 3-billion mark, for although from the short term point of view I myself am not yet in a position to make large deposits, it may well be from the long term point of view, that my son, as a representative of the coming generation, may be in a position to do as other sons of Canada are now doing."

The B of M is, of course, proud to have played its part in Julian Janvrin's success story, and is grateful to him for allowing us to publish it to indicate some of the many ways in which Canada's first bank works with Canadians—new and old alike—in every walk of life from coast to coast.

Mr. Janvrin's story provides a sincere and unsolicited testimonial to the fact that "When you ask for a loan at the Bank of Montreal, you do not ask a favour".

When money is a problem with you, why not see your B of M manager? If your proposition is sound and reasonable there's money for you at the B of M . . . at the lowest rates and on the fairest terms.

"Get to know your banker," says Mr. Janvrin. "Your best collateral is his confidence." A spare-time free-lance writer, he spends many evenings at his typewriter while the children study.

Nine-year-old Robert Janvrin, seen with his younger sister, Patricia, is a student at one of Canada's top preparatory schools, thanks to a timely B of M Personal Loan.

20 of these, some of which might come on at any time; we have little or no reserve capacity. Of course, if the Public Utilities Commission, or other government authority, should order that further presently unaccepted outside service must be given I think a break-down in service can be anticipated despite any planning the council is able to undertake.

Inside the village, on levels supplied from the storage tank, we do seem to have some reserve, though small. Unless there is an unlooked-for increase in service demands the pumped system should handle things for another year. However, plans should certainly be made to increase capacity before long, probably not later than next year.

One long-standing plan has been to change those flat-rate services in the village, for other than single-dwelling premises, to a metered basis. Year by year little or nothing has been done on this. Perhaps some action might be taken this year.

Very little was added last year to the Fire Department capital account, though a fair amount of the 'Fire Protection' expenditure was in renewals of equipment. The Volunteer Brigade continues to provide most excellent service to the community. This was demonstrated in a very convincing manner during the summer, on the occasion of the Bal's Block fire, where, though the block was destroyed, the fire was contained. During the work of water main installation last year, four additional stand-pipes were installed, and provision made to hook up another, when needed.

Garbage Disposal

No work was done last year in developing the garbage disposal ground, though the property was surveyed and boundaries established. So long as funds are needed for other work, and there is no urgent call for use of the land for municipal garbage disposal, there does not seem to be any need to expend monies there. The land will be there when needed.

Some additional street lamps were installed during 1958; the village seems to be fairly well illuminated now, but possibly the School Road, and both North and South Fletcher Road could be examined for needs. At present, a little over $46 per year per lamp, our street lighting costs will run nearly $2,100 per year.

Some work was done during the year on beaches, floats, protection booms, diving rafts, etc. Late in the fall we were able to get several scow loads of sand dumped free of cost at the municipal bathing beach. It is hard to say what the result may be, depending on the action of currents, storms, etc., but it should improve the beach at least a little. The main floats seem to be holding out fairly well, though how much longer they will survive teredo action, mussels and barnacles is hard to guess. The anchors also seem to be holding, and the chains standing up, which is rather surprising, as the newer one has been in service more than 20 years and the other at least 10 years longer.

advised; in my opinion the Village has made a considerable saving in costs, and has received the benefit of better and more lasting work.

Roads Work

Most of the roads costs last year was in surfacing; this was done on the School Road, Winn Road and South Fletcher Road. Reconstruction work was done on the North Fletcher Road, and some preliminary work on the Martin and Wyngaert roads. The Village now has provided access by hard-surfaced road, or by that and a short stretch of gravelled road, to every improved property in the village, and except for a short piece of lane in D.L. 685, all roads and lanes are right-of-way cleared. Following is a list of road works still needed, which certainly cannot be all done in 1959, but which I have tried to set out in order of their apparent importance.

1. Regrading and surfacing Headlands Road, Dougal Road to beach.
2. Regrading and surfacing Bay Road, Trueman Road to Block "F".
3. Regrading and surfacing Trueman Road, Bay Road to Dougal Road.
4. Surfacing North Fletcher Road.
5. Grading and ditching, with culverts, Martin Road.
6. Grading and ditching Wyngaert Road.
7. Rough-grading, ditching with culverts, Fletcher Lane.
8. Completion of Charman Creek fill, Glassford Road, with rough grading around corner and along end of Trueman Road.
9. Surfacing Glenn Road. (this road not completely cleared)
10. Culvert and fill, Cochran Road, Dougal Creek.
11. Culvert and fill, Glassford Road, Dougal Creek, with rocks gathered from road, adjoining roads, and lane.
12. Foot-path, west end of Beach Avenue.

Water System

During 1958 very considerable work was done on the water system, extension of service mains, replacement of trunk main and quite important replacement and repairs of sundry items. All the work seems to have been carefully done, and costs were within estimates. Most of the new installations were done by contract, by Burroughs Bros. Excavating Co., who proved to be first-class workmen, and very pleasant to deal with. Our system of distribution mains now reaches every improved parcel of land in the village, and almost every subdivided parcel, vacant or otherwise. The few exceptions can all be reached by quite short and small extensions.

However, there are several areas where further re-subdivision of land will certainly go forward sooner or later, and will entail further extensions of distribution mains. One such area, and extremely difficult to serve because of the terrain is Block "F", D.L. 685. Installation of distribution mains and service connections there will be costly indeed, far above anything in our previous experience. Leaving that job to one side, as a special problem by itself, and perhaps not to be immediately required, I would suggest that consideration, this year or soon after, be given to the following:

1. Obtaining additional water at the water lot, by more drilling, or pumps in wells, or both. Provision for more pump capacity in the near future.
2. Obtaining of water from springs (by drilling) at sources of Dougal Creek; perhaps purchase of a lot or lots.
3. Testing by drilling of possible additional supply near gravity source; probably at levels below reservoir, meaning pumps, perhaps deep-well pumps.
4. Replacement of four-inch wood gravity main from end of six-inch Transite to, say, Payne Road by six-inch Transite.

Gravity Line

On the basis of 1958, a dry year, experience it does seem that we could get by another year without the expenditures suggested above. However, the gravity line during last year was right at the limit, both as to water supply and carrying capacity of mains. The council has, very wisely, I believe, refused any further outside connections except those already accepted; but there are about

National road policy sought

B.C. Automobile Association is spearheading a move to organize a meeting of government leaders to discuss formation of a national policy on highways.

Directors of the 76,500-member auto club have asked their Ottawa affiliate the Canadian Automobile Association to call together federal, provincial and municipal officials to hear proposals for: three-way cost sharing on construction of limited access roads through highly populated urban centres and a 50-50 federal-provincial split on costs of other highways.

At their monthly meeting directors also learned that CAA executives are to meet American Automobile Association leaders to discuss linking the CAA-AAA symbols on recommended hotels, motels, garages and restaurants.

Meantime, directors approved the purchase of a handsome new plastic CAA emblem for members of the B.C. auto club and within the next ten years tens of thousands of them will blossom out on cars throughout the province.
