First concert Friday night

Depicted above are Susana y Jose, famed Spanish dancers who will appear in Gibsons at the Elphinstone High School auditorium Friday night starting at 8 p.m.

This is the first of Overture Concerts events for this season and it is regarded as a feather in the cap of the Gibsons committee which books the artists for the season's concerts.

This is the last call for those who have not joined the Concerts association. Those desiring to join can do so by phoning Mrs. Wynne Stewart, the secretary at Gibsons 190 or Mrs. Parker at Sechelt 51. There will be those who will join on the night of the concert where season tickets can be obtained but if you desire to avoid fuss and bother season tickets can be obtained beforehand via the phone numbers listed above. The coming of these famed Spanish dancers is looked forward to by more and more people as the date of their performance approaches.

Fisherman flees fire

Thomas Hansen, elderly fisherman of Pender Harbour narrowly escaped death when his gill-net vessel caught fire on Monday last week.

The boat was on the grid for repairs at Art Duncan's Marine Ways at Madeira Park, when at about 8:30 in the evening, it listed suddenly, and flooded the oil stove, which ignited gasoline from a disconnected fuel line.

Flames enveloped the cabin, which Hansen vainly endeavoured to fight with a fire extinguisher. The boat listed again, causing another burst of fire. It was with the greatest difficulty that Hansen battled his way out of the flaming cabin, sustaining severe burns to his hands and face.

Meantime, with Art Duncan and others fighting the fire, a call was put through to the local Ranger station, which responded with foamite extinguishers. The foresters held the fire in check until the arrival of the Garden Bay Volunteer Fire Brigade as result of a call from Mrs. Duncan. The prompt and efficient work of the volunteer group, equipped with the pump loaned by Canon Greene of Columbia Coast Mission, saved the vessel from total destruction, and prevented the flames from spreading to the Duncan net shed and residence.

Extent of Hansen's burns necessitated his removal to St. Mary's Hospital.

At this meeting annual reports will be given by Scout representatives from the various districts in the Sunshine Coast area. Following the meeting refreshments will be served. All Scouters and their wives are invited to the meeting, also any of the public interested in what has occurred in Scouting during the past year.

A new association has been formed to assist Scout and Cub leaders and the next meeting will be held in Sechelt Elementary School, Nov. 16, starting at 8 p.m. All mothers and others interested are urged to attend this meeting.

Phones increase

For merchants and others who wonder how many telephones are in use on the Sunshine Coast here is the Sept. 1 total as tabulated by Telephone Talk, the B.C. Telephone company magazine. Here are the figures: Port Mellon, 104 telephones; Gibsons exchange, 901; Sechelt 586 and Pender Harbour 263 making a combined total of 1,854 — a long cry from the 80 odd telephones including all the islands nearby listed in the 1947 telephone directory.

Death takes I. Woodburn Pender Hbr.

Residents of Pender Harbour and District were shocked to learn of the death in Shaughnessy Hospital last Saturday of Mr. Ian Woodburn, of Gunboat Bay.

He had been admitted to Shaughnessy Hospital a week or so previously, and was transferred to the George Derby Centre for special therapy. About a week before his death Mrs. Mary Woodburn had gone to Vancouver to be near her husband. An unexpected decline in his condition necessitated Mr. Woodburn's readmittance to Shaughnessy, where he passed away.

Mr. Woodburn was well known throughout the harbour area where he had resided for about seven years. He was president of the Pender Harbour Board of Trade and a member of the Pender Harbour branch of the Canadian Legion. An accountant by profession, he had been employed for several years with the Workmen's Compensation Board coming to Pender Harbour to take over the post of administrator to St. Mary's Hospital.

During the Second World War, he joined the Seaforth Highlanders of Canada, and served overseas in the Northwest Europe theatre, attaining the rank of Major. Prior to his service in the war, Mr. Woodburn lived for some years in Australia.

MSI plan for over 65

B.C. Medical Services Incorporated (MSI) is planning to offer pre-paid medical coverage to persons over 65 for a short test period next spring. Dr. D.S. Munroe, president of MSI said that the group plans to open its enrollment for a limited period and accept over-65 applications.

"On the basis of experience with this limited group, we can decide if it is practical to handle all over-65 applications," he explained later.

Dr. Munroe said that in MSI's five short years of offering pre-paid medical coverage to persons ineligible for larger group plans, the organization has achieved more than 40,000 members and is now in the "million dollar corporation" class.

PENDER HBR CHURCH

Committee to go ahead

The special meeting of St. Mary's Hospital society Nov. 6 in Madeira Park Hall decided by motion to urge the committee appointed to study the hospital problem on the Sunshine Coast to continue its work and hasten the time when the committee would have an agreement in principle.

The meeting also voted to continue the committee as it was now constituted. This working committee was appointed some months ago to work on a projected hospital for the Sunshine Coast area site of same to be left until the need for such an institution had been established.

There were about 30 persons present from Port Mellon Gibsons, Sechelt, Selma Park and Pender Harbour and points in between.

Year - round Christmas present

There are no misconceptions about the seriousness of the tuberculosis problem in B.C. among the members of the B.C. Tuberculosis Society as they prepare for the annual Christmas Seal sale which opens Nov. 16.

"Tuberculosis is still a dangerous health problem in B.C.," said Mr. L.A. Atkinson, chairman of the board of directors. "The success of modern drugs in reducing the death rate and the length of stay in hospital represents great progress in the continuing fight against the disease. But the fight is by no means over."

Mr. Atkinson said there were presently more than 21,500 known cases of TB in the province. There were 610 new active cases found in B.C. last year — more than 50 every month.

"Although the number of

Problem arises over fire alarm

The problem of fire calls when the Gibsons phone service goes automatic in July of 1960 was raised by a letter to Gibsons Village Council at Tuesday night's meeting.

At present a fire alarm is sounded when a switchboard operator in the phone office presses a button to sound the siren. When phones are on the automatic system there will not be any human element at the phone exchange to sound an alarm.

Council has discussed this problem previously and had already begun to check on fire alarm systems. The letter from B.C. Telephones which officially stated the position of the phone company pushed council a little further into the fire alarm picture of the future.

Council discussed various systems which could be used involving a pushbutton alarm system to be operated from more than one point.

On motion it was decided at this time to purchase a new siren to replace the one on loan now in use and continue the present system with the phone office sounding the alarm. When time came to move from the phone office, push-button points will be established.

Pink Elephant Coin Laundries which plan to open in the Bal Block sought information on the business tax that would have to be paid. Council decided the tax would be $1.50 per machine. It is planned to install 16 washers and six dryers. There are now four such plants in Vancouver area, two in Victoria and one in Duncan.

Accounts totalling $248.93 were passed, $118.42 for road work, $62.85 for fire protection, $40.02 for general purpose; $5 for parks and beaches and $12.64 for water.

Council expressed its thanks for the help volunteer firemen offered in keeping down Halloween disturbances. Two village street signs were reported to have been broken off.

Crib Tourney to be arranged

The first cribbage event by Roberts Creek Canadian Legion branch on Oct. 30 in the Legion hall was described as heartening and it was arranged that games would be recorded with the idea of arranging a tournament at the end of the winter season.

A good turnout attended the Oct. 13 meeting when the president, W. Gilbert, accepted a plaque from Ike Mason, president of Gibsons branch, taking the place of Ron Haig, zone commander. This plaque was presented to Roberts Creek Legion by the zone command executive for its good work during the past year in maintaining membership at a high level. Mr. Haig was unable to attend owing to illness.

Along with the plaque, there now rests beside it a picture of Vimy Ridge donated by Mrs. G. Mortimer.

The next meeting, Nov. 13, will discuss sponsoring a teenage square dancing. The auxiliary at its Nov. 2 meeting arranged for their bazaar on Dec. 4. The annual meeting will be held Dec. 7 when new officers will be elected.

The auxiliary decided on a donation to the fund to transport retarded children to school classes. There will be a whist drive Nov. 27 and Santa Claus will hand out gifts to children at the hall on Dec. 23 between 2 and 4 p.m.

Nomination Day coming

Nominations will be sought for a chairman of the Village Commission in Gibsons and two commissioners as well as a member for the school board in this year's municipal elections.

Two commissioners will be retired automatically, Harold Wilson who was finance committee chairman and Reg Adams who held the fire and health posts. Chairman A.E. Ritchey has ended his two-year stint and his place on council will be open.

Mrs. A.E. Ritchey who was appointed by provincial authorities as Gibsons school board member also vacates her seat as she was appointed for a one year term.

Nomination day will be Dec. 7 at the Municipal Hall and election day if necessary would be Dec. 17.

WOOD-WORKING CLASSES

Wood-working classes resumed on Nov. 9 at Port Mellon with Roy Johnson as instructor. All ages from 10 years old and up are invited to take part in this class.

deaths is down, the number of new cases found continues to be very high."

Mr. Atkinson said B.C. TB Society officials count on the Christmas Seals to support a year 'round program of research, public education, free chest X-ray and tuberculin testing services.

Money raised by the seals also has enabled the society to stimulate the building of health units throughout the province by contributing 10 percent of the construction costs. During the past three years the society has granted more than $300,000 to this end, Mr. Atkinson said.

Rampaging buck fever

From what our department of entomology can discover the words buck-fever can be applied to a nervous hunter, but as a result of what is occurring in the United States there is a new type of fast buck-fever rampant.

If rigged quiz shows and bribed disk jockeys are not a serious symptom of fast buck-fever perhaps someone can find a better illustration.

The desire to be successful does contain the germ which can produce fast buck-fever but the antidote appears to be congressional investigation south of the border. It is a pity the greed for "prestige" which seems to be the basis for buck-fever should have to reach such proportions before it is uncovered.

Earl W. Kintne, chairman of the U.S. Federal Trade Commission, addressing the Audit Bureau of Circulations in Chicago recently spoke on "Self-Discipline at the Cross-Roads." Here is what he said and the majority of Coast News readers will more than likely agree with him.

"I am quite aware that cynics ridicule the idea of self-discipline by businessmen. And while I concede there is evidence aplenty to support their cynicism, I know that without such voluntary compliance with law, this nation would be confronted with two unacceptable alternatives: becoming a police state or surrendering to commercial chaos.

"Granted that both alternatives seem remote at this time, I think it is tremendously important that we realize that self-discipline by businessmen can deteriorate — and that decay hastens decay. The capacity of business to police itself can be sapped by indifference, by ignorance, by avarice. It also can be undermined by the surrender of moral responsibilities to government — the demanding of new laws to fill the vacated bastions of self-reliance.

Picket wrong place

There are people in this world who take a rather narrow view of the application of the Sixth Commandment which reads "Thou shalt not kill."

During the hanging the other day of a man in England who was found guilty of killing a member of the police force while he was doing his duty, there was quite a demonstration outside the prison by opponents of hanging.

The TV views on the demonstration outside the prison at the time of the hanging showed demonstrators carrying signs which read "Thou shalt not kill."

Based on the actions of the demonstrators who are opposed to hanging it would appear that bullets which kill a policeman, a third man in a triangle or a victim of robbery are not subject to any of the commandments by which authorities are supposed to live.

True, these people must start somewhere to do away with the practice of hanging. Maybe picketing criminal hangouts with "Thou shalt not kill" signs would be more logical. It would not reach all who find it necessary to kill but it would reach a good many potential killers.

QUOTABLE QUOTES

The effort by magistrates here and on the Peninsula to have a full-time probationary officer appointed by the provincial government is understandably meeting with full approval of PTA and other civic groups, and is one which we believe every citizen would endorse.

In communities such as those between Lund and Gibsons (the area which would be served by the proposed probationary officer) many sentences imposed by magistrates carry a probationary qualification. Young offenders, getting their first taste of out-of-bound mischief, are often more suitably corrected in their outlook by a probationary sentence than they would be by a stiffer sentence which might bring them into association with experienced criminals. — Powell River News.

A father in Wildwood is quite sure his pride and joy is heading for a successful career as a prosecuting attorney. One evening father was trying to persuade his young son to finish up his plate. "Come on, now, Tony," daddy urged, "think of the thousands and thousands of children in India who'd be so happy to have a chance at a plate like this that they'd do anything to get it."

Tony surveyed his plate resentfully for a moment, looked up and said "Name two." — Powell River News.

"I am pleased to be able to say that both departments with which I have been associated in this government, namely, education and lands and forests, are major wood-users in any of their construction projects.

"The department of education, through the 50-50 cost sharing financing plan with school boards has become one of the province's biggest builders. That department is one of the most powerful promoters you can find for the use of wood in construction.

"All their school plans specify the major material as wood products if the local boards want to benefit by the 50-50 plan. Where a school board, by choice only, not by by-law, insists on concrete construction, the department will only contribute the equivalent of the cost of a frame building of the same capacity. Where local by-laws require use of materials other than wood, the department is required to pay half the costs." — Hon. Ray Williston, addressing the first annual meeting of the Canadian Wood Development council.

LETTERS to editor

Editor: Last week a young lad of 15 came into my house with his suitcase and made him self at home. He didn't ask if he could stay but after he told me he had no place to stay I didn't have the heart to put him out.

So I gave him a bed to sleep in and his meals at my house. After a week's time he got up one morning in the wee hours and took leave without saying as much as goodbye or thank you and he also took the box we made to put change in for the Christmas turkey. We had a little over $10 in the box saved up towards the Christmas turkey and trimmings. I am not giving this lad's name but he is well known in Gibsons. J.K. Galley.

Editor: I am currently engaged in writing a book, "Pioneers of The Canadian West," which will help popularize the history of your part of Canada I would like to hear from any of your readers who have memories of how they or their parents or grandparents helped settle our Canadian Prairies and mountain country. Frank Rasky, Editor, Liberty Magazine.

Editor: Our annual brochure tells of the diversity of the work now being done at Central City Mission in Vancouver. The past year has been one of challenge and expansion. No organization can stand still in these changing times and effectively meet the challenge.

The very fine support which the mission has received from Vancouver and other parts of the province has made it possible for us to expand the work of the mission in two very important fields. In each case it has been the realization of a long standing hope, but a hope which had to be deferred until the right person could be found for the job and funds made available to carry it out.

In May of this year Rev. L. McFerran joined the mission as a full time padre. We feel very fortunate in having been able to secure the services of a young man dedicated to this type of Christian work. Again, in January of this year our first boys moved into our Haney ranch, and we are all greatly pleased with the rehabilitation job being done there under the sympathetic and wise direction of the house parents, Mr. and Mrs. Haggerty.

As our province and city grow in population, so the demands on the mission are increased. Our beds are filled to capacity all year. Some 6,000 men were given free clothing. A free breakfast and lunch were provided for six months in the year to an average of some 600 men each day.

Any help you can give us in publicity for our annual appeal commencing Nov. 16 would be greatly appreciated. C.F. Daly, Manager.

Uniform property tax base sought

A uniform base for property taxation throughout British Columbia is being sought by the Union of B.C. Municipalities.

Recognizing that assessment inequalities which exist because of the three present acts, the UBCM's annual convention this year instructed its incoming executive to seek a correction.

The executive proposes to ask the government to form a committee to review the entire question. This committee would recommend such amendments to the Taxation Act, Assessment Equalization Act, and Municipal Act as are necessary to attain "true equalization" throughout the province.

The government will be asked to form a committee comprising representatives from the B.C. Association of Assessors, UBCM, the Assessment Advisory board, plus technical experts from government departments concerned.

Anomalies between the three acts, the convention found, are the chief stumbling block to uniform assessment. Thus, although the legislature has introduced the principle of equalized assessment, these anomalies make the legislation difficult, if not impossible, to interpret.

The Equalization Act, for example, directs assessors to use certain base years when valuing property for school purposes. But these years, and also the percentage of actual value which assessors must work to, are set by order-in-council. They can be changed at any time by the cabinet.

For general purpose taxes, on the other hand, assessors must go by the Municipal Act, which calls for assessment at actual value.

Strict compliance with both acts would mean municipal assessors must draw up two separate tax rolls, one for schools and another for everything else. This would be impractical, very costly, could result in much disagreeable litigation and the utmost confusion to property owners.

The cabinet has promised to do something about the anomalies at the next legislature session. However this is only one of several instances where confusion could be remedied by revised legislation.

The Taxation Act, which lays down assessment procedure for unorganized or provincial territories outside municipal boundaries, is so different from the other two acts that it actually subsidizes rural taxpayers in many instances. Municipal councils, moreover, are not sure that assessments in areas under provincial jurisdiction really live up to the true principles of assessment.

Particularly aggravating are the discrepancies created under the Taxation Act in school districts which lie partly in an unorganized area and partly in a municipality. There are many such districts in the province. In them, municipal property owners bear the full cost of many facilities while their neighbors in unorganized areas — often just across the road — contribute little if anything through their tax bills.

The ridiculousness of the present laws is realized even more so when one notes that courts of revision are appointed by the government for complete school districts.

One day the court sits with powers and rules of the Municipal Act as law, and the next judges assessments under the different law of the Taxation Act. Yet it is all supposed to be for equalization purposes.

Should the assessor and governing authorities of a municipal area wish to appeal a decision of the court of revision, they find a situation in which no appeal can be launched. What is incorrect under the Municipal Act is correct under the Taxation Act.

TREE FROM RUSSIA

The planting of a Siberian crab apple tree at Central Experimental Farm Ottawa, recently, was the occasion for expressions of goodwill towards Canada by Soviet ambassador, A.A. Aroutunian. The envoy donated the tree, flown in from Moscow, as a replacement for the famous berried crab, malus baccata, which stood for approximately 60 years in front of the administration block now known as the Saunders Building.

NATIONAL WEALTH

The four great sources of Canadian wealth are forests, farms, minerals, and water power. The pulp and paper industry uses the water power to convert the forest crop into dollars of national income chiefly obtained from abroad through exports and chiefly paid out in wages.

Here's how TV broadcasts football

COMEDIENNE PAM HYATT hopes her hero, Argo halfback Dick Shatto, will be talked about on CBC television and radio coverage of the Grey Cup game this year.

George Retzlaff, CBC supervising producer of TV sports, must second-guess those "masters of deceit" — football quarterbacks — and most of the time he's right.

When a football game is televised Retzlaff remains outside the stadium in a mobile unit loaded with TV equipment. Before him are several monitors (TV screens), each carrying a different picture of what is happening on the gridiron.

Retzlaff tells the "switcher" which of the pictures to transmit to the network.

To do this he must decide which of the four cameramen he believes is in the best position to cover the next play, and tell him to be prepared to follow the man with the ball.

Here's an example of what might happen during a game. The team forms a huddle to determine the next play. Retzlaff advises camera one, a mobile camera on the sidelines at ground level, to cover the huddle. The switcher sends this picture to the network.

Meanwhile, Retzlaff tries to anticipate whether the quarterback will call a pass or running play, and which player will carry the ball. The score, time remaining in the game and the position of the ball on the field are some of the factors that he must consider.

The actions of some players are also helpful to him.

"Players have certain mannerisms which can tip off the type of play coming up," says Retzlaff. "A man might have a habit of rubbing his hands over his sweater whenever he is to be the intended pass receiver."

Quickly he decides that the team will pass. He informs camera three, high atop the stadium, to be ready to follow the play.

There's an art to following the play, too. The camera must cover the passer until he throws and then, keeping the ball near the top of the picture follow it until it is caught (or missed).

"You can't use one camera to cover the passer and then switch to another showing the receiver," says Retzlaff. "That tends to confuse the viewer and distort his sense of direction."

"The viewer watching at home can see only what is on his screen and too many quick transitions detract from his enjoyment of the game," he continues.

CBC's supervising producer of TV sports is a busy man. On some Saturday afternoons he has to produce a football telecast and then hurry to another part of the city to prepare for an NHL hockey telecast in the evening.

Perhaps Retzlaff's greatest problem is technical breakdowns. On one occasion he was forced to cover the last half of a football game with one camera instead of the usual four.

On Saturday, Nov. 28, he will produce the telecast of Canadian football's yearly classic, the Grey Cup game, for viewers from St. John's Nfld., to Victoria, B.C.

The game, to be played in Toronto, will be carried on all connected stations of the CBC English and French TV networks.

Last year, 4,525,000 Canadians saw the Grey Cup telecast.

Retzlaff's greatest satisfaction came after his first Grey Cup program in 1953. In his calling of the plays he had an average of 100 percent.

You can't do better than that

Hear missionary

Miss Winifred Harris speaking at the thank-offering meeting of the Gibson Memorial United Church told of the five distinct groups of Chinese people with whom she works to educate in our language and ways of life.

The first group is the Canadian born Chinese, then their parents; the Chinese women who came to Canada before China was overcome by Communist rule and those who left after the change, and lastly young men entering Canada now.

Miss Harris went to China in 1921 and was there for 30 years. In 1957 she was appointed by the Women's Missionary Society to the Chinese mission in Ottawa. She is now on a year furlough before retiring after 38 years of service.

Halfmoon Bay notes

By PAT WELSH

Branches of evergreens and gay colored balloons were used to decorate Surtees Hall Nov. 7 when Halfmoon Bay Auxiliary to St. Mary's Hospital held its annual fall bazaar. Mrs. E. Smith, president, in a few well chosen words declared the bazaar open.

The sewing stall did a brisk business and looked attractive with its array of colored aprons knitted goods, towels and dressed dolls. Smart girls bought lavishly of doll clothes at the doll and stuffed animal booth. The fish pond was popular, the moppets proudly exhibiting their catches. The home baking stall was soon depleted of its array of pies, cakes, cookies, and home made fudge. The white elephant stall offered some remarkable bargains in Eric a brac. Bingo was included and during refreshments raffle tickets and door prizes were drawn.

Winner of the knitted car coat was a Mrs. Gorrie of Vancouver and Mrs. Ed Curran second.

Ladies' door prize, Mrs. B. Graves; men's, Mr. E. Surtees. Mrs. M. Tinkley won a beautifully dressed doll. The oil painting by Mrs. E. Brooks sr. was purchased by Mrs. Lloyd Cameron.

Variety store doubles size

Howe Sound 5 and 10 Cent Store in the Bal Block, Marine Drive, Gibsons, has doubled its size and has added a number of lines of products generally unobtainable in Gibsons previously.

The lines which have been added include dry goods, yardage materials, blankets, canaries and cages, goldfish and turtles, also numerous other items. There will be a line of Coult's, greeting cards and other novelty items.

"We have expanded our business because we have confidence in the future of this area," said Percy Lee who with his wife Marion took over the variety store from Mr. and Mrs. J.P. Stewart.

The business was expanded slightly then and after more than one year's operation in Gibsons Mr. and Mrs. Lee decided it would be worth their while to expand into other lines connected with variety stores.

Mr. Lee has been in the variety store business for the last 30 years and at one time was employed by the Woolworth 5 and 10 cent store organization. At one time he operated three stores in Vancouver.

Since coming to Gibsons Mr. Lee has been studying the needs of the community as far as a variety store can serve the people. The result of his studies was to double the size of his store into the present two window front in the Bal Block.

42 classes for retarded children

Unnoticed by most people, a new educational system has been established in B.C. in the past four years.

More than 40 schools or classes for mentally retarded children, including one in Gibsons, have been established by the chapters of the Association for Retarded Children of B.C.

Retarded Children's Week from Nov. 15 to 26 will be marked across Canada and the U.S. draw public attention to the problems of children handicapped by mental retardation.

This year the Association assisted by local chapters will also conduct a province-wide campaign for $200,000 to provide additional services for the children.

Until the B.C. Association was formed, there were no educational facilities for retarded children. They were not permitted to attend public school and so the gap between them and society was made wider.

But now 42 special classes for these children are operated by association chapters throughout B.C. including the one here.

Backed by grants from the B.C. Government and supported by public opinion, the association is proving that mentally retarded children can benefit from education.

Albert Lynn, local campaign chairman said, "They can learn the simple things so essential to modern living — how to care for themselves, how to carry out simple, manual jobs and how, in some cases, to read and write."

"Children once doomed to useless lives are being made into potentially useful people."

The association estimates that

Tolerant musicians

By Archer Wallace

Nearly four centuries ago the English musician, William Byrd, although a Roman Catholic in religion, played the organ in the Anglican cathedral at Lincoln and held the position as organist there during most of his long life. He was one of the best known composers and wrote many notable compositions.

Byrd remained loyal to his own church during his long life but was also happy to make his contribution to the Protestant Church, a service which he said, made him very happy. It is an interesting and inspiring lesson in toleration. What did the musician think about during the sermons? Was he critical or scornful? I do not think so. From all we know about him he was a deeply religious and charitable man, quick to recognize the sincerity of others and eager to do good whenever the opportunity presented itself. And this in a time of much bitterness and intolerance.

I have frequently seen this admirable quality in musicians; scores of times, at the close of a service, soloists, organists and others have calmly told me of their church affiliation which frequently was that of a different viewpoint. Yet they entered into the spirit of the service with reverence and apparent enjoyment. They had no sense of being disloyal to their own church; they had a feeling of being one in basic purpose.

When the famous missionary and musician, Albert Schweitzer was a lad living in Lorraine, where his father was pastor of the local evangelical congregation at Gunsbach, the same building was used by Catholics and Protestants at different hours, a practice which prevailed in Alsace-Lorraine in many districts for a long time. Schweitzer felt that this custom had a salutary effect upon both groups and in his "Memoirs of Childhood and Youth," he has this to say about it:

"One thing more I have taken with me into life from this little church, that the Protestant and Catholic at the same time, I mean religious tolerance. These Catholic-Protestant churches, which had their origin in the irresponsible edict of a ruler, are for me something more than a historical phenomenon. They are a symbol to show that the differences which separate churches today are things which are destined ultimately to disappear. When I was still merely a child, I felt it to be something beautiful that in our village Catholics and Protestants worshipped in the same building, and my heart fills with joy today whenever I set foot inside it. I should like all the churches in Alsace which are still used by both confessions to remain so, as a prophecy of, and an exhortation to, a future of religious unity, upon which we must ever keep our thoughts fixed if we are really and truly Christians."

There seems to be a lot of intolerance in the world today yet I believe it is on the wane in spite of appearance. Several years ago a friend of mine asked me what I liked best in people. I was not prepared for the question but if I were asked now I would have on answer picture of the Roman Catholic, ready. I like toleration. The William Byrd, playing the organ in Lincoln cathedral and those different groups using the same buildings in Alsace-Lorraine, make delightful reading.

Every Canadian has a very direct interest in the woodlands.

Peacetime job for CD

Civil Defence has two functions. Its wartime duties include the safety of civilians during a nuclear attack, and as one phase of this duty, the provincial Civil Defence Co-ordinator is at present distributing survival information to every British Columbia home outside the Greater Vancouver and Greater Victoria districts.

There is also a great need for an active peacetime Civil Defence organization in every community. In the past month when two boys were reported missing on a fishing trip on the Capilano River in North Vancouver, Civil Defence was one of the first groups called out for the search.

A flood, a serious fire, an earthquake, an explosion, or any one of a number of other possible peacetime disasters all indicate the need for a strong Civil Defence disaster organization at the community level.

Personnel are trained in first aid and in the removal of residents from a stricken area and for their care elsewhere. They can assist the regular fire and police organizations, they can spread the warning of approaching danger.

The need for Civil Defence is greater in the smaller communities rather than in the large metropolitan areas.

Peacetime disasters rarely destroy or disrupt more than a small segment of a city with a population of several hundred thousand, and a city is more able to contend with such a disaster through its regular municipal employees.

A similar disaster in a town of 15,000 or less, however, can wipe out a large portion of that community, and regular police, fire and other emergency units are too small to meet the demands that are suddenly thrust on them.

It is here that the functions of Civil Defence are most important. An active, fully trained disaster organization will meet this challenge and avoid unnecessary inconvenience — if not downright discomfort and injury, as was the case in Lanark, Ont., fire in June 1959.

As the provincial Civil Defence co-ordinator puts it: "The training we give our people prepares them for dealing with the major catastrophe of a nuclear explosion. If they are able to handle that kind of a disaster, they are capable of coping with any peacetime disaster that may arise."

UBC enrollment still rising

Enrolment at the University of British Columbia for the 1959-60 session has increased 0.5 percent, figures released by Registrar Jack Parnall show.

A total of 10,570 students registered for the current session compared to 9918 the previous year. Only one faculty — engineering — has shown a significant drop in enrolment from 1416 to 1351.

Registrations in the faculty of arts and science increased by 267 from 4907 to 5172. Enrolment in first year arts increased by only one student to 2136.

The faculty with the largest increase is education where 1819 students registered as compared to 1442 last year — a gain of 377.

The student population is made up of 7553 (71.45%) men and 3017 (28.55%) women.
