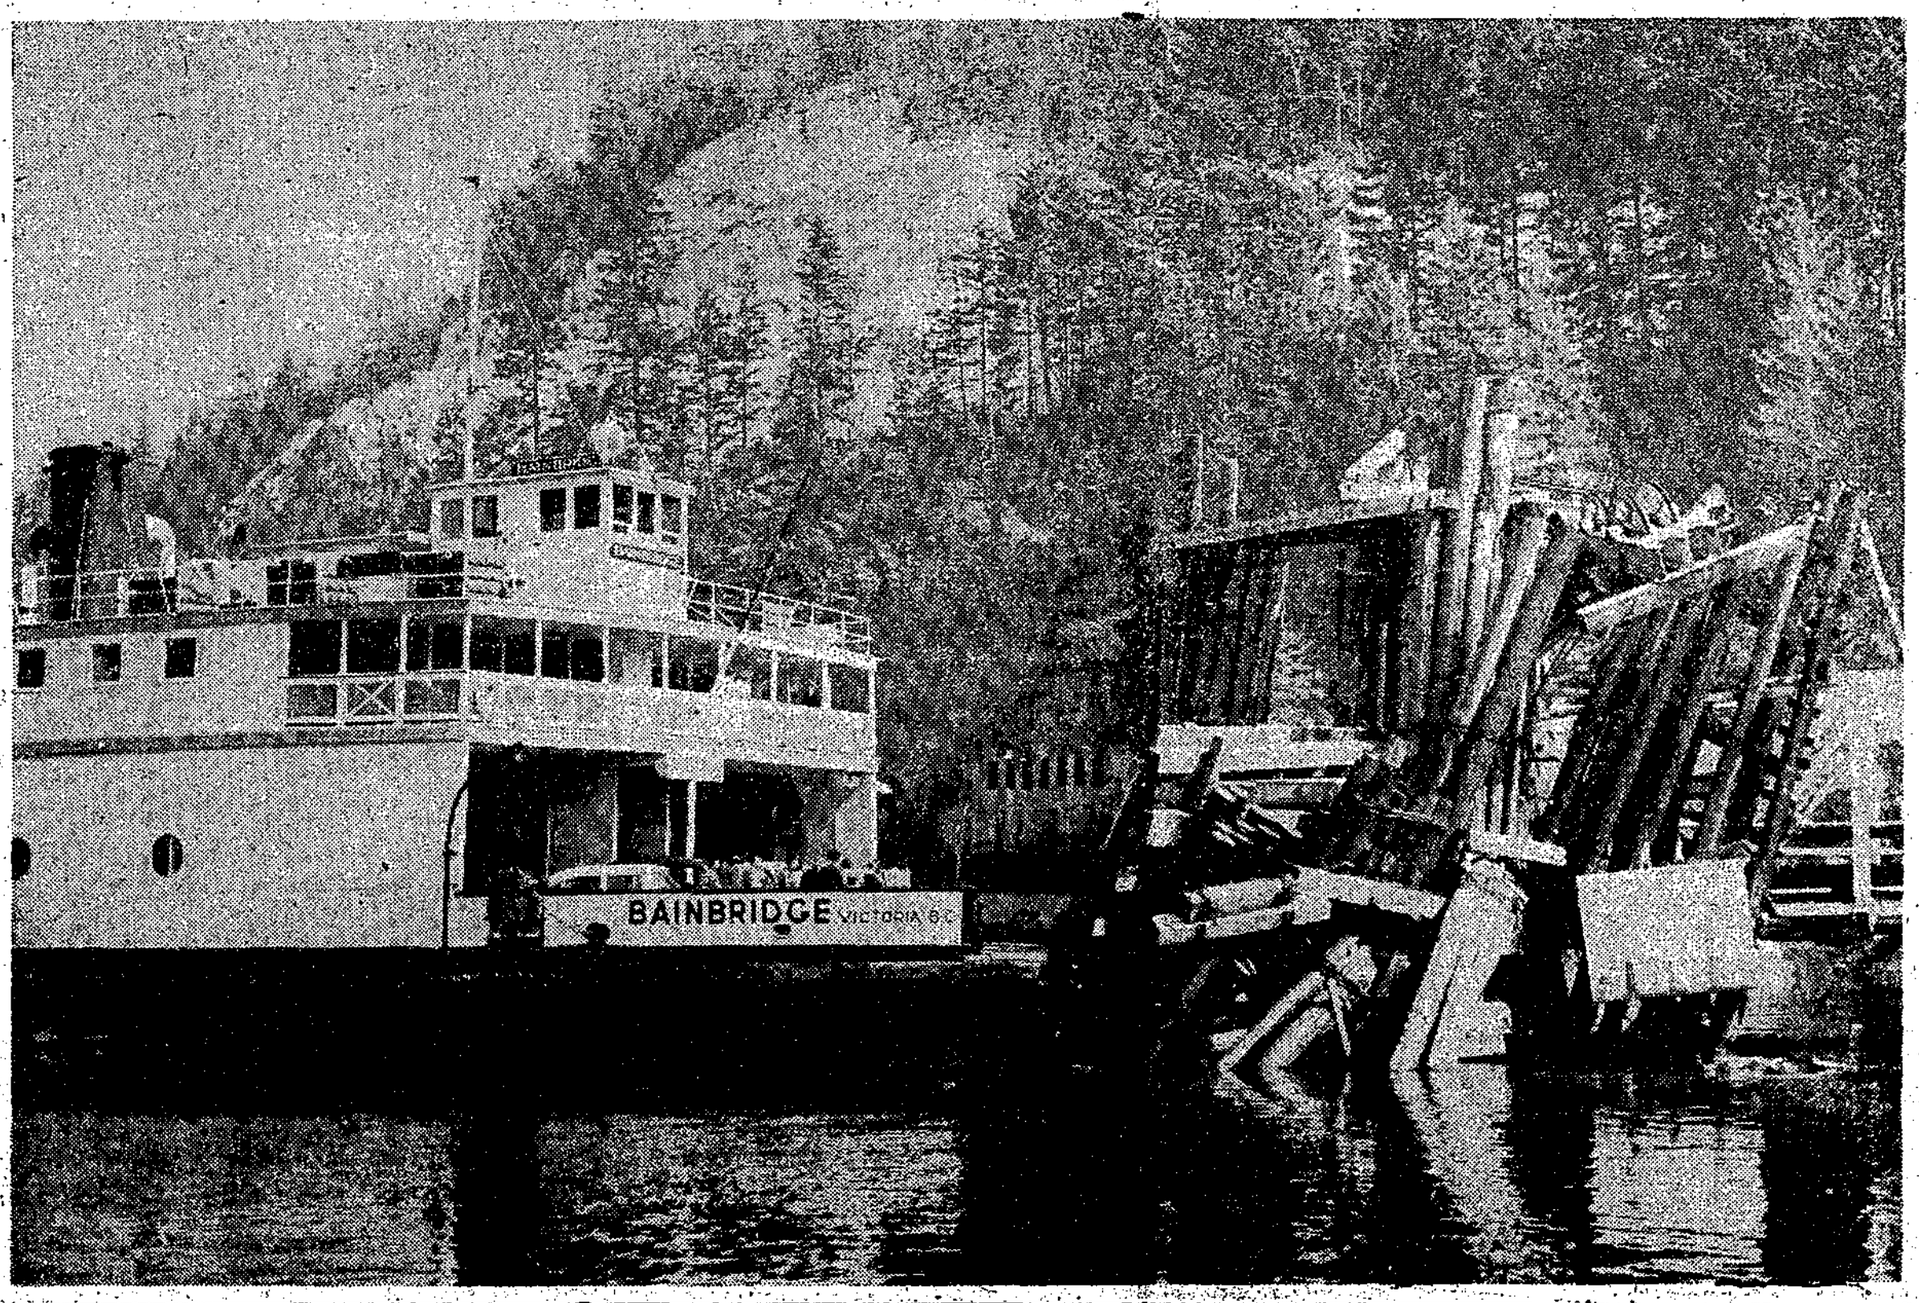
Kahloke hits Horseshoe Bay ferry slip



Picture by Vancouver Sun.

This is what happens when navigational hazards take over and create havoc. The Kahloke was easing in when something went wrong aboard ship and the above was the result. Then the Smokwa had to join in the fray and strike some rocks on entering the bay with the result it was holed and is now in drydock being patched up. While Black Ball Ferries have made no announcement it is expected service will be back to normal over the weekend. Damage to the ferry slip is estimated in the region of $35.000. The resulting confusion created by these accidents makes one realize the importance of the ferry service to the Sunshine Coast.

Cemetery road garbage area turned down by Lands dept.

The lands department of the provincial government has informed the Village Commission by letter it will not allow a garbage disposal to be established on the North Road near the cemetery owing to complaints having been received.

This means the Village Commission is without a garbage area but it has a prospect in sight now under scrutiny.

The Commission read a letter from the Board of Trade asking that something be done about the garbage situation. The board will be informed of the latest developments.

The matter of sanitation at Sylvia's store was again brought to the attention of the commission and after a lengthy and sometimes heated debate the matter was left in the hands of authorities in charge of such matters.

Commissioner Ballentine asked support of the commission with a letter to the liquor control board asking that the present liquor store remain in Gibsons and not be moved outside the village.

Chairman Ritchey and Clerk Robert Burns were selected to attend the Union of B.C. Municipalities convention at Penticton early in October.

Two building permits were issued one to F.E. Velhurst for a $6,000 home and one to L.J. Bezdek to build a $60 workshed.

More lights for Sechelt

At the Sechelt Village Commission meeting Sept. 5 the application to the B.C. Electric Company for seven new lighting poles was accepted for the Village street lighting project.

The clerk was instructed to reply that as the Porpoise Bay wharf is registered as Federal Government property it is removed from village jurisdiction.

The B. of T. will be asked to communicate directly with the Federal Department of Transport and also the Depart- the wharf is used to a great ment of Indian Affairs, since extent by residents of the Sechelt reserve engaged in fishing activities.

The tender by Mr A.F. Gibbons, Wilson Creek, was accepted for painting the new Municipal Hall. The work must be completed by Sept. 15. The same date was set for completion by Peninsula Contractors of alterations.

Trawler blows up

During the heat of the election campaign Clarence Joe of Sechelt had a blowup which cannot be attributed to the political situation.

He and two sons, Terry and Gilbert were on their 38 ft. trawler in Jervis Inlet's Deserted Bay tied at a float when someone stepped on the starter and the vessel just flew apart.

Terry was thrown on to the float and Gilbert who was in the engine housing suffered bad burns. Clarence Joe, the father was apparently unharmed.

The trio were brought to Sechelt on a Walters and Colbert vessel. They were working for that company at the time of the explosion.

Boards meet at Sechelt

The Associated Boards of Trade from the Fraser Valley and the Lower Mainland met on Sept. 12 at Sechelt, where they were entertained at luncheon by the Sechelt Board of Trade. The 70 delegates registered at the Indian Hall where routine business was conducted by F. Wilson, Chilliwack B.C., vice-president of the Associated Boards of Trade, Resolved at the last meeting was that the problem of flooding of the Fraser River be charged to the joint Boards of the Fraser River Federal and Provincial B. of T. The 1955 report from this Board contains information regarding a survey conducted on the flooding problem.

The Richmond delegates strongly protested that sewage from Vancouver be run to Iona Island, Richmond. M. Pearson, president of the Richmond B. of T. asked for the support of the Associated Fraser Valley and Lower Mainland Boards in this issue. Later in the afternoon a sharp exchange between Alderman Miller of Vancouver and Pearson caused President H. Vogel Langley, to suggest that the delegates table the complaints until a further comprehensive study could be made.

The delegates from all parts of B.C. adjourned to the old Union Store in Sechelt for cocktails before meeting at the Legion Hall where a roast plate luncheon was served by Mrs A. Garry and staff.

Seated at the head table were Mrs C. Johnston, Sechelt B. of T. and chairman of the village commission; C.K. Bostock, Vancouver; H. Allen, secretary of the Associated B. of T.; F. Wilson, vice-president; H. Vogel, president of the association, A. Johnston, president Sechelt B. of T., and E. C. for the afternoon session; Alderman Miller, Vancouver; Dr. J. Friesen, University of B.C.; Professor J. Wright, University of Washington; S. Melville, Seattle, Past President of Vancouver B. of T.

The guest speaker, Professor Wright, was introduced by Dr. Friesen, and spoke on the subject of Scientific Community Development on a do-it-yourself basis. He heads a staff of four in the extension dept. of the University of Washington and the main job of these consultants is to help the people of small communities to help themselves by pulling together for the betterment of the whole area.

President Vogel said after the panel discussion of this plan, that strong efforts will be made to have the UBC institute a similar department in their Extension Program.

The Convention adjourned at 5 p.m. to allow the delegates plenty of time to return to the Ferry in Gibsons.

E. Pearson said later that it was all the more evident how much this community needs a hall to accommodate large gatherings of this nature.

President of the Sechelt B. of T., A. Johnston felt that this was the most successful B. of T. convention held in the Lower Mainland and this sentiment was agreed with by the other delegates.

What men these mortals be

The right to criticise through the press has been attacked by Premier Bennett. Apparently there must be no criticism of anything so holy as a Social Credit government, whatever that same means.

Mr. Bennett might as well make up his mind right now that as long as there are editors with enough guts to take a stand, right or wrong, he will have to put up with it.

As long as the present editor of The Coast News is occupying the editorial chair, Social Credit, Liberals CCF, Progressive-Conservatives and any other party in or out of power will have to face criticism when warranted. To suggest everything Mr. Bennett has done is 'holy' is sheer idiocy. Such a bare-faced attitude presupposes a mentality that surely needs examining.

It seems strange that a hardware merchant, gospel preacher, school teacher and so forth when elected assume the mental attitude they are beyond reproach. They should remember they still eat three meals a day at the expense of the taxpayer, do some work with the aid of the large staffs under them and wear clothes like the ordinary mortals who put them into the positions they now hold. Becoming a cabinet minister is not an open sesame to a status beyond the ken of the ordinary voter.

For any newspaper to show fear towards any member of any cabinet means that newspaper is not worth reading. Cabinet ministers can be subjects for respect but they should earn that respect. Maybe the word respect is lacking in Mr. Bennett's type of Social Credit.

He should read the first two principles of the British Columbia Social Credit League constitution. In case the reader is not acquainted with them here they are:

(a) To foster and encourage the universally recognized principles of Christianity in human relationshps.

(b) To ensure responsible and effective democratic government in Canada, so that the people will gain the results they desire from the management of their own affairs.

That phrase 'To ensure responsible and effective democratic government in Canada' seems out of place when we have not a democratic government in British Columbia.

There is another clause in the Socred constitution which Mr. Bennett should learn by heart. It reads: To expose and oppose any attempts to weaken the democratic institutions of the people by means of increased centralization of power.

If power is not centralized in that democratic institution in Victoria known as the legislative buildings will someone please supply us with a better example?

Mr. Bennett will have to be a man and face up to his job and to the job any publication has to do. If he does not want criticism it could be suggested he move to Samoa where he can set up his own government there without the fear of any newspaper 'smearing' him.

Earn some respect, Mr. Bennett and maybe the smears will not be so pronounced. You were once a hardware merchant only and not a premier and a hardware merchant. The day will come when you will once again be a hardware merchant.

This editorial was written Sunday night long before any election results were known.

BETWEEN OURSELVES

THE SPRINGS OF LOVE

In the works of the poet Dante there is an account of his first meeting with Beatrice and her subsequent influence upon him that has few parellels in all liturature. Dante knew that this influence was essentially spiritual. For him Beatrice was God's holy messenger to his troubled and lonely soul, leading him through darkness to the light of God 's love. Furthermore, it led him, as this passage shows, to a deeper love for all mankind. The meeting took place at a May festival in 1274 and here is the poet's comment:

'From that time forward love quite governed my soul . . . And here it is fitting for me to depart a little from this present matter, that it may be rightly understood of what surpassing virtue her salutation, that no man was my enemy any longer; and such warmth of charity came upon me that most certainly in that moment I would have pardoned whosoever had done me an injury; and if one should then have questioned me concerning any matter, I could have said until him, Love, with a countenance clothed in humbleness.'

The writer once talked with a rough lumberman in the backwoods of Northern Ontario. This man was trying to express what religion had done for him, what it meant to him. 'It makes me love everybody.' he said, 'even the folk who don't like me.' This lumberman was separated from Dante by nearly seven centuries; he lived in a land thousands of miles distant, and yet his experience was subtantially the same. There is not room enough in any heart for both hove and hate. When love comes it expels envy and distrust and every form of animosity. 'We love,' wrote the apostle. 'because he first loved us.' He wrote that in an age when savage hate unleashed every form of diabolical cruelty and the dark shadow of persecution fell across every Christian assembly.

In 'Drums in the Darkness,' Dr. John Tucker, who lived for over 30 years in the Chissamba area, tells of moral miracles wrought in that dark land which rekindle faith in the power of the gospel and in human nature which can respond to its appeal. One of the Ovimbundu children was named Kanjudo, a sensitive lad with royal blood in his veins. His amazing courage and prowess as a hunter of wild beasts caused his fame to spread, and he was invited by the people of a distant village to become their chief. So the young man became a chief honored and loved by his people, who named him 'Hosi' (lion).

He was wise in ruling but, at the same time, a stern disciplinarian and he followed the tradition of his ancestors. In 1898 Kanjudo was converted to Christianity and the story of the years that follow until his death in 1913 is one of deep humility and love for all men, love so full and rich that Kanjudo must be regarded as a saint of modern days.

• • •

After his conversion he freed slaves, built new homes for his people, established schools, procured medical assistance, and made his village a center of missionary work for the whole district.

Soon trouble arose. Near his village a trader had done a flourishing business in rum. Now the moral change meant that his gain ceased. This man burned his own house and, in connivance with some others who schemed with him, blamed the chief for the destruction. By utterly false accusations he succeeded in having Kandudo arrested and cast into jail. During his absence his enemies attempted to burn the church and his home. Every cruelty and indignity was heaped upon him and the damp, filthy cell into which he was flung did much to shorten his life.

Throughout it all he bore himself with Christian fortitude and with such sweetness of spirit that even his jailors were amazed as well as impressed. Friends in Canada raised sufficient money to secure for him a fair trial and a Portuguese judge acquitted him. His return home was an amazing event for the Ovimbundu people. Bells rung and no conqueror of old ever received a greater ovation. Throngs of people shouted welcome and his ex-slaves knelt in the dust at his feet. For days there was prayer and thanksgiving in the village. Throughout it all Kanjudi bore himself with the humility of a child. 'Let there be no revenge against the trader.' he said, no doubt sensing the temper of his people. 'We must love him and pray for him.'

Think of it, an African, with generations of savage blood in his veins, pleading thus for his enemy. How well that native of Africa understood the mood of Dante: 'No man was my enemy any longer; and such warmth of charity came upon me that most certainly in that moment I would have pardoned whosoever had done me injury.'

End of a perfect day!

Meet George Rusanov, one of many independent truck operators helping to build new docks for Canada's St. Lawrence Seaway. The slip he holds in his hand represents more than just another load delivered. It tells how his GMC W-9900 carries this 14½-ton load for 25 miles over the roughest, toughest of roads—and does it six, seven, eight times a day. But it doesn't tell how that load, pounded down into his truck from the hopper above, gave it a real workout. George doesn't worry about that. He has confidence in his truck, it's a GMC . . . built to take the toughest kind of punishment and deliver the goods—when and where you want them. You can have this easy kind of confidence too, with a custom-created GMC—built for the job you have to do.

See your GMC dealer now!

Ready for the first load! The gates open and this GMC just sits there — sturdy and solid! 14½-tons of limestone is a heavy load . . . but this W-9900 was built to take it!

The load delivered! George's GMC W-9900 is a stand-out performer, helping to push this dock out into the lake. In every way, GMC trucks outdo 'em all!
