Tyee Air's Beaver float plane met a sad fate in Gibsons Harbour Wednesday when it hit the partiallyconstructed breakwater and sank on take-off. Pilot Fred Foster and one young passenger were pulled from the chilly water unharmed but damage to the plane may come to $50,000.

Plane hits new breakwater

Tyee crashes in Bay

Early Wednesday morning at 8 a.m., April 14, Tyee Air flight 101 crashed into the new breakwater as it taxied to depart from Gibsons Harbour and sank minutes later.

The seven-passenger Beaver, flown by Fred Foster, a pilot with eight years experience, received damage to the floats from the new rock mound breakwater under construction in the harbour.

Foster and one passenger on the flight, a young girl, were uninjured and were able to escape the sinking plane with the help of boaters and fishermen in

Al Campbell, owner of Tyee Air, told the Coast News that the pilot was not at fault, because the in-complete breakwater was submerged during high tide at the time of the accident and did not appear to be adequately marked.

Damage to the $100,000 Beaver, which is owned by Campbell under a lease-purchase agreement, is estimated to be between $35,000 and $50,000. The engine will have to be replaced and water damage to the instruments and radio will require an overhaul,

According to Larry Fix, insurance adjustor, a claim would be made against the Department of Transport and the Federal Department of Public Works, who have the contract to build the new breakwater.

"There are laws regarding markings and warnings in construction situations and it appears that they were not being enforced by the Department of Transport," said Fix.

Walk to protest nuclear arms

by John Burnside

An apparently fast-rising tide of international protest against nuclear weapons is beginning to lap at the shores of the West Coast of Canada.

The new tide of protest first manifested itself in Europe with mass demonstrations against the placement of intermediate range missiles on that subcontinent. The enormous increase in the American military budget with the new emphasis on 'first strike' weaponry has swelled the tide with secular and church leaders all over the world warning that the very survival of the human species is in serious

Beach at 12 noon and the rally is scheduled for 2:00

The 'Walk for Peace' is supported by trade unions, churches, and groups representing community, environment, ethnic, student, women and peace in-

Material published and distributed by organizing groups calls for the abolishment of nuclear weapons to fund human needs. Quoting from United Nations statistics, the material points out that one F-14 fighter costs as much as nine schools; that one aircraft carrier is the equivalent of one hydropower station; that one Leopard tank costs as much as 36 hree-room apartments; that one exercise for a tank battalion could supply enough money for 28 kindergartens; that the money spent on one Trident submarine could supply a year's schooling for 16 million children; and that one MX ICBM costs as much as five hospitals.

The organizers of the 'Walk for Peace' urge that those concerned about the recent accelerations in the nuclear arms race should, in addition to making public their concerns in the 'Walk for Peace', write to the Prime Minister and their member of parliament insisting that Canada work for positive action at the United Nations Special Session on Disarmament in June and demand also that Canada be a nuclear weapons-free zone.

Other actions recommended are joining or starting a local peace group and sending donations to 'End the Arms Race', P.O. Box 69316 Station K, Vancouver V5K 4W5.

Larger ferry, fewer sailings

rry change in J

Officials of the B.C. Ferry Corporation met with representatives of both village councils and the regional board Wednesday to outline proposed cuts and changes in ferry service to the Coast. The Corporation's delegation, led by Board Chairman Stuart Hodgson and General Manager George Baldwin, told local government representatives that major changes in ferry service will begin in June.

In his opening remarks, Corporation Chairman Hodgson said that falling traffic and reduced government substitutes and led in generate to the chairman hodgson said that falling traffic and reduced government substitutes and led in generated to the chairman hodgson said that falling traffic and reduced government substitutes and led in generated to the chairman said the chairman substitute and the chairman substitute and the chairman substitute and the chairman substitute and the chairman statement and ent subsidies make it necessary for management to reduce fuel consumption on the ferries, to reduce scheduled and unscheduled overtime and to make better use of manpower. Currently, he said, over 75 per cent of the Corporation's costs are in wages (56 per cent) and fuel (23 per cent),

"We must find a way to provide the most efficient operation possible for the sake of our shareholders, the taxpayers of B.C., while at the same time giving our users the best service available."

In offering specific suggestions for the Sunshine Coast (Route 3), General Manager George Baldwin said that beginning in June, the Queen of Coquitlam, a Class C ferry with 250 car capacity will be used on the Horseshoe Bay - Langdale run. The truck ferry Queen of Alberni will be used to supplement the run and will make four trips to Langdale daily.

Mr. Baldwin initially suggested that the schedule will have to be cut and the only place he could see cutting was the last ferry from Horseshoe Bay, the 11:20 p.m.

Under strong pressure from all of the local officials at the meeting, Baldwin was able to make some concessions and propose a schedule that appeared to solve the questions raised.

Local officials were unanimous in maintaining that whatever else occurred, three principal criteria had to be met: the first sailing from Langdale in the morn-ing must be maintained; the schedule must meet the needs of commuters returning in the late afternoon, and the last ferry must be kept on.

Regional board directors Stelck, Hunter and Mc-mayors Koch and Goddard and Gibsons alderman Edney were particularly forceful in insisting that the life style of the Sunshine Coast depended on ac-cess to Vancouver and many citizens depended on the last sailing from Horseshoe Bay.

Guided by their suggestions, Baldwin re-calculated the proposed Summer and Winter schedules.

Works yard wins out over Arts Centre

The Sunshine Coast Arts Centre and the Village of Sechelt Works Yard have not resolved their conflict over the expansion of the two facilities.

At the last Sechelt council meeting, April 7, it was decided to proceed with the construction of a large storage building for the Sechelt Works Yard. The decision was made to put the new building at the existing site, despite a request in writing from the Arts Council to remove the Works Yard to allow the planned expansion of the Arts Centre building.

The Arts Council asked the village to meet in a "spirit of consultation" to discuss the future needs of the two facilities after a fence was built by Sechelt village too close to the Arts Centre to allow safe operation of the fire door exit.

The existing lease between the village, which owns the properties, and the Arts Council states that the village would use part of the site temporarily for the Works Yard until a more suitable, permanent location for the Works Yard can be found.

The Regional Board offered the use of part of the sewage plant site for the Sechelt village's outdoor storage requirements. However, the village has decided to go ahead with the construction of a larger storage building at the Arts Centre site. Sechelt village Public Works chairman Alderman

Les Brown told the Coast News that the reason the new building would not be built at the sewage treat-ment plant site was because part of the site would be needed for future expansion of the sewage facility.

Brown said the new storage building was necessary for the storage of the village tractor, cleaning equipment and Christmas tree lights. He said it would be a temporary structure and could be moved in the future to a permanent location.

Arts Council president Burrell Swartz told the Coast News that the village's new building would "severely interfere with the Arts Centre's plans for expansion" and that a request would be made to Sechelt village to ask for co-operation with the Arts Council to discuss the future expansion needs of both

SCRD tendering criticized again

The SCRD this week received a letter from a local contractor criticizing 'the method, or lack of method' employed by the regional board in calling for tenders for garbage dump contracts recently.

Bob Bjornson of D & B Excavating was critical of several apparent discrepancies in the approach of the largest local government to the tendering of contracts for public works. In part, Bjornson's letter made the following

a) The tender called for separate contracts for the Sechelt and Pender Dumps. Two or more bidders did not comply but submitted combined bids;
b) Two bidders who did not comply with the tender forms were allowed to rebid while knowing other prices on their second bid.

c) Machine size became a consideration but was not said to be in the tender.

d) Trenching was not mentioned in the tender form but became a prime consideration in the letting of the

Bjornson noted the contractors submitting bids do so in good faith at the contractors submitting bids do so in good faith at the expenditure of both their own time and money. "If the tender process is not held to be both judicious and fair...you might as well select your contractor and pay him his price, whatever it might be."

The controversy over the letting of public contracts by the SCRD follows an investigation by the RCMP into allegations of other irregularities by the staff of the regional board.

Cooper's Green

Another public hearing will be held on the Cooper's Green re-zoning from R - 1 to Commercial following a request from the Ministry of Municipal Affairs.

The Regional Board has not provided sufficient advertis ing regarding the re-zoning bylaw and Municipal Affairs has expressed reluctance to proceed with the by-law.

Ken was visiting his father in Bargain Harbour in Madeira Park last week when he found $1800 worth of photographic equipment in the Ruby area. As a result, you should get your Coast News in your mail box on Monday. If, for some reason, the paper is arriving late, please contact us, at 886-2622 or your local postmaster.

We are involved

The readers of the Coast News will find our support of the walk of protest against nuclear arms, in Vancouver this Saturday, consistent with our long-held and often-expressed views on the subject of nuclear arms. Details of the walk appear on a front-page story.

Nowhere is the truth that we here on the West Coast live in a kind of lotus land of unreality more evident than on the subject of nuclear weapons and the next war. We seem to feel that we are far from the places where such unpalatable issues have to be considered.

How else can we understand the refusal recently of the Gibsons

Municipal Council to have the question on their ballot forms? How else can we explain that the reaction of the local public was so very apathetic when the village council in Sechelt did ask the question.

And yet the Trident submarine base in north-western Washington state must be considered a priority target in the event of nuclear war and we are told that such is the devastating power of modern weaponry that we and our loved ones here on the Sunshine Coast would be largely destroyed. And that 'them that dies would be the

We can only say again that the recent acceleration in the arms race threatens the survival of the species in a way no other situation ever has. The time for apathy and illusion is over.

With only a month left to file for Sechelt village and regional board elections, the prospective candidates have been conspicuous only by their absence. The Sunshine Coast has many skilled and experienced people, many of whom are retired, who could make a valuable contribution to local government.

We have a very special environment here on the Coast and if we are to maintain it we will need experienced, tolerant and reasonable men and women to guide our future. If ever there was a time to stand up and be counted, this is it.

On public transit

There are some simple facts to consider over the next couple of weeks before a decision is made to expand the public transit service. Aside from its cost, $58,000 in direct taxes locally, $111,000 of Urban Transit Authority funds and the rest through fares, will the bus service do the job it is supposed to?

The regional board asked the UTA to design a system "To give precedence to the travel requirements of senior citizens, youths, the handicapped and seasonal weekend commuter resident".

Currently, the service does an admirable job of catering to the needs of seniors and the handicapped. The mini-bus provides custom - door to door service and a fixed schedule. There does not appear, based on use figures, to be a significant rising demand from those people now

The new proposal will do nothing to help our youths. Evening movies, visits to friends at night will continue to generate teenage hitch-hikers.

The fact is that given our population and the nature of our geography, a bus service that would really make a difference is simply ot economically possible.

To give people the impression that expansion of the present minibus service will make it easier to get around on the Coast; that we will be transformed into a public transport community; that our young people will be protected; is terribly misleading.

The regional board faces a tough decision on this issue.

The last time I was part of a mass walking movement was in Glasgow around 1947. It was the Scottish Cup Semi-Final between Glasgow Rangers and Hibernian of Edinburgh. Led by my elder brother I was one of about 147,000 people who made their way through the streets of Glasgow towards Hampden Park for the big match.

It was, in every sense, a moving experience God knows. There was a stir and a sense of purpose and the closer the crowds came to their destination the denser they became. Hurrying men, seeking favoured places on the terraces, quickened their pace at every corner and at every corner the crowds thickened and the pace quickened.

There was a sense of anticipation as the sea of anticipation as the sea of cloth caps which were the fashion of the time and place hurried towards the great bowl of the soccer stadium.
Inside the stadium, there was the unforget-

It's a sad fact that drunks tend to lack credibility even they are right.

It is not circumstances and geography alone which have kept me from protest marches. I have a wariness about the chemistry of people in masses. If newsreels of the Nuremberg rallies teach us anything, they teach us that mass hysteria is a dangerously malleable force.

Nonetheless I am going to be there. If the possible death of our species which we protest is to come about I don't want to go without uttering some public squeak of protest, no matter how ineffectual.

If the end is to be avoided I intend to be able to boast to my grandchildren that some of the credit is shared by their grandfather, no place with many charms matter how insignificant.

Skepticism is a valuable commodity in the newspaper business and there was a great deal to be skeptical about during last week's Constitution gala in Ottawa. The most deplorable piece of non-sense was the federal government's spending of three million dollars on an ad campaign to sell the constitution to the Canadian public. We even got a piece of the action - the ad on page 12 of this week's Coast

News. Then there is the prospect of the working of the Constitution and in particular the Charter of Rights (see Wayne Rowe's column this week). It has been said that the Supreme Court will be tied up for two years interpreting the Charter. "Everyone has the right to life, liberty and security of the per-son..." says our Charter. Great stuff - but imagine the fight we're going to have between the anti-abortionists and those who support freedom of choice. Somebody said the Charter was written by lawyers as a way of guaranteeing lawyers work for the next several

Despite the skepticism however, the whole thing is probably worth it. If the constitution had remained in Britain there would always have been some lingering sense of dependence on Britain -certainly more imagined than real. I've never given much thought to what it means to be a Canadian and I guess now I'll have to get around to thinking about positive thing that came out of last week's celebration was something Queen Elizabeth said. I'm definitely not a monarchist, but I'll admit to a soft spot for the Queen. She said in her speech, what were probably the most impor-tant words uttered in the cascade of verbiage surrounding the glories and wonders of owning our very own constitution.

She used the words
'tolerance' and
'reason' in talking about Canada and Canadians.

I have a pile of books and brochures and posters on my desk right now, filled with tens of thousands of words writ-ten by politicians and bureaucrats telling what it means to be a Canadian. I'd like to read them - someday. But the only words I'm likely to remember out of the whole grand affair are those words spoken by our Queen "tolerance and reason".

Economy gurus at odds

The very 'popularity' of the Falkland crisis is an interesting phenomenon. To account for it is easy. The simplicity, the 'High Noon' ir-revocable showdown between good guys and bad guys, and the exotic isolated nature of the area involved, are all a great relief from more mundane, more complex

However, when we have stopped identifying with the British "tars" on their way to free their we will come back to the most pressing problems facing the Western in dustrialized world. These problems are economic and can be expressed by two words: inflation and unemployment.

What are the causes for these two great bug-bears that are afflicting the economic life of the world? Surely one of the great human freedoms is the ability to control the source of one's income, to be secure in knowing that the necessities and the luxuries can be paid for. The threat of no employment for the worker and the threat of rapidly devaluing money for the capitalist spreads insecurity and fear and, if allowed to progress, as happened in Germany in the '20s and '30s, can lead to people supporting extreme solutions.

Unfortunately the price for economic security is so often paid by other freedoms.

There is a major division among non-Marxist economists as to the reasons for the present situation. The disagreement centres around the 'Market'.

One group of economists, led by Milton Friedman, believes that the causes lie in interference, by government in par-ticular, with the forces of the free market. In their view, if the laws of supply and demand were allowed to function in an unfettered manner then a natural equilibrium would exist between supplier and producer in the industrial world. The suggestion for government, from these neo-classical or monetarist economists, is to get out economists, is to get out of the market as much as possible: Cut taxes, balance budgets, get rid of restrictive legislation, curb the power of unions. Once this happens the economy will right itself.

The opponents to the neo-classicists, called the Keynesians, led by J.K. Galbraith, maintain that this is a dangerous simplification of the real nature of the world's industrial economy.

Firstly, in their view, there has never been a Please turn to Page 8

Something to hide?

I am very upset by the manner in which the manner in which the Gibsons Village Council has handled the publicity concerning the Public Hearing concerning rezoning land in The Bay Area (portions of Dougal, Prowse and Bay Roads, around the Boat Roads - around the Boat Launching Ramp). The Village wants them rezoned to "Comprehensive Marine Zone 2" -which gives them a wide scope in developing, as it means that hotels, light industries, etc. could be put in the middle of that residential area.

Letters about the Public Hearing taking place on April 13, 1982, place on April 13, 1982, were sent to the people whose lots were directly affected and a notice put in the "Vancouver Sun". No notices were put in the local papers. (Who would think to look in The Sun for a local meeting?) At the local meeting?) At the April 13th meeting Council admitted there hadn't been enough publicity and had decidto hold another Public Hearing onMonday, 26th April at 7:30 p.m. For this meeting they have put an ordinary ad under the "Legal" column of The Press (with no map). They are not going to run the ad in the Gibsons located Coast News. Usually notices of Public Hearings runs for a couple of weeks and the announcements are "boxed with an accompanying explanatory map. Why is this not being done?

Personally I am disap pointed that the elected council doesn't seem to want to keep the local residents of Gibsons properly informed and have their input in matters of public interest such as he above-mentioned

How will hall be used?

by Jeanie Norton 886-9609

As the new hall/gymnasium becomes a physical reality, the question of how the facility will be run becomes of more immediate concern. Many people are pessimistic about the partnership with the School Board and feel that the community will have little to say in the matter of scheduling and use.

But the Joint Use Agreement provides for a facility committee with equal representation from the School Board and the community to supervise the use of the facility. This is important as, according to the Agreement, "it shall be the function of such committee to establish community priorities and goals for the Joint Use Facility and to Safeguard money and possessions next Sunday afternoon. New acquaintance can't be trusted over cash deal. Those born April 25 - 26 gain even more weight next twelve

GEMINI (May 21 - June 21)

You'll reveal a well-kept secret and feel better. Now's the time to admit to all previous wrong doings. Try not to exaggerate your excuses. Shocked person will be in a forgiving mood. Career-related partnership proposal must be triple-checked. Moon in your sign Sunday coincides with a sudden change in your appearance.

CANCER (June 22 - July 22)

Sorry, but your latest long-range goal may be hopelessly out of reach. Friends' encouragement is flattering but unrealistic. Re-direct your enthusiasm into less selfish community project. Soon-to-arrive messages from far away will need careful scrutiny. Sunday's sudden involvement with sick person proves your doubted friendship.

LEO (July 23 - August 22)

Resist urge to flaunt your recent accomplishments. Conceit and arrogance could damage your local reputation. Superior will resent your pompous statements. Real motivation behind current romantic link has to be uncovered. Friend you've not seen for years drops by Sunday afternoon. VIRGO (August 23 - September 22)

Your self-righteous viewpoints now bore others to tears. You have too much to say about educational matters or international problems. Friends suspect your cheerful and changed approach to daily affairs. Public standing receives an unusual jolt Sunday. Realize loved one is planning a cunning domestic

Social or romantic developments become deceptive. Phone call Sunday concerns unforeseen financial unset concerns unforeseen financial upset. SAGITTARIUS (November 23 - December 21)

Passing health upset is result of over-indulgence, ignoring doctor's advice. It's crucial you stick with dietary programme. Have ear, nose or throat irritation checked out. Careless procedure or showing-off where you work produces near accident. Mate's weird behaviour silences everyone Sunday. CAPRICORN (December 22 - January 19)

Social life becomes noisy and extravagant. Latest companions are everything you'd like to be. Resist urge to waste your money on passing pleasures. Avoid new, risky ventures. Younger person presents yet another wild scheme. Romantic message is pure bumf. Health upset Sunday involves arms, chest or

AQUARIUS (January 20 - February 18)

Accent is on ambitious domestic plans. Don't rush new activities where you live, especially structural or decorative changes. Promise nothing to other household members. Have lawyer double-check property papers. Anticipate innocent mix-up over friend's expenses. Social outing Sunday is cancelled

PISCES (February 19 - March 20)
Your mental state becomes more optimistic. Others find you extra talkative and full of positive suggestions. It's the right time to make daring short-distance enquiries. Venus in your sign attracts drifters, dreamers, users and losers. You'll have to tolerate an unwelcome house-guest this weekend.

Kinsmen Club of Gibsons and District Sponsors:

The Rocky Vasalino Show combines song, dance, comedy '50s styles and hairdos with nostalgic rock 'n roll, a fine example of the professional entertainment Elphie's Cabaret is able to bring to the Sunshine Coast.

Rocky rocks Gibsons

by Vene Parnell

Rock 'n Roll is here to stay. So is Rocky Vasalino, greasy hair, Chan-tilly Lace, Blue Suede Shoes and Elphie's Cabaret, if they keep bringing in the kind of show that rocked music lovers off their feet in Gibsons last week

Advertised as a musical production, a '50s re-vival, a nostalgia tour, and an introduction to the powerhouse years of "real rock" for those of us who are too young to remember, The Rocky Vasalino Show is a name to remember.

Energetic performers, the six musicians, complete with '50s wardrobes, rock, swing, do comedy, vocalize in the best traditions of the Beach Boys, Sha Na Na, the Coasters, Buddy Holly, Chuck Berry, Elvis Presley and everyone else you ever heard of, and play, play and play.

All you have to do is sit back and be entertained. Audiences last week for the six evening shows Monday to Saturday, in-cluded many of the '50s vintage, as well as the young people who came to see just how real rock 'n roll happened way back then. You recall satin lapels, the Duke of Earl, Hep-Cats and Cool Daddy-O's, don't you, dear?

And there were no disappointed faces. It was smiles all round, with au-dience participation in the Bacon Fat walk, a living image of the one and only, great Elvis, complete with embroidered jump-suit, and some original humour by the irrespresible Animal of Muppet fame

"Honey, have you got any Animal in you? Would you like some?" Rocky Vasalino and his group, they are usually seven, are tight serious musicians and their professional show has done the tour from Las Vegas to the Yukon.

In the three years they have been together, Rocky's group has been on the road almost con-stantly, "48 weeks of the Home-based in Bellingham, Washington, they are the only band of their type working the west coast and spend about half of their time entertaining in Canada. They love Canada and say they find audiences more appreciative, here. Everyone sings. Ted and Jim Neufeld play drums and take turns as front-singers, Andy Sodt plays a smooth sax, Gary Smith does guitar, Bob Baker is on keyboard and newcomer Jim Carrington plays bass. The key word is "show" and concentration is on a close reproduction of the full '50s sound when a band was a band, that's why the group is looking for another saxophone player to replace recently-retired member Dave Link.

spin-off from Charlie and the Seniors, the '50s group expanded into the larger version of Rocky and the Asteroids until the idea for The Rocky Vasalino Show was born and there has been no looking back since. Sights are being set on the Las Vegas circuit, where the money is good and the group can look forward to a bit of a break from the constant touring.

And the most essential ingredient of their suc-cess? Gallon jars of bacon fat, vasoline, Brylcreem? No folks, it's called Joy Gel and the guys don't know where they would be without it.

The gentleman on the left is none other than Relic.

The Beachcombers eleventh season got off to a hectic start. The decision to remodel Molly's Reach at the start of the season meant the production crew had to have as many scenes to work on as possible at other locations.

This in turn meant that at the start of this month two segments of the popular series were being worked on simultaneously, culminating in the special stunt which saw a car being driven through the front of the Reach to justify the remodelling. By the Easter weekend this meant the crew had been working non-stop for several days. After six days off over Easter they have just wrapped up the first two shows of the season. Family Christmas and Never Can Say goodbye were both written by frequent contributor Jan Nablov and directed by veteran CBC director

Ken Jubenville.

Last week's filming saw Lower Road in Roberts Creek being the locale for a middle of the night chase scene which, when the show is stitched together, will lead to the dramatic crash into the

What is gray and dreary and depressing and is all around us? The Sunshine Coast in spring, ...right? Well, it seems that way sometimes. For a cheerier slant on things, try dropping into the Arts Centre in Sechelt during these days of April showers for a relaxing browse through its newest show titled: Nowscapes - Variations on the Land and Sea of the Sunshine Coast.

The centre is featuring the original work of 20 Coast artists who have captured the feeling of our very own Sunshine Coast in 20 very different ways.

The artwork was chosen from 58 juried show submissions by local artists and covers a very wide range of styles and subjects.

There are the familiar Coast names such as Vivian Chamberlin, Fran Ovens, Burrell Swartz, Trudy Small, Robert Jack, Nancy Angermeyer and others, who have given us some new visual effects to enjoy. Also, as a special sor-ing treat, some new names have surfaced bringing a promise of more good things to come from the Sunshine Coast creative community.

Overall, the show gives the slightly disjointed impression of too many strong patterns in one small space. one small space.
However, individually, the artwork is most enjoyable and because of the large variety of styles, requires time for individual appreciation of each item. of each item.

Naturally, personal favourites will emerge and the beauty of the show is that there will be something for everyone to enjoy.

Ruth Roy has created small, detailed oil landscapes that recall the picturesque English countryside prints of the 19th century. Heidi Lambert and Robert Jack display their fine watercolour technique, both unique, yet both so capable and talented. Burrell Swartz has a strong blue "Sky, Mountain, Sea" painting that has in it all the pieces of driftwood, rope and paste to create a relief effect in his oil painting titled "Wrecked Beach". Selia Karsten is free-spirited and in-novative in her 3-dimensional wood and paint "West Coast Trip-tych" and her timely mixed-media reproduc-tion titled "Rain in Roberts Creek."

Susan Wolpert has created a fairy tale cottage out of cut paper that is impressive in its detail and control. Phil Makow has a pen and ink draw-ing of Coast foliage in an ing of Coast foliage in an effective graphic design.

A colour photograph of a crude campsite by Howard Small is both ronantic and powerful. Nancy Angermeyer has black and white photographs of pilings at low tide with figures among them, showing another imaginative side to her creative talents. to her creative talents.

Pat Chamberlin has a strong green abstract painting titled "The Road Home", also a new artistic development for that artist.

There are seagulls and local scenes, such as Sargeant's Bay by Peggy Connors. An interesting collection, and a good way to enjoy our Sunday.

The Jolly Roger Inn is now closed completely with its future still uncertain.

Economy gurus at odds

Continued from Page 2 situation where government played a purely neutral role in the economic life of nation states. Secondly, the many suppliers and many buyers situation does not exist. They see the market as split between many small firms ween many small firms following the supply-demand law, but point out that at least 50 per cent of the economies of OECD (Organization for Economic Co-operation and Development - contains all major industrial non-Communist countries) is operated by large cartels, oligopolies or monopolies.

Firms such as IBM,

General Renault, Fiat or General Motors, do not have to and react market forces. A major sector of their costs is labour and, with highly concentrated, powerful unions putting pressure on them, their ability to control price means that they can merely hand over this cost pressure to their buyers. They point out to the inflationary effects of the OPEC price rises in the 1970s as being the classic example of this ability to control

Which of these two views is most accurate? Are there others which may give a clear understanding of our present dilemma? Where does unemployment fit into this? We will have a look at those next week.

The Secretary and Treasurer gave their respective reports, followed by in-service news. The number of volunteer hours worked by our ladies does not vary much from month to month. Though holidays and sickness take their toll, the average is always good. Well done, ladies. During the Beatnick period or nouveau Bohemian era in literature, it was fashionable to end novels abruptly. Readers were to con-which pervades their tales stays with one for some time after the last page is turned.

Saul's other novels, typical New England ghost stories, are entertaining, but Punish the

it's easy to tell it's Spring. Multiplication is the craze of the day. Last week it was cobwebs, this week it's the fridge. My small son often opens the fridge door and says in puzzlement. "Mummy, the light's gone out again". But it can't fool me any more. I now know what's going on behind the closed door. There in the dank it's up to evil things any old time of the day or night, and now that Spring has come, it's at it twice as hard. "'At what?" you shudder. Have you not noticed that the number of little plastic dishes full of odds and ends is growing? I opened my fridge door the other morning after one of those hot Spring days followed by a cold Spring night to find the white plastic dish population in my fridge had doubled. I was forced into action. I certainly didn't want to wake up the following morning to find them all over my kitchen floor. My fridge is not as square as it

I lined the dishes all up and investigated them. Some had contents of a delightful shade of green and obviously wished to join the compost heap. Four mushrooms come out of the corners and two slightly soggy green onions. There was a tablespoon of tomato paste and a cup of cold fish, a couple of blobs of cheeses various. Luckily we were rescued by eggs.

4 tablespoons unsalted butter 3 tablespoons flour

4 cup grated Swiss cheese

4 cup grated mature Cheddar cheese 4 cup crumbled feta cheese

5 egg yolks 1 tablespoon tomato paste

2 green onions, chopped 1 cup cooked white fish

3 tablespoons chopped parsley

Salt, black pepper and a little cayenne to taste

Melt the butter and stir in the flour. Remove from the heat and gradually stir in the milk. Return to the heat and stir until mixture becomes thick. Remove from heat.

Beat in cheese, then egg yolks, one by one. Return to heat and stir constantly until cheese melts. Remove from heat.

Stir in tomato paste, green onlons, fish, parsley and seasoning to taste.

Beat the egg whites until stiff and carefully fold into mixture.

5. Pile the mixture into a buttered souffle dish or casserole. Bake at 350° F for 40 minutes and serve immediately.

Dessert? Well, there was a bit of Ice cream, half a cup of cranberry sauce, a banana, two cherries...Watch your fridge!

BIRELL - Premum Light

Frequently I have been asked to get this or that brand of near beer, the non-alcoholic, low calorie beverage

We have a product in stock called BIRELL which I sampled yesterday. Served ice cold it really tastes very much like the natural brew, minus alcohol of course.

It is brewed with all natural ingredients, being water, malt, corn yeast and hops.

Try a six-pack of BIRELL. All the 'head' you get is the bear-like froth in the glass, but served ice-cold is refreshing and even leaves you with that beer 'after taste'.

The Swim-A-Thon I spoke of last week, got underway today (Saturday, April 17th) with the contestants really striving for endurance records. Eleven of fourteen entrants swam 200 lengths - 21/4 miles - in under two hours. The average age was around twelve years old. I signed a pledge with one youngster whose 60 minutes in her featured event (not expected to go beyond 10 or 12 minutes) wound up costing me $30. At any rate you do feel better when you know you are supporting a very good cause.

The money they are attempting to raise is to purchase certain group training equipment, and other group expenses. Each pays his or her own way to the various swimming competitions that they enter on Vancouver Island

As these youngsters were swimming, four to a lane, the wash was so heavy as to seriously interfer with their time and breathing. Our pool was not built with competition swimming in mind. Some features, like lane and end anti-splash devices were not foreseen or installed.

Our Chinook Swim Club members could use your financial and moral support. There is no finer, more healthful recreation for mind and body.

l'axes for peace - not for war

A B.C. Voice of Women's Con-ference held recently in Vancouver made the following recommenda-tion of how one could concretely protest the expenditure of tax dollars on armaments and prepara-

The 1982-83 Canadian Budget allocates 10.5% of revenues to defence spending. However, the new Canadian Constitution Act, passed April 16th, allows for conscientious objection under the Freedom of Conscience clause, and many are pressing for the establishment of a Peace Tax Fund, to which war taxes could be re-directed for peace research, education and development.

To make a concrete step in this direction, when completing your tax return, the VOW suggests making out your tax payments in two cheques: one to the Receiver General of Canada for 89.5% of the total tax payable, and the balance of 10.5% the Peace Tax Fund. You would include with them the form letters prepared (included on this page) or write out your own personal views on the subject, directed to the Revenue Minister.

If all your tax has been deducted at the source, send a letter to the Minister requesting that 10.5% of your payment be re-directed to the Peace Tax Fund.

Time to protest

Maryanne's viewpoint

by Maryanne West

Those of us with friends and relatives in Europe have been receiv-ing letters in recent months asking what we North Americans are doing about the arms race. Why haven't we been flocking onto the streets to protest as they have in European cities? Is it that we don't care; are we not willing to face up to reality; or have we been brainwashed into thinking we can perhaps survive if we're lucky and that the Europeans are expendable?

I'm not sure why we're so reluctant to take to streets demonstrate. We did in the early sixties. I remember taking part with others from the Sunshine Coast in a Ban the Bomb march which started on Kingsway and wound its way along Broadway, across Bur-rard Bridge to a meeting in Stanley Park. Perhaps because we've lived so long with this "balance of terror" that we've become used to it we've become used to it and haven't noticed that there has been an escalation in American policy, which changes the whole addicate relationships of world power. world power.

Not satisfied with a stockpile of weapons which can destroy our world many times over, American policy has changed from so-called defensive weapons to first strike missiles. This can do nothing but increase the paranoia of the Russian government, and unless we, the ordinary people, rise up and tell our governments quite plainly we do not intend to live like this, teetering on the brink of a holocaust, it's only a matter of time before one or the other decides to get that first strike ad-

I heard the argument on the radio recently that we have to have these weapons because the can't Russians demonstrate to their the great powers, etc. sent to Siberia. To my way of thinking this is exactly why we, the peo-ple of the free world, have to take a stand for survival, because we are the only people who can. Surely no-one believes the ordinary Russian citizen is any less interested in survival than we are, or is any dif-ferent from ourselves? The US is trying to put into effect a civil defense system, which, as far as I can gather has brought home to Americans the futility of any such plans, especially as they are predicated on the probability of having a couple of days' notice to evacuate cities like Seattle. To where? Quite apart from the fact that you're relying on first strike missiles, any warning is out of the ques-

Plans are in hand for a major demonstration in York in June to coincide with the United Nations Special Session on Disarmament. I object, on conscientious grounds, to the spending of my taxes on killing and preparation for killing. Since the Charter of Rights and Freedoms guarantees my Freedom of Conscience, I intend to divert to peace a portion of my Income Tax for 1981 equivalent to the percentage of the Budget for 1982-83 which is allocated to defence by function.

I urge you to respect my right of conscience and establish a Peace Tax Fund, to which my war taxes could be directed, for peace research, education and development, in Canada

In two World Wars, Canadian governments approved the exemption of conscientious objectors from military service, and approved alternative service instead. Warfare today, with its emphasis on expensive weaponry, depends more on the taxes of those who pay for it than on armies. Personal refusal to fight is not enough to absolve me from the killing which could result from the use of my taxes to train others to kill and to purchase lethal

Dear Mr. Rompkey: According to the Constitution Act, 1981, Schedule B, Part 1:2 (a), I am guaranteed Freedom of Conscience. Since I object on conscientious grounds, to my taxes being spent to prepare for killing, I have included in my Income Tax return, a credit for the Peace Tax Fund, equivalent to 10.5% of my total Tax Payable. This is the estimated per cent of the federal government budget for 1982-83 allocated to defence by function. I prefer to have these funds spent on peace research, education and development.

At this time in the world's history, with the threat of nuclear war looming over us, I believe that Canada should resume the role of peacemaker among the nations, and demonstrate its sincerity by reducing its arms budget, rather than contributing to the arms race by increasing it.

I congratulate your government for succeeding in establishing the Canadian Constitution in Canada, complete with Freedom of Conscience. I am pleased to pay taxes for such constructive purposes as health and social services, job creation in the non-military field, environmentally appropriate resource development and other life-affirming programs, and commend your government for supporting them.

Yours for Peace.

Titles are cometimes misleading. In the Twenties, the prescribed book of essays had a title:

Lingering Expectations of an Heir", which was eagerly approached by young persons hoping to discover in its contents some knowledge of the mysteries of pregnancy. Alas! The essay describ-ed the mental suffering of a young person waiting for the demise of a rich old relative.

Local ski club very active

by Vince Bracewell

The dearth of snow in the ski areas during the last five or six years has turned into a veritable deluge of the white fluffy stuff this year. The season started out with a good early fall of snow followed by a couple of weeks of wet snow and rain. Then a colder weather pattern set in to give the skiers about three months of great skiing. We are now into spring but the snow pack is still building and one can ski in fresh powder if you are out before the sun varms up the slopes.

The members of the Tetrahedron Ski Club spent the mild early part of the season swimming and soaking in the hot pool at the Gibsons Swimming Pool. A great vay to relax tired nuscles after dealing with sticky snow condi-ions earlier in the day. The public is not ware that the Sunshine Coast has ski country to any on the oast. The fundamental problem for skiers in this rea over the years has een lack of access to the snow-packed slopes.

Both the pioneer Mt.
Elphinstone Ski Club with its big A-frame in Dakota Valley behind
Elphinstone Ridge and the present club with its forty foot trailer warming hut on the trail to the west side of Dakota Bowl and its small A-frame warming hut on Elphinstone Ridge close to the peak, have wrestlwith the problem of getting the people up to the ski hills and down

During its early years, he Tetrahedron Club

Northbound Read Down

was composed of a number of Port Mellon millworkers who had the enthusiasm and expertise to build a ski tow on the Ridge near the present warming hut. They also acquired a snow-cat which could carry a few people on a small deck and tow up to a dozen skiers behind. Rugged road and trail conditions caused too many breakdowns and forced the club to terminate the use of this tracked vehicle. Lack of transportation led to the demise of the ski-tow and downhill skiing in this area.

A few dedicated and determined skiers kept the club alive by turning it into a Cross Country ski club with the bulk of its activity being the approach to and in the west side of Dakota Bowl. The base of this opera-tion being the trailer donated by two former members, Senja and Roy Boutilier, and located at mile 6 on the East Jacksons Logging Road.

Early days saw the skiers using the old B & K Logging Road from Roberts Creek. Due to lack of maintenance this road became a creek bed and was no longer used, althought it has an easier grade and is a much shorter route.

This year we are back to the B & K Road. The reason for the return to the old road is that last summer it was rebuilt by the B.C. Forest Service as a forest access road, a multi-use road for logging, silviculture and recreation.

The Forest Service on the Sunshine Coast is now involved in providing more recreational access and we are looking forward to providing facilities so that a greater number of our residents will take up skiing as a part of their winter ac-tivity. The Ski Club is going to need more members in order to provide instruction, com-petition and social events on the ski grounds for young and old.

Cross country skiing is regarded as one of the best exercise sports for all ages. I have been skiing for almost sixty years, (28 years on the Sunshine Coast) and there are others in this country that have 10 - 20 - even 40 years on me.

So come and join the in. The Tetrahedron Ski Club has a few rental boots, skis and poles for those who would like to give it a try before buying their own equipment.
The club, from time to time, goes on trips to other areas. We have a few members who have competed in marathons in the Cariboo and Kamloops.

Last week, for a change, we skied the Halfmoon Bay area, skiing up the logging road to the high point near Lyons Lake just north of Pender Harbour, a return trip of twelve miles. Most members ski six to eight miles each week and some must be over one hundred miles for the season to date and the snow could last till the end of June or later this year. The A-frame on the Ridge is completely covered now (15-20 ft.?) and we can't get into it. Dakota Bowl is a large area which has good cross-country ski terrain at the bottom with good mountain touring and telemark skiing on the upper rim and on the Ridge of Elphinstone. The development of the new telemark bindings will bring this area into

Here is a sample day trip for two of our members, Vic Bonaguro and Ken Sneddon. Sandra Sneddon drove them to a point 2½ miles from the highway on the B & K Road. They put their skis on and proceeded to and up the south face road to the warming hut on the Ridge and stop-ped for lunch. From an elevation of 3600 ft. they dropped down the north face for about 1200 ft. to a point on the north face road just above the Shake Cutters Meadow in South Dakota Valley.

They skied the north face road to mile 91/2 on the Jacksons East Road then proceeded north and east along the Canadian Forest Products Road and down to the Port Mellon Highway.

On the way down they crossed Roberts Creek, South Fork of Dakota Creek, Sake Creek and along the side of Dakota Canyon to Vic's previously parked truck on the highway just south of Port Mellon.

Why travel to Grouse,

Hollyburn and Whistler where it costs a lot of money when you can use less than one day's expenses and get a membership in the Tetrahedron Ski Club and take part in a local activity! For further information write to Tetrahedron Ski Club, Box 545, Gibsons, B.C. by Jack Tiernan were keenly contested last Thursday and featured wholehearted endeavour, excitement and a good deal of skill. Games were well con-trolled by senior student officials.

The Girls' division was dominated by Roberts Creek who got stronger as the day went on. They survived a tie with a determined Sechelt team to finish aton the stanto finish atop the stan-dings. Cedar Grove placed second and Sechelt

In the Boys' division, some excellent games through the qualifying rounds led to a longawaited confrontation between Cedar Grove and Roberts Creek which proved well worth waiting for. An exciting contest between size and team finesse saw Roberts Creek prevail, thanks to some determined rebounding and pheno-menal shooting. The high level the game reached was a tribute to both teams. The consola-tion final saw Gibsons edge Sechelt for third

Guides need volunteers

The Sunshine Coast Girl Guides Association needs volunteers to assist with testing, ordering distribution of badges for Guides and Brownies in the District and for distribution of program information between the District leaders and Provincial Headquarters. Both of these jobs involve a high degree of interaction with others and provide a great opportunity to learn the ins and outs of a well-established, highly competent, international organization. Training and other job supports offered are excellent. each position requires approximately 10 hours of work a month, but individuals wishing to make more of the job are encouraged to do so. The cook's birthday

Ramblings of a Rover

Even although I am now well past my allotted three score years and ten, I have to admit that there are still many things that I am undecided about. Way back in the '50s I used to think that, should I in some miraculous fashion fall heir to a fortune or possibly find myself in possession of a winning Irish Sweepstake ticket, I would forthwith abandon whatever I was doing at the time and take off on a tour of the world that would embrace not only many of the places I had never visited before, but also retrace some of the paths that I had formerly trod.

Now, after what turned out to be a disastrous and disillusioning trip to the land of my birth a few years ago, I am not so sure that this attempt at recapturing the past is either wise or good for one's peace of mind. Of one thing however I am certain and that is that, were I to embark on such a tour either now or in the near future, there are two spots on earth that I would scrupulously avoid. They would be the searing deserts of Africe and the bleak, forbid-ding, ice-locked tundras of the Arctic regions., I never want to see those places again. I don't even want to think of the hardships and suffering that I endured in both places. One experience of that kind is more than sufficient for a lifetime.

Now to get back to where I left off in my column of last week. One thing that puzzled me at the time and still does was that, during the whole period that outfit spent in North Africa, we never had a Messing Officer which on the surface, would appear to be a good thing, as at many of the stations on which I serv-ed in Canada, in England and later in Germany, they were not only a bane in the cook's life, but were a pain in the you know where to everyone who came contact with them. Male and female, they were in most cases entirely ignorant of anything culinary and, apart from putting their signatures on a requisition for supplies, they were superfluous and added nothing to the well-being of those afflicted with their presence. We had a Sgt. Cook and presumably he was individual who should have been the one to take the missing Messing Officer's place. Although he was in all respects a really nice guy ever saw him. He had been provided with a jeep and a driver in order to facilitate his authorized food buying expeditions to various small Arab and French villages between the desert and the Mediterranean coast but, apart from his occasional return with a few not too fresh vegetables or a box of some locally grown fruit, he was never around.

We had named him "The Collector" on account of his acquisitive tendencies and, after a month or two, his tent was bulging at the seams with the trophies of war that he had accumulated, either by bartering or purchasing from nomadic Arabs.

Everybody deserves a day off on his birthday. Only Dee Cee, however, would make the point with a sten gun.

Whether his intentions were, after the war was over, to open a rival establishment to B.C. Collateral or to found his own private museum, I will never know, but by the time the campaign ended he had an imposing collection of bric-abrac that included rifles, hand-guns, wrist wat-ches, binoculars and even Mohammedan prayer mats.

Although not a drinking man himself, we welcomed his arrivals as infrequently he was considerate enough to include among his recently acquired paraphernalia a few bottles of wine or beer that he had stumbled 'upon during his travels. This he turned over to his corporals for distribution among the men. I regret to have to report that, due to the intense heat and insatiable thirst of Cpl. Harkness, Cpl. McGuire and yours truly, very little of it was shared by the underlings

- there just wasn't sufficient to go around! Time dragged by and before we were fulfy aware of the fact, we had been in North Africa over six months and it was now September. On the 28th of that month I would be 36 years old and the prospect of being able to celebrate the event was extremely remote until Sqdn./Ldr. Money made me a pre-sent of a bottle of Canadian Club whisky. It so happened that I had squirreled away a few pint bottles of Algerian beer for the occasion so now I was all set.

Without consulting anyone or seeking permission, I declared it a holiday as far as I was concerned and flatly rejected any suggestions that I go over to the big mess tent and either participate in the cooking or serving of any meals. I broke open the seal on the bottle early in the morning as soon as the rest of the men had gone to work and, taking a good gulp of the hard stuff, washed it down with a chaser of beer also straight from the bottle. It wasn't very long before all the cares, trials and tribulations of life in the desert seemed to fade away and for the first time since I had been there in the hellish heat everything appeared not only endurable, but inconsequential.

had warned everybody to stay away from me and emphasized the fact by putting a full clip of cartridges in my sub-machine-gun. doubt whether I would actually have shot anyone under any circumstances, but the threat was enough. I had only one visitor and that was my friend and benefactor Sqdn./Ldr. Money. He appeared late in the afternoon holding a stick on which waved a white singlet. He had even brought his own li-quor to offer me a toast on my anniversary. I remember we talked of old times and our plans for the future after the war ended. He left and it wasn't very long before I faded into oblivion. War or no war, at least temporarily I had

by Fred Cruice

Having shaken Win-nipeg dust from their feet, a newly married couple started making a home in Regina with the male side having doubled his salary by the move to the telegraph desk of the Leader-Post. While the climate of the Regina area was not always the best the gradual accumulation of newspaper knowledge expanded my mental horizons considerably and I developed contacts with local political parties turning out a once a month newspaper for the provincial Liberal party, plus a slight run at writing radio broadcasts

I also developed outside correspondence to such as the Wall Street Journal, New York Times, Toronto Star, Toront Mail and Empire and the Montreal Star. Such revenue helped swell the monthly in-come. The largest of such income came from the Toronto Star as a result of the 1935 riot which ended the march to Ottawa of an army of the unemployed. My income supplied by the Toronto Star went a long way to paying expenses of the birth of our first boy, Roy, who is still a resident in Regina as an employee of Saskatchewan Government Telephones

When the war broke out in 1939, my newspaper loaned me to the Federal government for the period of the wart. It was a special job with the Wartime Prices and Trade Board covering all of Saskatchewan. It was a special type of work with my responsibility being directed by the organization office of Donald Gordon, head of the Prices Board. This entailed a fair amount of travel as I was a sounding board for the Ottawa organization.

This organization of what was called Field Representatives was set up to avoid the usual civil service type of mak-ing reports if-as-andwhen on a situation.

For instance, a pro-tawa covered the wheat situation on the prairies. A few days afterwards I was advised by Ottawa to be in Winnipeg on a certain day to meet Donald Gordon for a discussion on how farmers accepted this new wheat program. Having close contacts within the wheat pool, I ascertained their feelings on the new program and was able to inform Mr.

Gordon that there did not appear to be anything to fear by the imposition of that pro-gram. Mr. Gordon was also in Winnipeg for other problems.

My travels on behalf of the board in Saskatchewan covered all the main centres where l visited - food shops, chiefly, to see what pro-blems existed. One grocer had a problem involving some canned goods he was unable to move. I suggested that he put them on sale on the basis of only one to a customer. He sold them

There were times when I would be conferring with the editors of the larger centre's newspapers. To help them out in their daily melee, I would suggest I could write an editorial for them. Rarely was I turned down. Usually I turned the editorial at-tention to the good work the Prices Board was docent type of stores run usually by one man. It most of these dealers and without conferring on cost basis would look at the article and decide it would sell at fifty cents, possibly under cost. My breakfast restaurant, whenever 1 was in Saskatoon, serving an egg and bacon sandwich for 25 cents including coffee. He knew I was a Prices board man so he asked me to try and get some increase. matter went right through to Donald Gordon. He urged the restauranteur to hang on for three of four days where I met Ron Kenvyn of B.C., Ruth Bowen from Alberta, and Beryl Cameron Manitoba and the members of the rest of the crew covering Canada.

The top man of the Prices Board, Field Representative Branch was Frank Prendergast of Imperial Oil fame. He was Canada's top public relations man and a genius when it came to controlling the work of those under him. My ac-tual work base was the office of the WPTB in Regina but my boss was in Ottawa. At times members of the public would confer with me on their troubles. Once, a prominent Reginan phoned me. He was in a dither, wondering what he should do. What had occurred was he had pur-chased the monthly sugar ration and his wife had done the same thing. It was a case of the public being honest about their rationed purchases. So I reasoned with him and we decided that he had sugar enough to last the family two months so he would not buy any sugar next month. He felt happy with the decision.

Late in the war, sugar really became a problem and devious means were tried to get around the regulations. One country merchant really baffled the sugar ration official: This merchant was get; ting double the quantity he was getting three months before. The official puzzled over the matter for several days. One afternoon as the sun was lowering in the western sky, the sugar officer picked up the merchant's sheet of coupon returns pasted on a sheet, wheeled himself around on his chair and looked right into the sun.

What he saw almost jolted him out of his chair. The wily merchant had duplicated his ration tickets by the simple means of soaking them in some solution and, by patient peeling, had divided one flat sheet in-to two flat sheets. How did the sugar officer know? Sugar ration tickets were printed on both sides and by holding these returned tickets up into the sunlight, only one printing was exposed. The other had been peeled off. It was a remarkable job, but it cost the mer-chant a stiff fine.

Another angle drew me into the small 5-10-15 was ascertained that would pick up an article a little longer. There were times when the field representatives gathered in Ottawa for a brush-up on board affairs. The Chateau Laurier was our home

By the time this column appears in print the bands will have ceased to play, the banquet halls will be empty of all but the clean-up crews, the

Whatever one's views may be on the lengthy constitutional debate that has saturated this nation, I would hope that even the most jaded of us would feel some faint flutter of pride or inspiration in this new publicity recently given to this project I am sure you all know that the Sechelt "D-Days" referred to the co-operative effort to clean up debris in Porpoise Bay and surrounding areas. A passive clean-up of driftwood and other debris is long overdue and should be done each year.

I would like to point out that the key word is "passive" in an operation of this kind. Not receiving an action in a passive manner, but rather carrying out the removal of debris from the beach in a way that will interfere as little as possible with the intertidal vegetation and the minute biological growth of the shoreline.

Works super says more water needed

The SCRD must study carefully the $5 million, five year waterworks expansion recommended for the Regional District. Public Works chairman, Area E director Jim Gurney told the Coast News "water improvements in the district are necessary and must be done right if the district is not to run into serious financial difficulties".

At Thursday's committee meeting, the Regional Board discussed the future of the 14 inch diameter line required to service the Roberts Creek area, where serious water pressure problems are experienced, par-

Public Works superintendent, Gordon Dixon recommended the board approve the 14 inch line expansion from Marlene Road to Blackburn Road to tie into the present system on Lower Road. The estimated cost of that expansion is $535,000.

According to a recommendation by Finance Chairman Brian Stelck, a motion was made to prepare a development cost charge by-law for approval from Victoria for the Roberts Creek expansion.

"If we agree to the 14 inch line, which will mainly service existing properties, then we will have to agree to all subdivision and down-zoning proposals in the area to help pay for it. That is not the direction that Community Plans are going and I don't think that is what people want," said Stelck.

Director Gurney stated that if waterline im-provements are not implemented immediately, "then we will have to shut off all building permits in the area, because the present system is simply inade-

Expansion for coast transit

The Transit Service Plan report prepared by the Urban Transit Authority of British Columbia (UTA) was presented to the regional board at its Thursday planning meeting held at the Sechelt village offices. The plan was commissioned by the board last September.

The proposal, presented by UTA planners Don Boyd and Jo-Anne Stone called for an expansion of the existing one-vehicle mini bus service to a threebus pick up and fixed route - fixed schedule service.

The proposed schedule would include daily service between Langdale and Sechelt between the hours of 7:30 a.m. and 5:30 p.m.; service to Pender Harbour on Tuesdays only and to Port Mellon Thursdays only. An option for a Saturday service between Langdale and Sechelt between the hours of 9:30 a.m. and 5:30 p.m. was also presented.

The proposed schedule would provide fixed route service every two hours and would include stops at lower Gibsons, Sunnycrest Mall, Roberts Creek store and Trail Bay Mall.

The door to door pick up "Custom service" would be expanded so that the 7661 annual rides could continue to be accommodated. UTA planners estimate that annual rides would increase to 20,790 on a five day schedule and to 22,136 with the Saturday option:

The fare structure, if the plan is adopted, would remain the same: 75 cents for one zone and 25 cents for each additional zone. Zone 1 - Port Mellon to YMCA Road, Zone 2 - YMCA Road to Flume Road, Zone 3 - Flume Road to Halfmoon Bay, and Zone 4 - Halfmoon Bay to Pender Harbour.

The financial estimates, based on the acquisition of two more vans, similar to the one currently in use, concluded that total operating costs for the first year would be $211,906. The district share of this total would be $58,534 with the UTA costs at $111,251 in 1981 dollars. Cost to local taxpayers of $58,534, represents about one-half mill on property tax.

Cost sharing over a five-year period shifts from 25 per cent paid by the district in years one and two to 33.3 per cent paid locally in years four and five.

When asked if the service will fulfill one of the major objectives of the board, to provide transportation for local years. Board as the time the property of t for local youth, Mr. Boyd said that "No, the proposed service will not benefit children".

The board will consider the report's recommendations and will make a decision whether or not to proceed with expanded service within the next couple of weeks. The proposal indicated that if the board approves of the plan, funds could become available as early as September. Once funds are available, approximately three months would be required to put the service in operation.
