MANSE. J. J. GREENLEE
THE GUEST OF HONOR.Upwards of 25 guests, gathered at the Presbyterian Manse on Tuesday evening, to meet the former pastor of the Presbyterian Church Rev. J. J.
Greenlee, who has stopped off at Creston for a few days to greet some of his old acquaintances, are proceeding to his sphere of duty among the new congregations along the Kootenay River.Parlour Games, musical items by many of the guests, and some fine selections on the gramophone, kindly provided by Mr. W. McBean, were features of the evening, whilst at intervals dainty refreshments were served.
The party broke up at 11.30 p.m.Parties wanting choice seed potatoes should note that the "Carmal" the "Dewley" and "Irish Cobbler" varieties of potatoes may be obtained from Mr. Geo Cartwright if spoken for in time. The "Irish Cobbler" is two weeks earlier than any other potato grown in the East.

LAST DANCE OF SEASON.
SOUNDS OF REVELRY BY NIGHT.The K. of P. have been the hosts at many delightful social functions during the past Winter, and they wound up the season in a blaze of triumph by entertaining their friends and members at a grand ball on Easter Monday evening.The Lodge room was prettily decorated, and the guests, comprising most of the prominent social figures of the valley to the number of upwards of 100, had a most enjoyable evening. Professor Smythe of Moyle, ably supported by Mrs. Foster who is a musician of a more than local reputation, provided the music, being relieved by a capable volunteer in the person of Mrs. Downs, a recent valuable addition to Creston musical circles.At 12 p.m. the guests partook of a light supper after which the dancing was resumed until about 3 a.m. The dance was a complete success, and a fitting close to the Winter Social Season.In order to make the emigrants well

MATTERS OF IMPORTANCE TO DISCUSS WITH LOCAL
FRUIT GROWERS.Mr. R. M. Winslow, who reached Nelson on Monday evening, arrives in Creston this week-end, for the purpose of talking over matters generally pertaining to the fruit industry, with the growers. Interviewed specially by the Review Representative, Mr. Winslow gave some interesting information re the progress of the fruit industry.Among other things, the provincial horticulturist stated that last year the Kootenay District shipped 35 cars of fruit, and that this year the quantity would be doubled. Mr. Winslow was of opinion that should the reciprocity agreement become law, it would effect the small fruit grower most, that is the berry grower, and the small grower.The Department of agriculture are appointing three Assistant Horticulturists for the province, and Mr.
Winslow will have the assistance of these new men, and will be responsible for the instruction of the new officials.
One of these new men will likely be allotted to the Kootenay district, to assist Mr. M. S. Middleton, Asst. Prov.
Horticulturist for the Kootenays.About the end of April, Mr. Winslow will proceed to the Skeena River, to assist with the installation of a large experimental orchard, which the Govt.
is planting in that Northern region.Mr. Winslow expects to take the first passenger train from Prince Rupert to Copper River, on May 7th next. The genial Provincial Horticulturist is most optimistic regarding the future of the fruit industry in the premier province.

Land LawsVictoria, B. C., April 11.—An important change in the land policy of the government is crystallized in an order in council passed at a special meeting of the executive recently. In substance the effect of the new order is to increase the price of land classified as second class from $2.50 to $5 per acre, and that of first class land from $5 to $10. The new scale of prices will prevail from the beginning of the provincial fiscal year, that is in respect of all pending applications not already passed at the old standard of prices.In addition to thus amending the schedule of prices for crown land, the government is also doubling the fee to purchasers of land surveyed by the crown, the charge hereafter being 50 cents per acre in place of 25 cents as heretofore charged.
There will be no increase in the acreage survey charge to pre-emp-tors, whose position in other respects remains unaltered as well.
That is, pre-emptors will continue to acquire lands under old conditions and at the old price and to enjoy the advantage of entering upon and taking up lands within the various reserves, closed as against investors.In addition to increasing the sale prices of public lands the government at today's council meeting decided to place under reserve from alienation otherwise than by pre-emption, all of the crown lands included in the Cariboo, Lillooet, and Kamloops divisions of the Yale district, the territory thus withdrawn from market extending from but a little above the 50th parallel of north latitude to the northern provincial boundary, ten degrees further north or an area roughly comprising from one-quarter to one third the total area of the province. There are of course in this immense territory of 50,000,000 acres, more or less, some isolated areas of land already disposed of or staked for purchase under pending applications which will not be affected by the declared reserve or by the present revision of land policy except in so far as purchasers will be required to pay for their properties at the new instead of the old acreage scale.British Columbia properties, throughout the length and breadth of the province have materially increased in value during the past decade. Advancing railway construction and road building make them more valuable daily. As assets, the same conditions as to augmentation of values apply to the public lands of British Columbia as to the lands in the hands of the large holding companies, such as the Hudson's Bay Co., and the Canadian Pacific railway. All these great companies have lately materially increased their prices in a much greater proportion than marks the present advance in the prices of provincial crown lands. To have taken any other action than to keep crown lands on a reasonable parity of value with lands in the hands of such great holding companies would obviously mark a laxity on the part of the government of its recognition of its responsibility as custodian of the people's heritage.It is understood to be the intention of the minister of lands to pre-ceed almost immediately with the systematic surveying of the lands contained in the various existing reserves, these lands as surveys are completed on particular sections reasonably in touch with present or prospective transportation facilities being from time to time placed on the market as the demand and conditions generally justify. The government in this connection is considering the advisability of adopting the sale by auction system and it is quite possible that an experiment in this direction may be tried before the present season has come to a close.

ENGLISH CHURCH SOCIAL

was a great success. The evening's entertainment included musical selections by Mrs. Downs, Mrs. Lidgate, Mrs. Lindley, and Miss Ella Dow, while Messrs Murdoch and Callender rendered in fine style some of the humorous pieces immortalized by Harry Lauder and the Rev. Heyman was heard at his best in "Little tin soldier," all the artists being enthusiastically enco-ured.Mrs. Jarleys waxworks, in which many well known Crestonites figured, was something new for a local audience,
the pantomime, was a welcome change from the usual run of song and recitation, and "The three young maids of Lee," in the persons of the Misses Arrowsmith, Dow, and Gilpin, acquitted themselves with credit.A substantial sum was realised for the Church Funds.

NOEL MARSHALL BRINGS EXPERIENCE TO THE WORK.

Efficient Work of Toronto Man Has Been In a Large Measure Responsible For Success of Many Public Ventures—Was Born In England and Came to Canada Half a Century Ago.

Noel Marshall, who has been selected by the Government as a member of the new Prison Parole Board, is a typical progressive business man of the Queen City with wide experience. He has been connected for over 40 years with the fuel industry in that city. His diligent and determined industry and honest business methods have built up in these long years a great business and as a bright and brainy business man his knowledge and experience will be valuable to the new Parole Board, which will have a very important and responsible work ahead of it. Mr. Marshall was born in London, Eng., and has been a resident of Toronto for fifty years. On April 1, 1870, Mr. Marshall entered the employ of George Chaffey Brothers, coal merchants, and in 1888, in conjunction with Sir William Mackenzie, he purchased a controlling interest in the C. J. Smith Coal Co., which in 1891 was changed to the Standard Fuel Co. of which he is president. His success has been exceptional and it has laid the foundation for many financial affiliations of importance. He is a director of the Sterling Bank of Canada, and is a prominent official in several of the big industries of the Dominion.

He has been warden of St. Matthew's Anglican Church for 25 years and in politics he has taken an active interest in the local activities of the Conservative party in the Queen City. Whatever looks to the advancement of Toronto finds a friend and advocate in Mr. Marshall, and notwithstanding his numerous business concerns calling for his personal supervision he devotes much time to useful work in connection with a number of charitable undertakings. He looks upon his duties seriously and assumes the full responsibility of doing his full share of the work in connection with every board of which he is a member. The success of the exhibition, of the Open Air Horse Show, and the Ontario Motor League are in no small measure due to his activity and executive capacity. In all his varied business activities he is a real director and his financial acumen has been of great value to a large number of Toronto institutions both of a charitable and a public nature.

Nonsense.

Whilst Lord Archibald Campbell was at Eton, he and his elder brother, the Duke of Argyll, and Lord Ronald Gower were commended to Windsor by Queen Victoria. Her Majesty turned to Lord Gower and asked what form he was in. "In the put, m'am," he replied. She put the same question to Lord Lorne, and received the same answer. "And what form are you in, Archie?" Her Majesty asked. "Nonsense," he replied. The Queen was puzzled. She repeated the question. "Nonsense," repeated Lord Archibald, unabashed. Eventually it was explained that "Nonsense" was really the name of the form, to distinguish it from the "Sense" form, the difference between the two being that in the latter the Latin version had to be made sense, and in the former the boy might write nonsense so long as he scann'd.

The Oldest City.

The city with the longest continuous history is Damascus. It was a place of considerable importance away back in the time of Abraham, 1800 before Christ. Its actual foundation is lost in antiquity. Nobody knows when Damascus did not exist. It is possible that there were cities in Babylonia or Egypt before the Syrian metropolis arose, but we know nothing about them. The old Syrian town to-day has a population of some 200,000, is the centre of a fine trade and still merits its fame of being one of the most beautiful places on earth.

New Use For a Crypt.

Rev. C. H. Chard, rector of Spitfields, England, has converted the crypt of his church into a store where poor people whose homes are broken up may deposit their furniture free of charge until they are in a position to set up house again. At present the crypt is full of furniture.

The Temperature.

"Why do you watch the thermometer on the wall so closely?" queried the invalid. "Because," replied the untrained nurse, "the doctor said if the temperature got any higher I was to give you another dose of quinine."

THE INCOMING HORDE.

Queer People Finding Homes In the Big Cities.

"Canada for the Canadians" may be an excellent slogan for political meetings, but perhaps "Canadians for Canada" should prove an even better rallying cry, whether we take it as a sermon in a nutshell on true patriotism and altruism, or apply it to the consideration of the mighty stream of immigrants pouring in at our gates. In these multitudes from east and west and south we are unquestionably getting population for our vast empty acres, but are we getting, at least potentially, "Canadians for Canada"? In our dealings with the newcomers we are taking pains to ensure that ultimately they shall be "Canadians for Canada," and not a mere incoherent mob of alien peoples?

Everywhere throughout the Dominion, alike in east and west, this is the insistent problem of our time. The big cities are fast becoming cosmopolitan—cities of little "foreign quarters," where immigrants of one race can cling together and retain for years their peculiar speech and customs, not at all to the advantage of the community as a whole. We of the English tongue feel mild curiosity, or perhaps a little repulsion, when we are jostled in streets and cars by people whose rapid speech is to our ears unmeaning, and as we pass we quickly turn our backs on them and leave them to struggle on as they can, making or marring this new country as may chance.

Unless our attention has been called specially to the foreigners, it is not easy to realize what multitudes of them have recently settled in our midst. Jews and Italians in Toronto, for instance, may be counted by thousands, and the group from the Balkan Peninsula (Turks, Roumanians, Servians, Bulgarians and Macedonians) numbers over fifteen hundred souls. They are chiefly of the peasant class, working as laborers, though amongst them have come a few tradesmen and a few students, who are attending various schools and colleges. The great majority are illiterate, and have been brought up in a religious and political atmosphere very different from our own. It is, therefore, no easy matter to bridge the dividing gulf between them and us, and at times these immigrants must suffer grievously from the effects on our ignorance and their own.

Some of the small houses on Eastern avenue are crowded with Macedonians, who work with pick and shovel till the frost forces them to be idle. Not all become destitute, but they live miserably. As many as seventy have been together in one small house, sleeping in rows on mattresses picked up from "the dump," cooking in the little yards on rude fireplaces built of loose bricks, tearing out the woodwork of the old houses for fuel, and generally behaving themselves with due regard to law and order as represented in the person of a sympathetic and benevolently-disposed police officer on the beat, who listens patiently to their efforts at English and is at pains to pick up something of their tongue. Occasionally, when one of them is in luck's way, they get in a barrel of lager beer and try to forget their troubles in a carousal. At such times the whine may be heard from the crowded houses into the clear starlight night, and then, hand in hand, they will circle round like children in some strange dance of their far-distant native land, breaking the stillness with weird songs and the thumping of their heavy boots on the old wooden sidewalks. But two years ago the situation grew desperate. Helpless from their inability to communicate with those about them, work for them was not to be had, in a season when at the best there is little demand for unskilled labor, and at length the authorities deported a large number of them.

A Veteran Councillor.

Fitzroy Township, in Carleton County, claims the honor of having the oldest municipal servant in Canada from the point of service. The distinction belongs to Reeve Charles Mohr, who is just entering upon his 43rd year as a member of the County Council.

There was a time when "Charlie" Mohr, as his associates and intimates call him, had to battle for supremacy at the polls, but on account of his long record the electorate in Fitzroy deem it a privilege to return the veteran reeve by acclamation. There is occasional talk about opposition, but it is only in jest. Reeve Mohr has been so long in the saddle that no one dreams of contesting his election, and if they did the support accorded would scarcely make up a corporal's guard. The township takes more pride perhaps out of the reeve's record than Mr. Mohr himself.

No County Council session would be complete without the Fitzroy representative. His genial countenance and sterling character make his presence ever welcome. And when it comes to rules and regulations he is the authority of last resort. Despite his age, Reeve Mohr is one of the most active members of the council, and the warden's annual banquet never winds up without his participation in "Auld Lang Syne," no matter how late the hour.

For Heavy Eaters.

Domestic science seems to be coming to its own in the schools and colleges, but still some big husky men express a preference for the "old-fashioned home cooking." And it's incidents like the following that make them poke fun at the new order in cooking: In a Western Ontario city a girl who was giving the city its first taste of domestic science teaching was very enthusiastic over her work in the schools. One evening she said to the group about the boarding-house table, "Usually I give the children half an egg each for cooking purposes. To-day I had only half the usual supply, but the children made the cutest little quarter-egg omelette you could wish to see."

BURIED TREASURE.

War-Time Secret Lurks In an Ontario Marsh.

Many and varied are the stories of lost treasures. It would seem almost that in all the earlier settled districts of Ontario there are treasures buried to find which would mean eternal opulence to the fortunate finder. Many of these stories are undoubtedly myths, but it is equally true that a goodly number are based upon more or less authentic facts, so that a story of a lost treasure that in itself evidences a considerable degree of reasonableness, and is substantiated by material evidence and the word of people yet living, may not be uninteresting.

About midway between the towns of Oshawa and Whitby, on the north shore of Lake Ontario, is situated what appears at the present time to be nothing more than a bleak, barren marsh, with its uninviting bogs and dense overgrowth of rushes and vegetation peculiar to such places. It was not always thus, however, for many years ago this same area was a body of water of considerable depth, being in reality a bay of the lake. The story goes that during the war with the United States in 1813 the bay afforded shelter to a Canadian schooner while engaged in carrying specie from Kingston for the pay of the militia stationed at York. The ship was sailing up the lake before a brisk sou'wester set in the afternoon of a September day in the year 1813, and when a few miles west of Oshawa harbor it sighted an American boat, one of the pirate type that were prevalent on the great lakes during the war and wrought havoc with Canadian vessels. The captain knew the coast fairly well, and he immediately thought of the bay as a means of escape, reckoning that the American boat, being of greater draught, would be unable to navigate the comparatively shallow entrance. With all haste he, then, into the bay, and his surmise proved to be correct, for, while he was able to work up the bay till he was a considerable distance from the lake, the gunboat, by reason of its draught, was unable to enter. Not to be daunted, the Americans stood off as close to the shore as they dared and commenced to bombard the Canadian boat. The captain, fearing lest they might land and attack him on shore, thought it best to unload his cargo and endeavor to conceal it in the woods back from the shore. The task was extremely arduous because of the absence of any semblance of a dock, involving the necessity of carrying the gold in small boats as far inshore as possible, and shouldering it the remainder of the distance over the bog and uncertain footing which old stumps and sunken logs provided.

By dint of perseverance inspired by the momentary feat of assault at the hands of the enemy, the task was finally accomplished and the treasure temporarily secured in concealment. Darkness began to fall over the land, which added security to their position, since it afforded more complete concealment, and because of the fact that the Americans, when there was insufficient light to enable them to direct their fire, simply sailed away, to the great delight of the defenceless Canadians. Anxious to reach York and the protection of its fort, as they felt assured that the enemy had abandoned the attack, they began the work of reloading, preparatory to continuing their voyage. It is not hard to believe that the task was most difficult, considering that all was absolute darkness by now and the nature of the ground over which they had to carry the kegs of gold, nor is it at all improbable that, as the story goes, one of the kegs was dropped during the hauling from the small boat up to the side of the schooner. Means were not at hand to recover it, and indeed had they possessed facilities it might have been impossible to locate it and extricate it from the mucky bottom of the little bay. So, having finished loading, they weighed anchor and were soon glad to be once more on the open lake and on a fair way to a place of safety.

Chiefly through one of the crew, who was on the spot and saw the keg drop into the water, a William McGann, has the story been handed down. The bay has been long since emptied of water by reason of the encroaching of Lake Ontario and the deposit of sediment, but it is not known that the treasure has ever been recovered. Many have sought in vain and some have made the spot the mecca of their financial peregrinations. Divining rods and various devices have been used in the endeavor, and the appearance presented by many of these treasure-hunters working in the light of a lantern at the dead of night is extremely ghost-like. A number of cannon balls have been picked up in the vicinity, both by those engaged in the quest and by farmers working in the fields nearby, but the most of the sandstone or the pipping curlew is more apt to be encountered than the now submerged treasure of war times.

Tossing Bouquets.

Prominent among the leaders of the recent farmers' lower tariff deputations were three former Ottawans who have risen to eminence and fortune in the west. At the head of the manufacturers' high tariff deputations, also, was Mr. W. H. Rowley, who, remaining in Ottawa, has built up a great manufacturing concern that supplies millions of people with certain necessities of civilization. Ottawa men, whether they go on their travels or remain at home, seem to have the knack of rising to the top and taking a leading part in the life of the community or class of which they form a part.—Ottawa Journal.

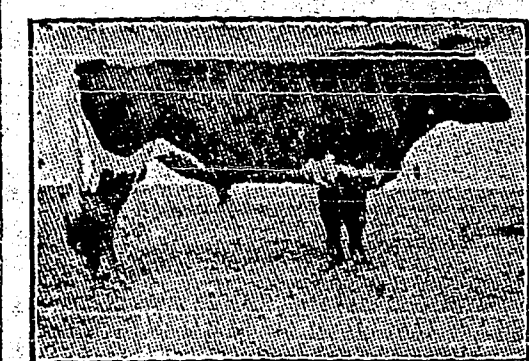

A London "Bull."

The following is part of a despatch sent from dear old London recently by a Canadian paper. The standard says: "Let us perfectly frank. The commercial arrangements between Canada and the United States must and can only be the thin end of the wedge of political union."

NEW AMERICAN BREED OF DAIRY CATTLE

The improvement of dairy breeds by selection, environment, feed, etc., for the greater utility to the dairy farmer, two characteristics should be placed foremost, writes W. H. Jenkins in Hoard's Dairyman. These are performance and constitution, or vitality, and after these beauty and symmetry of form. The history of this new American breed—the Columbian—breeds of dairy cattle will do well to study closely and learn its lessons. About thirty years ago Anson Gregory was keeping a herd of native cattle on his farm in Otsego county, N. Y. He noticed that one cow in his herd gave more and richer milk than the others, and he raised her heifer calves year after year. Mr. Gregory wanted a sire from a different herd, and he bought a line back, its dam being his neighbor's best cow. Mr. Gregory's best cow was bred to the line back bull for several years and a strain of line back cattle was established.

Mr. Gregory's two sons were now grown to manhood, and they took up the work of improving their new breed of cattle by selection. They continued the work of improvement by selection, feeding, etc., until they owned animals with a record of considerably over 500 pounds of butter in one year.

A new distinctive breed of American dairy cattle has been named the Columbian. The bull shown herewith, Miles Standish, is owned by F. L. Gregory, Otsego county, N. Y., whose father originated the breed.

Their type of cows being now established, three years ago the name Columbian was given these cattle under a charter from the state, and the Columbian Cattle Breeders' association was organized with five members.

The best and largest herd of Columbians is now owned by C. O. Gregory and his father on the farm where the breed originated. They have thirty-three cows. Some of the Columbian cattle were exhibited at local fairs in New York this year, but very few of this new butter breed have been offered for sale.

The Columbians so far have made good records as a butter breed of cattle, and there seems to be good reasons for believing they will take a permanent place among the standard dairy breeds.

HEAD OF THE FLOCK.

Important Points to Consider in Selecting the Ram.

In selecting a ram two classes of breeding should be avoided—the common scrub, that has no good characteristics to fix, and the "pure breed scrub" without individuality, whose purity of breeding only gives him greater power to ruin in the flock. Good individuality, backed by several generations of good ancestry, will insure prepotency with almost unfailing certainty, where the ewes are suitable and management correct.

Great attention should be paid to the ram's general contour. His structure should be firm and massive, with a broad, spacious breast, no disproportionate length of legs and well formed and fully developed quarters, especially the hindquarters. His loin should be stout and well knit, his features bold, and a muscular neck is desirable. A bold and courageous eye and carriage are indicative of spirit and vigor. His head should be long, but rather small and well molded.

Isolate Sick Animals.

Keep ailing stock in a place apart where you can give it especial care. In this way you may save the sick and not run the risk of infecting the healthy.

The Swineherd.

Roots and oilmen should have a place in the broad sow's ration.

A good brood sow is always worth much more than the market price of pork.

Full aged sows produce better litters and are more quiet at farrowing time than those that are immature.

The first month of a pig's life determines in a large measure the profit with which it will be grown.

It is a wretched piece of business to compel hogs to eat their food in the mud. A small feeding floor will soon pay for itself.

Dried blood meal is a valuable ration for hogs. It not only supplies them with an abundance of protein, but acts as a regulator of digestion.

Never buy a brood sow with loose legs and short, chunky body. She must have big feeding capacity in order to produce plenty of milk.

No Difference to the Hens

The sexton of a small church raises a few chickens in a small enclosure in his back yard. The eggs of these he sells to some members of the church. On a Saturday one of his customers asked him if he could spare a dozen eggs within the next two or three days. "Oh, yes, m'am," replied the sexton. "I'll bring you a dozen fresh ones tomorrow morning." "Oh, no," protested the housewife. "I should not want you to bring them on Sunday—not on Sunday, John." "Well, replied John, "all right, m'am, if you say so; but it don't make no difference to the hens."

Lawyers Beware

A young man at Oxford, who is ambitious to attain fame at the bar, was conversing with a friend touching the probabilities of success, when the latter was moved to take a pessimistic view of the situation. "Don't you," he asked, "ever despair of gaining a good practice at the law?" "I do not," was the confident response of the young disciple of Blackstone. "At least you will admit," went on the other, "that the profession is already overcrowded?" "Perhaps it is," responded the youth. "All the same, I propose to go in for law, and those who are already in the profession will have to take their chance."

I have taken six boxes of GIN PILLS altogether but got relief before I had taken near that amount. I had to get up some nights every fifteen minutes and use an instrument before I could urinate.

Now, I can lie in bed four or five hours without getting up. I can say that GIN PILLS have nearly cured me and I shall always keep a box in the house."

BABY'S OWN TABLETS FOR ALL BABIES

Every mother of young children should keep a box of Baby's Own Tablets in the house. No other medicine has relieved so many little ones of the ailments that afflict them as have Baby's Own Tablets—no other medicine can be given baby with that absolute sureness of safety as can these Tablets. The mother has the guarantee of a Government analyst that they do not contain a particle of those harmful drugs that make those so-called "soothing" stuffs so dangerous to the life of the little one. The Tablets never fail to be of benefit. Concerning them Mrs. Jno. A. Albert, Carleton Place, N.B., writes: "I am happy to state that I have used Baby's Own Tablets for constipation for my two children with great satisfaction." The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Her Methods Varied

After the third addition to the family it became necessary to secure the services of a permanent nurse.

"No my husband is very particular whom I engage as a nurse," said the mistress to a girl who had applied for the position. "He wishes me to go into the most minute details about your qualifications. Do you know how to prepare food? Can you sew and mend? Do you mind sitting up late at night? Are you faithful and devoted, and have you a kind, loving disposition? Will you—"

"Excuse me, ma'am; am I to take care of the baby or your husband?"

"You don't make very good music with that instrument," said the innocent bystander to the man behind the bass drum, as the band ceased to play.

"No," admitted the drum pounder, "but I drown a heap of bad."

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a running sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which cannot be cured by local Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free. We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Sold by Druggists, J. C. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, O. FARM HINTS

Varied Items of Interest to the Farming Community.

POULTRY

The following rules will be good ones to apply in connection with handling eggs on a co-operative basis; that is, where the community is thickly settled enough for a good number to be shipped:

A number of co-operative egg-producing associations are now in operation throughout the state and have been unusually successful in securing for the members of the association a satisfactory premium over ordinary store eggs. We recently noted the rules of one of these associations. In the thought that they would be of interest to poultrymen generally, we reproduce them herewith.

The eggs must not be over 7 days old at any time when delivered at the receiving place. They must be brought in at least once every week in winter and in hot weather they must be brought in twice a week.

The eggs must be taken in from the hen house twice a day.

All eggs must be clean and of a uniform size. No small or overly large eggs must be accepted.

As soon as gathered the eggs should be stamped and placed in the cartons and kept in a cool place until delivered. A cellar is all right if not too damp or musty.

Brown eggs shall be put in one carton and white in another and each carton so marked.

Stamp every egg with your number stamp so that the number shows up when the eggs are in the carton. Put the egg in the filler cornerwise and not straight up and down.

Your number stamp should be stamped on the right side on top of the carton and the color stamp on the left side.

Don't use too much ink in stamping. It might work through the shell, only a light mark is necessary. Try your stamp on paper first.

Don't wash the eggs. That takes off the glaze. Keep nest boxes and floors clean and well bedded with clean straw. Use a cloth to wipe the eggs if necessary.

Don't allow broody hens to sit on the eggs. Close them up separately.

Keep the small cockerels away from the hens when large enough. It is best to keep the large roosters away also when they can be done.

Don't put in any small or pullet eggs. Use them at home. Also all odd shaped or spotted eggs. They are just as good for use at home.

Don't put in any eggs from hidden nests, or eggs you are not absolutely sure of.

Remember that you will be held responsible for the quality of all the eggs you sell. If you sell any bad eggs they will be traced back to you and charged up double price. Any one who uses dishonest methods with us will be immediately dropped from the association.

We have been paying and expect to pay several cents a dozen over the regular market price for case eggs. We keep just enough to cover necessary expenses and to put a little into a reserve fund. This reserve fund belongs to you. At the end of the year this will be divided among the members if so decided, according to the amount of eggs they have sold, or if so decided will be kept as a reserve.

A statement will be given to each farmer at the close of the year showing how many eggs he has sold. As soon as you commence to sell eggs with us you belong to our association; you get an interest and a vote in same. You can say that the business is yours and you can get every cent that your eggs bring after expenses of handling have been taken out.

Obstinate Open Sores are Healed by Zam-Buk

For sores which defy all ordinary remedies, Zam-Buk should be tried. Old wounds, varicose ulcers, cold cracks, blood-poisoning and chronic skin diseases cannot resist the healing influence of this great herbal balm.

Miss Alma Bourque, of Notre Dame, Kent, Co., N.B., gives the following account of what Zam-Buk did for her after various other ointments and salves had failed. She writes:

"For months I suffered with a running sore on my leg. I tried several ointments and salves, but none of them could bring about a cure. The sore would just heal over, and then break out again. I read in a newspaper one day, of the good Zam-Buk had done, and so I determined to try it and see what this balm would do for me. I also purchased some Zam-Buk soap."

"I washed the sore night and morning with the soap, and then applied the balm. I continued with this treatment, and after using Zam-Buk for a few weeks the sore was completely healed. I have recommended Zam-Buk to one or two of my friends for sores, and in their cases it has been equally effective."

All druggists and stores sell Zam-Buk at 50c. box or may be had post free from Zam-Buk Co., for price. It is a sure cure for piles, inflamed places, cuts, burns, scalds, chapped hands, ulcers, eczema, scalp sores, and all similar diseases and injuries. Refuse harmful imitations.

Not Lately

The best man thought he'd take a look round and see that everything was running as a fastidious bride would wish it, and up in the room where the presents were displayed, alone and unhappy-looking, he came upon a youth, seemingly ready, like the wedding guest of the poet, to "beat his breast." He was wandering about, looking at silver and cut glass without seeing them, and the best man hardly knew how to approach him.

"Er—have you kissed the bride?" he asked at last.

And the answer told far more than its two meagre words might have been expected to convey. It was, "Not lately!"

Mother Earth, are the heroes dead? Do they thrill the soul of the years no more?

Are the gleaming snows and the poppies red

All that is left of the brave of yore?

Gone? In a grander form they rise! Dead? We may clasp their hands in ours,

And catch the light of their clearer eyes,

And wreath their brows with immortal flowers.

Wherever a noble deed is done, 'Tis the pulse of a hero's heart is stirred;

Wherever the Right has a triumph won,

There are the heroes' voices heard. —Edna Dean Proctor.

Omissions of History

Those Arama county rescals," he said, "ain't getting half what's coming to 'em. If nobody else will punish their political corruption good and proper, begad, I will!"

Shows Remarkable Progress

An epitome of the Report of The Great-West Life Assurance Company for 1910 which appears upon another page gives an account of remarkable progress and success.

It is no small distinction that a company, established but 19 years, should have reached a business in force exceeding $50,000,000, and should, for four successive years, have stood first among the companies for Canadian business. It is equally notable distinction that in all the rapid expansion occurring, the sound principles of economy have been given such prominence that no other Canadian company has a lower expense rate than the Great-West, and in investments approaching $5,000,000, no loss of principal or interest has yet occurred, while the interest rate on investments stands at the highly satisfactory figure of over 7 per cent.

It will be observed that over $14,000,000 of business was written by the Great-West in 1910, thus establishing a new Canadian record, and it is a clear indication of the value the policyholders attach to their contracts to find that with the large business was an equally noteworthy gain in business in force of over $11,000,000.

The original view of the founders of the Great-West Life has been abundantly endorsed by time—that an institution operating in the West, managed by those familiar with western conditions, and investing its funds in the profitable avenues available in the growing West—could do remarkably well for its policyholders.

Such a report as that issued by the company in 1910 clearly shows that the East has joined with the West in expressing appreciation of a company that in lower premiums, higher profits and liberal conditions can offer to those needing protection such advantageous policies.

The Review is the acknowledged advertising medium of the Creston valley, circulating in over one thousand homes throughout the Creston district. Our columns are open to correspondents on live questions of local interest. Contributions must be brief, written on one side of the paper only and signed, not necessarily for publication, but as evidence of good faith. We invite support in our endeavours to increase the usefulness of the Review by bringing in your advertisements, subscriptions and news. Complaints from subscribers as to non-receipt of paper will be promptly attended to. Address all communications to the editor.

Day was dawning, and the rays of the rising sun were turning the grey into gold, when the champion stump blower paid the editor another visit.

His face brightened visibly when he was informed that a worthy opponent was in the field against him, but on learning that the conditions of the match were that the "Echo" insisted on holding the stakes and nominating the judges he threw up his hands in horror. In vain I pointed with a wave of the hand in the general direction of Goat Mountain to the shadowy heights where are situated the vast business blocks owned and honestly obtained remember, by the man behind the Echo, all to no purpose I explained how that same individual always honored his promissary notes, and paid cash for his government postage stamps. The Champ only shook his head sadly and answered "No Mr. Editor, it is too much of a sure thing proposition for me, if the Echo hold the stakes and nominate the judges there will be no coampion, we shall both be beat". And with these words he picked up his stick of dynamite, shook my hand warmly, and a moment later the Champion Stump blower of the Creston Valley had left the Review Office.

ADDITIONAL LOCALS

Among the visitors to Creston this week we noticed a familiar face in the person of the Rev. J. J. Greenlee, who made so many friends during his short term of service in Creston, as pastor of the Presbyterian Church. Mr. Greenlee has been released from his studies in order that he may assist with the organization of the new congregations on the lake, and will spend the summer in active church work at Ainsworth, Proctor and Balfour, resuming his studies in the Fall. To a man of his active nature these duties will come as a welcome relief from the more theoretical grind of college study, and from our knowledge of Mr. Greenlee as a capable organizer, they will be performed with zeal and crowned with well merited success.

Father Beck was in town for a couple of days this week, arriving on the Monday train.

Miss L. M. Scott, the trained nurse of Moyie, was in town this week. The many friends of the Florence Nightingale of the Crows Nest Pass, will learn with regret that she herself is indisposed as the result of too strenuously working alleviating the sufferings of others, and as soon as her immediate duties are over Miss Scott will take a short holiday at the Coast.

Mr. F. Smythe, Editor of the Moyie Leader, was in town supplying the music for the K. P. Dance. The genial Fred came into the Review office, and took a shift for the editor, whilst we presented him with the news of the district.

A travelling man was in town this week with a set of the latest thing in pruning shears. They were demonstrated to the entire satisfaction of Mr. S. A. Speers to say nothing of Mr. Bevan and the editor, on the tree in front of the store. In fact if Frank had not hastily called the demonstrator off, his tree would have been as bald as Solomon, and he was the wisest man that ever lived.

Congratulations to Mr. J. Blinco, the popular secretary of the Fruit-growers Association, on his recent marriage.

Hyomei

A Breathable Remedy for Catarrh

The rational way to combat Catarrh is the Hyomei way, viz: by breathing. Scientists for years have been agreed on this point but failed to get an antiseptic strong enough to kill catarrh germs and not destroy the tissues of the membrane at the same time, until the discovery of Hyomei (pronounced High-o-me).

Hyomei is the most powerful yet healing antiseptic known. Breathe it through the inhaler over the inflamed and germ-ridden membrane four or five times a day, and in a few days the germs will disappear.

A complete Hyomei outfit, including the inhaler costs $1.00 and extra bottles, if afterwards needed, cost but 50 cents. Obtainable from your druggist or postpaid from The R. T. Booth Co., Ltd., Port Erie, Ont. Hyomei is guaranteed to cure asthma, croup, sore throat, coughs, colds or grip or refund your money back. Sold and guaranteed by the Creston Drug & Book Co.

Doctors Said Health Gone

Suffered with Throat Trouble

Mr. B. W. D. Barnes, ex-Sheriff of Warren County, Tennessee, in a letter from McMinnville, Tennessee, writes: "I had throat trouble and had three doctors treating me. All failed to do me any good, and pronounced my health gone. I concluded to try Peruna, and after using four bottles can say I was entirely cured."

Mr. B. W. D. Barnes.

Unable to Work.

Mr. Gustav Himmelreich, Hochheim, Texas, writes: "For a number of years I suffered whenever I took cold, with severe attacks of asthma, which usually yielded to the common home remedies. "Last year, however, I suffered for eight months without interruption so that I could not do any work at all. The various medicines that were prescribed brought me no relief. "After taking six bottles of Peruna, two of Laecupia, and two of Manalin, I am free of my trouble so that I can do all my farm work again. I can heartily recommend this medicine to any one who suffers with this annoying complaint and believe that they will obtain good results."

A young man once carried a lady some flowers. "Oh, aren't they beautiful!" she said. "And there is a little dew on them still."

"Yes," stammered the youth, "there is a little dew on them, but it will be paid tomorrow."

HOW SKIN-TROUBLES HAVE BEEN CURED

A Remarkable Record of Itching, Burning, Disfiguring Eruptions Successfully Treated.

That those who have suffered long and hopelessly from eczema and other torturing, disfiguring eruptions of the skin and scalp and who have lost faith in all manner of treatment, may learn that there is one way to find immediate relief, the following remarkable series of condensed testimonials is published:

W. H. White, 312 E. Cabot St., Philadelphia. "Knew to make a mass of eruption. Suffering almost insupportable for six long years. Had to scratch till blood ran and health was undermined from lack of sleep. Cuticura Remedies cured it without a mark."

Mrs. M. C. Matland, Jasper, Ont. "Itchy rash on her baby's face when but three months old. It spread over entire body. Put mittens on him to prevent tearing skin. Reduced to a skeleton. One bath with Cuticura Soap and application of Cuticura Ointment, soothed him to sleep. A single set cured him. Thanks child would have died but for Cuticura Remedies."

Mrs. Wm. Hunt, 230 Fairmount Ave., Newark, N. J. "Whole body a mass of torturing eczema. Agony beyond words. Hair all fell out. Itching unbearable. Had to scratch till blood ran and health was undermined from lack of sleep. Cuticura Remedies cured it without a mark."

Mrs. J. B. Renaud, 277, Montana St., Montreal. "Treated by doctors 25 years for bad eczema on legs. It bowed from knees down; foot like raw flesh. Doctor advised cutting leg off. Decided to try Cuticura Remedies first. Two months' use of Cuticura Remedies she was cured."

Mrs. Nora Emmott, 26, Lena Gardens, Brook Green, London. "Two little girls had dreadful skin trouble that doctors called ringworm. Grief with intense itching. Hospital treatment gave frightful pain but did no good. Suffered three years. Cured by three sets of Cuticura Soap and Ointment."

H. A. Krutkoff, 8714 Wabash Ave., Chicago. "Itching eruption spread from hands to body. Literally tore his skin off in shreds. Doctors and remedies did no good. Cuticura Soap, Ointment and Pills cured him quickly and cured disease in three weeks."

Frank Gridley, 325 E. 43rd St., New York. "Itchy rash on his face when but three months old. It spread over entire body. Put mittens on him to prevent tearing skin. Reduced to a skeleton. One bath with Cuticura Soap and application of Cuticura Ointment, soothed him to sleep. A single set cured him. Thanks child would have died but for Cuticura Remedies."

Mrs. Kate Brougham, 200 Dewey St., Jennings, La. "Rash came on her baby and soon turned to watery, crusty eczema over face, head and body. He was a fearful sight and all attempts at cure were fruitless. Easily improved in a week by use of Cuticura Remedies and soon skin was clear and healthy."

C. J. Dance, 27, New Road, Brentford, England. "Tortured for five years with bad skin disease. Attended hospital five months without success. Covered with eruption. No sleep nor rest. Felt like tearing himself to pieces with terrible itching. With first application of Cuticura Ointment was relieved and got good night's sleep. In a fortnight Cuticura Ointment cured him as if by magic."

Cuticura Soap, Cuticura Ointment, Cuticura Remedies and Cuticura Pills are sold by drug stores everywhere. Send to Father Drug & Chem. Corp., Trenton, Mass., for free 32-page Cuticura Book on skin diseases.

WHERE COOK'S MEN DIED.

Interesting Relics of Massacre Discovered Recently.

The exact spot where 10 members of Capt. Cook's expedition were massacred by the Maoris 137 years ago has been definitely determined, and some interesting relics of the ancient tragedy discovered by Robert McNab in Grass Cove, Queen Charlotte Sound.

It may, perhaps, be remembered that on Dec. 17, 1773, the captain of the Adventure sent two officers and eight men across the sound to gather wild geese for the ship's company. They failed to return, and searchers who were sent out finally discovered evidence of a tragedy in a number of baskets containing human flesh and fern root, also a hand of a white man. Grass Cove was previously conjectured to be the scene of the ancient tragedy, but Mr. McNab, however, has settled the question once and for all by discovering the exact spot where the Englishmen were murdered.

After Mr. McNab and the party of friends with him had decided that the massacre took place in a certain bend in Grass Cove—a conclusion to which they came by comparing the locality with the description given in Cook's papers—they went ashore and spoke to a settler, Mr. Greensill, who was living on the spot, regarding any evidence of the massacre that he may have seen. Mr. Greensill said he had dug up in his garden an old flintlock, a barrel, a bayonet, and some other kind of a weapon he was unable to identify.

This latter weapon Mr. McNab at once identified as an officer's hanger, which was doubtless the one used by Midshipman Rowe, who was in charge of the boat's crew. There was a description of the sword given in the accounts and they corresponded exactly with the weapon dug up.

It was with that hanger that Midshipman Rowe killed two Maoris and wounded the chief before being overpowered and killed. This discovery places beyond a shadow of a doubt the exact locality of the massacre, which took place on the spot now occupied as Mr. Greensill's garden in Grass Cove. Mr. McNab discounts the idea that the weapon may have been carried there from the fact that the locality exactly corresponds with the description given by Capt. Cook.—London Standard.

ROBES HAND-WOVEN.

Cottage Looms in Suffolk at Work on Royal Velvet.

In the ancient borough of Sudbury in Suffolk the few remaining hand loom weavers are hard at work making the velvet for the coronation robes.

Among the number are the Misses Foakes, members of a family of weavers who in days past were makers of hunting for the royal navy. In their cottage, which was once visited by the Queen, are two hand looms on which are two lengths of beautiful velvet, one rich crimson in color and the other dark brown.

The weavers are seated when at their looms, their feet working pedals resembling those of an organ. There are two sets of threads, the visible one forming the back of the material, and the other the pile, each of these being delicately threaded through vertical threads known as the harness. The weaver passes the shuttle backward and forward, and each warp and weft is pressed home by a twisting wooden frame. A cutter which runs across the loom on a wire cuts the threads to make the pile.

The process of manufacture is slow and tedious. The time is occupied not so much in the weaving as in the cleaning. At each foot or so made the weaver uses a curious knife like a spokeshave and shaves the surface of the velvet to clean it. There are now not more than thirty hand loom weavers left in Sudbury, the Misses Foakes being among the number. The rows of weavers' cottages, now occupied by other artisans and general workers, show the extent of the industry fifty years ago.

A Plea for Rubbernecks.

Be good to the rubbernecks. They are the people who find time to attend the weddings and who make the public opinion that decides if the bride looked pretty or was a fright. They also attend the funerals, and it is through them that busy people learn if the corpse looked natural and if the relatives were as grief stricken as they should have been. They decide if a woman's new dress is becoming, if a girl makes a good match, if a new baby is pretty. They make the funerals that is favorable or opposed to a girl's singing her pino playing or her recitations in public. They are the opinion makers. Be good to them.

Nearly Hanged as a Spy.

Perhaps the most remarkable incident in the career of Senator Elkins, who has just died, occurred when, as a young man, he was fighting for the Union in the Civil War. He was captured by a guerrilla band, and would have been promptly hanged as a spy had it not been for the intervention of a member of the band, who recognized him as a boyhood friend. Many years later, when Senator Elkins was rich and famous, he heard that the man who had saved his life was sorry, twenty years in prison for robbing a bank, and he used his influence to bring about the release of his former benefactor.

Her Attractiveness.

Mr. Norvey—Miss Roxley, I adore you. Will you not be my wife? Miss Roxley (haughtily)—The idea of your proposing to a girl in my situation! You should know better. Mr. Norvey—I do know better, but no richer.

Where Ignorance is Bliss.

"He married the girl he first saw trying her hair in her back yard." "Love at first sight, eh?" "Not much; he never knew it was the same girl."

THE TROUBLE SWEEPING OVER CANADA IS AN EPIDEMIC

Weakened and Broken Constitutions Left Behind—How to Regain New Health and Strength

La Grippe is one of the most dangerous diseases that annually sweeps over Canada. It starts with a sneeze—a slight cold—and ends with a complication of troubles. It lays the strong man on his back; it tortures men with fevers and chills with headache and backaches. Its victims are left low-spirited and depressed, and an easy prey to bronchitis, pneumonia, rheumatism, and often that most dreaded of all diseases—consumption. You can avoid la grippe entirely by keeping the blood rich and red by the occasional use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. The trouble takes as its victims those whose blood is in a poor condition, and its after-effects are more lingering and more lasting than the trouble itself. For the after-effects of la grippe there is absolutely no other medicine can equal Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Every dose helps to make rich, red blood that drives disease from the system, and makes weak, despondent men and women bright, cheerful and strong. If you have suffered in any way from the epidemic of la grippe that has been sweeping over Canada, give this great health-restoring medicine a trial, and it will not disappoint you. It is proof of the wonderful power of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills over the after-effects of this disease. Mr. P. E. Paulin, collector of customs at Caraque, N.B., says: "A few winters ago I had a severe attack of la grippe, which completely broke me down. I had to take to my bed for several weeks, and although during that time I employed a doctor I did not seem to recover from the trouble. I was left terribly weak, did not sleep well, had night sweats and little or no appetite. I was really a physical wreck. On a former occasion I had used Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for general debility with such great success that I decided to try them again. I sent for a half dozen boxes and began to take the Pills at once. When taking the second box I began to feel quite a change in my condition. I was able to walk about the house and my appetite was improving. From that time on I gained strength every day, and before the six boxes were done I was able to return to the office and attend to my work. I have since enjoyed the best of health, and think Dr. Williams' Pink Pills the best medicine for trouble of this kind."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills not only promptly cure the serious after-effects of la grippe, but they make well and strong all persons suffering from any form of debility or general weakness. These Pills have no laxative or purgative action; their mission is to make new, rich, red blood, and thus fortify and strengthen every organ and every part of the body. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by all medicine dealers, or sent by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 by addressing The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Face the Sun

Don't hunt after trouble, but look for success. You'll find what you look for; don't look for distress. If you see but your shadow, remember, I pray, That the sun is still shining, but you're in the way.

Don't grumble, don't bluster, don't dream and don't shrink, Don't think of your worries, but think of your work.

The worries will vanish, the work will be done, No man sees his shadow who faces the sun.

"That man," said the Londoner to his fair American cousin, to whom he was showing the sights of the capital—that man, waiting there on the pavement for the 'bus, is a great philanthropist."

"Waal, waal, waal, waal!" said his American cousin.

"He spends his whole life," continued the Londoner, "helping his fallen brothers and sisters. He raises them when they are down. They stretch out their hands appealingly to him, and he crushes them with his mighty hand, sure of help."

"Waal, what a dandy guy!" cried the American cousin. "Ain't he a fair peach, now. Whoever is he?"

"He is the instructor," replied the Londoner, "at our local roller-skating rink."

Judge Austin, who was among the guests at the Law society banquet at Bristol, told a story which shows the power of a woman's tears in a court of justice. One miserably cold night, at the close of a long sitting of the Bristol county court, a poor, shivering woman, with an ill-clad infant in her arms, asked Judge Armstrong to stay the execution against her husband. Tears poured down her cheeks as she told a piteous story of want and his honor at once complied with her request. Drying her eyes, she thanked him for the boon. As she passed out of the court she winked at the policeman at the door, saying: "Had the old chap that time!"

Be ready in the golden now To do a helpful deed, And never let the chance go by To meet a sister's need.

Don't wait until another time, For she who waits may lose The grandest chance of all her life; It is not ours to choose.

The Evolution of the CUTLET

"When we begin using other meats they must be chopped."

THE cutlet as we know it is a very ancient thing, from what it meant to our grandmothers.

In their day it was of veal, a cut from the loin or possibly from the rib, to be crumbed and fried and eaten with peas, or perhaps with tomato sauce, the slight acidity of the latter making it a suitable adjunct to the rather negative flavor of the meat.

If grandmother were English in birth or breeding, she probably was familiar with mutton cutlets, cut from the neck or from the loin; while, if she were Scotch, she knew the cutlet's first cousin, the collop—a slice like a cutlet, but cut from the leg of veal or mutton.

None of these, however, as I have said, bear more than a distant resemblance to the cutlet as we have it today.

Not only have we devised novel methods of cooking it that were never dreamed of by a former generation, but we have evolved an entirely new school of cutlets, made of chicken and game, of fish and of lobster. For my own part, I am quite prepared to have clam cutlets offered me as a culinary novelty, and I really see no reason why they would not be quite as reasonable as cutlets of lobster.

Though we may smile at the innovation, we may yet own that the results of the inventions are extremely good and that they furnish that longed-for boon to the housekeeper—something different for the table from the hackneyed round of roast, broiled, boiled and fried, of which we tire, varied it as we may by fresh combinations and unfamiliar sauces.

The cutlet as it is best known, even now, is of veal, and is usually served with a sauce, either plain or breaded. My own favorite method of preparing it is to have the cutlet trimmed into pieces not much larger than a silver dollar, to have these pounded with the head of a hammer or a hatchet, sprinkled with a few drops of lemon juice, then rolled in cracker crumbs, dipped into beaten egg, rolled in cracker crumbs again and fried to a good brown in deep hot fat. Tomato sauce may be served with them. When they are cooked in this way they are a quite different thing from the veal cutlet as most of us know it. The treatment with the hammer breaks up the rather tough fibers and the meat is more easily masticated. And veal requires thorough mastication to make it anything but a menace to the ordinary digestion.

This recipe may be varied a little by omitting the lemon juice, peppering and salting the cutlets slightly, dipping them in beaten egg and then in grated parmesan cheese before rolling in bread crumbs and frying them. This is an Italian touch and seldom fails to please any one who tries it.

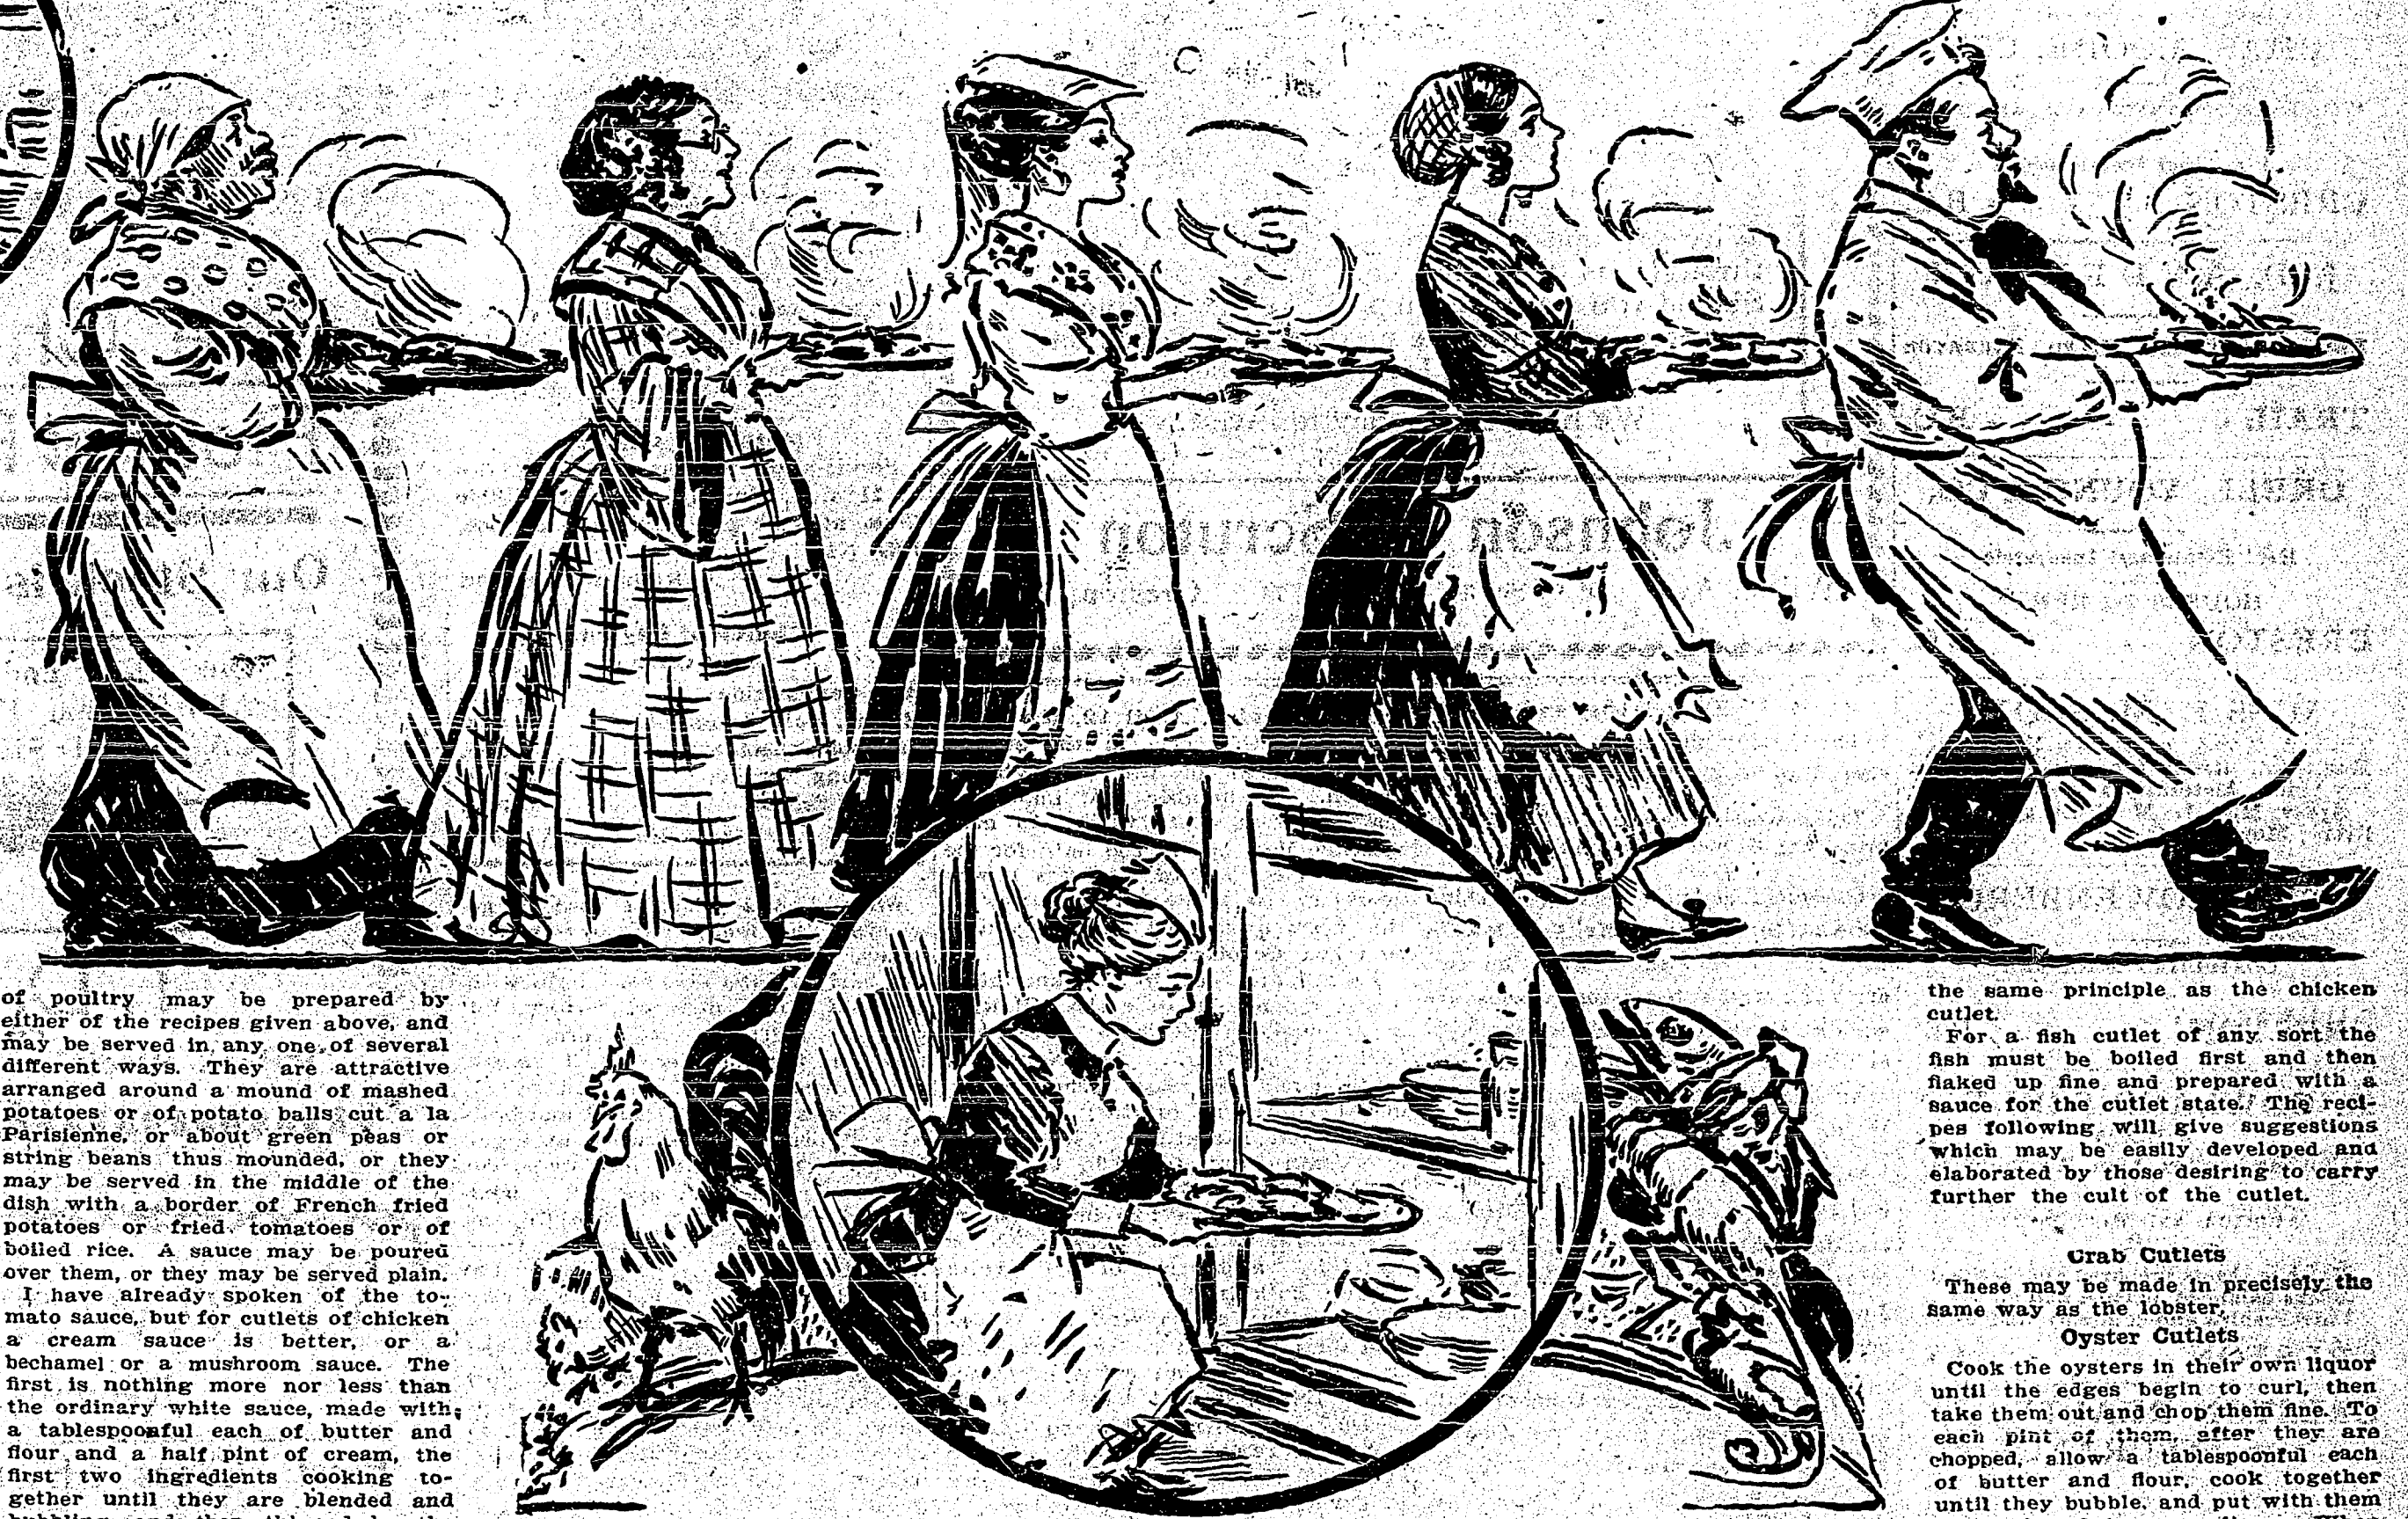

The cutlet may also be broiled satisfactorily, but for this very tender veal should be chosen, and this, too, should be hammered a little after it is divided into pieces of the right size. To make them still more tender, lay them in a little salad oil to which you have added pepper and salt at discretion and leave them in this for fifteen minutes before cooking, turning them several times in the oil bath. Broil them for eight or ten minutes. They are especially good if served with fried or baked tomatoes.

All these are the cutlet in what we might call its natural state. The veal cutlet, made of plain and unminced meat, is a very simple affair. When we begin using other meats for the cutlet, they must be chopped first.

There is the chicken cutlet, for instance. What is it, after all, but a modified croquette? The chicken is chopped, a sauce is made by cooking together a tablespoonful of flour and one of butter, pouring upon them enough of milk to make a pint, of chicken stock, stirring until this chicken is added, and the mixture is cooked to a good brown.

But chicken cutlets may be made in a fashion which renders them quite a different thing from croquettes masquerading under another name. For this dish uncooked chicken is needed—two cups of either the white or the dark meat, or both, minced fine and qualified by the addition of a tablespoonful of boiled ham, also minced fine; a teaspoonful of onion juice, a couple of tablespoonfuls each of cream and melted butter and the beaten yolk of an egg. After these are all mixed there may be added to them a cupful of fresh breadcrumbs soaked until soft in a half cupful of hot milk, and the mixture, when cool and stiff, may be made into cutlet shape with the hands and fried as before.

This dish is rather more trouble to prepare than the one made from the cooked meat, but it has an entirely different flavor from the ordinary chicken cutlet or croquette.

of poultry may be prepared by either of the recipes given above, and may be served in any one of several different ways. They are attractive arranged around a mound of mashed potatoes or of potato balls; cut a la Parisienne, or about green peas or string beans thus mounded, or they may be served in the middle of the dish with a border of French fried potatoes or fried tomatoes or of boiled rice. A sauce may be poured over them, or they may be served plain.

I have already spoken of the tomato sauce, but for cutlets of chicken a cream sauce is better, or a bechamel or a mushroom sauce. The first is nothing more nor less than the ordinary white sauce, made with a tablespoonful each of butter and flour and a half pint of cream, the first two ingredients cooking together until they are blended and bubbling, and then thinned by the addition of the hot milk stirred into them until the sauce is the thickness of double cream. Salt and white pepper to taste are then added and the sauce is ready.

The bechamel sauce, for all its French name, is no more elaborate. It is made in precisely the same way, except that, instead of using a half pint of cream, the half pint of fluid is made up of equal parts of cream and strained and seasoned chicken stock. The process of making is exactly the same.

While a mushroom sauce follows the same general plan, there are a few variations. Here, as in the others, a tablespoonful each of butter and flour and a half pint of liquid are required, but the flour must be browned, the liquid must be half brown stock or gravy and half mushroom liquor and after it has reached the correct stage of thickness—that of heavy cream—a half cupful of chopped mushrooms and a tablespoonful of sherry should be added to the sauce with the other seasoning of salt and pepper.

"Put them in a cold place before frying."

A dish of chicken cutlets, even if made from left-over cooked meat, served with a mushroom sauce and French fried potatoes or green peas, makes as attractive a lunch as you need wish for a guest or for the family.

But there are other cutlets besides these, as I have already intimated. Cutlets of fish are usually made of minced fish, though I have seen salmon and halibut cut into pieces shaped like cutlets and broiled or fried in shallow fat. The fish or lobster or crab or oyster cutlet, as we usually meet it, is prepared in a less simple fashion. It is made on the same principle as the chicken cutlet.

For a fish cutlet of any sort the fish must be boiled first and then flaked up fine and prepared with a sauce for the cutlet state. The recipes following will give suggestions which may be easily developed and elaborated by those desiring to carry further the cult of the cutlet.

Crab Cutlets

These may be made in precisely the same way as the lobster.

Oyster Cutlets

Cook the oysters in their own liquor until the edges begin to curl, then take them out and chop them fine. To each pint of them add a tablespoonful each of butter and flour, cook together until they bubble, and put with them a half pint of the oyster liquor. When the sauce is thick and smooth, put in the chopped oysters and a beaten egg, take from the fire, season with salt and pepper and the juice of half a lemon, let all stand until entirely cold, form into cutlets, dip in beaten egg and breadcrumbs and fry in deep fat.

THE HOUSEMOTHERS' EXCHANGE

IMPORTANT NOTICE

BECAUSE of the enormous number of letters sent to the Exchange, must ask contributors to limit their communications to 100 words, except in cases of formulas or recipes. This rule is for the benefit of all, and if any request in this respect is made, it is to be printed many more letters.

A Peach Cobbler

A PEACH cobbler is one of the delights of my childhood, and one for which I gladly respond to the request for a recipe. Here is the recipe: Take one quart of peaches, wash them, and remove the stones. Cut them into small pieces. In a large bowl, mix one cup of sugar, one cup of flour, and one cup of butter. Add the peaches and mix well. Bake in a greased pan for one hour.

The yellow dishes are thick and buttery for this purpose. The best quality of rice is the best. Sprinkle with sugar and butter. Bake in a greased pan for one hour.

Carrot Plum Pudding

In a number of the Exchange published a long while ago I was requested to send in the recipe for carrot pudding. I have now prepared it for you. It is a very simple dish, and is well liked by all.

One cup each of brown sugar, seeded raisins, cleaned currants, grated carrots, chopped suet mixed with milk (almonds, yolks and egg whites) and a cup of flour and a teaspoonful of soda dissolved in hot water.

Mix as you would cake and steam for three hours. Serve with hard or with cream.

Mrs. E. P. (Port Haven, Mich.). Other contributors who have eaten carrot pudding have found it to be a very good one, and it is indeed to be recommended for a simple, comprehensive and novel recipe.

An Old Wine

I am sending the accompanying recipe in response to a query made several weeks ago. If you have not already published it, please do so. It is a very good one, and is well liked by all.

Tomato Wine

Express the juice from clean, ripe tomatoes, strain off the seeds, adding no water. To each gallon of the juice add 4 pounds of brown sugar. This should be done after the liquid has stood a warm place for a day and is on the point of fermenting. Stir from the bottom and pour into a cask. Cover the bung with cheesecloth to exclude insects and leave the cask alone for two or three months. By the fermentation should have ceased. Draw off very carefully, not to disturb the sediment, and turn into bottles. Cork and seal. Keep in a cool place, and serve in bottles upon their sides. T. E. H. (Atlanta, Ga.).

Here again I pause to remind the housemother who asked for the foregoing recipe that canned tomatoes may be used instead of fresh, should her impudence to try the formula prevent her from waiting eight months or more.

Lard in Cake

Allow me to support T. E. H. (Chicago) upon the lard question. I have made cakes here then eleven years, and one of them had a bit of butter in it. I have been highly complimented upon them, too, and one of the shortest ways of making lard is to use butter and one uses less, for it is shorter the butter as I include my favorite recipe. Some one may like it. It is very easy. The quantity here described makes two scented cakes.

A Cheap and Good Cake

Two cups of sugar, 1/2 of a cup of lard, 1/2 of butter, 1 cup of sweet milk, 2 eggs, 3 cups of flour, sifted twice with a sifter, and a pinch of soda. Mix the lard be used salt to taste. Any flavoring you like. Bake in a greased pan for one hour.

Removal of Skins of Peppers

Let the member from Haverhill, Mass. (John B. P.) say that this is my method of loosening the skins of peppers or chilies. Lay them in a bowl in a moderate oven and leave them there until the skins begin to brown slightly. Then sprinkle with water quickly over them and cover with a cloth. The skins may be pulled off easily.

The job of skinning the peppers as usually performed is so disagreeable that we are indebted to you for the simple device.

Lime in a Kettle

Please tell me how to get the lime deposit out of my teakettle and how to prevent the recurrence of it. T. E. H. (Detroit, Mich.).

Fill the kettle with vinegar, diluted with one-half as much water. If the vinegar be weak, add no water. Cover the kettle and bring to a boil. Keep this up for twenty minutes. By then the lime should be disintegrated sufficiently for you to scrape it off in flakes. Fill the kettle again with water that has been boiled before and cooled. Rinse out a clean kettle shell into it. Keep it there, removing it every few days when the incrustation of lime attracted to it becomes very thick. Then get a clean shell.

Peanut Brittle and Mexican Kisses

Kindly give a constant reader a recipe for "peanut brittle." This is not the hard peanut taffy, but is made in thin layers and broken in pieces. Also for making the "white Mexican" with nuts. M. B. L. (Peru, Ill.).

Mix together (bringing just enough to incorporate the ingredients) a cupful, each, of molasses and brown sugar, two tablespoonfuls of melted butter, and a half cupful of vinegar. Put them over the fire and boil without stirring until a little dropped into cold water will harden and be brittle. Let the mixture of hatched peanuts, removed immediately from the fire, stir in a teaspoonful of baking soda; give a few quick turns of the spoon, and pour upon buttered pans.

Is this not what you mean by "white Mexican" with nuts?

Mexican Kisses

Mix lightly together three cupfuls of light brown sugar and a cupful of perfectly sweet milk. Put over the fire and boil until a little dropped into cold water makes a soft ball when kneaded with the fingers. Be careful not to have the fire so hot as to scorch the candy. Add a tablespoonful of butter, as soon as this is fairly hot, take the kettle from the range, flavor with vanilla extract and stir in a cupful of nuts—English walnuts, hickory nuts or pecans—broken into bits.

Some Left-Over Recipes

The correspondent from whose letter we drew some admirable recipes two weeks ago supplies more of the same sort:

A Salad of Left-Overs

Left-over green beans make an excellent luncheon salad, with a French dressing and the addition of small cubes of cold potatoes.

Warm-Over Corn

Cut cold, boiled corn from the cob (or use drained canned corn that has been cooked), and put over the stove with a half cup of strained tomatoes and half a sweet bell pepper—sliced and shredded after seeding. Cook until heated, all through, and you have a dish no one would expect. Add a dash of onion, parboiled and minced, is an improvement.

French Way of Frying Green Corn

To every 8 ears cut from the cob (raw) add 2 bell peppers—sliced, seeded and cut fine, into a frying pan pour just enough of the best olive oil to cover the bottom. Put in the corn and peppers when the oil begins to smoke, and stir with a fork almost constantly.

To Polish Seashells

In answer to the inquiry as to polishing seashells, published in the Exchange a little while ago, I can tell you how the natives of our Gulf coast do the work.

They use a piece of the emery cloth, or other cloth with a roughened surface, dipping it in emery dust and rubbing until all foreign matter is removed from the surface of the shell, bringing out into view the natural tint.

Then they rub briskly with an oiled cloth until a luster like varnish appears upon the shell.

Generally, when I polished seashells or seashells I used the last a light coating of good copal or Japan varnish, to prevent them from being soiled in the handling.

I hope this may be of service to your Los Angeles correspondent, as I have used this method of enhancing the natural beauty of many seashells.

The most careless reader of our Exchange cannot overlook the pleasing fact that it grows more and more worthy of its name. Our housemothers watch for opportunities of mutual helpfulness and improve these nobly. She who has cut, cut, classified and prepared for the editorial heart with affectionate satisfaction to wit, that an amazingly small percentage of published queries and requests remain unanswered, it is

As if we watched and waited, scanning one another's notions, over on the alert for chances to "do good and to communicate."

Which, by the way, was our first Exchange motto!

Passion-Flower Jelly

Can you tell me how to make jelly of the fruit of the passion-flower vine? I have heard of this, and I have seen the vine and the large pulbule fruit is yellow with ripe berries.

Can you help me to a recipe for utilizing it in jelly? E. J. W. (Oakland, Cal.).

I have eaten this thing, and I never had, and I recall the odd but pleasant acid. I see no reason why you should not treat them as you would any other fruit. Cut them open and back into a stone jar without water. Set in a deep kettle of warm water and bring slowly to the boil. Leave them in the hot-water kettle, closely covered, until the fruit is soft enough to be strained through a cheesecloth bag. Measure; allow a pound of sugar to each pint of liquid. Put the fat back over the fire. Spread the sugar in shallow pans and set in an open oven to heat. When the sugar has boiled twenty minutes, turn in the hot sugar and stir until it is dissolved. Let it boil 1 minute and fill jelly-glasses heated by rolling them in hot water, leaving them wet. When cold, cover with melted paraffine and fit on metal tops.

These are general rules for jellifying fruits of all kinds which cannot be altered to the advantage of the consumer. I have used them for forty years and never had a failure.

Salt and Flour for Cleaning

You once printed directions for dry-cleaning fabric of different kinds with a mixture of salt and flour. Please publish them again for the benefit of all. A CONSTANT READER (San Francisco, Cal.).

To each quart of flour allow a heaping tablespoonful of salt. Sift together twice and spread in broad pans. Set the pans in the open oven, stirring often until the flour is warm. You should be able to hold your hand in it with comfort. Turn into a deep pan large enough to contain the article to be cleaned and treat it exactly as you would wash in suds and wring gently and faithfully between your fingers.

This done, throw away the grimy suds and cover the stuff with clean flour without the salt. Throw a cloth over all to keep out dust and leave thus for twenty-four hours. Then shake and brush out the excess of flour.

You may use fine white meal in place of flour if you like. Stuff cleaned without wetting, remain clean longer than when washed. If well done the effect is entirely satisfactory.

To Can Sweet Bell Peppers

I am glad to be able to answer the inquiry respecting canning sweet peppers. I have had gratifying success with the following:

Cut the stems and remove the seeds and cut the peppers into narrow strips. Cover with boiling water a little salt and wash in clean, cold water. Pack in quart cans and pour into each can a cup of vinegar, boiling hot, to which have been added a pinch of salt. Seal the cans.

Two dozen fill a quart jar.

Mrs. L. L. (Dumerville, Wis.).

If further news of the community of interest prevalent in our great family were needed, we have it in this letter. Our Wisconsin member of our family hold of faith (and works) has watched to some purpose, and is glad to take up the torch dropped from another's needle. "So ever mote it be!"

For Leather

Kindly tell me what oil mixture to use upon Spanish leather.

I know of nothing better for fine leather than neat's-foot oil. Apply with a cloth wrung out in the oil. Rub in thoroughly, but do not get enough on to make the surface "gummy."

Scripture Cake

I wrote out the recipe in full for the "biblical cake" inquired for by T. E. H. I have never eaten the cake, but am assured that it will keep for many months and be all the better for keeping.

As other recipes for the scriptural cake have merely given references, leaving readers to look one up, I am glad to send that contributed by our Portland friend:

That Scriptural Cake

1 cup of honey—Isaiah, xlv. 11.
1 cup of salt—Isaiah, xlv. 11.

Follow Solomon's advice for making a good loaf and you will have a good cake.

Put 1/2 cup of oil in a bowl and add 1/2 cup of water. Mix well and add 1/2 cup of salt. Mix well and add 1/2 cup of flour. Mix well and add 1/2 cup of sugar. Mix well and add 1/2 cup of raisins and chop nuts. Make one large or two small cakes.

A fine golden eagle was being exhibited in town on Tuesday, which was shot by Mr. W. Wright across the Kootenay river, on Easter Monday. The bird measures over six and a half feet from tip to tip, and is a splendid specimen. Mr. Otis Wisler, of the Wisler Tailor Shop, has purchased the bird, Otis is a Taxidermist, and he will stuff and mount the same, after which it will adorn the wall of the Wisler Home.

On Wednesday, April 12, the Local W. C. T. U. met in the Sunday school room of the Presbyterian church. A number of important matters were dealt with. There are six local superintendents, one each over the following departments: Mother's meetings, parlor meeting, Anti-Narcotics, juvenile and Sunday school work, medal contests, military and boy scouts and literature. These superintendents are requested to report their appointment to office and any work done to the Provincial superintendent whose address is to be found in each issue of the "White Ribbon Bulletin."

It was decided to send the affiliation dues to the Provincial Treasurer and to make an extra effort between this and next meeting to increase our membership so that a more representative body of the ladies of Creston may have a vote at our annual election of officers.

When I was young I used to go down the long, potato row, and whack the weeds out with the hoe. Or, early in the summer morn, with one old mule, morose, forbarn, I'd go to cultivate the corn. All through the summer day I toiled, my raiment reeking wet and soiled, and I was fried and baked and boiled and broiled. And when at night I sought my bed my feet were like two tons of lead, and till next morning I was dead. When to the country I repair and see wondrous things, I always go up in the air. For now the farmer surely feels like Cleopatra, as he reels along on plows with painted wheels. He drives a large and handsome team; his implements are like a dream; spring seats are spiked to every beam. He blithely tills his fertile lands, and never soils his lily hands, not in the mud and gumbo, stands. His pants are creased and show no dirt; his feet are by the thorns unhurt; he often wears a parboiled shirt. And when he goes to town he makes the journey in a g of shakes; his auto runs to beat the snakes. He has a gas plant of his own, a bathroom and a telephone, and often he has seeds to loan. Thus are the old world's changes rung! It seems to me that I was stung long, long ago, when I was young!
