NEW LICENSE LAW IS NOW IN EFFECT

All Hunters Must Now Have License ==No License Granted To Kids Under Sixteen Years

Acircular regarding the new gun license regulations is hungin the court house. It will be well for all those who expects to go abroad with guns or rifles to get wised up.

An Ordinary License costs $2.50 This allows the holder to hunt birds and deer but not big game The general License is worth $5.00 according to the goverment tariff, and allows the holder to hunt anything that walks, creeps or flies and is not protected by game regulations or some other shield For $ 10.00 a man can trap also. A guide must pay $ 5.00 for a license and it allows him to act as a guide only, and does not permit the shooting or trapping of game. Farmers get an ordinary license, good on their own land, free. Prospectors get an ordinary license with their Free Miners Certificateif they want it. Indians do not require a license Neither do members of Civilian Rifle Associations going and coming from practice at ranges.

Every license expires on March 31 in each year. It is granted at the above rates to residents only. Kids under 16 years of age cannot get licenses except when their parent request them and guarantee to keep the younster with them while he is packing gun. Automatic shot guns, pump guns and any guns that contain more than one shell in the magazine are taboo and must not be used at any time.

If a man is discouvered between an hour after sun down and an hour before sunrise with both a pit lamp and a gun in his possession he will be guilty of a breach of the Act and will be liable to penalty.

Dogs must not be allowed to run deer and no birds may be shot between April 15 and August 1.

This is not the Act that refers to the carrying of concealed weapons. If a man wants to pack a pistol or revolver he must show his reason to the authorieties and get a permit. Otherwise he is guilty of a misdemeanor and the penalties are severe. In the case of foreigners deportment may be invoked.

The Act in question has reference to the carrying of sporting weapons and is designed for the protection of wild life and the regulation of shooting, The possession of a gun license of any kind does not give a man permission to carry a concealed weapon of any kind.

Card of Thanks

To all the friends whose sympathy and services were so kindly tendered in our time of bereavement, we desire to extend our sincere thanks.

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Broderick.

Stores Up Sleep.

It would be a great convenience if one could store up sleep as a camel stores up water, and a correspondent assures us that he knows one man who has acquired, to some extent, this useful habit. He goes to bed on Saturday night and more than sleeps the clock round, seldom rising before 7 o'clock Sunday morning. The accident Sunday night he can work, and for the rest of the week three hours in bed each night suffices him, and he is always fit.—London Globe.

In Memoriam

The funeral of the little son of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Andestad of Duck Creek was held last Saturday afternoon.

Died at the home of his parents, Mr and Mrs. George Broderick of this city their little son, James Leonard, aged 19 months.

A brief funeral service was held at the home on Thursday morning, conducted by Rev. W. G. Blake. Many relatives and friends of the sorrowing family were present, and as they looked upon the sweet placid body in its white casket, and surrounded by beautiful and fragrant flowers—yet not more beautiful or pure than the little face within—their hearts swelled with sympathy for the bereaved family. But let us not think of Little James as dead, but as living; not as a flower that has withered, but as one that transplanted, and touched by a Divine hand, is blooming in richer color and sweeter fragrance than those on earth.

"There is no death! The stars go down
To rise upon some fairer shore;
And bright in Heaven's jeweled crown
They shine forever more."

FAREWELL PARTY GIVEN AT SIRDAR

Rev. and Mrs. P. C. Hayman Pleasantly Entertained

(Special to the Review)

A most delightful Social was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. R. Swanson at Sirdar, Tuesday evening, April 22nd. The party was especially arranged as a farewell to the Rev. and Mrs. P. C. Hayman, who are leaving the Parish of Creston after four years service as Vicar of the town and districts, for the Parish of Grand Forks, B. C.

Nearly forty people were present and a very enjoyable evening was spent. After supper, Mr. Swanson, with a brief speech presented Mr. Hayman with a purse of $25, which had been subscribed by the residents of Sirdar This he said, was a token of the appreciation of all present, and of others who could not be with them, for the services rendered by Mr. Hayman during his work among them.

Mr. Hayman thankep everyone on behalf of Mrs. Hayman and himself for the exceedingly kind thought of the Sirdar people and of this happy evening spent with them. Too much praise can-

She Didn't Intend to

A middle-aged couple, made suddenly rich through an unexpected turn of fortune's wheel, were visiting the M. P. from their district at his Ottawa residence.

At breakfast the first morning after their arrival, the woman, nervously trying to chip off the top of her egg with her knife, attacked the problem with so much zeal that the egg was knocked out of the cup and rolled under the table. Not knowing just what was the proper thing to do under the circumstances she nudged her husband.

Hank! Hank! she whispered I have dropped an egg. What shall I do?

Don't cackle, came the matter-of-fact reply.

Miller's Worm Powders not only make the fantile system untenable for worms, but by their action on the stomach, liver and bowels they correct such troubles as lack of appetite, biliousness and other internal disorders that the worms create. Children thrive upon them and no matter what condition their worm-infested stomachs may be in, they will show improvement as soon as the treatment begins.

Lost and Found

A Scottish tourist walking the streets of Paris, some distance from his hotel, found he had taken a wrong turning, and to make things worse, he could not, through ignorance of the language ask the way. Then a happy thought struck him. By dint of signs he concluded a bargain with a fruit hawker for a basketful of gooseberries and then, to the amazement of everybody, went about shouting: Fine Scotch grossets! A penny a pun!

This went on for a while, till a fellow-countryman rushed forward and asked: Mon, d'ye think ye're in the streets of Glesca, that ye gang about like a madman crying grossets?

Eeh! replied the hawker, with a sense of relief, ye're just the man I was looking for. D'ye ken the way to the — Hotel?

Expensive Encores

A good story is being told about a fashionable New York woman who recently engaged Mme. S—, of the Metropolitan Opera to sing at one of her receptions. It was arranged that two songs should be furnished, at $100 per song. Mme. S— sang so well that the delighted guests demanded more, and were referred by the songstress to their hostess.

The latter looked rather unhappy, but having no choice in the matter, was compelled to give orders for another song—and yet another, and another, until Mme. S— had scored eight in all—which at $100 each, was not a bad night's work.

Automobile Aroma

CUT OFF GIRL'S HAIR

Man Then Sells the Lock for Price of a Dinner

Paris.—A man named Chaignon was sentenced to thirteen months' imprisonment for a curious offense recently. He went to a house in the Rue Roy some weeks ago, and waking one of the servants, showed her a pair of scissors, and gave her the choice of the loss of her head or her hair.

I would rather lose my hair, said the girl.

Taking off a handkerchief in which her head was wrapped, she showed the court that the man had cut her hair so closely that he wounded her in several places. He sold it afterwards for the price of a dinner.

You will go to prison for thirteen months, said the judge. Your name ought to be Chignon, not Chaignon.

DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS MAKING A REPUTATION IN THE WEST

Saskatchewan Man Tells How They Cured Him, After Four Months' Suffering from Backache and Other Forms of Kidney Disease

St. Phillips, Sask. (Special).—In a new country where changes of climate and impure water are among the difficulties to be surmounted, kidney trouble is prevalent. It is the kidneys, the organs that strain the impurities out of the blood, that first feel any undue strain on the body. Consequently Dodd's Kidney Pills have been well tried and tested in this neighborhood.

They have stood the test. Many settlers tell of backache, rheumatism and urinary troubles cured by Dodd's Kidney Pills. Mr. Otto Olshewski is one of these. In speaking of his cure he says:

"I suffered from kidney disease for four months. My back ached, I had heart flutterings, and was always tired and nervous. My skin had a harsh, dry feeling; my limbs were heavy; and I had a dragging sensation across the loins.

"I consulted a doctor, but, as I did not appear to improve, I decided to try Dodd's Kidney Pills. I used six boxes, and now I am all right."

Dodd's Kidney Pills always stand the test. Ask your neighbors.

Not Tending to Business

A country doctor was recently called upon to visit a patient who resided at a distance. Arriving at his destination he tied his horse to a tree near by, and walked towards the house.

It happened that work was in progress on a new well, of which the doctor knew nothing until he found himself sinking into the earth. He fell just far enough to be unable to get out of the hole unassisted, and yelled lustily for help.

When he was finally pulled up his rescuer remarked: I say, doctor, you had no business down there.

No, I hadn't, replied the doctor. Don't you know, continued his rescuer, you ought to leave the well alone and look after the sick.

Don't you think that women are as capable of making laws as men?

More so. Give a woman a motor-car and she'll make up her own traffic regulations as she goes along.

His Request

So you have determined to sue me for breach of promise?

Yes.

With damages.

Of course.

Well, say I've got just one favor to ask of you. Don't sue me for less than $100,000. I haven't got a dollar in the world that I can call my own, and it might help my credit.

ACTRESS ON TRIAL FOR MURDER

Strange Drama of Misplaced Affection Now Before Tribunal in Naples

Naples, Italy.—Yvonne de Villespreux, a fascinating actress, who formerly belonged to a dramatic company run by Dina Galli, herself a most brilliant light comedy artist, is now standing her trial here for killing her lover, Dr. Ettore Turdo.

The case is replete with psychological interest. One evening in November, 1909, when the Galli company was performing at the Quirinal Theatre, Rome, Turdo, who had just won high university honors in medicine, was introduced to Villespreux by Signorina Esterina a young actress friend of hers in the same company. All supped together, with a party of youths of the smart set in the capital.

Villespreux was so impressed by the assiduous court paid her by Doctor Turdo that next day she accepted his invitation to live with him, and bargained with Esterina to yield her claim for a consideration of 300 francs. About Christmas time Turdo parted from his lover, as an order had come from Naples to attend his brother Luigi, a barriste", and a violent morphiamaniac.

Hither, in the beginning of March, 1910, came also the Dina Galli com-

[illegible] fresh lover, but after persistent entreaties of Villespreux consented to again live with her, although Turdo had never contributed a penny towards her maintenance and her pay was only $1 a day.

Thenceforth she performed the most menial offices for the morphiamaniac brother, and with the consent of the medical attendants, arranged for a continuous stream of pretty artist visitors to distract his mind. Suddenly the maniac conceived a strong dislike for her, and during one of his drug fits accused her of aspiring to marry into their noble family. A violent struggle ensued, in which she attacked him vigorously, and was herself severely cut on the hand by broken glass.

Next evening, March 9, the other residents in the boarding house where the couple were staying were startled by the noise of revolver shots, and rushing in, they found Turdo bleeding to death. The actress was seated on the bed with a Browning, which they wrested from her. The only spectator of the tragedy was a little girl, the daughter of another theatrical artist, who had entrusted the child to Villespreux's keeping while she attended a rehearsal.

Villespreux first maintained that the weapon came into her possession several days earlier, Turdo having seized it from his maniac brother's grasp, and asked her to hide it. Then on the fatal night when he announced to her his intention of quitting her, she was about to restore the weapon to him as it was the only object she had that belonged to him.

Turdo, however, approaching her behind unawares, touched her arms, and the weapon went off accidentally. She explained the position of the wounds, stating that she was left-handed, but Turdo before expiring in hospital, made no secret of the fact that there had been a painful scene due to jealousy, which she cut short by firing directly at him. Otherwise he spoke kindly of her, begging that she should not be prosecuted.

Villespreux's latest version is that she contemplated committing suicide in despair at the parting, because one week previously she had broken off a theatrical touring contract at Turdo's appeal, while a wealthy Perugian magnate, who for years past had been in the habit of giving her a handsome monthly allowance, had just stopped it entirely on learning of her double dealing.

The accused woman is now 29, and is being defended by two of the smartest lawyers in Italy.

Baby's Own Tablets are the best medicine a mother can give her little one. They act as a gentle laxative, sweeten the stomach, break up colds and make teething easy. The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

A Valuable Antique

An old lady was searching in the dim bric-a-brac shop for something odd to take home with her. Finally she noticed a quaint figure, the head and shoulders of which appeared above the counter at the farthest end of the room. She turned to the clerk and said: What's that queer old Japanese idol over there worth?

The clerk answered in a subdued tone: About $250,000, ma'am. That's the proprietor.

A hard old hand gripped his arm. Man, dear, it'll never do, said Patrick, shaking his head solemnly. I could never trust myself to remember to wave a red flag when there was a green wan handy.

Anaemic Condition or Bloodlessness

A peculiar pallor or even ghastliness of the skin is the marked symptom of anaemia. The eyelids, gums and lips appear to be almost bloodless. The cause of this condition is the absence of red corpuscles from the blood.

The anaemic patient is usually thin and weak, but may be fleshy and inclined to dropsy. Stomach troubles and weakness of the bodily organs are accompaniments.

Red corpuscles must be added to the blood, and this can best be accomplished by using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

This great food cure is so gentle and natural in action that it is admirably suited for the use of women and girls suffering from anaemia or other diseases which arise from an impoverished condition of the blood.

It is readily assimilated, enters the blood streams and carries health and strength to every organ of the body.

The vigor of the digestive system is quickly restored, and the food taken into the body is properly digested and nourishment supplied to the whole system.

To get well and keep well you must supply the body with an abundance of pure, rich blood. Nothing can help you so well as

Mrs. B. Lamberton - - - - Editor and Manageres

Monday, April 28, is named clean-up day for the Creston district, which not only includes Creston, but all towns within the district.

A clean-up day is required by the government every year and should be done with a good spirit. By cleaning up in the Spring, all the refuse that accumulates during the winter, you prevent many diseases that would, perhaps come were such articles as tin cans, etc., left lying around the yard. These cans accumulate germs of the most deadly diseases and should, by all means, be disposed of as soon as possible. A tour of inspection will be made by the health officer, and all refuse must be disposed of by Monday, April 28.

Most of the refuse can be burned, but such articles as tin cans, etc., must be hauled to the dumping ground. People not having any way of carting refuse to the dumping ground should engage a dray.

The government has given notice of the introduction of another progressive measure. Early in the session Hon. L. P. Pelletier Postmaster-General, announced that he was studying the question of parcels post. He has already concluded that it can be successfully introduded into Canada and has lost no time in giving notice of a bill. The legislation will be outlined later, but the general plan decided upon is that of the zone system as adopted in the United States. The details are being worked out at the present time and the system will be place on a business basis. The fourteen thousand postmaster in Canada will became agents of the system and benefits parcels post will be particuly extended to districts which are now reached by the express companies.

"Heavy work, severe straining and evil habits in youth brought on Varicose Veins. When I worked hard the aching would become severe and I was often laid up for a week at a time. My family physician told me an operation was my only hope—but I dreaded it. I tried several specialists, but soon found out all they wanted was my money. I commenced to look upon all doctors as little better than rogues. One day my boss asked me why I was off work so much and I told him my condition. He advised me to consult Drs. Kennedy & Kennedy, as he had taken treatment from them himself and knew they were square and skillful. I wrote them and got THE NEW METHOD TREATMENT. My progress was somewhat slow and during the first month's treatment I was somewhat discouraged. However, I continued treatment for three months longer and was rewarded with a complete cure. I could only earn $12 a week in a machine shop before treatment, now I am earning $21 and never loose a day. I wish all sufferers know of your valuable treatment.

GREEK FIRE.

Secret of a Great War-like Invention of the Middle Ages.

The composition of the Greek fire used by the ancients has been a subject of much controversy and while it has been pretty generally settled as to what constituted it, yet there is still a discussed question as to all the ingredients contained.

The name Greek fire was applied to the inflammable and destructive compositions that were used in warfare in the middle ages and especially by the Byzantine Greeks at the sieges of Constantinople.

What distinguished Greek fire from the other fires used at this period was the presence of quicklime, which was well known to give rise to a large development of heat when brought into contact with water. The mixture was composed of such materials as sulphur and naphtha with quicklime and took fire spontaneously when moistened—whence the name of wet fire or sea fire.

From this mixture, which produced a thick smoke and a loud explosion, proceeded a fierce and obstinate flame. Instead of being extinguished it was nourished and quickened by the element of water; and sand or vinegar were the only remedies that could check the fury of this powerful agent. It was poured from the ramparts of a besieged town in large boilers or launched in red-hot balls of stone and iron, or darted in arrows and javelins, twisted round with flax and tow, which had deeply imbibed the inflammable oil. Some times it was deposited in fireships and was most commonly emited through long tubes of copper, which were planted on the prow of galley, and fancifully shaped into the mouths of savage monsters that seemed to vomit a stream of liquid and consuming fire.

The important secret of compounding and directing this artificial flame was imparted in the latter part of the seventh century to the Greeks, or Byzantines, at Constantinople, in Syria, who deserted from the service of the caliph to that of the emperor. The skill of a chemist and engineer was equivalent to the succor of the fleets and armies, and this discovery or improvement of the military art was fortunately reserved for the distressful period when the degenerate Romans of the east were incapable of contending with the warlike enthusiasm and youthful vigor of the Saracens.

The important art was confined about 400 years to the Romans of the east. It was at length either discovered or stolen by the Mohammedans and in the holy wars of Syria and Egypt they retorted an invention, contrived against themselves, on the heads of the Christians. The use of the Greek, or, as it might now be called, the Saracen fire, was continued to the middle of the 14th century.

A GIRL OF THE LIMBERLOST

By

GENE STRATTON-PORTER

Copyright, 1909, by Doubleday, Page & Co.

SYNOPSIS

Although a good scholar, Elnora Comstock, entering high school, is abashed by her country dress. She needs $20 for books and tuition fees. Her mother is unsympathetic, and Elnora tells her troubles to Wesley Sinton, an old neighbor.

When Elnora was born her father was drowned in a swamp, embittering her mother's life. Elnora determines to raise money by gathering forest specimens. The Sintons buy clothes for her.

Elnora, getting her books cheaply, finds a market with the Bird Woman for butterflies, Indian relics, etc.

Mrs. Comstock's devotion to her husband's memory will not permit her to sell trees or have oil wells dug on her land. The Sintons bring Elnora new clothing.

Elnora is delighted with her outfit. Her mother says she must pay for it. Wesley and Margaret Sinton discuss the girl's affairs.

Billy, a bright but untrained little chap, with a shiftless father and hungry brother and sister, gets Elnora's luncheon. Wesley, troubled by Corson's warning, investigates.

Pete Corson, a Limberlost frequenter, warns Elnora not to visit the Limberlost at night or go far into the swamp at any time.

"Yes," said Mrs. Comstock. "In a mad fit I trampled one this morning, and by the luck of the old boy himself it was the last moth she needed to complete a collection. I got to get another one or die."

"Then I guess it's your funeral," said Pete. "There ain't a chance in a dozen the right one will come. What color was it?"

"Yellow, and big as a bird."

"The Emperor, likely," said Pete. "You dig for that kind, and they are not numerous, so's 'at you can smash 'em for fun."

"Well, I can try to get one, anyway," said Mrs. Comstock. "I forgot all about bringing anything to put them in. You take a pinch on their wings until I make a poke."

Mrs. Comstock removed her apron, tearing off the strings. She unfastened and stepped from the skirt of her calico dress. With one apron string she tied shut the band and placket. She pulled a wire pin from her hair, stuck it through the other string, and using it as a bodkin ran it around the hem of her skirt. Her fingers flew, and shortly she had a large bag. She put several branches inside to which the moths could cling, closed the mouth partially and held it toward Pete.

Pete slipped several more moths into the bag.

"Now, that's five, Mrs. Comstock," he said. "I'm sorry, but you'll have to make that do. You must get out of here lively. Your lights will be taken for hurry calls, and inside the next hour a couple of men will ride here like fury."

"Well, I'll see them make me go," said Mrs. Comstock. "I've got Robert's revolver in my dress and I can shoot as straight as any man if I'm mad enough. Any one that interferes with me tonight will find me mad a-plenty. There goes another!"

"We are close to the old case," said Pete. "I think I can get into it. Maybe we could slip the rest in there."

"That's a fine idea!" said Mrs. Comstock. "They'll have so much room there they won't be likely to hurt themselves, and the books say they don't fly in daytime unless they are disturbed, so they will settle when it's light, and I can come with Elnora to get them."

They captured two more, and then Pete carried them to the case.

"Here comes a big one!" he cried as he returned.

Mrs. Comstock looked up and stepped out with a prayer on her lips. She could not tell the color at that distance, but the moth appeared different from the others. On it came, dropping lower and darting from light to light. As it swept near her, "Oh, heavenly Father," exulted Mrs. Comstock, "it's yellow! Careful! Pete, your hat, maybe!"

Pete made a long sweep. The moth wavered above the hat and sailed away. In its flight it came straight toward Mrs. Comstock. She snatched off the remnant of apron she had tucked into her petticoat band and held the calico before her. The moth struck full against it and clung to the goods. Pete crept up stealthily. Another moth followed the first, and the spray showered the apron.

"Wait!" gasped Mrs. Comstock. "I think they have settled. The books say they won't leave now."

"Now, shall I?" questioned Pete.

"No. Leave them alone. They are safe now. They are mine. They are my salvation. God and the Limberlost gave them to me! They won't move for hours. The books all say so. Oh, Heavenly Father, I am thankful to you, and you, too, Pete Corson! You are a good man to help me. Now, I can go home and face my girl."

Elnora had sat by the window far into the night. At last she undressed and went to bed, but sleep would not come. She had gone to the city to talk with members of the school board about a room in the grades. There was a possibility that she might secure the moth and so be able to start to college that fall, but if she did not, then she wanted the school. She had been given some encouragement, but she was so unhappy that nothing mattered. Yet Margaret Sinton had advised her to go home and try once more. Unable to sleep she arose at last, and the room being warm, she sat on the floor by the window. The lights in the swamp caught her eye. She was very uneasy, for quite 100 of her best moths were in the case.

She hurried down the stairway softly calling her mother. There was no answer. She lightly stepped across the sitting room and looked in at the open door. There was no one, and the bed had not been used. Her first thought was that her mother had gone to the pool, and the Limberlost was alive with signals. Pity and fear mingled in the heart of the girl. She opened the kitchen door, crossed the garden and ran back to the swamp. As she neared it she listened, but she could hear only the usual voices of night.

"Mother!" she called softly, then louder, "Mother!" She returned home. The time was dreadfully long before she heard her mother's voice.

Mrs. Comstock entered, dragging her heavy feet. In one hand she held the lantern, and in the other, stiffly extended before her, on a wad of calico, reposed a magnificent pair of yellow Emperors.

"Shall I put these others in the kitchen?" inquired a man's voice.

The girl shrank back to the shadows.

"Yes, anywhere inside the door," replied Mrs. Comstock as she moved a few steps to make way for him. Pete's head appeared. He set down the moths and was gone.

"Thank you, Pete, more than ever woman thanked you before," said Mrs. Comstock.

She placed the lantern on the table and barred the door. As she turned Elnora came into view. Mrs. Comstock leaned toward her and held out the moths. In a voice vibrant with tones never before heard she said, "Elnora, my girl, mother's found you another moth."

* * * * * * * * *

Elnora awoke at dawn and lay gazing around the unfamiliar room. She noticed that every vestige of masculine attire and belongings was gone and knew without any explanation what that meant. For some reason every tangible evidence of her father was banished, and she was at last to be allowed to take his place. She turned to look at her mother. Mrs. Comstock's face was white and haggard, but on it rested an expression of profound peace Elnora never before had seen. As she studied the features on the pillow beside her the heart of the girl throbbed in tenderness. She softly slipped from the bed, went to her room, dressed and entered the kitchen to attend the Emperors and prepare breakfast. The pair had been left clinging to the piece of calico. The calico was there and a few pieces of beautiful wing. A mouse had eaten the moths!

"Well, of all the horrible luck!" gasped Elnora.

With the first thought of her mother, she caught up the remnants of the moths, burying them in the ashes of the stove. She took the bag to her room, hurriedly releasing its contents, but there was not another yellow one. Her mother had said some had been confined in the case in the Limberlost. There was still a hope that an Emperor might be among them.

Elnora took a large piece of mosquito netting and ran to the swamp. Throwing it over the top of the case, she unlocked the door. She reeled, faint with distress. The living moths that had been confined there in their fluttering to escape the night and the mates they sought not only had wrecked the other specimens of the case, but torn themselves to ribbons on the pins. A third of the rarest moths of the collection were antennaeless, legless, wingless and often headless. Elnora sobbed aloud. "Everything is gone!" she said.

CHAPTER XVIII.

Wherein Mother Love Is Bestowed on Elnora, and She Finds an Assistant.

BUT her mother's love remained. Indeed, in the overflow of the long hardened, pent up heart, Elnora was almost suffocated with tempestuous caresses and generous offerings. Before the day was over she realized that she never had known her mother at all.

For the next few days Elnora worked at mounting the moths her mother had taken. She had to go to the Bird Woman and tell about the disaster, but Mrs. Comstock was allowed to think that Elnora delivered the moths when she made the trip. If she had told her what actually happened, the chances were that Mrs. Comstock again would have taken possession of the Limberlost, hunting there until she replaced all the moths that had been destroyed. But Elnora knew from experience what it meant to collect such a list in pairs. Valiant as she was in any good cause, this time she was compelled to admit that she was defeated. It would require hard work for at least two summers to replace the lost moths. When she left the Bird Woman she went to the president of the Onabasha schools and asked him to do all in his power to secure a room in one of the ward buildings.

The next morning the last moth was mounted and the housework finished. Elnora said to her mother, "If you don't mind, I believe I will go into the woods pasture beside Sleepy Snake creek and see if I can catch some dragon flies or moths."

"Wait until I get a knife and a pail and I will go along," answered Mrs. Comstock. "The dandelions are plenty tender for greens among the deep grasses, and I might just happen to see something myself. My eyes are pretty sharp."

Near the creek, following it toward the bridge, Mrs. Comstock found a large bed of tender dandelions and stopped to fill her pail.

Elnora remained within calling distance and was having good success. At last she crossed the creek, following it up to a bridge. There she began a careful examination of the under sides of the sleepers and flooring for cocoons. Mrs. Comstock could see her and the creek for several rods above.

Around the bend came a man. He was bareheaded, dressed in a white sweater and waders which reached to his waist. He kept on the bank, only entering the water when necessary. He had a queer basket strapped on his hip, and with a small rod he sent a long line spinning before him down the creek, deftly manipulating with it a little floating object. He was nearer Elnora than her mother, but Mrs. Comstock thought possibly by hurrying she could remain unseen and yet warn the girl that a stranger was coming.

"Possibly I could get that for you," suggested the man.

Elnora was under the bridge, one knee planted in the embankment and a foot braced to support her. Her hair was tousled by wind and bushes, her face flushed, and she lifted her arms above her head, working to loosen a cocoon she had found. The call Mrs. Comstock had intended to utter never found voice. "Possibly I could get that for you," suggested the man.

"Oh, I do hope you can!" answered Elnora. "It's quite a find! It's one of those lovely pale red cocoons described in the books. I suspect it comes from having been in a dark place and screened from the weather."

"Is that so?" cried the man. "Wait a minute. Are you making a collection?"

He reeled in his line, laid his rod across a bush and climbed the embankment to Elnora's side, produced a knife and began the work of whittling a deep groove around the cocoon.

"Yes, I paid my way through the high school in Onabasha with them. Now I am starting a collection which means college."

"Onabasha!" said the man. "That is where I am visiting." He paused to rest, for the bridge flooring was hard lumber, and the task he had set himself not easy. "Possibly you know my people—Dr. Ammon's? The doctor is my uncle. My home is in Chicago. I've been having typhoid fever, something fierce. In the hospital six weeks. Didn't gain strength right, so Uncle Doc sent for me. I am to live out of doors all summer, and exercise until I get in condition again. My name is Philip Ammon. Don't you want help?"

Elnora parried the question.

"Have you ever hunted moths, Mr. Ammon?"

"Enough to know the ropes in taking them and to distinguish the commonest ones. I know enough to help you all right."

"Aren't you going north?"

"All depends on how this fever leaves me. Uncle says the nights are too cold and the days too hot there for me. He thinks I had better stay in an even temperature until I am strong again. I'll have this cut out in a minute. You better say 'yes,'" he persisted. "It would be a real kindness. It would keep me out doors all day and give an incentive to work. I'm good at it. I'll show you if I am not in a week or so. I can 'sugar,' manipulate lights and mirrors and am familiar with all the expert methods. I'll wager moths are thick in the old swamp over there."

"They are," said Elnora. "Most I have I took there. A few nights ago my mother caught a good many, but we don't dare go alone."

"All the more reason why you need me. Where do you live? I can't get an answer from you. I'll just go tell your mother who I am and ask her if I may help you."

The cocoon came loose. Philip Ammon stepped down the embankment, turning to offer his hand to Elnora. They went to Mrs. Comstock.

"Mother, this is Mr. Philip Ammon of Chicago," said Elnora. "He has been ill, and he is staying with Dr. Ammon in Onabasha. He came fishing down the creek and cut this cocoon from under the bridge for me. He feels that it would be better to hunt moths than to fish until he gets well. What do you think about it?"

Philip Ammon extended his hand.

"I am glad to know you," he said.

"You may take the handshaking for granted," replied Mrs. Comstock. "Dandelions have a way of making the fingers sticky, and I like to know a man before I take his hand, anyway. That introduction seems mighty comprehensive on your part, but it still leaves me unclassified. My name is Comstock."

At last Mrs. Comstock finished the greens.

"You are three miles from the city and less than a mile from where we live," she said. "If you will tell me what you dare eat, I suspect you had best go home with us and rest until the cool of the day before you start back. Probably some one that you can ride in with will be passing before evening."

Philip Ammon was on his feet. Picking up the pail of greens and his fishing rod he stood waiting. Elnora led the way. Mrs. Comstock motioned Philip to follow and she walked in the rear.

Elnora proceeded slowly, chattering about everything along the trail. Philip was interested in all the objects she pointed out, noticing several things which escaped her. When Elnora turned toward the gate of her home Philip Ammon stopped, took a long look at the big hewed log cabin, the vines which clambered over it, the flower garden ablaze with beds of bright bloom interspersed with strawberries and tomatoes, the trees of the forest rising north and west like a green wall and exclaimed, "How beautiful!"

Philip Ammon was ravenous for the buttermilk, and when he stretched on the bench in the arbor the flickering patches of sunlight so tantalized his tired eyes, while the bees made such splendid music, he was soon sound asleep.

When Elnora and her mother came out with a table they stood a short time looking at him. It is probable Mrs. Comstock voiced a united thought when she said, "What a refined, decent looking young man! How proud his mother must be of him! We must be careful what we let him eat."

They returned to the kitchen where Mrs. Comstock proceeded to be careful. She broiled ham of her own sugar curing, creamed potatoes, served asparagus on toast and made a dandelion salad and a delicious strawberry short cake. When everything was ready she touched Ammon's sleeve.

"Best have something to eat, lad, before you get too hungry," she said.

"Please hurry!" he begged laughingly as he held a plate toward her to be filled. "It's mighty kind of you to take me in. I hope I will be man enough in a few days to do something worth while in return."

They talked of flowers, moths, drag on flies, Indian relics and all the natural wonders the swamp afforded, straying from those subjects to books and school work. When they cleared the table Ammon assisted, carrying several tray loads to the kitchen. He and Elnora mounted specimens, while Mrs. Comstock washed the dishes. Then she came out with a ruffle she was embroidering. At last Ammon said he must go or his friends would become anxious about him.

"May I come tomorrow afternoon and chase moths awhile?" he asked Mrs. Comstock as he arose. "I've got to remain outdoors some place, and I'm quite sure I'd get well faster here than anywhere else. Please say I may come."

"I have no objections if Elnora really would like help," said Mrs. Comstock.

In her heart she wished he would not. She wanted her newly found treasure all to herself for a time at least. But Elnora's were eager, shining eyes. She thought it would be splendid to have help and great fun to try book methods for taking moths, so it was arranged. As Ammon rode away Mrs. Comstock's eyes followed him. "What a nice young man!" she said.

"He seems fine," agreed Elnora.

The next morning Mrs. Comstock called to Elnora, "The mail carrier stopped at our box."

Elnora ran down the walk and came back carrying an official looking letter, in which the position of lecturer on natural history was offered to Elnora, at a salary of $750 a year, with $200 for expenses.

RODS FIND CAVES UNDER EARTH

Remarkable Result of Rigid Test of Many Diviners' Skill

Paris, Fra .—A number of celebrated scientists recently tested the powers of four wielders of the divining rod in the Bois de Vincennes.

A large deserted quarry undermined a portion of the wood, and the diviners were asked to point out the underground galleries and shafts. At the end of the experiment their statements were to be compared by M. Armand Vire, the city surveyor, with a specially constructed chart. The organizers stated that it was impossible for any of the competitors to have had any previous knowledge of the subterranean passages, M. Vire being the only person aware of the exact positions.

The first man with the divining rod was M. Pelapret, a sturdy peasant, who carried a supple forked wand of hazel. For some time he walked steadily forward, the hazel wand trembling slightly. Suddenly the wand twitched and M. Pelapret, stopping, said: A cavity begins here.

After walking round on the grassy slope to measure the extent of the cavity, he gave the result of his observations to M. Vire, saying that the cavern was over seventeen yards deep and that it was quite dry.

The other competitors stepped forward in turn. They used wands of whalebone, bamboo and copper. Three other underground pits were, like the first, marked out by them with bits of paper, with the approximate depth. M. Probst, the last to use the trembling rod, went so far as to indicate somewhat vaguely it is true, four galleries which branched off from the main shaft, the site of which he had marked out on the turf.

M. Vire, the surveyor, then unrolled the official map and there was a moment's breathless silence. Every one of the competitors had succeeded with more or less accuracy in marking out caverns or pits which actually existed, and the four galleries spoken of by the last competitor were also traced on the map. The depth given was correct.

As a final proof of the virtues of the magic rod, M. Probst consented to be led blindfolded over the area, and the result he obtained corresponded almost exactly with the first indications he had given.

After 10 Years of Asthma Dr. J. D. Kellogg's Asthma Remedy proved the only relief for one grateful user, and this is but one cure among many. Little wonder that it has now become the one recognized remedy on the market. It has earned its fame by its never failing effectiveness. It is earning it to-day, as it has done for years. It is the greatest asthma specific within the reach of suffering humanity.

EVERY WOMAN IS A NURSE

Spread of Patriotic Fervor in Republic Has Caught the Gentler Sex

Paris, France.—The sacrifice demanded of the male population of France by the return to the law of three years' military service has evoked the keenest attention among the women of the country to do something in their turn.

The Society of the Women of France, a Red Cross institution which numbers 150,000 members, publishes an appeal that a number of posts in the auxiliary services of the army should be given to women.

The Secretary of the society points out that in time of war 40,000 men would be required for military field hospitals, and that they could be set free for service in the fighting lines if sufficient women could be found to take their place.

M. M. de Waleffe, the well-known writer, makes the following original proposals for compulsory hospital training for all women:

After the passage of the three years' bill into law we should ask the minister of war to consider the question of women's service. I can well imagine a law, the three principal features of which would be:

Every woman of 20 years of age, married or unmarried, to perform at once six months' service in the hospitals, and every subsequent year to serve for three weeks until the age of 45.

Women with children under 7 years of age need not perform such service.

Women with more than three children are exempt from further service.

REAL DUEL ON STAGE

He and the Barytone Horrify Audience by Fierce and Unexpected Conflict

Paris, France.—The Journal publishes a Madrid telegram reporting an extraordinary and tragic affair which, it is said, occurred recently at the theatre at Argamasilla de Alba, in the province of Ciudad Real.

It appears that the leading baritone Senor Pardo, and the chief tenor, Senor Martinez, attached to the operatic company at present performing in the town, were deadly enemies as a consequence of rivalry in a love affair, and they had agreed to fight a duel to death.

They had, however, decided to await the termination of the operatic season in the little town in order that their rivalry might not interrupt the performance.

The season terminated with a performance of 'Carmen,' and at the close of the third act the spectators were horrified to find themselves the witnesses of a fierce duel between the two singers.

The fight did not last long, the tenor, Martinez, falling dead at the feet of his rival.

There is one thing that may be said to the credit of a small boy; he never pretends to like anyone he doesn't like.

The World's Best Liniment Needed In Every Family From Infancy To Old Age

If Your Home is Without 'Nerviline' Read the Following Closely.

The high cost of living to-day demand's economy on every side. Sickness is expensive. Far better to treat little ills before they grow serious. For this reason every home should have handy on the shelf a good remedy like Nerviline, which cures the minor ailments that occur in every family.

For example, when the boy comes in with wet feet and a light cough, Nerviline will cure him. If a cold has settled on his chest, rub on Nerviline and the cold will go.

If something has been eaten that causes cramps, nausea, or diarrhoea, just twenty drops of Nerviline—that's all and cure is effected.

As a liniment for outward application in case of Neuralgia, Lame Back, Sciatica, Lumbago or Rheumatism, it's really hard to imagine how Nerviline relieves and how soon it cures.

Nerviline is nothing new. No, it's one of the oldest and best known remedies. Used in thousands of homes by the people of many nations, simply because it stops pain, cures sickness, and rids the family of ills before they become troublesome. Get the family size bottle, price 50c.; trial size 25c., at all storekeepers and druggists or The Catarrhozone Co., Buffalo, N.Y.

Horrid Man

She had just settled down in the most comfortable chair they possessed, to enjoy the latest novel. He knew how comfortable that chair was, because he had bought it himself, for himself.

You are very comfortable wifey dear?

You don't feel any jolts?

No, sweetest.

And there is no draught on my lamb?

No, my ownest own.

Then change seats with me.

The professor was returning home one night from a scientific meeting, still pondering over the subject. He had reached his room in safety when he heard a noise which seemed to come from under the bed.

Is someone there? he asked.

No, professor, answered the intruder, who knew of the professor's peculiarities.

That's strange. I was positive someone was under my bed, commented the learned man.

IMPURE BLOOD IN THE SPRING

The Passing of Winter Leaves People Weak and Depressed.

As winter passes away it leaves many people feeling weak, depressed and easily tired. The body lacks that vital force and energy which pure blood alone can give.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People are an all-year-round blood builder and nerve tonic, but they are especially useful in the spring. Every dose helps to make new, rich, red blood. Returning strength commences with their use and the vigor and cheerfulness of good health quickly follows.

There is just one cure for lack of blood and that is more blood. Food is the material from which blood is made, but Dr. Williams' Pink Pills double the value of the food we eat. They give strength, tone up the stomach and weak digestion, clear the complexion of pimples, eruptions and boils, and drive out rheumatic poisons.

If you are pale and sallow, if you feel continually tired out, breathless after slight exertion, if you have headaches or backaches, if you are irritable and nervous, if your joints ache, if your appetite fails and food does not nourish nor sleep refresh you, Dr. Williams' Pink Pills will make you well and strong. To build up the blood is the special purpose of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and that is why they are the best spring medicine. If you feel the need of a tonic at this season give Dr. Williams' Pink Pills a fair trial and you will rejoice in new health, new strength and new energy. Do not let the trying weather of summer find you weak and ailing. Build yourself up now with Dr. Williams' Pink Pills—the pills that strengthen.

JEALOUSY LEADS TO ARREST

Thinking Booty Would be Given Her Rival, Woman Betrays Accomplices

Berlin. — Three thieves who stole a Russian countess's jewelry valued at over $30,000 have been caught —Frau Pferfer (Baby) in Berlin, and her two accomplices, Kolberg and Krause, the monocled lieutenant in Munich. Baby, when arrested, made a clean breast of the entire transaction, and, accompanied by a detective, traveled to Munich, where she arranged a meeting with the two men with the knowledge of the detective. All three are now in prison, and the Russian woman is again in possession of her trinkets. In addition, a jeweler with whom they had made arrangements for the disposal of their booty, has been arrested. He had already unfastened the stones and melted down the settings.

It seems that Baby was moved to her treachery by jealousy of another woman friend of Kolberg, a dancer. She feared that Kolberg might be inclined to bestow some of the stolen property on this rival. When Frau Pfeffer's husband heard of his wife's criminal dealings, he committed suicide in Berlin.

Merely Wanted to Know

The daughter of the house had just returned from a visit with her Western cousins, during which she was extolling the virtues of her intended.

Oh, mother, she exclaimed. He's just grand. So square, so upright! So highly polished! Why even in his notes there is such a sympathetic tone that sometimes I wonder if I am not reading the music of the gods!

Mercy's sake, child! interrupted mother, are you talking about a young man or a piano.

Warts are unsightly blemishes, and corns are painful growths. Holloway's Corn Cure will remove them.

There! said the young wife proudly, as she deposited the hot plate carefully on the table. That's the first pie that I ever made without any help; all alone myself.

So it is! exclaimed her husband enthusiastically, looking it over critically meanwhile. And as long as it is the very first, my dear, don't you think that, instead of cutting it, it would be nice to keep it for a souvenir? How would it do to have it framed?

DEATH ENDS INSULT

Girl Takes Poison While Priest Prays Over Father's Grave

St. Petersburg.—With the advent of spring the number of suicides or attempted suicides in St. Petersburg has reached a daily average of about ten. Most are due to abject poverty.

Recently a young girl asked the attendant priest at the Volkovo Cemetery to recite a memorial service over the grave of her father. She sobbed bitterly, and when the priest and sacristan began to sing the beautiful 'Eternal Memory,' took a small bottle out of her pocket and hastily swallowed the contents. She was taken to a hospital in a dying condition. In a letter she said, quoting the title of Dostoieffsky's novel, that since the death of her father she had been so humiliated and insulted that life had become unbearable.

Concrete is the cheapest building material

WHETHER for a silo, a milk-house, or a million bushel grain elevator, concrete is the most economical building material in use to-day.

Concrete never requires repairs, and the saving in repair-expense alone makes the greater economy of using concrete more apparent every day.

The cost of other building materials is constantly increasing.

The cost of concrete is being reduced.

Canada Cement

which Canadian farmers use, with their own sand, stone and gravel to make concrete, is the only ingredient you have to buy.

We have, by reason of our large output and scientific methods, been able to bring the price of "Canada" Cement so low that it is within the reach of everyone.

An increase in demand results in a greater economy of production, and when conditions have warranted it, we have, from time to time, shared this saving with the consumer by reducing the price of Canada Cement. This demand will continue to increase—as fast as farmers learn of concrete's superiority over other materials.

When you buy cement, see that you get "Canada" Cement; by so doing you will assure the complete success of all your concrete work.

Send a post card for our book "What the Farmer Can do With Concrete." It is free.

If this label is not on every bag it is not Canada Cement.
