MERCANTILE CO. HAS FINE PAINT DISPLAY

Unless your appointment is an exceedingly important one you should take time when next in town to visit the Mercantile Company and see the splendid window display which Fred Ash has assembled for the purpose of showing the multitudes of uses that can be made of Sherwin-Williams Paints.

Fred is the Architect, Builder, landscape-gardener painter, decorator, designer, and in fact the whole affair originated with him and was brought to completion through his efforts.

There is a model of a nice residence with a splendid lawn, a spacious corrugated metal barn, a windmill and evergreens. In front of the stable stands a horse and cart waiting for the young lady who is advancing across the lawn, while in front of the house is Cherrington's "Titanic" rejuvenated.

A tennis court and blooming flowers give an urban touch to the scene and a final note in proclaiming this as an exceptional work of origination in display which when connected with Sherwin-Williams Paints will cause the latter to live in the minds of spectators long after other scenes and places have faded into the mists of the forgotten past.

A most enjoyable dance was held in the Social Club house on Saturday last. The crowd who were feeling extremely good, was just right for the size of the hall, and everyone had a swell time. ONCE AGAIN THE SENATE

From a leading Daily we quote the following editorial:

"By a non-party vote the senate has killed a bill passed by parliament re-imbursing Farmer's Bank depositors for losses sustained by them in the collapse of that institution. which, though they may evade the issue as they will, means that the senators refuse to recognize any responsibility to the public on the part of government in the issuing of bank certificates and charters.

The Farmer's Bank was an institution rotten from its very inception, "born in sin and shapen in iniquity." Repeated warnings were given to the then minister of finance before any certificate was issued, in spite of which the finance department permitted the incorporators of the bank to proceed with business.

In a matter of this sort there may be no legal liability on the part of government, but in the Judgment of The Herald moral liability is strong. Our friends the senators, however, do not appear to be strong on moral sense. There seems to be something decidedly wrong with the atmosphere of the red chamber."

RULES RE HANDLING SMALL FRUIT CROP

The horticultural branch of the Department of Agriculture at Victoria has issued the following rules for Picking, Grading and Shipping Strawberries and Raspberries:

STRAWBERRIES

1. Make pickings as soon as the color of the berries indicates the proper market maturity. For long express shipments pickings should be made when berries show about one-third color, the degree of color depending on the distance of the market.

2. Make frequent pickings, going over the vines on alternate days. Immediately after a period of rain go over the whole patch, cleaning up all the fruit and sending the fruit that is fit to the cannery.

3. Pick in the cool part of the day if possible and do not allow the fruit to stand in the sun or dust after picking. Carry the stands to the packing shed at once after they have been filled.

4. Each picker should be provided with stands holding six cups. Remove the berries from the vine by breaking the stem over the fore-finger in giving the berry a little side motion. Do not injure the berry in anyway, either by pressure or by tearing it away from the calyx or "hull". Pick the vines clean and place soft berries in separate cups for the cannery, throwing the culls away.

5. Pack the berries in a cool shed having plenty of light. Before packing remove the berries from the packing cups, placing them upon a cloth covered packing frame. Be sure the berries are perfectly dry before packing. Forcing currents over the berries while they are upon the frames removes all moisture, brings out the lustre on the fruit and leaves it in a cool condition.

6. Use experienced packers. For long distance shipments make at least three grades .... A. Distant Market Grade, using only sound partially colored fruit. B. Local Market Grade, us only sound and well colored fruit. C. Cannery Grade, which includes a good quality of ripe fruit. All berries showing the least indication of decay or deterioration are culls and must be thrown away. Such berries will spoil the rest of the crate.

8. When packing for market use uniform sizes of berries, placing them in clean, new cups. Have the top layer of berries, come slightly over the outside edge of the crate to give an attractive appearance.

9. As soon as packed place the cups in the crate and keep in a cool place. In nailing on covers use four nails to the cleat. Do not nail superfluously as it irritates the consumer and deflects from the packers reputation.

10. Cool the berries down to 60° before shipping. This may be done by leaving the fruit in the night air and shipping in the morning.

—Send for our prices on furniture, we pay the freight. C. C. S.

MARRIED MEN LOSE IN BASEBALL GAME

In the ball game the other evening the singles beat the doubles which is much to their credit seeing they are much more in practice than the doubles Buff McPeak and Jack Cameron were the battery for the singles and the doubles rested their fortune and their hopes on Benedict Chrysler and Roy Telford. We ought to congratulate teams, they did exceedingly well which suggests that we have considerable talent in Creston which might be utilized to furnish amusement and clean sport to our prosaic little town. The band might be induced to come out and render a few selections between times and a little more encouragement given to the junior ball players who are really deserving of praise for the work they are doing in the ball field.

There is some rumor of a game on Tuesday, why not make it Saturday afternoon and give the people of the district a chance to combine the pleasure of the ball game with the business of shopping?

If the day is fine you will probably see the ladies present also, some by their presence to encourage their husbands and others their —sweethearts. There is room in the grandstand a splendid view of the game.

We are free to confess (being a married man) that we feel a little (not too much) the odium of a stinging defeat (not too stinging) at the hands of the singles but we are looking forward hopefully (not too hopefully) and awaiting a little anxiously for the next game when we will regain our standing and superiority for beat them we can and we will.

There will be a dance in the I. O. O. F. hall at Port Hill on Saturday, June 20th.

Victor Carr was in town on business to day. Everything points to a bumper crop out his way.

Mrs. George Broderick left Sunday for a visit to Red Deer. She has taken the younger children with her and hopes to rest and recuperate while away.

Annual school meeting on Saturday July 11th. All parents should make it a point to be there and assume their share of the responsibility that is theirs in the matter of their children's education. Don't believe rumors. Come to the meeting and hear what the trustees have to say.

Surely no one will begrudge the poor simp his meed of ghoulish glee in taking unto himself credit for making a "scoop" on the Empress of Ireland disaster. Distressing as the harrowing details of the tragedy may be, it is hardly more pathetic than the callousness of a human shrimp gloating over the cheap achievement of publishing the story at the cost of a few paltry dollars, just as though the news value of the tragic event which has plunged a nation into mourning, was the paramount consideration.—Fernie Free Press.

R. S. Bevan has thoroughly overhauled and fitted up the Everitt car bought by Mr. Cherrington from Chas. Morris this Spring, and we rise to remark that the opprobrious title "Titanic" has literally been wiped out, cleared away, not in the sense that one gets a clear title to a piece of property, but actually rubbed, polished and painted away so that the car looks like new and is a credit to its owner. We hear there is a movement on foot to have all the stumps pulled on the road to Cherrington's ranch so that in case of an accid— well, perhaps we've said enough.

ORCHARD CULTIVATION GIVES BIG RETURNS

Practical experience has shown that orchards should be cultivated. Tillage keeps the soil in good, loose condition and increases its water-holding capacity. Frequent shallow cultivations keep the top two or three inches of soil loosened, maintaining a dust mulch which acts like a blanket in preventing evaporation of the soil moisture. The plant foods are made available by cultivation and manure gives better results when used on tilled land.

Young orchards as well as old need cultivation. In a young orchard crops, such as currants, gooseberries, etc. may be grown between the rows, but never closer to the tree than five feet. The cultivation of the crops will generally be sufficient for the trees. Never grow such crops as hay or grain, for they rob the soil of large quantities of moisture and plant food without giving anything in return. Cover crops, such as clover, vetch, cowpeas etc., are very desirable to grow between the rows.

The number of cultivations during a season depends somewhat upon local conditions of soil, climate, age of tree, etc. Young, vigorous growing trees should not be cultivated or irrigated as late in the season as bearing trees, because they will grow late and the immature growth will be very liable to winter injury.

A good plan of cultivation used by many successful orchardists is as follows:

Plow (not deep enough to injure the roots) in the spring as soon as the soil is in good condition. Turn the soil towards the trees the first year and away from them the next year. The aim should be to maintain a dust mulch. Cultivate soon after every rain, for if the crust is not broken a large loss of moisture will result. Cultivate the orchard every week or ten days, depending upon conditions. Stop the cultivation upon the young trees about the latter part of July, and earlier in some sections, and at the last cultivation always sow a cover crop. This will draw off the moisture and give the new growth time to ripen before the severe winter sets in, and also, a good ground cover will result before winter. The next spring, plow under the cover crop and it will supply the necessary humus to the soil. With the older trees a cover crop is not so imperative, although it will always be very beneficial.

Dan English Sr. was in town Tuesday.

Creston Fruit Growers warehouse is gradually assuming the resplendent robe of red paint under the guiding hand of Mr. Timmons Jr. If Jupiter Pluvius would shut off the moisture for a little while resplendence would be complete.

What might have proven a serious accident occured on Sunday afternoon as George Huscroft accompanied by his sister Vera and Miss Barbara Mawson were driving out towards Erickson, when opposite Alex. Duperrez's place a dog came out and frightened the horse who bolted, spilling the occupants out and more or less seriously injuring them all. It was a matter of sheer luck that they were not all killed. The buggy was smashed. Mr. Duperrez promply offered to bear his share of the damage and also to have the dog shot so that a similar accident could not occur again. A barking dog is often the occasion of runaway horses and other owners ought to take warning from this incident.

WHY "DRY" GROUND INCREASES

"The rapid extension of "dry" territory throughout the United States is one of the notable signs of the times, and professional prohibition agitators are inclined to take a good deal of credit pertaining thereto to themselves. It is doubtful if they are entitled to it.

Professional prohibition agitators have been with us for a good many years now and their voices have been heard up and down the land for many decades, yet it is only within the last ten years that the really surprising prohibition advances have been made. Which suggests that some other cause than the prohibition lecturer and campaigner has been at work.

And this is the fact. Railways, big business corporations and individual business houses all over the country are insisting in these days of sharp competition, when only the best that men are capable of is good enough, that their employes shall be total abstainers.

On the Pennsylvania railway, which employs an immense number of men, this rule is enforced and regular observations made to see that there are no violations of it. The record is that of the total number of men employed 99.9 per cent, live up to the rule absolutely. Is it any wonder with such influence at work that the "dry" districts are increasing rapidly?" —Calgary Herald.

Messrs. John Oliver, H. C. Brewster and M. A. Macdonald, members of the local opposition, out of the legislature, are fitfully stumping the country. The chief subject of their animadversions is that, under the land policy of the government all the valuable lands in the province have been acquired by speculators, and that none worth having is left for the pre-emptor. Concerning this it may be said:

First—That it is not true. Much land, as fit for cultivation as any in the province, is ready for pre-emptors, and that additions thereto are made frequently, surveyed and with roads to them, as any person who is desirious of acquiring such land as an actual settler thereon can easily learn by writing to the minister of lands at Victoria.

Second—That at the time of the sales of land of which these parties complain, Messrs. Brewster and Oliver were members of the legislature and made no objection to the land laws on the statute books, which the minister of land, in selling, had been simply administering.

Third—That the government has double the price of all lands some considerable time ago to all persons except to actual pre-emptors or settlers thereon, and to those it still remains at the nominal price of one dollar per acre on easy terms of payment.

If the opposition has no more serious ground on which to attack the government than its land policy, its leaders would be doing themselves and their party a service by keeping off the public platform.—Daily News.

Dun's Review contains a more hopeful outlook this week. Besides announcing the number of failures in May as less than any month this year, the number is also less than the corresponding month last year, which looks hopeful, and leads to the following announcement:

"Advices from the leading commercial and industrial centers are more optimistic and the improved sentiment is reflected in some expansion in the volume of trade. Recent favorable weather has afforded retailers an opportunity to reduce accumulated stocks of merchandise, and both jobbing and wholesale departments have consequently benefited. Particularly favorable dispatches are received from New England, where mills and factories are more actively employed. Of late, there has been a marked increase in the number of orders placed with manufacturers, and there is much less idle machinery than a month ago. In leather, conditions display some improvement, although concessions in prices are still noted. Distribution of footwear at retail shows an increase, owing to the prevailing high temperatures. There is a healthier tone to the dry goods market, and business in various departments is quite large. More orders have been booked by manufacturers of staple cotton goods and quotations on new business a more satisfactory."

ANIMAL FERTILIZER INCREASES YIELDS

In any scheme to maintain or build up soil lertility, crop rotation including the growing of legumes, is vital but not sufficient. Clovers put the soil in better physical condition, so that the plant food in it become quickly available to the next crop. There is a danger then that we may mistkae a more productive soil for a more fertile soil and be inclined to give too much credit to the growing of the clover and not enough to the feeding of it to farm animals. No matter what crops are grown, if they are all sold away from the farm, the soil will become exhausted. Live stock must be kept. Nature has provided a balance between animal and plant life, and man cannot long disobey nature's decrees.

When every particle of manure is saved and applied to the land, there is money in live stock; in dairy products, in beef in the annual, increase, and most of all in the next year's crop. According to figures of the United States Department of Agriculture the yield per acre of corn in Kansas dropped from 34 3 buchels in the decade 1870 79 to 213in the decade 1890-99. Kansas has also grown large qnantities of alfalfa, but the corn alfalfa have both been sold away from the farms and decreased yields have resulted. In Illionois, which is a stock-raising and stock-keeping state, the yields have actually increased. It is a significant fact that the stoke states show the smallest lossess in crop yields. This is true of a state and the same principle applies to the individual farmer.

WOULD-BE ASSASSIN SHOOTS AT MAYOR'S PARTY

A man who was later identified as Michael Mahoney, a human derelict, fired a revolver shot into an automobile occupied by Mayor Mitchell of New York, Comptroller Prendergast, and Corporation Counsel Frank L Polk, wounding Polk in the mouth. The auto was standing in front of the City Hall as the Mayor and his party were just about to leave for lunch. The shooter was immediately captured and rushed into a nearby police station to get him away from the crowd which had begun to shout "Lynch him." The attempt on Mayor Mitchell's life recalls vividly the shooting of the late Mayor Gaynor who only died last Fall, and as many believe, died from the effects of the wound received three years before. Like Gaynor's would-be assassin, Mahoney believed he had an immaginary grievance against the Mayor, and his actions since the act indicate he is mentally unbalanced. It is more than likely he will be sent to Matteawan Asylum for the rest of his life. The photograph above shows Frank L. Polk (with the bandaged head,) Mayor Mitchell and Sergeant Phelan escorting Polk from the police station where his wound was dressed.
