Vol. XII. CRESTON, B. C., FRIDAY, APRIL 16, 1920 No. 7

Erickson

Postmaster Telford has a visitor this in his brother, Dr. Telford, who arrived a few days ago from Ontario, on a trip through western Canada.

Miss Jeanne Palmer, teacher at the Erickson school, was at Cranbrook last week for the Kootenay teachers' convention.

C. Maglio of Nelson was a visitor here on Thursday last. He was looking over the ground with a view to tendering on the work of putting in the irrigation system which the Erickson Water Users' Community contemplate installing using Sullivan Creek as a source of supply.

Pruning operations are in full swing here at present, orchardists give their ranches more and better attention this year than for some seasons past. At the G. Cartwright ranch arrangements are made to top graft all his Spitz trees to Delicious.

F. Putnam has joined the pruners union and is in charge of this work in the Staples Bros. orchards. Staples' have just secured a tractor disc for orchard cultivation which they will operate with the Fordson tractor, and would like to get hold of a man capable of handling that sort of work.

F. J. Klingensmith, who will again be in charge of the McLaren sawmill at Blairmore, has moved the family to that town, where they will reside for the next seven months.

Birth—At Miss Candy's marternity hospital, Creston, April 9th, to Mr. and Mrs. Alf. Palmer, a son.

F. Staples is making arrangements to move his portable sawmill plant to Kitchener, where he has taken a contract to cut for Paulsons. He will likely move Mrs. Staples and the family there to reside while filling the contract.

The Erickson Water Users' Community members had an important meeting on Tuesday afternoon. Things are coming along right and it is expected a definite announcement as to whether they will put in the irrigation system will be forthcoming before the end of the month.

Erickson will hear with satisfaction that at a meeting of the directors of Creston Fruit Growers Union on Wednesday it was decided to at once commence the erection of a warehouse on the track here. The Union plan will be to use it for the sale of feed as well as the assembling and shipping of fruit and vegetables. It will be of ample proportions but the dimensions cannot be stated exactly until the contractor makes an examination of the site it will occupy.

Women's Institute

There was quite a good turnout of members for the April meeting of Creston Women's Institute on Friday afternoon, at which considerable routine business was disposed of and an excellent paper on "Finance in Relation to Women's Citizenship" was given by Mrs. D. S. MacKenzie, while in response to the roll call several suggestions were made for future meetings. One of these, a flower show and social afternoon, was fully discussed, and finally decided upon for the latter part of June.

During the afternoon a short programme was given by some of the junior members. Edna Holmes opened with a piano solo, Frances Knott following with a song, and Frances Lyne and Phyllis Hamilton each gave recitations. All of these members were much appreciated by the audience, and the business of the meeting was then proceeded with.

Mrs. Lyne had received a letter from Mrs. Ralph Smith, in which she stated that she intended coming through here in the fall, when she hoped to address the women of Creston.

Tea was served by Mesdames, G. Johnson, Hayden, Trotter and Stocks, at which $3.75 was collected.

Sirdar

Sirdar is at last a Sabbath keeping town insofar as yard crew work goes. after going it seven days a week for almost twenty years the company has at last posted notice that in future Sunday work will not be in order in future.

The steel-laying crew in charge of Foreman Morrow has completed operations between this point and Wynndel.

It didn't really need Sunday's touch of really summer weather to convince that spring has come. Messrs. Dennes and Touhey are giving their motor boats an overhaul, and Tom Rogers reports quite a demand for fishing tackle.

Mrs. Brewis was a visitor at Nelson a couple of days last week. Mr. and Mrs. Dennes were also visitors in the same city for the Easter holiday.

Rev. J. S. Mahood favored with the Church of England Easter service on Sunday night at the schoolhouse and had a fine turnout of worshippers.

With the prospect of a good road through to Creston citizens are discussing possible purchases of motor cars. After extensive travelling abroad Mayor Daly's choice is still the Ford or Overland.

Mr. and Mrs. Loasby were visitors at Creston for the Easter services in Christ Church on Sunday, returning in the afternoon. Mr. and Mrs. Jack Cameron were also looking up Creston friends the fore part of the week.

Mrs. Jones of Kuskanook spent a day with Mrs. North last week, and reports the surveyers already at work on the Sirdar-Kuskanook road.

F. L. Brewis was a visitor here last week with his brother, Principal Brewis of the public school. He is en route to his home at Regina, Sask., after a stay in California recuperating after his war experiences.

The McCabe bridge crew is at work at the Landing, putting in a new lot of tie-up piles for the barges.

The ditcher has been working at Kootenay Landing the past week, removing, and which interferes with the operation of the silp in the summer season. A dozen carloads of the dirt were shipped to Cranbrook for the making of a garden at the Y.M.C.A. grounds.

It is expected that another six weeks will elapse before the Fraser Co. will have the new slip ready for operation.

NELSON, B.C. (1)

Kitchener

Miss F. Rutledge has returned after spending the Easter vacation at her home in Nelson.

Mrs. Vachon and Mrs. Henderson of Creston were guests of Mrs. G. A. Hunt on Sunday.

Capt. Forrester left a few days ago on a trip to Woodstock, Ont., and is very much missed by old friends here.

Cranbrook Sash & Door Co. sawmill has resumed cutting again, after being shut down a couple of weeks while the planer was being installed.

Kitchener expects to be a very busy place from now on, with three sawmills running in a short time.

Billy Johnson and his mudlarks are kept busy in the cuts these days. Frequent rains may be alright for farmers but it don't work that way with section crews.

There is considerable real estate activity at Kitchener, with quite a number of enquiries for desirable lots this month.

G. A. Hunt was a business visitor at Creston a couple of days the latter part of the week.

Wynndel

Birth—At Creston, on April 13th, to Mr. and Mrs. John Butterfield, a daughter.

Mr. Stimson returned from Nelson on Monday morning.

Misses M. Sutherland and Dorothy Butterfield and Mr. D. Butterfield spent a couple of days at Nelson last week, returning Friday.

There will be a meeting of the United Farmers at the schoolhouse on Saturday night at 8. All members are requested to attend as some important business is to be discussed. There will be a dance after the meeting.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. R. Uri was the scene of a very jolly party on Tuesday night in honor of the newly-married couple, and also of the hostesses' mother and sister, who are leaving on Thursday for their home at Burtoh City.

Clem. Payette has moved into the Paul Hagen shack vacated by T. Anderson a short time ago.

Tenders are being called to dig the ditch and lay the pipes for putting the water into the schoolhouse.

School re-opened on Monday with a full attendance of old pupils and two new ones.

Miss Marie Hagen spent the week-end at Creston visiting friends.

C. Hindley, who has been working at M. Wigen's cottonwood camp all winter, is now back at his home here, and busy clearing up land.

Another carload of settler's effects arrived on Monday's way freight.

Lister

The school reopened on Monday after the Easter week's holiday, which Principal Dobbin spent with friends in Nelson.

Listerities laconically remark that spring has come. Mr. Bird, who left late in the fall for Cranbrook, got back a few adys ago, and is back to work with renewed energy.

The slashing crew has just completed its work on Section 20, but as yet its new location for operating has not been announced.

Erection of the mill is making fairly good progress, but it is not expected that sawing operations will commence till about the middle of May.

Although the camp, in common with other points in the Valley, is worrying along without church services, the Sunday school attendance is quite well maintained, there being usually about twenty children and teachers out every Sabbath.

Messrs. Christianson and H. G. Smith are demonstrating their progressiveness at poultry raising, each of them having incubators full of eggs, while the latter is also taking on a flock of Toulouse geese.

The amateurs in the hen business report no luck at all in getting chicks out via the clucking hen route. Apparently the blasting operations scare the steady sitting habit out of biddy.

The carpenters are this week putting the finishing touch on the Charleson house, but is is likely construction effort will stop until the Lister mill is able to supply lumber.

There was a large and enthusiastic turnout on Saturday night for the organization of a Ladies' Auxiliary to the G.W.V.A., and after the aims and objects of such an organization had been placed before the ladies it did not take them long to decide to go ahead and organize, the following officers being chosen: President, Mrs. Sinclair; Vice-Present, Mrs. Noble; Secretary-treasurer, Mrs. H. G. Smith; Executive, Mrs. Chalmers, Mrs. Wellsprings and Mrs. Aspell. After the business had been disposed the ladies of the camp were guests at a social dance at which the G.W.V.A. played the role of hosts, with an excellent supper excellently served under the direction of head of waiter Fred Bones, and his worthy right bower, Jock Duncan.

Canyon City

Miss Muriel Knott was a Cranbrook visitor last week, for the Kootenay teachers' convention.

Mr. and Mrs. Ross of Portsmouth, England, arrived a few days ago on a visit to his sister, Mrs. G. Dayies, and are likely to make their home in the Canyon district permanently.

Guy Browell is now numbered amongst the Valley's ever-increasing squad of auto owners. He has just purchased a new Chevrolet from the Embree garage at Creston.

The ten-acre ranch of the late Bobby Smith has just been purchased by John Johnson at a price said to be $750. The place adjoins Mr. Johnson's and has a little slashing done on it.

A Mr. Bateman has taken an option on Frank Jackson's improved place here, and we expect within a couple of weeks to have Mr. and Mrs. Bateman, who are from Lethbridge, Alta., residing amongst us.

Frank Swanson and Martin Nelson left a few days ago for a trip to Arrow Lakes points, where they expect to strike work for the summer.

The Frank Tophman ranch of twenty acres is another place that has passed to new owners. The buyer is A. Johnson of Vancouver who, we hear, intends to at once get busy on extensive clearing operations and other improvements.

Tarzan of the Apes

Darwin was right, alright. But he never graded the degrees of descent. Edgar Rice Borroughs made some attempt at grading in his "Tarzan of the Apes," which will be seen at the Peekin, April 26th. He runs the gamut this way—drunken sailors, brutal ship officers, slave traders and finally aristocrats. The Apes really rank highest. Even the boy brought up by the apes ranks head and shoulders above his artistocrat relative. There are no class lines, no national lines, no mutual exploitation among our ancestors.

"Tarzan of the Apes" is bully adventure. Wild beasts roam through the scenes; a kindly elephant takes the wild man upon his back; in short mix Stevenson's "Treasure Island" with Captain Baker's African stories and the happy combination is struck. The joy of the film lies in its kindly wild life rather than its civilized brutality.

And in putting Burroughs' story into the film the National Film Corporation has shown good sense of showmanship. "Tarzan" is better than most films which have been concocted for the screen. Natural beauties, imagination and clean, free spirit make the film a delight.

Tarzan, as readers of the story will remember, is the son of Lord Greystoke, who went to Africa on a secret mission for the British government. Africa in 1897 was torn by European ravishers, atrocities in the Belgian Congo, Jameson's raid on the Boers; slave trading, with its concomitant brutalities by the Arabs.

The sailors munity, slay their brutal officers in fair fight and then maroon Lord Graystoke and his wife. A boy is born in the jungle; the mother dies and the baby is carried off by a mother ape, who has just lost her young. The film traces the growth of the boy—half ape, half human—till his twentieth year.

A counter melody is being played in England, where Lord Graystoke's brother assumes the title after having married a barmaid. Their child is a petted brat. News is brought to them by a sailor, Binns, that the heir to the Graystoke estate is alive in Africa. The barmaid aristocrat has Binns incarcerated as a lunatic for ten years, but a vengeful maid servant finally helps him escape. He tells his story to a scientist, a fingerprint expert, and the Graystoke solicitor, with the result that a party is made up to seek out Tarzan in his jungle home.

Some of the finest bits of action ever portrayed on the screen are found in "Tarzan." The fight between sailors and officers aboard the vessel is an exciting bit of action. Tarzan's struggle with a lion, as well as his fight with a native negro are excellent pictures of action. For adventure "Tarzan" hits the bull's eye.

Want Lake Road

The first move to inaugurate closer co-operative action between Kootenay Lake points and Creston Valley was made here on Monday afternoon when a conference was held in the board of trade rooms by representative delegations from Crawford Bay, Gray's Creek, Queen's Bay, Boswell and Creston board of trade members, the question before the meeting being the matter of launching a campaign to have the provincial authorities proceed with the building of a road that will give Creston direct access with the points mentioned, and likewise provide the highway that will give autoists a direct route from Alberta to the coast without having to utilize C.P.R. for transport, as is now the case via Sirdar, and will still be necessary if a wharf is put in at Kuskanook when the new road is completed to that point.

The delegates took the view that the construction of the road is necessary even now for tourist traffic and when available will open for settlement considerable good land on that side of the lake, and they fear that if the Kuskanook wharf is built before complete survey of the road is made and its cost of construction ascertained the powers that be will stall on road building on the plea that they have already provided wharf accommodation.

The Creston delegates were quite unanimously in favor of getting on with road building, and after the visitors had very fully set forth the benefits that would accure to their respective districts, the following resolution was submitted and carried enthusiastically:

Resolved, "That before spending money on a wharf at Kuskanook every endeavor be made to put through the road from Creston along the east side of the lake to Kootenay Bay, to open that side of the lake to settlement as well as to facilitate tourist traffic, and that the location between Kuskanook and Boswell be begun this year, and carried through to completion as soon as possible."

The meeting was presided over by President Constable, and there was quite a good turnout of interested board members. The delegates from lake points were: Sir John Wilmont and A. W. Limberry, Grays Creek; H. Murray, Major Gooch and O. Burden, Crawford Bay; Rev. J. S. Mahood, Queen's Bay; S. Cummivgs and Harry Johnstone, Boswell.

The resolution was submitted to the Creston board of trade at the meeting on Tuesday night, and was adopted after the words "That before spending money on a wharf at Kuskanook" had been eliminated.

The visitors passed a vote of thanks to Creston board for extending their help in this matter, and went away confident that with the additional help of Creston the solution of their road problem would be considerably expedited.

Announcement is made that government road work will be paid for at the rate of $4.25 per day this year, with foremen getting $1 in advance of this rate.

HENRY C. ROWLAND

Copyrighted. Printed by special arrangement with Thos. Allen, Toronto.

Meanwhile, the season advanced and, the heat of Paris growing oppressive, Ruggles rented a furnished villa at Le Touquet for the months of July and August, and removed his household thither. The brothers De Montereau ran down for every week-end, and on one of these outings they brought with them an intimate friend, who was a lieutenant in the army and a young man of good connections, though small personal fortune. His expectations were, however, of the best,—as Ruggles, anticipating another suitor, took pains to assure himself,—so that when the young man's aunt formally requested in his behalf the hand of Rosa Ben Ali Hamid, Ruggles decided to give his consent, no doubt influenced to some degree by Rosa's impassioned pleadings that she might have her adored Marcel. Miss Elliot did not figure prominently in any of these negotiations.

One might think that Ruggles should have been a very happy man at so successful a fulfillment of his obligation to his late benefactor. Once his wards were married, he could say to himself: "I have carried out the instructions of Hamid Pasha in a manner which I know that were he living he would thoroughly approve. I am discharged of my responsibility and it remains now only for me to enjoy my wealth. I am young, in good health, with many friends, and about one hundred thousand dollars a year to spend in the pursuit of happiness. The world is mine."

But Ruggles felt that the world was very far from being his. Mr. Falconer, who at Ruggles's invitation had come down to spend several days at his Le Touquet villa, had informed him that there was a rumor of Ruth Downing's engagement to a young Englishman of title, the Honorable Cecil Townsend, and at this news it seemed to Ruggles that all of the light had gone out of his life. He could no longer deceive himself in regard to his true state of heart toward Ruth. He knew that he loved her with an intensity which absorbed him, soul and mind and body, and that without her all else was a hollow mockery, and would always be.

The three days that she had spent with her aunt at the Carlton had crystallized Ruggles's distant adoration into a consuming passion the violence of which left him at times weak and shoken from its mere contemplation. There was in his heart a constant hunger for her which made him feel as though he were a mere shell; a receptacle for the containing of a mighty love. He had managed to see her twice on each of these days, and Ruth and her aunt had accepted his invitation to dinner and the theatre. Not only had she accepted him frankly as a friend, but she had shown a sweet and sympathetic interest in his affairs and his physical well-being, and considered him in the light of a social equal.

Ruggles's views on class distinction had, however, undergone a revolution as the result of his personal experiences. As a shoe clerk in the service of the company he had considered himself the social equal of anybody, but now, as a millionaire and a man honored by the Padisha of the Ottoman Empire for distinguished gallantry on the field of battle, he had swung to the other extreme and held himself to be but a parvenu, an upstart, one of lowly origin who had been raised to fortune by a trick of fate. He did not consider himself to be in any sense Ruth's equal, nor did he expect the world at large to value him as such. He reflected that both his mother and father had been factory hands, and that he himself had first seen the light of day in a dingy workman's cottage under the shadow of the factory walls.

Had Ruggles been like certain others who have leaped from obscurity to great wealth, he would have paid some genealogist a hundred pounds to have provided him with a coat of arms and a few ancestral portraits and claimed relationship with the Ruggles of Hants or Kent or York or any old county, and have hung an etching of Totteringham Court-on-Shushy Water in a conspicuous part of his drawing-room. He might have presented the city of Paris with a statue or soup-kitchen for indigent absinthe-drinkers and tried for the red ribbon of the [illegible] of this sort. He suffered in silence and tried to be strong.

But it required all of his strength to meet Mr. Falconer's announcement in regard to Ruth's supposed engagement with an unmoved face and a heart the weight of which proved almost too great a burden for an injured ankle. He managed to receive the news standing up, and to all outward appearance undismayed, but the faithful Mustapha, who had grown to love his youthful master, detected symptoms of fever that night and enjoined a day in bed, to which Ruggles wearily submitted.

Besides the crushing conviction that Ruth could never be his, there were certain other factors contributing to Ruggles's lack of cheer, which exercised the same proportion to the primary cause as might a series of mosquito bites to the victim of an encounter with a motor-car moving at a high velocity. The Misses Challand, Elliot, and Westbrooke had come to oppress his spirits both individually and collectively. It sometimes seemed to Ruggles that they had entered into a conspiracy for the betterment of his speech and manners; a sort of Society for the Social Improvement of Richard Ruggles.

As a matter of fact, he was not far wrong. It hurt Miss Challand's cultured, Miss Elliot's academic, and Darthea's aesthetic sensibilities that Ruggles should "sir" and "ma'am" new acquaintances; that he should be guilty of such vulgar expressions as "I sure do," or "it sort of seemed like," etc.; that he should know so little of art, literature, or music.

As tactfully as possible they tried constantly to put some polish on Ruggles, and it must be admitted their efforts were not in vain. He was quick to learn and seldom needed to be told a thing twice. With French people, however, he had the best of them, for his accent was better and his speech far more idomatic than was theirs. Indeed, when conversing in French, Ruggles passed readily for a man of birth and education.

But aside from these petty annoyances he was bored by his new manner of life. Being a natural-born business man of inherent business ability, he did not take kindly to ease and idleness—especially in a "hen-house," as he sometimes thought to himself of his establishment. He sometimes wondered drearily what he was going to do when he should find himself alone again and with a bigger income than he could possibly spend. At such moments he thought wistfully of the company.

This sadness of Ruggles' made him the more interesting to his household, none of whom—except perhaps the devoted Mustapha, who had witnessed certain orisons—ascribed it to the proper cause. The other accepted it as a part of his convalescence, the pain which his ankle sometimes gave him, and the aftermath of his service with the Red Cross. It must be said that all did their utmost to cheer him, and it is probable that no young man was ever taken better care of.

Then one day Ruggles came in to luncheon with such a high flush on his lean cheeks and so vivid a brightness in his eyes that Miss Elliot, on catching sight of him, feared that the fever brewed in the swamps flanking Derkos must have germinated again. Ruggles seemed nervous and excited. He had been watching the tennis on the courts of the Hermitage Hotel, and he had seen enter a big touring-car containing Ruth and Miss Downing. He announced this fact in as casual a voice as he was able to control.

"Really?" said Miss Challand. "Did you speak to them?"

"No," said Ruggles, "I just saw them pass."

"They've probably run over to meet Mr. Downing and his son on the Rotterdam, which is due to arrive at Boulogne tomorrow," said Darthea. "I saw in the 'Herald' about a week ago that they were among the passengers."

Ruggles helped himself to Chablis. He was conscious of a sudden irritation with Darthea for not having informed him of this all-important fact. He had never formed the habit himself of following the steamer sailings and social items, but he could not understand how anybody could fail to be interested at any time by the movements of any of the Downing family, or fail to comment on them. As a matter of fact, Darthea had commented on the circumstance, but Ruggles had not been present at the time.

This, then, was undoubtedly the reason of Ruth's presence in Le Touquet, Boulogne and a charming resort. Ruggles found himself suddenly deprived of appetite.

"I'm afraid you're not feeling well, Mr. Ruggles," said Miss Elliot, observing him decline a favorite dish.

"Oh, I'm all right, thanks," said Ruggles. "I guess I'll go over and call on Miss Downing and her aunt this afternoon and ask them to dinner. Miss Downing said, when I last saw her, that she wanted to meet the girls."

[illegible] Darthea eyes slowly to Ruggles's face.

"Is she very pretty?" she asked.

"Yes," Ruggles answered, "and she's just as sweet and nice as she is pretty."

"Are you crazy about her?" asked Roxana.

"My dear!" said Miss Challand, in mild reproof.

Ruggles smiled wearily.

"I guess everybody that knows her is crazy about her, Roxana," said he, and fell into an abstracted silence.

Roxana was rather silent, too, but, [illegible] at Ruggles from under yellow gleams [illegible] She had seen deeper into his soul than her less instinctive though more sophisticated mentors.

SHORT OF BREATH
Could Hardly Walk Without Resting.

When you go to a physician to be examined for any heart trouble, one of the first questions he asks is: "Are you short of breath?"

Now, when the heart becomes affected there ensues a feeling of a choking sensation, a shortness of breath, palpitation, throbbing, irregular beating, smothering sensation, dizziness and a weak, sinking, all-gone feeling of oppression and anxiety.

On the first sign of the heart becoming weakened or the nerves unstrung Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are just the remedy you require. They regulate and stimulate the heart, and strengthen and restore the whole nerve system.

Mr. Stephen Crouse, East Clifford, N.S., writes: "I suffered for five years with heart trouble. I could hardly walk from the house to the barn without resting, as I used to get so short of breath. Doctors could not help me. My wife told me to get a box of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills and I felt better after taking them; three boxes made me quite well. I am now helping my son to work the farm, and can truthfully say I feel like a different man."

Valuable Mining Property

The Greatest Yielding Copper Mine On the Continent

The sale of the Flin Flon copper mine of La Pas in southern Manitoba to the International Nickle Company has just been announced. The purchase price was one million dollars.

Consequent on this purchase it is expected that a railway to the mine will be built in the near future, connecting with the Hudson's Bay Railway at a point about 42 mile northeast of the Pas and that a smelter will be built and water power which is located near the mine will be developed.

The proven ore body in the mine is twenty million tons, worth about 180 million dollars, which will make it the greatest yielding copper mine on the continent, states the Regina Post.

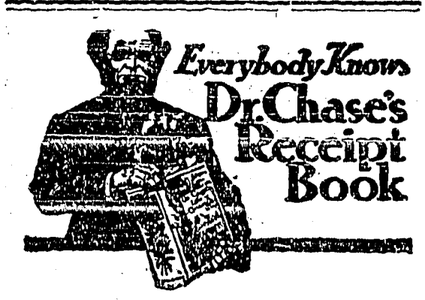
Storm Loss of Ten Millions

Officials of the Nova Scotia Highways Board today stated that the damage to the bridges in Annapolis county during the recent floods will be at least ten million dollars and that it will be months before vehicle traffic across the Annapolis and Lequille rivers can be resumed. Four steel bridges, two wooden bridges, and at least a dozen smaller one were demolished to a greater or less degree.



And His Family Medicines

MOST people first knew Dr. Chase through his Receipt Book. Its reliability and usefulness made him friends everywhere.

When he put his Nerve Food, Kidney-Liver Pills and other medicines on the market they received a hearty welcome, and their exceptional merit has kept them high in the public esteem.

Take Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills for example. There is no treatment to be compared to them as a means of regulating the liver, kidneys and bowels and curing constipation, biliousness, kidney disease and indigestion.

FRANK HANNON SWEARS BY DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS

States that they cured his backache after other medicines had failed and that he would not be without them.

Corcoran, Joliette Co., Que., March 28.—(Special.) — Claiming that he is completely cured of backache from which he was a severe sufferer, Mr. Frank Hannon, a well-known resident here, is shouting the praises of Dodd's Kidney Pills.

"After trying various medicines for my backache," Mr. Hannon states, "I finally bought a supply of Dodd's Kidney Pills. From the start of the treatment I felt benefitted and now I am completely cured.

"I therefore proclaim Dodd's Kidney Pills the finest on the market. I would not be without them."

Dodd's Kidney Pills strike right at the seat of the trouble, the kidneys. They are no cure-all. They are simply and purely a kidney remedy. But as cured kidneys strain all the impurities, all the seeds of disease, out of the blood, Dodd's Kidney Pills naturally get credit for curing a number of different diseases.

Women's Institutes In Alberta

Increased During the Past Year By More Than Three Thousand

The steadily increasing influence and importance in the life of the province of the Women's institutes in Alberta was demonstrated at their first annual convention held at Edmonton.

In the course of the convention the superintendent made the statement that the membership of these institutes had increased during the past year by more than three thousand, making a total of 13,150 members in the province and giving Alberta the second largest institute in Canada.

An immense amount of work has been done by these institutes, especially in the rural settlements, where their effect is particularly beneficial. The curriculum includes lectures and demonstrations in dozens of different lines; there were fifty-four short courses of instruction in home nursing, care of the sick, and first aid, which were delivered by the provincial health nurses of the department of health. Twenty-one demonstrations were given. Sixteen short courses in cookery, and numberless other demonstrations and lectures in rural sociology, legal status of women, civics, improved schools, the feeding and health of children, etc. In addition to this, an immense amount of relief work has been carried on and thousands of dollars raised throughout the province, distributed for this purpose.

Breeding Draft Horses

Demand for Heavy Draft Animals Was Never Better

From reports received from every part of the country it is apparent that there are fewer good draft colts from one to three years of age than ever before. The country is overstocked with light nondescript colts and horses for which there is no demand and for which there is not likely to be any great demand in the future. The world is short of heavy draft animals, and the outlook for good prices for this class of stock weighing from 1,650 to 2,000 lbs. at maturity was never better. France alone of the European countries is in the market for 60,000 heavy draft horses, for which they will pay good prices.

Farmers and breeders should not fail to breed every good draft mare available this year, and they should be bred to the biggest draft stallion available. Breed is not so important as size, quality and weight. The breeds that produce these desirable qualities with greatest uniformity may be listed in the following order: Percherons, Belgians and Clydesdales. Breeders desirous of purchasing good sires should select not only good individual stallions, but they should see to it that they are bred from good families of mares, and if possible should purchase Canadian western bred horses, that have been acclimatized. The curse of the heavy horse breeding industry in Western Canada has been the importations and sale of cheap fat stallions of poor ancestry.

Farmers should breed only from the best if they wish to produce desirable draft horses for the future.—By Prof. W. L. Carlyle.

Intelligence of Horses

A Pony That is Credited With the Best of Table Manners

The high intelligence of horses was superbly demonstrated during the war and some day a lover of the horse will collate the many wonderful incidents in which he played a leading part. One of these will be the vagaries of a Canadian General's thoroughbred, which again and again refused to budge to the spur at times when there was apparently no evidence of the slightest danger. Twice he saved his master's life by deliberate acts of insubordination. The latest yarn about a pony that had a race-track reputation is worth repeating in this connection. Every morning its owner brought this pony into the dining-room of the house in which he was billeted, and led him round the table. The pony was offered all sorts of dainties, but he would only touch slices of bread and butter, of which he was inordinately fond. It was not a big room, and there was not much space between the wall and the table, so if he had shown any restlessness the table and all that was on it must have been demolished. He, however, behaved always with the manners of a retriever dog, and only the slices of bread and butter had to be replenished.

Cream the butter gradually, beating in the sugar, egg, milk and flour sifted with one teaspoonfull of baking powder. Chop the nuts fine and add them to the mixture. Drop on a buttered tin a teaspoonfull on one place; bake in a moderate oven. This recipe makes two dozen small cakes. A Happy Family

BY DR. S. C. BOWERS.

A happy family is one that can sit down to the table with keen appetites and good cheer. Plenty of the out-of-doors and cleanliness, inside and outside of the body, will make for health, wealth and happiness. Your doctor will tell you that anything from a headache to the most serious illness may result from allowing food to ferment in the intestines. The first thing to do in case you feel mean, logy, dull, perhaps feverish, is to flush the liver and kidneys, drink plenty of water, and take a dose of castor oil, or, something better, made of May-apple, aloin and jalap, and long sold by almost every druggist as Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets. This may save you from a fit of sickness, remove the poisons from the system and give the tissues of the body a chance to build up and resist disease.

People are realizing more and more that the kidneys, just as do the bowels, need to be flushed occasionally. The kidneys are the chief native organ and are constantly working, separating the poisons from the blood. Uric acid backs up into the system, causing rheumatism, neuralgia, dropsy and many other serious disturbances.

This can be avoided by stimulating the kidneys to increased action, and because of its tonic effect on these organs I would advise any one to get Anuric (anti-uric-acid) which is to be had nowadays for fifty cents, at almost any drug store.

CRESTON, B.C., FRIDAY, APR. 16

CLERGYLESS CRESTON

By ADHERENT

"I have attended church seven times in the last eight years; have more or less consistently ridiculed church members and church activities; in fact have done most of the things which were better left undone; and have most certainly left undone most of the things that anyone with a sense of religious responsibility should have done. But in spite of my own shortcomings I would very much prefer to see my boy a teacher in one of the Sunday schools to have him become an expert poker player. And I would rather that my daughter should attend choir practise, than to know that she was making up half of a jazz duett. No man, unless he is satisfied to reap a harvest of sorrow and regret, can afford to bring up a family without religious instruction, and Creston district will be a splendid community to move away from unless the people waken to the need of taking vigorous action in connection with their churches."

If a list were made showing Crestonities in the order of their religious convictions, commencing at the top of the page with the names of those who are most religious, the name of the man who made the foregoing statement would, probably, appear near the bottom of the list. Coming from such a source the statement is most startling and in my own case has forced the conclusion that conditions are, indeed, serious; and from the point of view of the children of the community the word "serious" becomes too weak to express the matter.

Suppose the boy referred to in the above statement has been in attendance at either the Presbyterian or Methodist churches, which are supposed to serve over fifty per cent of the Valley's population, he has helped form one of the Sunday evening gatherings, averaging always less than twenty in number, which were practically all women and children—for never have grown men been known to form even a fair proportion of a Creston congregation.

He has been forced to spend an hour in an atmosphere of depression listening to prayers too heavily freighted with the all-pervading spirit of hopelessness to ever ascend heavenward, and to sermons whose phrases echoed far over the heads of listeners who failed to listen.

Nor can the blame be placed on the preachers. Imagine, if you can, a minister delivering an effective address on honesty oppressed by the fact that his own debts may have to go by default due to the dishonesty of his congregation in failing to pay the salary promised, which at its best could only afford a bare living.

Imagine a minister delivering an interesting address on any subject to a congregation of empty pews, while through the front door of his church he recognizes those who should have been his listeners among the returning fishing and picnic parties. If the angel Gabriel, and this statement is made with all reverence, were to occupy one of the pulpits, it is very doubtful—in the writer's mind—if even angelic enthusiasm could withstand the indifference of Creston people. The remarkable thing is that in the face of this indifference ministers have done as well as they have.

Many aspects of the situation are open for discussion. Some might be found who would even discuss as to whether or not churches are beneficial to the community, but on one point all fair-minded people must agree: The blame for the religious condition of this community (which can be guaged by the fact that there were no Easter services of any kind whatever in Creston this year) rests entirely with the people of Creston.

But let us return to the boy question. Should the present tendency of things religious continue it will be a matter of only a short time until the boy will hear the announcement made that the church, which he has been attending, has been closed permanently. Possibly, for boys have keener reasoning powers than we credit them with, he may spend much time trying to find a reason for the death of religious teachings so far as he is concerned, that will be consistent with his mother's professed belief in the bible and its teaching. It is not likely that the boy will come to the correct conclusion, which is that the churches in Creston have died not because of any failure of the bible truths; not because of opposition, but simply because of the indifference of his parents, and the parents of other Creston children.

Let us follow the matter still further, still supposing conditions to continue along the same channels they appear to be taking today, in two or three years' time the boy, possibly on his way to and from high school, will pass the churches but the things for which they stand today will have been forgotten. It is a certainty that parents too indifferent to the religious needs of their boy to spend their time and money in keeping religious institutions alive will be too indifferent to give religious instruction in the home. It is very doubtful if the baseball park, the poolroom, or the jazz hound club will supply the need.

Without discussing an impossibility we can continue this line still further and suppose that the parent should be unfortunate in having to face the death of the boy just as he is reaching the state of manhood, without a place of worship from which to conduct the funeral, with the last sad rites being performed by a stranger if distance would permit of a minister being secured. Are there any parents in Creston Valley who would dare contemplate, under such conditions, the inevitable results of their indifference to the religious needs of their children?

There may be, and doubtless are, people who claim that the churches as they exist would be better closed and that something better and more in keeping with the times should be found. People in Creston who hold their belief have a golden opportunity to bring forward that "something better" at the present time. It is a significant fact that these people are taking no action.

The question is not whether or not it is necessary to develop and cultivate religious instincts. No man of ordinary education would risk his reputation of sanity by disputing the fact that the child brought up without religion is defective, and any one who honestly disputes the fact that the church has been the greatest factor in our civilization is simply advertising his ignorance.

If the removal of things religious but placed us in a negative position as regards religion and morality, conditions might be considered not quite so serious. It is a disquieting fact, however, that the person who is not moral is almost certain to be immoral, and the person who is not religious is certain to be ungodly.

Applying the argument to the community it would seem that we are not overstating the facts when we say that unless Creston people face the situation and rectify present conditions there is a possibility that Creston Valley must sometime in the not distant future be described as an immoral and ungodly community.

The writer hopes that this is taking the view of the situation which is unnecessarily pessimistic. It seems certain, however, that the handwriting is on the wall, and that Creston has been 'weighed in the balance and found wanting.' Let us hope that the men of the district will heed the warning in the interest of the boy and the girl.

How About This

I wish I could get words to express
The country's need for work; not rest.
I'd puzzle this sad brain of mine
And thus avert a great famine.
The aged and infirm can't now
Sow grain; cultivate or plow.
The young can't really see the need—
A situation grave, indeed.
The aged men of this great day,
Of merriment, and joy and play.
Compare these years with years gone by
And scarcely can keep back a cry.
"O, look ahead, my sons." they say,
"For yonder comes a malady.
Money and mirth and auto pleasure
Will deprive us of a greater treasure."
What a man hath for his life will give
If only he may surely live.
Spring is here and asks of you,
Young man, what are you going to do?
Will you sow seeds, and work with might
To save your nation from famine's plight,
Or stave along, not work, but play,
And calmly wait the evil day.
I speak these words calmly to you—
As for results its up to you.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Kaslo's Utilities Pay

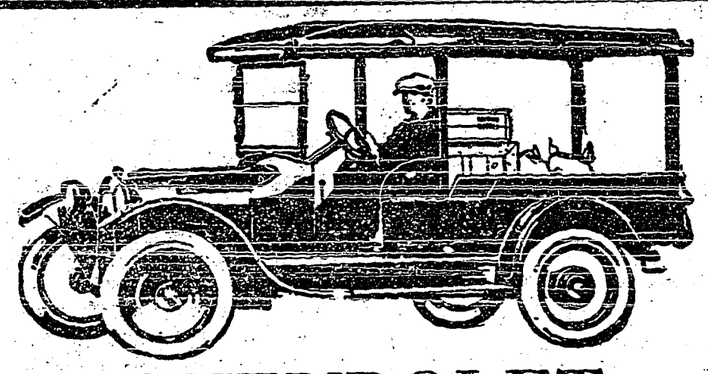
Kaslo, B. C., April 8.

Editor Review:

Sir:—As an advocate of municipal ownership of public utilities, I wish to draw your attention to an error in an item in a recent issue of your paper, in which you say that the Kaslo waterworks was not a paying city-operated utility. This is absolutely wrong. You apparently got this idea from the published report of the proceedings of the city council, when the financial statement of the city was under discussion, and as a reason for a suggestion by one of the aldermen that it might be advisable to increase the present water rate, it was stated that the net revenue the city was obtaining was not in proportion to the capital investment in the plant.

The city statement shows that a net surplus, after paying its full share of the city office expenses, maintenance and upkeep of the plant, also $411 spent on capital account, there was a net profit of $107 transferred to general account. A considerable additional amount should be given credit to the waterworks system, as no credit is given it for the large number of hydrants distributed thru the city. Also, it is doubtful if there is a town in the interior of British Columbia whose citizens enjoy so low a water-rate as do the people of Kaslo. The basic rate here is $1.00 per month for a residence, without any limit as to the number of taps.

If this were a privately owned system, the rate would quite likely be $1.50 and the city be charged about $1200 per year for hydrants for fire protection. I think these figures would be in proportion to what we paid for our electric service before it was acquired by the city.



CHEVROLET
Light Delivery Wagon

For town or country use the Chevrolet Light Delivery Wagon is equally efficient. It will carry full capacity loads—either passengers or merchandise—over any road a motor car could possibly negotiate with a speed and security that gives ample evidence of its staunch construction and unfailing.

If you are interested in economical haulage, you will want to inspect this Chevrolet.

Chevrolet Light Delivery Wagon $1120 f.o.b. Creston.
With Two Extra Seats $1165.

EMBREE'S GARAGE
CRESTON

As another example of municipally owned utility, I would state that the Kaslo electric light plant has been operated now for a number of years under city ownership and management, and up to the present has not only paid the interest on the purchase debentures, but has supplied the necessary sinking fund so far required to be raised to meet the cost of the plant—that is, up to the present the original plant has not cost the city one dollar. In addition to all this, the city statement for last year shows a net surplus transferred to general account, $1568. In the case of the electric plant, it is given credit for an amount for street lighting about the same as that charged by the former owners, but the lighting given is about three times as great for the money as supplied under private ownership, and Kaslo is one of the best lighted cities in the interior.

Canada's Status

Canada's international status has been determined by its inclusion in the League of Nations as a distinct national entity, possessing the same standing and voting power as is accorded to sovereign nations, and obligated to assume the same responsibilities and discharge the same duties as are laid on all other nations.

This is an almost revolutionary change in status to that existing prior to the Great War. When, on August 4, 1914, Great Britain declared war on Germany, Canada, in common with the whole British Empire, was automatically at war. The Canadian Parliament did not make a declaration of war; it merely took official cognizance of the fact that a state of war existed. It remained, however, for the Canadian Parliament to decide the extent of Canada's participation in the war.

In future, however, as a full-fledged member of the League of Nations, Canada will have a voice in deciding issues of peace or war. Canada's vote will count just as effectively as the vote of Great Britain, France, Italy or any other country. This means that, whereas formerly Canada had no foreign policy, because it had no say in foreign affairs. It must decide issues of peace or war for itself.

This change in Canada's international status inevitably calls for some change in its position within the British Empire and in the relations hitherto existing between this Dominion and Great Britain. There are certain anomalies in the present relationship that must be corrected, but which in no wise weaken the Empire, or tend to Canada's withdrawal therefrom; on the contrary, such changes as are necessary should have the effect of adding strength to the Empire.

Recognized as a nation within a League of Nations, Canada will have direct relations with all other nations and it is almost certain to follow that this Dominion will have its own accredited representatives at the capitals of other countries. The first step in the evolution of this policy is being taken in the appointment of a Canadian Minister to Washington. In the past, if the Canadian Government had representations to make to the United States Government it was necessary to transmit them to the Colonial Office in London, who in turn handed them over to the British foreign office, which sent them on with instructions to the British ambassador at Washington. Replies to such representations had to return via the same route, and all negotiations between Ottawa and Washington had to be conducted through London. In future, we are to have direct dealings with the United States Government through a Canadian Minister at Washington.

Other important constitutional changes are up for discussion at Ottawa. Canada derives its constitution from the British Parliament, through the British North America Act. Any alteration or amendment to that constitution can only be affected by the British Parliament upon address of the Canadian Parliament. It is now proposed that Canada shall be given full power over its own constitution, to amend it from time to time as the people of Canada conceive in their own interest it should be amended and without recourse to the British Parliament. Australia and New Zealand possess such control over their constitution, and the Dominion Minister of Justice is now in negotiation with the several Provincial Governments with a view to having representations made to the British Government and Parliament for the conferring of similar powers upon Canada.

The view has long been held by many Canadians that a change should also be affected in our system of judicial appeals. At present the final court of appeal for Canada is the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council in England. There is a growing belief that, so far as Canadian cases are concerned, the Supreme Court of Canada should be made the final court of appeal—that it should be supreme in fact as well as in name, and that all the expense and delay inseparable from appeals to London should be obviated.

Slowly, but none the less surely, Canada and the other self-governing Dominions of the British Empire seem to be moving towards the ultimate goal of independence in all foreign affairs, just as they have long been independent in all domestic matters. This does not mean that Canada will sever its connection with Britain, nor withdraw from the Empire. Not at all. It has been declared by the Prince of Wales, Lloyd George and others, that Canada is now a nation, a partner of Great Britain, occupying a position of equality with Britain in the Empire. If this is true, and no one disputes it, then existing anomalies whereby in some respects the British Government, Parliament and the courts can exercise a veto over Canada must be removed.

Evolving gradualy, the apparent end would seem to be the constitutional establishment of Canada and the other self-governing Dominions as sovereign nations, all owing allegiance to one Crown, flying the same flag, working together in cordial co-operation for the good of all, but each mistress of their own affairs. In a word, a league of British nations within a League of Nations.

Alberta Potatoes for California

Recognition of Quality of Produce Grown in Western Canada

New markets for the potato crop of Alberta have been opened up by the shipment of a whole carload of potatoes consigned from Edmonton to San Francisco.

This shipment practically constitutes the first consignment of the kind ever sent from Edmonton direct to the Pacific Coast. While eastern markets have been plentiful in the past, direct orders for potatoes from California points have seldom reached this city and the placing of such a shipment with a city such as San Francisco is a recognition of the quality of produce grown in the province.

A SPRING TONIC AIDS EFFICIENCY

Lay Foundation of Good Health Now By Building Your Blood and Strengthening Your Nerves

The good old fashion of taking a tonic in the springtime, like most of the customs of our grandparents, is based upon sound common sense and good medical practice. Winter is always a trying time, for those who are not in rugged physical health. Many men, women and children go through the winter on reserve strength they have stored up during the sunny, summer months, and grow increasingly pale and languid as the spring days approach. A tonic for the blood and nerves at this time will do much for such people, by putting color in the cheeks and banishing that tired feeling that worries thousands of people at this season of the year.

It is impossible to be energetic if your blood is thin and weak, or if your nerves are frayed or shattered. You cannot compete with others if you do not get refreshing sleep at night, or if your appetite is poor or you are losing weight. You need a tonic at this time to add to your efficiency now, as well as to save you from suffering later on. And in all the realm of medicine there is no better tonic than Dr. Williams Pink Pills. These pills tone and enrich the blood which circulates through every portion of the body, strengthening jaded nerves and run-down organs, and bringing a feeling of new strength and energy to weak, easily tired, despondent men, women and children.

Mrs. J. N. McNeil, Glace Bay, N.S., says: "For years past my home has never been without Dr. Williams Pink Pills, and I have good reason to praise them highly. Following an attack of la grippe, I was left in a badly run down condition. I had no appetite and felt so weak I could scarcely go about the house. I was taking medicine but it was not helping me, and a friend advised me to try Dr. Williams Pink Pills. I used them for a time with the most beneficial results. My appetite improved, my strength returned and I was soon able to do all my housework. I now use the pills every spring and find them a splendid strength bringing tonic. I have recommended the pills to other friends who have used them with good results."

Dr. Williams Pink Pills are a tonic, not a stimulant. They build up the blood, and through their use not only the disastrous after effects of influenza but also troubles due to poor blood such as anaemia, rheumatism, indigestion and the generally worn-out feeling that affects so many people, disappear. You can get these pills through any dealer in medicine, or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50, from The Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Lumber Shortage in Alberta

Needs of Western Canada Should Be Considered First

Curtailment of the amount of lumber exported from Canada is the request which the Alberta Association of Architects has put before the federal government. Local architects assert that the situation is desperate if the big building program in sight for the coming season is to be carried out. The association urges that the needs of Western Canada should be considered first and the exportation of lumber to the United States prohibited or curtailed until such time as there is an adequate supply of lumber for future building undertakings in Canada.

The Right Course

Work of Instructing British Columbia's Farmers of Tomorrow

Agriculture under competent teachers along practical lines is taking an increasingly important position in the curriculum of the public schools in the different municipalities of the lower Fraser Valley of British Columbia.

At the present time the class in agriculture of one of the high schools are taking a course in the proper feeding of live stock and are getting an insight into the different values of the various kinds of feeds for cattle, horses and sheep.

Last month the pupils were gaining useful knowledge about soils, their properties and fertilization. Ten schools in the same district are busy preparing plans for the school gardens. Poultry raising and the care of calves and pigs are also on the school program.

The teaching of nature-study in the class-rooms, the practical work of the school and home garden, and the emulating contests of school fairs are all factors which tend towards the development of the boys and girls of today, and will greatly assist them in becoming efficient farmers and farmer's wives in the coming years.

Canada's Tire Production

Figures made public in Montreal show that there were about 2,000,000 automobile tires manufactured in Canada last year, requiring about 8,000,000 square yards, or 12,000,000 to 16,000,000 pounds of tire fabric, and that only about one third of the fabric required in the manufacture of these tires was made in Canada. The remainder came from the United States. Increased production of tire fabric is now aimed at.

U.S. Would Remove Turks From Europe

Washington.—The original position of the United States government, that the Turks should be expelled from Europe is restated in a note to the allied supreme council, which has been prepared at the state department and which will be transmitted soon.

The communication is in reply to an enquiry from the French and British governments as to the views of the United States on the Turkish settlement. The position of the United States government is understood to be that there is no sound reason for retaining the Turkish capital in Europe. The United States is said to take the view that the contention that that the expulsion of the Turks might be resented by the Mohammedans is not supported by the facts since the war in the near east was won largely by the aid of Mohammedans.

The United States, it is understood, desire that Armenia be set up as an independent state and that it embrace as much territory as the Armenian government can control. It also takes the position that any arrangement that is made with regard to Turkey should guarantee to all nations equal opportunities for commerce and that no belligerent should be given paramount claims in any port of the near East.

The position of the United States, it is said is also that in any arrangement for the government of Constantinople and the Turkish states, a place for the participation of Russia should be made, as the United States government is convinced that no plan of settlement can be successful in the long run which does not take into account the interest of Russia in the matter.

To Restore Order

Allies to Allow Despatch of Ebert Forces Into Ruhr Valley Districts

Paris.—Two German officers, who who arrived here from Berlin to explain to the allies the necessity for permitting the German army to enter the occupied zone to restore order, saw Premier Millerand and told him the Ebert government had ample forces ready to deal with the situation in the Ruhr valley. It is understood on good authority the allies have decided to give the permission. The French government would have preferred inter-allied action in the occupied zone, while the British and Italians favored granting permission for operations by the Germans. The French gave way on this point in view of the dependence of France on supplies of coal from the Ruhr district.

French coal production has decreased from the old figure of 40,000,000 tons to an average of about 18,000,000 tons yearly. By the terms of the treaty of Versailles Germany is bound to cover the deficiency up to a total of 20,000,000 a year. On the restoration of order in the Ruhr valley, therefore, depends largely the continuation of French industries.

Withdraw Chinese Troops in Siberia

Will Keep Down Lumber Prices

Manufacturers Will Do Everything Possible to Prevent Any New Advance

Calgary.—That there will be no further increase in the price of lumber if the manufacturer can possibly help it, was the statement of I. R. Poole, secretary of the Mountain Lumberman's Association, today. Mr. Poole said that this decision had been arrived at notwithstanding the increased cost of production.

"If the manufacturers can control the situation the price of lumber will certainly not further advance," he definitely stated. Another matter which occupied considerable time of the convention was the gathering together of facts for presentation to the Canadian Board of Commerce, covering 1919 operations. These will be presented to the board in due course. Mr. Poole stated that these figures will prove conclusively that the manufacturers were not in the "profiteering" class.

Urges Energetic Steps To Enforce Treaty

Andre Tardieu Says France Has Been Left Burden

Paris.—An immediate meeting of allied leaders to decide upon energetic steps to insure enforment of the treaty of Versailles was urged by Andre Tardieu, former commissioner of Franco-American relations, in an interview here.

"The treaty already appears to have been violated as much as any treaty could be," Tardieu said. "It is urged that the allied governments meet to decide upon immediate drastic steps."

Tardieu believed the difficulties in allied-German relations will continue to increase rapidly, until the allies decide upon immediate drastic steps," at once and enforce it firmly.

Enforcement of the treaty practically has been left to France, Tardieu said, and France's position is probably weakened by the movement of the peace conference to London. The recent "intermittent meetings" of the congress have been characterized neither by firmness "nor unity of direction," Tardieu believed.

Daniels Again Criticised

Statement That U.S. Navy Department Was in State of Chaos When War Was Declared

Washington. — Not only was the navy department without comprehensive plans for naval participation in a war when the United States severed relations with Germany, but Secretary Daniels disapproved the general plan drawn up by the bureau of operations and submitted in March, 1917, Chairman Harris Laning, former assistant chief of navigation told the senate investigating committee.

As a result of this alleged lack of preparation, the witness said, the navy department was virtually in a state of chaos the day the United States entered the war.

Personal characteristics of Secretary Daniels often made it impossible to obtain approval of important plans and policies, Chairman Laning asserted, as the personal interest taken by him in minor affairs "occupied so much time that he never had much left to give us for really important problems."

Chairman Laning, at the time war was declared, said there was not a sufficient reserve.

Amerongen. — For the first time since the Kapp revolution, former Emperor William was permitted to leave Bentinck castle here. Guarded by two police officers he made a secret trip to Doorn in a closed automobile. His object was to view the progress of the work on his future residence at Doorn.

Lemieux Speaks On Bi-Lingual Question

Says Exclusiveness is Not A Policy, But A Blunder

London. — The King today received the Hon. Rodolphe and Mrs. Lemieux, and handed them the military cross won by their son. Mr. Lemieux was later entertained by the Empire Parliamentary Association at Westminster, Sir Auckland Geddes presiding at the function. Mr. Lemieux spoke at length on the bi-lingual question, and said in part: "I am not speaking as a party man but as a Canadian who gave his all for the cause of small nationalities. From Sir Wilfred Laurier I learned isolation and exclusiveness is not a policy, but a blunder."

The gathering was largely attended by members of the house of commons and the house of lords, acceptances including ex-premier Asquith, the Duke of Devonshire, Archbishop of Canterbury, Lord Bornham, Lord Islington, and Hon. Walter Long. General Seeley and Ben Tillet were also present.

France May Retaliate

Further Decline in Franc Value Provoked Fresh Discussions

Paris.—Sharp declines in the value of the franc as compared with American dollar and the British pound sterling, while the German mark, despite disorders in the Ruhr district, made a substantial gain, have provoked the fresh discussion of the exchange situation and the renewal of talk of rigid restrictions on importations as a measure to check the depreciation of the franc. Financial authorities are of the opinion that restrictions afford the only immediate remedy and predict an early prohibition of all luxuries and articles which might be described as superfluous.

New Home For Former Crown Prince

Said to Have Declined Residence Near Exiled Father

The Hague.—Announcement by the premier today that the Dutch government had granted the Island of Weiringen to the former German crown prince as a place of residence is believed here to complete the steps by which Holland seeks to meet allied demands as to the safe keeping of formed Emperor William and his son.

Reports are current that the crown prince asked that his residence be fixed on the island, and declined an opportunity to live near his father.

French Peace Loan

Paris.—Unofficial figures of the amount subscribed to the peace loan places the total at between 15,000,000,000 and 16,000,000,000 francs. There is a larger proportion of currency than in the former loans.

Soviets Are Still Active In German Revolt

Leipsig.—Halle, the large industrial town just to the northwest of this city, is completely cut off from communication. Latest reports were that the troops had gained the upper hand after a considerable part of the city had been reduced to ruins.

Saxon troops to reinforce the government's contingent in Halle, are on the way there. In other nearby communities the turmoil terminated which had been existing for more than a week. As far as can be learned the workmen's revolt in this section is directed against the military elements and shows no Bolsheviki tendencies. The single exception is the town of Falkenstein, southern Saxony, where a soviet is said to have been established by Communist leaders.

Both wings of the Socialist-Democrats are demanding the reservations of martial law and the withdrawal of the troops. These are among the workmen's principal demands.

In Leipsig the stone walls of the great railway station of the Volkshaus and dozens of buildings are pitted from top to bottom from machine gun and rifle fire, while hand grenades have left many ugly gouges.

The normal life of the city is being revived, but the stranger instantly detects a feeling of excitement and expectancy.

It is estimated that there are less than 1,000 Communists in Leipsig, although the Independent Socialists are very strong.

According to conservative estimates about 10,000 carried arms in Leipsig last week, and beginning with the first clash, March 15, when 17 persons were killed and 60 wounded, there was almost constant street fighting up to last Saturday.

Thoroughbreds From Royal Windsor Stable

Prince of Wales May Have Horses On Western Tracks at Summer Fairs

Saskatoon.—The Prince of Wales' thoroughbred race horses from Windsor stables, England, will probably be seen on the western Canadian race tracks during the big summer fairs this year.

J. Carlyle, manager of the Alberta ranch, which His Royal Highness purchased on his Canadian tour last summer, has gone east to superintend the unloading of the horses, which are expected to arrive from the old country in May or June.

The string now numbers seven thoroughbred animals, most of them two years old. They are of the purest English stock, and while they are being sent to Canada primarily for breeding purposes it is anticipated some of them will be raced around the western Canada fair circuits this year.

Are Not All Soviets

Many Germans are Fighting Against Government for Anti-Monarchist Movement

London.—Not all of the workmen who have taken up arms against the government in Germany are imbued with Spartacan ideas, according to office today. Information gathered by British representatives in Germany show many workmen intend to fight until certain anti-monarchistic representatives are included in the new cabinet. The Essen disturbances, which are the most serious in the country, are described, however, as purely Bolshevik.

The indications were, it is said, that the peace conference is gradually coming round to the British idea that the Germans should be left to settle their own internal troubles while the peace treaty is not violated.

To Banish Horses

Denver.—Denver is to banish the horse from her streets if a bill now before the city council becomes a law. No horses, cattle, sheep or swine may after January1, 1925, be kept in the city limits or driven on the streets.

Essen Is Now Normal

Soviet Government Leader Says He Does Not Fear Intervention From Allies

Amsterdam. — Conditions at Essen present a normal outward appearance except for the presence of armed laborer guards, red flags, armored automobiles and a few bullet marks on the buildings, according to the correspondent of the Telegraafe who arrived at Dusseldorf. A member of the soviet government at Essen told the correspondent he had no fear of allied intervention so long as the allied missions were safe.

The correspondent found the soviet administration proclaiming the necessity of returning to work and admonishing against plundering.

Sunday proved to be the warmest day of the year so far, the mercury getting up to 65 in the shade that afternoon. The summery weather, however, was short lived as it clouded up on Monday and that night we had a quarter of an inch rainfall. Since then we have had it good, bad and indifferent—largely the two latter species.

Major Mallandaine has a crew of men busy on logging off the dead timber and slashing and otherwise clearing his 15-acre tract facing the C.P.R. opposite the Lidgate Bros. garage. His intention is to shoot the stumps and set most of the land out to strawberries and orchard, putting in an irrigation system of his own from Goat Mountain.

The snowfall of Wednesday of last week is considered the last of the beautiful we will be favored with for this season, and taking it into account weather recorder Dr. Henderson informs that the winter's snowfall totalled four feet to a nicety. On an average the fall of the beautiful in the Valley is about six feet. Four years ago it was almost nine.

Results of the recent examinations held here in March for the position of assistant forest rangers are announced. Jas. Long and W. H. T. Smith, the only two trying the exam., were both successful and it is expected both will be employed on forest fire protection work in East Kootenay this year. Mr. Long was in charge of this district in 1919 and the chief forester at Cranbrook states that the loss by fire in Jim's territory was the lowest in the whole East Kootenay country.

The W. Hooper ranch, beyond the park, and facing the K.V., has just been sold, the buyer being W. M. Archibald of Trail, general mines superintendent for the Consolidated Mining & Smelting Co. He and Mrs. Archibald were here on Sundoy sizing up the property before closing the deal. It is his intention to put up a modern residence on it, and to make his home here for at least seven months in the year. The place is fourteen acres, about five of which is planted mostly to pears, the trees being in exceptionally fine shape.

Crestonites were glad-handing it on Wednesday with a well-known member of Major Mallandaine's forestry draft, who made his appearance here this week for the first time since getting back from France. The visitor was none other than Pte. W. Fraser, who was in charge of the culinary department while the corps was in training here three years ago. Bill looks better than ever, besides putting on a little weight, and was in the very best of "spirits." As a cook Fraser had the knack of producing the maxium of good eats at a very reasonable cost and is at present in charge of the kitchen at the extensive lumber camp of Stedman & Baskin at Ymir.

While gratifying to ourselves the incident likewise indicates that sterling values were given, and we believe the offerings shown above will ensure an even greater volume of trade to-morrow, for which we have stocked liberally, so that none need be disappointed.

See the display of this week's specials in the grocery window. To be sure, shop early.
