THE CRESTON REVIEW

VOL. XII. CRESTON, B. C., FRIDAY, JANUARY 7, 1921. No. 43

Canyon City

While possibly just a little late none the less hearty are the congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. Whinster, on their marriage laet week. Bert is a landowner here and for a time was employed at the mill, where he made a host of friends.

Mr. Bell, who recently purchased the A. R. Swanson ranch, has just completed the erection of a garage thereon.

School opened on Monday with the same staff of teachers in charge and an attendance in the neighborhood of 60 scholars.

Mr. Vance and two sons are busy on a logging contract for J. B. Winlaw in the timber about opposite the mill.

Annual meeting of Canyon United Farmers is called for to night at the schoolhouse, the chief feature of which will be the election of officers for the ensuing year. John Wood is the retiring president.

The old year was respectfully ushered out and the new year joyfully welcomed in by the young people of Canyon at a party given for them at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Searle on Friday night. The school bell figured in the proceedings, with Manford Samuelson acting chief sexton.

Shorty Adams will shortly be in a position to supply the needs of several householders with fuel. While held up for snow for log hauling he is busy manufacturing some of the timber on his place into cordwood.

The school teachers have no further need to worry as to the fuel supply. Dad Browell, who had the wood contract, has completed delivery of the required ten ricks.

With Erickson seeking admission to the limit. Canyon needing another room and Lister sure to be shy of accommodation within a year, why not a central consolidated school at the Canyon.

Lister

Saturday promises to be quite a busy day of it at the camp. The Ladies' Auxiliary have a meeting at the school in the afternoon, while at 8.15 p.m. the G.W.V.A. is giving a dance with special orchestra music The admission is 50 cents to gentlemen and 25 cents to ladies.

Mac. Fraser, caterpillar engine operator, is just back from a trip to Okanagan points, and is busy at present hauling shacks out to their farm locations with the big tractor.

T. C. Phillips is a business visitor at Calgary this week.

Speery Phillips, who is attending the provincial university at Vancouver, was here last week on a visit to his home.

Capt. Rowbury, who has been on a visit to Victoria, arrived back in camp a few days ago. William Brothers, who were at Nelson for the holidays, have also got back.

Things were livened up a bit one day the latter part of the week, when a horse driven by Miss Ruby Lister furnished an exciting run away through camp. Fortunately no one was hurt, though the cutter was rather badly wrecked.

Mr. and Mrs. Vinc. Liddicoatt are spending a few days with friends in Cranbrook.

The Christmas tree doings made available through the generosity of the Y.M.C.A. came off on Friday night, with a good turnout of youngsters, and a most enjoyable time was had.

The senior room at Lister school did not resume operations on Tuesday, owing to Principal Lewis turning in his resignation a few days ago, in order to become princial of the superior school at Port Alberni. The trustees hope to have his successor installed without delay. In parting company with Mr. Lewis it is only fair that we should say that he has been an ideal citizen, As head of the school he proved himself a competent teacher and principal while in the community life he rendered much unselfish and usful service notably in the organization ef the Literary, Dramatic and Musical Club, in putting on successful school concerts at Thanksgiving and Christmas time, as well as in picking the talent and getting things under way for a first-class presentation of the comedy drama, "Tony, the Convict," on the 19th.

A judge's recount of the election ballots takes place at Nelson on the [illegible]. With a majority of 19 to come and go on there is little danger of Col. Lister being counted out.

A Correction—Poetically

In "Decision and Indecision" in last week's Review,
Our attention has been called to an alleged mistake or two.
The mistake in question is a simple but a small one;
'Twas the guiding of the way of Stanley and Livingstone.
Our critics say the North Star south of the equator does not shine,
Thus bringing me to task for that part part of my verse or rhyme.
But do you know, my critic, that Stanley and Livingstone
Explored much territory north of the equatorial line—
Where the North Star in its glory coulp be seen by these great men,
And thus, my learned critic, you will surely see
The mistake, if there is any, rests with you and not with me.

—T. M. EDMONDSON.

"Human Stuff" Coming

"Human Stuff," the newest Universal production starring Harry Carey, and said to differ in many respects from the photodrama in which the star has appeared of late, is to be seen at the Grand, Saturday, Jan. 15th.

What makes "Human Stuff" somewhat different is the fact that its early scenes are laid in the conventional East and show the star in an environment foreign to his accustomed stage characterizations. He is seen as the son of a wealthy manufacturer who, after trying his hand at running the business, is forced to admit himself a failure. He decides to seek adventure and fortune in the West, where his father owns a ranch.

Mistaken for a tenderfoot who has come to interfere with their nefarious plans, his neighbors conspire to drive Jim from the ranch, but here is in his element and enjoys the struggle against nature and the rough men who are opposed to him. Then a girl enters into his life and the fight becomes more exciting. Situations follow in rapid succession, and the story ends in a typical Carey climax.

FOR SALE—Bell piano, in splendid shape, reasonable price and terms. J. A. P. Crompton, Creston.

Wynndel

Mr. and Mrs. Victor Johnson were hosts at a very successful surprise party on Wednesday night.

Wynndel local of the United Farmers has its annual meeting on Thursday night, Jan. 6th, when a big crowd is looked for. The year has been a busy one and some interesting reports will be heard.

The United Farmers unloaded another car of hay this week, this time a car of timothy, which sold to the members at $40 a ton.

O. J. Wigen evidently intends to have a maximum crop of berries next season. In addition to his irrigation plant he last week imported five cars of fertilizer. His original intention was to get about 50 tons, but through some error almost 200 tons of it were shipped.

Mr. Kunst, jr., of Boswell, was a New Years' visitor with Mr. and Mrs. Butterfield. He was enroute home from Porthill.

The Sunday school got away to quite an encouraging start on Sunday afternoon when about 25 scholars were enrolled and a staff of three teachers in charge as follows: Mrs. Williams, Mrs. Packman and Miss F. Bathie, with the latter also acting as secretary. It is anticipated next Sunday will see a still larger attendance, which will include a few additional teachers. Sunday school is at 2, with church service at 3 p.m.

The Athletic Club is giving another dance at the Clubhouse to-night (Friday), and assure all that there will be a good floor and good music—and the more the merrier. The ladies are asked to bring refreshments.

Wynndel has the distinction of furnishing the first of the Valley's 1921 weddings, the contracting parties this early in the year being Miss Olga, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. O. J. Wigen, who was married to Mr. Clarence O. Ogilvie, the ceremony being performed by Rev. T. D. McClintock at the Presbyterian manse, Nelson on Monday afternoon. The bridesmaid was Mrs. Walton of Silverton, while the groom was supported by Monrad Wigen. They are spending a short honeymoon at Spokane before taking up their residence on the groom's ranch at Wynndel. Both Mr. and Mrs. Ogilvie are exceptionally well-known and deservedly popular with a wide circle of friends and many and hearty are the best wishes for their long life and happiness.

Sirdar

Regret is expressed at the resignation of Principal Brewis of the Sirdar school, which took effect at the Christmar holidays. His successor is expected along any day now.

Mr. Dennes of Spokane has been a holiday visitor with his son, Dick. He says there is no place like Sirdar for a restful holiday.

Our readers will be pleased to hear that Mrs. Loasby, who underwent a serious operation at Cranbrook hospital a couple of days previous to Christmas, is recovering nicely. Mrs. Brewis, who was called to Cranbrook as an assistant nurse on the case, has returned, but Mr. Loasby is still staying at Cranbrook.

Members of the Lombardo family, who have been having quite a time of it due to illness, are now all well on the way to recovery.

Station agent Goodman has an apprentice to telegraphy in the person of Mr. Choppon.

Mr. and Mrs. Ben Whitesides are leaving this week for Fernie, where they will spend a well-earned two-weeks' holidey with friends in that city.

An ante room has lately been built on to the school, which makes things more convenient both for educational and social purposes.

While Mayor Daly's name does not appear in the list of these receiving birthday honors at the hand of King George, the mayor was by no means overlooked by the higher-ups. Among the seasonable greetings received by Mr. Daly was a wire from Vice-Peesident Hall of the C.P.R. The mayor is speedily returning to his old time vigor after quite a long and serious illness.

Ben Whitesides presided at the school concert and Christmas tree entertainment on December 22nd, which function attracted a large attendance of both children and parents. The features of the programme were largely musical, the choruses by the children being particularly fine and reflected much credit on Mrs. Lane and Principal Brewis, who trained them for the affair. Much appreciated solos were contributed by Mrs. R. Dennes, Miss Eileen Spence and Mr. Choppen, and a good word is due the quartette in which Mr. and Mrs. Choppen, Miss Spence and Mr. Brewis took part. Another notable number was the duett by Stanley Lane and Miss Spence. At the close there was a Christmas tree loaded with gifts for all the children, in the distribution of which Santa Claus surpassed himself. After the tree supper was served the children, and then dancing followed for a few hours.

Rod and Gun Club

At the meeting of the Creston District Rod and Gun Club on Thursday night of last week rules were drawn up and approved, and officers and executive committee appointed for the ensuing year. The officers are:

President—Major Mallandaine.
Vice-President—C. Botterill.
Secretary—Capt. Crompton.
Treasurer—Victor Mawson.

The executive, which consists of the officers and a member from each part of the Valley in which there are or may be members consists, so far, of:

Creston—John Hayden,
Erickson—Milt Beem.
Lister—Ben Long.

Owing to the bad weather and state of roads the members from Duck Creek and some other points were not present and therefore the members to represent these parts of the Valley were not chosen as it was felt that each district should have its say in appointing its representative.

The rules of the club provide that not only shooting and fishing should come within the scope of its activities, but also, if at any time it may be desirable, other forms of sport and social functions. One feature of the club is that there is no age limit to membership. Boys under 18 years of age may become members if approved by the club at a reduced rate, which will entitle them to all privileges of the club, except voting at meetings.

FOR SALE—Set of bobsleighs with 2-inch cast iron shoes, almost new. P. Burns (Canyon) Erickson P.O.

Erickson

If a fine turnout of old members along with several others who readily planked down their $2 to join up, coupled with plenty of enthusiasm, count for anything, Erickson local of the United Farmers of British Columbia would appear to have a very useful year ahead of them. The above characteristics were much to the fore at the annual meeting on Tuesday night, which was presided over by President W. G. Littlejohn, the most interesting feature of which was the election of officers for the ensuing year and which resulted in the re-election of Mr. Littlejohn as president, and a board of directors consisting of W. G. Birney, A. E. Harrison, L. Levque, J. M. Craigie, W. J. Boyd and M. R. Palmer, and from amongst these the meeting decided to allow the directors to select a vice-president, as well as a secretary-treasurer. After the regulation annual meeting features had been disposed of the meeting was thrown open for suggestions and discussion of plans for 1921, one of which that met with ready acceptance was that meetings should be held every Tuesday night for at least the months of January and February and that, if possible, every second meeting should be largely of a social nature. It is probable the first of these social evenings will take the form of musical numbers, cards and a little dancing as a closing feature. An effort will be made to get in a few outside speakers to deliver addresses, the first of which will be a practical horticultural talk. Although the Erickson local has been in existence less than seven months it can justly claim to have been about the most active local in the Valley and has now a paid up membership of 30. It has had some success in the way of handling commodities direct to the members, the 1920 shipments including four cars of hay and a carload of coal. Some of its other accomplishments was the securing of a class of ten to make the apple packing school here later in the month, and there is excellent prospects of the local also booking up a pruning school class. Persistent effort has also been made to have the other four valley locals get together along with Erickson in joint action on such projects as irrigation for the whole Valley, better educational facilities, as well as a united effort looking to getting the provincial authorities undertake road improvements particularly at places in the Valley that the United Farmers deem in the best interest of all. On irrigation, at least, the Erickson U.F. is showing its good faith by having in Messrs. Birney and Littlejohn about the two livest members on the joint committee promoting the Arrow Creek irrigation project.

Consequent upon the resignation of Mrs. Birney, who has held the post of superintendent since the Union Sunday School was organized over eighteen months ago, a reorganization of the school has just been effected and for this term Mrs. Harrison has been chosen to take charge, with Mrs. Birney as assistant superintendent, and Miss Clarke the new secretary-treasurer.

Arthur Pendry Married

Our Creston and Alice Siding readers particularly will read with interest the following wedding notice which is supplied us by a coast correspondent: A pretty wedding was solemnized on Wednesday Dec. 29th, when Arthur Pendry, formerly of Creston, was united in marriage with Miss Maud Thomas of Vancouver, the ceremony being performed in the Anglican church, Marphle, by Rev. Mr. Axon. The bride was attended by Miss M. Fisher of Vancouver, while the groom was supported by Earl Pease of Cloverdale. After the ceremony about 30 guests sat down to a sumptuous wedding breakfast served at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Pendry left on the morning boat for Victoria, and on their return will reside at Epurne, B.C.

The Banks and the Farmers

Having explained in last week's article how the whole subject of Banking is a matter coming solely within the jurisdiction of the Dominion Government and Parliament, and how futile are those demands which call for action by Provincial Legislatures, attention may well be devoted to a brief consideration of some criticisms now being urged against Canada's existing Banking System and Bank Management in general.

Generality being the easiest is usually the most employed form of criticism, and more particularly is this true as regards the periodical attacks levelled at the Canadian banking system. Hardly ever does a self-styled critic on this topic reveal a reasonably accurate elementary understanding of his subject, or evince an attempt at portraying plain truth and justice.

Recently a misleading and unfair article of this calibre found its way into print. In this it was insinuated that hardship was being inflicted on farmers this fall through the refusal of some banks to grant renewals of notes where these were unavoidably necessitated by circumstances, that unreasonable promises of payment had been extracted under pressure from many customers and that the practice was being followed very generally of employing what were described as "clean-up men" as Managers in districts where the financial situation was a difficult one.

It is well understood in banking circles that there are uncertainties and contingencies such as the pressure of important work while the season is favorable, inclement weather, grain blockades and traffic congestions which inevitably regulate and determine the marketing of grain and livestock. Where such good reasons are known or can be shown to exist, extensions of banking obligations are necessities, accepted as such, and invariably given to farmers without demur or question. Why should the disgruntlement of the exception, who in all likelihood, if the circumstances were probed, had, owing to his own shortsightedness, extravagance, or determination in defiance of advice to the contrary, placed himself in a difficult and dangerous position, either by deserving of consideration equal to that merited by his more prudent and businesslike neighbor or be made the text for a general denunciation of banking practice? In such a case where the man's crop is sadly short of satisfying his commitments, his creditors naturally are all clamoring for payment and nothing but shortsightedness or business incompetence could prevent his bank from doing what it reasonably can to ensure that its claim is not neglected. As a general thing unless some pressure is brought to bear the Bank's loan is the last to receive any consideration. In common fairness, therefore, the Banks should not be blamed for unfortunate crisis which invariably are not of their making and a distinction should in justice be drawn between deserving and undeserving cases.

As regards the charge that farmers have been under pressure to make impossible promises of payment and have been labelled as liars when not fulfilled, this is almost too groundless and radical a statement to call for notice. What object or benefit could possibly be gained by such an unjust and absurd practice, and under existing keen banking competition how could an outrage of that description be perpetrated without incalculable damage and loss of business resulting to any institution which did so? There is no course of action without its intent, and it is impossible to see any in this allegation.

The "clean-up man" is also a creation of a fertile or prejudiced imagination. "Good Bank Managers, who by reason of humanity and fair dealing have built up good sound custom for their institutions," certainly are not removed and replaced as it has been claimed for exactly that cause. Such a practice would be nothing else than financial suicide. Bank Managers are no more perfect as a class than any other and there must of necessity be instances where through one cause or another they lose grip and run riot in their crediting. Naturally a number of the residents in any community so served unconsciously gain inflated and distorted ideas of their proper claims to credit. The unfortunate successor to such a type of Manager who endeavors to bring the misguided back to their senses, and incidentally his Branch business down to a sounder basis, naturally incurs some antipathy and ill-will, but no more is done in such cases than any one of the dissatisfied few would instruct to be done in connection with his own business, if he found it necessary to replace a responsible employee who had been lax in his crediting or otherwise failed in his trust.

Another charge sometimes made is that the banks withhold their support in times of financial stress, pestilence and hardship. Does it ever occur to the casual critic that the banks' available loan resources are regulated entirely by the extent of their deposits and also the state of liquidity of their existing loans? It is just at such times that the most severe drain is made upon deposits and that outstanding loans are most poorly met. It naturally follows, therefore, that on occasions of the kind there must be some curtailment in credit and that there cannot be any available money as is often unreasonably expected for illegitimate and highly speculative business purposes. It can be honestly said, however, that even at such times the farmers suffer less and are subject to smaller inconvenience than any other class of business men. The importance of the western crop to the country is appreciated and the costs of growing and marketing it are invariably given a preference over other purposes no matter how deserving they are.

It would save a lot of misunderstanding if, as was pointed out last week, the similarity between a Bank and a public trusteeship were kept in mind. Each has the funds of others for investment and there is an obligation to be fulfilled to the actual owners of the money—which in the case of banks means the depositors—as well as to the borrowers.

No country in the world can boast of a better banking service than Canada, in none is credit more available to the deserving, and nowhere else do farmers get more generous assistance than they are accorded here. A moment's reflection upon the lamentable and disturbing uncertainties of the system in the United States where recently in one State alone—North Dakota—no less than 19 banks suspended payment within practically as many days, provides a contrast which should in itself be irrefutable proof of the superiority of the Canadian system. The existing monetary stringency is not a localized affair but a world-wide condition, and Canada is fortunate, thanks largely to its banking system, in feeling it less than any other country.

Mennonites Leaving Canada
States That Many Are Making Plans to Emigrate to Mississippi.

Mennonites of Canada, numbering over 162,000, are making final plans for migration from Canada to Southeastern Mississippi. The coming of spring will see the vanguard of the great movement leave the country.

H. A. Emerson, of Yellow Pine, Alabama, head of a large American land syndicate, has been in conference with H. M. Klaussen, representing Manitoba Mennonite colonies, and an agreement for the purchase of 125,000 acres of land in Mississippi has been entered into. The price paid for the tract was $18 per acre, fifty per cent. in cash and victory bonds at par and the balance to be paid in Canadian currency. Mr. Emerson extended the Mennonites an option on another 100,000 acres of land to expire March 1, 1921.

Wealth Comes From Across the Border
Estimated That Total Will Reach $18,225,520 For End of Last Year.

The amount of wealth brought into Canada in the form of cash and settlers' effects by immigrants from the United States during the eleven months ending November 30, was $17,519,033. If the record for December is equal to last, the total for the year 1920 will be $18,225,520.

In 1919 the total wealth brought in by the 52,064 persons from across the border was 18,419,406. If the December immigration equal that of last year, the total immigration this year will be 48,905. The average wealth of the immigrants per head for 1919 was $353.76, and for the past year it will be a little greater, amounting to about $372 per head.

Montana Has Air Well
Air Has a Low Temperature and Is Used For Refrigerator.

Near Thompson Falls in Montana there exists a well whence issues a steady flow of air. During the hottest days of summer, it is reported the temperature of this curious well never rises above 35 degrees. The man owning this well has put it to a good use, for over it he had built a small refrigerating house in which to keep the food for family use. From the well to his store he has also laid a pipe and through this comes the damp air of the well. The end of the pipe opens into a refrigerating room of the store, so that this man needs no ice to keep his perishable merchandise in the best of condition always. It seems that the well is not a natural one, that it was dug for the purpose of supplying water, but that when bottom was reached instead of water the air came forth with considerable force. In winter there is no appreciable lowering of the temperature. The result is that the owner of the well can use both storerooms for taking care of goods that otherwise would be likely to freeze.

"No, mum; the dentist kept it."—Los Angeles Times.

"Have you ever appeared as a witness in a suit before?" asked the bully-ragging attorney.

"Why, of course!" replied the young lady on the witness-stand.

"What suit was it?"

"It was a blue suit with a white collar and white cuffs and white buttons all the way down the back," replied the young lady.

"Indian Spiritualism"

"NO GREATER FAITH"

By O-GE-MAS-ES (Little Clerk).

(Copyrighted)

Indians are varied in character much like white men, but I have known intimately a number of the older men who were spiritually minded though Pagan in religion. One instance comes back to me while writing. Essa-wa-pum-o, an elderly Saulteaux, was my steady friend for many years and it was a real grief to hear of his death in the spring of 1919. A fine hunter, his specialty was bears, especially finding their dens in winter. He did not disclose his methods, but I always insisted that he smelt them out, much to the old man's amusement.

On one occasion in March of a long steady winter, word came in that they were very short of food at his camp some thirty miles to the southeast. Loading a dog-sled with some provisions and trading supplies, I started early next morning for Mik-e-su Pemat-to-ga-win (lake where the eagle swims) where he was camped, and reached there in good time. Three teepees were standing in a well sheltered spot, but no one was in sight. I noted three freshly killed bear skins on stretchers, one large and two small, and was pleased to think the hunter's skill had again saved the little band from hunger. Approaching the centre tent, home of Essa-wa-pum-o, I could hear him praying to the Great Spirit, giving thanks for being guided to the winter den of the bears; taking no credit for his own skill, but giving "Kitche Manitou" all the praise. I peeped in the teepee. Pots of bear meat were cooking over the small fire in the centre, and all the little band were devoutly listening to the old man's prayer and grace, though some of the younger ones were casting hungry glances at the food, which evidently they had not yet tasted. Finally grace was over and I called "How" from the entrance to the teepee. They came out like a swarm of bees delighted to see the trader with his load of good things to eat.

Camping in the old man's tent as usual, and after a famous supper in which tender young bear meat figured on the menu, I had him describe the finding of the bears, which he did most graphically, and further said that when starting out early that morning he prayed long and earnestly to Manitou for guidance and success in his hunt, and you can see for yourself the reply: Bear meat in plenty and furs to purchase the flour, tea, bacon and sugar our good trader has brought us.

"What condition were these bears in?" I asked. "Very fat," was his reply. "A she bear and two large cubs, the latter suckling their mother."

"As they had been in the den since late October or early November, where on earth did the old she bear get milk for her cubs, as they store up no food in their winter quarters?"

"Why," was Essa-wa-pum-o's reply, "you know all about that."

"How is that?"

"Why, your Big Book tells you."

"What book?"

"Oh, you are stupid. Why, Kitche Mussi-na-e-gun of course" (meaning Bible).

"But what does the Bible say about it?"

"Why, God gives her the milk!"

And verily the old pagan Indian's reply made me speechless, for I could think of no other solution.

CANADA HAS ADVERSE TRADE BALANCE

Unfavorable Balance For Twelve Months Amounted to More Than $57,000,000.

Ottawa. — Canada's unfavorable trade balance with the world for the 12 months which ended with November, amounted to $57,000,000. Imports continued to increase and exports to fall away. Neither the protective tariff, the unfavorable exchange rate, nor the luxury tax has availed to change the situation.

For the 12 months, imports totalled $1,346,000,000, as against $920,000,000 for 1919, an increase of $425,000,000.

Exports totalled $1,289,000,000 as against $1,251,000,000, or an increase for the period of only $38,000,000.

In recent months, exports have been decreasing. Total trade showed an increase during the 12 months of $464,000,000.

The United States continues to be Canada's best customer. Imports from that country during the period increased from $725,000,000 in 1919 to $927,000,000 while exports increased from $443,000,000 to $545,000,000.

The legislature will, therefore, enter on its work fully 22 days earlier than last session, which convened February 17 and prorogued April 10. Although no outstanding new legislation is slated to be brought down, in the coming session, it is altogether likely that ordinary business before the house will mean a session exceeding in length that of last last spring.

Sir George Perley Says Disease Does Not Exist.

London.—The Daily Express has interviewed Sir George Perley, Canadian high commissioner, on the embargo against Canadian cattle. Sir George says he is continually pressing the British Government on the matter, and adds that Canadians do not mean to rest until what they regard as a wrong to Canada is righted. He lays stress upon the understanding reached at the Imperial War Conference in 1917, that the embargo would be raised, and upon the fact that it is retained as a protection against the importation of a disease which does not exist among Canadian cattle.

Shipyard Opened

The vessels will cost approximately $1,400,000 each, and will take four months to build. The steamers will be constructed for the Canadian Government.

More than $12,000,000 worth of marine construction is included in plans authorized by the Canadian Government for Vancouver and Victoria, including the construction of steamers, piers, Victoria drydock and financial assistance in ship construction.

For World Disarmament

Leading European Statesmen Practically in Agreement on Naval Holiday Question.

New York.—The New York World, in the second of a series of articles advocating disarmament, publishes cable messages from a number of the leading men of Europe. Following are excerpts from a number of these messages:

Lord Beaverbrook says: "Great Britain, Japan and America ought to agree on a naval holiday, during which no ships should be built and they should insist upon the smaller naval powers following suit. The Daily Express will urge this plan with all its energy and press the necessity of limiting armaments on the British public and Government."

Lord Buckmaster: "The path of international disarmament is the only one that can lead the world to safety. Competition between nations in armament is a race for bankruptcy—a race which those who win and those who lose, alike will gain the prize. If the commonsense of mankind cannot agree for its mutual protection, common folly will work its ruin."

Lord Bryce: "It is to me rather doubtful whether good will be done in the United States by expressions of opinion proceeding from England on the question of disarmament, but I hope for an early opportunity of expressing my own feelings on the subject in Parliament."

THE CRESTON REVIEW

Issued every Friday at Creston, B.C. Subscription: $2.50 a year in advance. $3.00 to U.S. points.

C. F. HAYES, Editor and Owner.

CRESTON, B.C., FRIDAY, JAN. 7

Creston, apparently, isn't the only place where the slow but (we trust) sure policy obtains in the matter of getting on with the erection of a soldiers' memorial. Listen to this from last week's Craubrook Courier: "A number of citizens interested in the erection of a suitable memorial for the heroes from East Kootenay killed in the great war—numbering about one hundred—are anxious to learn what further action will be taken to complete the work. If we have not public pride enough to respect the memories of those who have passed into the valley of the shadow let a public meeting be called and the monies already collected returned to those who were public spirited enough to make the necessary effort. Unless the citizens "carry on" it is probable the returned men of the district will go ahead with the undertaking."

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

A Regrettable Oversight

EDITOR REEIEW;

In the London (England), Daily Telegraph of December, 3rd., appeared a three-quarter column article under the heading. "Advertising Appies," and carrying a sub-heading, "American Enterprise." The article speaks of the business earnestness of "the people of the western continent," and proceeds to state that there are thousands of people in Nova Scotia. Ontario, California, Washington and Oregon who appreciate the fact that the apple is an important product.

In enumerating the districts in Canada and in the U.S. where fruit is grown the province of British Columbia remains unmentioned. But let us review some facts—and we will speak only of the province of British Columbia for the year 1919, as we have not statistics for 1920.

British Columbia is still a baby so far as fruit growing is concerned; nevertheless this province in 1914 grew approximately 631,000 boxes of apples, and in 1919 the province of British Columbia quadrupled that quantity, growing 2,524,132 boxes, which realized over $4,500,000 at the shipping point. But what about the other tree fruits grown in British Columbia, which province the Daily Telegraph does not even mention?

In the year 1919 the cherries, apricots, plums, prunes, peaches and pears in British Columbia realized over $1,000,000 at the shipping point. And this is not all; the raspberries, blackberries. strawberries, gooseberries, loganberries, currants, etc., of this province realized at the shipping point in 1919 over $2,000,000.

At the time of writing there are in British Columbia over 4000 growers of fruit trees having an aggregace of 40,000 acres planted, representing an inyestment of not less than $35,000,000. And to this must be added 3000 acres planted to small fruits, and grown by approximately 500 berry growers. Yes British Columbia can proudly claim to have shipped in 1919 approximately 6000 cars of fruit which realized at the shipping point nearly $8,000,000.

Now, all of these figures are authentic and can be verified by anyone caring to submit the same to the Dominion minister of agriculture. Perhaps some of our English born local fruit growers may send this article to their English friends, and perhaps it may find its way to the columns of the Daily Telegraph. Yours for better and more fruit. COGNOSENCE

"Then the law is after him?" Mr. Dayton asked the question so eagerly that his guide turned to look at him.

"Yes," he answered slowly, "but not the law you city folks knows. It's the big, simple law of this forest, which reads, 'Everythin' pays sooner or later.'"

As they drifted downstream, Edna, in the stern of the canoe, cuddled the motherless fawn and watched the glorious lights weaving above Old Creation. It was a sight she never tired of. Each sunset seemed to the girl to be more wonderful than the last. But to-night those tints of amethyst and gold gleamed mistily through her tears. In her heart of hearts lay shattered a tiny hope which she had treasured.

The lights above the hills faded to ochre and drab, beneath which the tree-spiked horizon became a darker line. From copse and forest nightbirds voiced their gladness. From the far swales drifted up the call of feeding marsh birds, and from the sleeping lake came the laughter of the loons.

With face against the wee fawn, Edna sat, thinking—thinking; remembering how she had loved and trusted the man who had slain the mother of this little forest creature, taken innocent life that he might hurt the man whom he hated. She had seen him, with her own eyes, deliberately commit the premeditated sacrilege. The golden head sank lower above the spotted atom of life sleeping in the protecting warmth of her arms, and her tears came fast. She found herself murmuring, "No, no, it cannot be!"—and despised the undying trust in her heart which prompted its utterance. Once and for all time she would force his memory from her. She wanted to hate and despise him for the cheat and villain he was. But, oddly, his face kept lifting above the debris of wrecked love and shattered hope, rising before her vision, strong and true, with eyes that pleaded for her not to shut him out forever.

The night had fallen by the time they reached Lookup Landing, the soft, scented night of the North, full of silence and mystery and peace. Up the path from the landing, Edna passed, one arm about her uncle's shoulders and the other holding the still-sleeping fawn.

Ma Washburn, sleeves tucked above elbows, motherly face beaming welcome and good cheer, greeted her boarders with, "I do declare but it's good to see you back again." Then, catching sight of the tiny, spotted animal in Edna's arms, she opened her mouth in wonder.

"Why, it's a new-born fawn," she cried, as Edna placed the little thing in her arms. "How did you come by it now?" she asked as she stroked its slender nose.

Edna and her uncle exchanged glances, but Washburn, who had come in in time to hear the question, was quick to answer:—

"I guess its mother met with an accident, Ma. Wolves, most like. We found it anyways, an' brought it along." Then, as Edna and Mrs. Washburn turned into the kitchen to heat milk for the fawn, Pa Washburn took occasion to whisper in Mr. Dayton's ear, "It's hard fer Ma to keep anythin' to herself, so we'd best say nuthin' about that chap, Timberley, afore her."

But it was scarcely threequarters of an hour later, as he and Ma Washburn sat alone at the supper table, their guests having finished and gone to their respective rooms, that Pa Washburn, after much squirming and clearing of his throat, leaned across towards his wife and said:—

"Ding it, Ma, I've never kept anythin' from you yet, and I'm not goin' to keep this. We saw that man, Timberley, in Dorkin's Preserve this arter noon, and we saw him deliberately up and kill that little thing's mother." He looked across to where the fawn, newly fed, was sleeping sweetly on an old coat behind the stove.

"Well, he must be a low-down brute, ter do a thing like that!" exclaimed the woman. "Does Dorkin know it?" she asked quickly.

Washburn nodded grimly. "I told him."

"An' what did he say, Pa?"

"Wall, Dorkin ain't a man as says much at any time. He jest stood up slow an' drew in his breath. I wouldn't want ter be in that Timberley's shoes, I kin tell you."

"No," said Ma Washburn, "I should certainly say not."

CHAPTER XV.

Dorkin was eating his breakfast in the big room of the cabin whose wide window overlooked the grove. The window was open and through it drifted the sweet odors of wild plants and the fresh smell of the water.

On a bearskin rug lay the setter, his long muzzle resting between his paws, one brown eye fastened on his master.

Suddenly, above the wild, clamoring voices of the wild birds, came a burst of silvery laughter.

Dorkin arose hastily and, crossing over to the window, looked out. What he saw made a shudder run through his form and his cheek to pale. On the green sward, close beside the cabin, sat Willow Farney. Her buckskin skirt was tucked closely about her knees. In her lap she held an awkward-looking lynx-kitten, while three more sprawled and played at her feet. Close beside her, yellow eyes watching for every movement, crouched Lulu, the mother.

"Good Heavens!" exclaimed Dorkin, "what can the child be thinking of! Willow!" he called, and it cost him an effort to keep his voice steady, "don't move, don't speak, sit right where you are, until I come to you."

The girl paid not the slightest attention to his words. She picked another grey, clawing ball from her lap up in her bare arms and rubbed its pink nose against her cheek. A moment later Dorkin, the perspiration standing out on his brow, was beside her. Swiftly he stepped between her and the mother lynx, and keeping his eyes on the latter, reached behind him.

"Let me have the kitten, Willow," he said. "Child," as he took the fluffy thing and laid it down beside its mother, "have you no comprehension of danger at all? Do you know what might have happened to you if old Lulu had taken it into her round head that you were trying to rob her of her baby?"

He sank beside her on the sod and drew her over against him. His hand stroked her wavy hair, his troubled eyes looked into the clear grey ones raised to his.

"Willow," he said, "you make my heart ache, sometimes, ache with fear for you."

"Why?" she asked wonderingly.

"Because you are so venturesome, because you do not seem to realize what danger is. Since you have been here, roaming at will among the wild things, I have scarcely known an easy moment."

She laughed derisively. I din't scared of any wild animal," she affirmed. "That old Lulu sort of likes me, anyway. Why, yesterday, when you and Pete were down at the muskrat colony, I was beadin' a doeskin jacket out there under that old maple across from Lulu's cage. She saw me there and whined for me to come and let her out. I didn't intend to do it, 'cause I remembered what you said about her bein' cross with strangers, but she looked at me out of her big eyes, so wistful, and purred 'Please' so lonesome-like, that afore I knowed it, I'd opened the door and she was scamperin' about me."

She paused and tried to catch Dorkin's eye, but his head was averted.

"And what then, Willow?" he asked.

"Well," laughed the girl, "she didn't seem to want to leave her cage, after all, so I looked inside to find out the reason, and there on a pile of straw I saw her fluffy little kittens. She purred to them to come out, but I guess they was too sleepy; anyway, they didn't come. She looked at me and then she looked at her kittens. It seemed to me as though she was invitin' me to go inside and make a fuss over 'em, so I went."

"You went into Lulu's cage?" exclaimed Dorkin. "Willow, you must be dreaming!"

"No, I ain't dreamin'," she protested. "I went in there and laid down beside the kittens and they woke up and played with me. Oh, we had such a good play together, Dorkin! All the time I was in there, old Lulu sat outside the cage and purred as though she enjoyed it."

Dorkin was silent. He looked at the gaunt, grey animal crouched on the sward at his feet, and then his eyes sought the girl's face.

"Willow," he said gravely, "I am going to tell you something, and I want you to pay close attention to what I say. You must never go near Lulu again, unless I am with you. She is a bad old cat, in some ways, and takes ugly streaks. You can't trust her. Once, I had to fight her off; she wanted to tear me to pieces because I made a fuss over a jolly little cub bear. Another time, she crept through a window in Pete's cabin, and would have killed his wife had she not barricaded herself behind a bedroom door."

The girl was watching the motionless cat with big, wondering eyes. "Well, I'll be—" She checked herself quickly and turned away, the red flushing her cheeks.

"So you see," Dorkin went on, trying hard to suppress a smile, "it isn't safe for you to go near Lulu, alone. She surely is a cantankerous old girl; she even gets ugly with me, and I believe she is fond of me too. She hates Pete, I think, perhaps because he fears her. I have to handle her pretty well all by myself. It is more than revelation to me to find her on friendly terms with you, Willow."

"It's 'cause I like her, and am not scared of her, likely," said the girl. "I like her a lot better than the cub bears, Dorkin."

"Play with the cub bears all you please, Willow," said Dorkin, "they and the fawns and the raccoons—all except old Ringdo, who is a vicious old tree-climber if there ever was one. Then there are the young foxes. They are playful, friendly little fellows and will learn to love you heaps, girlie."

One Great Essential To a Woman's Health Is Her Nerves

Nature intended women to be strong, healthy and happy as the day is long, instead of being sick and wretched. But how can any woman be healthy and happy when the whole nervous system is unstrung. The trouble is they pay more attention to their social and household duties than they do to their health. Is it any wonder then that hey become irritable and nervous, have hot flushes, faint and dizzy spells, smothering and sinking spells, become weak and nervous, and everything in life becomes dark and gloomy.

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are the very remedy that nervous, tired-out, weary women need to restore them to the blessings of good health.

Mrs. P. H. Ryan, Sand Point, N.S., writes:—"I have been a great sufferer from nerve troubles. I was so weak and nervous I could not sleep at night and my appetite was very poor. I could not walk across the floor without trembling. I had hot flushes and fainting spells. When I was on my second box of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills I began to feel better and kept on until I had used six boxes when I felt like a different person. I am never without them in the house and recommend them to all who suffer with their nerves."

Spending the Savings.

Many of the European nations are planning a greater expenditure upon military account than they did six years ago. Worms in children work havoc. These pests attack the tender lining of the intestines and, if left to pursue their ravages undisturbed, will ultimately perforate the wall, because these worms are of the hook variety that cling to and feed upon the interior surfaces. Miller's Worm Powders will not only exterminate these worms, of whatever variety, but will serve to repair the injury they have done.

It is computed that from a tenth to a quarter of the cost of foodstuffs in the United States goes to pay for crates and other containers that are thrown away instead of being used a second time.

"Oral Hygiene" Lay Education Series

"YOUR TEETH"

First Stage of the Decay of the Teeth.

By Rea Proctor McGee, M.D., D.D.S., Editor Oral Hygiene.

If your knife and fork, spoon, plate, cup and saucer were left from one meal to another without thorough washing, you would change your boarding house.

But why be so particular about outside matters unless you thoroughly cleanse your own mouth after each meal.

When food is allowed to pack between and around the teeth caries, or decayas it is commonly called, gets a good start. The packed food decomposes and ferments, this makes the bacteria happy so they all move in.

As the bacteria get settled upon the enameled surface of the teeth, they cover themselves with a coating called a gelatinous plaque. Under this protective covering the bacteria grow unless they are removed by thorough cleansing.

Decay of the teeth caries, is a disease just the same as tuberculosis or measles is a disease. In this disease the hardest tissue in the body is attacked.

The bacteria of decay are really tiny plants. They live and die as other plants do, when they die they decompose and ferment, forming an acid. This acid, in its fresh state, will dissolve the enamel of the tooth a very little at a time at first, but the further in the bacteria they get the more rapidly they work.

The enamel of the teeth is not sensitive. It is composed entirely of the salts of lime, shaped into microscopic rods that are bound together by a natural cement. The rods all point towards the centre like the bricks in an arch. Enamel is the armor plate of a tooth. When the decay gets through the armor it reaches the ends of the tiny fibres from the nerve that radiate through the body of the tooth.

It is here that you get your first sharp pain that tells there is trouble ahead, trouble that only one person can stop. Don't delay, your teeth are too valuable.

Mother Graves' Worm Exterminator will drive worms from the system without injury to the child, because its action, while fully effective, is mild.

Increase in Horse Industry

Prediction That Horses Will Seriously Affect Automobile Business.

Looking for a steady increase in the horse industry of Canada to such an extent that it would seriously affect the automobile and truck business of the country, and asking on behalf of the Dominion Department of Agriculture for expressions of opinion as to the use of horses from an economic standpoint as against motors, H. S. Arkell, Dominion Livestock Commissioner voiced the opinion that the horse industry is one which is likely to come back to real prosperity, in his address at Calgary before the annual meeting of the Western Canada Livestock Union.

A Frightful Death, Suffocated by Asthma

The Dread of Such an Unhappy End Oppresses Every Sufferer.

Every sufferer from Asthma knows the terror, the abject fear that overcomes them when struggling for breath. The old-fashioned remedies may help, but never cure. Best results come from Catarrhozone, which relieves Asthma after hope is abandoned. It's because Catarrhozone kills the asthma germs that it relieves. Choking spells and labored breathing are relieved, suffocating sensations and loss of breath are relieved. Every trace of asthma is driven from the system and even old chronics experience immediate relief and lasting benefit. Equally good for bronchitis, throat trouble and Catarrh. Green Food For Hens.

With hens being confined to the pens it is important that plenty of green food should be given. Not only does it help to give the required amount of vitamines but it also is beneficial as a regulator. The nearer one makes the hen feel that they still have spring conditions the better egg production can be expected. Cabbage, mangels, chopped and steeped Alfalfa, and such like make fine food for fowls.

FREQUENT HEADACHES

A Sure Sign That the Blood is Watery and Impure.

People with thin blood are much more subject to headaches than full-blooded persons and the form of anaemia that affects growing girls is almost always accompanied by headaches, together with disturbances of the digestive organs.

Whenever you have constant or recurring headaches and pallor of the face, they show that the blood is thin and your efforts should be directed toward building up your blood. A fair treatment with Dr. Williams' Pink Pills will do this effectively, and the rich red blood made by these pills will remove the headache.

More disturbances to the health are caused by their blood than most people have any idea of. When your blood is impoverished, the nerves suffer from lack of nourishment, and you may be troubled with insomnia, neuritis, neuralgia or sciatica. Muscles subject to strain are undernourished and you may have muscular rheumatism or lumbago. If your blood is thin and you begin to show symptoms of any of these disorders, try building up the blood with Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and as the blood is restored to its normal condition every symptom of the trouble will disappear. There are more people who owe their present state of good health to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills than to any other medicine, and most of them do not hesitate to say so.

You can get Dr. Williams' Pink Pills through any dealer in medicine or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Working for Solution

Carriers Studied Exchange on International Freight.

Definite progress towards a solution of the vexed question of exchange on international freight charges between the United States and Canada seems likely, as a result of a meeting of representatives of the principal Canadian carriers at Montreal recently.

The question, which is a most complicated one, was again considered from all its angles, and a tentative plan was prepared involving an average varying surcharge, which, it is hoped, will lead to a solution which will be satisfactory to all parties interested. It is appreciated, however, that in the working out of this problem it is of the utmost importance that the integrity of the through rates by the different gateways must be maintained to avoid the danger of a cancellation of all international tariffs.

Owing to the diversity of conditions affecting the various classes of traffic, and the far-reaching effect of any action which may be taken, a full examination of the international charges of consultation with United States carriers is necessary. This has already been undertaken by a committee appointed for the purpose, and the matter will be pressed to a definite conclusion at the earliest possible date.

The climax of value-giving is reached in this sale. Every line is cut to the bone regardless of what the merchandise cost. People of Creston Valley can purchase goods from us with the utmost confidence that prices asked in Great Stock-Taking Sale are as low, and in many cases much lower than those that will prevail at any time later on in the season. This announcement will undoubtedly create astonishment—as it should—for we have certainly gone the limit in re-marking goods for this sale. We are determined to cut our stock in two before starting stock taking which commences January 17th, hence the great slaughter in prices. Look over the prices and remember dates of the greatest money-saving sale for the people ever held in the Valley. Make your dollars do extra duty.
