Hickey, when their third daughter, Miss Elva Jess, was united in marriage with Mr. George Edward Strong. The ceremony was performed by Rev. J. A. James, and was witnessed by a company of the immediate relatives and friends of the contracting parties. The bride, who was given away by her father, was gowned in white crepe de chene, and was attended by her sister, Miss F. Hickey, who wore pink, whilst Mrs. Guy Browell, in henna and black crepe, was matron of honor. The groom was unattended. After the ceremony a sumptuous wedding dinner was enjoyed by the guests, whilst the popularity of the bride was splendidly attested in the many useful and ornamental wedding presents. (Continued)

"No. You wait for me at the pine. You'll have to rustle your grub the best way you can. I may not get back until to-morrow—until this evening—it's morning now. But wait until I come. There will be plenty for you to do later on and there is no use of you going back to town with me. It might get you into worse trouble than you're headed for already, and what I've got to do, I can do alone."

Wheeling his horse, he rode off toward Crawling Water.

That he could take his men with him, storm the jail and release Santry, Wade did not doubt, but to do so would be to bring each of the men into open conflict with the law, a responsibility which he was resolved to bear alone. Then, too, because his long ride had cooled him somewhat, he intended to make one more appeal to the Senator. Possibly, Moran had exceeded his instructions, and if this were so, it was no more than just that Rexhill, who had seemed to evince a willingness to be helpful, should have the opportunity to disown the act of his agent. Besides, if Santry could be peaceably released, he would be freed of the charge hanging over him, which would not be the case if he were taken from the jail by strategy or violence.

With haggard countenance and inflamed eyes, Wade bore little resemblance to his normal self when he again appeared before the Senator, who received him in his dressing gown, being just out of bed. Rexhill listened with a show of sympathy to his cattleman's story, but evidently he was in a different mood from the day before.

"My boy, your friendship for your foreman is leading you astray. Your faith in him, which is natural and does you credit, is blinding you to an impartial view of the case. Why not let the law take its course? If Santry is innocent his trial will prove it. At any rate, what can I do?"

"Senator—" Wade spoke with intense weariness. "Only yesterday you offered to help us. The situation, as I explained it then is unchanged now, except for the worse. Bill Santry is free of any complicity in Jensen's death. I am positive of it. He sent me word that he had not left the ranch, and he would not lie to save himself from hanging. Besides, the men were shot in the back, and that is absolute proof that Santry didn't do it."

BACK AGED TERRIBLY

Mrs. McMahon Tells How She Found Relief by Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Chatham, Ont.—"I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for a run-down condition after the birth of my baby boy. I had terrible pains and backache, and was tired and weak, not fit to do my work and care for my three little children. One day I received your little book and read it, and gave up taking the medicine I had and began taking the Vegetable Compound. I feel much better now and am not ashamed to tell what it has done for me. I recommend it to any woman I think feels as I do."

—Mrs. J. R. McMahon, 153 Harvey St., Chatham, Ont.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, has for nearly fifty years been restoring sick, ailing women to health and strength. It relieves the troubles which cause such symptoms as backache, painful periods, irregularities, tired, worn-out feelings and nervousness. This is shown again and again by such letters as Mrs. McMahon writes, as well as by one woman telling another. These women know, and are willing to tell others, what it did for them; therefore, it is surely worth your trial.

Women who suffer should write to the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lowell, Ontario, for a free copy of Lydia E. Pinkham's Private Text-Book upon "Ailments Peculiar to Women."

"Mere sentiment, Gordon; mere sentiment. Proof? Pooh!"

Rexhill's slightly contemptuous tone worked upon Wade in his exhausted, overwrought condition, and stung him. A strange look of cunning appeared in his eyes, as he leaned across the table which separated them.

"Senator, Moran made me an offer the other day for my land. If I accept that offer, will you exert your influence in Santry's behalf?"

Coming so swiftly upon his planning, the prospect of such signal success was so gratifying to Rexhill that only in halting speech could he maintain a show of decorous restraint. His countenance expressed exultant relief as well it might, since he seemed to see himself snatched out of the jaws of ruin.

"Why, Gordon, I— Of course, my boy, if you were to show such a generous spirit as that, I—er—should feel bound—" The sense of his remarks was lost in the crash of Wade's fist upon the table.

"Damn you!" The cattleman was beyond himself with fatigue, rage, and a rankling sense of injustice. "They told me that was your game. I believed it of Moran, but I thought you were square. So you're that sort, too, eh? Well, may you rot in hell before you get my land, you robber!"

Now listen to me." He waved his hand in the direction of the street. "Out there's a hundred men—real men—who're waiting the word to run you out of this country, you and Moran, too, and by God we'll do it—we'll do it—and we'll begin right away!" Again his heavy fist crashed down on the table.

"Never mind Bill Santry!" the instinct of discretion was gaining in Wade. "He can stay where he is for the present. First, we'll attend to you pirates—then we'll see."

He stopped suddenly at sight of Helen, who, attracted by the noise, had entered the room, and stood before him in a filmy negligee.

"What is the matter, Gordon?" she demanded anxiously.

"I beg your pardon." Wade spoke awkwardly, unashamed of himself, except for her. "I'm worn out and I— I lost my temper."

"Will you—er—leave the room!" The Senator was beginning to pull himself together. It was the first time he had ever been ragged in such a way, and his composure had suffered; he spoke now with more than his usual pomposity.

"I will," Wade answered curtly, as he turned on his heel and departed. The Senator puffing slightly, fiddled with his glasses.

"Your young friend has seen fit to accuse me of—of—" For the life of him, he could not at once say of just what he had been accused, unless he allowed self-accusation to prompt his words.

"Some sheepherders have been murdered, I believe," he went on, "and Wade seems to think that Moran and I are implicated."

"You," his daughter exclaimed; evidently her amazement did not extend to Moran.

"Preposterous nonsense!"

"Yes, of course," Helen walked to the window and stood looking down into the street. "I'm afraid Gordon hasn't improved since we saw him last," she added, finally. "He seems quite a different person from the man I used to know. What are you going to do about it?"

"Crush him!" The Senator's lips set in a thin, white line, as his hand descended on the table on the spot where Wade's fist had fallen. "This, apparently, is his gratitude to me for my interest in him. Now I intend to show him the other side of me."

"Certainly, no one can blame you for punishing him. Oh, everything between him and me is quite over," said the girl, with a peculiar smile. "He's a perfect bear."

"I'm glad you feel that way about it, Helen." Her father's set lips relaxed into a responsive smile. "You couldn't be my daughter and not have some sense."

"Have I any?" Helen naively asked. She was gazing out of the window again, and to her mind's eye the dusty, squalid street became a broad highway, with jewelers' shops on either side, and modistes, and other such charming things, just as they are found in New York, or—Paris!

CHAPTER VIII.

Higher Than Statute Law

Wade descended the stairs of the hotel and went into the barroom, fuming with rage and chagrin because Helen had seen him in such a temper. Like most men of action, he took pride in his self-control, which seldom failed him, but the villany of the Senator's attitude had momentarily mastered his patience.

Gathered about the bar were a number of men whom he knew, but beyond a nod here and there he took no notice of them, and went to sit down alone at a small table in the corner.

His friends respected his desire to be left alone, although several eyed him curiously, and exchanged significant remarks as to his appearance. They seemed to be of the opinion that, at least, his fighting blood had been aroused, and now and then they shot approving glances in his direction.

"Whiskey," Wade called to the bar-tender, and a bottle and glass were placed on the table in front of him.

With a steady hand the ranchman poured out and quickly swallowed two stiff drinks of the fiery liquor, although he was not ordinarily a drinking man.

The fact that he drank now showed his mental state more clearly than words could have expressed it. Searching in his pockets, he found tobacco and paper, and rolled a light cigarette. Nothing could be done cases ended in death! So a recent Canadian investigation showed. These were not cases of infectious diseases—of consumption—of typhoid! They were cases where a person had sustained some slight injury—a cut, a burn, a wire-prick—and where the wound, being thought not serious enough for careful treatment, had been neglected. Blood-poisoning and death resulted.

for Santry until night, and meanwhile he intended to get something to eat and make the sleep that he needed to fit himself for the task ahead of him. He ordered a steak, which on top of the whiskey put new life into him.

The more he thought of his outburst of temper before Helen the more it annoyed him, for he realized that he had "bitten off a bigger wad than he could chew," as Bill Santry would have expressed it. Rascal though the Senator was, so far as he was concerned, Wade felt that his hands were tied on Helen's account. For her sake, he could not move against her father in a country where the average man thought of consequences after the act rather than before it. In a sense Wade felt that he stood sponsor for Crawling Water in the hospitality which it offered Helen, and he could not bring peril down on her head.

But as for Moran and his hirelings, that was a different matter! When the ranchman thought of Moran, no vengeance seemed too dire to fit his misdeeds. In that direction he would go to the limit, and he only hoped that he might get his hands on Moran in the mix-up. He still looked upon his final visit to Rexhill as a weakness, but it had been undertaken solely on Santry's account. It had failed, and no one now could expect tolerance of him except Helen. If the posse was still at the ranch, when he and Santry returned there at the head of their men, they would attack in force, and shoot to kill if necessary.

He learned from Lem Trowbridge, who presently joined him at the table, that the posse would probably still be there, for the report in town was that Moran had taken possession of the property and meant to stay there.

"He does, eh?" Wade muttered grimly. "Well, he may, but it will be with his toes up. I'm done, Lem. By Heaven, it's more than flesh and blood can stand!"

"It sure is! We're with you, Gordon. Your men were over at my place a few hours ago. We grubbed them and loaned them all the guns we could spare. I sent over my new Winchester and a belt of shells for you."

"Thanks."

"That's all right. You're more than welcome to all the help I can give you, not only against Moran and his gang, but against Rexhill. If you like, we'll run him out of town while you're putting the fear of God into Moran. Lord! I sure would like to go back to the ranch with you, but it's your own quarrel and I won't butt in."

Wade briefly explained his attitude toward the Rexhills and added that their cause would not be helped by violence toward the Senator, who was a big man at Washington, and might stir the authorities into action on his behalf if he could prove personal abuse. The noise that would be made by such a happening might drown out the justice of the cattleman's claim.

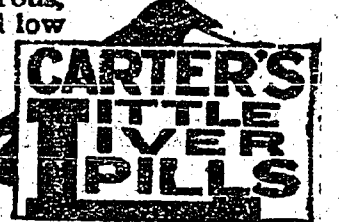

"Well, that's true, too," Trowbridge admitted. "I can see the point all right. What we want to do is to get something 'on' the Senator. I mean something sure—something like this Jensen shooting."

Michel Roy Tells What Dodd's Kidney Pills Did for Him

Quebec man who Suffered from Rheumatism in the Hip and Back tells of Benefit He Received from Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Lac Etchemin, Que.—(Special).—"In the Autumn of 1920, I suffered so greatly from rheumatism in the hip and pains in the back, that at times it prevented me from walking, also sleeping. I decided to try Dodd's Kidney Pills and have not regretted doing so."

Mr. Michel Roy, who lives here, makes the above statement. He feels that he owes it to other sufferers of rheumatism to tell how he found relief from his suffering.

Other sufferers from rheumatism tell of pains relieved and health restored through the use of Dodd's Kidney Pills. They act directly on the kidneys. They strengthen the kidneys and put them in shape to strain the uric acid out of the blood. Uric acid crystallizing in the muscles cause pains known as rheumatism.

Ask your neighbor if Dodd's Kidney Pills are not the best remedy.

A Trouble Maker

Tell the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth—and make a lot of trouble.—Kingston Standard.

FIFTY YEARS AGO

A young man who practiced medicine in Pennsylvania became famous and was called in consultation in many towns and cities because of his success in the treatment of disease. This was Dr. Pierce, who finally made up his mind to place some of his medicines before the public, and moving to Buffalo, N. Y., put up what he called his "Favorite Prescription," and placed it with the druggists everywhere.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription has long been recognized as a tonic for diseases peculiar to womanhood. After suffering pain, feeling nervous, dizzy, weak and dragged down by weakness of her sex—a woman is quickly restored to health by its use. Thousands of women testify that Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription has entirely eradicated their distressing ailments.

More recently that wonderful discovery of Dr. Pierce's, called An-uric (for kidneys and backache), has been successfully used by many thousands who write Dr. Pierce of the benefits received—that their backache, rheumatism, and other symptoms of uric acid deposits in joints or muscles have been completely conquered by its use.

Honor Belongs to Matthew Murray an English Engineer

The great George Stephenson did not as some believe make the first successful locomotive. That honor belonged to an English engineer, Matthew Murray by name. Murray's production was the famous Blenkinsop, a steam engine of four horsepower, which, on June 24th, 1812, at four o'clock in the afternoon, started with a burden of eight wagons of coal, each weighing three and a quarter tons, and fifty passengers. Murray died in 1826, aged sixty-one. Stephenson declared he could improve upon the Murray engines and did it as everyone knows.

A MOTHER'S HEALTH NEEDS GREAT CARE

Care of Home and Children Often Causes a Breakdown

The woman at home, deep in household duties and the care of motherhood, needs occasional help to keep her in good health. The demands upon a mother's health are many and severe. Her own health trials and her children's welfare exact heavy tolls, while hurried meals, broken rest and much indoor living tend to weaken her constitution. No wonder that the woman at home is often indisposed through weakness, headaches, backaches and nervousness. Too many women have grown to accept these visitations as a part of the lot of motherhood. But many and varied as her health troubles are, the cause is simple and relief at hand.

When well, it is the woman's good blood that keeps her well; when ill she must make her blood rich to renew her health. The nursing mother more than any other woman in the world needs rich blood and plenty of it. There is one way to get this good blood so necessary to perfect health, and that is through the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

Mrs. W. T. Riley, R.R. No. 1, Apple Hill, Ont., has proved the great value of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills to mothers, and tells her story as follows:—"Two years ago, after the birth of my boy, I became very weak and run down. Gradually I lost weight and energy until I was unable to do my housework. I could not sleep, my nerves would twitch and jump so that I arose in the morning with heavy aching limbs and head. Indigestion helped to make the misery worse, and my heart would palpitate terribly. I doctored steadily for a year without getting better, but just dragged along feeling that I would never be well again. But one lucky day, on the advice of a friend, I began treatment with Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I have taken only six boxes, but I wish you could see the difference. I am now able to do my work, go about and enjoy myself. I feel so entirely like a new woman that I advise every weak or ailing woman to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and I know they will get beneficial results."

If you are ailing, easily tired or depressed, it is a duty you owe yourself and your family to give Dr. Williams' Pink Pills a fair trial. What this medicine has done for others it will surely do for you. You can get Dr. Williams' Pink Pills through any dealer in medicine or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

American Buys Alberta Polo Ponies

An outstanding deal in polo ponies in the province of Alberta was recorded recently when Mr. Priest, of New York, a polo pony expert, purchased 27 ponies from T. B. Jenkinson, of Cochrane, for $18,000 cash. These ponies were all raised in Alberta, by thoroughbred sires, thoroughly trained, and were shipped to Virginia for polo playing. The purchaser remarked that they were the best lot he had ever seen raised on any one farm.

For a United Church

Dr. Wilson Is Enthusiastic Over Possibilities of Movement (By J. Lewis Milligan)

The task of preparing the Presbyterian Church for Union with the Methodist and Congregational Churches, to form one United Church of Canada, has been undertaken by Rev. R. J. Wilson, D.D., at the request of the Presbyterian Church-Union Movement Committee. In order to initiate this great and inspiring task, Dr. Wilson has been granted three months' leave of absence from his ministry in Chalmers Church, Kingston.

"There is a thrill in this thing—can't you feel it?" he said to me the other day. "I take no second place to any man in my love for the Presbyterian Church, and if I thought that by Union we were to lose any of those vital and vigorous qualities that have placed Presbyterians in the front rank of thought and action throughout the world, I would be with Dr. Scott and Mr. MacBeth today."

"You seem to be quite sure that Church Union will be consummated," I said.

"I am as sure of that as I am that the sun will rise tomorrow morning," the doctor replied emphatically. "Can you imagine a progressive people like Canadians never changing the form of their ecclesiastical organizations from that which was made for an entirely different country and a different people? Such a static condition would result in religious stagnation, and I am not so sure but that this is what the churches are suffering from today, Church Union will not usher in a millennium, and it will not finally abolish all the differences in form and creed among Christians, but, so far as Canada is concerned, it will be a stupendous move forward. We believe that the consummation of this Union will give an inspiring lead to Christendom throughout the world. Church Union must come, and will come, despite all these efforts that are being put forward to stop it. Why, then, should we of this generation not share in its benefits? If we, as Presbyterians, do not take this title of God at the floor, we shall spend the rest of our lives in shallows and miseries."

SPECIALIST SAYS HE GAINED 21 LBS.

H. Van Berkel Gives Tanlac Full Credit For Ending Long-Standing Stomach Disorders

"I'm never too busy to put in a good word for Tanlac. About two years ago it built me up from a hundred and nineteen to a hundred and forty pounds, and I have felt fine ever since." This emphatic statement was made recently by Henry Van Berkel, 2446 Main St., Vancouver, B.C., well-known foot specialist.

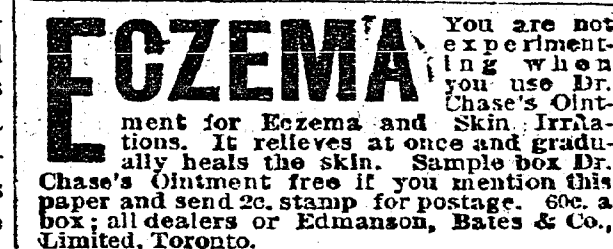

"For three years before I got Tanlac," he said, "I led a miserable existence from stomach trouble. I sometimes could not retain a bite I ate, and even when food did stay down I suffered from sourness and gas, and nothing I ate seemed to do me a particle of good. I was badly run down, lost weight, had no strength, and suffered a great deal from constipation."

"I took six bottles of Tanlac and got back my health. That covers the whole case. My stomach trouble is a thing of the past and I always feel strong and full of energy. Tanlac for me every time."

Tanlac is for sale by all good druggists. Over 35-million bottles sold.

The Review is pleased to note that local dealers are well stocked up with poultry wire this spring in anticipation of a big demand not only from the steadily increasing number of fanciers but also from citizens who prize the friendship of their neighbors. Gardening operations are under way and from all appearance the area set out to garden truck of one sort and another in town this year will constitute a new record. While we fully appreciate the benefits that accrue from giving poultry plenty of range, we know of nothing so liable to provoke bad language and sever friendship than this letting of hens range on a neighbor's newly-planted garden. Next to the hen nuisance is the roaming equine and bovine, both of which have a bad habit of grazing on likely looking lawns and gardens—and this despite the usual-height fence and reasonably horn-proof gates. If hens must run loose you owe it to your neighbor to provide yourself with the necessary netting to keep the fowl in your own back yard. This year let the slogan be, love thy neighbor as thyself, and keep the hens at home.

Last week when we seemed to intimate that it was just possible Lord Desborough got his idea as to the desirability of a fixed date for Easter from reading our excellent editorial in that regard of a couple of months ago, many of our readers scouted the idea that this paper should have such widespread circulation as to reach this fine old English gentlemen, much less inspire him to effort in such a worthy cause. But whilst we are loath to take too much credit in this connection, proof positive has just reached us that the Review is in some demand in the British dominions beyond the seas, as is indicated in the following communication just to hand:

Dear Sir,—

On behalf of the members and regular readers of this Library I beg to appeal to you for a free copy of your paper.

The Library, and free reading room, has been in existence for ten years, to supply a long felt want of an institution of the kind. There are merchants, officers and general readers, ladies and gentlemen, of various nationalities among its members who are eager to read your excellent paper.

The funds of the Library, however, do not allow of subscribing to your paper, so we have to make this appeal to you, and at the same time we are glad to inform you that a goodly number of newspaper publishers have already extended their helping hand.

Of course, we shall see to your interests when occasion arises.

Thanking you in advance, and assuring any possible help to render you, we remain,

Yours faithfully,

In the absence of any other likely explanation of the demand for the Review in this far eastern metropolis we take it as a striking endorsement of our demand for a united church which, once accomplished, would mean so much to the mental and spiritual well being of India's unenlightened millions. Another interesting letter that has just reached the Review is given below. We certainly appreciate the thoughtfulness and generosity of our correspondent but due to the somewhat indefinite instructions given us we have been unable to locate the ore deposit he has in mind. However, it would be too bad to disappoint a former Creston caller with such an industrious bent, and should any of our readers desire to oblige with the desired quantity of sampling ore, we will cheerfully disclose the name and postoffice address of our correspondent, whose letter reads as follows:

Wash.
April 3, 1923

Mr. Editor,
Creston, B.C.

Dear Sir,—While in your town last summer I went south on the first street west of station to an old R.R. grade; went west along the grade for, perhaps, one hundred and fifty feet. There is a cut on north side of grade, four or five feet high. Just at the west end of this cut I picked off a piece of what I thought, at the time, pyrites of copper. This winter, while testing some other rock I found this small piece in my pocket and tested it for copper. I also tested it for gold and found to my surprise that it was quite rich. As I had not weighed it I could only estimate it; I thought about $80 to the ton. But it may have been just a rich piece. I am going to ask you to go there and get several small pieces. Get them as far apart as possible, about two pounds in all, and send them to me by parcel post, marked on tag, "Ore for sampling", and they will pass the customs. I will try them out for gold and silver, and either come up or let you know what to do. If it is all as good as that sample I had we have struck luck. Say nothing to anyone; we will work on a 50 50 basis. Send it just as soon as possible. You cannot miss finding it. Send the most shiny samples possible.

Yours truly,

Should there be any rush of ore samples the Review will observe the policy of giving the desired name and address to the first paid-in-advance subscriber heard from.

In Board of Trade circles particularly, as well as throughout the Valley generally, utmost satisfaction is expressed at the action of Supt. T. R. Flett in canceling his order of two weeks ago prohibiting the sale of fruit on Creston station platform, the old order of things being restored on Monday. One can readily understand the opposition of the train news agents towards the local sale of fruit, and when one remembers that the newsie is ostensibly operating with a view to making some profit for the company, and when it is stated that for many months every possible pressure has been brought to bear on the superintendent to end platform fruit selling, Mr. Flett's decision to stop selling did not come altogether as a surprise. The Review is particularly pleased to note that once the advantages to the Valley from this particular local sale was pointed out to Mr. Flett, and he has had the time to look carefully into the whole situation, he has so readily adopted the broad policy of again allowing platform selling. Certainly if Mr. Flett is Scotch he is not one of the stubborn sort and his timely consideration for local conditions in this detail entitles him to just a little more fully enjoy the confidence Creston feels in him on the strength of the excellent consideration this centre has invariably received from him direct—and through him from the higher officials of the C.P.R.

The editor would be less than human did we not appreciate the many complimentary references that have made to our recent editorial on the desirability of the United Church in Creston, which appeared under the heading "Now is the Accepted Time." A sample tribute to this particular effort appears in last week's Kaslo Kootenian, and is couched in the following terms: "The following editorial by C. F. Hayes, the pilot at the head of the editorial columns of the Creston Review, is so full of truth and good, sound wisdom that we believe it should be read as widely as possible, particularly in the smaller centres not only of British Columbia but in every province in the Dominion. We reproduce it here, and commend it to your careful perusal." In addition to Grand Forks, where a united church is all but assured, the move to unite is now under way at Vernon, and hope is entertained that in the latter town fusion will result before the end of June. Just exactly how much longer Creston will continue to sponge on home mission funds to keep up three Protestant denominations where one would more readily fill the bill we are not prepared to predict, but right now the fleaven of union is certainly working strong and the Review has every confidence that very shortly the self-respecting church women and men will make an end of the present wasteful denominational competition.

LINKING CANADA AND THE STATES

THE automobile has become a national institution for transcontinental touring and in United States five million persons last year are recorded as having whirled from one national park to another. Boston to the Pacific Coast by motor is getting to be as casual as train travel. With a camp outfit tied to the running boards and a few additional auto parts, the motorists are able to dress in their sports clothes, throw care to the wind and search out Nature with the help of a little gasoline.

Hotels are only used on bath nights, as the chief fun is to pitch the tent in the open and cook over a camp fire, or, as is the case throughout the West, over especially built camp stoves established in the open places. Rustic camps are also placed in most of the national parks where motorists may rest for a few days or weeks, in cabins rented at a moderate price and within a short walk of a community house and dining hall.

The Canadian Pacific Rockies are this year to be opened to all such motor tourists, for the Canadian Government in co-operation with the Canadian Pacific Railway, has completed the Banff-Windermere automobile, road which throws open Banff, Lake Louise and Windermere Valley to motorists.

Bungalow camps are being planned at convenient and beautiful points to accommodate just such travel in addition to the regular travel which comes by rail.

The new road will be formally opened on June 30th and will permit the whole tide of motor traffic up and down the Pacific Coast to travel from San Diego to Portland, thence up the Columbia Highway to Spokane and so on, through the Canadian border, up the Windermere Valley, through the Canadian Pacific Rockies to the famous resorts of Banff and Lake Louise. From Lake Louise the motorist may go to the Valley of Ten Peaks and Moraine Lake. This is entirely new country for the autoist approaching from the West, although the road from the East, Calgary to Lake Louise, through Banff, has been in operation two years.

The connecting of this link makes it possible for motorists from the East to tour all the National Parks of the United States and visit those in the Canadian Pacific Rockies as well. The roads from the end of the country to the other are generally excellent. The cost of motor trips is cheaper than travel from San Diego to Portland,

Columbia-Kootenay Valley

From Agricultural and Industrial Progress in Canada

The Columbia Kootenay Valley in cludes the most extensive area of agricultural and pastoral land in the Kootenay district of British Columbia, lying between the Rocky Mountains and the Selkirks. The valley is drained by the Columbia and Kootenay rivers and creeks which provide ample water for irrigation or power purposes. The soil is alluvial and produces a luxuriant growth of wild hay, vetch, and peavine. From the valley flats the land rises in a series of benches which finally merge into the foothills and mountains. Many of these benches present the appearance of rolling prairie whilst others are covered with a fine growth of timber, free from underbrush as a well-kept park. Benches, foothills and mountain slopes are covered with grasses, providing good pasturage for cattle, horses and sheep. The climate is temperate and enjoyable at all seasons.

CRESTON MERCANTILE COMPANY LIMITED

The area of the valley proper is roughly about 1,000,000 acres, and at a modest estimate from 20 to 30 per cent. of this is available for crops of hay, grain, vegetables and the hardier fruits. The section of the valley from 20 miles north to 20 miles south of Golden is under the jurisdiction of the Department of the Interior, Ottawa, which regulates the homesteading, pre-emption, and purchase of lands within the belt. South of the Railway belt a very considerable part of the land is owned by the Columbia Valley Irrigated Fruit Lands, Ltd. Most available agricultural portions have been alienated from the Crown so that the new settler must, as a rule, buy from the land companies or the individual owners. The lands in near proximity to the railroad are well suited to either dairy farming or market-gardening, whilst those in the outlying districts are more suited to range cattle, sheep and horses.

Though agriculture made slow progress there for a considerable time, the area being neglected in the settlement of other sections of the province, the past few years have witnessed steady settlement and the general adoption of certain forms of agriculture. In particular the lighter phases of farming, such as truck gardening, have proved popular and profitable, and fruits and vegetables are produced which cannot be surpassed in other parts of the country. Markets of considerable absorptive powers are found in the mining districts of the province and the Prairie Provinces.

Progress in the Kootenay Valley in fruit and vegetable production is described by residents there as surprising. Having a due regard to the recent settlement and the still somewhat scanty population, this is attested by shipments from the area in 1922. From Duck Creek 8 cars of strawberries and 5 cars of apples were shipped; from Creston 6 cars of mixed fruit, pears, plums, crabs, and early apples and 102 cars of apples; from Erickson 80 cars of mixed fruit and vegetable, 85 cars of apples and 3 cars of potatoes; from Canyon Station 4 cars of apples. The production for export at these points was about 220 cars of apples, 36 cars of mixed fruit and vegetables, 16 cars of berries, 3 cars of potatoes—a total of 275 cars in addition to a voluminous express shipment.

The manner in which production is increasing in the valley may be exemplified in the case of a single station—Erickson. Here the increase of shipments in 1922 over 1921 amounted to 7 cars of apples and 20 cars of mixed fruit and vegetables. The same point also shipped 3,400 boxes of tomatoes, 2,300 cases of green corn, 1,793 cases of raspberries—an increase of about 100 per cent. over 1921. Without doubt the Columbia Kootenay Valley is one of the coming regions of British Columbia in the production of small fruits and vegetables.

The BUD MOTH

By C. E. TWIGG

In the control of the Bud Moth this coming season it is necessary to apply two sprays—the delayed dormant, or when the young leaves are about the size of a ten-cent piece, and later, during the pins stage. Arsenate of lead or arsenate of lime can be used with success.

If the weather is clear and looks settled lime and sulphur need not be added with the delayed dormant spray, but if aphids were noticed while pruning it is just as well to add one half pint black leaf forty to the 100 gallons to check further increase at this early period.

In Nova Scotia five pounds of lead arsenate to 100 gallons of 1-in 40 lime and sulphur solution gave fair results, or if used alone four pounds of arsenate of lead to the 100 gallons, as lime and sulphur reduces the efficiency of the action of the poison about twenty per cent.

In all cases mix arsenate of lead with the milk of lime to neutralize the acidity and prevent breaking down some of the lime and sulphur solution yielding a black precipitate in the bottom of the tank. Stirring while pouring into the lime and solution with the agitator working just before using.

One pound of stone lime is used to every pound of lead in the mixture, generally slacked in twenty pound lots in a barrel, afterwards diluted to twenty gallons—that is, half fill the barrel, stir well before using, and dip with a gallon measure thus securing the milk of one pound of lime.

If arsenate of lime is used instead take two pounds to the 100 gallons of lime and sulphur solution with the addition of five pounds hydrated lime or four pounds stone lime to prevent damage to the foliage, or half-pound less if used alone with the milk or lime added.

The Bud Moths do not emerge all at the same time, there being about two weeks difference with specimens under observation in Nova Scotia, but the two early sprays give the best control as most of them emerge before bloom.

If the trees are drenched with a driving spray it ensures better success. Spraying cherries for pear slug two-and-a-half pounds of arsenate of lead with the milk of as much stone lime added to the 100 gallons if applied three weeks or more before picking will help to keep them in control.

Why Great Britain Is Great

Under the above heading the Chicago Daily Tribune recently paid a magnificent tribute to the Government and people of Great Britain. Coming, as it does, immediately following the surprising articles in the Hearst journals in commendation of the British attitude in dealing with the many and enormously difficult after-the-war problems of Europe, it is most gratifying evidence of the fact that the people of the United States appreciate and are in sympathy with the parent branch of the English-speaking people.

The unity of sentiment at present prevailing between the two great Anglo-Saxon nations, and which has steadily developed during and since the war, is the most promising thing for the future in a world now torn and distracted by national jealousies and suspicions. If the people of the British Empire and the United States present a united front, and remain on guard against those common enemies who seek to sow the seeds of discord and ill-will, they can rule the world.

Great Britain plunged unhesitatingly and quite unprepared into the Great War because of a "scrap of paper." That is to say, Great Britain having allied its signature to a treaty guaranteeing the neutrality of Belgium, thereby pledging itself to see that such neutrality was observed, the Empire rushed to arms to make good its promise and in defence of Belgium which relied on that promise.

In living up to its pledge in this respect, Great Britain expended all its resources, of men, material and money. It financed its European Allies to the extent of thousands of millions of dollars. In order to do this and meet its own tremendous expenditures, Great Britain was finally compelled to borrow billions of dollars from the United States. It gave its pledge that such loans would be repaid with interest.

Staggering under a burden of taxation greater than is borne by any other nation in the world, with its foreign trade, upon which it so largely exists, crippled because of unsettled economic conditions everywhere, with hundreds of thousands of its own people unemployed as a result and who must be supported by the State, with its European Allies as yet unable to make repayment even of interest on the large sums advanced to them, Great Britain was faced with the necessity of meeting its obligations to the United States.

The British Government might, as the Chicago Tribune says, have evaded, postponed, quibbled and argued. They could have presented a strong case for delay in action. They might even have repudiated. But, adds the Tribune, "they have chosen to act with honor, candor and decision." They have agreed to a refunding of their enormous debt to the United States, and to repay the full amount, principal and interest, within a stated number of years.

In recommending the prompt acceptance by Congress of the British war debt agreement, President Harding reminds Congress and the United States people that the transaction "means vastly more than the mere refunding and the ultimate discharge of the largest international loan ever contracted. It is a recognition of the English-speaking world to the validity of contract." The President added that the failure of the British undertaking would have spread political and economic discouragement throughout the world and general repudiation would likely have followed in its wake.

English-speaking people know, or ought to know, what the validity of contract means. The validity of contract, the keeping of the pledged word, the fulfilment of agreements, this is the keystone of the arch which sustains the civilization we share in common. The English-speaking peoples believe that when such faith is broken society will break up, dissolve, as the Russian did. The validity of contract, the validity of treaties, this is vital to tolerable human relations, to stability, to progress.

Speaking of the British action, the Chicago Tribune uses these significant words: "This is British national character, the stuff which has made the British great through the centuries and sustains their world embracing power to do something greater than armies or navies. The British settlement is, in fact, more important to Britain and the world than a campaign of conquest. A British might add a colony to the Empire, but this buttresses the foundations of British power and prosperity."

That is character. It is also far-seeing intelligence, for British well-being as well as our depends upon the stabilization of international intercourse, especially between America and Great Britain. And as the President well says, the settlement is a new element of financial and economic stabilization when the world is badly needing a reminder of the ways of peace. It is an example of encouragement and inspiration, when the world is staggering in discouragement and bowed with the sorrow of wars that were and fears of wars which humanity is praying may be avoided."

"I Now Feel Fine"

Mrs. P. G. Murdoch, Box 433, Portage la Prairie, Man., writes:

"I was troubled for years with biliousness, constipation, kidney and liver troubles. I tried many different kinds of medicine, but nothing did me much good until I tried Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. I now feel fine, but am never without these pills in the house. Dr. Chase's Ointment has relieved my husband of piles, from which he used to suffer badly."

Italy to London by Rail

Eliminating Loading at Coasts Will Cut Carrying Charges

It is thought that in six months it will be possible to run a train, say, from Italy to Zeebrugge, in Belgium; there drive in upon a sea-ferry floating stage; join the ferry platform up with the English railway at Harwich, and then run the train direct to London, without unloading the goods during the journey.

The train ferry was used with excellent effect during the war. Much military material passed safely by that means from Richborough, in Kent, to Dunkirk, in France. But, apart from the war service, Richborough and Dunkirk have not proved the best places for the interchange of ferry trains. Harwich and Zeebrugge are thought to have a better position, and hence the new start in train-ferry experiments.

It is said that having through traffic, without unloading and loading on the coasts, will make a saving of from fifteen shillings to a pound on each ton of goods carried. If that is so, home grown produce will have to be carried by our railways more cheaply to our markets if it is to compete.

Spend your money at home, thereby helping your own town and local merchants.

WINTER HARD ON BABY

The winter season is a hard one on the baby. He is more or less confined to stuffy, badly ventilated rooms. It is so often stormy that the mother does not get him out in the fresh air as often as she should. He catches colds which rack his little system; his stomach and bowels get out of order and he becomes peevish and cross. To guard against this the mother should keep a box of Baby's Own Tablets in the house. They regulate the stomach and bowels, and break up colds. They are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Treatment for Tubercular Mothers

Good Work Being Carried On in Saskatchewan

Enjoying the benefits of the $50,000 Anti-T.B. Fund, eight mothers have been taken to the Saskatchewan Sanatorium at Fort Qu'Appelle. The eight are from points in the province very far remote from each other, and in each case the fact that the mother can be given treatment means that the children will be much more safe from danger of T.B. than before.

Not nearly $5,000 has yet been collected. Indeed, the funds actually received are only about $3,000, but gifts are coming along steadily. So it seemed safe to the Anti-T.B. League to have that number of the mothers start their treatment before the disease got more stubbornly fixed.

All readers who are willing to help in this move to make all the homes of Saskatchewan safer from T.B. are asked to send their gifts, even if they cannot be large, to The Leader, Regina; The Times, Moose Jaw; The Star, Saskatoon.

CATARRHAL DEAFNESS

Is greatly relieved by constitutional treatment. HALL'S CATARRH MEDICINE is a constitutional remedy. Catarrhal Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result. Unless the inflammation can be reduced, your hearing may be destroyed forever. HALL'S CATARRH MEDICINE acts through the blood on the mucous surfaces of the system, thus reducing the inflammation and assisting Nature in restoring normal conditions.

Canada's Great Future Is Not Questioned In The United States

Canada has much to expect of 1923 in the way of new foreign capital coming into her territory for the ordinary investment of surplus funds and to promote various industrial developments. The Dominion's popularity is increasingly in the ascendancy with the United States as an outlet for surplus funds, whilst the wisdom and advisability of achieving industrial expansion by Canadian establishment is continuously being brought home to more American manufacturers. The year 1922 featured an awakening of industrial interest in the Dominion on the part of British industrialists, springing out of the gradual emersion of the British Isles from the post-war trade depression, and this will likely be followed up in 1923 by a substantial investment and industrial establishment, especially if sterling continues its upward trend towards par.

The year 1922 set up a new record for American investment in Canada. The total of Canadian bond sales in the United States was over $261,000,000 or $37,000,000 in excess of the previously highest figure reached in 1920. Add to this investments of a general nature other than those represented by the sale of bonds and it would not be difficult to account for well on to $300,000,000. Only once, in 1913, has Canada received a larger amount of outside capital within a year, when the total value of Canadian bond sales in the United States and Great Britain was $327,000,000, or approximately $60,000,000 more than the sales in the United States alone in 1922.

This illustrates in a very illuminating manner the change that has taken place in the currents of finance in so far as Canada is concerned, and how the reservoir of American wealth became available to Canada so soon as supplies from Britain were cut off. As an evidence of the change which has taken place, it may be noted that during the period 1908-1914 inclusive the total of Canadian bond sales in the United States was only $173,000,000, or $90,000,000 less than the aggregate for 1922.

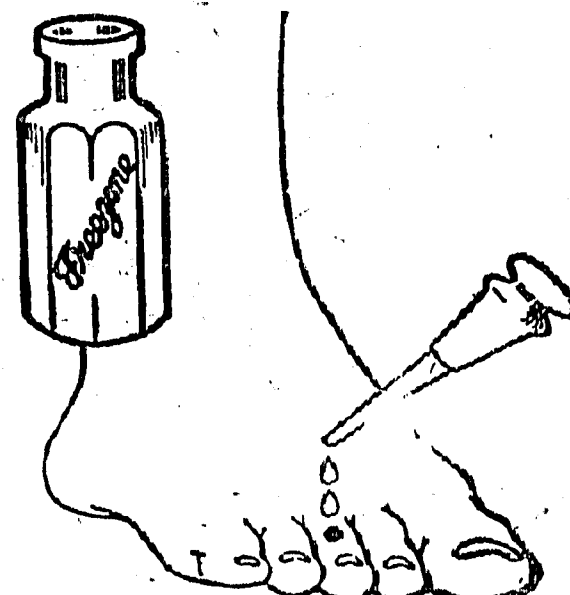

Before the war the capital instrumental in fostering most Canadian development was overwhelmingly British. During the war and since, British capital has stood still and American capital increased, so that at the last computation it was estimated that the United Kingdom had about two and a half billions of dollars in Canada and the United States two billions, making it merely a matter of time under present conditions before United States money should equal that of the British Isles and pass it in occupying the first place in Canadian development. There is no doubt but that in the readjustment of conditions, including the strengthening of sterling, British money will come back to Canada in its old volume. There is no reason to expect that United States investment will ever fall off, but the two come into good-natured competition. From the combination Canada should receive an unprecedented development.

HER HEART SKIPPED EVERY THIRD BEAT

Mrs. James Burleigh, 248 King St. E., Chatham, Ont., writes:—"I think it my duty to let you know what Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills have done for me."

I suffered for years with palpitation of the heart, my nerves were very bad, and I could not be left alone at any time. I doctored for over a year, and the doctor said my heart was very bad as it skipped every third beat.

I gave up, just at this time, and then my mother advised me to try Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills, saying my eldest brother had been relieved by using them when he was very bad with his heart and nerves. I got a box and started to take them, and when I had used it I felt a lot better; could sleep a little and felt stronger. I continued taking them for about three months, and felt better than I had for years.

When I think of the misery and suffering I went through before I started Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills, I feel like letting everyone know what they did for me."

The Family Medicine Chest

World's Chief Granary Was Vast Wilderness Only Forty Years Ago

The growth of Western Canada is an inspiring romance. It is only fifty years ago last July that the first homestead was filed on the prairie, by John Sanderson, who still lives on his farm near Portage la Prairie, Manitoba. It is only forty-one years ago last September that the first quarter section of Canadian Pacific Railway land was sold by W. D. Scott, the present Assistant Deputy Minister of the Canadian Department of Immigration and Colonization. At that time comparatively few people had any conception of the enormous possibilities for agricultural development of that fertile plateau running westward from Winnipeg to the foothills of the Rocky Mountains.

The province of Manitoba had a population of 62,260, compared with 613,000 last year. Winnipeg was frontier town with 7,900 people, and Brandon, which was regarded as a far-flung outpost of the west, boasted of a few hundred in population. Calgary, Edmonton, Regina, Saskatoon, Moose Jaw were mounted police outposts or Hudson's Bay trading posts. The main line of the Canadian Pacific Railway ran as far as Portage la Prairie, about 50 miles west of Winnipeg. Now there are three transcontinental lines spanning the prairies and extending on to the Pacific coast. Manitoba now has 4,000 miles of railways, Saskatchewan 6,000, Alberta 4,000 and British Columbia 4,100. Calgary, Edmonton, Regina, Saskatoon, Moose Jaw are thriving and modern cities. Winnipeg is known as the metropolis to the Canadian west, with a population of over 200,000. Vancouver is one of the great seaports on the Pacific, with a population of 150,000.

While progress and development in the older parts of Canada have not been so remarkable in recent years as they have been in the west, yet in the last forty years there has been a phenomenal growth in every direction.

Banquet for Alberta Prize Winners

A banquet was given by the Calgary Board of Trade to the Alberta grain and hay growers who swept the board at the recent International Hay and Grain Show at Chicago. Alberta won more prize money at the Chicago Exhibition than any other State in the Union or any other Province in Canada, from a field of more than 4,000 entries.

The 77 in the shade recorded on Monday is rather readily explained by some of the weather prophets, who recall that it was on April 10, 1892, that Mayor Fred Little and J. W. Dow first discovered Creston, and the not air dispensed by both of these old timers on the thirty first anniversary of their landing in the city of destiny in large measure accounts for the ascent in the local temperature. Despite the semi dry times in which we live the mayor is still very much of an optimist and expects very shortly to trade his Overland for a Curtis biplane and further enhance his reputation for being the first in air as well as horseless transportation. Amongst the many congratulatory messages received was a radio from Henry Ford congratulating the mayor on being an 11-year Ford owner and still alive and not ashamed to boast of the accomplishment.
