THE CRESTON REVIEW

VOL. XV. CRESTON, B. C., FRIDAY, AUGUST 3, 1923 No. 27

Sirdar

There will be 8 and 10.30 a.m. Church of England services in the schoolhouse on Sunday.

Jack Cameron was a Creston visitor on Thursday, and stopped over for a few hours for the baseball dance at the Parish Hall.

Mr. and Mrs. Ashley Cooper went through on Monday to Wynndel from Cultus Creek, where they have been camping.

Mr. McFadyon, C.P.R. master mechanic at Cranbrook, was here on an official visit at the end of the week.

Mr. and Mrs. Robertson of the divisional staff at Cranbrook, have returned home after ten days camping and fishing trip to Sanca.

The auto tourist trade seems to get heavier as the season advances. Half a dozen cars off the boat at Kuskanook is almost a daily occurence now.

Mrs. Jones went as far as Creston Thursday with Mrs. McKinley, who returned via Spokane to her California home.

C. M. Loasby had a motor load to Creston on Friday night for the garden party at the home of Mrs. Lyne.

Wynndel

BIRTH—On July 30th, to Mr. and Mrs. Matt. Hagen, a daughter.

The last of the Indian pickers disappeared at the beginning of the week, and with the exception of the few pickers busy at the raspberries Duck Creek is now back to normaleys

Harry Price returned to Winnipeg on Friday, breaking his journey at Cranbrook to visit his mother, Mrs. Sheppard, who is still a patient in the hospital there.

Fishing for black bass is now all the go, and several quite fine specimens of this species have been taken here.

Miss Jean Steward, who has been staying with Miss Lizzie Piggot for the past few weeks, returned to her home at Trail on Friday.

At least three cars of young people were at Creston on Thursday night last for the baseball club dance in the Parish Hall, and had a real fine time, the music by Mrs. Lister, Miss Small and Alex. Lidgate being equal almost to the old time Creston orchestra.

Canyon City

The Vance boys are home from Lumberton for a short time, helping with the raspberry picking and shipping. They have a logging contract at that point and are doing well.

The portable mill is shut down just at present and most of the crew are lending a hand with the hay and oat harvest on the Lyon ranch, the crops of both these feeds being the heaviest on record. The mill has pretty well cleaned up the cut at its present site and will shortly be moved to handle the logs off the Helme property.

Edith Cleave and Glen Messenger were Canyon's graduating candidates at the Entrance examinations, the results of which were published at the end of the week. Mr. Messenger is hoping to be able to have Glen attend Creston high school this term.

Raspberries are about at their peak and with a good rain this week would produce the best yields in recent years. Geo. Davie, J. W. Wood and F. Knott are the heaviest shippers in these.

Sunday sees many of the Canyon citszens picnicing at the Goat river the site of the old bridge, where the bathing is excellent. A number are also camping at the island this month.

At the organization meeting of the school board last week T. R. Mawson was named chairman of the board for this year, with A. D. Pochin secretary-treasurer.

John Johnson is spending a few days at Wynndel, helping out his brotner, Otto, who is short of men to keep up with the lumber piling contract he has at the Winlaw mill.

A. G. Samuelson has taken a small pole skidding contract with the Winlaw firm, the scene of operations being at the island below the old Goat River bridge.

Glen Messenger, sr., pulled out at the first of the week for Vanguard, Sask. where he will again be in charge of the elevator at that point, and in view of the big crop may be away until spring.

Erickson

Mrs. Henry Campbell and family, who have been staying at the ranch the past few weeks, have returned to Hillcrest, Alberta.

Sunday was the heaviest shipping day of the year so far, the raspberry outgo accounting for a grand total of 131 crates.

Geo. Handley started the cucumber shipping season on Thursday of last week. The export of these will be lighter than last year from all accounts.

The workmen completed the cement basement of the new station at the first of the week, and are now busy with the carpenter work. It will likely be six weeks before the new building is completed.

Eric Wood, who is working in the Powell garage at Cranbrook, was home for the week-end.

Mrs. McKowan and family of Cranbrook are visitors here at present at the G. Cartwright home.

Fred Klingensmith left at the end of the week for Birchbank, where he has taken a position in the mill there.

Erickson scholars made a fine showing at the first year high school examinations at Creston, the results of which were published on Monday, showing both Edith Palfreyman and Dick Penson passing. Miss Green graduated four of her eight pupils who wrote on the Entrance, those passing being Effie Littlejohn, John Hall, Jean Craigie and Winnie Palfreyman.

Entrance Passes 100 Per Cent.

The names of the successful candidates in both the Entrance and High School midsummer examinations were issued from Victoria at the end of the week. In the Entrance class Mr. Siddons has made a perfect showing, graduating the full nineteen candidates who wrote—a most creditable showing when it is remembered that in the whole province only 55 per cent. of the students writing were graduated. For the fourth year in succession the Lister school also registered a 100 per cent. pass list, the two scholars who wrote this year both being successful. Those passing are:

Creston—Edith M. Crawford 390, Annaretta McDonald 385, Herbert C. Manuel 384, Donald O. Young 364, Evelyn E. Bevan 363, Ralph O. Christie 360, Edward D. Peairs 359, Ivin Compton 348, Elson M. Lidgate 348, Marion E. Learmouth 343, James Cherrington 242, Charles N. Holmes 341 Louise Romano 335, Lewis I. Staples 322, Olaf Payne 320, Benjamin B. Crawford 314 Helen M. Mooye 312, Eric W. Lytle 306, Harold Payne 300.

Camp Lister—Donald Brain 307, Ruby L. Lister 300.

Canyon City—Glen E. Messinger 327, Edit2 A. Cleave 325.

Erickson—Effie Littlejohn 364, John S. Hall 344, Jean Craigie 338, Winnifred Palfreyman 304.

Wynndel—Dorothy A. Fenson 336, Clarence R. Wilson 334.

The names of the successful high school candidates are only those of the scholars who wrote on the papers set by the department. To these must be added those who were passed by the principal by authority of the department, the two lists together showing the high school to have also made a showing that compares favorably with the high schools in the smaller towns. The successful high school students are:

Preliminary course junior grade—Maximum mark 900—Richard G. Penson 586, Edith Palfreyman 498.

Advanced course junior grade—Maximum mark 800—Robert Wm. Crawford 501, Agnes H. Hobden, 421.

Junior matriculation — Maximum mark 1000—Violet M. Morrow 684, Ethel la Von West 594, Thelma K. West 522.

Completed matriculation — Harry Compton.

Camp Lister Public School. Preliminary course, junior grade—Maximum mark 900—Ernest R. Stevens 433.

Local and Personal

Miss Symes of Cranbrook is a Creston visitor this week, the guest of Mrs. E. H. Small.

R. Meldrum and G. M. Argue were motor visitors to Cranbrook for a weekend visit.

Miss Grace Comfost is away for a few weeks' visit with friends at Nobleford, Alberta.

Mr. and Mrs. James Adlard left on Friday by motor for a short visit with friends at Fernie.

Tourist traffic both east and west is much heavier this season than last. The number westbound in prairie schooners shows a decided increase.

Dr. WILSON HERALD, ear, nose and throat specialist, will arrive in Creston, August 5th.

Weekend camping parties from Creston at Kuskanook are quite numerous this season. Both the bathing and fishing are the best ever.

Miss M. Newton, who has been a visitor with the Misses McDonald at Glencoe Ranch the past two weeks, left for her home at Pincher Creek, Alberta, on Tuesday.

Alice Siding

Jack Smith was a visitor at Cranbrook a few days last week, and on his return went to Birchbank, where he is scaling in the mill there.

The good roads machinery is being transferred here from the Erickson section this week, and the new road-making at Alice Siding should be under way by the end of the week.

Fred Taylor, who is working at Kitchener, was at his home here for the weekend.

Farmers are busy this week harvesting the second crop of alfalfa, and report a very satisfactory yield for second cutting.

Principal Lallamond has been heard from stating that the Nicola Valley is averaging from 95 to 100 in the shade this summer and that the vacation is quite a warm one in consequence.

R. Stewart is putting Alice Siding on the map for 1923 cucumber shipments, with three crates to start with on the 28th.

The flats hay crop in this section looks most promising. There is still quite a sheet of water, however, to disappear.

Raspberry shipping will about conclude at the first of the week. Most of the growers have got almost the crop expected.

Mrs. Hedges and son, of Nelson, are visitors here at present, guests of Mrs. H. F. Wood.

Things were most exciting at the Smith crossing depot just before train time on Thursday last. The first mishap was to Victor Carr, whose horse almost broke into a runaway when one of the shafts broke. Before the horse was quite under control along came the Parkin rig on which the doubletree broke almost opposite where the Carr horse was standing and the volunteer runaway stopping brigade had a similar job on their hands, which was no sooner taken care of than a stranger driving a spirited horse came along and his animal balted at the sight of the crowd and excited horses, landing on the wire fence at the Webster ranch, and requiring about ten minutes of rather dangerous effort to extricate the half-scared and rather badly cut up beast from the wire. All of this happened in less than fifteen minutes, and then the train came in concluding the most exciting morning of the season so far.

Lister

C. H. Phillips., who has been a patient in the hospital at Cranbrook the past few weeks, arrived home on Friday looking pretty much his old time self.

Mrs. Charleson and family are expecting to leave this week to join Mr. Charleson, who is employed at the flume camp at Lumberton.

Mrs. John Johnston left at the end of the week for Vancouver, on a visit to her husband, who has been a patient in a sanitarium at that point for the past two months.

Yerbury brothers have obtained the fuel cutting contract at the Continental mine at Klockmann, and will lately be busy on it till the freeze up comes.

The school board have been fortunate in securing an experienced teacher for Division II., in Miss Brander of Fort Steele, who comes well recommended by the inspector, and who has been notified of her being accepted for the position.

Lister school maintained its reputation for 100 per cent. efficiency at passing Entrance pupils again this year, both Ronald Brain and Ruby Lister being successful. Too Ernest Stephens was also successful in passing the first year high school examinations. Certianly Miss Redpath is well deserving of congratulations.

At the the inauguaral meeting of the school board last week E. J. Malthouse was selected chairman, with E. L. Langston as secretary-treasurer. Until such time as the area is taxed a voluntary subscription will have to be raised to take care of most of the running expenses outside of teachers' salaries.

The Ragged Heiress

Shirley Mason has a habit of winning her audience in every picture in which she appears. She runs true to form, as the turfmen say in "The Ragged Heiress," at the Grand Theatre on Saturday night. She has presented no more appealing figure to her public, nor one in which gentleness and sweetness of personality have been more marked.

The story is of a motherless girl of 3 years, consigned by a convict father to grasping and unscrupulous relatives, from whom she is kidnapped by a loving but very poor old nurse. Reared in poverty and in ignorance of her relatives and true parentage, she is cast by death upon her own resources, and ultimately finds herself the ill-paid maid of all work to the relatives who originally were her guardians; but there is no recognition, of course, on either side; and the unscrupulous relatives continue use, as they have done for many years, her private fortune for their own benefit.

At this point the romance of the girl's life begins. There is much of neat humor to relieve the pathetic element in the story, and from start to finish Miss Mason is wholly charming.

Even shower baths are provided in the new tourist camp ground at Rossland this year.

"I'll tell you what I'll do, Moran," he said, finally. "Give me a hand out of this hole, or come down here yourself. Throw aside your gun, but keep your knife. I'll allow you that advantage. Meet me face to face! Damn you, be a man! Anything that you can gain by my signature, you can gain by my death. Get the best of me, if you can, in a man's fight. Pah!" He spat contemptuously. "You're a coward, Moran, a white-livered coward! You don't dare fight with me on anything like equal terms. I'll get out of here somehow, and when I do—by Heaven, I'll corner you, and I'll make you fight."

"Get out? How?" Moran laughed, the idea to scorn. "Your friends can look for you from now till snowfall. They'll never find even your bones. Rot there, if you choose. Why should I take a chance on you when I've got you where I want you? You ought to die. You know too much."

"Yes," Wade retorted grimly. "I know too much. I know enough to hang you, you murderer. Who killed Oscar Jensen? Answer that! You did it, or you had it done, and then you tried to put it on Santry and me, and I'm not the only one who knows it. This country's too small to hold you, Moran. Your fate is settled already, whatever may happen to me."

"Still, I seem to be holding four aces now," Moran grinned back at him. "And the cards are stacked."

Left alone, Wade rolled himself a cigarette from his scant hoard of tobacco. Already he was hungry, for deep shadows in his prison marked the approach of night, and he had the appetite of a healthy man. The knowledge that he was to be denied food made him feel the hungrier, until he resolutely put the thought of eating out of his mind. The water, trickling down the face of the rock, was a God-send, though, and he drank frequently from the little stream.

By habit a heavy smoker, he viewed with dismay the inroads which he had already made on his store of tobacco for that deprivation he felt would be the most real of any that he could suffer. He tried to take shorter puffs upon his cigarette, and between them shielded the fire with his hand, so that the air-draughts in the fissure might not cheat him of any of the smoke. He figured that he had scarcely enough tobacco left for a dozen cigarettes, which was less than his usual daily allowance.

On searching his pockets, in the hope of finding a second sack of Durham, he chanced upon his clasp-knife, and viewed the find with joy. The thought of using it as a weapon did not impress him, for his captors would keep out of reach of such a toy, but he concluded that he mighty possibly use it to carve some sort of foothold in the rock. The idea of cutting the granite was out of the question, but there might be strata of softer stone which he could dig into. It was a forlorn hope, in a forlorn cause, and it proved futile. At his first effort the knife's single blade snapped off short, and he threw the useless handle away.

Darkness fell some time before the cool night air penetrated the fissure; when it did so the cold seemed likely to be added to his other physical discomforts. In the higher altitudes the nights were distinctly chilly even in mid-summer, and he had on only a light outing shirt, above his waist. As the hour grew late, the cold increased in severity until Wade was forced to walk up and down his narrow prison in the effort to keep warm. He had just turned to retrace his steps, on one such occasion, when his ears caught the soft pat-pat of a footfall on the ground above. He instantly became motionless and tensely alert, wondering which of his enemies was so stealthily returning, and for what reason.

He thought it not unlikely that Moran had altered his purpose and come back to shoot him while he slept. Brave though he was, the idea of being shot down in such a manner made his flesh crawl. Stooping, he picked up a fragment of rock; although he realized the futility of the weapon, it was all he had. Certainly, whoever approached was moving with the utmost stealth, which argued an attack of some kind. Drawing back the hand that held the stone, the cattleman shrank into a corner of the fissure and waited. Against the starlit sky, he had an excellent view of the opening above him, and possibly by a lucky throw the stone would serve against one assailant, at least.

The pat-pat-pat drew nearer and stopped, at last, on the extreme edge of the hole. A low, long-drawn sniff showed that this was no human enemy. If the sound had been louder, Wade would have guessed that it was made by a bear; but as it was he guessed the prowler to be a mountain-lion. He had little fear of such a beast; most of them were notorious cowards unless cornered, and when presently a pair of glowing eyes peered down into the fissure, he hurled the stone at them with all his might. His aim was evidently true, for with a snarl of pain the animal drew back.

But just as amongst the most pacific human races there are some brave spirits, so amongst the American lions there are a few which possess all the courage of their jungle brothers. Actuated by overweening curiosity, or else by a thirst for blood, the big cat returned again and again to the edge of the hole. After his first throw Wade was unable to hit the beast with a stone, although his efforts had the temporary effect of frightening it. Gradually, however, it grew bolder, and was restrained from springing upon him only, as it seemed, by some sixth sense which warned it of the impossibility of getting out of the fissure after once getting in. Baffled and furious, the lion sniffed and prowled about the rim of the hole until the ranchman began to think it would surely leap upon him.

He picked up his broken pocket-knife and waited for this to happen. The shattered blade would be of little use, but it might prove better than his bare hands if he had to defend himself against the brute's teeth and claws.

CHAPTER XVII.

A War of Wits

"Kidnaped? Gordon Wade?"

At Dorothy's announcement, Mrs. Purnell sank, with a gasp, into her rocking-chair, astonished beyond expression. She listened, with anxiety scarce less than her daughter's, to the girl's account of the event as she had it from Trowbridge. Her mouth opened and shut aimlessly as she picked at her gingham apron. If Wade had been her own son, she could hardly have loved him more. He had been as tender to her as a son, and the news of his disappearance and probable injury was a frightful shock.

Weakly she attempted to relieve her own anxiety by disputing the fact of his danger.

"Oh, I guess nothing's happened to him—nothing like that, anyway. He may have had a fall from his horse. Or maybe it broke away from him and ran off."

"Bill Santry found their trail," Dorothy said, with a gesture so tragic that it wrung her mother's heart strings. "He followed it as far as he could, then lost it." In any other case she would have tried to keep the bad news from her mother, because of her nerves, but just now the girl was too distraught to think of any one but the man she loved. "Oh, if I could only do something myself," she burst out. "It's staying here, helpless, that is killing me. I wish I'd gone with Lem up into the mountains. I would have if he hadn't said I might better stay in town. But how can I help? There's nothing to do here."

"The idea!" Mrs. Purnell exclaimed. "They'll be out all night. How could you have gone with them? I don't believe Gordon has been kidnaped at all. It's a false alarm, I tell you. Who could have done such a thing?"

"Who?" The question broke Dorothy's patience. "Who's done everything that's abominable and contemptible lately here in Crawling Water? That Moran did it, of course, with Senator Rexhill behind him. Oh!"

"Nonsense!" said her mother, indignantly.

"Lem Trowbridge thinks so. Nearly everybody does."

"Then he hasn't as good sense as I thought he had." Mrs. Purnell arose and moved toward the kitchen. "You come on and help me make some waffles for supper. Perhaps that will take such foolishness out of your head. The idea of a Senator of the United States going about kidnaping people."

Dorothy obeyed her mother's wish, but not very ably. Her face was flushed and her eyes hot; ordinarily she was a splendid housekeeper and a dutiful daughter, but there are limits to human endurance. She mixed the batter so clumsily and with such prodigal waste that her mother had to stop her, and she was about to put salt into the sugar bowl when Mrs. Purnell snatched it out of her hands. "Go into the dining-room and sit down, Dorothy," she exclaimed. "You're beside yourself." It is frequently the way with people, who are getting on in years and are sick, to charge their own shortcomings on any one who may be near. Mrs. Purnell was greatly worried.

"What's the matter now?" she demanded, when Dorothy left her supper untasted on her plate.

"I was thinking."

"Well, can't you tell a body what you're thinking about? What are you sitting there that way for?"

"I was wondering," said Dorothy in despair, "if Helen Rexhill knows where Gordon is."

Mrs. Purnell snorted in disdain.

"Land's sakes, child, what put that into your head? Drink your tea. It'll do you good."

"Why shouldn't she know, if her father does?" The girl pushed her tea-cup farther away from her. "She wouldn't have come all the way out here with him—he wouldn't have brought her with him—if they weren't working together. She must know. But I don't see why . . ."

"Dorothy Purnell, I declare to goodness, I believe you're going crazy." Mrs. Purnell dropped her fork. "All this about Gordon is bad enough without my being worried so. . . ."

"I'd even give him up to her, if she'd tell me that." Dorothy's voice was unsteady, and she seemed to be talking to herself rather than to her mother. "I know she thinks I've come between her and Gordon, but I haven't meant to. He's just seemed to like me better; that's all. But I'd do anything to save him from Moran."

"I should say that you might better wait until he asks you, before you talk of giving him up to somebody." Mrs. Purnell spoke with the primness that was to be expected, but her daughter made no reply. She had never mentioned the night in Moran's office, and her mother knew nothing of Wade's kiss. But to the girl it had meant more than any declaration in words. She had kept her lips inviolate until that moment, and when his kiss had fallen upon them it had fallen upon virgin soil, from out of which had bloomed a white flower of passion. Before then she had looked upon Wade as a warm friend, but since that night he had appeared to her in another guise; that of a lover, who has come into his own. She had met him then, a girl, and had left him a woman, and she felt that what he had established as a fact in the one rare moment of his kiss, belonged to him and her. It seemed so wholly theirs that she had not been able to bring herself to discuss it with her mother. She had won it fairly, and she treasured it. The thought of giving him up to Helen Rexhill, of promising her never to see Wade again, was overwhelming, and was to be considered only as a last resource, but there was no suffering that she would not undertake for his sake.

Growth of Canada

That Canada was gradually becoming more and more of an industrial country, and that Canadians themselves were not truly aware of the fact was the opinion expressed before the Winnipeg Rotary Club by Prof. R. He stated that during the past 25 years the population of Canada had increased 80 per cent., the railway mileage 120 per cent., while the industrial life of the country increased 700 per cent.

Crop Prospects Never Better

All Indications Point to a Bumper Crop This Year

Prospects for even a bigger crop in Western Canada than the bumper one last year were never better so far. Recent rains have saturated every foot of the prairie provinces and no area is without an ample supply of moisture. Warm weather since the rainfalls have sent vegetation ahead with a jump. For miles on end, as far as the eye can reach, the wheat fields form an unending carpet of green, while in the cities and towns trees by the roadways show a riot of growth; on lawns lilacs are in bloom, and in backyards fruit and vegetables are flourishing. Several prominent farmers who never yield to undue optimism, and who have known Western Canada intimately for twenty years, express the general opinion in saying that prospects, from a crop standpoint, were never better at this season on the prairies.

On the Marriage Day

Romance usualy ceases, and history begins, and sore corns begin to go when "Putnam's" is applied. It takes out corns, roots, branches, stems—no trace of a single corn left after Putnam's Painless Corn Extractor has done its work. 25c at all dealers. Refuse a substitute.

LOW SPIRITED AND DEPRESSED

A Condition Due to Poor Blood and Weak Nerves

Nearly all women and most men suffer at times from fits of depression and low spirits, from which they are unable to free themselves. They cannot attend to their duties satisfactorily and are unable to get any pleasure out of life. People who suffer in this way soon lose their energy of mind and body. They lack vitality because their blood is poor and ill-nourished, and their nerves are starved in consequence. The only way to obtain new health is by building up the blood with Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. The new rich blood made by these pills will carry renewed health and energy to every part of the body. Your appetite will improve, your spirits brighten and you will be endowed with fresh energy and find a new joy in living. Mrs. G. Reid, Napanee, Ont., tells of the benefit she found through the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. She says: "I have used Dr. Williams' Pink Pills on different occasions and cannot emphasize too strongly the benefits derived from them. I was growing nervous, my complexion was becoming sallow and my eyes dull and listless. My vitality was poor and I did not sleep well. I became despondent, losing interest in my work, which seemed to tire me so easily. I began using Dr. Williams Pink Pills and after taking six boxes I began to enjoy life again and looked much brighter and felt happier. My appetite improved, I gained in weight and could sleep without any nervous wakefulness during the night. I also used these pills while nursing my baby and found them a wonderful help both for myself and for making my baby better natured. For these reasons I gladly recommend them to anyone who needs a tonic for the rebuilding of strength and energy."

You can get these Pills from any medicine dealer or by mail at 50 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Record For Phones

According to statistics recently compiled, the city of Calgary, Alberta, with a population of 64,000, has more telephones in proportion to its population than any other community on the American continent. There is one phone to every 4.10 persons. The telephones in Calgary are of the automatic type.

Many people are almost crippled with corns. But it is needless suffering which can be speedily ended with Holloway's Corn Remover.

Securing Domestic Help from Overseas

The Canadian Pacific Railway has added to its London, England, offices, a Woman's Department, where applicants for bona-fide domestics are received and investigated by a travelling woman inspector, with long experience in selecting domestic help, who looks into references and requirements on both sides. Accepted applicants are being sent to Canada, from time to time, in personally conducted parties.

Very charming in its novelty is this three-piece suit of sand colored canton crepe, box pleated. The smartly cut box coat is of paisley with a paisley fringed scarf to match.

Sores Heal Quickly.—Have you a persistent sore that refuses to heal? Then, try Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil in the dressing. It will stop sloughing, carry away the proud flesh, draw out the pus, and prepare a clean way for the new skin. It is a recognized healer among oils and numbers of people can certify that it healed where properly applied.

Saskatchewan Corn Show

The formation of the Saskatchewan Corn Growers' Association has excited a good deal of interest, and a very substantial list of prizes has been offered for the first provincial corn show at Maple Creek next November.

For Sprains and Bruises.—There is nothing better for sprains and contusions than Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil. It will reduce the swelling that follows a sprain, will cool the inflamed flesh and draw the pain. It will take the ache out of a bruise by concentrating the inflammation. A trial will convince any who doubt its power.

Any article of clothing soiled with paint should be rubbed immediately with spirits of turpentine. A second application may be necessary after the first has dried.

Can Carry Your Music Around In Your Vest Pocket

The first timepieces were huge. Now they go on your wrist. The same thing has happened to gramophones. A Hungarian mechanic has invented a gramophone no larger than a watch, and his slogan is, "Carry your orchestra in your vest pocket." The invention is described as a practical instrument, capable of producing jazz, waltzes, and one-step. "The Mikiphones," as it has been christened, winds like a watch, and has a speed regulator. There is room inside for ten plates, giving a repertoire of twenty selections. In the other vest pocket one can carry enough music for an all-night session. By placing the instrument on a champagne glass the sound is amplified sufficiently for an ordinary-sized ballroom.

Demand For Western Wheat

Wheat grown in Western Canada has for several years been in demand from all parts of the United States and the Old World. Mrs. Connor Declares Stomach Trouble Was So Bad She Could Hardly Eat At All

"If I hadn't gotten Tanlac when I did I believe I would have had to go to a hospital," declared Mrs. Wm. Connor, 226 Hess St., Hamilton, Ont., recently.

"My stomach was so disordered that everything I ate made me deathly sick, and caused pains in the pit of my stomach that nearly drove me distracted. Often the agony was so great I couldn't help crying, and for two or three days at a time I wouldn't eat a morsel of food. I was as nervous as a witch, miserable for the want of sleep, and often wonder now how I lasted through it all.

"The splendid results my husband got from Tanlac about a year ago caused me to try it, and the treatment ended my suffering in a few weeks time, and gave me a new lease on health. I don't believe there's a healthier woman in Hamilton than I am now, and I can't praise Tanlac enough."

Tanlac is for sale by all good druggists. Accept no substitute. Over 37 million bottles sold.

Estimating the Crop

Considerable surprise is expressed at the fruit crop estimate, provided by the provincial horticulturist, covering Creston Valley, and which was published one day last week.

According to these figures the local apple crop is going to be lighter than last year—the first time since the Valley commenced shipping fruit that a decrease has been noted.

1922, which was the dryest season ever experienced, saw a gain of at least twenty per cent. over the previous year, and the board of trade records from 1914 up till last season show a like or greater, gain every year for the past nine years.

Failing other excuse in the past these increases have been accounted for in the fact that new orchards coming into bearing are accountable for the boost, and when the season is over it will most likely be found needful to resort the old time explanation.

A notable discrepancy in the horticulturist's figures as compared with the actual crop this year is noted in strawberries. The estimated yield of these is but 17,000 crates whilst almott 23.000 crates have gone to the prairie and tonnage equal at another 5000 crates has gone to the jam factory, to say nothing of quantities unharvested due to a crate and jam pail shortage.

Despite the exceptionally fine growing season, according to the report, raspberries are the only line expected to show a gain this year, the anticipated yield of these being pretty much in accord with the quantity of crates ordered by growers. The expected slump in cherries is almost fifty per cent.

Canada Faces the Future With Confidence

CANADIANS have always been noted for courage, optimism and faith in their country.

Canada was not built up by pessimists, nor will Canada continue to develop if her people allow themselves to become croakers and grouchers. Canada is fundamentally an agricultural country. We have a soil and climate which can grow the world's finest agricultural products.

Canadian farmers who have earned the capital invested in their farms out of profits in farming are numbered in thousands. These successful farmers have paid off their mortgages, stocked their barns and stables, bought their machinery, made a good living and brought up their families. It meant hard work, but today they are independent.

We Must Cut Production Costs

Canada is meeting with the keenest competition in the marketing of her products. To hold her own and regain her place on the world's market, she must reduce cost of production.

The only way to do this is to increase production per acre, per cow or per other unit.

But improved quality, also, is essential to meet market demands.

The quantity and the quality of the products and the cost of production in competitive countries is beyond our control.

Prices of agricultural products are regulated by world supply and demand

Hence, decreasing production will not help the Canadian farmer.

Money in Mixed Farming

In recent years, at different points on the prairies, oats fed to steers have brought from 70c to $1.07 as against the Fort William price of 42c per bushel, while barley used for the same purpose has brought as high as 99c as against the Fort William price of 57c per bushel. Farmers marketing their coarse grains in this way lower marketing cost, have a sure market and make money on their grain, while at the same time they market their roughage, otherwise often wasted.

The cattle embargo is now off. Steers are worth more money and certain to make good money for the Canadian farmer from now on.

Money in Pigs

The Dominion Experimental Farms have proved by actual test that there is a profit in feeding pigs. Last year at the Central Farm, Ottawa, after paying for feed, labor, interest and depreciation, the net profit per pig was still $4.63.

Profits from Sheep

As money-makers, sheep are hard to beat. In every Province from Prince Edward Island to British Columbia are found many flocks returning generous profits to their owners.

Poultry Pays

Poultry makes money for those who adopt modern methods, whether East or West. Little Prince Edward Island markets co-operatively in carlots, shipping annually upwards of one million dozen eggs. The British Columbia Co-operative Poultry Men's Exchange markets in the same way, thus saving ruinous glut in their local market.

There is a market for good Canadian horses, whether light or draught.

Grow Seed

Canada's Northern grown seed possesses extra vitality. There is a large market for it to the south. Canada exports seed potatoes, but imports other seeds. She has the opportunity to grow seeds for herself and for export.

The Future

Ten years from now the pessimists of today will have been forgotten. Britain has removed the embargo against our cattle. She wants our beef and bacon, our cheese, butter, eggs and apples, our wheat and flour. As the population of the United States increases, she will compete less and less against us on the British market. Eventually, she will herself be an importer of many other food stuffs besides wheat from this country.

Canada has the men, the climate, the land, the stock and the potential markets necessary for agricultural success. Let us farm with all the industry and science we can muster. Let's get to work and pay our debts. Canada is moving forward with confidence in its future. Let us keep going ahead.

Canada And Its Immigrants

The tide of immigration to Canada is rising. It will continue to rise in response to the desire of people in the British Isles and on the continent of Europe to emigrate to a land where they can find those opportunities for self-advancement for themselves and children, particularly their children, which are at present denied to them, and also in response to the increasing recognition by the people of Canada that one of the Dominion's paramount needs is incrased population, which recognition is slowly but surely finding acceptance in the adoption of a more up-to-date and vigorous policy of immigration by the Ottawa Government. A further incentive to increased immigration is found in the policy of the British Government encouraging and promoting immigration to the overseas Dominions of the Empire.

It is not sufficient for Canada and its future merely to receive thousands of new settlers. These people of diverse races and tongues must not only be received but made welcome; they must for their own future good and Canada's welfare and national stability and progress be assimilated as rapidly and completely as possible into a real and permanent Canadian citizenship.

In the past, unfortunately, such assimilation in the minds of many good Canadians has been conceived in a very narrow way. It has meant little more than the abandonment by new comers of their native tongue, customs, and native dress and the adoption of the English language, Canadian dress and customs. While the adoption of the language, customs, dress and manners of Canada is desirable and, in their own interests, necesasry for all immigrants, it is not necessary, nor possibly even desirable, that they should wholly abandon and seek to forget the language and traditions of the lands from which they come.

It is of the first importance, however, that all people of foreign extraction should be made heartily welcome in Canada by our Anglo-Saxons. It is our duty to understand these newcomers. Particularly, we must abandon the attitude of viewing them with suspicion, even disgust. They are not Bohunks, nor dirty Galicians, nor narrow, bigoted Mennonites; they are people; they are human, with spiritual and intellectual capacities. Many of the very habits and characteristics to which Anglo-Saxons sometimes so strenuously object are the outcome of deep religious convictions—something no man should despise—or the result of centuries of inherited ideas which cannot be uprooted in a few years. Even if such uprooting was possible there would be grave danger of something less desirable and more dangerous taking the place of lost convictions and ideals.

These diverse peoples have a distinct contribution to make to the Canada of the future that is now in the making, a contribution quite apart from the visible, practical and economic one of tilling the soil, raising cattle, building railways, roads, of being hewers of wood and drawers of water for Canada. They bring to this new country habits of thrift and a willingness to work, and work hard even to the extent of downright drudgery, which most Anglo-Saxons have yet to learn. These people are real pioneers. They have not despised the land covered with bush to be cleared; no distance to market has been too great for them to travel; no stones too heavy to lift. They live frugally, clear their own land, haul their crops to distant market towns in zero weather. In a word, they are nation builders. They are not living for pleasure, but for future generations, and where you see their pioneer shacks, you also see lots of children.

These people, too, bring with them a burning love of liberty. They know from centuries of bitter experience what tyranny and oppression mean. They understand the horrors of war. True, there is danger they may misinterpret Canadian liberty for licence, but it is for the Anglo-Saxon to endeavor to understand and sympathetically teach and direct.

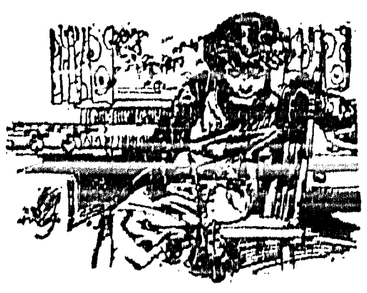
The Scandinavians bring to us the sturdy hardiness and rugged upstanding characters developed about the fjords in the land of the midnight sun, men of the type of Steffanson, the Arctic explorer, who is doing so much for the Canada of the future. The Polish people bring from the land of Paderewski an inborn love of music. Czecho-Slovakia sends us men ond women thrilled with the inspiration derived from Huss and other national patriots. The Hungarian is still influenced by their great hero Kossuth.

These people bring a new strain into our Canadian life. They have a real love for the land; they love the smell of the rich soil; they love the beauty of the plowed field; they enjoy the toil in the fields. They bring to Canada things we lack. We have invited them to come; we need their contribution to the upbuilding of our Dominion. Let us, therefore, welcome them, strive mightily to understand them, encourage and assist them, have patience with them, because time will work wonders, and above all, let us not look down upon them because their ways are not altogether our ways. We owe them something, and it will be repaid in full measure if we exercise a reasonable patience and understanding, Canadian neighborliness and Christian charity.

Fate is what a man calls it when he gets into trouble for doing what he shouldn't do.

A selfish individual who lives for himself alone is usually the only person in the world to mourn his demise.

"I Had Bilious Attacks and Stomach Weakness"



Mrs. Wm. Robinson, Yonker, Sask., writes:

"I suffered from stomach and liver trouble, and used to have bilious attacks so bad that I could do nothing for weeks at a time. My stomach would be so weak that not even a drink of water would stay on it. Canada's Exports

Great Increase Shown In All Products During Year

Canada's automobile exports in 1910 were but $400,000, and in 1920 they were $9,000,000. Pulp and paper exports jumped from 351,000 tons in 1913 to 9,000,00 tons in 1922; the rubber exports increased from $225,000 in 1910 to $4,000,000 in 1920; textiles increased from $62,648 in 1910 to $927,616 in 1920. Chemical exports increased in value in the same period to $9,250,000. Manufacturing exports have rapidly climbed until they represent 54 per cent. of the export trade of Canada in the last year.

Excellent Source of Revenue

Charitable Organizations Can Make Money Collecting Old Newspapers

Old newspapers from which the ink has been removed by processes lately discovered make a good grade of book paper. In recent months manufacturers have paid as much as thirty dollars a ton for them, and they say that the supply is inadequate. Charities that organize to collect old newspapers find they have an excellent source of revenue. Incidentally they help the cause of forestry. It is said that six tons of waste paper saves an acre of forest.

Mothers' Best Friend In Rearing Children

Pain and sudden sickness are apt to come upon us at any time and safety lies in having always handy on the shelf a reliable pain relief like good old "Nerviline." For nearly half a century Nerviline has been a family standby, and most mothers have come to rely upon it in case of colds, sore throat, tight chest, sprains, cramps, nausea and sudden attacks of sickness at the stomach. For internal or external use, Nerviline is worth its weight in gold in every home, and costs but 35 cents at any dealers.

Elevators In West

Elevator companies in Western Canada are constructing 200 or more country elevators this year at a cost of several millions, and at the head of the lakes $6,000,000 will be spent in new terminal elevators and in enlargement of old ones.

No Rest With Asthma. Asthma usually attacks at night, the one time when rest is needed most. Hence the loss of strength, the nervous debility, the loss of flesh and other evils which must be expected unless relief is secured. Fortunately relief is possible. Dr. J. D. Ship 1,165 Cattle

One of the largest single shipments of Canadian cattle that has ever left Montreal was carried by the steamer Irishman which sailed recently for Birkenhead. The shipment consisted of 1,165 head of store cattle, most of them from Ontario with weight of 1,100 pounds each.

Production of Chemicals

During the year 1922 the value of Canada's production of chemicals and allied products amounted to over $100,000,000 of which some $25,690,000 worth were exported. Labor statistics covering the same period show that employment in the chemical industries increased by 5 per cent., while the general tendency of chemical production has been toward increased production and stabilization.

Saskatchewan Honey

Estimated that Twelve Tons Were Produced Last Year

A substantial increase in the production of honey in Saskatchewan is anticipated this year, according to officials of the Department of Agriculture. At present there are nearly 100 beekeepers in Saskatchewan. Fourteen of them produced a total of 9,632 pounds of honey last year, an average yield of 688 pounds for each apiary. The remaining apiaries yielded an average of about 200 pounds each, and it is estimated the 1922 production of honey in Saskatchewan was approximately 12 tons.

In the past twelve years the mines of Canada have yielded an appraised wealth of two billion dollars. It is estimated that the value of securities connected with Canada's mining enterprises is $774,749,000, with more than fifty per cent. of the stock owned in Canada. Those who invested in the development of Canadian mines have been paid $210,000,000 in dividends in the last twelve years.

Canadian National Parks Offer Unsurpassed Attractions For Great Army Of Tourists

Each year evidences a greater appreciation of the Canadian National Parks both on the part of the Canadian people and visitors from other lands, and each passing season further extols the foresight of the men who have retained for all time these enchanting fastnesses of nature to be the playgrounds of a continent for all time.

Though the final figures are not available for the past year and the annual report uncompleted, it is authoritatively stated that the parks in the 1922 season welcomed as great a volume of visitors as they had ever known, at least equally the traffic of the year 1915, which had hitherto stood a record. In that year a total of 166,000 holidayers, of whom 75,000 were Canadians, visited the National Parks to revel in their wild beauties. In the year 1921 it is estimated that foreign visitors to the parks left the sum of nearly $20,000,000 in the country, or almost $2.25 per capita of Canada's population, and this amount must have been substantially augmented last year.

It is confidently anticipated that this season the traffic to the National Parks, especially those which lie in the western and mountain regions, will be invaded by a yet greater army of tourists. Every year the desire to spend freer, more unconvential holidays, the most striking antithesis of the ordinary day's routine, becomes more pronounced, and greater crowds seek to give expression to this urge. It is coming to be more and more appreciated, too, that no area so satisfied this craving, nowhere is the realm of nature so inviolate, as the Canadian National Parks, where the most rigorous precautions are taken that the beauties of nature shall be preserved unsullied, the trammels of nature be banished as far as possible and these wooded sanctuaries retain their immaculate charm.

The Rocky Mountains Park has for years been the Mecca of the continent's holiday-makers bent on such a vacation, and it easily leads all other resorts as a prime favorite for disporting in nature's haunts where civilization is left not too far behind. In more than one vote taken among tourist parties who had in addition travelled through many or all of the United States National Parks, it was elected as the most attractive and entertaining. In 1915, of the 166,000 tourists at the various Canadian parks, 71,000 were visitors at Banff, the gateway to this unrivalled playground.

For the motor traveller who, holiday bent, seeks to penetrate the heart of nature and has learnt to love the rugged, untarnished beauty of the Canadian Rockies, 1923 is, in one respect, a signal year. The last day of June will see the official opening of the Banff-Windermere Road, the last completed section of the Canadian sector of the Grand Circle Tour which stretches up into Alberta for 6,000 miles from California and takes in ten National Parks. For years work has progressed strenuously upon it, tearing through pine forests and blasting through mountain strongholds, until now the way lies open to what is undoubtedly the most picturesque motor trip on the continent.

Motorists who pass that way this summer will be real pioneers. The new road is built through the heart of some of the finest scenery in the Rockies, seventy-three miles of it being through virgin mountain and forest country where many of the peaks as yet bear no name. It crosses two mountain passes, the main range of the Rocky Mountains being traversed via the Vermilion pass at an altitude of 5,000 feet and later the Brisco range through the Sinclair pass at an elevation of 4,950 feet. The grades, however, are easy, the average being 3 per cent. and the maximum 9 per cent., which is maintained only for about 400 feet.

Holidaying in this section holds unsurpassed attractions for the motoring camper. Until the International Boundary is reached again he must be prepared to leave the things of civilization definitely behind and manage with the little camps which have been situated periodically along the trail in such a way that the primitive aspect is in no way violated. One might write exhaustively of the many wonders of this trip, the virgin forests and towering mountains, the Vermilion paint pots, the radium hot springs, the rugged beauty of Lake Windermere, and the varied attractions of many detours. Suffice it to say that the month of June opens up to motorists a new western wonderland and playground which, it may safely be said, is unequalled in the continent and probably in the entire world.

Time Englishman Had Chance

Stanley Baldwin First One Since Salisbury to Become Premier

"For He's an Englishman" is the song that should greet the incoming Premier of Great Britain.

England has served a long sentence of exclusion from the Premiership of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ulster.

Salisbury was the last Englishman to serve in the Premiership unless H. H. Asquith, the representative of a Scottish constituency, be recognized as an Englishman; Rosebery, Campbell-Bannerman, the Scots; Lloyd George, the Welshman, and Bonar Law, the Scot-Irish New Brunswicker. It is time an Englishman had a chance, Stanley Baldwin represents an English constituency and many of the highest and noblest qualities of English character.—Toronto Telegram.

HUSBAND DIDN'T DARE LEAVE HER ALONE HEART WAS SO BAD

have no equal as a remedy to strengthen the heart, invigorate the nerves and build up the run-down system.

Mrs. C. Vanhorn, Eckville, Alta., writes:—"About a year ago I had heart trouble. My husband didn't dare leave me alone, and often had to stay up at night with me. I would just feel kind of faint and my heart would seem to stop beating. I would just faint away, and it would sometimes be an hour before they could bring me back to life. Someone told me about Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills. I got three boxes; I took them and felt much better, so continued all Winter, and now I never feel any such faintness. I surely do appreciate the good they have done for me."

Leads In Child Welfare

In a recent address before the New York Canadian Club, Dr. James W. Robertson, of Ottawa, Chairman of the Executive of the Canadian Red Cross Society and Chief Commissioner of the Boy Scouts Association of Canada, declared that in the past four years Canada had made more real progress than any other nation along the lines of child welfare. Six Canadian universities are giving courses to women to fit them for work in saving the lives of babies, he said.

Poultry Marketing Co-operation

Elements That Are Necessary If Success Is to Be Achieved

While the title of a bulletin just issued by the Dominion Livestock Branch, "Co-operation in Marketing Poultry Products," would indicate that its contents were of interest to those engaged with poultry business, nevertheless the majority of the principles laid down are applicable to any form of agricultural co-operation. The writer, Mr. A. Benson, District Poultry Promoter for Ontario, hits a vital point when he says that while there is evidently an earnest desire on the part of producers to improve existing marketing conditions, there appears to be a lack of uniformity of thought and ideas as to methods of procedure, and the limits of the field in which co-operating producers can hope to achieve the greatest and most permanent success. It is evidently with a view to help in remedying this condition of affairs that the bulletin has been written and published. Not alone are the fundamental essentials to success and the principle of co-operation laid down, but details are given relative to organization, to the loyalty and confidence that must prevail, to the methods of management that must be adopted and maintained if success is to be achieved, to warehouse methods, to marketing, to grading and standardizing of eggs, to pooling, to financing, to the survey that should be taken of conditions and territory to be controlled prior to organization, to the cast-iron contract that should be made between members and to the attitude of producers; the whole concluding with the rules of a suggested market agreement for local units.

Increased Consumption Of Milk

California Uses Milk Extensively In Public Schools

In the movement for the greater consumption of milk and its products, which is going on in many states of the Union, California stands at the head. There is scarcely a city of any size in California that has not some sort of milk service in the public schools. In San Francisco, 10,500 half-pint bottles are purchased by the children at the school lunches every day. In Berkeley every school has a similar service. Nutrition classes are also common in the principal cities. Every child in the nutrition classes is required to drink a quart of milk a day. Doctors, dentists and opticians give their services free of charge. In 1922 the people of California consumed 13,500,000 gallons more milk than in any previous year, the per capita consumption increasing from 17½ gallons in 1921 to 22 gallons in 1922. The consumption of butter increased from 22 lbs. to 22½ lbs. per capita in the same period.

Canada's Railway Progress An Outstanding Feature In Development Of Dominion

One of the outstanding features in Canada's development and one which has much to do with the progress of other lines of industry is that of railways. The growth of railways has been almost phenomenal, especially during certain periods, and while, due to known causes, eras of depression have been encountered, on the whole the operation of Canada's railway lines has been successful.

The expansion of settlement, the rapid progress of agriculture, the development of mineral and forest industries, says the Natural Intelligence Service of the Department of the Interior, have called for the construction of many miles of railway, both of trunk and branch lines, and announcement is made by both the Canadian National, Canadian Pacific and the Ontario systems that several additional branch lines and extensions are under construction or in contemplation for the present season.

Commencing with 1871, the first census period following Confederation, when Canada had but 2,695 miles of railway, with an invested capital of $257,035,188, Canadian railways made steady progress until 1911. At that time 25,400 miles were in operation, with a capital investment of $1,528,689,201. In the five-year period between 1911 and 1916, however, railway expansion was almost phenomenal, 1916 showing 37,434 miles in operation, an increase of 12,034 miles in the five years, and capital of $1,893,125,774. This heavy programme of railway construction was deemed necessary to meet the needs of the country, and so it has developed. Slower progress is reported since 1916 as during the war period practically no building took place. The year 1921, however, shows railway mileage in Canada as 39,841, with capital investment of $2,164,687,636. The total earnings of the railways in 1916 were $261,888,654, and expenses $180,542,259, while for 1921 the earnings were $458,008,891, and expenses $422,581,205.

Nothing probably could give a better indication of Canada's industrial growth than railway traffic both passenger and freight. In 1901 steam railways carried 18,385,722 passengers, in 1911 they carried 37,097,718 passengers, while in 1920 the number carried was 51,318,422. Freight traffic shows even a greater growth, 36,999,371 tons being moved in 1901, 78,884,282 tons in 1911, and 127,429,154 tons in 1920.

The part that the development of natural resources is taking in providing freight traffic to the railways is evident in the fact that in 1901 the tonnage of forest products was 5,301,519, in 1911 it was 13,238,347, and in 1920, 22,278,880 tons were handled. Grain provided 4,694,853 tons of freight in 1901, 7,545,516 tons in 1911, and 14,295,458 tons in 1920. Products of mines in 1911 supplied the railways with 28,652,236 tons of freight and in 1920 with 45,075,968 tons. Manufactures, into which natural resources enter almost universally provided 13,573,347 tons of freight in 1911 and 32,925,394 tons in 1920, among the latter being wood pulp and paper with 3,447,614 tons.

To handle this traffic the railways used 2,433 locomotives in 1901 and 6,030 in 1920; 1,159 first-class passenger cars in 1901, and 4,212 in 1920; 45,904 box and cattle cars in 1901, and 167,128 in 1920; 23,123 coal and flat cars in 1901 and 45,188 in 1920.

The expansion of agriculture, the development of forest, mineral and fisheries resources, with their concomitent manufacturing activity portend for the Canadian railways a period of increasing freight traffic and the resultant expansion necessary to keep pace with the demands for the moving of this rapidly growing tonnage.

Canada's Rivals In Dairying

New Zealand and Australia Capture Large Share of Trade

The Dominion Dairy Commissioner, Mr. J. A. Ruddick, who with Mr. W. A. Wilson of Regina, Saskatchewan, recently returned from a visit to New Zealand and Australia, states that New Zealand has made great progress in the dairy industry in recent years. Many new factories have been built and many have been reconstructed and modernized. Australia too has made great advances, large factories in New Zealand, being the rule, some of the creameries making as much as 800 to 1,000 boxes of butter a day. In New Zealand it is a small cheese factory that does not make 400 or 500 tons in a year. Mr. Ruddick is of opinion that Canada will meet much keener competition in the future in the matter of quality and quantity of dairy products from these countries than she has in the past. Relating to these facts it is interesting to note that the amount of butter graded in New Zealand in the month of December, 1922, was 9,758 tons, compared with 6,128 tons in the corresponding month of the previous year. The total for the last five months of 1922 was 35,663 tons against 24,944 tons in the same period of 1921.

The price of admission is considered cheap because it saves the cost of sending designers to Paris.—New York Correspondent.
