Convention Very Largely Attended

Large Quota of Delegates and Many Visitors — Important Resolutions Passed—Elect C. O. Rodgers. Vice-President.

Creston was this week host to the 31st annual convention of the Associated Boards of Trade, which was in session in the Masonic Hall on Tuesday and Wednesday, the conference attracting a particularly fine attendance of official delegates and a large number of visiting attendants at the sessions, Nelson alone sending along a delegation of 30.

The gathering was presided over by president Noble Binns of Trail, and resolutions covering a wide range of subjects were discussed and given approval. Creston figured to advantage in two of these. One asking the lands department to set aside 40 acres for an airport on Kootenay Flats. The other asked that the customs office at Rykerts be maintained permanently at its present location and that no sub-office be opened at a suggested location two miles beyond Porthill.

Tuesday night the spacious dining room at the Creston Hotel was not large enough to accomadate the many banquet guests. About 65 were seated, bnt it is estimated that another two dozen were unable to secure a place at the table. All of these practically were from Creston. President Mallandaine of Creston board of trade presided in his usual happy fashion and some notable responses were made to the toasts submitted.

In the election of officers C. O. Rodgers was unanimously re-elected vice-president, and at tne close of Wednesday's session the visitors were given an auto ride through the district.

Silver Wires For Violin Bows

German States New Material Gives More Brilliant Tone

Violin bows, which have been strung with horsehair ever since the Middle Ages at least, may soon have to yield place to a new form of an old material. A German violinist has been experimenting with bows strung with silver wires of hair-like fineness, slightly roughened on their surfaces to set the violin strings vibrating. It is stated that a sensitiveness and brilliance of tone are achieved that excel the effects usually obtained with the old horsehair.—Popular Science.

JESUS IN GETHSEMANE

Golden Text: "Father if Thou be willing, remove this cup from me; nevertheless not My will, but Thine, be done."—Luke 22.42.

Lesson: Luke 22.24-71.

Devotional Reading: Psalm 130.

Explanations and Comments

The Agony In the Garden, verses 39-44.—Jesus went, as His custom was, unto the Mount of Olives, for He ofttimes resorted thither with His disciples, John tells us (18.2). His disciples followed Him. When He reached the customary place of prayer, the Garden of Gethsemane. He turned to them and said, "Pray that ye enter not into temptation"—that ye be not tempted to forsake Me. When the moment of arrest came, prayer had made the Master calm and strong, and from lack of prayer His eleven disciples were frantic and cowardly.

And Jesus went a stone's throw away from His waiting disciples.

"It was but a stone's throw, and yet an infinite gulf lay between Him and them. And so it is always in human life. We must needs go to the most sacred places of our life alone. We can bear no witnesses when the agony of life gathers around us. We must needs go beyond the kind gaze of friends, beyond their pity and their help, when the great transactions of the soul are to be achieved. In those few steps our Lord passed from the loud life of the world into the silent places of the infinite and the eternal."—W. J. Dawson.

And He kneeled down and prayed, saying, "Father if Thou be willing, remove this cup from Me." The "cup" expresses the appointed portion: in Psalm 75.8 it the portion of judgment; in Psalm 23.5, of mercy or blessing; here, of suffering and bearing the sins of the world on the cross.

"Nevertheless, not My will, but Thine be done," Jesus prayed. "As Christ was God and man, there were in Him two wills, a human will and a divine will, and the former did not always conform itself to the latter without an inner struggle; compare John 5.30; 6.38"

"So let me follow after Thee,
It may be to Gethsemane,
To suffer, pray, and conquer still,
Because I do my Father's will."

Friends Who Failed, verses 45, 46.—And when He rose up from His prayer, He came unto the disciples and found them sleeping from sorrow, Matthew and Mark speak of two other prayers, each following a turning to the disciples for sympathy. Jesus had forewarned His disciples of the approaching tragedy. As he partook with them the Last Supper He told them explicitly that one of them would betray Him, that Peter would deny Him, that all would forsake Him. On entering the Garden He had asked the privileged three, Peter, James, and John, to keep guard while He went farther on and prayed. How sorely He needed the comfort of their sympathetic presence! Yet they failed Him just when He needed them the most. On returning He found them sleeping for sorrow. A strange complexion of words, yet no one will have difficulty in understanding them who has ever experienced the stupefaction which kind nature sends to the senses when he has borne the utmost that can be borne.

"Why sleep ye?" Jesus said to His disciples; "rise and pray that ye enter not into temptation."

In making the announcement G. C. Drury, secretary-treasurer of Canadian Airways, said the assets and liabilities of Commercial Airways were not being taken over, but that by arrangement with the government its air mail contract had been assured by the Canadian Airways, which had purchased five of the company's smaller aeroplanes.

Capt. R. W. (Wop) May, outstanding western pilot, will now fly for Canadian Airways, it is announced.

Better Fire Protection Needed

More Organized System For Rural Districts Is Stressed

A more organized system of fire protection in rural districts was urged recently by David J. Price, of Washington, D.C., chief engineer of the Bureau of Chemistry and Soils, U.S. Department of Agriculture, addressing the annual convention of the National Fire Protection Association in Toronto.

Fire loss on farms in the United States last year, was the greatest ever experienced, he declared. From data available, it appeared that farm fire losses increased 25 per cent. during the 1930 season drought, he said. The loss for the year was estimated to be in excess of $125,000,000.

Spontaneous heating and ignition of agricultural products constituted, he said, one of the prominent causes of farm fire loss.

Norway Would Stop Wilkins' Sub Journey

Government Considers Expedition Unnecessary Risk Of Human Life

The Norwegian Government may take active measures to prevent Captain Sir Hubert Wilkins from making his projected journey to the north pole in a submarine, it was stated in an Exchange Telegraph despatch from Oslo.

The message quoted the Oslo newspaper "Abeiderbladet" as saying the government considers the expedition as an "unnecessary risk of human life." If the Wilkins expedition calls at Norway en route to the pole, the despatch said, the government plans to enforce the regulations enabling it to exercise definite control over all Arctic expeditions starting from that country.

Jungle Broadcast

Roar Of Wild Animals In Africa Heard By Radio In England

A lion roaring in the jungle in British East Africa was heard by British wireless listeners with short-wave receivers recently, when a broadcast from a microphone in the wilds of Kenya was relayed from Nairobi on a wavelength of 49.5 metres.

The microphone was installed at a jungle drinking pool, and although the lion's performance did not come up to expectations—he must have been stricken with microphone shyness—the calls of wild birds and the grunting of animals formed a weird chorus. It was fascinating to realize that the sounds came actually from the real jungle and not from an enclosed zoo.

In his surprise Nick stared at her so intently that she flushed, and sat a little straighter in her chair.

"That's mighty thoughtful of you," he said at last, "but I'd hardly like to accept so much from mere acquaintances."

"Oh, that needn't trouble you! They're only too glad to take along an attractive man. It won't cost you a penny, Nick. You don't mind my saying that, do you?—but I know such things have to be considered. The Myers are tremendously wealthy, and they are constantly inviting people on trips like this. They prefer it to hotel life. I think it would be almost wicked to let slip the chance. You're not likely to run into such a thing again."

It flashed through Nick's mind that this was a very kind and tactful thing for Angela Halliday to do. She realized that he couldn't afford much sight-seeing, and that such a trip would mean a great deal to him. In a rush of impulsive gratitude he said: "I don't know how to thank you. Can you give me twenty-four hours to think it over?"

Angela smiled.

"That's just what I can't do. You see, if you don't go there's someone at the Titchfield they mean to ask. He's leaving at once, and they'd have to speak to him tomorrow, after I bring back your verdict. However, I'll give you the evening to mull it over; but I warn you you'll miss the time of your life if you refuse!"

"I can believe that. It's a marvellous opportunity. And you crossed the island just to give it to me?"

He was honestly touched. Angela saw, and took advantage of the fact.

"I'd do more than that for a good friend like you, Nick," she said, with obvious sincerity.

"Well——" He arose slowly, and pulled back her chair. "I'll let you know in the morning. Would you like to walk a bit before dark—or are you tired?"

"Let's walk by all means. Can't we get somewhere by ourselves?"

It was dark when they returned, and strains of music were wafted from the ballroom. They stood on the veranda, looking in at the gaily lighted scene. Not many were dancing, and the floor, smooth as a mirror, was too much for Angela.

"Let's dance. You do dance, don't you, Nick?"

"Try me and see. We dance, you know, even in Bakersville. Not that I ever went to dancing school. My Uncle would have vetoed that; but I'd have danced, Angela, had I been born on a desert island. It's the music that was born in me, I suppose. That's a waltz! Have you forgotten how to waltz in these jazzy days?"

"Try me and see," echoed Angela, with a soft laugh.

Between strolls through sweet-scented shrubbery, they danced, till a tired orchestra put up its instruments for the night.

"Have you decided?" asked Angela, as they stood together drinking in cooling breaths of the soft, night air.

Nick looked at Angela, and from Angela to a vista of what seemed at that moment an enchanted sea. It would be wonderful indeed to set sail upon it—to go to "the ends of the earth" as he had meant to go five years before. And John Maxwell had told him to take his time. As for Gay, she wouldn't have him miss it for a kingdom. If there were time to consult her—but there!—there wasn't. He must decide himself. And he'd be a blooming idiot to let such a chance slip by. It would mean only a month. Angela had said they would arrange to drop him somewhere. To be sure, "somewhere" was rather indefinite, but there were ports no farther from New York than Kingston, and no doubt it could be arranged.

Nick stirred restlessly. The old love of adventure was back, relentlessly urging. His eyes met Angela's, blue and wistful in the starlight.

"I'd love you to go, Nick."

He smiled. What a nice little thing she was! Gay was all wrong about her. She'd see it, too, when he told her how Angela had crossed the island just to give him this wonderful opportunity. Why, she was kind! Perhaps she was lonely—unhappy—and he seemed like an old friend. He——

"Well?" Angela insisted.

"I'll go," said Nick.

He squared his shoulders, as if in relief at the decision.

Angela said: "That's splendid! We'll see that you don't regret it. I must say good-night now, Nick. I'm taking the early train and I'm rather tired. You've given me a beautiful evening. Your dancing was—something to dream about."

"Not a nightmare, I hope?"

She smiled as they moved toward the door.

"Not a nightmare. You won't be up when I leave, so I'll say good-bye. I'll write you further about our plans. Good-night."

He had taken her hand, that soft, white hand that Gay had once remembered with regretful pain.

"Good-night; but it's not good-bye. I'll have breakfast with you, of course, and see you off. I do most of my sight-seeing in the mornings."

He watched her go up the stairs, where, turning as she reached the top, she waved farewell. Nick saluted, and went out again on the cool veranda, seating himself in a secluded place, the better to drink in the beauty of the tropic night.

Now that Angela was gone he felt subtly dazed at this sudden change of plan. It was as if a fairy god-mother had appeared before him, and as suddenly vanished. He wondered, as the thought of home came back again, if his decision had been wise. There was yet time. . . . .

"What is the matter with me?" he mused. "I change about with every wind like an infernal weathercock. While Angela was talking I felt that it would be absurd to refuse the invitation; yet now, when I remember how long I've been away, and that doing this will mean giving up our weeks at camp next fall, it doesn't seem fair to Gay. She needs a change as well as I; and I've had a bully time as it is. Why can't I be satisfied with what I've got out of it now?"

He sat quite still, looking off at the quiet water—then up at the stars.

Oh, it would be glorious to cruise in these beautiful blue waters!" he thought. "I'd see things I never dreamed of seeing. Still—the time will seem horribly long to Gay, back there in Bakersville doing the same old stunts. I wonder if it isn't my duty to go home? What was it my mother said about the straight and narrow way that I must tread if I were to be happy? Perhaps my real happiness does lie in the road home. It will be bully to see Gay again—to tell her everything. And the kids. . . . . Gee! I bet they'll be glad to see their dad! I wish I knew what to do. What's the matter with me anyhow?"

He arose impatiently, pacing up and down in the starlight. A sleepy bell-boy looked out, and Nick faced suddenly about.

"I must go up to bed. I'm behaving like a vacillating woman. Perhaps the morning light will clear my brain."

It did. He knew, when he awoke, that he was going home. He was sorry to disappoint Angela, but he would let her know how greatly he appreciated her kindness; and after all, it could'nt make any real difference to her whether he went or not. He whistled as he dressed—descended hurriedly fearing he was late; but as he passed the desk on the way to his early breakfast, the clerk stopped him.

A note for you, Mr. Hastings, Mrs. Halliday left it."

"She's not gone?" asked Nick, astonished. "She was taking the early train."

"Guess you made a mistake, sir. She was booked all the time to go by automobile. Started at six-thirty."

"I—I must have misunderstood her," said Nick dazedly.

He walked out on the piazza to read his note:

Dear Nick: Hope you didn't rise early on my account. I've decided to go by auto, and thought best not to disturb you by my change of plans. So glad you decided sensibly about the trip; and do arrange to settle your business within a week. I'm so happy to think you're joining us. It makes lots and lots of difference to me, Nick, having a friend like you along. Yours, Angela.

"Well!" said Nick. He looked off at the sparkling water, and heard, dimly, the ripple of waves upon the sand. "Well, that settles it, I suppose. I could hardly back out by letter, even if there were time, and I understood her to say the other possible guest was leaving at once. That's why she hurried back. Probably a letter would be too late. Guess I'll call it Fate. Funny, too—it was after eleven when she went up. Queer time to change her plans—still—that's not my affair; and it was corking of her to remember me and arrange this thing. I guess she was right. It's the wise thing to do now I'm here. I'll make up to Gay somehow when I get home—and it's only a month—the chance of a lifetime. . . . ."

Already his spirits were rising. He went in to breakfast.

Will Cultivate Estates

Republican Government Of Spain Will Cultivate Land Formerly Used By Nobility

Spain's Republican Government has issued two decrees to enforce cultivation of land on the large estates formerly held by the nobility.

They create local committees empowered to order the owners of untilled land to cultivate their property under instructions by the committees, as to the nature of the crops to be planted and the wages to be paid farm workers.

Primary consideration in this action, government spokesmen have said, is to relieve unemployment and to increase national production.

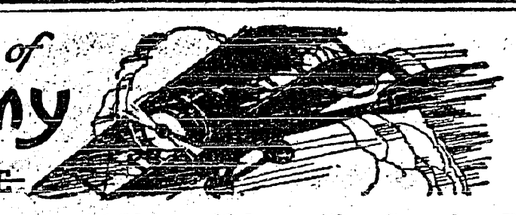
The ADVENTURES of CAPTAIN JIMMY and his Dog SCOTTIE



WHAT CAME BEFORE: After many adventures flying over the war zone in China, Captain Jimmy and Scottie get lost in the dark and land in enemy territory. A freight train leaves supplies at a siding, and they are cautiously approaching, when interrupted.

Quietly we approached the freight train. The food and gasoline which we needed so badly would soon be ours. Then, right out of the ground leaped a dark form. A heavy blow landed on my head, and I knew no more.

Gradually I became conscious. Jolt—jolt—jolt! I tried to put my hands to my head but they were securely bound. Someone had tied me on the back of a burro, and just ahead the Colonel and Fu Hsu were securely bound on two more. Numberless other donkeys loaded with bundles and boxes moved in single file along a narrow rocky path, and leading each, strode a wicked looking ruffian, armed to the teeth. Chinese bandits had captured us.

Jolt—jolt—jolt! Through the hills we went, while a great blazing sun scorched us with stifling heat. The bandits had plenty of water, but for us, never a drop. Between drinks they would grin at us, and pat their stomachs, seeming to enjoy our misery. Of Scottie I knew nothing, and became very anxious as to his fate.

Everything must end sometime. Toward nightfall we came in sight of a rift in the mountains, where the sheer cliffs rose for hundreds of feet into the air. Here indeed, was an ideal spot for a bandit camp. A few men could hold the defile against an army. Below stretched a beautiful valley, green and fresh as a mountain paradise.

The burros, scenting the sweet grass, rushed down toward the bandit camp in a regular stampede. As we approached, a miserable looking mob of men, women and children, swarmed out of the tents.

They were a hard-bitten crowd, every one of them. They jeered at us, and the children pelted us with soft mud. But finally my turn came. Suddenly I dug my toes into that burro and charged the mob. He bowled several over, and in a moment the camp was in an uproar. One fat fellow stood in my way, but that donkey just butted him in the belt, and he landed kerplunk on the side of a tent. After that we galloped off into the night before anyone could saddle a horse.

Up the valley, I found a cliff with sharp edged rocks. Working close to it, I began to rub the ropes which bound my wrists, on the rough surface. Then lights began to twinkle here and there in the valley, as the bandits set out to hunt for me with torches. Five minutes, ten, fifteen, I rubbed those tough ropes, while the lights came nearer, then just as I had given up hope—they snapped and I was free!

My arms were so numb that I was almost as helpless as a baby. Up and down the valley bobbed the torches—and each torch was carried by a man-hunter. I edged close into the cliff, while the feeling gradually came back into my hands.

Fortunately for me, no one came near my hiding place. Whenever a bandit's torch went out, he would make a dash for camp, so as not to be left alone in the darkness. Probably he was afraid of a dragon jumping on his back, and flying away with him to its den. Anyhow, the torches went out one by one, and the search ended for the time. Soon the camp quieted down. Sentries paced to and fro, but as the night wore on, even these huddled close to the dying camp fires, and dozed in the fitful light.

Just the ideal time for a raid! No one would ever expect a prisoner to suddenly attack a camp full of armed men. Cautiously I set out toward the tents.

Russia's Armed Youth

Soviets Molding Boys Into Form Approved By Communists

In Soviet Russia every youth is being taught to bear arms. At the same time he is being molded by effort of instruction and discipline into the form approved by fanatic communism. Every source of information of other ideas or ideals is being shut off from the mind of Russian youth. The result must be the preparation of an army of narrow fanatics, unquestioning, uninformed, hostile to all the outside world.

In Fascist Italy somewhat the same process is going on. If Fascist youth is not shut off as completely as the youth of Russia from outside realities, it is being intensively trained in Fascist ideas under cover of a censorship which discourages and suppresses criticism and inquiry. At the same time it is being armed and disciplined as a military body.

Train Crew Still Faithful

Cares For Grave Of Boy Who Was Conductor's Friend

Even residents of Elrod, South Dakota, have forgotten the name of the boy who is buried beside the Northwestern Railroad tracks near there, but periodically a passenger train stops and the crew cares for the grave. For several years the boy stood by the tracks each day, watched the train pass and waved to William P. Chambers, the conductor. The boy died. Chambers made a pilgrimage weekly to the grave, keeping it in condition and planting flowers. The boy's parents moved away, but Chambers continued his visits. The conductor's last request before he died recently was that the grave be not neglected. Martin Redmond, who succeeded Chambers as conductor, stopped the train at the grave and placed a wreath on the mound.

Radio For Lifeboats

A small and complete radio power plant has been perfected for use in lifeboats. Designed to be part of regular lifeboat equipment and always ready for use, the small self-contained radio station generates 400 watts, which is sufficient power to send short-wave distress signals 1,000 miles. It will operate five hours on a gallon of gasoline.

Most beautiful when the strength is one of humility instead of pride, and the trust no more in the resolution we have taken, but in the hand we hold.—John Ruskin.

Let me truly feel, that in myself, I am nothing, and at once through every inlet of my soul God comes in and is everything to me. And as soon as I feel this, the almightiness of God pours through my spirit like a stream, and I can do all things through Him that strengthens me.—William Mountford.

When BABIES are Upset

BABY ills and ailments seem twice as serious at night. A sudden cry may mean colic. Or a sudden attack of diarrhea. How would you meet this emergency—tonight? Have you a bottle of Castoria ready?

For the protection of your wee one—for your own peace of mind—keep this old, reliable preparation always on hand. But don't keep it just for emergencies; let it be an everyday aid. The telephone makes him "feel at home"

Jack had the blues. He didn't believe he could ever "feel at home" in that town. The people were nice; they were friendly—but, somehow, they couldn't take the place of the folks at home.

He thought he'd call up his people by long-distance telephoue and tell them he was coming home. Then he was happily inspired. If he could just talk to his folks, it would be almost the same as being at home.

So he placed the long-distance call, and soon after, his father's cheery "Hello!" over the wires proved a good-bye to the blues.

"Now I always feel at home with a telephone handy," says Jack.

The Census

Enumerators, for the taking of the census of Canada, will start their work on Monday, the first day of June.

It is safe to say that everyone, if they will give the matter thought, will agree that it is in the interest of their district that as perfect a census as possible be taken.

The citizens generally can each be of great assistance to the enumerators if they will give the required informotion without hesitancy.

Each enumerator, in taking his oath of office, has bound himself not to divulge to any other person any information received and recorded on the census schedules. No one will have access to these records who has not taken the oath.

In order to speed up the work in the rural districts, the statistical department has mailed out to each farm owner the agricultural form on which the record of the farm will be taken, with the requesf that the farm owner, or occupier, fill in the required particulars thereon in readiness for the enumerator when he makes his call.

If the farmers of the district will be good enough to do this it will tend for a better census and will materially assist the enumerator in his work.

The information secured by the census is solely for statistical purposes, and it is guaranteed by the statistical department at Ottawa that it will not be used in respect to taxation or any other such purpose.

All are urgently requested to do their part in making the census as complete as possible.

Legion Reunion Largely Attended

150 Autos Carrying Legion and Auxiliary Members Cross the Line—Three Bugle Bands in Parade—Present Colors.

As predicted, the second annual reunion of American Legion members from all points in Idaho and northeast Washington with the members of Creston Post of the Canadian Legion on Saturday, was more largely attended and the exercises more impressive than on the occasion of the first get together a year previous.

The day's proceedings followed along the lines laid down in the official programme. The visitors began to arrive about 4 o'clock, and shortly after 4.30 the march to the monument got under way from the tourist park which was visitors' headquarters.

The American Legion Posts at Bonners Ferry, Sandpoint and Coeur d'Alene were represented by bugle bands who were liberal with their music for the parade which proceeded along Canyon street to Third street and back to the monument where the three American posts and members of the Ladies' Auxiliary took up a position on Barton Avenue, and the quite large turnout of local veterans faced the monument lined up on the main street.

Col. Mallandaine, V.D., was in fine form in extending the official welcome, stressing the great value of these international get togethers, and in reply C.E. Hallead, Commander First District Council American Legion, Department of Idaho, spoke in equally felicitous terms. Then followed greetings from the Idaho Ladies Auxiliary delivered by Mrs. Meek, and from the National Auxiliary by Mrs. Laubaugh. O C. Wilson, department commander Idaho Legion, also spoke briefly.

The feature of the exercises at the monument, however, was the presentation of a Canadian flag to the Creston Legion from the Idaho Legion membership. Adjt. Lester Albert, who made the presentation address, spoke in eloquent terms of the revered hist ric traditions of the flag, the international goodwill that prompted its presentation. In a few well chosen words President W. V. Jackson of Creston Legion, accepted the colors.

After the exercises the parade reformed and marched back to the tourist park where the Canadians had a wonderfully fine informal visit and Dutch lunch, and at 8 p.m. an assembly estimated at about 250 couples gathered at the main building on the exhibition grounds which has been floored and with music from an eight-piece orchestra dancing was much enjoyed until 1 a.m. In addition to the huge gathering at the dance there seemed to be just as many spectators and merrymakers on the exhibition grounds.

Many of the visitors remained over until Sunday for the baseball contest between the Sandpoint-Bonners Ferry team and Creston, in which the former were winners by a score of 22-2.

Estimates of the number of visitors in town that day run all the way from 500 to 800, with the former figure decidedly low as customs officer Davis at Rykerts reports clearing 150 cars carrying Legion and Auxiliary membersalmost exclusively, and in addition to these there were many citizens of Bonners Ferry and Boundary connty in town for the celebration.

SUMMER HOMES
should have this FIRE PROTECTION

FAR from every hope of aid if a blaze takes hold, the inflammable construction of the average summer home makes it a source of danger and anxiety.

Minimize the fire hazard by lining inside walls and ceilings with inexpensive Gyproc Wallboard that does not burn.

This building material is made from gypsum rock into sheets 4 to 10 feet long, 4 feet wide and ⅜ of an inch thick. It nails and cuts as easily as lumber and with minimum waste.

Find out from your dealer how inexpensive Gyproc is; how easy to erect. Ask him for full information about its application or request a direction sheet from him.

Besides being fire-resistant, Gyproc has structural strength and insulation value. It is also draught and vermin-proof.

By panelling, you can save the expense of decoration, yet Gyproc is an excellent base for Alabastine, Gyptex or wallpaper.

The Census of Canada 1931

In the opening weeks of June every family and every home in Canada will be visited by a representative of the Government for the great national purpose of taking the seventh census of Canada.

The census is really a stocktaking. That is, it provides the information to enable the Government and others interested in the development of the country to formulate progressive policies for the happiness, comfort and prosperity of our people.

All the information supplied is strictly confidential, and the officers of the Government are subject to severe penalty if they disclose any of the information which is given to them by residents in the country, to any other than the Government.

Furthermore, it has nothing whatever to do with taxation, or military service, or compulsory school attendance, or immigration, or any such matter; and the Government itself cannot use it except for statistical totals.

The Government representative will put the same questions to all, and it is your duty as a resident of this country to answer promptly and truthfully. The Government is very anxious to avoid forcing anyone to answer these questions, but it is empowered to do so in the few cases where individuals may refuse.

W. A. Archibald came in by plane on Wednesday from a business trip that took him as far east as Truro, Nova Scotia. He started this journey from Vancouver about the middle of the month, and he is the first to make the trip across the Dominion flying in Canadian air the entire distance.

Auto bus service between Creston and Spokane was resumed on Friday. Going south the bus leaves Creston at 2 p m., and arrives from Spokane at 12.55. Bus service is also provided from Creston east to Calgary and Edmonton, Alberta. Bus headquarters is at the Perdue garage where tickets may be purchased

Geo. Nichel, of Creston school trustee board, motored to Nelson on Friday taking along with him Miss Minnie Huscroft, Arthur Couling, Herbert Dodd and Norman Nickel, who took part in the schools' track meet the following day. The only one to score was Miss Huscroft, w o was third in the girls' high jump.

Crestot's baseball talent took a bad beating on Sunday from the Bonners Ferry-Sandpoint team, the final court being 22-2 in favor of the visitors. Creston made no headway against the stellar pitching of Allen until the eighth innings, all the local counters coming in the last two frames, in one of which Earl C rigtie cracked out a home run.

Creston baseball team, strengthen' by Pitcher Allan and Messrs Campbe l and Rolph of the Bonners Ferry nin . played against Michel at a tourname: t at Cranbrook on Monday. Creston out- hit and showed equal fielding ability to the miners but just could not hit when hits meant runs, and Michel won by a 4-3 tally. Michel is expected to play here sometime in June.

The West's Besetting Sin

If there is one besetting sin indulged in by the people of Western Canada it is the sin of impatience. Living in a new country, a country which fifty years ago was given over to roving bands of Indians and immense herds of buffalo, our people today, expect and demand all those services and conveniences which it has taken centuries to build up and develop in older lands. It is a good fault to want the best there is in life for our children; it is a laudable ambition to work to secure such things; a proper spirit of discontent is all right, provided it is a proper spirit.

But in a vast extent of territory over which population is as yet but thinly spread, where the element of time has not yet permitted that degree of productive development which leads to the accumulation of certain reserves of wealth, for people to expect to enjoy all those things which it is possible for older countries of large populations and centuries of accumulations to provide for their people, is not reasonable. Whatever we have must be paid for, and if in the West we have not sufficient people nor sufficient wealth to pay for what we want, we must of necessity go without until such time as we are able to provide them. And to be discontented with our lot in the meantime is neither reasonable nor right.

For example. Good, all-weather highways to serve all parts of Western Canada is the desire of everybody; it is a laudable desire. Efforts to realize it are being put forth, but people are impatient, and demand still larger programmes of construction, notwithstanding the fact that it is taxing their resources to the utmost to pay interest charges on past construction and finance the carrying out of existing programmes of new construction.

There is nothing to be gained, and much to be lost by having the whole country criss-crossed with good roads, provided with telephone and electric power services, equipped with churches, schools and hospitals, and other services and conveniences now so generally regarded as necessities, if as a result of providing them the burden of taxation is so heavy as to drive the people off their land. All these things are worse than valueless if the people cannot maintain an existence to enjoy them.

To cite another example. Within the past two years there has been erected and equipped, in the Province of Saskatchewan, three technical schools, one at Regina, a second at Moose Jaw, less than 50 miles distant, and a third at Saskatoon, 150 miles away, each of which has cost half a million dollars, or a total of $1,500,000. This large expenditure for purely technical education has been made in a Province where over 70 per cent. of the population lives in rural communities, and where constant stress is laid on the importance of educating the youth to remain on the land.

The point is not that technical schools are not good and desirable things. No, the point is, are we not aiming to provide these good things before we can afford to do so, and, to the extent that we mortgage our future in this way, are we not crippling our own efforts to provide and maintain something else much more essential and which would benefit a much larger percentage of all the people who have to bear the taxation burden? Are we not trying to ape other and older lands in our impatience to have everything they have, which no doubt they can afford now after long decades of growth, but which we cannot afford because we are not numerous and wealthy enough to carry the resultant financial burden.

Few men and fewer women there are but would like to live in a better house than they now occupy,—if they could afford it, but knowing they cannot afford it they make the best of what they have. Many of them could have the finer house of their dreams if they were prepared to mortgage their whole future for it, and, while living in it, denied themselves other things and lived in a state of worry over the payments to be made.

The country is just an aggregation of individuals. They can have those things they are impatient to possess largely because other countries have them, but if in their impatience, and unwillingness to wait until they occupy much the same position as those others who can afford these things, they plunge ahead and get them, then they must not be impatient of the taxes they are called upon to pay, nor resentful if, being unable to pay, they lose all they had accumulated in years gone by.

It is in times like these that heed should be given to such matters. The present is hard for most people, and in no small degree because of the mistakes of past, made individually and collectively. This present depression will pass; good times will come again. We must willy-nilly be patient now. But will the old impatience come back with renewed force? Will we as a people still insist on running before we really are able to walk? If so, we will stumble again and fall once more.

Unusual Cafe In London

Automatic Machines Will Serve Meals In Record Time

Five-minute meals will be the order of the day when London's latest speed restaurant is opened in the Strand.

No dish will cost more than sixpence, and all foods will be served through automatic machines. Soiled plates will be slipped into letter-box-like slots, and there is an ingenious arrangement by which customers can wash and sterilize their own glasses.

"Soft" drinks, supplied through automatic machines, may be aerated if desired.

Customers simply slip their still drinks into a little machine, press a button, and the "still drink becomes "sparkling."

Because of regulations alcoholic beverages cannot be supplied through an automatic machine, and a barman has been employed to look after this department. Here, also, the highest price will be sixpence.

The restaurant is to be open day and night, week days and Sudnays.

SAVED IMPORTED DRESS

"After a little wearing, a lovely green voile—an important dress—lost color so completely that it was not wearable. A friend who had admired it asked me why I wasn't wearing it any more. On hearing the reason, she advised dyeing it and recommended Diamond Dyes. To make a long story short, it turned out beautifully. I have a lovely new dress that really cost just 15c—the price of one package of Diamond Dyes.

"I have since used Diamond Dyes for both tinting and dyeing. They do either equally well. I am not an expert dyer but I never have a failure with Diamond Dyes. They seem to be made so they always go on smoothly and evenly. They never spot, streak or run; and friends never know the things I dye with Diamond Dyes are redyed at all."

World's Smallest Dog

The world's smallest dog is said to have been acquired by the Maritzburg Museum. It is a dwarf brown and white pointer, and although it lived for three years it never grew longer than six and half inches from nose to tail tip. His head was one and a quarter inches long and an inch broad, and his hind legs were slighly less than two inches long.

Rubber Lining Protects Steel

Perfected Surface Resists Abrasion Under Most Servere Conditions

When chemists discovered a method for attaching a rubber lining to a metal surface, they presented a new and valuable material to the chemical engineer for use in the vats, tanks, pipes, pumps, and so forth, in which he handles corrosive liquids. The rubber lining effectively resists the action of acids which would soon eat through the steel. Now this process of attaching a rubber surface to metal has been perfected to a degree which encourages its use to resist abrasion in some of the most severe service conditions imaginable.—Popular Science.

An Odd Electrocution

Physicians at Fergus Falls, Minnesota, said that Wilbur Thompson, 30, highway workman, was killed by an electric shock, although his body did not come in contact with any electricity. Thompson was driving a grading machine beneath a heavily charged power wire on a highway near here. The current jumped from the wire to the metal button on Thompson's cap and electrocuted him.

Miller's Worm Powders are the medicine for children who are found suffering from the ravages of worms. They immediately alter the stomachic conditions under which the worms subsist and drive them from the system, and, at the same time, they are tonical in their effect upon the digestive organs, restoring them to healthful operation and ensuring immunity from further disorders from such a cause.

Canada Should Have Right To Amend Constitution

Conference With Provinces May Be Called To Discuss This Matter

A resolution declaring that Canada should have the right to amend her own constitution, moved in the House of Commons, brought from Hon. Hugh Guthrie, Minister of Justice, the statement that he favored a conference with the provinces on this important matter. Before calling a conference, however, he thought that a committee of parliament should be appointed to consider this question.

"I am by no mans hopeless of the situation," Mr. Guthrie declared to the House. "I am entirely hopeful, and I think it would be well for this parliament, if not at this session, at some subsequent session, to appoint a committee especially charged with the consideration of this question. We must prepare our case here before we call a conference, and it is a case that will require a great deal of preparation."

"After preparation had been made," added Mr. Guthrie, "I shall heartily favor the summoning of a provincial conference with the Dominion authorities to see what plan can be worked out so that in the future this parliament may be able to make the necessary amendments to our constitution."

Western Representatives:
HUNTER-MARTIN & CO., REGINA, SASK.

SAYS CUT IN WHEAT ACREAGE WILL NOT HELP

Toronto, Ont.—Not reduction of wheat acreage in Western Canada but the co-operation of every industry, financial institution, and the transportation systems of the Dominion was necessary, if the present Canadian business depression and wheat crisis were to be solved to any degree, said Hon. Frank Oliver, advisory officer of the Board of Dominion Railway Commissioners, addressing the Transportation Club here.

Failure of the crop this year, he said, would only increase depression, although it would benefit the Wheat Pool, the banks and the provincial governments which had guaranteed the pool advance. The prairies, he said, must continue to be wheat producers for the time being. Through succeeding years, he declared, Canada's wheat acreage must be reduced if it was proven conclusively that the world was suffering from chronic and not acute over-production.

"Our recent great attempt at mass action in marketing has proved a colossal failure," he contended. He was convinced, he said, "that there is a fight on, that it is a world struggle and that every legitimate business interest in Canada is concerned in aiding the western farmer to hold his place and Canada's place in the wheat markets of the world so far as that is economically possible."

Gold Rush Continues

Many Claims Already Staked In Fife Lake District

Fife Lake, Sask.—The "rush" to the Poplar Creek bed, six miles southeast of here, and on towards Coronach, continues and many claims have been staked.

According to information received, M. M. Bennett, a farmer opposite the M. Woelflin farm, two years ago sent samples of the dirt to Los Angeles to be assayed, and received a reply that there were traces of gold. E. Larson, one of the men interested in the purchase of the Woelflin farm, is reported to have sent samples recently to Los Angeles, and to have been informed that the dirt he sent contained gold running from $2 to $20 a ton.

Fife Lake is almost directly south of Moose Jaw, about 90 miles, located in range two, about ten miles from the international border line.

Men familiar with the district, who have explored it, claim there are heavy deposits of iron pyrites in the formations in the hills and along the beds of the Poplar, Horse and branches of Frenchmen's creeks.

So far no gold is known to have been taken from the places where claims have been staked during the past two days.

System Of Credits Will Be Discussed

Premier Bennett Suggests Matter Be Referred To Banking Committee

Ottawa, Ont.—The question of setting up a system of intermediate credits for agriculture will be considered and discussed, in the light of knowledge possessed by the government respecting the $5,000,000 revolving credit corporation, before the banking committee of the House of Commons.

Unanimous decision favoring this action followed the introduction of a proposal in the House by W. T. Lucas (U.F.A., Camrose), for "consideration" of some system of intermediate credits; and a statement by Rt. Hon. R. B. Bennett, Prime Minister, suggesting that the whole matter be referred to the banking and commerce committee. Mr. Lucas had expressed his belief that the $5,000,000 corporation would not take care of the situation among western farmers.

If the government could not set up a system of intermediate credits for agriculture, it might co-operate with the present $5,000,000 plan and subscribe dollar for dollar with the other subscriptions.

"If the Hon. Member," the Prime Minister stated, "Will move that resolution be referred to the committee on banking and commerce, I think that would serve a very useful purpose; and discussion could take place in the light of knowledge which we have as to the proposed operations of the credit organization to which I have referred the other day. The experience in the United States in connection with a similar organization was that practically only ten per cent. of the amount subscribed was used.

Hamilton Chinaman Receives Heavy Sentence When Found Guilty

Hamilton, Ont.—After hearing the crown outline its case before Judge Thomson in county criminal court here, Lee Wong, local Chinese, changed his plea from not guilty to guilty on a charge of transporting opium. He was sentenced to five years in Portsmouth penitentiary, and was fined $1,000.

E. J. Murphy, K.C., for the crown, stated that a man named Lee Hee had been found in Regina with five large tins of opium which he confessed to securing from Lee Wong. Detective-Sergeant Zaneth, of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police, had found that shipments were being made by Wong to the Sun Sun Company, of Regina, which was Hee's concern.

British House Refuses To Legalize Lotteries

Application To Introduce Bill Defeated By Large Majority

London, England.—House of Commons came down hard on advocates of legalization of lotteries in support of hospitals, defeating by 181 to 58 an application by a Conservative member for leave to introduce a bill authorizing the operation of such lotteries.

There has been considerable agitation in favor of loosening up the laws in this respect in view of the great sums which have gone out of the country into the Irish Hospital Sweepstakes on horse races, while charitable institutions at home need money.

Total For Three Months Was 2,148,494 Pounds

Ottawa, Ont.—Total imports of butter from all countries into Canada from February 1 to April 30, 1931, were 2,148,494 pounds, stated Hon. C. H. Cahan, secretary of state, in the House of Commons. Rates of duty collected were 8,462 pounds at 14 cents per pound; 57,176 pounds at 12 cents per pound; 398,440 pounds at eight cents per pound (less ten per cent.); and 1,683,416 pounds at one cent per pound. New Zealand butter was imported to the total of 286,440 pounds, and Australian 1,683,416 pounds.

BEAUHARNOIS POWER PROBE WILL BE HELD

Ottawa, Ont.—A committee of the House of Commons will investigate the Beauharnois Power Corporation, its various subsidiaries, and its scheme for development of hydro electric energy by the construction of a canal to divert a portion of the flow of the St. Lawrence River between Lake St. Francis and Lake St. Louis, in the province of Quebec.

This outstanding development emerged recently in the course of a debate in which the whole Beauharnois development was held up as a gigantic scheme to secure to private interests the entire flow of the St. Lawrence River at that point for power purposes.

Allegations of fraud, misrepresentation and improper dealing, charges that members of the Dominion Senate were interested in the power scheme, and intimations that the Beauharnois Corporation had even gone so far as to attempt to corrupt members of the Quebec judiciary, featured a discussion which focussed the attention of the House.

Frequent protests, demands for rulings by the chair on points of order, objections to bringing the judiciary into Commons debate, and heated interjections were features of an impromptu debate which held the stage for practically the entire day.

During the debate Premier R. B. Bennett declared the engineers' report shows the Beauharnois Canal now under construction is larger than provided for in the order-in-council passed by the former government. In stating that the whole matter should be referred to a committee, Mr. Bennett informed the House he had been collecting information, and opinions of counsel, in detail, but he agreed with Mr. Gardiner that the canal was larger than provided for by the order.

Eight-Hour Day Debated

Matter Brought Up In House By Hon. Peter Heenan

Ottawa, Ont.—Once more, the House of Commons debated the question of establishing the eight-hour day throughout the Dominion, and once again constitutional difficulties were cited as a bar to any immediate action in this respect.

Hon. Peter Heenan, former minister of labor, and Liberal member for Kenora-Rainy River, brought the matter up. In a resolution setting forth that Canada is a signatory to the Treaty of Versailles "thereby subscribing to the principle of a maximum working day of eight hours, Mr. Heenan called upon the government to take steps to insure the fulfilment of treaty obligations relating to hours of work.

Although Hon. Hugh Guthrie, Minister of Justice, intimated that the government had no objection to the resolution passing, it was still under discussion when the House adjourned. It therefore comes into the category of private members' legislation, which has been "talked out," and will probably not be discussed again during the present session.

Plans For Conference On Unemployment

Mayor Of Winnipeg Proposes Meeting Of Manitoba Civic Officials

Winnipeg, Man.—Mayor Ralph H. Webb, of Winnipeg, has outlined a proposal for a province-wide unemployment conference. Mayors of cities and towns and reeves of municipalities will be invited to attend the parley. Concrete proposals to aid unemployed next season would then be laid before the provincial government, Mayor Webb said. In the meantime, he intends to call a meeting of representatives of greater Winnipeg municipalities.

Titles Must Wait

Ottawa, Ont.—Rules of the House of Commons provide that only one resolution may appear on the order paper in the name of any one member. One resolution now stands in the name of Armand Lavergne (Cons., Montmargny), so his resolution asking his majesty to grant titles to Canadians must wait until the present resolution is disposed of.
