A Magic Soap

How the Fairy Queen's Christening Gift Was Found

Once upon a time the Fairy Queen was asked to be God-Mother to a very important Baby Princess and wanted an especially nice Christening Gift. So she sent her five cleverest Elves to fly all over the world in search of wonderful scents and rare perfumes and rich oils for a magic soap that would make the Baby Princess as lovely as the day is long.

Well the first Elf flew to France, and Algeria, and Bulgaria, where the loveliest roses grew, and asked them to give their pretty frocks for the Magic Soap. And the roses showered their sweet petals into a big sack the Elf had brought with her, all ready to be scrunched up and give a lovely perfume.

The second Elf flew to Africa, and there she made friends with the king's daughter, who gave her cloves and Vevivert—that is a scented root—rather like our sweet grass.

And the third Elf went to India, and found Patchouli—a plant whose leaves smell something like mint, and the pretty yellow wood of the sandalwood tree, which is very fragrant.

But the fourth Elf had the most dangerous time, for she daringly flew to an island near Italy called Messina, where there lived some fierce fruit called Bergamots who were very nasty and disagreeable, but who nevertheless wore exquisitely perfumed coats. The Elf crept up when the whole treefull were asleep and snipped off a bit of their coats here and there where it would not be missed—and was just tiptoeing away when a big fat Bergamot awoke and with a great yell prepared to fall on her and crush her. But the Elf called to the Flower Fairies to help her, and they seized her quickly and hid her beneath a toad-stool till the Bergamots had gone to asleep again when she scampered off home with her treasure.

On her way she met the fifth Elf who had clear golden cocoanut oil from Cochin China, and sticky scented gums from the East Indies.

And when they all arrived back they found that the Palace Pussy Cat who wanted to help his mistress had been all the way to Abyssinia (that is Bible Story Land), to see a cousin of his, the Civit Cat, who carries a delicious perfume with him in a tiny bag and had gladly given it to Pussy; and Civit had kindly introduced the Fairy cat to a Chinese friend of his, the Musk Deer, who had some rare scent in a secret sack under his tummy which he also gave for the Christening Gift.

How pleased the Fairy Queen was! Quickly she carried all the marvellous things to a Mortal friend of hers who was a soap maker and he worked with his helpers day and night and produced the most wonderful soap he had ever made just in time for the Christening.

And the Princess grew up so beautiful that she married the richest and handsomest Prince that ever was, and on her wedding day when the Fairy Queen came to see her, she said: "Dear God-Mother, couldn't you ask your friend the Soap-Maker, to make heaps and heaps of my wonderful soap and give it to all the little folk and all the big folk in the world. I feel so selfish enjoying it all myself."

"That is a good kind God-Daughter," said the Fairy Queen—and she told the soap maker, who promised to do as the Princess wished.

And he went on making the Magic Soap all his life, and after that his son and his grandson went on making it. And do you know it is really your Baby's Own Soap, and it is because it is made of the perfume oils from all the wonderful things that the five Elves found all over the world that it smells so sweet and makes such heaps of fluffy creamy bubbles and helps little folk and big folk to grow as lovely as the day is long.

Exhibition Of Spectacular Parachute Jumping Staged At Ottawa

As nonchalantly as bathers taking a morning plunge, 12 officers and non-commissioned officers of the Royal Canadian Air Force recently tumbled into space from a height of 2,000 feet in one of the most spectacular exhibitions of parachute jumping ever staged in Canada. The display was remarkable in that every flier who went aloft completed what is probably the most hazardous part of the Air Force training with landings that were perfect or near perfect.

Of the dozen daring airmen who performed the feat, ten were negotiating their first parachute leap.

THE PARABLE OF THE POUNDS

Golden Text: "It is required in stewards, that a man be found faithful."—1 Corinthians 4.2.

Lesson: Luke 19.11-26.

Devotional Reading: Psalm 103.11-18.

Explanations and Comments

The Reason For Giving the Parable, verse 11.—Jesus and His disciples were approaching Jerusalem, and many were expecting that His entry into the city would be an inauguration of the Messianic Kingdom. Jesus knew that He was going to a far country, but they supposed that the kingdom was immediately to appear. They looked for it to appear suddenly from the outside instead of gradually from within. "They focussed their attention on the fact that they were about to enter into a reward, while Jesus put the emphasis on the fact that they were about to enter a trust." Jesus gave this parable to warn those who wished Him to head a revolution and establish His kingdom by force that it would come only by patient faithfulness.

The Parable Of the Pounds, verses 12-26.—Jesus begins His parable with the statement that a certain nobleman went into a far country, to receive for himself a kingdom, and to return. Calling ten servants, he gave each a pound and bade them trade therewith till he returned. A mina, translated a pound, is equal to one hundred drachmas; a drachma was a coin worth about eight pence, or sixteen cents, RVm. The sum was small, about sixteen dollars, but it would test their faithfulness. In the similar parable of the talents different sums were entrusted to three men.

To these servants Jesus said, "Trade ye herewith till I come." Wycliffe's Version reads "Merchandize till I come." The word "occupy" in the King James' Version at the time the translation was made had the meaning of "use."

On His return to judge the world (in the interpretation of the parable, the nobleman is Jesus Himself), he calls for a settlement with his servants, to learn how faithful they have been to their trust. The case of three, two faithful, and one unfaithful, is taken as typical of all. The first had gained ten pounds more, and is rewarded by being given authority over ten cities. The second had gained five pounds, and is placed over five cities. The third had done nothing.

"Life is God's sacramental gift
To man for his emprising,—
The talent given into his care
For his soul's exercising,—
A sacred trust bestowed on him
For his immortalizing,
And he who lends will one day ask
His own again with interest;
See to it then, lest thou be found
Of those who failed him in the test."

—John Oxenham.

"Lord, here is thy pound," the third one said, "which I kept laid up in a napkin," and then he excused himself by accusing his lord of being an austere man who would require him to make up whatever loss there might be and would keep whatever profit he might make, so that he himself would be no better off for all his labor or trouble. "Thou takest up that which thou layest not down, and reapest that which thou didst not sow": these were proverbial sayings applied to grasping persons.

Eckener Hopeful That Polar Flight Can Be Financed

Negotiations which have been carried on at Berlin between Dr. Hugo Eckener and various interested persons on a possible Zeppelin North Pole flight make the flight seem more likely than at any time heretofore, the Graf's veteran commander has intimated.

"Our great and only difficulty throughout," he said, "has been the question of financing the polar flight, but I am quite hopeful that this difficulty will be overcome."

"In that case he needn't know anything about the—'circumstances.' I haven't told him. I confided in Mrs. Maxwell because I just had to talk to someone; but if Nick knew, he might refuse to go. And you mustn't misunderstand me, either. Nick's the last one not to be glad about such news; but just now he isn't well, and the thought of the expenses to come would be a drop too much. If I'm sick as I was when little Nick was born it will mean putting us in debt again. But I shan't be. I can't be, that's all; but somehow I feel that everything will be all right. I meant not to tell Nick till I had to; and if he goes away at once he needn't know till he comes home. I'm tremendously grateful to you, Mr. Maxwell. It will be a dream come true for him to see the tropics."

John Maxwell met her eyes with a look of unveiled admiration and affection.

"You're a plucky girl, Gay."

She laughed, tremulously.

"Oh, no I'm not! Inside I'm just despairing at the thought of having him away just now; but when we were on our honeymoon Uncle Sim gave me some advice that I've never forgotten. He said: 'Don't tie him too close to yer apron strings. Give him plenty o' rope to run on.' I think he understood Nick better than I did then. He was just a—well, a kid when he married me, Mr. Maxwell, and I've brought him a lot of worries. I don't know that he's ever even felt like complaining; but I know there've been times when he craved a taste of the freedom he's never really had. That's why I'm so glad to let him go—and why he mustn't know what I'm facing. The trip will make a boy of him again—and that's the way I want to keep him. A nature like Nick's ought not to be laden down with cares."

"My child, Nick's cares have been the making of him. What we must do is to lighten them now and then, and give that vagabond spirit of his a chance to roam. And now we've settled his difficulties, I've something else to speak of. You ought not to stay alone in this old house. Mrs. Maxwell wants you to bring the babies and come to us. It will seem good to have some of the empty rooms in use. That's the worst of a big family, Gay. The children leave such a hole when they fly away."

Gay lifted eyes that were very bright.

"That's beautiful of you both; but really, there's no place like home when one doesn't feel quite well. Perhaps Uncle Sim would come and stay with me. I'm sure he would; and he's a real help with the children."

He's getting old, Gay. Wouldn't he add to your cares?"

"Not a bit. Besides, his unfailing good spirits are a tonic. Mrs. Maxwell will understand, I know. It's hard visiting with babies—even such dear friends as you. I'll write Uncle Sim today."

"Well," said John Maxwell, rising, "you must do what makes you happiest, my dear. But our house is always open to you and yours. You won't forget that?"

"I shall never forget any of your kindnesses," Gay answered. "I've stored them all safely in my house of memories. Do tell Nick as soon as you reach the bank, Mr. Maxwell. I can't wait for him to know what's in store for him."

A rejuvenated Nick came home that night. He caught his wife in a bear-like hug, and frolicked with his boys as he hadn't for many a week.

"I can hardly believe it!" he said when the babies were in bed—the dishes washed—and he and Gay were seated before the fire. "I've been feeling so seedy that this trip is a regular god-send. You know how crazy I've been to see Jamaica ever since old Bennington told me so much about it; and to have it come like this—not costing us a penny—Well, it's one of the things that seem too good to be true. If only I could take you with me——"

His eyes looked troubled, and Gay smiled.

"You'll be freer without me, dear. You can pretend that you're starting off as you did on that May morning so long ago, before your kind heart took pity on the lone, lorn damsel you were leaving."

"She seems mighty contented to be left this time," he replied; then catching a wistful look in her eyes he added: "Gay, is it mean of me to go without you?"

She smiled.

"What a ridiculous idea, since I couldn't go in any case. And you mustn't hurry back, Nick. You must see all you can because you may never have such a chance again. All I ask is that you write by every boat. I won't pretend that I sha'n't miss you, for you know better; but to get your letters and hear you tell about it will be almost as good as taking the trip myself."

Nick leaned forward to straighten a crumbling log, and gazed into the fire for a long moment.

"It'll be spring when I get back," he said dreamily. "Perhaps the apple trees will be in bloom. I never see 'em, dear, without remembering the morning we started out together. You've been a bully good comrade along the way, Gay. When I stop to think about it I almost hate to take this detour without you."

"Then don't think about it," she smiled, "or if you must, just remember that I'm keeping in the straight and narrow way, and will be there to meet you at the cross-roads."

She laughed at her own fancies, and added apologetically: "I seem to be waxing poetical. It's the result of our prospective parting. If you stay too long I may take to writing verses to you!"

"I'd make a rather solid target for the muse," Nick answered. "I can't imagine getting practical about anything so substantial." Then he broke off suddenly, his eyes shining: "Gay! do you realize where I'll be a month from now? I'm dizzy at the thought!"

And ten days later—a cold, raw first of March,—armed with a suitcase, innumerable snapshots of his wife and babies, and his old, boyish desire to "conquer the universe," Nick stood on the deck of the big, white fruit steamer, and watched the Statue of Liberty drop behind the horizon.

"I wonder," he mused aloud, "I can't help wondering, what adventures I'll live through before I see the good old U.S.A. again.

He turned at a light touch upon his arm.

Angela Halliday stood beside him.

CHAPTER XVII.

There is no place like the deck of a steamer for forcing the flower of intimacy. Angela Halliday was alone, bound for Port Antonio where she was to join the Myers. Nick also being alone, it was not unnatural that the greater part of their time was spent together. Both were good sailors, and on the days when most of the passengers were in their berths, they enjoyed a "solitude a deux" in which their friendship ripened quickly.

Angela had never met his type before, and the novelty pleased her. Besides she had not forgotten her husband's taunt regarding this special victim.

A word in a note from Julie, written in thanks for a discarded sweater, had given news of Nick's proposed trip to the tropics. A little clever detective work as to possible boats, and her plans were made. The fact that the Myers were at Port Antonio made everything plausible. A hurried trip to New York was no uncommon thing for Angela to indulge in; and her unsuspecting husband had no inkling of her plans until she was safely on the water. Angela smiled at the thought of his baffled rage when he should receive her note.

To Nick the meeting was simply an amazing coincidence. He wrote to Gay:

> You could have knocked me down with a feather when I saw her; but really, it's rather pleasant having a friend aboard—even one of whom my wife dosen't approve! I wonder if you and I will ever think alike upon that subject. I feel sure there's a tragedy somewhere in the background; yet Halliday is surely no bounder. His devotion to little Martha is something wonderful. I don't believe he's missed coming to see her every week this entire winter—but his wife's not happy with him. I don't know which of 'em I pity most. Which would be worst. Gay, not to be happy yourself, or to know you'd failed in making another happy?

So it was in a spirit of pity that Nick drank in Angela Halliday's skillful draughts. She rarely mentioned her husband, and he got the impression that the subject was a painful one—something that hurt too deeply to be touched upon. Thus her carefree laughter struck him as both fine and pitiful. He longed to tell her that he understood and sympathized, but something intangible, possibly the memory of Gay's warning, kept back the words.

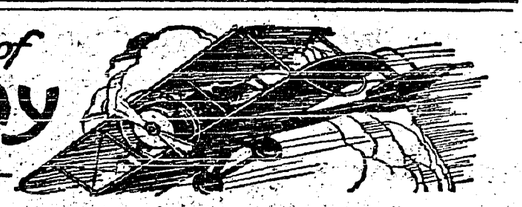
The ADVENTURES of CAPTAIN JIMMY and his Dog SCOTTIE



There we stood before General Lu, wondering what was going to happen next. Scottie, bristling with anger and ready to fight at the drop of a hat. The interpreter scared white, or rather, scared lemon yellow — and myself anxious and worried for fear that General Lu would refuse to give us our pass to the Chinese front.

Fortunately General Lu was too great a man to bother much about dignity. Without even a word of comment on Scottie's absurd attack, he sat down and wrote quickly on a sheet of paper, to which he affixed a bright green seal. Five minutes later we left the palace with a pass that gave us freedom to go anywhere we pleased.

Early next morning we took off in our 'plane for Liuho—a little town where the fighting was in full progress. Soon the country below showed the ravages of war. Buildings were wrecked by shell-fire, bridges were down at the rivers, and the ground was so rough that we almost crashed at our first landing.

Leaving our 'plane well back from the battle front, we took a road leading up to the lines. The air was damp and foggy, and the rumble of the guns seemed muffled under the heavy grey sky. Bullet-scarred walls stood bleak and white, and now and then a tree, with the wood torn into ribbons, showed the spite of high explosives.

Suddenly we noticed a group of soldiers, off duty, grouped around some object tied to a tree. Coming near we heard a loud and complicated din—moaning, groaning and gibbering enough to make your hair stand on end. To our horror, we found that the soldiers had caught a few of the enemy, and tied them up to a large branch by their wrists, so their feet were several inches off the ground. Of course, it must have been fearfully uncomfortable, but the soldiers only laughed and jeered.

"Come on Scottie," I said, "Let's bust up this party."

Punching and poking my way through the ring I stood beside the prisoners. The soldiers, of course, did not take this treatment too kindly, and began to whisper among themselves and finger their rifles. Then I took out General Lu's pass. Luckily no one could read it — but I pointed to the bright green official seal and made gestures and faces that must have convinced those Chinese soldiers that dire calamity would befall any man who interfered.

Taking out my knife, I cut the captives down, and automatic pistol in hand I shoved them through the ring of soldiers who were too surprised to resist. We worked quickly. Any moment the men might change their minds and make things hot for us.

"Herd those prisoners into that house," I said to Scottie, pointing to a house which remained standing. In fact, it afterwards proved to be the headquarters of the Colonel in charge. Scottie needed no second invitation—with a fierce growl he lunged for the ankles of the three Chinese, and they covered the distance in no time at all.

Then the soldiers suddenly woke up. Several fired shots, and others ran toward us with their bayonets. I ran to the door. This was guarded by a sentry. He made a stab at me but missed, so I bowled him over and turned just in time to see two more figures rushing toward me. There was no time to think. Hiding behind the door, I hit each as hard as I could as he jumped over the sill, and scored two knock outs.

Then as my eyes became accustomed to the gloom of the house, I looked more carefully, and discovered to my dismay that one man was my interpreter, and the other no less than the Colonel himself.

Fortunately the Colonel revived in a few moments, otherwise we would have been in a bad fix, as everyone was running toward the house shooting and yelling. Sitting up, he fairly screamed some orders in Chinese. Instantly the hubbub ceased.

The Colonel turned to me. Quite evidently he hadn't the slightest idea what happened.

Little Helps For This Week

"To him that overcometh will I grant to sit with me in my throne."—Revelation iii. 21.

Heaven is not reached by a single bound;
But we build the ladder by which we rise
From the lowly earth to the vaulted skies
And we mount to its summit round by round.

We rise by the things that are under our feet,
By what we have mastered in greed and gain,
By the pride deposed and the passion slain,
And the vanquished ill we hourly meet.

—John G. Holland.

Our appointed life-way is an ascending path upward, if we would have it onward. There are obstacles on it, mercifully placed there to train and exercise our best powers of mind and heart; none of them insurmountable, though some of them are steep and rough in the climbing. It is for us to choose whether we will stumble on them, crawl round them, or surmount them; and our destiny is contingent on our choice.

—Andrew P. Peabody.

CRESTON, B.C., FRIDAY, MAY 8

HOME BREW

As predicted by the Review a couple of weeks ago, distances have proved too much for the originally-planned international baseball league and on Thursday of last week Kimberley notified of its intention to withdraw, while earlier in the week like action was taken by Troy-Libby. The distance between Kimberley and Troy is stated to be 161 miles, making the round trip 322 miles—just a little too far to travel to play a ball game.

The report on 1930 operations of the Consolidated Mining & Smelting Company at Trail has just been issued and shows that the nett profits have decreased from a little over $10,000,000 in 1929 to about $2,755,316 for last year. While holders of Consolidated stock will experience some disappointment, in the face of the prevailing depression the general public will not only consider the showing a remarkable one, but will congratulate the company on its ceaseless endeavors in every likely quarter to dispose of its output and provide steady employment for its large army of workmen at Trail, Rossland and Kimberley.

Penticton is starting in this year to eliminate some of its fruit marketing troubles. At the annual meeting of the Co-Operative Association last week authority was given the directors to notify the growers that in 1933 the association will not handle what is known as the "off" varieties, which include Ontarios, Kings, Rhode Island Greenings, Russets and some others. The district is quite fortunate in that these undesirables account for less than 3 per cent. of the total crop marketed last year. The Herald submits figures to show that 76 per cent. of the Penticton plantings are to winter varieties, 20 per cent. of which is Jonathan.

Creston and District Women's Institute is to be commended on the consideration it is this year showing in encouraging juvenile handicrafts. Last month it was a carpentry competition for boys, and this month the girls are having their exhibit of needlecraft. While both these efforts are on a very modest scale they are very acceptable for a start, and will, doubtless, be enlarged upon as funds and available dates permit. If it should so happen that the Agricultural Association is unable to stage the usual exhibition a very likely quarter to donate the $70 surplus would be the Institute, who should be encouraged to stage an early September display of the usual indoor fall-fair products, with much greater attention given to exhibits of everything the school children of the Valley take an interest in, not overlooking the possibilities of inter-school competition along musical and other such lines.

The days of adversity all communities are at present encountering appear to be having a specially chastening effect on Cranbrook, where the Courier is quite outspoken about the annoyance caused church goers in that town by the drone of airplane motors. Editor Sullivan is quite "het up" on the question, and goes on to say that "Consideration of the rights af churchgoers to worship undisturbed will avoid a clash for which there is no necessity or excuse." The Review sincerely hopes that this turn for the better will be permanent, but just for now we are inclined to agree with our oldtime literary confrere, Francias Rabelais, who has very aptly remarked, "The devil was sick, the devil a monk would be; the devil was well, the devil a monk was he."

The Kimberley Press is carrying on a very effective educational campaign in connection with the proposal to incorporate that centre either as a village or city municipality. The board of trade committee in charge of the work has chosen tentative boundaries for the municipality and the Press has just figured it out that from within the suggested municipal area the Government last year collected al ost $30,000 in taxes and other revenues that would rightfully accrue to the municipality, and in return for this ingathering something akin to an insurrection had to be staged to secure the expenditure of $2,340.00. There was a time when a considerable number of people almost believed that by letting the government handle affairs you almost got something for nothing. On the strength of the figures submitted by the Press it would look as if Kimberley had reversed this oldtime fallacy and was actually getting almost nothing for a real substantial something.

A resolution that might well engage the attention of those attending the annual conference of the Associated Boards of Trade of Eastern British Columbia, due to be held in Creston later in the month, is one calling upon the provincial government to set aside some likely acreage along Kootenay Lake; and handy to the Kuskanook-Grey Creek highway, as a camp ground. Lots could be sold and building, camping and picnicing regulations provided that would make the location a well-patronized watering place for at least three months each year, and a very popular weekend and Sunday resort. With all its drawbacks Kuskanook has demonstrated the need for such a centre, and now is the time for the authorities to set aside such a location before private interests secure all the likely sites.

The 1931 baseball league has gone hay wire. Both the Troy and Kimberley teams withdrew last week, leaving only Creston and Bonners Ferry. As no other towns are available to fill the vacancies it looks as if Creston will have to get along with whatever games can be arranged with nearby towns. Arrangements are being made for a game with Bonners on the 24th.

Many of our readers who will recall the residence here of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Phillips, who was government telephone lineman up till 1924, will sympathize with them in the death of their son, Frederick John, who died in Vancouver about the middle of April, after an illness that extended over three years. After leaving here the Phillips were at Merritt for some time before moving to Vancouver.

Bonners Winners Baseball Opener

Score was 6 to 4—Creston Makes Strong Finish, but Recall of Allen Saves Day—Sandpoint Players Numerous on Visitors

The 1931 baseball season opened on Sunday, but due the collapse of the international leagve the initial encounter was not as per schedule. Inftead of Kimberley, Creston took on Bonners Ferry in an exhibition game in which Bonners emerged winners by a margin of 6 to 4.

The visitors presented formidable opposition, the lineup showing about half a dozen of the last year champion Sandpoint team. including the stellar battery, Allen and Campbell, and it was entirely due the good pitching of the former that victory came Bonners Ferry way. The homesters could do nothing with Allen who for seven innings held Creston to three hits. Allen retired in the ninth in favor of Haines but Creston took so kindly to the latter's delivery that it was necessary to calll Allen back to finish the game, as Creston annexed four counters in the part frame Haines was on the mound. On the day,s work Allen had nine strikeouts to his credit. Both on the offensive and defensive Bonners has a very fast aggregation with Rolph carrying off the batting honors with a double and triple to his credit.

Robinson hurled for Creston and with a little better support in the tight places would have made a much better showing —the cluster of three Bonners runs in the fifth coming after McKelvey failed to complete a double play that would have retired the side scoreless. Romano in centre field had a great day of it, having five putouts to his credit and banging out two of Creston's five hits, one of which was good for three bases. Earl Christie was tried out at short and gave a good account of himself. He hit well and covered a lot of ground in the infield. However, he seemed to find the range from short to first just a trifle too far, and if played at second looks as if he will very acceptably plug up an infield gap that is worrying the management.

Boffey was not showing last season's form and retired in the sixth in favor of Joe Brogan, who gave a good account of himself for the four frames he worked Telford also had an off day in right, and was replaced in the eighth by Jack Dodds. Watson was as reliable as ever behind the bat, but was not hitting with quite his oldtime skill. The score:

The Canadian Constitution

Is the constitution of the Dominion of Canada, being the British North America Act, 1867, out of date?

Recent decisions by the higher Provincial courts of law, the Supreme Court of Canada, and the Privy Council all give point to the question.

In others words, is a hard and fast written constitution drafted in the eighteen-sixties of the nineteenth century, long before the days of the automobile, radio, airplanes, and modern big business suitable to our present twentieth century needs? Nay more, is the present distribution of powers and authority as between the Dominion Parliament on the one hand, and the various Provincial Legislatures on the other, the best arrangement under which to carry on our public business today, not to mention possibly even more complicated developments in the years to come?

Unlike Great Britain, which has no written constitution but is governed by a Parliament guided by precedent built upon precedent down through the ages, and which is, therefore, free to meet changing conditions as they change, Canada is bound gy a formal document.

Furthermore, among all the self-governing Dominions of the Empire, Canada alone does not possess the power to amend its own constitution. That power rests solely with the Parliament of Great Britain.

The constitution of Canada was drafted just as the great American civil war was drawing to a close, and the Fathers of Confederation had ever in mind the conflict which arose in the republic to the south between the Federal authority and the advocates of State rights. The constitution of the United States is founded in the principle of State rights, and the Federal Government has authority in regard only to those matters specifically delegated to that Government. Where no specific delegation of authority as between the Federal and State authorities is made, then the authority automatically rests with the State. The Civil War resulted from the contention of the southern states that the Federal authority was interfering with and usurping certain of their State rights.

The Fathers of Confederation consequently drafted the B.N.A. Act on exactly the opposite principle. In Canada, the rights and powers of the Provinces are distinctly set forth and limited, and all matters not so specifically stated belong of right to the Dominion.

There are, however, certain subjects in regard to which authority is divided, as, for example, incorporation of companies. The Provinces possess the power to incorporate companies for purely Provincial purposes, while the Dominion can incorporate for Dominion purposes. Both are intensely jealous of their rights in this respect, and, as a result, there is continual d'spute. For example, most Provinces are anxious to curb the stock-selling activities of corporations, and to bring them under strict government supervision and control. They have, therefore, enacted what are commonly termed "blue-sky" laws. But the Dominion has contended that such laws cannot apply to Dominion incorporated companies. The result is that any company desirous of evading such Provincial restrictions takes out a Dominion charter.

There has now arisen a dispute between the Dominion and the Provinces as to which authority can exercise control over radio broadcasting and reception. The Dominion has exercised that right to date, but it is now challenged by the Provinces. Suppose it should be established by a Privy Council decision that the Provinces are in the right and the Dominion wrong, under the old B.N.A. Act, would it be a good thing for Canada to have radio control cut up into nine pieces?

As a matter of fact, in a country of immense distances, divided by natural geographical barriers, is it not one of the handicaps of our national life that, in regard to many matters, lack of unity results because of Provincial jurisdiction in such matters which would be overcome through unified Dominion control?

On the other hand, there is the tendency on the part of Ottawa to take control over, or interfere with, subjects which are clearly matters for the Provinces. Constitutionally speaking, such a matter as Old Age Pensions belongs to the Provinces, but by enactment the Dominion Parliament decreed that it would contribute a certain proportion of such pensions if the Provinces adopted the plan. Some of the Provinces have done so; others have not. Such a pension system once established by a Province cannot easily be done away with, but there is nothing to prevent the Dominion Parliament from repealing its enactment at any time, thus leaving the Provinces to face the whole of the financial burden. Similar action has been taken at times by the Dominion in such matters as highways construction, technical education, and grants for this and that. Provinces have embarked on these enterprises, only to have Dominion assistance withdrawn later, to the financial embarrassment of the Provinces.

The question that naturally arises is: Has the time not arrived when the constitution of Canada should be overhauled and brought up-to-date? Should not representatives of the Dominion and of the nine Provinces meet in conference and consider the whole subject with a view to clarifying the atmosphere and removing so many of the causes of present constitutional cases before the courts? And is Canada not just as capable of amending its own constitution as is Australia, South Africa, or the Irish Free State? Or must we remain in the eyes of the rest of the world as an inferior Dominion?

Suffered From Heart Trouble

Became Weak and Run Down

Mrs. Wm. Diotte, Glensandfield, Ont., writes:—"For a long period I suffered from heart trouble, and became very weak and run down. I tried various remedies, but they did me no good. One day I met a friend and told her of my trouble. She said she had had heart trouble for two years too, but after using Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills for a short time she had been relieved of her trouble, so I got two boxes and after taking them I was again feeling fine, and always recommend H. & N. Pills to anyone complaining of heart trouble."

Alberta Railways Act

Measure To Extend Time For Two Years For Completion Of Northern Road

Third reading was given in the House of Commons to a bill respecting the Northern Alberta Railways Act.

The object of the measure is to extend the time for two years for the commencement and completion of the main line of the Edmonton, Dunvegan and British Columbia railway from Spirit River, Alberta, "by the most feasible route and in a generally westerly direction of a distance of 102 miles, more or less, to a point in townships 78 or 79, range 18, west of the sixth meridian in British Columbia"; and for a branch line of the Central Canada Railway from near Grimshaw, Alberta, in a northerly direction to the northern boundary of Alberta.

FASHION HINT

"How to make my old short skirts conform to the new length was a problem to me until I hit on this plan. I dropped the hems; and as the part that had been turned under was darker than the rest, I redyed the entire dress, after having bleached the goods, following directions in the Diamond Dyes package.

"I used Diamond Dyes for the redyeing, of course. I have dyed many things with these wonderful colors. They have saved me many dollars and have never failed to give perfect results—smooth, even colors—fast to wear and washing. Friends think my things are new when I redye or tint them with Diamond Dyes. They do give the most gorgeous colors!"

Mrs. G. C., Levis, Quebec.

The Cutworm Menace

Pale Western Cutworm Eggs Are Hatching In Infested Areas

A recent examination of fields in the area expected to be infested with pale western cutworm has shown that in some cases the eggs are beginning to hatch. This is especially true in the areas that have recently been visited with light rains or snow followed by warm weather.

The hatching of these eggs at this time will answer the question that has been in the minds of many farmers regarding the effect of the open winter on the pale western cutworm. There seems to have been a general impression among the people in the infested areas that the peculiar winter would effectively control the cutworm. This was to be accomplished either by the eggs being killed or the eggs hatching during the winter and the cutworms being killed. There is very little evidence from experimental work to show that either is possible.

The presence of pale western cutworma in the field can be easily determined in those fields which have some vegetation such as wild oats, volunteer grains, grasses or weeds present. The young cutworms feeding on this vegetation will eat holes in the leaves and some leaves may be cut off above the ground. The evidence of feeding is much easier to find than the cutworms themselves since they are at present very small and inconspicuous.

Fields which have such vegetation showing signs of cutworm feeding can not be seeded to crop with any hope of having it mature unless the season turns out to be exceptionally wet. Such fields might better be cultivated thoroughly and worked up as first class summer fallow for next season. Where this land cannot possibly be spared for summer fallow it should be cultivated thoroughly throughout the early spring and seeded to late barley or oats after the middle of June. The date of this seeding will depend on whether or not cutworms are still active in numbers in the field.

Information regarding the pale western cutworm may be obtained by writing to the Dominion Entomological Laboratories at Lethbridge, Alberta; Saskatoon, or Indian Head, Saskatchewan; Treesbank, Manitoba; to the University of Alberta at Edmonton; the University of Saskatchewan at Saskatoon; or the Provincial Departments of Agriculture at Regina or Edmonton.

Presented With Horses

Mounted Policemen At Empire Trade Fair At Buenos Aires Receive Gift

Four Royal Canadian Mounted policemen now on duty in the Canadian pavilion at the British Empire trade fair in Buenos Aires, have each been presented with two riding horses for their personal use. A cable to this effect, received at the Department of Trade and Commerce from Buenos Aires, does not make known the donor of this munificent gift but it is believed the eight horses were presented by the Argentine government.

The four members of the R.C.M.P. sent to the trade fair are: Sergt. J. R. Paton, M.C., of Victoria, B.C.; Constable Carstairs, of Medicine Hat, Alberta; Constable Carmichael, and Constable C. G. Fairman, both of Ottawa.

Previous reports from Buenos Aires said the four "Mounties" had captnred the popular fancy in Argentine, a country noted for its horsemen.

Deplores Child Labor

Says Canada Not Fulfilling Provisions Of Versailles Treaty

Charges that Canada was not fulfilling provisions to protect labor, as laid down in the Versailles treaty, were made last night by J. S. Woodsworth, Labor M.P. for Winnipeg North Centre, at the annual meeting of the League of Natiohs Society at Toronto.

Clauses covering an eight-hour day, minimum wages commensurate with the living standards of the country in which the worker lives, elimination of child labor and the right of labor to organize, had not been lived up to, he claimed.

According to the census, he said, Canada employed almost twice as many children as the United States. Of every 1,000 persons engaging in gainful occupations, 23 were under the age of 16, while in the United States only 13 under 16 years were employed per 1,000.

ACTION TAKEN BY FRANCE WILL AID SALE OF WHEAT

Winnipeg, Man.—France's increase in the percentage of foreign wheat to be mixed with the domestic product will "help a little" in improving exportation of Canadian grain, according to A. P. White, president of the Winnipeg Grain Exchange. France, it is announced, increased the percentage of foreign wheat for mixing to 25 per cent., and Mr. White believed that this move would aid somewhat in decreasing the Canadian surplus but he expected no drastic rise in Canadian exports.

"Any removal of restrictions against foreign wheat on the continent tended to improve Canada's position," Mr. White stated. He also intimated that it would benefit other countries shipping wheat to France. He was unable to state whether the increase in the percentage of foreign wheat for mixing, made by France several weeks ago, had caused any undue jump in Canadian shipments to that country, but he believed the jump to 25 per cent. was bound to relieve the situation in this country slightly.

"Germany," Mr. White revealed, "is at present contemplating the lowering of her tariff against foreign wheat which would add further in the clearing of Canada's surplus." The European countries, he said, will shortly come into the market for wheat, resulting in a lowering of all tariffs and an increased demand for the Dominion's product.

John I. McFarland, general manager of the Central Selling Agency of the Wheat Pool, believed France's action gave a brighter outlook for the removal of Canada's surplus. Several weeks ago, he said, France increased the percentage and it caused an improvement in export. "The raise to 25 per cent," he added, "will be welcomed."

Firmer Hand In India

Believed That Lord Willingdon Will Inaugurate Stiffer Policy

Dondon, England.—Lord Willingdon takes up residence at the summer capital of India this week-end and it is generally believed he will inaugurate a policy somewhat stiffer than that of Lord Irwin.

Sir Geoffrey Demontmorancy, governor of the Punjab, said recently that the Punjab government's policy of toleration had bred license, and would not be continued. The Punjab government, he said, would no longer stay their hand, but would deal properly with breaches of the law. The situation in the other Indian provinces is similar to that in Punjab.

Prospects Good For Cattle Shipments

Increased Demand From Great Britain Is Indicated

Montreal.—Shipments of Canadian cattle to Great Britain are being well maintained and evidence indicates that there will be an increased demand from Great Britain as the season progresses. The first shipment from Montreal this season left April 30, aboard the "Manchester Commerce," taking 442 head, while seven other lots are booked for May and June. All shipments will average around 400 head.

War Claims Heard

Ottawa, Ont.—A total of 457 cases have yet to be reported by the war claims commissioner, Errol McDougall, Montreal, of which 308 claims have already been heard, leaving a balance of 149 cases. If, however, jurisdiction is admitted in the claims arising out of the Armenian massacres, which were filed in 1920-21, there will be an additional 271 cases yet to be reported on.

Canada-Mexico Auto Route

Mexico City.—Automobile travel from Canada to Mexico City will soon be possible when a road from here to Laredo is opened. Only a small link remains to be completed. While not yet surfaced, the highway provides a passable route for motor cars.

Searching For Lost Explorer

Ship With Airplane Carrying Provisions Has Left Iceland

Copenhagen, Denmark.—A wireless message received at Reykjavik, Iceland, purporting to be from Augustine Courtauld, British scientist who is lost in Northern Greenland, stated: "Absolutely without provisions."

An aeroplane which has left Iceland with the Iceland inspection ship "Odin," will fly from the edge of the ice barrier to Tasioak and to Angmagsalik, searching for Courtauld en route. If the 'plane can find him it will drop provisions on the ice for his use.

He is believed to be somewhere in the vicinity of the station at which he was left to spend the winter and obtain meteorological data for use of British Arctic air route expedition. The site of this station has not been located thus far by rescue missions which have gone to Courtauld's aid.

Preparing For Flight

Bert Hinkler, Australia Flyer, Interviewed In Toronto

Toronto, Ont.—Bert Hinkler, skilled Australian flyer, who set the first record for the London-Australia flight in a light machine in 1928, is now at a local airport here, and much conjecturing as to his immediate plans is being made by local airmen.

Interviewed by a local newspaper, Hinkler did not deny that he was going somewhere, but refused to discuss the matter of a flight.

It is believed, however, that he will suddenly decide to fly to South America, thence across the South Atlantic, or perhaps fly to Australia via Vancouver. A North Atlantic hop via the northern route is also suggested as a possibility.

Armistice Day Is Now Fixed Date

To Be Called Remembrance Day and Celebrated November 11

Ottawa, Ont.—After a brief debate in private members' hour in Commons, the House endorsed a bill to change the name of "Armistice Day" to "Remembrance Day," and have it celebrated each year on November 11. At present it is celebrated on the Monday of the week in which November 11 falls jointly with Thanksgiving Day. The date of Thanksgiving Day will be fixed as it was some years ago by the government.

Fishing Ships Forfeited

Ottawa, Ont.—Four ships of United States registry are condemned as forfeited to the Crown for fishing within Canadian territorial waters on the Pacific Coast, under a judgment handed down by the Supreme Court of Canada recently. The judgment confirms the findings of the local judge in admiralty at Victoria, B.C.

Conference Will Decide

Ottawa, Ont.—The question whether a member of the House of Commons should or should not be compelled to vote in a division will be settled by a conference, whose personnel will comprise the leaders of all groups in the Commons. This was decided when Hon. C. H. Cahan, secretary of state, reverted to the matter.

Would Change Naval Treaty Plan

Paris, France.—Difficulty in arriving at an agreement on the exact meaning of the Italo-French naval limitation treaty has led to an unofficial proposal from quarters close to the ministry of marine that France drop the treaty with Italy and each country make unilateral statements as to her naval needs.

Many Deported

Ottawa, Ont.—Of those who came to Canada under the 3,000-family scheme, 568 persons, including men, women and children have been deported. Hon. W. A. Gordon, Minister of Immigration and Mines, gave this reply in the House of Commons to a question by H. H. Spencer (U.F.A., Battle River.)

President Of Canadian Press

Toronto, Ont.—M. E. Nichols, vice-president and managing director of The Winnipeg, Man., Tribune, was elected president of the Canadian Press, succeeding John Scott, managing director of The Toronto, Ont., Mail and Empire, who for personal reasons declined a third term.

NOTED ECONOMIST

Value Of Corn Imports

Runs Into Millions and Duty May Be Demanded

Ottawa, Ont.—Canada is importing, for purposes other than distillation, about 12,000,000 bushels of corn worth in excess of $10,000,000 every year.

This information, given to the House of Commons in answer to a question some days ago, may be the basis of a demand for a duty on imported corn, which now enters the Dominion free.

The corn, brought from the United States, and even from the Argentine to some degree, is used for feeding livestock in the central provinces. It is the claim of some western M.P.'s that the eastern market for feed should be belong to prairie growers of barley and other coarse grains. A demand for the reduction of freight rates on these grains, when shipped for domestic consumption, has already been voiced. A stiff duty on foreign corn may now be asked.

British Economist Gives Opinion On Depression

Might End In Three Months Says Sir Josiah Stamp

New York.—The end of the present economic depression in Canada and the United States will not be in sight before the end of the next three months, Sir Josiah Stamp, noted British economist, told the Canadian Press. The depression will probably come to an end in both countries simultaneously, he said, although recovery in the United States might be slightly more rapid than in Canada.

"I do not want to say the depression will end in three months," he said, "but I will say it can't end before that time. Some time ago I said it would not end before May. It has not ended and I now believe it cannot do so before the end of another three months."

Fatal 'Plane Crash

Two Lives Lost When Machine Crashes At Brandon

Brandon, Man.—The first major 'plane crash in the history of Brandon brought death to two young airmen when their machine crashed from a height of 1,000 feet and burst into flames near the local aerodrome.

The victims were: William Clark, 21, owner of the 'plane, and son of Col. and Mrs. F. J. Clark, Brandon, and William Britten, 27, pilot of Wawanesa, Man.

Returning from a flight to Wawanesa, the airmen were preparing to land at the aerodrome when the 'plane swerved into a spin, exploded and burst into flames.

Like a rocket, it dived to earth, bringing instant death to the pilot and owner.

It was some time before the flaming wreckage could be approached by airport attendants, and the bodies, entangled in the debris, were charred beyond recognition. Nothing was left of the 'plane but the bars, twisted steel work.

Hundreds of persons flocked to the scene of the crash, and police had great difficulty in keeping the crowds away from the fire-strewn wreckage.

Steamer Beothic Will Make Annual Expedition

May Again Make Attempt To Reach Winter Harbor, Melville Island

Ottawa, Ont.—The annual expedition of the steamer "Beothic" to the Canadian Arctic archipelago will be carried out as usual this year by officials of the Northwest Territories branch of the Department of Interior and the Royal Canadian Mounted Police. The "Beothic" will leave for the Arctic about the end of July and visit all the northern police posts as well as the various posts where "N.W.T." men are stationed.

It is understood there will be another attempt to reach Winter Harbor, Melville Island, to inspect the cache there. This cache was put in over 20 years ago, and while it has been visited by travellers with dog teams, a boat has not called in there since it was established.

Last year an attempt to reach the cache was unsuccessful, due to ice conditions.

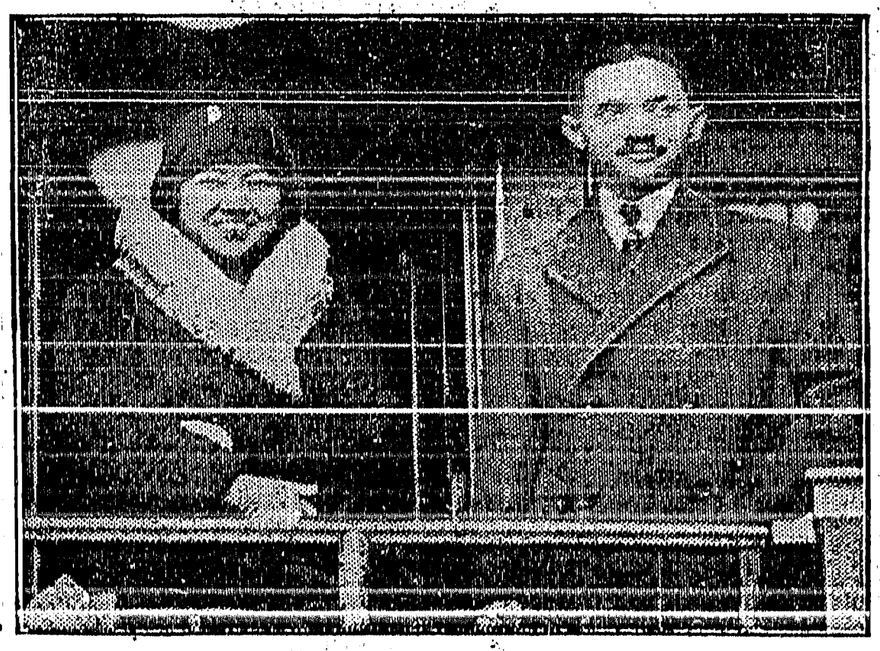
Princes Welcomed Home

Prince Of Wales and Prince George End Long Journey

Windsor, England.—The Prince of Wales and his brother, Prince George, ending an 18,000-mile trade mission to South America, returned to the family hearth and were joyfully welcomed by the King and Queen.

Their arrival at Windsor Castle from Paris after an absence of three and a half months was the occasion for a happy family re-union. Their parents and the Duchess of York, greeted them enthusiastically. Princess Elizabeth, their niece, threw her arms about their necks and gave them each a loud kiss.

King and Queen of Siam



King Pradajhipok and Queen Rambai-Barni, monarchs of Siam, posed briefly for cameramen aboard their special Canadian Pacific train at Vancouver before starting their trip to New York via the Canadian Rockies and Chicago. Indisposed when the Canadian Pacific liner "Empress of Japan" arrived at Victoria and Vancouver after a record-breaking voyage from Yokohama, His Majesty King Pradajhipok was unable to receive the official delegation of welcome. His first public appearance was when he walked from the royal suite aboard the big white liner to the wating royal train parked beside the ship.

UNEMPLOYMENT INSURANCE PLAN IS FORTHCOMING

Ottawa, Ont.—The government hopes to submit to parliament "at the earliest possible moment" legislation providing for some form of unemployment insurance. A statement to this effect was made by Premier R. B. Bennett in the House of Commons.

The prime minister, however, made it clear that such legislation can only be submitted after careful inquiry and the gathering of the fullest information. The department of finance will not act without preliminary investigation. "That course of action would spell disatser; it would bring suffering, not happiness, to those concerned."

The prime minister made one definite declaration. He would never support a system of non-contributory insurance. Canada could not stand a system such as that in operation in Great Britain, with its tremendous drain on the exchequer.

The question of unemployment insurance came before the House in the form of a motion placed on the order paper by A. A. Heaps, Labor member for Winnipeg North. It called upon the government to "take into consideration the immediate establishment of a federal system of insurance against unemployment, sickness and invalidity." He submitted his proposal not as a cure for unemployment, but merely as a palliative, said the Labor member at the outset of his speech. The federal government should "give the lead" to the provinces in such legislation.

The word "immediate" should be deleted from the resolution, suggested Mr. Bennett, and the word "contributory" be included. It was impossible for the government to deal immediately with a matter which might require months of research and actuarial work; also, Canada was about to take a census, and the information then gathered would be of great value in reaching conclusions as to the nature of the proposed scheme. Co-operation of the provinces would be necessary.

Support of the motion was voiced by Mr. King. Modern conditions, involving the use of invention, resulted in men being thrown out of work, and countries were faced with the necessity of providing unemployment relief or unemployment insurance. He favored the latter. If a Dominion old age pensions scheme could be devised, he saw no reason why a scheme of unemployment relief should not also be evolved.

Grain Probe Report

Report Containing 40,000 Words To Be Tabled In House Of Commons

New York, N.Y.—The work of the Royal Grain Commission, appointed by the Canadian government to decide whether or not trading in grain futures is injurious to the interests of the producer, came to an end as its members signed their report aboard the "Mauretania," just before she sailed for England bearing Sir Josiah Stamp, noted economist, who served as chairman of the commission.

The report, which, members said, is about 40,000 words in length will be taken to Ottawa by L. B. Pearson, secretary to the commission, and, it is expected, will soon be tabled in the House of Commons.

Thresh Last Year's Crop

Saskatoon, Sask.—Threshing will be completed in the territory around Prince Albert this week, according to T. F. Mollard, travelling superintendent for the Pool Elevators, who has returned from an inspection trip in that area. Due to wet weather last fall and the October snow storm a considerable quantity of grain remained in the stook. This grain has wintered well and is for the most part grading straight.

Saskatchewan Musical Festival

Moose Jaw, Sask.—Entries are being received in large numbers for the Saskatchewan Musical Festival, which will be held here June 1, 2 and 3, it was learned recently from local festival officials. While no definite figures can be quoted at the present time, the entries are stated to be quite up to expectations.

The village council meets in May session on Monday night.
