Council Buying Brigade Truck

Fire Fighting Equipment Will be Greatly Improved—Plebiscite on Power Franchise Authorized—Date of Vote Not Fixed

All members were present for the regular meeting of the village council on Monday night, with Reeve F. H. Jackson in the chair.

At a special meeting on the fifth it was decided to send a letter to the comptroller of water rights protesting the inaction of West Kootenay Power & Light Company in developing the Goat River canyon, but up till now no answer has been received.

In accordance with the decision at the previous meeting, the necessary motion has been passed authorizing a plebiscite in connection with the local power situation as requested by Creston Power & Light Company. As the company is making the necessary arrangements and is to pay all costs, the company will be allowed to set the date for the plebiscite voting.

Amongst the correspondence was a letter from Chas. Moore accusing the council of trespass in the laying of the new sidewalk on Canyon street east as far as the Sinclair hardware store, but stating he would take no action until after the present council session. The clerk will again write Mr. Moore offering the $1 per foot frontage, the same as paid other landowners.

Capt. O'Peters was present to file certain correspondence he had had with the C.P.R. in connection with crossing betterments near the depot. Sam Steenstrup was present to discuss acquiring a truck for the fire brigade and at this meeting it was decided to purchase a 1930 Chevrolet truck from Andrew Weisgarbar for $325, which will be rebuilt to meet brigade requirements. Tenders are to be called for the deliver of 500 yards of gravel for street improvements wherever required by the streets and roads committee

The regular accounts for September, totalling $206, were ordered paid, and it was also agreed to at once pay the $100 voted the fall fair as well as to pay $80 as the village share of the improvements made on the exhibition main building in connection with the 1931 exhibition.

Deceased was in her 61st year and was a native of Moncton, New Brunswich. Her marriage to Mr. Rogers took place at Nelson a little more than four years ago, since wnen they hav lived at Canyon. The funeral took place on Friday from Canyon United Church with interment in Creston cemetery. The services were taken by Rev. A. Walker and C. Blair, F. Knott, T. R. Mawson, W. E. Searle, John Wood and "Dad" Browell officiating as pallbearers. There was a large turnout of friends and acquaintances to pay a last tribute of respect, and the floral remembrances also bespoke the high esteem in which deceased was held. Ever since coming to Canyon the late Mrs. Rogers has been an active worker in church and all community activities and her passing will be keenly felt. CARD OF THANKS

Mrs. R. Dodds and family take this means of expressing a very grateful appreciation of the kindly letters, the flowers, the sympathy and all the kindnesses shown them in their recent bereavement.

Robert Dodds Hunting Victim

Dies from Gunshot Wound Two Hours After Mishap—Party Who Fired Fatal Shot Not Yet Discovered—Funeral is Large

The saddest death recorded in the district in many years is that of Robert Dodds, third son of Mrs. Robert Dodds of Erickson, who was fatally shot late Sunday afternoon while out hunting in the Arrow Creek district. In the party, besides deceased, were Teddy Haskins, Frank Putnam, Issac and Louis Wenger, and the mishap occurred at a point about a mile beyond the Wenger ranch. The identity of the party who fired the fatal shot is still unkown. A coryner's inquest failed to throw much light on the tragedy, but the police are still working hard on the case and from clues available are hopeful of very shortly solving the mystery.

The late Robert Dodds was in his 25th year. He was born in England and when about four years old came with his parents to make their home in Canada, arriving in Creston in 1910, and about six years later moved to Erickson, where they have resided ever since, his father predeceasing him about three years.

The funeral took place from the family home on Wednesday afternoon, with Rev. T. Scott officiating, and the pallbearers were all young friends of deceased: Lloyd Cartwright, Perley Putnam, Ray McKelvey, Keith Littlejohn, Vernon Handley and Hugh Graham. Six of the younger friends of deceased were flower bearers, Stanley Sanford, Lyle Kemp, James Scott, Sam Percival, Sidney Scott, and Robert Long, Jr. The turnout of friends and acquaintances of deceased and the family to pay a last tribute of respect was ve y large, and the very many floral tributes eloquently bespoke the well deserved popularity of the deceased. Besides his mother, deceased leaves three brothers, Jack, Jim and Walter, and two sisters, Helen at home, and Mrs. W. Percival of Cranbrook.

Of exemplary habits, industrious, thoroughly likable and the willing support of a widowed mother, deceased was a very fine sample of young manhood whose passing under such trying circumstances has cast a gloom over the entire community. In their very heavy bereavement Mrs. Dodds and the family have a sympathy of all that words are entirely inadequate to express.

Amongst those from out-of-town attending the funeral were Mr. Wood, Mrs. McNeil and Mrs. Brown of Cranbrook; Mrs. George and Sam Percival of Rosebery, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Percival and children of Cranbrook.

Institute Filling Community Chest

Would Appreciate Donations of Serviceable Clothing—Have a Practical Demonstration Dress Making and Designing.

There was a splendid turnout of members for the October meeting of Creston and District Women's Institute on October 5th, the president, Mrs. Hayes, occupying the chair, and the feature of proceedings furnished by Miss Lily Lewis of Nelson who gave a very practical demonstration on dressmaking and pattern designing, as well as a demonstiation and display of cushions, flowers and lamp shades. Miss Lewis was very thorough in all details of her effort and was accorded a hearty vote of thanks for her work.

The correspondence included a letter from Rev. R. E. Pow, of the United Church, Redcliff, Alberta, and formerly stationed here, asking the institute to consider sending a carload of fruit and vegetables to the dried out farmers in that area, and the matter was referred to a committee of Mrs. R. Stevens, Mrs. Jas. Cook, Mrs. Payne and Mrs. Ross. Victoria Institute sent along a resolution on freight rates for endorsation. This was read and will be disposed of at the November meeting. B.C. Woollen Mills sent along a cheque for $5. This was third prize money on the quilt shown at Victoria exhibition from wool supplied by the company. Arrangements were made at the meeting for raffling the quilt at a later meeting.

For the hospital committee the convenor, Mrs. Cook, reported the committee had met and made sheets and pillow cases for the hospital and had made arrangements for the making of more of these supplies. There has been donations of white rags from Mrs. Maxwell and a "Friend." The committee was authorized to make the necessary expenditure to secure a bed screen for the Institute room.

Dysentery Is a Very Dangerous Bowel Complaint

Mrs. E. M. Ward, 627 Ave. H. South, Saskatoon, Sask., writes:—"When my husband was in France he took dysentery, and was in hospital over a year. Ever since he came back he has had the attacks three or four times a year. I cannot emphasize the good Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry has done for him. He generally takes a few doses and gets relief in a few hours.

"I cannot speak too highly of your excellent remedy, and you may be sure we are never without a bottle of it in the house."

The Western Spirit

Are the people of Western Canada losing, or in danger of losing, that fine pioneer spirit which enabled them in the past to tighten their belts and hang on through times of stress and hardship, and that optimism which, looking to the future, could distinguish the silver lining to the cloud which presently loomed above them? Are the people of this generation losing, or have they lost, this spirit and outlook on life which carried their forefathers into the forests of old Ontario and Quebec to hew out homes, and which inspired the men and women of a generation ago to trek to the vast prairies of the West, build little shacks and break the virgin soil with a crude plow drawn by oxen?

These questions suggest themselves when we hear of the way in which a considerable number of people are reacting to the existing difficulties confronting them during this period of world-wide depression. Unquestionably many men and women are facing their problems just as courageously as ever, but there does appear to be an increasingly large number who are inclined to throw up their hands and rest content to become objects of charity and governmental assistance. There seems to be a tendency on the part of many to depend solely upon relief supplied by others rather than make a real struggle to provide their own relief from existing difficulties.

Government assistance in times of national emergency,—as the Prime Minister of Canada has described the present situation,—is necessary. So, too, is assistance that can be provided by churches, charitable organizations and individuals. Some families must have such assistance, and, because the need has been created through no fault of their own, they are fully deserving of it. But there are many who can get along without it, or at least with a very minimum of such assistance, but who, because of the organization of relief measures on a large scale, are adopting the attitude that they might just as well get as large a share, a full share, of what is going.

In cities and towns cases are constantly cropping up of people who could get along without help but who, lacking pride or even common honesty, have enrolled themselves on relief lists. The writer has even heard of farmers who, having a small crop, neglected to harvest it because, they argued, they could get more government relief if they had nothing than would be the case if they had even a little of their own.

After all, times like the present call for self-denial, self-sacrifice, courageous effort to make the best of things and get along with as little as possible. Before the Great War people were asking questions somewhat similar to those appearing at the beginning of this article. Had the human race deteriorated? The stamina of the race was demonstrated in the fiery furnace of war, not only by men in the trenches, but by the munition worker, the producers of food, transportation workers, and the great mass of people everywhere and in all walks of life. Practically everybody was willing to assume their share of the burden and make their sacrifice, large or small.

A revival of the same spirit is necessary now. True, there were profiteers, and grafters, and slackers, during the war, but they were regarded with loathing and contempt then, and still are. We want none of them now. What Western Canada needs today in order to successfully tide over the existing depression, and to save the country for the future, is the old spirit which was so long the pride and boast of this country,—the courage, the endurance, the optimism of the early pioneers. It was that spirit which made the country what it came to be; it was the same spirit that won the war; it is the same spirit that will save the day now, both in the case of the individuals who display such spirit, and in the country as a whole. Lying down, letting "George do it," trying to get something for nothing, grumbling and fault-finding will not better the situation one whit. It will only make matters worse.

Let us as a people, individually and collectively, stand upright on our own feet and fight our way through. Where there's a will, there's a way. It can be done. It must be done, or we are but creating greater problems and piling up still larger difficulties for the future.

Ten Years Of Seed Collecting

British Columbia Has Produced Over Twenty Tons Of Various Species

The establishment for the extraction of forest tree seed which has been maintained at New Westminster, British Columbia, by the Forest Service of the Department of the Interior, has now completed ten years of service, and in that time has produced 40,940 pounds (practically twenty and a half tons) of seeds of forest trees of various species. Virtually all of this has been sent to the Forestry Commission of Great Britain and the state forest services of New Zealand and Australia. The chief species whose seed has been secured are Sitka (or silver), spruce, western yellow (ponderosa) pine, and Douglas fir.

Almost one-third of the wells that are drilled for oil and gas produce nothing.

No One Escapes Tax

Germany Goes About Collection In Very Thorough Way

The thoroughness with which the German tax of £5 is collected is illustrated by the following incident that occurred at Mannheim Aerodrome, says the Geneva correspondent of the Irish Independent, Dublin.

A German citizen—a woman—was a passenger by air from Holland direct to Switzerland. She had been staying at Amsterdam, and was proceeding right through to Basle. Unfortunately, however, she alighted for a few moments at Mannheim, in Germany, and because she had stepped on German soil she was relieved, despite her protests, of 100 marks for leaving Germany."

New Advertising Idea

As Carried Out By Grocer In Denver, Colorado

The idea is not exactly new but its application is, as far as we know. A. Denver, Colorado, grocer, cutting a baseball in two, pasted one half on the outside of his show window and the other half just opposite on the inside. That made the ball look as if it had been driven partly through the glass. A few streaks of black paint, artistically grouped like cracks. Nearby, a placard labeled "A Big Hit" carried a list of bargains the store was offering.

Gandhi May Visit America

Indian Leader Willing If He Would N. : Be Made Ridiculous

Mahatma Gandhi is willing to go to the United States at the conclusion of the round table conference if his friends can convince John Haynes Holmes, New York pastor, that the Mahatma would not be made a laughing stock.

"Holmes tells me my visit would be misunderstood, that I would be exploited, ridiculed and misinterpreted," Gandhi said.

"If others who have invited me can convince Holmes I ought to go to America I shall be glad to reconsider my decision."

"Einstein said his visit was the greatest mistake of his life because most Americans regarded him only as a spectacle. I'm not as sensitive as Einstein but I ought not to go to America unless the American people are willing to listen to my message rather than regard me as a curiosity."

Coal Imports

Increase Shown In Importation Of Welsh and Scotch Hard Coal

Anthracite coal from the British Isles, imported to Canada through the port of Montreal this season had reached a total of 550,668 tons to the end of September. The figure was 9,373 tons higher than in 1930 to the same date.

Overseas coal and coke receipts for this season are lower than last year by 105,020 tons, due to the embargo on the importation of Russian anthracite. The increase in Welsh and Scotch hard coal has not made up the differences. Last year 148,000 tons of Soviet anthracite was landed here.

MOURNING WARDROBE

"A death occurred in our family and I had to go in mourning. I could hardly afford to buy all black clothes, so decided to dye what I had. I consulted our druggist and he advised using Diamond Dyes. Everything came out beautifully; coats, wool dresses, stockings and all. I have since learned to appreciate the excellence of the black Diamond Dyes. I tried another black dye and the results were impossible. I had to get Diamond Dyes and do the work over. Recently I have tinted my curtains a beautiful raspberry shade and dyed a rug a lovely garnet with Diamond Dyes. They are real money savers—the finest dyes money can buy—I truly believe."

Alfalfa Good For Humans

Hey! Hay! It's good for you. Alfalfa, the cow's delight, is bully for humans, according to Dr. E. V. McCollum, of James Hopkins University. The cattle food, he told a health institute called by the Milk Council of Greater Chicago, is crammed full of vitamins and is palatable in salad form. As a substitute, however, for those who do not like hay, Dr. McCollum suggested that they drink milk only from cows fed on alfalfa.

MINARD'S "KING OF PAIN" LINIMENT

When You CAN'T QUIT

Fatigue is the signal to rest. Obey it if you can. When you can't, keep cool and carry-on in comfort.

Aspirin was meant for just such times, for it insures your comfort. Freedom from those pains that nag at nerves and wear you down. One tablet will block that threatening headache while it is still just a threat. Take two or three tablets when you've caught a cold, and that's usually the end of it.

Carry Aspirin tablets when you travel. Have some at home and keep some at the office. Like an efficient secretary, they will often "save the day" and spare you many uncomfortable, unproductive hours. Aspirin is harmless, so keep it handy, keep it in mind, and use it. No man of affairs can afford to ignore the score and more of uses explained in the proven directions. From a grumbling tooth to those rheumatic pains which seem almost to bend the bones, Aspirin tablets are ready with quick relief—and always work. Neuralgia. Neuritis. Any nagging, needless pain.

Get the genuine tablets, stamped with the Bayer cross. They are of perfect purity, absolute uniformity, and have the same action every time. Why experiment with imitations costing a few cents less? The saving is too little. There is too much at stake. But there is economy in the purchase of genuine Aspirin tablets in the large bottles.

Made in Canada

Commercial Canning

Fruits and Vegetables Are Canned Under Strict Government Supervision

Commercially canned products, either fruits or vegetables, have an advantage from the technical standpoint of being canned at perfect maturity and within a few hours of harvesting. At one time the canning of fruits and vegetables was almost entirely done in the home; today the modern housewife gets her winter supply of fruits from the products of the up-to-date canning factory.

The pure food laws of Canada provide that canned fruits and vegetables must be sound products made from sterilized, clean, sound, properly matured and prepared fresh fruits or vegetables by means of heat, and kept in suitable, clean containers closed automatically or otherwise, and marked as to conform in name to the particular fruits or vegetables used in their preparation. No adulterated preservative or artificial coloring may be used in commercially canned fruits or vegetables. They may contain only pure water, sugar and salt as preservatives.

All canned products manufactured in Canada are produced under the strict supervision of the commercial canning inspection service of the Dominion fruit branch. Under this service four grades for quality are provided, and these are respectively: Fancy, choice, standard and second. The terms used to describe each grade indicate clearly and concisely the nature and character of the product which qualifies for the grade.

An Oil Of Merit.—Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil is not a jumble of medicinal substances thrown together and pushed by advertising, but the result of the careful investigation of the healing qualities of certain oils as applied to the human body. It is a rare combination and it won and kept public favor from the first. A trial of it will carry conviction to any who doubt its power to repair and heal.

Trade Opportunities

Good Market In France For Canadian Horses and Cattle

With a little adjusting of conditions here and there, there is every reason why Canada might export between 10,000 and 15,000 horses annually to France, and should also secure a larger share in France's cattle imports, which run to $200,000,000 annually, in the opinion of Michael Sauzet of Paris, who deals with livestock in a large way and who has been spending several weeks in Canada as a purchaser.

We'd hate to agree to hold the baby for Mr. and Mrs. Lindbergh.

Would Trade Coal For Wheat

The newspaper Tageblatt said negotiations were underway for the barter of half a million tons of Ruhr coal for a quantity of Brazilian coffee in a manner similar to that in which Brazil recently traded coffee for wheat from the United States. The Tageblatt suggests that negotiations might be extended to include a trade of coal for Canadian wheat.

THE HOUSE OF DREAMS-COME-TRUE

— BY —

MARGARET PEDLER

Author Of "The Splendid Folly." "The Hermit Of Far End."

Hodder & Stoughton, Ltd., London.

"I fear I seem intrusive. But I am so interested in your future—I have taken a great fancy to you, mademoiselle. That must be my excuse." She rose from the table, adding smilingly: "At least you will not find it dull, since Lady Anne has two sons. They will be companions for you."

Jean rose, too, and together they passed out of the salle a manger.

"And what do you propose to do with yourself today?" asked the Countess, pausing in the hall. "My husband and I are going for a sleigh drive. Would you care to come with us? We should be delighted."

Jean shook her head.

"It's very kind of you. But I should really like to try my luck on the ice. I haven't skated for some years, and as I feel a trifle shaky about beginning again, Monsieur Griolet, who directs the sports, has promised to coach me up a bit some time this morning."

"Bon!" Madame de Varigny nodded pleasantly. "You will be well occupied while we are away. Au revoir, then, till our return. Perhaps we shall walk down to the rink later to witness your progress under Monsieur Griolet's instruction."

She smiled mischeviously, the smile irradiating her face with a sudden charm. Jean felt as though, for a moment, she had glimpsed the woman the Countess might have been but for some happening in her life which had soured and embittered it, setting that strange implacability within the liquid depths of her soft, southern eyes.

She was still speculating on Madame de Varigny's curious personality as she made her way along the beaten track that led towards the rink, and then, as a sudden turn of the way brought the sheet of ice suddenly into full view, all thoughts concerning the bunch of contradictions that goes to make up individual character were swept out of her mind.

In the glory of the morning sunlight the stretch of frozen water gleamed like a shield of burnished silver, whilst on its further side rose great pine-woods, mysteriously dark and silent, climbing the steeply rising ground towards the mountains.

There were a number of people skating, and Jean discovered Monsieur Griolet in the distance, supervising the practice of a pretty American girl who was cutting figures with an ease and exquisite balance of lithe body that hardly seemed to stand in need of the instructions he poured forth so volubly. Probably, Jean decided, the American had entered for some match and was being coached up to concert pitch accordingly.

She stood for a little time watching with interest the varied performances of the skaters. Bands of light-hearted folk, indulging in the sport just for the sheer enjoyment of it, sped gaily by, broken snatches of their talk and laughter drifting back to her as they passed, whilst groups of more accomplished skaters performed intricate evolutions with an earnestness and intensity of purpose almost worthy of a better cause.

Jean felt a little stranded and forlorn. She would have liked someone to share her enthusiasm for the marvels achieved by the figure-skaters—and to laugh with her a little at their deadly seriousness and at the scraps of heated argument anent the various schools of technique which came to her, borne on the still, clear air.

Presently her attention was attracted by the solitary figure of a man who swept past her in the course of making a complete circle of the rink. He skimmed the ice with the free assurance of an expert, and as he passed, Jean caught a fleeting glimpse of a supple, sinewy figure, and of a lean, dark face, down-bent, with a cap crammed low on to the somewhat scowling brows.

There was something curiously distinctive about the man. Brief as was her vision of him, it possesed an odd definiteness—a vividness of impression that was rather startling.

He flashed by, his arms folded across his chest, moving with long, rhythmic strokes which soon carried him to the further side of the rink. Jean's eyes followed him interestedly. He was unmistakably an Englishman, and he seemed to be as solitary as herself, but, unlike her, he appeared indifferent to the fact, absorbed in his own thoughts which, to judge by the sullen, brooding expression of his face, were not particularly pleasant ones.

Soon she lost sight of him amid the scattered groups of smoothly gliding figures. The scene reminded her of a cinema show. People darted suddenly into the picture, materializing in full detail in the space of a moment, then rushed out of it again, dwindling into insignificant black dots which merged themselves into the continuously shifting throng beyond.

At last she bent her steps towards the lower end of the rink, by common consent reserved for beginners in the art of skating. She had not skated for several years, owing to a severe strain which had left her with a weak ankle, and she felt somewhat nervous about starting again.

Rather slowly she fastened on her skates and ventured tentatively on to the ice. For a few minutes she suffered from a devastating feeling that her legs didn't belong to her, and wished heartily that she had never quitted the safe security of the bank, but before long her confidence returned, and with it that flexible ease of balance which, once acquired, is never really lost.

In a short time she was thoroughly enjoying the rapid, effortless motion, and felt herself equal to steering a safe course beyond the narrow limits of the "Mugs Corner"—as that portion of the ice allotted to novices was unkindly dubbed.

She struck out for the middle of the rink, gradually increasing her speed and revelling in the sting of the keen, cold air against her face. Then, all at once, it seemed as though the solid surface gave way beneath her foot. She lurched forward, flung violently off her balance, and in the same moment the sharp clink of metal upon the ice betrayed the cause. One of her skates insecurely fastened, had come off.

She staggered wildly, and in another instant would have fallen had not someone, swift as a shadow, glided suddenly abreast of her and, slipping a supporting arm round her waist, skated smoothly beside her, little by little slackening their mutual pace until Jean, on one blade all this time, could stop without danger of falling.

As they glided to a standstill, she turned to offer her thanks and found herself looking straight into the lean, dark face of the Englishman who had passed her when she had been watching the skaters.

He lifted his cap, and as he stood for a moment bareheaded beside her, she noticed with a curious little shock—half surprised, half appreciative—that on the left temple his dark brown hair was streaked with a single pure white lock, as though a finger had been laid upon the hair and bleached it where it lay. It conferred a certain air of distinction—an added value of contrast—just as the sharp black shadow in a neutral-tinted picture gives sudden significance to the whole conception.

The stranger was regarding Jean with a flicker of amusement in his grey eyes.

The stranger was regarding Jean with a flicker of amusement in his grey eyes.

"That was a near thing!" he observed.

Evidently he judged her to be a Frenchwoman, for he spoke in French—very fluently, but with an unmistakably English accent. Instinctively Jean, who all her life had been as frequently called upon to converse in French as English, responded in the same language.

She was breathing rather quickly, a little shaken by the suddenness of the incident, and his face took on a shade of concern.

"You're not hurt, I hope? Did you twist your ankle?"

"No, oh, no," she smiled up at him. "I can't have fastened my skate on properly, and when it shot off like that I'm afraid I rather lost my head. You see," she added explanatorily, "I haven't skated for some years. And I was never very proficient."

"I see," he said gravely. "It was a little rash of you to start again quite alone, wasn't it?"

"I suppose it was. However, as you luckily happened to be there to save me from the consequences, no harm is done. Thank you so much."

There was a note of dismissal in her voice, but apparently he failed to notice it, for he held out his hands to her, crosswise, saying:

"Let me help you to the bank, and then I'll retrieve your errant skate for you."

He so evidently expected her to comply with his suggestion that, almost without her own volition, she found herself moving with him towards the edge of the rink, her hands grasped in a close, steady clasp, and a moment later she was scrambling up the bank. Once more on level ground, she made a movement to withdraw her hands.

"I can manage quite well now," she said rather nervously. There was something in that strong, firm grip of his which sent a curious tremor of consciousness through her.

Introducing New Method Of Painless Dental Operation

The Brooklyn Eagle has reported a bloodless and painless dental operation with hypnotism replacing anesthetic. The paper said the experiment was witnessed by its own science editor in the offices of Dr. A. J. Bruchlacher, Brooklyn dentist.

Walter L. Orton, mechanical engineer and vice-president of the Brooklyn Psychic Research society, kept a woman whose name was given only as "Miss M. C." under hypnotic influence for 15 minutes, the paper said, while Dr. Bruchlacher extracted a tooth, made an incision in a gum and cut away a growth of bone.

THE RHYMING OPTIMIST

By Aline Michaelis

BY TIME UNSTAINED

This is the greatest love, the love that lives
Unchanged by changing time and circumstance,
That still a portion of its glamour gives
To touch with peace each whim of madcap Chance.
It lends to life's adventure, strange and long,
Always a blessing by naught else conferred;
It is the sweetness lingering after song,
The hidden meaning of the spoken word.

No part in it have years, for it may be
The treasure of the heart from youth to age,
Or but an hour's sudden ecstasy
Obliterated by life's turning page.
The fair ideal, desired and unattained,
This is the only love by time unstained.

Moon Erratic In Its Course

The moon is so erratic, scientists say, that its position cannot be determined as exactly as that of stars. That is, it is never where it should be in its theoretical orbit, and what is so strange, it is the only body known to disobey such laws. In an effort to solve the mystery, computers of the naval almanac office are making a two-year check on the occulations of stars by the moon.

Little Helps For This Week

"Trust in Him at all times."—Psalm-lxii, 8.

I know not what my life shall hold
Of love or light,
Only that safe within the fold
It shall be right;
I only seek to find the ways
His feet have pressed;
And feel through fair or darker days
He knoweth best.

Whatever our needs, He can supply them, for He is God. He will supply them, for He is love. Only let us believe, and our joy and blessedness shall be full. Let us honour God by trusting Him entirely. Let us be as willing to receive as He is to bestow.

Idea Claimed For Chinese

Antiquarians Say They Were Inventors Of Ink and Fountain Pens

The idea of a fountain pen goes a very long way back, and no one man can be considered its inventor. Certainly a crude fountain pen was in use in England in the seventeenth century, but antiquarians go back a good deal further than that in their history. It is claimed that the idea was Chinese—they were the inventors of ink—and fountain pens were in use in China hundreds of years before the Christian era began.

A man's good judgment usually shows up the day after.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Correspondent Erred

Editor Review:

Sir,—I am very sorry an error of mine caused "Critic" to unjustly criticize Wynndel Woman's Auxiliary as per his (?) letter of October 9th. The W.A. meeting was held on October 14th, and not the 7th, as I reported.

Wynndel Correspondent.

To Whom it May Concern

Editor Review:

Sir,—In the issue of the Review of October 2nd one could not help but notice the slam that was given the Institute women at the end of the Wynndel news. It almost states, only in a polite manner, that the report the delegate read at the conference at Edgewood was nothing short of a downright lie.

On looking over the efforts of the Wynndel Women's Institute since last year one does not see the usual picnic for the children to Kuskanook during the summer. Why? No co-operation. March 6th, the members put on a dance. What happened that only one lady and five men turned up? No co-operation. Although in spite of the well laid plans of men and mice it was not a freeze-out, thanks to the co-operation of the outside districts.

A picnic was planned by one of of the members, apart from the Institute. What happened? No co-operation. Some mothers, past grand members, forbid the youngster to go near.

Along came the convention. The delegate read the report as follows: "In spite of all our struggles we cannot get the co-operation to make our efforts a success." Was that statement untrue?

Not until the fall fair came along did we get any co-operation, and why? For 50 cents you had a chance of winning something worth while. Some of you did come away with several red tickets, and blue also. Those who stood back were heard to say. Ah, I wish I had entered for this and that. I know I could have got first on this, and a sure second on that.

What other organization has offered you the worth of 50 cents as those women did at the 1931 fall fair. And the management, and the whole turnout proved a credit to them. Those women had to shoulder a debt that the 1929 directors left for them—the Otha Scott fund.

They have worked faithfully for the crippled child that was sent to the solarium, and by all accounts the wee mite is ready to be brought back a picture of health.

If one reads again through that paragraph you will read between the lines, fee, fie, fo, fum; I smell the blood of a green eyed monster. Far be it that disrespect be thrown at any member of that small handful of women. I say take off your hat to them; they are worthy of better treatment than spiteful slams.

Try to remember the remarks and advice Rev. R. E. Cribb gave at the banquet held in the hall last spring. I wonder if he realized how very near he was to hitting the nail on the head. Once more I say, three cheers for the Women's Institute at Wynndel.

Inquest Returns Open Verdict

All Members Hunting Party Give Evidence—Unfortudate Man Dies Just Before Doctor Arrives—Bullet Severs Artery

The inquest into the death of Robert Dodds, who was shot while out with a hunting party at Arrow Creek on Sunday afternoon, was opened on Monday afternoon before coroner Col. Mallandaine and a jury made up of A L.Palmer, foreman; F. C. Rodgers, Sam Steenstrup, Jas. Cherrington, R. Walmsley and M. J. Beninger. In the afternoon the scene of the fatality was visited and the jury viewed the body, which was immediately released for burial, which took place on Wednesday.

The hunting party, when it started out before noon, consisted of Teddy Haskins, Frank Putnam and deceased. About 4 o'clock they arrived at the Isaac Wenger ranch at Arrow Creek, and after looking the pl ce over they started off about 4.40 "to get a deer," on the suggestion of the deceased. They were joined on the hunt by Isaac Wenger and his son, Louis

Haskins, however, found the trip a little too strenuous, quit the hunt, and came back to his car. Louis Wenger and Dodds went off together, and Putnam and Isaac Wenger in another direction. All separated in due course, and about a half hour after starting a shot was heard. Putnam enquired of Isaac Wenger if he had fired and Wenger said he had not. A few minutes later Louis Wenger came out of the brush and asked the same question which made it clear none of these three had fired. Within a minute or two the three were startled to hear a shout from somene for help. They hurried off in the direction the sound came from, shouting as they went, and soon came within range of the cry, "I'm shot!"

It took between ten and fifteen minutes to locate the unfortunate hunter whom they found at a spot about a mile up hill from the Wenger ranch house. He was lying on his stomach between a log and a stub, in a small clearing. On examination the wound just below the left thigh did not seem to be bleeding seriously and an effort was made to pack the body out, but it was quicky discovered the hurt was much more serious than anticipated and Louis Wenger was despatched to get Haskins and go for a doctor, while Wenger senior rushed to the house to get a stretcher, the latter having Mrs. Wenger hitch a horse to a stoneboat and come up the trail to meet them coming out with the injured man.

The stretcher, which was an iron bed was difficult to handle over the logs and rocks and through the brush, and the getting out of the unfortunate man was both tedious and painful. Several stops having to be made to ease the patient and rest the carriers, and at each stop it was apparent Dodds was passing out rapidly

Dr. Henderson was promptly on the scene but in the failing light and with insufficient direction had some trouble in locating the stretcher and on his arrival found the unfortunate had passed away before his arrival. An unsuccessful effort to stop the flow of blood was made by tying a rope about the thigh above the wound.

During a period of conscienceness deceased was asked as to what direction the shot came from, was it close up and had he any idea who might have fired the fatal shot, but on only one point was he clear, that he'd been shot from behind while facing up hill. Only two other hunters were encountered that day, and these were met with some hours before the mishap.

According to the doctor's evidence the bullet was 30.30 calibre which was entirely different from the rifles carried by other members of the party. The bullet grazed a tree before striking Dodds and passed clean through the leg leaving marks on the ground behind the body where it had ploughed along. Where the mishap happened the brush was thick except for a space of about 30 yards.

Witnesses examined at Monday night's session were Dr. Henderson, Frank Putnam, Isaac and Louis Wenger and Teddy Haskins. It was adjourned until Tuesday evening in order to give the police further opportunity to investigate the scene of the shooting. D. Halcrow havin arrived on Monday from Nelson to assist R. H. Hassard.

The only evidence taken at the Tuesday evening session of the inquest was that of provincial police R. H Hassard and provincial police D. Halcrow, who is here from Nelson assisting with the case. The former testified to making a thorough inspection of the area in which the sad accident happened. He estimated the distance from the spot where the shot was fired to the spot were Dodds was standing would be about 265 feet. He determined this as the possible location of the party who fired the fatal shot as it was the only one from which such a shot chuld be so effectively fired. Judging by the hole the bullet made in a piece of bark, which was produced as evidence, the rifle was bigger than a 30-30. It might have been a 45-90. Mr Hassard testified that the rifles off the hunters in the party had been examined but were too dirty to admit of any decision as to whether they had been fired.

Mr. Halcrow's evidence was much the same line. He figured it was about 262 yerds from the point where the three hunters were congregated, when they heard the shout for help to the spot where Dodds lay. He had stood at this point while Mr. Hassard had stood where the three men were grouped and had shouted and could hear each other quite plainly. Mr Halcrow stated that if the man who did the shooting stood at the location they presumed he occupied he could distinguish Dodds provided the latter was standing in a position facing north.

The verdict of the jury was that the late Robert Dodds came to his death from a shot fired from a gun in the hands of an unknown party. The verdict also recommended that the attorney general impose more stringent regulations on those taking out licenses to carry firearms.

Notwithstanding the mystery that apparently surrounds the affair, the police are following some likely clues and are confident of apprehending the guilty party. As the mishap was undoubtedly accidental it is hard to understand why the one who was un ortunate in firing the shot does not admit his serious mistake. No good purpose is served in concealing the fact, and the whole community would feel better with the matter cleared up.

A Time For Self Control

As Shakespeare once put it, "the times are out of joint." These are troublous days, and days of trouble. Men's nerves are on edge, and little things that would be passed over lightly in good times are every day becoming the cause of quarrels. Because nerves are on edge, tempers are not under control even to the extent they usually are, and in the case of most people tempers are never controlled as they should be.

Today people will argue and dispute about almost anything, and lose their tempers over the most trivial matters which are of no importance whatever. The great Bard of Avon wrote: "Beware of entrance to a quarrel; but, being in, bear it that the opposed may beware of thee." Abraham Lincoln, however, said that while this advice was good, it was not the best, and he substituted: "Quarrel not at all. No man, resolved to make the most of himself, can spare time for personal contention. Still less can he afford to take the consequences, including the vitiation of his temper and the loss of self-control. Yield larger things to which you show no more than equal right; and yield lesser ones though clearly your own. Better give your path to a dog than be bitten by him in contesting for the right. Even killing the dog would not cure the bite."

This is not to say that a man should sacrifice so much as one important conviction, or yield his principles for the sake of peace or profit. There are times when a man should get mad, when we could feel nothing but contempt for him if he did not. But such occasions are few and far between. The trivial, inconsequent thing should never be the cause of disputation or outbreak of temper.

We are reminded of the three-word Latin motto above the doorway of the ancient chamber in the Guildhall in which the aldermen of London hold their court and which no one of them can fail to see: "Audi alteram partem." Hear the other side.

And in old England, with its long years of experience in handling human beings of all classes and degrees in all parts of the world, how much wiser than other nations is she in dealing with agitators. The Old Land long ago learned that talk, like any other gas, is dangerous only when compressed. Younger countries, Canada included, has yet to learn that lesson. So we find in London, instead of attempting to suppress the Hyde Park orators, the British authorities supply police protection for them, let them say their say, and do not quarrel with them.

And what is the cause of most misunderstandings, leading to loss of temper and open quarrels? Is it not that in our self-opinionated state we are wasting our energies and increasing our blood pressure trying, over trivial things, to set somebody else right? Instead of accepting people for what they are, we are forever trying to mold their lives to our preconceived model, endeavouring to organize them. How many married couples live in a state of tension because one or both seek to make the other over. If once the idea could get abroad that the real appeal of the sexes is the fact that they are not alike, what a great gain that would be. And what applies to the sexes applies equally to races, creeds, and other established facts of life.

Let us stop trying to organize the lives of other people, and attend strictly to the task of organizing our own. Let us master the lesson that, after all, there are comparatively few issues in this world worth disputing over. It would, of course, be a sad day for the world if righteous indignation vanished from it, if men became so immersed in the scramble for profit and place of power that they could no longer get mad over palpable wrongs and gross injustices. But the point is that too much of the world's anger is poured out in defence of pride or prejudice instead of conviction.

As one old Roman philosopher said: "Many have suffered for talking; none ever suffered for keeping silent." And, on another occasion, "We cannot be wrong in leaving other people's business alone."

Using Seed Cleaning Units

Saskatchewan Municipalities Taking Advantage Of Outfits Supplied

Several municipalities in Saskatchewan already have made applications to the Field Crop Branch of the Department of Agriculture for seed cleaning units as supplied by the Saskatchewan Government in co-operation with the Dominion Seed Branch. Under this scheme, the Governments furnish the machinery, the municipality being required to provide the motive power and the housing accommodation. All the outfits supplied to date have been of an itinerant nature, and may be transported from farm to farm during the seed cleaning period.

Hunters In B.C. Are Using Bow and Arrow For Big Game

Near Longworth, B.C., sixty miles east of Prince George, big game is being hunted with bow and arrow by F. Nagler, of Milwaukee, Wis., an archer of national repute. William W. Tefft, of Jackson, Mich., who has tracked animals in many countries of the world, is accompanying Mr. Nagler.

The expedition, which comprises five members, left Longworth a short time ago. Other members of the novel hunt are Leslie Hale, Arthur Read, of Longworth, and R. A. McLeod, of Dome Creek.

Suffered Severe, Painful Cramps In Her Stomach

Those terrible cramps in the stomach that double you up in pain and make you break out in a cold perspiration, may be stopped by a few doses of Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry.

Mrs. Lloyd Jones, 204 Argyle St., Halifax, N.S., writes:—"I have suffered greatly from severe and painful cramps in my stomach. I tried several remedies without result. One day a friend advised me to take Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry, so I bought a bottle and got instant relief."

Sheep Buried In Snow

Found Alive Eight Weeks After South African Storm

Hundreds of South Africans saw a fall of snow for the first time in their lives during a recent heavy storm on Table Mountain and other Cape ranges. While the present season is "winter" on this side of the equator, snow has rarely been seen this far south.

From the interior comes a story of how 18 sheep lived for eight weeks under an avalanche of snow in the Molteno district.

Although completely hemmed in, they managed to keep alive by breathing through the melting snow and eating the grass on the floor of the aperture, as well as snow. When found they were little more than skeletons. They are now recovering.

AS SLIM AS AT 20

Still Fit and Active at 55

"I have been taking the small dose of Kruschen Salts every morning for the last three years. I wouldn't be without them in the house. I used to suffer with constipation and piles, but am never troubled in that way now. I am 55 years, and as slim as when I was 20. I have to work very hard, as I have my family and an invalid father to attend to, and I always say it's the Kruschen that keeps me fit."—M. S.

There's nothing like hard work and activity for keeping superfluous fat away. The trouble with most folks is finding the necessary energy. That is where Kruschen comes in.

After you have had your daily supply of Kruschen every morning for a couple of weeks you'll get what is known the world over as "That Kruschen Feeling."

The urge for activity will fill your entire being—you'll not be content to sit in the old arm chair after your day's work is done.

You'll feel the spirit of youth within you—what a joyous feeling—you'll want to take long walks, play games and your work will cease to be a hardship—it will become a pleasure.

Trade and Commerce

Oregon has a buy-at-home campaign and so has the state of Washington. Each is cancelling contracts which have been made across the border. Keep it up. Buy only in your own state, buy only in your own home town, buy only on your own side of the street, buy only from a member of your own family and thus get rich. The whole idea of trade and commerce must, it seems, be old-fashioned and foolish.—Toronto Star.

Exhausted From Asthma. Many who read these words know the horrible drain upon health and strength, which comes in the train of asthmatic troubles. Many do not realize, however, that there is one true remedy which will usually stop this drain. Dr. J. D. Kellogg's Asthma Remedy is a wonderful check to this enervating ailment. It has a countless record of relief to its credit. It is sold almost everywhere.

Saskatchewan University

Increased Attendance Is Shown For the Current Term

Former students returning to Saskatchewan University brought up the enrolment in the regular classes to 1,043 or 47 less than last year, announces President W. C. Murray. To offset this the number enrolled in the correspondence courses has increased by 57 to 303, giving a net increase of ten students.

The decline is mainly in the college of arts and sciences. The College of Pharmacy shows reduced enrolment, and engineering a considerable increase. The other colleges have about the same numbers as on the corresponding day last year.

City Covers Big Acreage

Regina is one of the largest cities in Canada. It covers 8,408 acres, more than twice as big as many eastern cities of similar or even larger population. Within the confines of Regina are more than 500 acres of civic parks, nearly 100 acres of exhibition grounds, besides a great deal of vacant property. Regina could comfortably accommodate twice its present population without extending the boundaries.

Canada Has Thousands Of Level Crossings

Removal Of All Impossible Says Hon. Frank Oliver

The Dominion at present has some 28,000 level crossings scattered along railways from coast to coast despite expenditure of $15,189,000 over the past 21 years towards elimination and amelioration of this menace to traffic, according to Hon. Frank Oliver, advisory officer to the Board of Railway Commissioners for Canada, in a paper before the recent convention of the Canadian Good Roads Association at Lucerne-in-Quebec.

In 1930, a total of 341 railway crossing accidents in Canada took a toll of 115 lives and 475 injured, Mr. Oliver stated. Through the efforts of the Board of Railway Commissioners much had been done to improve railway crossing conditions Mr. Oliver continued.

Crossing accidents on provincial highways formed less than one-third of the total for 1930, the great majority of crossing fatalities occuring on country roads.

The annual government grant of $200,000 to the Board for the railway crossing fund was inadequate, the speaker said, and it would be impossible to entirely remove all level crossings in the Dominion.

J. P. Bickell, registrar of motor vehicles of Ontario, said the death rate exceeded three persons a day on Canada's roads. The total of automobile fatalities in the year 1930 was 1,289 and the injured were approximately 40,000.

Kind Words Cost Nothing

There sometimes are excuses to be made for the men and women who are stingy with money, but not for those who are stingy with appreciation. Kind words cost nothing, at all; yet some of you are as reluctant to make use of them as any old miser is to part with one of his cherished gold pieces.

No Longer a Bugbear

Britain's Departure From Gold Standard Not Likely To Harm Anybody

The United States owns nearly half the gold supply of the world. At the beginning of the present month, United States-owned gold amounted to $4,983,000,000, a new high record. Yet in the Republic at this very moment, some millions of men, women and children are fearfully wondering how they are going to keep warm and fed this coming winter.

Perhaps the position of the United States has little real relation to the gold standard in Britain, or its departure from it. Yet existing world realities have knocked so many ancient and cherished theories into a cocked hat it will be surprising if what has been done in Britain visits much harm upon anybody. Currency changes, most certainly, long ago ceased to be a bugbear.—Ottawa Journal.

FASHION HINT

"How to make my old short skirts conform to the new length was a problem to me until I hit on this plan. I dropped the hems; and as the part that had been turned under was darker than the rest, I redyed the entire dress, after having bleached the goods, following directions in the Diamond Dyes package.

"I used Diamond Dyes for the redyeing, of course. I have dyed many things with these wonderful colors. They have saved me many dollars and have never failed to give perfect results—smooth, even colors—fast to wear and washing. Friends think my things are new when I redye or tint them with Diamond Dyes. They do give the most gorgeous colors!"

Similarity Of Names

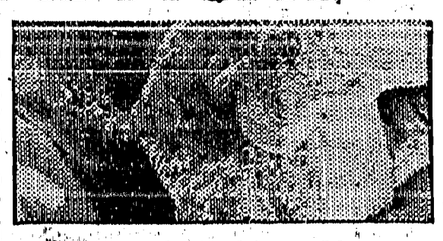
"SICK HEADACHE?"



IT is not necessary to give-in to headaches. It is just a bit old-fashioned! The modern woman who feels a headache coming on at any time, takes some tablets of Aspirin and heads it off.

Keep Aspirin handy, and keep your engagements. Headaches, systemic pains, come at inconvenient times. So do colds. You can end them before they're fairly started if you'll only remember this handy, harmless form of relief. Carry it in your purse and insure your comfort while shopping; your evening's pleasure at the theatre. Those little nagging aches that bring a case of "nerves" by day are ended in a jiffy. Pains that once kept people home are forgotten half an hour after taking Aspirin! You'll find these tablets always help. In every package of Aspirin tablets are proven directions which cover colds, headaches, sore throat, toothache, neuralgia, neuritis, sciatica, and even rheumatism.

The tablets stamped Bayer won't fail you, and can't harm you. They don't depress the heart. They don't upset the stomach. So take them whenever you need them, and take enough to end the pain. Aspirin is made in Canada.

THE HOUSE OF DREAMS-COME-TRUE

—BY—

MARGARET PEDLER

Author Of "The Splendid Folly," "The Hermit Of Far End."

Hodder & Stoughton, Ltd., London.

He made no answer, but released her instantly, and in her anxiety to show him how well she could manage she hurried on, struck the tip of the skate she was still wearing against a little hummock of frozen snow, and all but fell. He caught her as the stumbled.

"I think," he remarked drily, "you would do well to sacrifice your independence till your feet are on more equal terms with one another."

Jean laughed ruefully.

"I think I should," she agreed meekly.

He led her to where the prone trunk of a tree offered a seat of sorts, then went in search of the missing skate. Returning in a few moments, he knelt beside her and fastened it on—securely this time—to the slender foot she extended towards him.

"You're much too incompetent to be out on the ice alone," he remarked as he buckled the last strap.

A faint flush of annoyance rose in Jean's cheeks at the uncompromising frankness of the observation.

"What are your friends thinking of to let you do such a thing?" he pursued, blandly ignoring her mute indignation.

"I have no friends here. I am—my own mistress," she replied rather tartly.

He was still kneeling in the snow in front of her. Now he sat back on his heels and subjected her face to a sharp, swift scrutiny. Almost, she thought, she detected a sudden veiled suspicion in the keen glance.

"You're not the sort of girl to be knocking about—alone—at a hotel," he said at last, as though satisfied.

"How do you know what I'm like?" she retorted quickly. "You are hardly qualified to judge."

"Pardon, mademoiselle, I do not know what you are—but I do know very certainly what you are not. And"—smiling a little—"I think we have just had ocular demonstration of the fact that you're not accustomed to fending for yourself."

There was something singularly attractive about his smile. It lightened his whole face, contradicting the settled gravity that seemed habitual to it, and Jean found herself smiling back in response.

"Well, as a matter of fact, I'm not," she admitted, "I came here with my father, and he was—was suddenly called away. I am going on to stay with friends."

"This is my last day here," he remarked with sudden irrelevance. "I am off first thing tomorrow morning."

"You're not stopping at the hotel, are you?"

He shook his head.

"No. I'm staying at a friend's chalet a little way beyond it. 'Mais, voyons, mademoiselle,' you will catch cold sitting there. Are you too frightened to try the ice again?"

He seemed to assume that her next essay would be made in his company. Jean spoke a little hurriedly.

"Oh, no, I was supposed to have a lesson with Monsieur Griolet this morning. He is an instructor," she explained. "But he was engaged coaching someone else when I came out."

"And which is this Monsieur Griolet? Can you see him?"

Jean's glance ranged over the scattered figures on the rink.

"Yes. There he is."

His eyes followed the direction indicated.

"He seems to be well occupied at the moment," he commented. "Suppose—would you allow me to act as coach instead?"

She hesitated. This stranger appeared to be uncompromisingly progressive in his tendencies.

"I'm perfectly capable," he added curtly.

"I'm sure of that. But——"

His eyes twinkled.

"But it would not be quite 'comme il faut?' Is that it?"

"Well, it wouldn't, would it?" she retaliated.

His face grew suddenly grave, and she noticed that when in repose there were deep, straight lines on either side of his mouth—lines that are usually only furrowed by severe suffering, either mental or physical.

"Mademoiselle," he said quietly. "To-day, it seems, we are two very lonely people. Couldn't we forget what is 'comme il faut' for once? We shall probably never meet again. We know nothing of each other—just 'ships that pass in the night.' Let us keep one another company—take this one day together."

He drew a step nearer to her.

"Will you?" he said. "Will you?"

He was looking down at her with eyes that were curiously bright and compelling. There was a tense note in his voice which once again sent that disconcerting tremor of consciousness tingling through her blood.

She knew that his proposal was impertinent, unconventional, even regarded from the standpoint of the modern broad interpretation of the word convention, and that by every law of Mrs. Grundy she ought to snub him soundly for his presumption and retrace her steps to the hotel with all the dignity at her command.

But she did none of these things. Instead, she stood hesitating, alternately flushing and paling beneath the oddly concentrated gaze he bent on her.

"I swear it shall bind you to nothing," he pursued urgently. "Not even to recognizing me in the street should our ways ever chance to cross again. Though that is hardly likely to occur"—with a shrug—"seeing that mademoiselle is French and that I am rarely out of England. It will be just one day that we shall have shared together out of the whole of life, and after that the 'darkness again and a silence.' . . . . I can promise you the 'silence'!" he added with a sudden harsh inflection.

It was that bitter note which won the day. In some subtle, subconscious way Jean sensed the pain which lay at the back of it. She answered impulsively:

"Very well. It shall be as you wish."

A rarely sweet smile curved the man's grave lips.

"Thank you," he said simply.

CHAPTER IV.

The Stolen Day

"Encore une fois! Bravo! That went better!"

Monsieur Griolet's understudy had amply justified his claim to capability. After a morning's tuition at his hands, Jean found her prowess in the art of skating considerably enhanced. She was even beginning to master the mysteries of "cross-cuts" and "rocking turns," and a somewhat attenuated figure eight lay freshly scored on the ice to her credit.

"You are really a wonderful instructor," she acknowledged, surveying the graven witness to her progress with considerable satisfaction.

Her self-appointed teacher smiled.

"There is something to be said for the pupil, also," he replied. "But now"—glancing at his watch—"I vote we call a halt for lunch."

"Lunch!" Jean's glance measured the distance to the hotel with some dismay.

"But not lunch at the hotel," interposed her companion quickly.

Jean regarded him with curiosity.

"Where then, monsieur?"

"Up there!" he pointed towards the pine-woods. "Above the woods there is a hut of sorts—erected as a shelter in case of sudden storms for people coming up from the lower valley to Montavan and beyond. It's a rough little shanty, but it would serve very well as a temporary salle a manger. It isn't a long climb," he added persuasively. "Are you too tired to take it on after your recent exertion?"

"Not in the least. But are you expecting a wayside refuge of that description to be miraculously endowed with a well-furnished larder?"

"No. But I think my knapsack can make good the deficiency," he replied composedly.

Jean looked at him with dancing eyes. Having once yielded to the day's unconventional adventure, she had surrendered herself whole-heartedly to the enjoyment of it.

She made one reservation, however. Some instinct of self-protection prevented her from enlightening her companion as to her partly English nationality. There was no real necessity for it, seeing that he spoke French with the utmost fluency, and his assumption that she was a French woman seemed in some way to limit the feeling of intimacy, conferring on her, as it were, a little of the freedom of an incognito.

"A la bonne heure!" she exclaimed gaily. "So you invite me to share your lunch, monsieur le professeur?"

"I've invited you to share my day, haven't I?" he replied, smiling.

They steered for the bank, and when he had helped off her skates and removed his own, slinging them over his arm, they started off along the steep white track which wound its way upwards through the pine-woods.

As they left the bright sunlight that still glittered on the snowy slopes behind them, it seemed as though they plunged suddenly into another world—a still, mysterious, twilight place, where the snow underfoot muffled the sound of their steps and the long shadows of the pines barred their path with sinister, distorted shapes.

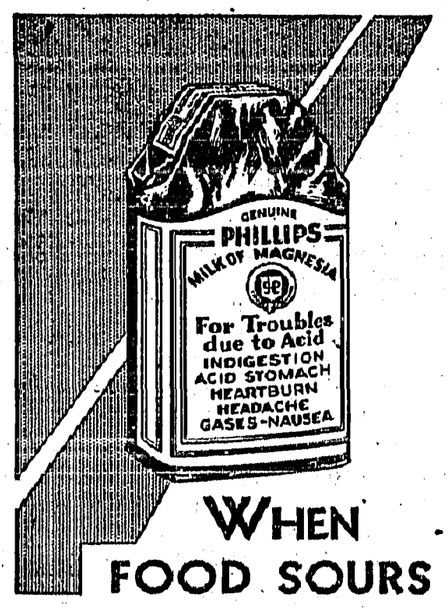
Exercise is the enemy of fat. If you are overburdened with superfluous flesh, call up reserves of energy to fight it. Do as this lady did:—

"During the past six months, I have made steady improvement whilst taking Kruschen Salts. I have reduced 28 lbs. in weight during that period, and have benefited greatly from greater agility and liveliness—all directly attributable to that famous preparation."—Mrs. W. P.

You can take off fat with Kruschen Salts if you will take one-half teaspoon in hot water every morning before breakfast, modify your diet and exercise regularly.

While you are losing fat you will be gaining in energy—in endurance—in ambition. Your skin will grow clearer, and your eyes will sparkle with the good health that Kruschen brings. The old arm chair won't hold you any more—you'll want to be up and doing—ou'll enjoy work and active recreation and you'll sleep like a top. You'll lose fat, and probably live years longer.



WHEN FOOD SOURS

ABOUT two hours after eating many people suffer from sour stomachs. They call it indigestion. It means that the stomach nerves have been over-stimulated. There is excess acid. The way to correct it is with an alkali, which neutralizes many times its volume in acid.

The right way is Phillips' Milk of Magnesia—just a tasteless dose in water. It is pleasant, efficient and harmless. Results come almost instantly. It is the approved method. You will never use another when you know.

Be sure to get the genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia prescribed by physicians for correcting excess acids. 50c a bottle—any drug store.

Germany Building Glass Houses

Young Woman Architect Predicts They Will Be Common

People who live in glass houses will be no more exceptional than those whose dwellings are brick, stone or wood ten or fifteen years from now, according to Margaret V. Van Pelt, young New York architect. Miss Van Pelt, who recently became a member of a long established New York firm of architects, has returned to work in her New York office after a year studying trends in architecture in Europe.

"The Germans are building glass houses already," she explained. "I saw several of them. Of course the glass has to be of the strongest sort. They are using glass also to decorate interiors. Sometimes it is transparent and sometimes black.

"Glass, metal and strong colour contrasts in decorating exteriors are the newest notes in building design in Germany. The tendency toward geometric effects is even more marked than in our American skyscrapers. City blocks in which pink, blue, beige and mauve coloured houses stand side by side are being erected."

THE RHYMING OPTIMIST

SUNFLOWER'S SONG

The sunflower owes allegiance
To nothing save the sun;
But, ah! how can she meet the hours
When day is done?

Her fealty is splendid,
Her very heart she bares;
But as dusk deepens she must know
What bleak despairs!

I know how she must shudder
Through the black abyss of night;
In all the whirling universe
No golden light!

I know how she must ache for
The signal-lights of dawn;
Her fear-filled vigils I can share
Since you are gone!

Yet eastward I am looking,
Morn's gates are almost won;
I lift my petals up in hope,
Come back, my sun!

Will Take Precautions

Treasure Seekers May Carry Arms To Guard Against Sea Pirates

Precautions against hijackers, such as occasionally raid rich liquor laden ships, will be taken by Lieut.-Col. J. E. Leckie, head of the Vancouver expedition which in a few weeks will sail to Cocos Island to search for the buried treasure of ancient pirates.

Col. Leckie has communicated with the Department of National Defence seeking permission to arm his ship against eventualities on the sea or on Cocos Island. Col. Leckie wants the use of machine guns and "pompoms" which are in the arsenal at Esquimalt. Even if this permission is not granted, the ship will be armed against possible sea raiders. Col. Leckie has already arranged to carry privately owned machine guns and numerous rifles.

"In your patience possess ye your souls."—Luke xxi. 19.

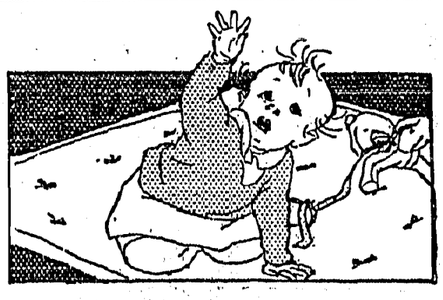
Hold in thy murmurs Heaven arraigning;
The patient see God's loving face;
Who bear their burdens uncomplaining,
'Tis they that win the Father's grace.

The soul loses command of itself when it is impatient. Whereas, when it submits without a murmur, it possesses itself in peace, and possesses God. To be impatient is to desire what we have not, or not to desire what we have. An impatient soul is a prey to passions unrestrained by reason of faith. What weakness, what delusion! When we acquiesce in an evil, it is no longer such. Why make a real calamity of it by resistance? Peace does not dwell in outward things, but within the soul. We may preserve it in the midst of bitterest pain if our will remains firm and submissive. Peace in this life springs from acquiescence even in disagreeable things, not in an exemption from bearing them.

Freedom From Asthma. Asthma is one of the most distressing troubles, sudden in its attacks and prolonged in its agonies. Frequently many things are tried, but nothing seems to give hope of relief. Dr. J. D. Kellogg's Asthma Remedy is the one help which can be depended upon. If you have tried other remedies without success, do not fail to get at once a package of this uniformly successful preparation.

Catfish Leather

Catfish leather may eventually win favour with the lady of fashion for her handbag or shoes. Not until recently has a market been found for catfish caught in Nova Scotia, but a firm of leather manufactures in the United States has found that a soft and pliable product can be made from the skins of catfish dyed in the gayest or most sombre of colours, with the result that catfish skins are being shipped from Yarmouth County, Nova Scotia. The price paid for the raw skins is about 15 cents each.



BABY FRETFUL, RESTLESS?

Look to this cause

When your baby fusses, tosses and seems unable to sleep restfully, look for one common cause, doctors say. Constipation. To get rid quickly of the accumulated wastes which cause restlessness and discomfort, give a cleansing dose of Castoria. Castoria, you know, is made specially for children's delicate needs. It is a pure vegetable preparation; contains no harsh drugs, no narcotics. It is so mild and gentle you can give it to a young infant to relieve colic. Yet it is as effective for older children. Castoria's regulative help will bring relaxed comfort and restful sleep to your baby. Keep a bottle on hand. Genuine Castoria always has the name:
