Canadian Pacific Express Company

Dominion Express Company Now No Longer Known By That Name

After forty-four years of operation during which it has grown up with the country and contributed in no small way to Canadian development, the Dominion Express Company will no longer be known by that name. After September first that great transportation agency will be known as the Canadian Pacific Express Company. In all parts of Canada and the United States and throughout the civilized world signs on the windows of the many hundreds of branch offices will be changed, and thus will be forged a still closer link with the great parent company whose railroad, steamships and hotels are known around the around.

To mark the change of name the company has issued an attractive little booklet giving a short history of its career and a synopsis of its present widespread activities. The Dominion Express Company was incorporated in 1873, but it was in 1882 that Mr. Van Horne, then president of the C.P.R., took it over as an operating part of the Canadian Pacific Railway. H. G. A. Kirkpatrick, later Sir George Kirkpatrick, Lt.-Gov. of Ontario, was its president, and Mr. W. S. Stout, a young but thoroughly experienced express man became its superintendent. Mr. Stout is today president and has for many years guided its fortunes in that capacity.

For some years he and his assistants had a hard and uphill fight. They not only moved traffic, but helped create it by finding Canadian and foreign markets for Canadian products, and by scientific rate making encouraging the farmer, fruit grower and others whose markets were far away. The growth of the company over these many years is an interesting story and it is an important chapter in the commercial history of this country and its present position where it is daily entrusted with hundreds of millions of dollars in goods and treasure by the public, business institutions and the government is a matter for justifiable pride. The booklet is handsomely illustrated and is being widely distributed wherever the company operates.

Miller's Worm Powders prove their value. They do not cause any violent disturbances in the stomach, any pain or griping, but do their work quietly and painlessly, so that the destruction of the worms is imperceptible. Yet they are thorough, and from the first dose there is improvement in the condition of the sufferer and a cessation of manifestations of internal trouble.

Scientist Makes New Discovery

Helium Stars Travel In Pairs and Move Leisurely

Helium stars travel the heavenly byways in pairs and, though they are youths as the life of a star goes, they apparently are not members of the celestial "faster set," according to one of the conclusions reached as a result of twenty-five years' study just completed at the Yerkes Observatory of the University of Chicago at Williams Bay, Wis., by Dr. Edwin B. Frost and his associates.

The helium stars, which number 368, move leisurely along at the rate of only four miles a second in many cases, only one-third of the average speed of the yellow stars. The helium stars, aside from being youthful and slow, are among the hottest of the stellar family and are giants in size.

Helium was first discovered in the sun's spectra in 1868, and on the earth in 1895, Dr. Frost explains, and in 1901, when it was being first observed in the light of the stars, it appeared to him important that the speed of these stars should be measured, and the task was begun. Its completion is marked with the publication of the results compiled by Dr. Frost, Storrs B. Barrett and Otto Struve in the July number of the Astrophysical Journal.

"This research has brought out the interesting fact that almost every other one of these stars has a close companion—not a planet, but a companion star—sometimes only slightly fainter than the star we see," Dr. Frost states.

A similar investigation at the Yerkes Observatory of the speed of about 500 white stars, which has occupied more than twenty-five years, is now being brought to a close, and publication of the results is expected within about two years.

"There!" the woman on the cushions exulted: "You are delightful again, as you always are when you're trapped. Now I shall sip my drink, if I may, while you proceed to your cross examination. See? I am careless of my wits; I expose them to the same whiskey."

"Satire becomes you, wonderfully," he said regarding her as with a deep sense of appreciation. "Someday a master painter will parody the Madonna with you as his model, and give the world a new masterpiece. Your lips are set just right for him, now. Presently I shall drink a toast especially to everything that isn't Madonna-like about you, since I can do that better than paint. Meanwhile, I admit to being curious. Mind you, only curious. What are you going to do with—or to—the girl?"

"Do you think an impulse of last night, born of my own thrill at the riot that must be going on in her mind, must necessarily be so definite as that? With some hidden motive behind it?"

He did not at once reply. His thoughts seemed to have wandered off for a moment. When he spoke again his tone had lost all veneer of banter. "I do not believe you ever surrendered to an impulse in your life," he said, his words studiously measured. "There can be nothing in common between you and this girl who has no other masque than her own natural vividness. She's more likely to be a thorn than a foil. So you have a motive as clearly defined as the pretense you are trying to bring into your eyes."

Yvonne treated him to her silvery laugh and would have interrupted him, but he went on, calmly; "Brandon is obviously playing a game. I am convinced that he knows where her money came from and why, despite his elusiveness. And I am convinced, too, that you do not, yet you deliberately spin a web for the girl and play spider to the fly. Why?"

"Jove," young Dormister exclaimed, "what a pretty girl!"

If he thought to provoke the woman he cross examined, Kenilworth was disappointed. She studied him coolly. "I'm not so sure my whiskey dulled your wits after all," she observed. "You argue beautifully. I shall give you your triumph. I have a motive. As clearly defined as you picture it. As for the girl herself, I shall probably like her tremendously, though that is of no importance. And it doesn't follow, necessarily, that my motive means evil to her. That will be up to her."

"There's going to be quite a lot put up to her, I should imagine," Kenilworth agreed. "You simply give her an added problem. How does Brandon associate in your plotting?"

"Now, Roddy, I didn't guarantee to go into details. There aren't any, yet. You may be unperturbed, however. Brandon wanted me to ask her to come to me. He doesn't know why I consented—and you won't either, until you discover for yourself. Now then, I'm going to uncurl my legs and come out of my female Hindu goddess pose. It's becoming uncomfortable. So I shall be pondering evil no longer. You observe I do not ask you what your intentions are toward my ward, as I should, but that is because I'll see for myself. I know your procedure perfectly."

He gave her his hand and helped her to her feet. "I have a sense of being completely baffled," he remarked, ruefully. "I learn only what I already knew, and nothing more, except—"; suddenly his tone altered. "Except that you would torture every living thing and wreck every castle that was ever built in the air if Brandon would hold out his hand to you!"

"That," she retored, "is the highball. Perhaps I had better change my brand of Scotch after all." But when Kenilworth had gone Yvonne dropped into the nearest chair. Had he returned and studied her, at any time luring the next half hour, he would have concluded that there could be no doubt about it this time. She pondered.

It was late in the afternoon when Walker stood behind his mistress, who was serving tea to a small company of men and women around the same stone table, in the winter garden, on which Kenilworth had perched himself earlier in the day. "The mademoiselle who is expected has arrived," the butler murmured.

Yvonne rose at once. "I shall be back in time for a cigaret, at least," she added to her excuses. She crossed her drawing room, from its entrance into the winter garden, just in time to see Teddy Dorminster, the one who was born a lord but could persuade no one to consider the coincidence seriously, come to a standstill before the slight, girlish figure that stood directly in his path from the reception hall, where he had just turned over his coat and stick to Walker, across the room to the garden. Teddy Dorminister kept none of his secrets or his enthusiasms to himself. He brought a new store of both on his daily droppings in at Yvonne's—her's was, in a measure, a continuously open house when she was in town.

The newcomer stared into Joanna's face frankly. He fumbled in his pocket and produced his eye glass, which he carefully screwed into his eye. Then he scrutinized her again, utterly oblivious to her equally unabashed stare at him.

"Jove!" young Dorminster exclaimed. "What a pretty girl!" Yvonne was in time to hear Joanna's reply:

"How in the world did you ever happen?"

CHAPTER XIV.

Across the Threshold

Both Joanna and Lord Teddy were startled by Yvonne's peal of laughter. "Now, Teddy, you know what everybody thinks when you're around," she declared. "You must really make up an answer some time." Turning to Joanna, she informed her: "He's not always so bad-mannered, you know. I fancy you'll get along famously. I'll present him as Lord Dorminster, but you must just call him Teddy—it fits him better." To the man, who struck Joanna as something of an overgrown youth, she added: "This is my new portege, one I'm going to be very fond of—Miss Manners. After awhile you'll be calling her Joanna."

Lord Teddy was all embarrassment and contrition. "Oh, I say!" he fumbled, "I thought it would be someone who—ah—you were having to sing or dance, or do something like that, you know tomorrow night perhaps! Didn't know she was a friend. "Sorry, terribly!"

Joanna who had scant ideas of what one does at a meeting with a lord, even a Teddy sort of one, scrambled desperately for what she would have termed, concisely, the right comeback. She was disturbed, too, by that apology for supposing her as one who had come to sing, or to dance, "or something like that. It implied something, she didn't know what, but something about her that was not as it should be. Yvonne shot a frown at Dorminster and went to her rescue.

"Run along now, Teddy," she commanded. "There's tea or alcohol, whichever you prefer, in the garden. You know everybody in there. Miss Manners will remember, anyhow, that you were perfectly in earnest despite your rudeness."

He wanted to add something to his apology to straighten it out, but Yvonne bustled him off unceremoniously. To Joanna she said:

"He's a dear, is Teddy. He follows me around the world. He says wherever I am some husband's wife needs consolation and it's his duty to be on hand. And he declares he's perfectly sincere about it."

Two Women Owe Health to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

St. Adolphe, Manitoba.—"I was very weak and had great pains during my periods so that I could not sweep the floor. The pains were in the right side and extended to the left and then downwards. It seemed as if the body was heavy and upside down. It is for these troubles I took the Vegetable Compound. I saw about it in a paper and one woman prevailed on me to take it. It has helped me in every way, the pains are less, and I have more appetite. It is a pleasure to recommend Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to other women."—LEA DELORME, St. Adolphe, Manitoba.

If a person is detected reading a newspaper or book while walking along the street, thereby "impeding pedestrian traffic," he may be subjected to a similar fine.

Stopping a friend in the middle of a roadway, a carrying of packages of undue sizes and using bad or unseemly language, are among other punishable offences.

A Home Necessity

Speaking of valuable home remedies that every mother should always keep on hand, Nurse Carrington says: "I haven't met any preparation more dependable than 'Nerviline.' It is the ideal liniment; every drop rubs in—it is absorbed quickly, eases and relieves congestion in a short time. For chest colds, pain in the side, stiff neck, earache and toothache, I have found Nerviline invaluable. In treating the minor ills that arise in every home, nothing is more efficient than Nerviline."

Little Helps For This Week

Be still, and know that I am God.—Ps. xivi., 10.

Fret not, poor soul, while doubt and fear
Disturb thy breast;
The pitying angels, who can see
How vain thy wild regret must be,
Say, trust and rest.

Strive not, nor struggle; thy poor might
Can never wrest
The meanest thing to serve thy will,
All power is His alone; be still,
And trust, and rest.
—Adeline Anne Proctor.

Do you know what Luther said? "Suffer and be still, and tell no man thy sorrow; trust in God. His help will not fail thee." This is what Scripture calls keeping silence before God. To talk much of one's sorrows makes one weak; but to tell one's sorrows to Him who heareth in secret, makes one strong and calm.—Tholuck.

Just at the time when Flossie's auntie, who was expected on a visit, should arrive, a boy with a telegram did so instead.

There was something about the message which set Flossie thinking.

"What a silly auntie is!" she presently observed.

"Why, darling?" queried the mother.

"Well, if she starts at the same time tomorrow she'll miss her train again."

The Old-Fashioned Grandmother

London Newspaper Finds There Is No Such Person Now

A one-day's search by a London newspaper for the old-fashioned grandmother who is usually pictured as sitting quietly darning socks by the fireside, has failed completely. The inquirer compiled a list of seven grandmothers, and then set out to find out what they were doing.

No. 1 was in Paris buying frocks.

No. 2 had recently acquired a two-seater automobile and had driven up into the Midlands to see her son's sons.

No. 3 had gone into the country to make a political speech in her son's constituency.

No. 4 had gone to a matinee.

No. 5 was out buying some new valves for the radio set.

No. 6 was out getting her hair shingled.

No. 7 had gone to a tea dansant at a big hotel.

KEEP CHILDREN WELL DURING HOT WEATHER

Every mother knows how fatal the hot summer months are to small children. Cholera infantum, diarrhoea, dysentry, colic and stomach troubles are rife at this time and often a precious little life is lost after only a few hours illness. The mother who keeps Baby's Own Tablets in the house feels safe. The occasional use of the Tablets prevent stomach and bowel troubles, or if trouble comes suddenly—at it generally does—the Tablets will bring the baby safely through. They are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

CRESTON, B.C., FRIDAY, NOV. 5

Canada's Sixtieth Birthday

Next year Canada will attain the sixtieth anniversary of Confed eration, and if a resolution present ed in the Canarian Senate and approved by the Red Chamber is given effect the event will befittingly celebrated. Sentor John Lewis, who presented the resolution, made some pointed and pertineut remarks in which there should be common concurrence. "No one," he said, regards as an idle ceremony the celebrations of Christmas, or Easter, or Thankgiving Day. Our neighbors celebrate the anniversary of their independence with fireworks and oratory on a huge scale. We may think that they are too exuberant. Certainly we in Canada go to the opposite extreme. Dominion Day in Canada, though observed as a holiday, is hardly celebrat ed at all as a national holiday. Eleven days afterwards, in Toronto, and I suppose in other Protestant communities, the anniversary of a battle in Ireland nearly 240 years ago is celebrated with an exuber ance rivaling that of the Fourth of fuly on the other side. On Dominion Day the maple leaf is hardly in evidence at all. But on St. Patrick's Day the shamrock is worn by many of us in whose veins there is no Irish blood. St. George.s Day for the English, St. Andrew,s Day for the Scottish, St. David's Day for the Welsh, all receive, more attention at our hands than the anniversary of the birth our own nation. I have no objection to these celebrations, so long as they perpetuate no ill will, or revive the memory of no ancient feud. But I do feel that we ought to do a little more celebrating for ourselves in a sensible way."

Canada's General Elections

The have been 15 general elec tions in Canada since Confedera tion in 1867. The Conservatives have won eight of these, and the Liberali seven. The fiifteen gener al elections have resulted in 12 ministries being formed. Of these, the longest record for continuous service was held by the administration of the late Sir Wilfrid Laurier. The famous Liberal chieftain became Premier on July 11, 1896, and was not dislodged from office until September 21, 1911, when his government was defeated in the general election on the Reciprocity issue between Canada and the United States. The next longest term of office was enjoyed by the late Sir John A. Macdonald during his second administration. After being held out of offiice for five years, "John A." returned with his second ministry on October 17, 1878, and remained at the head of the government until his death on June 6, 1891. The law of average is pretty well demonstrated in this sixty years of Canada,s political history. It is significant that when the Conservatives were in power the cry was "The country is 'going to the dogs' and we must have a change if Canada is to be saved." And when the Liberals were in power the cry was, "The Grits are ruining the country, factories will be idle if they get in, and our young men will go to the United States." And through it all Canada has gone on and on throughout the years, and is today admittedly one of the most prosperous countries on earth, and her money has a higher intrinsic value than that of any other country. And through all the years Canadians have been going to the United States, and residents of the United States have been coming to Canada, and our population is increasing with a ratio of progression far more rapid than was the experence of the United States when its population was under 10,000,000 Verily politics is a strangely inconsistent invention.

B.C. Apples Praised

A high tribute is paid to British Columbia fruit and the manner in which it is marketed, by the Nor-West-Farmer, Winnipeg, one of the leading agricultural journals of the Dominion. The Winnipeg editor admonishes the Ontario friut growers for their lax business methods and cites as an example the superior system, pack and grade of the B.C. apple sections.

The article, which appeared in the editorial columns of the issue of October 20, reads:

"Ontario apple growers wonder why they have lost the prairie market for their fruit. The reason is obvious to anyone who has handled apples as a Western distributor or purchased them as the ultimate consumer The Ontario apple sent to this part of the country is inferior to the B.C. apple in appearance and frequently in quality, and is marketed in containers that are unsuitable for the Western trade, generally speaking. One has only to compare the uniform, clean, graded and boxed apples of British Columbia with the uneven, often green looking, frequently wormy product from Ontario, delivered in barrels that are generally faced with apples of a better quality than the run of the barrel, to know why the Western consumer favors the B.C. apple.

"Until Ontario producess get away from the out-of-date idea that the top layer of apples in a barrel will blind the buyer to the fact that the remainder of the contents of the barrel are scrawny and ill sorted and pack their fruit honestly, grade carefully and market in containers better suited to Western requirements, this problem of why Ontario has lost the prairie fruit market will remain a hardy perennial. The simple truth is that B.C. apple growers are giving prairie consumers the quality of fruit they want, in the form they want it, and under brand name of grade designation that can be relied upon. Ontario apple growers are not."

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Hallowe'en—or All Fool's Night

EDITOR REVIEW:

SIR,—Its about time the law stepped in and put a stop to the fool stunts. If such things were done at any other time the penalty would be severe. Parents who let out their youngsters that night can't complain when others do any damage to their property. Uncontrolled children are the criminals of the future. Those smarties who took off gates, busted locks, overturned buildings, made Erickson school look as if some idiots had been let loose inside, should be made to replace everything in its proper order, and pay full value for things destroyed. One such lesson would be sufficient. Funny how some kids enjoy work, like carrying heavy gates quite a distance. Ask them to do a task; it's how much will you pay me. A hang good thrashing is the only way to argue with youngsters. How can teachers control them when the parents can't—or wont.

O Canada, land of freedom, what crimes are committed in thy name. It makes one feel like patting ones self on the back and saying, "Smart kids; sure to get on in the world." Yes—on the road to a reformatory. CITIZEN.

Brewing is an important industry in British Columbia

FEW citizens give thought to what the Brewing Industry means to British Columbia, as an industry, yet it is an important factor in the industrial life of this province.

It is not necessary to emphasize the millions of dollars invested in the brewing industry in this province. The thing that must not be lost sight of is that there are hundreds of men employed throughout the year in the making, storing and transporting of the products of the breweries of British Columbia.

Breweries are constantly improving and keeping modern their plants. The Amalgamated Breweries of British Columbia have spent over $300,000 in the last few months for improvements and equipment.

Breweries are an important customer of the farmers of British Columbia, their purchases of grain and hops running into huge figures each year. There is no British Columbia industry that spends more of its total income right in this province than the brewing industry.

The brewing industry brings large sums of money into the province. British Columbia beer is attracting attention abroad for its purity and high quality. Export markets in Australasia, China and India, are constantly growing.

British Columbia beers are winning their way in these countries in direct competition with beers from Great Britain, Germany and Czecko-Slovakia. They are winning their way on quality and they are powerful advertisements for this province.

Facts like these are not romantic, but they are important and should be considered by every citizen. They are not commonly mentioned by those whose business it is to attempt to destroy the brewing industry in their determination that the people of British Columbia shall be prevented from enjoying a pure and healthful beverage in an open and above board manner.

Proof of the high quality of the beer manufactured by the Amalgamated Breweries is the remark on recent analysis made by McDonald and McDonald, analytical chemists of Vancouver, stating:

"By the analysis, samples prove to be excellent beer. They are high in extract, nitrogenous matter, phosphoric acid and ash, while the acidity is low and the volatile acidity practically nil, which is proof that the beer is a wholesome nutritious beverage."

Farmers Suffer Enormous Loss

According to a bulletin recently issued by the Saskatchewan Department of Agriculture, weeds will cost the farmers of the Province more than thirty million dollars this year, in the decreased yield due to weeds, in the increased cost of harvesting and threshing their grain, in dockage and freight on weeds shipped with the grain to Fort William or Vancouver.

This year when conditions have been so favorable for the growth of grain, they have been equally favorable for the growth of weeds, and sections of Saskatchewan have many square miles of crops grown on some of the richest soil in the Province which have been so yellow with mustard that hardly a blade of wheat could be seen. Wild oats have been worse than ever this year, sow thistle is steadily widening the area where it is a thorn in the side of the farmer, and stink weed is flourishing like the proverbial green bay tree.

If to a thirty million dollar loss for Saskatchewan alone, the losses for Manitoba and Alberta are added, the total loss for the three Prairie Provinces will be between fifty and sixty million at least, easily constituting the heaviest charge levied on Western agriculture. Hail losses have been heavier than usual this year, but they do not begin to approach the losses sustained by farmers through weeds.

For a quarter of a century or more Western farmers have been waging a battle for lower freight rates. They have won notable victories in this regard, not the least of which was the obtaining in the first instance of the Crow's Nest Pass rates on grain and their restoration after they had been abrogated during the war. But the estimated savings to the farmers of the three Prairie Provinces through the Crow's Nest Pass Agreement, running as they do into millions of dollars annually, do not equal the losses sustained by the farmers of Saskatchewan alone through weeds.

A reduction in the Customs tariff on agricultural implements and machinery, or on any one of the many articles necessary to the farmer, is hailed with pleasure as a real relief to the agricultural producer. The practical wiping out of the Income Tax so far as farmers are concerned, the reduction of the postage rate from three cents to two, and other legislative enactments reducing the burden of taxation, are rightly regarded as important in assisting to make farming and all industry more profitable. But these savings are small in comparison to the millions of dollars that would be left in the pockets of Western farmers through a vigorous, persistent, successful fight all along the line against noxious weeds.

The whole country gets stirred up in an election campaign where tax reduction policies are an issue. Farmers unite and organize to place candidates in the field pledged to tariff reductions, reduced freight rates, Rural Credits, and other measures calculated to advance their interests and prosperity. But all too many who wage battle for these lesser gains appear quite indifferent to the weed menace and its resultant heavy losses to themselves and the country at large. Many farmers who are enthusiastic, and organize and fight for those things which they can only obtain in co-operation with the other Provinces of Canada, yet display the most astounding apathy in dealing with a problem which is all their own, and the solution of which rests solely with themselves, working in co-operation with their next door neighbors.

The Saskatchewan Weed Bulletin just issued contains valuable information and guidance for farmers in dealing with their weed problem. It is written in clearly understandable, non-technical language, and every Saskatchewan farmer who has a weed problem on his hands should send to the Department of Agriculture, Regina, for a copy of this Bulletin, while farmers in Manitoba and Alberta should likewise communicate with their Provincial Departments of Agriculture for similar literature.

The Saskatchewan Bulletin states that the greatest source of the weed trouble is found in dirty seed, and it has been proven that quite a large number of farmers who cultivate their soil carefully to destroy weed seeds already existing in the ground, are actually returning the same plant criminals to the soil through weed seeds contained in their seed grain, thus rendering all their toil and labor for naught, perpetuating the problem, and keeping up the loss.

Co-operation amongst Western farmers is accomplishing great things for them and for Canada, and co-operation is capable to achieving even greater things in the years to come. Possibly in no one way can more be accomplished than by each individual farmer enlisting in the war on weeds, and waging it aggressively in season and out on his own land, and in co-operation with his neighbors and municipal officials throughout the whole district in which he resides.

Unlike other wars, which always end in losses for both victor and vanquished, a successful war on weeds means great gains and larger profits throughout the years to come. Let's fight!

Stabilization of Rural Land Values

By C. W. Peterson

No public issue has been the victim of more platitudes than that of immigration on platform and in press. In Canada there seems to be no intelligent public opinion on the question, and our economic groups are consequently hopelessly divided on the issue. Added population merely spells further unemployment to the labor group, and increased competition to the farmer. Hence, we frequently find our great rural organizations unfriendly and even officially antagonistic towards any effort to augment Canada's population.

Public Apathy

An intelligent study of the population question leaves one in no doubt, that lasting agricultural prosperity is not possible without the steady, progressive colonization and development of our extensive vacant spaces by real agricultural settlers. The realization of such a programme would, however, involve a constructive and forward-looking colonization effort of a magnitude no government could safely contemplate today. In view of the apathetic state of average Canadian public opinion on the subject. The supertask confronting Canada at this moment, therefore, would appear to be to convince her own citizens of the wisdom of regarding the population question as the corner stone of all public policies, which, indeed, it is.

Agricultural Unrest

We have for almost a decade been confronted with the demoralizing spectacle of steadily receding rural land values all through Canada. This was the outcome of a combination of circumstances, but has been chiefly due to the cessation of immigration, coupled with the modern spectacular drift to the cities. Land values today, east and west, are at very low ebb, and many farmers have thus seen their chief asset shrink to such an extent that substantial equities have in some instances totally disappeared, representing the loss of the fruits of years of hard labor on the part of every member of the family.

The Agricultural Credit Structure

Land represents the principal borrowing asset of the farmer. Stable land values lie at the foundation of rural credit in practically all its forms. When land values become demoralized the whole agricultural credit structure is undermined. Credit of all sorts is curtailed and interest rates advanced. In fact, it may be laid down as an economic axiom, that a prosperous agriculture and a contented rural population are not within the possibilities with receding and unstable land values. The demoralizing effect in itself upon the farmer of the progressive shrinkage of his chief capital asset is bound to exercise a most unfortunate influence upon his state of mind and actions.

Restoring Agricultural Confidence

There is today a vast area of vacant lands on the market in the prairie section of Canada and improved farms are offered for sale in other provinces comparatively at bargain prices. The demand for such properties slackened perceptibly with the drying up of the stimulating flow of immigration some years ago. The settlement of the province of Ontario dates back as far as that of the Middle West of the United States. Yet land values in Iowa, Illinois and elsewhere are twice and three times as great as in Eastern Canada. Why? The Canadian farmer should be keenly interested in recreating a normal market for rural properties. A comparatively limited demand for land would quickly be reflected in strengthened values all round and the moral effect would be electrical. Urban business would automatically benefit through such a restoration of agricultural confidence. Our farmers have, therefore, a vital interest in the inauguration of vigorous and comprehensive policies by the various governments and railways designed to promote the actual colonization of vacant agricultural areas.

The Fine Art Of Carving

Lucky Is the Man Who Has Mastered All Its Details

Carving is said to be an art that takes a man a lifetime to master. However that may be, there are good and bad carvers, and one is never so expert but that he may learn some new trick in carving a roast or fowl. There has recently been published a valuable and most entertaining little booklet, entitled "The Fine Art of Carving," which deals with this subject. In addition to giving details regarding the proper methods to be used in carving roasts, joints, fish and fowl, there are also valuable hints for the housewife on how to properly prepare a roast of meat of any kind. The booklet is well illustrated in colors showing how to select the best joints of meat, and how to carve. There is also good advice on how to reduce your meat bill, and how to roast meat without loss from shrinkage, and a great deal of other valuable information. Copies of this booklet may be obtained free of charge by any Canadian householder. Our readers would be well advised to write to the Sheet Metal Products Co. of Canada, Limited, Toronto, or to branch offices at Winnipeg, Calgary, Edmonton or Vancouver, and obtain this valuable booklet, "The Fine Art of Carving," which will be mailed absolutely free of charge.

THE GROWING GIRL

Requires a Mother's Constant Care and Watchfulness

In their early teens it is quite common for girls to outgrow their strength, and mothers should carefully watch the health of their daughters at this time, for it is when strength is sapped by too rapid growth that anaemia develops. The first signs may be noticed by peevishness, languor and headaches. The face grows pale, breathlessness and palpitation follow, with low spirits.

At the first symptom of anaemia mothers should act at once. Neglected anaemia often leads to decline, but if you see that your daughter's blood is enriched there need be no cause for anxiety. The finest blood enricher ever discovred is Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. The pure, red blood created by these pills will quickly banish all signs of anaemia. They will build up your girl's health and ensure her a robust girlhood. Give your daughter a course of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills now. Make her strong like thousands of girls and women throughout Canada who have been rescued from the clutches of anaemia by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

You can get these pills through any dealer in medicine, or by mail at 50 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Important Part To Be Played By Canada Following The Rapid Increase In Population

The population of the world is inceasing at the rate of 50,000 a day, according to an article by Prof. Edward Murray East, of Harvard University, published in a recent number of "Current History." Prof. East says that, taking the world over, there are on the average 150,000 births and 100,000 deaths in a day, making a net daily gain of 50,000. Prof. East places the present population of the world at 1,850 millions, and says it has more than doubled since the beginning of the nineteenth century.

Statistics are assembled to show that as population in any country reaches a certain density the rate of increase falls off, until it becomes practically stationary. This has already happened in China, and has almost come about in India. Prof. East quotes authorities to the effect that the population of the United States will become stationary at about 200,000,000 and that this figure will be reached in the present century.

An important factor in the population development of the North American continent is Canada, which occupies an area greater than that of the United States, and has at present about 9,000,000 inhabitants. Prof. East finds that population in Canada is increasing rapidly, the birth rate being more than double the death rate. The death rate in Canada is 11.3 per thousand compared with 11.9 in the United States, and the birth rate in Canada is 26.7 per thousand compared with 22.5 in the United States.

Prof. East's calculations do not include the effect of immigration on population. This has been a big factor in the United States in the past, and promises to be equally important in Canada in the near future. The constantly increasing demand for fooc, and Canada, with only one-fifth of its arable area as yet under cultivation, is destined to play a large part in supplying that demand.

Immigrants From Norway

Farm Laborers Will Come to Settle On Western Lands

Diversion of the stream of immigrant farm labor from the United States to Saskatchewan and Alberta will be recommended by Arne Kildal secretary of the International League of Norsemen, for that class of immigrant labor from Norway. Mr. Kildal, who is on his way back to Norway after a tour of investigation of possibilities for his countrymen in Saskatchewan and Alberta, said the surplus population of Norway, especially surplus farm labor, must find an outlet. He said that the Canadian prairies offered good possibilities for those who wished to settle down to a life of farming.

Representing the Government of Norway and Sweden, a delegation reached Winnipeg recently to investigate conditions of land settlement for immigrants, price of land, conditions of employment, co-operative marketing of grain, and the Canadian system of soldier re-establishment. As a result of these investigations it is possible that there will be a settlement in Western Canada of 12,000 Norwegians per year in the future. The party is in charge of P. Myrvold, representative of the Canadian Pacific Railway at Oslo, Norway.

Disproves Old Saying

No Such Thing As Wet and Dry Moon Says Weather Bureau

The moon has nothing to do with rainfall, and there is no such thing as a wet and dry moon, the U. S. weather bureau declares. Recent investigations have disproved the old saying that the moon is wet if it hangs as though pouring out something, and dry if the points of the crescent are turned up. According to this saying the equator should be always dry, whereas the region is notorious for heavy rains.

Cleaning the Milking Machine

Machine Should Be Thoroughly Cleaned Directly After Milking

The primal necessity of milking is cleanliness. Mr. A. G. Lockhead, Dominion bacteriologist, writing on the subject of the milking machine, points out that the sooner the cleaning of the machine is commenced after milking the more efficient it will be. Directly the cow is finished with, our authority advises that the teat-cups should be drawn through the unit, the cups being lifted up and down to allow air as well as water to pass through. The cups and tubes should next be treated with hot water to which has been added a dairy cleansing powder. This can be done, says the bacteriologist, in the most recent number of Seasonable Hints, with the suction on as before, or by removing from the machine and cleansing in a sink or suitable basin, using brushes to clean the passages. Clean hot water should be used for the final rinsing and the whole system should be thoroughly flushed. Where there is danger of water getting into the air passages a wooden plug should be put in the open end after removal from the machine. Once a week the teat-cups and tubes should be taken completely apart and thoroughly brushed, a cleaning powder being used, and reassembled when dry.

Insurance Against T.B. Test

Satisfactory Scheme Has Been Tried Out In Wisconsin

In a few districts in Wisconsin a satisfactory arrangement has been worked out to cover the loss from cattle which react to the tuberculin test. The proposition has been arranged through the co-operative creameries. Men who have not tested their cattle put $1.00 per head into a fund. This is used to pay owners of cattle the difference between their appraised value and the total which is received by the owner from salvage and indemnities. If this amount is not sufficient to cover the entire loss the money is prorated. If any money remains after all the losses are paid it is prorated back to the men who contributed.

Owners of pure-bred cattle contribute twice as much as grade cattle owners on account of the higher valuations. This system has given good satisfaction in communities where it has been tried, as it provides a simple form of insurance which enables the owners to replace their herds if they have a heavy loss. Generally a committee of the creamery members is placed in charge of the work and the necessary funds are collected through the creamery in one or two payments.

Stubble Treatment

Best Results Obtained After Burning Stubble in the Spring

An experiment to determine the best method of treating the stubble in preparation for wheat or oats at the Scott, Sask., Dominion experimental station showed that the highest average yield of wheat had been obtained from seeding after burning the stubble in spring and the second highest yield after spring ploughing. The ten-year average figures showed a difference of 2.7 bushels per acre in favor of spring ploughing as compared with fall ploughing. General results indicate that any operation that destroys the stubble in the fall, so that the snow is not held, has resulted in a reduction of yield. Figures for 1925 given in the superintendent's report for that year show that deep fall cultivation is giving a higher yield than shallow fall cultivation. Stubbling in without any cultivation has given the lowest yield of all the treatment under test.

In comparing fall and spring ploughing for oats the eleven-year average yield shows a difference of 8.8 bushels in favor of the spring ploughing.

You seldom see two fat people married to each other, says an observer, because usually one of the pair gets fat by being cheerful and the other gets thin doing all the fat one's share of this life's worrying.

Many Countries Buy Products

Prairie Provinces Among the Leading Producers of Dairy Products

Canadian dairy products, like Canadian wheat and produce from the farms of the Dominion, are being purchased in increasing quantities by the housewife in the United States and 21 other countries of the world, according to a recent statement issued by the Canadian Government. The principal purchases of dairy products from Canada by American buyers is in the form of cream and milk, the latest compilation showing exports to Uncle Sam totalling $7,500,000 in value for the 12 months ended June 30, 1926.

The annual production of the dairy factories of Canada now has a total value of $141,133,000, an increase of over $29,000,000 in five years.

Production of creamery butter in Canada last year was the largest in the history of the industry, amounting to 179,932,993 pounds, valued at $66,933,456. These figures show an increase over 1924 of more than one million pounds in quantity, and over six million dollars in value.

Increases of nearly 30 million pounds in quantity and over twelve million dollars in value are also shown in last year's production of factory cheese, as compared with 1924. The quantity made in 1925 totalled 178,350,346 pounds, valued at $36,781,343.

The prairie provinces of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, famous mainly as great grain growing areas, are now among the leading producers of dairy products.

Immigration To Canada

Almost Double the Number of People Entering Canada Compared to Last Year

Immigration to Canada in the first six months of 1926 totalled 70,253 compared with 43,241 in the same period a year ago, an increase of 62 per cent., according to a statement by the Canadian Government department of immigration and colonization. In this period under review British immigrations increased from 20,452 to 27,849; immigration from the United States increased from 8,036 to 10,037 and from other countries increased from 14,753 to 32,367.

Immigration for the month of June amounted to 12,191, an increase of 50 per cent. over June a year ago. British immigration for June increased from 1,501 to 2,177; and other immigration from 2,052 tto 4,074.

Could Increase Wheat Yield From Ten To Forty Per Cent. Without Increasing Acreage

Controlling the Red-Backed Cutworm

Poison Bait the Best Method to Combat This Pest in Field and Garden

For the poisoned bait to combat the red-backed cutworm in the prairie provinces, Mr. Kenneth M. King, of the entomological branch, at Ottawa, recommends for field quantities a mixture consisting of 100 pounds of bran, four pounds of white arsenic finely ground (or 2 pounds of Paris green), one gallon of cheap cane molasses (blackstrap) and 7 to 8 gallons of water. For garden quantities he suggests a mixture o fone quart bran, one teaspoonful of white arsenic finely ground, one tablespoon of cheap cane molasses with sufficient water to moisten.

The dry bran and arsenic should be thoroughly mixed together and the operator should keep nose and mouth covered with a damp cloth. The molasses should then be dissolved in the water and the mixture slowly stirred into the poisoned bran until it is thoroughly moistened and free from lumps. Mr. King in his pamphlet on the red-backed cutworm, which is numbered 69 and can be had without cost on addressing the Publications Branch of the Department of Agriculture, Ottawa, emphasizes this caution: Bags of poisoned bran should be kept out of reach of stock and children and empty bags that have been used for the bait should not again be used but immediately burnt. If mixing machines, such as were used in the grasshopper campaigns, are not available large tubs or a concrete floor will serve for preparing the bait.

Apple Shipments From B.C.

Ontario and Quebec Took Large Quantity From Okanagan

Export shipments of apples from the Okanagan Valley, British Columbia for the past season, included the following: 65 cars to Scandinavian countries, 8 cars to China, 29 cars to Germany, 4 cars to Newfoundland, 18 cars to South Africa, 42 cars to New Zealand, 55 cars to the United States and 405 cars to Great Britain. In addition, 108 cars were shipped to Ontario and Quebec, which are often considered as export markets. Distance is apparently no handicap when high-class products are for sale.

Agriculture throughout the Dominion seems to be far more secure now than for several years past. As a whole, it embraces one-third of the national wealth. So declared F. S. Archibald, director of Dominion experimental farms in an address at Ottawa. Mr. Archibald indicated a number of ways in which experiments are being made at the experimental farms, in an interesting talk on the future of agriculture in Canada.

"It is quite possible," he said, "that with no more acreage than the present 22,000,000 under wheat cultivation in Canada an increase of ten to forty per cent. in production may be secured."

With an increase of five bushels to the acre the enormous addition of 160,000,000 dollars might be made to the national revenue, he said.

Interesting Work With Trees

Clever Englishman Trains Them In Many Animal Shapes

For thirty years Mr. Cutbush, of Old Barnet, has been trying to make a dragon. He has made dogs, cocks and hens, birds, teddy-bears, storks and peacock, and he is very proud of his handiwork, but his greatest desire is to make a dragon, a British lion—and a tiger, but he cannot.

The material of Mr. Cutbush's art is not clay nor marble, but trees. His art, known as topiary, consists in training box and yew trees into the shapes he wants them.

They take years of care and patience, but Mr. Cutbush doesn't mind at all. He loves his garden of green animals, and tends them carefully as a mother her children.

Sometimes it has taken him fifteen years to grow one animal to perfection. The easiest ones take five years and the more difficult ones take at least ten. Many of them take longer to bring up and launch into the world than children, but before any attempt at training the tree into shape it must be from eight to twenty years old.

It is grown bigger than it will require to be when finished, and the branches are allowed to grow very freely. Then they are tied to wires and sticks into the shape they are to be, as nearly as possible. For a season they are left alone, and then at the beginning of the next season they are clipped.

Years are needed for the branches to fill out and become thick with more little branches and leaves. These are kept clipped, and every three years the growing animal is transplanted. When it is fully grown and a solid mass of green leaves it is carried away and starts its grown-up life in somebody's garden.

Mr. Cutbush feels more sadly about his dragon and his British lion.

"I do wish I could grow a lion," he says, "but it is impossible to get the mane, and if I grow a lioness she just looks like a dog."

Strawberries In Saskatchewan

Now Grown In Commercial Quantities In Northern Part of Province

Strawberry growing in commercial quantities north of latitude 53, is the proud accomplishment of the Nipawin district. This plant has been successfully grown for the past 12 years, but owing to lack of transportation facilities until the autumn of 1924, when the Tuffnel-Prince Albert extension of the Canadian Pacific Railway was completed, it did not become a commercial industry. In 1925 several thousand 24-quart cases were shipped, some of them finding their way as far as Winnipeg and Regina. This year the production is expected to be nearly double that of last season.

Swiss Loan For France

France has obtained a loan in Switzerland. A ministerial decree approves a contract entered into between Raymond Poincare, premier and minister of finance, and the Swiss Credit Bank of Zurich for a sixty million Swiss franc loan. The current value of the Swiss franc is 19.30 cents.

The American people spend $3,000,000,000 a year, or about six per cent. of the national income, for vacations.

British Nursing Head Visits Canada

Dame Maud McCarthy, G.B.E., of London, England, who headed the British nursing forces in France during the World War, arrived recently at Quebec on the Canadian Pacific liner Empress of Scotland. This distinguished lady who has gained the title of "The Florence Nightingale in the World War," will attend the meeting of the Canadian National Association of Nurses in Toronto. Later she will go to Ottawa to deliver an address at the unveiling of a memorial to the nurses who served in the great war.

Dame McCarthy began her first outstanding war services during the South African war, 1899-1902. From 1903 to 1910 she was matron of Queen Alexandra's Imperial Military Nursing Service and until 1914 was principal matron of the Q.A.I.M.N.S., War Office. In 1914 she was appointed matron-in-chief of the Q.A.I.M.N.S. British Armies in France and in 1920 matron-in-chief of the Territorial Army Nursing Service.

In the above photograph, which was taken on board the SS. Empress of Scotland, Dame McCarthy is seen standing with Commander Latta beside the wheel house.
