VOL. XXIV. CRESTON, B. C., FRIDAY, OCTOBER 14, 1932 No. 30

Success Crowns 1932 Fall Fair

Exhibits More Numerous, Better Quality Throughout, Especially Vegetables and Poultry—School Fair Great Success.

Not for several years have exhibits been as numerous, or ranked so high in the standard of perfection, as those assembled at Creston's 1932 fall fair on October 5th. Starting before 9 a.m. the day previous exhibits commenced pouring in. By sundown the large pavilion, already crowded, presented a beautiful picture in tints of gold and brown mingled with the deep reds of fruit in full maturity. Extra tables were rustled for the late comers, and by closing time 1189 exhibits had been placed.

Crestou fair is the best of the rural fairs held this year. It was held late so that the fruit—particularly the apple, which has made Creston famous—would be in perfect exhibition form. Enjoying strong support locally, the Agricultural Association was able to provide a substantial prize list.

The day was a huge success. Fine sunny weather helped to swell the numbers that crowded the exhibition. Crowds of youngsters, free from school, joined in the fun. It was all "as good as it used to be." In the main building the Troubadors played lively selections, while out on the ground Creston brass band gave their first public performance, adding a great deal to the afternoon's enjoyment. Besides the usnal attractions, a five-team baseball tournament was staged. The final game, between Creston and Porthill, was played late in the day, Porthill team winning the prize money with a score of 4-2. In the evening the popular fall fair dance attracted a good crowd to the pavilion. A special film was shown at the Grand theatre as part of the day's entertainment.

Competition for the prizes was particularly keen in practically all classee, and the addition of the School Fair to this years show made the exhibition doubly interesting. The Jubilee Shield contest provided the usual attractive displays. The winning display scored remarkably high on quality. Grouped against a deep blue back ground, the various items of fruit, grains, grasses etc. presented a most artistic arrangement, and the selection for exhibition sizes in fruit gave a pleasing sense of uniformity throughout. The Creston school can indeed be complimented on staging one of the best displays of the series. Lister school worked hard in defence of the trophy, but the earlier frosts probably weighed against their success. However, they secured second place being only 13 points behind the winners.

In the class work sections, most interest centered on the cut paper, landscapes, plasticine modelling, and maps of locality all of which are of a more pictorial nature. Over 300 entries were shown which gave a wide and varied illustration of the students progress. Carefully prepared collections were on view in the nature study section—an exhibit of pressed wild flowers the work of Evelyn Jack of West Creston attracting a great deal of interest. There were 156 different varieties in this collection all of which were carefully mounted and named. The general effect of so many delicate colors together made a charming sight. The school children showed an eager interest in their part of the fair and the valley teachers merit well deserved praise for organizing such a fine show.

The flower classes were particularly fine considering the lateness of the season sweet peas, petunias and pansies leading in quality and showing true exhibition blooms. No one could have grown finer sweet peas than those of Mrs. R. Sinclair Smith. Her petunias and those of Mrs. MacLaren's were of enormous size and of wonderful texture. Another outstanding exhibit held first prize in the ornamental house plant class—This was a beautiful snowy campanula, in full bloom entered by Mrs. M. Young. The boquets for table decoration made a gay showing. The class was a large one and it was undoubtedly difficult to pick

Death Summons Albert Stewart

Successful and Industrious Orchardist Passes—Came Here with Parents in 1910—Leaves Wife and Three Daughters.

In the death of Albert Stewart, who passed away at Creston Valley public hospital Friday evening, after but a brief illness, Creston valley has lost one of the most progressive of the younger generation of orchardists.

Deceased, whose the eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Stewart of Alice Siding, was in his forty-fourth year, was a native of Blythe, England, and came to Canada with his parents, when quite young, and after a few years residence at Saskatchewan points, as well as Fernie, came to Creston in 1910, and with the exception of about two years spent at farming near New Dayton, Alberta, has resided here since, purchasing the well known Stocks & Jackson ranch, on the lower Erickson road, about six years ago, and which he has since handled with conspicuous ever since.

The funeral took place on Sunday afternoon from Holy Cross Church with Father Choinel officiating, and Percy Boffey, W. J. Truscott, V. Brixa, Leslie Timmons, Gerald Timmons, and John Rentz acting as pallbearers. The high esteem in which deceased is held was evidenced in the many that were out to pay their last tribute of respects, as well as in the floral remembrances. Interment was in Creston cemetery.

Deceased was married in 1917 to Miss Elsie Stinson, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Jos. Stinson, and is survived by a widow and three daughters Thelma, Rose and Helen.

Along with his industrious nature and more than ordinary horticultural ability, deceased enjoyed a well deserved personal popularity, and in their sad bereavement his widow, family and parents will have the sincere sympathy of all.

Dies Suddenly

The sympathy of the community is extended Mr. and Mrs. B. Kromhout in the sudden death on Sunday of their eldest daughter, Miss Johanna Maria, in her thirty-third year. Deceased was a native of Holland coming to Canada with her parents in 1913, and after residing in the western provinces they moved to Creston about a year ago from Weyburn, Sask. The funeral took place on Wednesday from Holy Cross Church, with Father L. Choinel conducting the last sad rites, and Orin Hayden, Walter Long, Leslie Timmons, Gerald Timmons, Tom Brennan and Andrew Weirgarber officiating as pallbearers. Many friends were out to pay a last tribute of respect and the floral remembrances bespoke the esteem in which deceased and the family are held.

Canyon City

Dance at Wynndel Community Hall, Friday, October 14th. Music by Svensden and Walde.

Birth—On September 1st, to Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Clark, a daughter.

Mr. Staples, a former resident of Canyon, who has been at Red Deer, Alberta, for the past two or three years, is back this month, to again reside permanently at Canyon.

The church was nicely decorated and there was a large turnout for the harvest thanksgiving service at the United Church on Sunday afternoon, at which Rev. Andrew Walker delivered an appropriate address.

Canyon's on-the-tree apple crop, particularly the Wageners and Delicious, suffered some damage in the extraordinary cold dip on Sunday morning, when some thermometers registered as low as 10 above zero.

A mass meeting under the auspices of the United Front Committee of Action was held in the hall Monday evening, to discuss relief with Col. Lister, M.P.P. T. Mountford of Wynndel occupied the chair. For some unavoidable reason Col. Lister did not put in an appearance. Pending the expected arrival of the colonel, the chairman read to the audience a letter published in last week's Review, over the signature of one Hilton H. Young, commenting more or less unfavorably from beginning to end, emphasizing the point which stated "extremists will not get anywhere by force on British territory." The Review scribe was subjected to a withering fire, much to the amusement of the local relief office and his able assistant. Following this a discussion on relief matters took place in which Messrs. Mountford, Willcox and Glasier were spokesman for Wynndel, while O. M. Samuelson, Bill Hook and Mrs. Nygaard spoke for Canyon, the latter suggesting a strike among farmers similar to that recently staged in Iowa. The committee agreed to call on Col. Lister at his home some evening during the week.

Lister

Mrs. Larry Andreason of Potlach, Idaho, was a visitor here at the weekend with her parents, Col. and Mrs. Lister. She returned early in the week accompanied by her mother, who will spend a couple of weeks at Potlach.

Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Phillips of Kimberley are at the ranch this week looking after the shipping of their crop of winter apples. At the weekend they had a visit from Mr. and Mrs. C. Beckstrom of Kimperley.

Rev. M. C. Percival, the new Anglican rector, took service here on Sunday morning, which was the annual harvest festival, for which the school was decorated, and the address and music appropriate.

Rev. C. Baase was here from Creston on Sunday afternoon for Lutheran Church service at the school, and on Wednesday night a congregational meeting was held at the schoolhouse.

Creston Valley Post Canadian Legion had the October meeting here on Tuesday night last, at which preliminary arrangements were made for the Armistice Day observance on November 11th.

Roy Harris, of Cranbrook, Kootenay Telephone Company superintendent in East Kootenay, was here at the first of the week, investigating the local phone situation.

Damage was done to the unpicked apple crop, as well as all vegetables, in the area on Sunday morning when a frost touch that sent the mercury down to 8 above zero was encountered.

Lister has every reason to be satisfied with the showing at Creston fall fair on Wednesday last. The Powers and Baker ranches made a good showing in many of the classes, and in the school fair the children excelled themselves. Considering the year the landing of second prize in the school districts, display was remarkably good work.

Creston Couples Double Wedding

Well-Known Members Younger Set Participate in Dual Function at Sandpoint—Both Will Reside in Creston.

A distinct feature of last week's social life was the double wedding at Sandpoint, Idaho, Friday evening, in which two well known Creston couples figured, but with but one bridesmaid and best man for the dual ceremony, which was in charge of Judge Bowden.

In the first of these happy events Miss Elizabetn Irene (Beth), eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Putnam became the bride of Dr. G. G. McKenzie, the bride wearing a stylish ensemble of brown flat crepe with orange trimmings, with coat and hat to match.

In the secood of the nuptials Miss Josephine Margaret, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Pedersen of Wynndel was united in marriage with William H. ("Babe") Fortin, the bride becomingly gowned in a travelling suit of blue crepe de chine with hat to match and purse, shoes and gloves in white and black.

Both couples were supported by Miss Ada Lewis, whose costume was of brown, with Ed. Whitfield of Golden, as best man Immediately after the ceremony the contracting parties and attendants with a party of friends were guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs H. C. McInnis, Sandpoint, for the wedding dinner and reception.

Dr. and Mrs. McKenzie returned the following day and left immediately for a wedding trip to Calgary and Lethbridge, Alberta. Mr. and Mrs. Fortin are spending a two weeks' honeymoon on a visit at Portland, Seattle, Vancouver and other coast points. On their return the former will occupy the F. W. Ash residence at the north end of town, while Mr. and Mrs. Fortin have taken the McLaren bungalow on Victoria Avenue.

Dr. McKenzie, who established Creston's first dental practice about four years ago, and Mr. Fortin, who has been manager for the Shell Oil Company since the firm established in Creston in 1929, are well known in Creston's commercial life and with their estimable brides share an equal popularity in the social life of the community, and have the best wishes of a host of friends for long, happy and succesful wedded life.

Mixed Sensations In Parachute Jump

Leaving 'Plane Is Big Thrill Says Pilot Instructor

Leaving an aeroplane for a parachute jump is the big thrill according to R. J. Groome, pilot instructor at Regina's airport, who has made his first jump.

"There is a moment or two of confused sensations, a display of whirling earth and sky and you feel you are being shaken up in a big bag.

"Then suddenly all is quiet, a quiet that seems supernatural. There is no racket. To one used to flying it is an eerie sensation to be up there with no wings, no engine, no wind rushing past and no apparent movement."

After landing Mr. Groome says one has a great feeling of confidence and affection for the parachute that aided the descent.

A tennis racket a half century old is still used in tournaments in London, England. The racket, now owned by J. L. Strachan, has never been restrung.

Honorable Artillery Company Dates Back Officially To 1537

The Honorable Artillery Company, which is brigaded with the Guards and has a Guards adjutant and R.S.M., is a Territorial corps d'elite, though you might not have guessed it, from mere outward appearances, if you had run up against them at Wipers in 1916. Though placed now only fourth on the parade order of the British Army, the H.A.C. dates back officially to Henry VIII's charter in 1537, and can quite fairly claim, through descent from London's famous trained bands, an older ancestry still. For this reason all H.A.C. bloods hold that the Royal Scots, known as Pontius Pilate's bodyguard and officially the oldest regiment in the British Aarmy, are mere babes and military sucklings compared with themselves. Full privates pay a guinea a year for the privilege of marching with the H.A.C.

"I had a lovely delicately-colored silk scarf from Paris which was my pride," writes an enthusiastic woman from Quebec. "It became so soiled I had to wash it—which ruined its beauty. I was heart-broken One day I saw in the drug store a new kind of tints—Diamond Tints. The druggist said they were for light shades and needed no boiling When I found they were made by the makers of Diamond Dyes, I knew that there was something I would dare to use on my precious scarf. (You see, I had dyed all my mourning clothes with Diamond Dyes and knew they were wonderful.) I got a package of Diamond Tints, dipped my scarf and it came out as gorgeously colorful as a sunset! My druggist says repeated washings will not fade it My friends were as delighted as I and wanted to know what I used. Indeed, I'm enthusiastic about Diamond Tints!"

U.S. State Department Issues Useful Pamphlet

Contains Location and Proper Spelling Of Foreign Places

A pamphlet designed to teach Americans how to spell the names of foreign cities and countries correctly has been issued by the state department.

Compiled by the United States Geographic Board, the report gives the proper spellings, location and brief additional information relating to nearly 2,500 of the more important names of foreign countries, cities, provinces, rivers and other natural features.

It states the proper way to spell Tokyo is Tokyo and not Tokio, that Yugoslavia, not Jugoslavia, is the correct English spelling of the name of that Balkan country, and that the word Capetown should be joined together and not spelled Cape Town.

Vital Statistics

Saskatchewan Had Lowest Maternal Mortality In Canada In 1931

The preliminary annual report of the Dominion Bureau of Statistics for the year 1931 has now been compiled and has come to hand .Commenting upon the information contained therein regarding the Province of Saskatchewan, Honourable F. D. Munroe, M.D., Minister of Public Health, stated as follows:

"The outstanding feature contained in the preliminary vital statistics report just issued by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics for the year 1931, insofar as this province is concerned, is that Saskatchewan, for the first time in its history, leads all Canada in lowest maternal mortality,—the rate being 4.4 per 1,000 live births, as compared with 5.0 for the whole Dominion. In view of the fact that for many years Saskatchewan had the highest mortality rate in this regard in the Dominion, and taking into consideration also the general economic situation existing throughout the province, as well as the adverse conditions in the drought areas, this achievement is significant.

"In Saskatchewan in 1931 there were 93 maternal deaths. Of this number 60 occurred in hospitals. Of the 33 deaths which took place outside of hospitals, 31 were attended by physicians, so that only 2 out of 93 cases were without medical attention.

"While infant mortality for the year 1931 shows an improvement of three points over the previous year, this province still has the fourth highest infant mortality rate. The general rate for the Dominion is 84.3 per 1,000 live births, while for Saskatchewan it is 69.0.

"The general death rate for Saskatchewan is lower than in 1930, the rate being 6.6 per 1,000 of population, which is the lowest in the history of the province since 1915. The rate for the Dominion is 10.1.

"The number of deaths from tuberculosis shows a marked decrease over 1930, the rate having decreased from 46.1 per 100,000 of population in 1930 to 36.0 in 1931. The rate for the Dominion is 74.0.

"The cancer death rate in Saskatchewan for the year 1931 is 63.0 per 100,000 of population; this is an increase over the rate of 54.0 in 1930. The rate for the Dominion is 92.0. Saskatchewan has the second lowest death rate from cancer, Alberta being the lowest, with a rate of 60.0.

"This province shows an improvement in the death rate from diseases of the heart,—the rate being 71.0 in 1931, as compared with 73.8 in 1930. Ontario has the highest rate, namely, 169, while the general death rate from heart diseases for the Dominion is 132.

"The number of deaths caused by automobile accidents last year was lower in Saskatchewan than in any other province, the rate being 5.0. Ontario had the highest rate—17.0—and British Columbia took second place with a rate of 16.0.

"Of all the provinces of Canada Quebec had the greatest natural increase, namely, 17.1 per 1,000 population; Saskatchewan coming second with a rate of 16.5.

"The birth rate for the province of Saskatchewan indicates a decrease of 1.3 points in 1931 over 1930, the rate for 1931 being 23.1 per 1,000 population. The birth rate for the whole Dominion is 23.2, and Saskatchewan holds fourth highest place in this regard. The three Maritime provinces show an increase in the birth rate, but in all others it is lower than in the previous year.

"It will be seen, therefore, that in the nine different sections contained in the prelimiinary report issued by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics, which is regarded as the barometer of public health in Canada, Saskatchewan holds premier place in five: that is to say, she has—

(a) The lowest general death rate.

(b) The lowest tuberculosis death rate.

(c) The lowest maternal mortality.

(d) The lowest death rate from diseases of the heart.

(e) The lowest death rate from automobile accidents.

"In two sections this province holds second place, namely, in the natural increase rate, and in the cancer death rate. Saskatchewan takes fourth place in the birth rate and fifth in infant mortality."

Explanations and Comments

The Training Of Children In the Home, Genesis 18:17-19.—Abraham is standing on an eminence overlooking the valley that stretches to the Dead Sea. Before him are the rich and evil cities of the Plain, Sodom and Gomorrah; and it is the eve of their destruction. God is represented as soliloquizing and giving expression to the reason for His deciding to take Abraham into His confidence and reveal to him His intention and show him His justice. As the founder of a great nation it is best that Abraham should understand God's dealing with men.

God had entered into close relations with Abraham in order that he should train his children and his household so that they, too, should deal righteously and justly even as did Jehovah, and thus Abraham through his descendants would become a blessing to all mankind.

"God's ideal nation starts with the home, with the father walking in the way of the Lord to do justice and judgment, and his children and his household following after him. Home authority and home example are expressed in the words, 'He will command his children and his household after him.' The most dangerous sign of the times is the neglect of home life and the growing disrespect of children for parents."

The Teaching Of Children In the Home, Deuteronomy 6:4-9.—This passage the Jews call "Shema," from the first word of verse 4 in Hebrew, translated "Hear." The first and great commandment (Matthew 22:26) follows and then the duty of remembering these words and of teaching them to children is stressed. The words shall be upon one's heart, shall make so deep an impression upon one that they influence one's life; they must be taught to the children, made a matter of conversation everywhere and at all times, "'pricked in' by repetition and emphasis."

THE HOUSE OF DREAMS-COME-TRUE

— BY —

MARGARET PEDLER

Author Of
"The Splendid Folly." "The Hermit Of Far End."
Hodder & Stoughton, Ltd., London.

CHAPTER XXXIV.

The Test

New Year's Eve found Jean sitting alone in Claire's special sanctum—the room which had witnessed that frightful scene when Sir Adrian had suddenly gone mad.

It was a cosy enough little room in winter-time. A cheery fire crackled in the open grate, while a heavy velvet curtain was drawn across the door that gave egress to the terrace, effectually screening out the ubiqutous draught which invariably seeks entry through crack and hinge-space

Claire was at the Dower House this evenng, where a New Year's dinner-party was in progress, but Jean had no heart for festivities of any kind even had she not been precluded from taking part in them by reason of her father's death.

The grief and strain of the last four months had set their mark upon her. She was much thinner than formerly —her extreme slenderness accentuated by the clinging black of the dress she was wearing—while faint purple shadows lay beneath her eyes, giving her a look of frailty and fatigue.

She and Claire led a very sober and uneventful existence at Charnwood, the one absorbed in her quiet happiness, the other in her quiet grief. But the bond of their friendship had held true throughout the differing fortunes which had fallen to the lot of each, and although for Jean there was inevitable additional pain involved in still remaining within the neighbourhood of Staple, it was counterbalanced by the comfort she drew from Claire's companionship.

Besides, as she reflected dispiritedly, where else had she to go? The Dower House would have been open to her, of course, at any time, but there she would be certain to encounter Blaise more frequently, and of late her principal preoccupation had been to avoid such meeting whenever possible. And she could not face Beirnfels yet—alone! Some day, when Claire was married, she knew that she must brace herself to return there—to a house of dreams that would never come true now. But at present she shrank intolerably from the idea. She craved companionship—above all, the consoling, tender understanding which Claire, who had herself suffered, was so well able to give her.

The book that she had been reading earlier in the evening lay open on her knee, and her thoughts were with Claire now. She pictured her sitting next to Nick at dinner, her flower-like face radiant with unclouded happiness. At least her own sorrow had not yet taught her the grudging envy which cannot endure another's joy.

With a quickly repressed sigh, she turned again to her book. Its pages fluttered faintly, as though stirred by some passing current of air, and Jean, coming suddenly out of her reverie, was conscious of a cool draught wafting towards her from the direction of the terrace door.

Vaguely surprised, she glanced up, and a startled cry broke from her lips. The door was open, the folds of the curtain had been drawn aside, and in the aperture stood Blaise Tormarin.

Jean sprang up from her chair and stood staring at him with dilated eyes, one hand gripping the edge of the chimneypiece.

"Blaise! . . . . You!" The words issued stammeringly from her lips.

"Yes," he returned shortly. "May I come in?"

Without waiting for an answer he closed the door behind him, letting the curtain fall back into its place, and crossed the room to her side.

Jean felt her heart contract as her eyes marked the changes wrought in him by the few weeks whch had elapsed since she had seen him. His face was haggard as though from lack of sleep, and the lines on either side of the mouth were scored deep into the flesh. The mouth itself closed in a tense line of savage misery and the stark bitterness of his eyes filled her with grief and pity, knowing how utterly powerless she was to help or comfort him.

Distrusting her self-control, she snatched at the first conventional remark that suggested itself.

"I thought—I thought you and Nesta were both dining at the Dower House," she said confusedly.

"Nesta is there. I made an excuse. I came here instead."

Something in the curt, clipped sentences sounded a note of warning in her ears.

"But you ought not to have come here," she replied quickly—defensively almost. "Why have you come, Blaise?"

"I came," he said slowly, "because I can't bear my life without you a day longer. Because——Oh, Jean! Jean! . . . . Beloved! Do you need to ask me why I came?"

With a swift, irresistible movement he swept her up into his arms, holding her crushed against his breast, his mouth on hers, kissing her as a man kisses when love that has been long thwarted and denied at last bursts asunder the shackles which constrained it.

And Jean, starved for four months of the touch of the beloved arms, the pressure of the beloved lips upon her own, had yielded to him almost before she was aware of her surrender.

Then the remembrance of the woman who stood between them rushed across her and she tore herself free from his embrace, white and trembling in every limb.

"Blaise! . . . . Blaise! . . . What are you thinking of? Oh! We're mad —mad!"

She covered her face with her shaking hands but he drew them away, gazing down at her with eyes that worshipped.

"No, beloved, we're not mad," he cried triumphantly, "We're sane—sane at last. We were mad to think we could live apart, mad to dream we could starve love like ours. That was when we were mad! But we'll never be parted again; sweet——"

"Blaise," she whispered, staring at him with horrified dilated eyes. "You don't know what you are saying! You're forgetting Nesta—your wife. Oh, go—go quickly! You must not stay here and talk like this to me!"

"No," he returned. "I won't go, Jean. I've come to take you away with me." Once more his arms went round her. "Belovedest, I can't live without you any longer. I've tried—and I can't do it. Jean, you'll come? You love me enough—enough to come away with me to the ends of the earth where we'll find happiness at last?"

She sought to free herself from his clasp, pressing with straining hands against his chest.

"No! No!" she cried breathlessly. "I can't go with you . . . you know I can't Ah! Don't ask me, Blaise!" There was an agony of supplication in her voice.

"But I do ask you. And if you love me"—his eyes holding hers—"you'll come, Jean."

"I do love you," she answered earnestly. "But it isn't the you I love asking me this, Blaise. It's some other man—a stranger——"

"If you love me, you'll come," he reiterated doggedly. "I can't live without you, Jean. I want you—oh, heart's beloved, if you knew—" And the burning, passionate words, the pent-up love and longings of months of separation and despair, came pouring from his lips—beseeching and demanding, wringing her heart, pulling at the love within her that ached to give him the answer which he craved.

"Oh, Blaise, dearest of all—hush! Hush!" She checked him brokenly, with quivering lips. "I can't go with you. It wouldn't bring us happiness. Ah, listen to me, dear!" She came close to him and laid her hands imploringly on his arm, lifting her white, stricken face to his. "It would only spoil our love—to take it like that when we have no right to. It would smirch and soil it, make it something different. I think—I think, in the end, Blaise, it would kill it."

"Nothing would ever kill my love for you," he exclaimed passionately. "Jean, little Jean, think of what our life together might be—the glory and beauty of it—just you and I in our House of Dreams!"

She caught her breath. Oh! Why did he make it so hard for her? With every fibre of her being yearning towards him she must refuse, deny him, drive him away from her.

"No, No!" she cried tremulously. "We could never reach our House of Dreams that way—Oh, I know it! At least, not the sort of House of Dreams that would be worth anything to you or me, Blaise. It would only be a sham, a make-believe. You can't build true on a rotten foundation. . . . . Don't ask me any more, dear. It's so hard—so hard to keep on saying no when everything in me wants to say yes. But I must say it. And you . . . . you must go back to Nesta."

Her voice almost failed her. She could feel her strength ebbing with every moment that he stayed beside her. She knew that she would not be able to resist his pleading much longer. Her own heart was fightng against her—fighting on his side!

He saw her weakness and caught at it eagerly.

"Do you know what you're asking?" he demanded hoarsely. "Do you know what you are sendng me back to? Our life together—Nesta's and mine—has been simple hell upon upon earth. I obeyed you—and I took her back. But I have done no good by it. She is as weak and worthless as she ever was. Our days are one continual round of bickering and quarrels." his face darkened. "And she is not satisfied! Her nominal position as my wife dose not content her. Do you understand what that must mean—if I go back?" He paused, his eyes bent steadily upon her. "Jean"—very low —"now that you know—will you still send me back to Nesta? Or will you come with me and let us find our happiness together?"

He watched the scarlet flood surge into her face and then retreat, leaving it a pallid white.

"Answer me!" he persisted, as she remained silent.

"Wait . . . . wait a little . . . . ." she muttered helplessly.

She turned away from him and, leaning her elbows on the chimneypiece, buried her face in her hands.

The supreme test had come at last. She realized, now, that her renunciation—that renunciation which had cost her so much pain and bitterness —had been, after all, only something superficial and incomplete. She had not made the full sacrifice that duty and honour demanded of her. Though she had outwardly renounced her lover—bade him return to Nesta—she still held him hers by the utter faithfulness of his love for her. Nesta had had but the husk, the shell—a husband in name only, every hour of their life together an insult to her pride and womanhood.

A good time missed.... no telephone

"Hello, Charley!" said Frank, "Say, you missed the best party of the year last night. All of the gang were there, except you. Bob tried to get in touch with you, but—well, you haven't a telephone, you know, so he just couldn't reach you."

"Seems I'm always missing things these days," said Charley, "and all because I haven't a telephone. I never realized how much I depended on it until I was without one. Believe me I'm going to have one installed right away."

Nowadays most invitations come by telephone.

School attendance at West Creston school continues to increase and at the end of the week Reg. Smith, who is secretary of the trustee board, reports placing a requisition for ten new desks, as an enrollment of 30 is looked for before the end of the year. The school was only opened three years ago, at which time the attendance was about ten.

The coldest touch Creston has ever encountered in October was in evidence on Sunday morning when the mercury went as low as 14 above zero—18 degrees of frost. The cold dip was in streaks apparently, as in parts damage was done the unpicked apple crops, while in other sections the freeze was not sufficiently hard to hurt the fruit still on the trees. At Lister there was a snowfall, that was still in evidence in shady spots late Sunday afternoon.

Miss Marguerite Ferguson, whose marriage takes place later in the month, was guest of honor at a miscellaneous shower at which Mrs. Stanley Hendren and Mrs. Fransen were joint hostesses, at the home of the latter on Thursday evening last. A novel feature to the affair was the remarkable success the bride elect had with her wishes on opening the many useful gifts that were "showered" on this happy occasion Contests were the feature of the evening, with a dainty lunch served at the close.

The Petite Beauty Shoppe had a successful opening at the end of the week. The shop, which is in the stand formerly occupied by Dicd Chandler, has been remodelled and looks well in its new decorative effect of rose and cream. Miss Helen Nystrom, who is in charge, is a graduate of the Moler Beauty College and passed all the government examinations with high standing, and since then has been employed at Vancouver and later had her own parlor at Midway. For the present prices have been reduced considerably, marcells and finger waves costing but 50 cents. Miss Nystrom invites the ladies to call and inspect the new premises.

Mr. Husband had received the appointment of cook at the employed men's camp near Sirdar. He is keeping down the cost of living to a very fine point, having to feed the men on an average of 40 cents per day.

The heavy frost on Sunday morning, when the mercury went down to 14 above zero, did some damage on the unpicked apple crop in this area.

The district will extend its sincerest sympathy to Mr. and Mrs. Robert Stewart in the death of their eldest son, Albert, which took place on Friday last. Business has picked up at the Kaslo hospital of late, and a second nurse has been added to the staff.

The Free Press figures it out that every ton of coal pnrchased outside of Fernie deprives a miner of at least $4.

The plant of the Domestic Wines & By-Products, Limited, at Kelowna is turning out about 500 gallons of wine daily.

It is expected the new wine making plant at Kelowna will this year utilize about a thousand tons of apples and cherries.

According to the Pentieton Herald the quantity of McIntosh Red apples being stored is much smaller than a year ago.

At Fernie the Roman Catholic separate school has been forced to close and this will add 160 to the attendance at the public school.

One Nakusp optimist writes the board of trade suggesting the town offers openings for a grain mill, cheese factory, tanery and wheelwright.

Up to early October 51 per cent. of the McIntosh Red apple crop, estimated at 1,243,655 boxes, had been marketed. 21 per cent of it had gone to export.

The preserving and pickling season at Nakusp was very trying. The merchants ran out of vinegar and sealere—and were unable to secure a supply of the latter.

At Grand Forks the married men on relief complain bitterly because single men, Doukhobors and other foreigners are given work and the benedites are overlooked.

According to weather records kept in Cranbrook for the past thirty years or more the month of September this year beats any September in all these years for beautiful weather.

According to figures supplied the Vernon News, 72 per cent. of the McIntosh Red apples sold on the Canadian market had been shipped bulk. Saskatchewan has been the biggest buyer so far.

Eagle Hall which reverted back to Kaslo for non-payment of taxes, has just been loaned the Women's Institute free of charge for their meetings and other activities.

A Dominion Rifle Association has been organized at Cranbrook with over 200 members. The federal government has supplied it with rifles and 13,000 rounds of ammunition.

Fernie board of trade will ask both the provincial and federal governments to guarantee $500,000 of bonds of the Flathead Paper Mills, Limited, which has large timber holdings in that district.

the winners. Mrs. Towson won the first prize.

In the fruit division entries rolled up a good total. The names of several new exhibitors appeared on the prize tickets. Old time champions had to struggle hard to hold their laurels. The competition for the Commerce Cup also showed signs of renewed activity. Percy Boffey, however, successfully defended his trophy leading the field with three particularly fine plates of apples. According to rumors she battle for this cup is likely to be pretty lively next ea r. In the pears, plums, crab-apple classes E. H. Pridham won the special for best single entry, with a plate of Anjous—described by the judges as "especially choice." Eric Craigie scored heavily all along the line winning most points in the single box classes. He was also fortunate in producing the best single apple, which like last year was a McIntosh. It was as perfect as an apple could be.

The vegetable display was the biggest and best seen in some years. The premier honors in this section went to Mrs. R. Sinclair Smith of West Creston, who scored most points, and had a notable win in the carrots, half long, where the entry was heavy and the carrots so uniformly good that the judges were compelled to cut each of the entries in order to finally place the red ticket. Mrs. Monrad Wigen of Wynndel was also quite a prominent winner in this class.

In farm produce, Mrs. W. H. Hilton captured the butter honors, but the balance oi the first prizes went to Camp Lister, Mrs. Fred Powers annexing the highest honors in dressed fowl, brown eggs and crate of eggs with Frank Baker first in white eggs.

As expected, the ladies of the valley showed their usual excellence in the canning sections, over 200 jars being placed on display. Mrs. Telford succeeded in winning the aggregate prize money, a point or so ahead of Mrs. Payne and Mrs. McLaren. The jams and marmalades looked delicious.

In needlework, Mrs. S. Best was the leading exhibitor, winning the aggregate prize with the splendid total of 23 points. The Farmers' Institute bread baking competition was heavily contested Mrs. A. E. Hackett taking first prize, and Mrs. Cotterill second, the latter again demoustrating her well known knowledge of the art.

The competition in the poultry section has never been better. Mr. Landon, who judged this section, described it as "a very fine show." The Powers ranch at Lister captured the silver cup for the best male bird. The bird looked the part—hard as nails, agile, and a winner in the production line from away back. The new section for best female gained a first win for A. Comfort—a well grown young red pullet being favored by the judge. Both these birds exhibited in a marked degree all that is finest in the art of poultry breeding and were deserving of close study by poultrymen. Following are the School Fair prizewinners:

The Price Of Wheat.

Saskatchewan is the great wheat growing province of Canada. In normal years it produces more wheat than any state in the United States, and more than one-half of all the wheat grown in Canada, and Canada is one of the great wheat exporting countries of the world. Wheat is not only the primary industry of Saskatchewan, as it is to a somewhat lesser extent of Manitoba and Alberta; it is its very life blood upon which the existence of all other business and industry depends. It is, therefore, a vitally serious matter when the price the farmer can obtain for his wheat drops below the cost of producing it, and today yields him on these prairies only some 30 odd cents a bushel. Why is this?

Dr. J. T. M. Anderson, Premier of Saskatchewan, recently stated he could see but little hope for any great improvement in the price in view of the great surpluses and in view of the fact that Germany, France, Italy and even Spain were growing sufficient for their own needs. He expressed the belief that the only remedy lay in a conference of leading wheat-growing countries of the world to arrange curtailment of production.

Mr. James G. Gardiner, leader of the opposition in the Saskatchewan Legislature, has, in speeches delivered by him, outlned the reason why these European countries, which formerly were large importers of Canada's wheat, are now producing sufficient for their own needs. He has pointed out that it is not because it is economically profitable for them to do so; quite the reverse is true. France today is devoting lands to the growing of wheat which formerly grew grapes to be made into wine, and which if still devoted to vineyards would yield larger profits. Germany likewise is devoting large acreages to wheat growing that could be and formerly were put to much more profitable purposes. The same is true of Italy, Spain, and other European countries. And the question persists: Why?

The reason is: Fear. And it is the only reason. The nations of Europe are still suspicious of each other; each convinced that others have designs upon them and only await a favorable opportunity to wage war upon them. The world could disarm tomorrow if it were not for the prevailing fear in the minds, not of statesmen alone, but of all the people of Europe. They expect another war and are preparing for it; hence they will not disarm, but are strengthening their positions in every way they can.

And when war comes, as they are convinced it will come sooner or later, the resisting power of any country will depend upon the degree to which it can feed its own people. Germany learned that great lesson in 1914-18. The people of France can live without grapes and wine, but not without bread, so former vineyards are now given over to growing wheat and other grains; in Germany century-old forests have become wheat fields and the production of less essential things have been discontinued for wheat growing; Russia is putting forth almost super-human efforts to raise enormous quantities of wheat to sell abroad in order that it may buy back machinery, electrical equipment, chemicals, minerals of all kinds, and thus create enormous industries which can, when required, be converted into munition plants. The men on the large state farms in Russia who are operating farm tractors are, at the same time, being taught the mechanism of tanks for war purposes so they will be trained and ready to switch from the tractor to the tank. The same thing in varying degrees is taking place in all continental European countries.

It is all a price exacted by "Fear," and the nations are prepared to pay the price of heavy losses sustained by the conversion of lands to wheat growing which could much more profitably be utilized for other purposes. As a result Europe no longer needs to import quantities of wheat, and the prairie provinces of Canada, whose primary business is wheat, find the old markets upon which they relied closed to them, and themselves in the position of being unable to sell at a price which will cover the cost of production, let alone yield a profit.

The Canadian people themselves cannot change this condition; it cannot be done by moving our Customs tariff up or down; or by inflation of currency; or by nationalization of banks, socialization of industry, writing off of debts and interest charges, because, if the prairie farmer was freed of all debt today he would begin getting into debt again tomorrow if he went on producing wheat which he could not sell except at a price below what it had cost him to produce.

The main cause of our financial and economic difficulties in Western Canada today is the fundamental one,—"Fear." If that fear could be dissipated and confidence re-established, European countries would discontinue non-profitable wheat growing and go back to the production of those things which would yield them more substantial returns; they would again buy wheat instead of raising it, and would be able to pay a good price for it out of the profits derived from the production and sale of those things they can produce, and formerly did produce, to better advantage than other countries.

What can Canadians do in the matter? Only this: Resist every tendency in the direction of a narrow nationalism, and encourage a broad internationalism, because extreme nationalistic feelings and ambitions on the part of one nation develop fear and a like feeling in all other nations. Every time a racial or religious prejudice is emphasized, fear is raised in the minds of some one. Whenever one nation seeks to advance its own interests at the expense of another nation, suspicions are aroused and fear grows. One reacts upon another, and suspicion, antagonisms and fear grow like mushrooms in the dark.

The world is paying an awful price because it is filled with "Fear." Let us help both nationally and in our daily individual thought and actions to dissipate it.

Pains In Stomach and Bowels So Bad Would Have To Sit Down

DR. FOWLER'S EXT. OF WILD STRAWBERRY

Mrs. C. Landry, Moncton, N.B., writes:—"I can certainly recommend Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry for cramps or pains in the stomach and bowels.

"Last Summer I had such awful pains in my stomach, and lower part of my bowels, at times, I would have to sit down. I took 'Dr. Fowler's' and was soon relieved.

"When my children were small I always kept a bottle in the house and it helped them wonderfully whenever any of them had bowel complaints."

Task For Scotland Yard

British Police Trying To Discover Agents Of Drug Ring

Six women prominent in British society, wealthy, glamorous, and splendidly gowned, are being watched day and night by Scotland Yard as the alleged chief agents of a drug ring supplying Mafair with thousands of dollars' worth of narcotics.

So far the women have thwarted efforts of the police to get the conclusive evidence demanded by the English courts.

The six women entertain and move freely in the titled circles of London's west end.

Hannen Swaffer, noted dramatic critic and London columnist, claims to have been at several Mayfair parties where a secret traffic in narcotics was taking place. "There is a drug racket which spreads from the heart of Piccadilly through the great boulevards of Paris and right across Europe into Asia," he wrote recently.

Turkey is said to be the chief source of the narcotics, which are brought across the Syrian desert to the small port of El Kantara, on the Suez Canal.

NOT A PAIN AT 78

She Feels Like 48

Aches and pains are not inevitable in old age. When they do come, there is always a cause for them—a cause that can be overcome. Here is a little lesson on growing old, by a woman of 78:—

"For the last five years I have taken Kruschen Salts and I tell you truthfully I could not live without them. I am 78 years old. I have not a pain in my body, and I feel as young as I did at 48. I give the credit to Kruschen Salts. No one will believe my age."—(Mrs.) C. M.

Most people grow old long before their time because they neglect one vital need of health—the need for internal cleanliness. Eventually they start the healthy Kruschen habit. Then, probably for the first time in their lives, they start getting rid every day of all waste matter from the system. And almost immediately they feel their youth has returned; they feel energetic and happy. In a word, they've got that famous "Kruschen Feeling."

Has Taken Long Time

A compact volume, containing all the building laws of the city of Montreal, will be issued shortly. The book, first mooted in 1896, drafted in 1910 and to see the light of day 22 years later, is said to be a first step towards a drastic town planning programme. S. Fortin, city expert, has devoted his whole time this year to compilation of the manual.

Detects Counterfeit Coin

Attila Somlay, Hungarian actor, has invented an apparatus by which, he claims, one can easily detect counterfeit coins, even when such coins contain a liberal quantity of the more valuable metals and alloys. One such apparatus is now being tested by the Hungarian National Bank and another by the post administration.

If Miller's Worm Powders needed the support of testimonials they could be got from mothers who know the great virtue of this excellent medicine. But the powders will speak for themselves and in such a way that there can be no question of them. They act speedily and thoroughly, and the child to whom they are administered will show improvement from the first dose.

Record Hard To Equal

Newspaper Correspondent Wrote Out Long Speech From Memory

Discussing newspapermen with prodigious memories W. Orton Tewson, the English writer who lives in New York and writes a column of anecdotes, says that Stephen de Blowitz, famed Paris correspondent of The London Times in the seventies, broke all records. According to the story J. T. Delane, editor of the Times, had been visiting Paris and with de Blowitz heard the French Minister of Foreign Affairs deliver a long and important speech in the Chamber. There were no arrangements for reporting such matters in those days. Delane remarked to de Blowitz, as he was taking a train for London: "If we could have that speech from end to end in tomorrow morning's paper, what a glorious thing it would be." After his editor departed de Blowitz reasoned he could remember the speech, word for word. He wrote it out and cabled it, and Deyane found it in the columns of the Times when he reached London. It was an accurate report.

Interior Of Earth Interests Scientists

Find Ocean Tides Disturb Crust For Six Miles Inland

Fresh evidence that scientific investigation again has taken a perpendicular course comes with the announcement by two men in California that the push and the pull of ocean tides disturb the earth's crust for a distance of six miles inland. Recently scientific interest turned to the stratosphere, with the ascent of Professor Piccard; now it is directed toward the interior of the earth. Since the discovery in California was more or less accidental, being made in connection with other experiments, further observations will be required to reveal its full import. These will be made next winter.

PROPOSAL MADE TO DISCUSS THE GERMAN POSITION

London, England.—The Exchange Telegraph Agency said the British Government was seeking to determine whether a conference could be arranged to discuss Germany's withdrawal from the disarmament conference. France, Germany and Italy were being consulted.

The agency said the matter was still under consideration, and the British Government had intimated if the conference course were feasible and generally approved, it would be willing to arrange a meeting for this purpose in London.

The exact object of the conversation would be to determine whether the difficulties arising from Germany's withdrawal could be discussed in an exchange of views.

Berlin, Germany.—The British charge d'affaires verbally submitted to the foreign office an official invitation to a conference of the powers to be held in London to pave the way for Germany's return to the world disarmament conference at Geneva.

In replying to the invitation Germany emphasized that unless certain guarantees were given that her demand for arms equality really would be fulfilled, the government of the reich could not participate.

Without fulfillment of the German demand, the charge d'affaires was informed, the London meeting would be futile.

Alberta Oil Fields

Believe Gushers Will Be Discovered To Stagger the Imagination

Calgary, Alberta.—In the near future enough crude oil will be produced in Alberta between Keho Lake and the international boundary to supply the British Empire, according to Arthur I. Davis, consulting geologist and petroleum engineer of the Wiltshire Oil Company, visiting Alberta oil district. Mr. Davis believes oil gushers will be discovered that will "stagger the imaginations of Albertans."

C. A. Roney, Los Angeles oil operator, accompanied Mr. Davis. Mr. Roney plans to drill a well at Twin River, 25 miles west of Milk River town. The drilling will take place on the property of the Nordon corporation, where Mr. Davis predicts 1,000 to 10,000 barrels daily will be produced. He placed a $100,000,000 value on the property.

Many Killed In Cloudburst

Damage Caused At Tehachapi, California, Runs Into Million

Bakersfield, California.—The bodies of 15 victims had been recovered, five others were listed as dead and unconfirmed reports said 21 additional bodies had been found in a wrecked freight car in the floodswept wake of the Tehachapi cloudburst that took a toll of possibly 45 lives and caused damage estimated from $1,500,000 to $2,000,000.

Unverified reports to the Southern Pacific Company here said a boxcar, swept from a bridge when the torrent wrecked two freight trains, had been found to contain the bodies of 21 men and boys.

B.C. Coalition Opposed

Delegates At Liberal Association Meeting Refuse To Participate

Vancouver, B.C.—Demand for the holding of a general election "at the earliest possible moment" and the refusal to participate in a coalition government, as suggested by Premier S. F. Tolmie, marked the first day's session of the annual meeting of the British Columbia Liberal Association here; 500 delegates were in attendance.

The resolution declared the convention's confidence in the leadership of T. D. Pattullo and extended to him "a free mandate to choose for his associates in government men of character, ability and standing, having regard solely to the public interest."

Hon. Ian Mackenzie, M.P. for Vancouver Centre, predicted any success that may have been attained at the Imperial Conference would be insofar as the agreements followed along the lines of the last Dunning budget.

Mrs. Mary Ellen Smith was "madame chairman" at the opening of the convention. She called the delegates by their first names at times.

Appoint New Secretary

J. R. McLean To Succeed Graham Spry As National Secretary Of Canadian Clubs

Ottawa, Ont.—The executive committee of the Association of Canadian Clubs has announced the appointment of J. R. McLean, formerly of Winnipeg, to the post of national secretary. Mr. McLean will take over his duties at once as successor to Graham Spry, who resigned May 1, last.

Mr. McLean graduated from the University of Manitoba in 1926, with the degree of bachelor of arts, and took his M.A. degree from the same university the following year, at which he was chosen Rhodes scholar from Manitoba. He obtained the degree of bachelor of letters from Oxford in June, 1931. He is 27 years of age and a son of Mr. and Mrs. John McLean, Yorkton, Sask.

Mrs. P. A. Wheeler, assistant secretary, who has been acting secretary since Mr. Spry's resignation, will continue as assistant secretary.

Grain Shipped To Churchill

Movement Of 1932 Crop Now In Full Swing

The Pas, Man.—The movement of 1932 wheat from the prairies of western Canada to Churchill for storage during the winter, and immediate shipment overseas when navigation opens in 1933, is now in full swing, with nearly 1,000 cars already north of The Pas; the grain passing over the Hudson Bay Railway at the rate of approximately 100 cars per day.

Nine hundred and fifty cars are north of The Pas, it was stated at the local office of the Bay line, and during the past few days has been passing through at the rate of 100 cars daily.

It is expected grain will continue to go north at a rapid rate for some time to come, and according to indications the Churchill elevator will be filled before winter sets in. The total capacity of the elevator is 2,500,000 bushels.

Loan Conversion a Success

New South Wales Lists Closed Within Half An Hour

London, England.—New South Wales loan conversion, sponsored by the commonwealth along the lines of the British conversion, reducing the government's interest burden by a substantial figure, proved a remarkable success.

Cash applications were so heavy that the lists were closed within half an hour. The new loan is for five years carrying 4 per cent. interest. In the case of the Australian loan there is a 2½ per cent. bonus with a seven-day limit.

The converted loan totalled £12,360,959. Former interest rates on this sum were 5¾ per cent. The nominal interest for the new issue is 3½ per cent., but allowing for the premium on repayment the overall yield will be about four per cent. Altogether the conversion will mean a saving of nearly £600,000 a year.

Used Hudson Bay Route

Miss Cora Hind First Woman Passenger Sailing Via Churchill

Winnipeg, Man.—Miss E. Cora Hind, veteran agricultural editor and the greatest woman journalist Canada has produced, sailed out of Churchill Bristol-bound, the first woman passenger to use the Hudson Bay route.

For the better part of her life Miss Hind has shared in western Canada's fight for a direct outlet to world markets through Hudson Bay. When the route was finally opened to the grain trade of the world, she was eager to see for herself the Hudson Bay Railway and the northern sea passage for which she had fought so vigorously and successfully.

Confiding her ambition only to a few friends and associates, she left Winnipeg for Churchill determined if possible to get a passage. She had intended to leave earlier than she did, and only chance saved her from being a passenger on the "Bright Fan" which struck an iceberg and went to the bottom.

Soviet Watchword

Quality Rather Than Quantity Is To Be Guiding Principle

Moscow, Russia.—Quality rather than quantity is to be the watchword of Soviet production during 1933. So the central committee of the Communist party decided at the four-day meeting which has now ended.

The committee adopted a series of resolutions admitting serious shortcomings in the development of the country's public economy, especially in foods, and exhorting the party members and the proletariat to put their shoulders to the wheel from now on.

Oregon Forest Fire

Loss Is Estimated At More Than $2,000,000

Portland, Ore.—Roaring in from all sides with blasting heat, a forest fire destroyed the town of Cochran in the mountain timber country, about 50 miles west of Portland in Washington county.

The loss, including that in the town, two mills, railroad equipment and timber, was estimated by those in the area at more than $2,000,000. The town's 200 inhabitants escaped.

The community and mill camp at Edwards, nearby, burned to the ground. At Enright, three railroad tunnels, a costly rail incline, several trestles and other equipment of the Southern Pacific were destroyed.

All equipment and buildings of the C. H. Wheeler Logging Company in the Cochran area burned.

The only death reported from the most disastrous forest fire in years was that of a logger killed by a falling tree.

From other sections of western Oregon there came reports of fires, less serious, but holding much potential danger. A warm east wind, drying all foliage and grass, coupled with unseasonably hot October weather, presented a menace.

Trade Wheat For Vegetables

Alberta Farmers Resorting To the Ancient System Of Barter

Calgary, Alberta.—Alberta farmers have turned again to the ancient system of barter to supply their wants for the winter. They are entering British Columbia by motor truck through the Crow's Nest Pass, carrying wheat which they trade for vegetables, fruit and eggs.

This method of acquiring food for the winter instead of selling their wheat at prevailing low prices was used by the farmers last year, but, according to reports, the movement this season is much larger. The farmers are returning from British Columbia farming areas with their trucks loaded with winter food supplies.

One farmer claims to have disposed of a load of wheat on the basis of 60 cents to the bushel, obtaining sufficient fruit and vegetables to keep his family all winter.

Expel Papal Delegate

Mexico Orders His Expulsion As a Pernicious Foreigner

Mexico City.—Monsignor Leopoldo Ruizzy Flors, papal delegate to Mexico, left in a private aeroplane with two agents of the department of interior for the United States. He had been ordered expelled from the country as a "pernicious foreigner."

The 'plane was to cross the border at Laredo or Brownsville. The papal delegate's only remark was that it was the first time he ever had been up in an aeroplane.

ALBERTA WILL GIVE ASSISTANCE IN DEBT CASES

Edmonton, Alberta.—Government action following the decision of the Alberta Bar Association to give assistance in debt cases will be taken shortly, it is intimated by Premier J. E. Brownlee, who says that a further announcement will probably be made when the plan has been thoroughly considered and organized.

"I am much pleased with the attitude of members of the law society," said the premier, "in offering their services on a very fair basis in an effort to work out the debtor-and-creditor difficulties. Meanwhile I can say quite definitely that any creditor firm that is showing that it appreciates the situation now existing in this province, and is willing to cooperate in solving the problem, has but little to fear."

Queried as to a resolution reported to have been sent from the wholesalers' association in Calgary, to the effect that no further government action be taken to disturb the present credit relations, Mr. Brownlee said that no such resolution has as yet reached him.

Edmonton business interests may fight the proposed voluntary debt adjustment scheme for this province, feeling that the present system should not be disturbed.

Arrangements were being made here to call a meeting of wholesale firms in order to discuss the whole plan. In all likelihood, retail interests also will hold a meeting.

"The reaction to the scheme shows considerable opposition at present," said Secretary John Blue, of the Edmonton Chamber of Commerce. "There is a strong feeling that as new legislation was made effective this year, modifying the Debt Adjustment act, business men are not clear as to the difference involved as between the secured and unsecured creditor."

Universities To Confer

Meetings Of the Heads Of Western Universities To Be Held

Edmonton, Alberta.—A call will be sent out probably this week by Dr. R. C. Wallace, president of the University of Alberta, for a meeting of the heads or other representatives of western universities, as proposed by Premier Brownlee a few weeks ago.

Replies have been received from Saskatchewan and Manitoba approving of the suggestion, and word has come from British Columbia that an answer from that province will be ready shortly.

Jap Population Grows

One Out Of Every Eight Births At Coast Is Japanese

Victoria, B.C.—Approximately one out of every eight births registered in British Columbia during 1931 was Japanese, according to figures released by H. W. Young, provincial health officer. Last year, registration of births of all races totalled 9,640, of which 1,342 were Japanese. Despite the fact the Chinese population in British Columbia exceeds that of the Japanese by several thousands, only 177 Chinese births were registered last year.

Japanese Policy

Cabinet Decides Not To Alter Decision Regarding Manchuria

Tokyo, Japan.—The cabinet decided that the Lytton commission's report on Manchuria to the League of Nations did not constitute cause to alter its Manchurian policy.

A cardinal point of that policy is the separation of Manchuria from China and maintenance of the independent state of Manchukuo, which the Japanese assisted in creating, to replace the old regime, owing allegiance to Nanking.
