Creston's First Diamond Wedding

Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Simister Celebrate Sixtieth Anniversary of Marriage with Very Happy Family Reunion, Wednesday.

Following the wedding ceremony at Swinton, Lancashire, England, on December 7th, 1872, best wishes for a long, healthy and happy wedded life, were heartily bestowed on Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Simister, and on Wednesday last the happy couple observed their diamond wedding, realizing in the truest sense of the terms the felicitations of their friends three score years previous, and surrounded by six members of the present family of seven—of a household that once boasted eleven members.

The groom of '72 is a native of Worseley, near Manchester, Lancashire, where he was born in 1851, while the partner of his long and eventful life, Hannah Morris, claims Swinton, also near Manchester, as her place of birth. For 27 years after their marriage Mr. and Mrs Simister resided at Swinton, where the groom was in the hardware business, and in which place he took an active part in the political life and the community activities.

In 1899 Mr. and Mrs Simister decided to try their fortunes in Canada, arriving at Michel, B.C., that year, where for sometime he followed coal mining, later moving into the Cowley Alberta, district, where he went in for farming, stockraising, and where he continued to reside until 1917, when they again moved west to the Creston district, securing an orchard property at Alice Siding, where they remained for a couple of years, and then moved into Creston to make their permanent home.

The family of seven are Mrs. E. Martin and Mrs. R. Heap of Sirdar, Mrs. B. F. Whiteside of Nelson, Mrs. Ruth Hopwood of Vancouver, James of Michel, Frank of Creston, and Fred of Cumberland, Vancouver Island. There are 19 grandchildren and three great grandchildren.

Wednesday's observance of this unique occasion saw all members of the family except Fred, present for a very happy family reunion, at which the bride and groom were suitably remembered by the family. During the afternoon open house was kept and Mr. and Mrs. Simister received the hearty congratulations of many Creston friends, in addition to which congratulatory messages were received from their son, Fred, and other friends. In the evening there was a family gathering, when the incidents of the family life, both grave and gay, were recounted in story and song, with midnight coming all too soon to call a halt to the happy proceedings.

During their dozen years residence in Creston Mr. and Mrs. Simister have made many friendships and the Review is most happy to join with the friends in extending felicitations coupled with the sincere wish that their good health will continue and that there be quite a few more happy returns of the wedding anniversary.

Routine business occupied the attention of Farmers' Institute members at the December meeting on Saturday which was in charge of President, F. Knott. The proposed debate between representatives of the Institute and the Farmers' Unity League has been cancelled.

The most enjoyable dance of the season was that on Friday night at the hall under the auspices of the Christmas entertainment committee, which got under way about 8.15 and ended at 2.30 to the disappointment of many present. A seven-piece orchestra furnished the music, consisting of four violins in the hands of Miss Holly Bond and Messrs. L. W. Stephens, Alf. Bond and T. R. Mawson; Ed Clark banjo; L. Moberg guitar; with Mr. and Mrs. Kolthammer and Miss Vera McGonegal of Kitchener at the piano. Roy Browell was master of ceremonies, and the affair enjoyed an intake of $26.

The Christmas entertainment committee which consists of Mesdames Van-Ackeran, Bond and M. Samuelson, announce a card party for this evening at the community hall in aid of this good work. Along with bridge and whist will be a few tables of cribbage for the admirers of this game.

Friday night's games brought fans to their feet again during the three hours' play.

The 7.30 game saw an upset for the Imperial Groceteria, who had been favoured to win over the Bearcats, but who were out-played and out-scored in the overtime period to lose 20-23. The Bearcats are thus tied with the Centipedes for the top berth in the league. The boys in orange just could not get going, their defense especially being woefully weak. Time after time, Charlie Holmes and Dobie Macdonald were left unchecked to take long passes and sink field goals without opposition. Bus. Ross played a nice game at centre; while Herb and Art Couling, together with Andy Miller starred for the grocers.

The second game was even more exciting. The Meds, fielding only five men, ran the Ex High off their feet in the first half to lead 11 4. The third quarter saw 3 points scored for the Meds and 8 for the Ex-High. In the last quarter the latter held the Pharmacists and sank the winning baskets. Final score was 16-14. For the losers, Marjorie Levirs scored 11 points, but was ably supported by the remainder of the team. There is not a particle of doubt that even with one fresh substitute the score would have been reversed. There was something definitely wrong with the coaching tactics of the Ex-High. Helen Browell, star guard, was left off all the first quarter and Dot Macdonald, playing the best forward game on the floor was pulled after only one session.

In the third game, the Dominoes got away to an early lead. The High Reps, who have been playing indifferent basketball all season, barely nosed them out in th last half to win 20-14, and retain their position at the head of the League. For the winners, Betty Speers and Agnes Crane starred. Jean Henderson and Marion McDonald led the attack for the Dominoes.

Next week's games, the last League fixtures before Christmas, see the Centipedes clash with th Imperial Grocoteria at 7.30, the Highfliers play the Meds at 8.30, and the Ex High meet the Dominoes at 9.30.

Now—All Together.

Municipal and school board elections are over for another year throughout Canada's western provinces. Reports indicate that, generally speaking, the elections this year were contested with a vigor surpassing that which usually characterizes such contests. This, no doubt, is but another result of the difficult and critical times through which the world is passing, the inevitable outcome of which is discontent, dissatisfaction with whatever is done, no matter what its nature may be, or who may be responsible for the doing of it. Another factor accounting for the keenness of many contests was the entry of a political party in Provincial and Federal affairs into the realm of municipal affairs, thus introducing a new element, and in some cases a new bitterness, into municipal and school board elections.

It is no doubt true that at no time can men and women, clothed with responsibility by their fellow citizens to direct public policies and manage public affairs, please all classes. No matter what they may do, or may leave undone, certain people will be dissatisfied. This, however, is especially true at a time like the present when all governing bodies are confronted with the two-fold task on exercising the strictest economy on the one hand, and of being faced with the necessity of making extraordinary expenditures on the other hand. Both these things must be done,—the first because of falling revenues resulting from the inability of many people to pay taxes, and the second because prevailing conditions make it obligatory to provide work or relief for countless numbers of people. The result is a demand for more and more so-called "free" services on the part of governments, for people who have not the means to obtain these services for themselves, at a time when governments cannot possibly get the money to pay for the aforesaid "free" services.

Dissatisfaction and discontent, ending in unreasonableness on the part of many, is the inevitable result. Those things which many people are demanding, if granted, mean the imposition of still heavier burdens on others who are making a valiant struggle to keep their own heads above water and not become charges on the community. Those whom the citizenship made responsible for administration of public policies and affairs thus found themselves between two fires, and, with their hands tied financially, making it impossible for them to do many of the things they undoubtedly would have been glad to do were it only possible.

Some experienced and conscientious public servants have, as a result of this general dissatisfaction, been defeated, their places on public bodies being taken by others, some of whom, again, have captured the popular fancy and support as a result of more or less sweeping promises which they will soon discover they, too, with all the best intention in the world, will be unable to fulfill.

Service on municipal councils, school boards, and other public bodies is, at best and under the most favorable circumstances, a more or less thankless task, while under present prevailing adverse conditions it is even more so, inviting, as it does, little but abuse, misrepresentation of motives and acts, and loss of whatever popularity a person may have possessed. Such service also involves no small sacrifice on the part of the person accepting public office. In these days it requires every moment of one's time and energies to keep their own personal business matters in solvent shape. . .eglect of them means diaster.

But service on public bodies is a public duty. It is a duty that must be discharged by some one, and those who are willing to make the sacrifice are deserving of the thanks and cordial goodwill of their fellow citizens, regardless of the fact that their every act may not meet with approval.

Therefore, now that the smoke of our municipal and school board battles has floated away, now that the decisions of the majority have been rendered, it behooves all citizens of good will, and loyal to the democratic institutions of this country, to get behind their representatives whoever they may be, and, irrespective of the fact whether they were their personal choice or not, give them a helping hand. Let carping criticism now cease. Let all personalities be forgotten. Rather, let one and all stand unitedly in support of their elected representatives and work harmoniously together with one single purpose of doing the best possible under existing circumstances, helping each other, and thereby helping all.

And in so doing greater consideration may well be given to this important fact which too many people are rather inclined in these troublous days to forget, namely, that more can be learned from the experiences of the past than from all the text books of theories or the idealistic visions of inexperienced and untried visionaries. What is good in the past we should retain, while that which, through experience, we have learned to be weak and faulty should be remedied or disregarded, being substituted by what that same experience has shown to be needed, rather than to invoke some purely theoretical idea which, when put to the test of practical operation, is more likely than not to land us in a deeper morass than the one from which we are striving to extricate ourselves.

Woman Is Honored By French Legion

Old Tradition Has Been Shattered For Second Time

An old tradition which dates back to Napoleon and which kept French women from rising in grade in the Legion of Honor has been shattered by the award of the rank of Commander of the Legion to a woman, for the second time in history.

Mme. Philippe de Vilmorin, millionaire business woman and one of the world's greatest dealers in seeds and grains, has been promoted from Officer to Commander, joining in that rank Countess de Noailles, poetess, the only other woman Commander in the Legion's history.

The promotion came in the distribution of 600 ribbons and rosettes of the Legion of Honor to reward services rendered towards the success of the Colonial Exposition. Madame de Vilmorin had created the floral decoration of the exposition grounds.

Widowed during the war, Mme. de Vilmorin left the front, where she had won citations as a war nurse, and took charge of the 200-year-old grain firm.

She travelled through Africa, Indo-China, Java, Egypt, Australia and the orient, to select and improve the seeds of tobacco, rice, coffee, peanuts, and other colonial crops. She operates agronomic laboratories and largely was responsible for saving the French cut-flower industry from ruinous Dutch and Italian competition.

Shanghai Has German Paper

City Now Boasts Wide Variety In Daily Newspapers

Into the babel of Shanghai's already complex newspaper world still another foreign language daily has made its debut. It is the German language Deutsches Shanghai Zeitung. Perhaps no other city in the world boasts of so many different kinds of daily papers.

Published in the English language there is the old established English journal, the North China Daily News, so-called because at its founding most foreigners lived in Canton, to which Shanghai was then North China, although it is far from that geographically speaking. Two American dailies, the China Press in the morning and the Shanghai Evening Post and Mercury, an afternoon paper, vie with the third, the Shanghai Times, which has an English editor, although it is not of that nationality as to capital.

"Wall Of Invisible Rays" On Germany's Western Frontier

An invisible wall which nobody can penetrate unnoticed will soon be "erected" at certain points of Germany's western frontier as the latest device against smugglers.

It is a "wall of invisible rays" which cannot be seen or felt; but whoever penetrates this wall starts an alarm in the Customs office. There an indicator promptly announces the spot where the intruder has crossed the frontier. A special device informs the officers of "blind alarms" by hares, dogs or deer.

Plan Is Hardly Feasible

The National Railway Construction Federation has submitted a plan to the ministry of railways to convert the ancient Great Wall of China into a system of motor highways, but it is hard for outsiders to conjecture such a motor road. For hundreds of miles the Wall climbs over mountain peaks.

Bidding For Foreign Markets

Germany Plans To Send Out Floating Industrial "Fair"

In an endeavour to regain some of the foreign markets Germany lost as a result of the world war, an association of German manufacturers of Hagen, Westphalia, plan to send out a floating industrial "fair" early next year on a trade crusade to South America and the Far East, according to commerce department advices from Consul J. H. Bruins at Hamburg.

The 14,000-ton Hamburg-South American liner S.S. Cap Norte has been chartered for the "fair." It will visit more than 70 foreign ports of the world, leaving Hamburg or Bremen shortly after the first of the year and remaining away 18 months.

"It will sail first to South American ports, later visiting British East India, China and Japan," the consul's report said.

The "Floating Fair" has been so organized that even small firms may take part in this piece of practical trade promotion. It will offer for sale and will exhibit a great range of German industrial products, especially hardware and tools."

New Orleans Woman Would Open Store In Aklavik

In New Orleans, La., a certain woman is thirsting for knowledge of Canada's far north. She also seeks knowledge of the Dominion's currency.

The woman, whose name was not revealed, wrote a tourist agency at Calgary for the information as she apparently wanted to open a store in Aklavik, which rests in Canada's bleak sub-Arctic.

The agency, however, told her there were not railways to the shore coast of the Arctic ocean and that it would be doubtful if the candy and medicine business would be very profitable in that district. They also told her Canadian money was in dollars and cents not pounds and shillings as she believed.

Reproduction Of Old Temple

Took Centuries To Build But Duplicate Took Sixty Days

The Chicago World's Fair breaks ground for the great Maya temple that is to be a dominating feature. It reproduces the temple at Uxmal Yucatan, built more than 1,000 years ago by the most enlightened aborigines of North America. The original was generations in building, the duplicate goes up in 60 days. With electric cutting tools the grotesque head of a Mayan god can be turned out in a few hours; but the original Maya, who did not even know how to harden copper spent a lifetime in bringing a face or a column into form. This temple alone will serve all the ends of a world's fair—It will be a psalm of the rise of man.—Christian Science Monitor.

Almost every known method of survey has been made use of in the work of surveying the international boundary between Canada and the United States. In its length of 5,500 miles, the boundary passes through country greatly varying in nature—through arms of the sea, through the great lakes, through rivers, lakes and forests and over plains, snowfields, glaciers and mountains.

GAS EXPLOSION CREATES HAVOC IN MONTREAL

Montreal.—Ten persons trapped in a three-storey dwelling here was rescued, and firemen were satisfied that a disastrous series of explosions in sewers and gas main of the north end of the city had claimed no lives.

The building collapsed when a terrific explosion occurred in the main directly beneath it. Ten persons were trapped but firemen and internes from the city hospitals dived into the wreckage and pulled out the family of Frederick Verrelles and a family named Caron.

They were taken to hospital suffering from cuts, bruises and burns but were not seriously injured.

Altogether some 20 people were injured as the explosions ripped through one street after another, damaging miles of sewers and tearing up miles of street paving in an area 10 blocks long by eight blocks wide.

The district affected is bounded by Defleurimont street, St. Lawrence boulevard, Jean Talon street and St. Hubert street. Damage estimates could not be gauged early, but the disaster meant work for thousands of unemployed in effecting repairs.

The cause of the disaster was unknown. The Montreal Light, Heat and Power Consolidated issued an official statement advancing the theory that the first explosion was caused by a sewer explosion of gasoline or other inflammable material and that the blast broke a gas main.

More than 100,000 huddled terror-stricken in their homes for three hours as the explosions roared out one after another, ripped up paving, smashed windows and culminated in the collapse of the three-storey building which immediately caught fire. The building is situated at the corner of Defleurimont and St. Valier streets.

A manhole at the intersection of St Denis and Belanger streets shot 20 feet into the air. A terrific roar followed. Sheets of flame belched from manholes for three-quarters of a mile and the district was covered with a pall of greasy, black smoke.

That was the beginning of the city's worst sewer explosion disaster. For the next three hours, blast after blast struck more and more fear into the hearts of a sixth of the city's population.

All over Montreal the blasts could be heard. Firemen from 22 stations rushed to the district. Over 200 police were concentrated in the area. Ambulances clanged. So great was the danger of wholesale panic that advice was broadcast warning the people to stay at home and be calm.

nitaeHt and the boy wentdd

Heat in the district was terrific as flames were shooting 20 to 30 feet high from all the manholes. Not one house on Belanger street from St. Hubert to St. Lawrence, 12 city blocks, had a window pane intact. The whole area affected was in total darkness shortly after the first explosion, and all traffic was tied up in hopeless confusion until police could straighten it out.

Captured Oats Title

Fred Hann Had Three Years' Experience With Herman Trelle

Beaver Lodge, Alta.—Fred Hann, farmer of the Goodfare district, 25 miles west of Beaver Lodge, who captured the oats championship at the Chicago grain exposition, had three years' experience under the wing of Herman Trelle, of Wembley, Alta., wheat king of the Chicago exhibition and noted agriculturist.

Hann lives on a homestead on Steep Creek. He is a Dane from the German province of Holstein and spent three years as a prisoner of war in France when captured by the French during a raid. He came to this district five years ago after spending three years in the employ of Trelle.

The sample of oats with which he captured the Chicago crown came from a ten-acre field which produced 109 bushels to the acre and had a stand of 5 1-2 feet. The average weight was 57 pounds to the bushel.

Official recognition by farm organizations has not yet been given the strike. The Alberta wheat pool discussed the proposal but declined action and the plan will be debated when the annual convention of the United Farmers of Alberta is held in Calgary in January.

Speedy Return To Penny Postage Unlikely

British Postmaster-General Declares It Easy Form of Taxation

London.—Little hope of a speedy return to the penny post was held out by Sir Kingsley Wood, postmaster-general, when he referred to post office developments at a luncheon given by the Incorporated Secretaries' association at the Cannon street Station restaurant, E.C.

As postmaster-general, he said, he would naturally like to see a return to the penny post, but he could not but recognize that there was much in the contention that the £6,000,000 which the extra half-penny on the letter produced was probably less burdensome than any other form of taxation of similar yield, while the cost of collection was nil.

The state was certainly entitled to receive from the post office adequate payments in lieu of income tax and for the monopoly which was given to it.

London.—The Morning Post says it had learned authoritatively that Great Britain has decided to pay its December 15 war debt instalment to United States.

NEW RULE TO BAR WINNERS AT CHICAGO SHOW

Chicago.—Under a new rule adopted by the management of the International Hay and Grain Show, after an exhibitor has won the highest award obtaining in a crop contest three times, he will then be considered a "super-crop" man and barred from competition for three years before he can again compete in the class in which he won the crown.

This applies to any exhibitor whether he has had consecutive wins or the laurels spread over a number of years.

The new rule will mean that Herman Trelle, Wembley wheat king, a four-time champion, will not be able to compete in the winning wheat classes again until 1936, and it will also bar Mrs. Mary E. Maycock, of Milford, Ont., who for three years has annexed the blue ribbon for the champion sample of beans with her navy exhibit.

In announcing the adoption of the new rule, M. S. Parkhurst, superintendent of the show, stated it is to encourage and give new and green exhibitors a better chance to score in the larger prizes.

The new rule, despite the consistent victories of Dominion exhibitors, is not, it was clearly stated, aimed at Canadian entrants but applies to all, including C. E. Troyer of Lafontaine, Ind., who won the crown for the best corn in the show. It was his third premier honor and he will be barred till 1936.

Canada Big Winner

Dominion Captures Eight Titles at Chicago Grain Show

Chicago.—As the awards in the international livestock exposition and the hay and grain show began to pile up, it was found that the Dominion has annexed eight crowns out of a possible 15, and scored heavily in all classes entered.

Vernon, British Columbia, turned in the biggest upset of the show when M. S. Middleton, captured the crown for the best sample of rye in the show, forcing the favorite, Albert Robbins, of Laura, Sask., to second place.

In the durum wheat competitions, George Avery, of Kelso, Sask., scheduled to take the crown, was forced to second place by the showing of T. E. Smith's samples which later took the reserve championships to Herman Trelle's winning sample of hard red spring winter.

Alberta led in the capturing of the coveted crowns with Herman Trelle accorded the most important honor in the show—the grain championship—for the fourth time, while three other Albertans scored, Fred Hann, of Goodfame, taking the oats crown, Fred Ohman taking the crown for alalfa seed, west, which was the best of both divisions, and Eric Anderson, of Wembley, who took the timothy crown.

From Saskatchewan, George Avery, of Kelso, won the flax honors and has taken two seconds to date in the exhibits he has entered. Ontario has taken two crowns, field peas and the other in field beans.

Daughter's Pride In Active Father

"I feel in duty bound," writes Mrs. A. J. W., "to express my gratitude for the marvellous results my father has obtained from Kruschen Salts. They should really be called "Miracles." He is ninety-two years old, and is as fit as a fiddle. He can nip about, and run up and down stairs. His friends marvel why it is he is always alert, and never feels slack. He always tells them the reason, "my regular daily dose of Kruschen Salts every morning." We always recommend Kruschen Salts to all our friends. To my idea no family should be without it." —(Mrs.) A. J. W.

Most people grow old long before their time because they neglect one vital need of health—the need for internal cleanliness. Eventually they start the healthy Kruschen habit. Then they start getting rid every day of all waste matter from the system. New, healthy blood goes coursing through the veins. And almost immediately they feel their youth has returned; they feel young, energetic and happy. In a word, they've got that famous "Kruschen Feeling."

Now Comes Synthetic Ivory

For centuries billiard balls have been laboriously turned by hand from natural ivory. Few workmen could produce accurate spheres. Billiard balls of synthetic ivory, which are made with mathematical accuracy, were exhibited this year at the Leipzig fair and are claimed to be superior to the old form. They assure more accurate play, besides being fracture proof and indestructible.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

DECEMBER 11

THE CHRISTIAN'S USE OF LEISURE

Golden Text: "Whether therefore ye eat, or drink, or whatsoever ye do, do all to the glory of God."—1 Corinthians 10:31.

Lesson: Leviticus 23:39-43; Nehemiah 8:9-18; Zechariah 8:5; Matthew 11:16-19; Mark 6:30-32; 1 Corinthians 10:23-33.

Devotional Reading: Philippians 4: 4-9.

Explanations and Comments

A Time Of Great Gladness Nehemiah 8:10-17.—The people had not known the requirements of the Law, and they wept when they realized how they had transgressed them. "The priestly circles would be in possession of traditions, usages, and even written documents, but such knowledge was clearly not the possession of the people."—J. E. McFadyen.

Nehemiah the governor, Ezra the priest, and the Levites comforted the people, saying: "This day is holy unto Jehovah your God; mourn not, nor weep." The day was holy because it was the day of the new moon and of the blowing of trumpets, and also because of the reading of the Law. It was an ill-omen to use words or signs of lamentation on a feast day, Hab. 2: 20. "Go your way, eat the fat and drink the sweet [that is, do not fast nor mourn] and send portions unto him for whom nothing is prepared."

"The best way to create joy in our own hearts is to set ourselves to create it in others. In every circle there are many who look across a desolate world, which has no reassuring smile, no greeting voice, no loving or loyal heart. Look out for these. They hide for the most part like wounded game in the thicket. Go forth to be a joy-bringer to such."—F. B. Meyer.

"Neither be ye grieved," the speaker concluded, "for the joy of Jehovah is your strength." The preposition, "of" here signifies a causative force; it is a joy that he found in God; in God we have to seek it. "Holy joy is like oil to the wheels of your obedience."—Matthew Henry.

"And does not joy make us strong? What nimbleness joy gives to the feet! The sad heart wearies in a mile, the joyful heart is fresh and exuberant at the end of the tenth mile. If, then, the joy of the Lord is a man's strength, it must be his bounden duty to cultivate it, and, with God's help enlarge it. The man is sinful as well as unwise who holds stubbornly to sorrow and depression."—J. H. Jowett.

A Time For Rest and Communion, Mark 6:30-32.—For several weeks the disciples had been off on a mission tour. Upon their return they rejoined Jesus at some well-known spot on the western shore of the Sea of Galilee, probably at Capernaum, and reported all they had done and all they had taught. They had been under a great strain, their experience had been exciting and exhausting, and Jesus proposed that they all go away for a short rest. Capernaum was crowded with pilgrims on their way to the Passover at Jerusalem. Crowds collected about them. They must find a secluded spot to be alone. They entered their boat and started for a "desert place" on the eastern shore of the Lake (as John tells us), near Bethsaida (as told by Luke). By a "desert place" is not meant an arid waste, but a lonely place, a spot far from the haunts of men.

"The whole spirit of the teaching of Jesus seems to sanction leisure, social intercourse, and the joys of recreation as well as of work."

Theory Of French Doctor

Believes Sleeping With Head To North Prevents Insomnia

A French physician comes forward with the theory that people suffering from insomnia will sleep better and be in a much better condition the next day, if they sleep with the head to the north and the feet to the south. Magnetic currents he maintains, flow from the north to the south, and will thus pass easily and freely through the body and produce quiet and rest. If they pass across the body he believes they will cause nervousness and irritation, prevent sleep and produce a feeling of restlessness and lassitude the following day.

Splendid Gift to Plymouth

Settlement Founded By Lord and Lady Astor Now City Property

Another splendid gift to Plymouth from Lord and Lady Astor is announced. This comprises the social settlement and institution known as Virginia House, which Lord Astor has decided to hand over to the city.

The Virginia House Settlement, which was founded by Lord and Lady Astor many years ago, is situated amid old slum property and close to the spot where Katherine of Aragon spent her first night on English soil when she came to marry Henry VIII. It has become a most successful centre for all manner of social, recreational, educational and religious purposes, and the buildings comprise a large hall, classrooms, gymnasium, kitchens, library and so forth.

The most recent addition, opened by Lady Astor is a large nursery at the Looe St. side of the settlement. It is equipped, among other things, with five or six rocking horses, several dolls' houses, go-carts, perambulators and other similar things dear to the hearts of children, some 50 of whom may be found there on any night of the five nights of the week on which the nursery is open to them.

An Effective Background

World's Grain Show Building Beautiful Setting For Exhibits

The World's Grain Show Building is gradually giving promise of the very beautiful background that will be afforded to the exhibits of grains and grasses from all parts of the world at the congress to be held in Regina next year. Long rows of gorgeous red pillars will be topped by a frieze of feathery grains patterned to bring out the contrasts of rich yellow wheats with the dark green of the brome grass or the pale tints of the ripe oats against the bronze of the flax.

Along the ceiling, each electric light fixture is set into a formal design likewise done in contrasting tones of plants while just below the ceiling is a mural showing Canadian industries. The immense spaces of this great building are being divided up into exhibit stalls for this and that country and state.

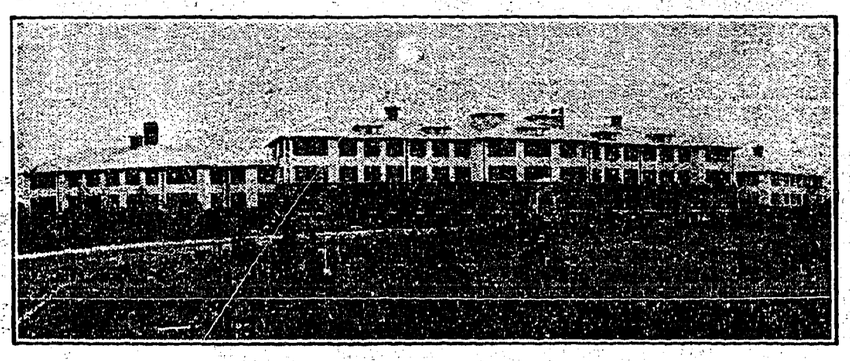
One corner is set aside for a great replica of the E. P. Ranch at High River. The back curtain is already in place and the rivers, and main geographic features of the ranch are already outlined on the floor, while the mountains are painted into the background.

The work was pushed as rapidly as possible before it got too cold for the workmen to stay there for it would require a forest fire to heat the place sufficiently for comfortable working in the winter time. A score of girls who are engaged making the designs for the pillars and walls have been moved to an office uptown.

In the centre of the long hall is a canopied spot where the champions of all classes will be displayed.

Preparation of the report of Major-General D. C. Ormond, Dominion superintendent of penitentiaries, into the riots at Portsmouth penitentiary is under way.

Christmas Seal Sale
PROVIDES FUNDS FOR Fight Against Tuberculosis



THE SASKATOON SANATORIUM

One of three similar institutions operated by the Saskatchewan Anti-Tuberculosis League. The others are located at Fort San and Prince Albert, and all are equipped to provide the most effective treatment known to medical science for coping with this dread disease. Approximately 750 patients are under constant treatment at these three centres, but thanks to the preventive work rendered possible by the sale of Christmas Seals, the death rate from tuberculosis was lower and the number of new cases less in 1931 than in the previous year.

During the last ten years the death rate among the white population of Saskatchewan has been reduced from 40 to 28 per 100,000 population. In the year 1931 Canada dug 7,627 graves for tuberculosis patients, and in the same period Saskatchewan dug 335 graves. When we figure out the cost of these tuberculous deaths, taking into consideration travelling expenses to the Sanatorium, one year's illness in the Sanatorium, one year's lost wages, and the funeral expenses, we find that there is well over $2,200.00 of a loss with each death. Multiply this by the number of deaths during 1931 and you have three-quarters of a million dollars for Saskatchewan alone. And we must remember that this loss is preventable.

Prevention means earlier discovery, less spread of the disease, a shorter period of treatment, more recoveries, less new cases and less suffering and cost to the community.

Treatment is provided for out of taxes, and in Saskatchewan today, the Rural and Urban Municipalities are called upon to make their contribution while the Provincial Government also pays its proportion. The tuberculosis levy charged to the municipalities in Saskatchewan, both rural and urban, in 1930 amounted to $575,574.00. The levy in 1932 was $436,832.00—a reduction of $138,742.00 in 1932 under 1930. The per diem cost in 1929 was $3.02; in 1930, $2.92; in 1931, $2.65; and the estimated cost for 1932 is $2.55.

This, however, is not enough and, if the disease is to be stamped out, preventive work must be carried on. There is no assistance given by the municipalities, or by the Government, to do preventive work. The sale of Christmas seals provides the revenue for this purpose. The old saying "prevention is better than cure" applies with particular force in this connection. Preventive work is the most important phase of anti-tubercular work and this is financed by voluntary contributions.

As a result of the sale of Christmas Seals last year, 6,914 persons in Saskatchewan received examination or other attention. The money raised by the sale of Christmas Seals helps finance the care of newborn babes whose mothers were tuberculous; helps pay for the examination of those who have been in contact with tuberculous patients; helps finance the examination of those suspected by their physicians of having tuberculosis, and helps carry on an educational campaign.

Letters have been mailed to residents of every community in Saskatchewan containing sheets of Christmas Seals. Their value is one dollar a sheet—one cent a seal. These seals brighten up letters and parcels and the revenue they bring in helps to promote a great and necessary humanitarian work. Because the times are difficult the need for preventive work is greater than ever and the Anti-Tuberculosis League confidently relies upon the generosity of the people of Saskatchewan to enable it to meet whatever demands may be made upon it during the coming year.

Supported By the Law

British Police Know They Have Authority Back Of Them

The British policeman is backed up by the law far more effectively than officers in some countries. When he makes an arrest there are not a thousand loopholes in the criminal law by which an unscrupulous lawyer can free his man. There are not a lot of criminals who go untouched because they have influence. The British policeman very truly represents "the majesty of the law." He does not, as a usual thing, need to carry a weapon with him.

She said, "You know what I want to talk about." She asked pointedly, "When your term is up next month, are you going to re-enlist or not?"

Alan knew that Elizabeth was determined, heart and soul, that he should get out of the Mounted and take a good salaried position down in Victoria which Colonel Steele, commander of his regiment in the World War, had been wanting him to accept. But he was loath to take a job on a friendship basis; he preferred to stand on the more self-respecting ground of honest work honestly performed. And to leave this land where he had found freedom and happiness was an intolerable prospect. He loved this northern Mackenzie country as intensely as he hated the hectic stifling oppression of city life; and his comradeship with men like Bill Hardsock was precious to him.

If he tore himself away from all this, if he became a mere cog in an industrial machine, he would be uprooted and miserably unhappy.

But as things stood, he was in a blind alley. Haskell was riding him hard for personal reasons; a rank injustice had been done him. . . . There were a dozen powerful arguments on the other side, too.

After a moment he said slowly: "I suppose I oughtn't to sign on again. But it's hard to decide, Elizabeth."

"What is there to decide about? How can you tolerate this situation you're in? You're a subordinate, taking orders; you're liable to be demoted any day; you're compelled to do another man's work for him! You don't think your situation is going to change? You aren't expecting a commission any more now, I hope? Then why under heaven do you want to stay?"

Alan started to answer, but he checked the words. His reasons were deep and intangible things—his friendships, the freedom he'd found here, the sense of being rooted in the country, his ramified duties that held him with invisible bonds, his unwillingness to desert comrades when they sorely needed him, his reluctance to give the impression of having quit just because a commission was not forthcoming.

Down on the river bank Bill Hardsock came skimming full-tilt up to the landing, swerved the canoe around in a complete circle to stop it, leaped out upon the planking, tossed the painter to a sleepy Loucheux. He did not seem to notice Inspector Haskell only a couple rods away. At a lope he headed up the terrace, straight for Alan's cabin, as though Alan was the man to hear his news.

"If you had nothing to turn to," Elizabeth persisted, "it would be a little different. But you've got a position waiting, at four times your present salary, with advancement sure, with a chance to make even more on the side." She broke off: "But what's the use going over and over these arguments? We've gone over them a dozen times. I didn't come for that."

She paused a second to emphasize her next words. "If you intend to stay in the Mounted, I wish you would tell me so frankly, so that I can plan. . . . ."

It was an ultimatum. She meant it so; Alan understood it so. But she saw too that it had antagonized him a little. Though she must be firm now, she must head off any antagonism.

Dropping her coldness, she got up and stood beside him where he sat on the corner of the table.

"Alan! Don't you realize how intolerable it is for me—not being with you two hours in a whole week? And if we were married, he—Haskell—he'd make it even worse. You know why he's sending you out on these patrols and letting you be here just long enough to manage the post. When you're gone he forces his company on me. If I'd repulse him, he'd—he'd take it out on you! I've got to let him—"

A slow red crept into Alan's face and his fist clenched. He had wondered, sometimes with nameless suspicions, why she allowed Haskell to be so much in her company, Mrs.

Alan Was Not the Fool to Believe Haskell Was Bluffing.

Drummond and others had hinted about it to him, implying it was not very honest of her. Here was the reason! It had never occurred to him that Elizabeth had been permitting it for his sake.

He thought: "I can't blame her for not wanting to live here in the North. Her brother died here; she hasn't any friends; these folks don't understand her. If she wants to live in a city, that's as natural, as much her right, as my wanting to live in this North country. She'd like to have pleasures, clothes, and other things we'll have when I take that Victoria job. Wouldn't any girl want them?"

Bill Hardsock came past the alcove window, hatless, excited. Elizabeth saw him, and realized her talk with Alan was broken. But she did not greatly care. She had given him her ultimatum, she had headed off any antagonism; and what she said about Haskell had galled him as nothing else could have done.

She half-whispered, running her fingers through his hair, "You've been here less than an hour, we've had less than ten minutes together, and now—now something else happens and you'll be gone again." She kissed him quickly and turned away.

As Bill Hardsock stamped into the cabin he burst out: "Oh Lord, Alan, Sammy-hell sure popped down river! The Midnight Sun, bringing up a raft of furs from the Ramparts country, and gold dust, too, a whole wad of it from the Peel and Arctic Red Placers. . . . . Down there, mouth of the Big Alooska, when she was taking on wood, half a dozen men bounced her in broad daylight, and robbed her there, right this close to us—"

"Robbed her? Wh-aa-t!"

"That's what they did. They came over the side like as if they were ord'nary trappers; they got a clear drop on the crowd, and had the run of the boat for better'n half an hour!"

Alan leaped to the all-important question. "They didn't escape, Bill? They didn't get by with a trick like that?"

Scarcely hearing him, Bill kept pouring out his news. "They took more'n three hundred pounds of dust, and sorted out half a dozen packs of the best and lightest furs. Alan, they shot and killed Jimmy Montgomery! He was the only one that drawed a gun against 'em, and a rifle got him cold."

Alan's face went pale. The news of the robbery had been dazing enough to him; but now, this crashing shock of Jimmy's death . . . His lips fashioned silently, "They killed Jimmy. . . . . A rifle bullet. . . . He was the only one who drew a gun—" But he could not speak; he could only stare at Bill.

"And if Father Claverly hadn't stepped in and helped stop a rush, Alan, they'd have shot up the whole deck. They slung the dust and furs into their canoes, and . . . Did they get away? What brought me busting up the river? I hope they did—clean, slicker'n a whistle!"

In the pause then, Alan fought to shake off his daze. He had to make the plans, fling out a patrol, get into action. It was all in his hands—the pursuit, the capture, the whole heavy responsibility.

He demanded: "Who were they? Trappers, did you say?"

"Un't know who, Alan. But strangers. Five whites and one 'breed."

"Strangers? Can't be! Not in this country."

"But that's what they were. Nobody on the boat had ever seen a single one of 'em."

Alan did not believe this, but for the moment he passed it up.

"Which way did they go? Have motors on their canoes?"

"No. Paddle craft. They whipped up the Big Alooska."

For a little space Alan stood thinking. Why had those bandits staged their robbery there at the mouth of the Alooska, instead of farther down north, at some lonely reach along the Mackenzie? In an instant he saw the answer to that question. They had chosen with an eye to a quick escape, an escape to the best hiding place in all Mackenzie territory.

As he imagined them whipping up the Big Alooska, whipping up that lonely spruce-buried river past MacMillan's trading post, his thoughts leaped to Joyce, and a fear came into his eyes.

Echoing this very fear, Bill said: "They'll have to pass MacMillan's place, Alan. Ten chances to one, Dave's gone out somewhere after spring poultry and Joyce is there all by herself. . . . ."

"But maybe they won't stop," Alan argued. His words were more a prayer for Joyce. "They'll probably try to sneak past. . . . ."He broke off: "Bill, go down to barracks, find Ped, tell him to get the launch in shape to travel. While you're doing that, I'll go tell Haskell."

Halfway down the slope Alan came upon Constable Larry Younge, who was spreading Haskell's bed clothing on the grassy terrace to sun.

An older man, past forty, a native of this Waterways country, Larry had spent his boyhood years living with Crees and Chipewyans; and by easy odds he was the best bush detective in the whole division. But in matters of discipline he was worse than Bill Hardsock, for he was older, more set in his ways, more resentful of personal affront. Months ago Haskell had busted him from a corporal; and by humiliating him with orderly duties, he had been trying to make Larry knuckle under. Waiting for another month's pay so he could buy out of the Mounted, Larry was going about his "squawwork" with stoical face, chalking up his personal score against the day when he would be out of service and could settle with Haskell in man-to-man fashion.

Alan bade him: "Larry, drop that. Go and help Bill out. He'll tell you what's up."

* * * * * * * *

It was rare that Inspector Haskell allowed his temper to get the upper hand. He had learned self-control in the hard army school, and he considered that any exhibition of temper was a plebeian thing. But when Alan Baker came into the cabin, Haskell was thoroughly and hotly angered.

A dozen things had happened this morning to irritate him. Constable Whipple, his stool pigeon, a thin clerkish recruit whom he had brought along to Endurance, had repeated several infuriating jokes about him which the men were tossing back and forth in barracks. A few minutes ago Bill Hardsock, plainly carrying important news, had brushed past him as though he had not existed, and had taken the news straight to Alan Baker. And just now through the open door he had seen Baker order Larry Younge to drop work assigned by a superior officer and do something else.
