Flower Show Prize Winners

Late Date of Show Lessens the Display—Good Show of Late Fall Blooms—School Fair an Outstanding Success.

Considering the lateness of the season and the anything but ideal weather that obtained fair day, the 1933 flower show and school fair staged by Creston and District Women's Institute at Park pavilion on Saturday, September 23rd was quite a success.

The rainy weather that prevailed for several days prior to the show cut down the display in many classes, the best showing being in the late autumn flowers, such as asters and dahlias, and a very fine entry in the section for table decoration.

The school fair was an outstanding success, the entry being large in most every section, and several of the schools at outside points competing, with Boswell pupils taking a prominent place in the winnings, particularly in the higher grades.

The fair was officially opened by W. L. Bell, president of Creston board of trade, who was introduced by the institute president, Mrs. C. F. Hayes. Amongst his remarks Mr. Bell took occasion to compliment the ladies on keeping alive the fall fair spirit, after the agricultural association deciding not to have the oldtime fall fair. Public school inspector Manning, who did the judging in the school fair, also spoke and informed the gathering that the school work displayed would compare with the best he had ever seen in the Kootenay inspectorate.

The decorative scheme of the pavilion was attractive. In the centre of the hall was a tea garden and the ladies in charge of dispensing refreshmenss had quite a busy afternoon, while cut flowers and evergreens were used to good advantage in brightening up the building. A display thnt attracted much attention was a showing of certified seed potatoes by F. Baker of Lister, who was personally in charge of the display.

J. Bullough was generous with his piano selections which were very popular with the crowd, and later in the afternoon was replaced by Creston band who also livened up proceedings with some equally popular selections.

The awards were made by Inspector Manning with the assistance of Mrs. W. Fraser, who staged the school exhibits. In the flower section the judging was in charge of C. B. Twigg and J. B. Holder, and the complete list of prize winners follows:

The church and Sunday school services at the schoolhouse on Sunday were well attended. It was very encouraging to the teachers and officers as it was the first session of the newly organized Sunday school. Rev. F. G. M. Story announced for this Sunday's discourse, "The World Dictator," taking for the background Revelations xiii. The address will be illustrated by large pictures.

Wynndel Fair Finances Sound

1933 Exhibition Shows Excellent Credit Balance—Close up Fair Business at Special Meeting of Institute Thursday Afternoon

A special meeting of Wynndel Women's Institute was held at the church on Thursday afternoon, for he purpose of winding up matters in connection with the fall fair of the week previous. 20 members and 8 visitors were present, and the meeting was in charge of the president, Mrs. F. C Robinson.

Miss Olga Hagen, secretary, presented a financial statement in connection with the exhibition which indicated that after payi g the prizes in full and all other expenses the fair will clear at least $35, and when to this is added the intake from the tea room and the proceeds of the raffle of the linen chest, the exhibition will have proven an outstanding financial success.

In addition to paying Creston brass band as agreed, the Institute voted to donate them an extra $3 in appreciation of their contribution to the fair's success. The secretary was voted $5 in appreciation of her splendid work in connection with the fair. The president expressed a sincere appreciation of the wholehearted support she had received in staging the fair, and Mrs. Eakin moved a vote of appreciation of the president's very thorough e ort and this was carried with enthusiam.

In connection with furnishing a room at Creston hospital the institute decided to outfit a semi-private ward, and for this year it will omit its usual grant to the Crippled Children's work as well as the Solarium, and with the money saved will purchase an extra bed for the Wynndel Institute room a Creston hospital.

The drawing took place on the linen chest and the lucky ticket was hel by Mrs. (Dr) McKenzie of Creston. Three articles not completed in time for the chest were disposed of in a drawing competition which brought in an additional $3.

Before closing a vote of tha ks was tendered Mrs. E. Hackett, who made the quilt for the linen chest. Mrs. E. Tow son was similarly remembered for her good work as convenor of the tea room committee, and she in turn thanked all those who had so ably assisted with the work.

There was the usual social hour at the close of proceedings, at which each member was a hostess, and provided a fitting finish for one of the most satisfactory meetings in the Institute's history.

Apple Spipping Brisk in 'Macs'

Apple Movement Unusuall Good—Splendid Demand Household McIntosh—Entire Jonathan Crop Sold for Export.

Warehouse crews at both the Exchange and Long, Allan & Long, Limited, are working at top speed this week in an effort to keep cars rolling as fast as orders come in, the demand this month for McIntosh Reds, particularly, being the best in at least the past two seasons. In addition to straight cars of Macs, there is some demand for mixed cars, in which Kings and Winter Bananas figure.

To cope with the rush the staff at the Exchange now numbers 29, and at the Long, Altan & Long warehouse at Erickson an extension has been built to the loading platform so that three cars can be loaded into simultaneously. At the rate Macs are moving this week this variety should be all harvested and mostly al shipped by the first of the week.

Some Fancy Macs in the 163's and smaller have gone to export and the Eastern Canada market has absorbed a limited quantity, chiefly C's. The movement to the prairie, however, has been almost solidly household, and fully 75 per cent. of the 1933 Mac crop will go out unwrapped.

Pears, except the winters are cleared up, and the frosty nights of last week, have terminated shipments of tomatoes, cucumbers and pepper.

The middle of the week saw Jonathans commencing to reach the packing houses, and with these available the girls have commenced wrapping operations, as with both firms practically the whole of the Jonathan tonnage will go to export, in the Fancy and "C" grades. Trailing the Jonathan will come the Delicious, which are due early in the week, and a considerable volume of which have been already sold for the overseas trade.

All varieties since the Wealthy are of a very high quality, particularly the McIntosh, which for color and appearance will hold their own with the best produced, Creston Macs are meeting with a wonderfully favorable reception as fa east as Winnipeg.

Followi g the rainy weather of last month, this week's sunny weather and cool nights is putting wonderful color into the later varieties, particularly the Wagener and Delicious which are bound to enjoy the same popularity earned by the valley McIntosh.

Attacks On Hudson Bay Route

Some fairly strong language is indulged in by the Financial Post of Toronto in its opposition to the Hudson Bay Railway, and in support of a demand made by it that the route be abandoned. A recent attack by the Financial Post on this western outlet for western products may well be quoted: It says:

"The colossal failure of that notorious contractor's racket, the Hudson Bay Railway, was bluntly demonstrated last year when the Government had to provide free storage in the Churchill elevator to induce any grain at all to move out over the route.

"An equally forcible demonstration of the present uneconomic character of the route has been provided this year. The Government announced an intention of charging the regular tolls at the elevator, tolls which were the lowest of those imposed by Government order at any elevators throughout Canada. No grain was offered for shipment. Even the grain growing interests of Western Canada, who had for two generations advocated the opening of the Bay route in order to reduce their costs of shipping grain to Europe, refused to ship grain; they knew that the established routes via the Great Lakes and the Pacific Coast were more economical.

"Political pressure was brought on the Government to repeat the satire of last year when a pretence of success of the route was made. It was finally decided to reduce storage rates at Fort Churchill from the usual figure of almost one cent a month to the ridiculously low figure of one cent for the whole period from now to the end of August next. This had the effect of paying a cash bonus out of the Dominion treasury to those who would store grain at Churchill. Now the elevator has been filled up. On-to-the-Bay enthusiasts can declare that the route is a success. But the taxpayer is paying a heavy bill for this child's play. If Ottawa made the terms attractive enough there would be people willing to load grain in bags and canoe it down the Mackenzie River to the Arctic Ocean and then to fly it over the north pole to continental markets.

"The country would be infinitely better off and taxation could be reduced if the route were completely abandoned and the expensive attempts to bonus traffic to use it were abandoned.

"The Hudson Bay route is not a business enterprise but a hybrid of a white elephant and a political sacred cow. As such it has the 'protection' of political leaders of both parties, their eyes cocked to the western vote in the next election.

"But the huge losses and the charge for the bonus to favored grain operators who have been paid to use the route are a big item in every tax payment made by every citizen."

The argument of the Financial Post is simply this,—that it would be better and cheaper to abandon the route, leave the elevator at Churchill empty, than to fill it up with grain on which only $20,000 in storage charges will be paid. How, it may be asked, is an empty elevator to cost the taxpayer less than a full one?

The Hudson Bay route is a new route. It is in its infancy, and it has been thrown open to traffic at a time of the greatest trade depression in the history of the world. It must, and will, be given a fair chance to prove itself.

How many scores of millions were poured out by the Government of Canada for years, and how many concessions were granted, to demonstrate to the shipping world the feasibility of an ocean port at Montreal, a thousand miles inland from the sea, and located on a river that is ice-bound half the year? How many more millions have been poured out to create a harbor at Toronto, and upon canals at Saulte Ste. Marie, Welland, and along the St. Lawrence, in order that upper lakes shipping might get to Toronto and Montreal? The Financial Post does not object to these millions being spent to benefit the Eastern shipping route, but it yells blue murder because a mere fraction of the sums so expended is now spent on a purely Western route.

It was Government expenditures, for which Western people are taxed as well as the people of East, that made the port of Montreal and provided business for Toronto. Had those expenditures not been made, and had the Government not nursed these routes in their experimental stages, the development of today would neve have been realized.

Toronto's financial paper opposed the Hudson Bay route from its inception. The first line of attack was that successful commercial navigation of Hudson Bay and Straits was an impossibility. That theory was exploded, and the feasibility of the route established. Now, because of certain abnormal conditions which have resulted in a rate war on the Great Lakes, and the lowering of rates to such a point that it is cheaper, for the time being, to ship by that route than through Churchill, Toronto demands the abandonment of the Western route. Let it once be abandoned and the Great Lakes shippers will, with that competition removed, quickly advance their rates.

The last boat to leave Churchill, and it will be the tenth this season, will carry a cargo consisting of some hundreds of thousands of bushels of wheat, hundreds of head of Western cattle, 20 tons of Saskatchewan produced honey, four carloads containing 150,000 feet of Saskatchewan spruce lumber. This will be the first time Saskatchewan lumber has been shipped to England by any route, and the first time either honey or cattle have gone out via Churchill. All of which goes to prove the statement that the route is only in its infancy.

The Financial Post has always professed to believe in Government protection for infant industries. Let it be fair now and give this lone Western infant a chance to live, and given that it will thrive and grow. Possibly the truth is that the interests which the Toronto financial paper represents does not want it to thrive and grow. Our prediction is, nevertheless, that it most assuredly will.

Three-Year Search Rewarded

Miles Of Cable Line Have Been Recovered From Ocean Floor

Its pug-like prow coated with rust and scars, a little grey ship steamed quietly into the shelter of Halifax harbor and docked alongside the Western Union Cable Company pier. There was no open welcome for ship or crew, though they had just returned from a great victory over the elements and completed a task started three years ago.

But down in the deep hold of the cable ship "Lord Kelvin" was fathoms of mutilated and corroded cable that bore evidence of the long search for a disrupted communication line. Month after month the "Lord Kelvin" had wallowed in the Atlantic as her crew grappled along the ocean bottom for the line, torn from its bed by the disastrous tidal wave that swept the southern coast of Newfoundland the winter of 1929. The "Lord Kelvin" had completed the search, begun the following spring.

"It was just another "job" for the crew and the master of the "Lord Kelvin," Capt. M. H. Bloomer, spoke lightly of it. He was more anxious to talk of the scientific aspect of the search. The cable, recovered more than three miles from its original course, was located only after 20 attempts over a distance of some 80 miles. Only 10 miles of cable, however, was recovered.

Captain Bloomer said that during a seaquake like the one that shook the Newfoundland coast, the earth tremors were very rapid, causing expansion of the earth surface and subsequent inceased tension on a cable. Often, too, cables were buried during such eruptions and usually lost permanently while other times the heavy line would be carried from its bed, sometimes for miles.

Much of the recovered line, he said, was useless, for it was badly torn and filled with small stones and grit that had severed the wires.

Inventor's Grave Marked

Monument To Canadian Who Evolved Process Of Kerosene

An inconspicuous sunken grave in Camp Hill cemetery at Halifax, Nova Scotia, has been marked by one of the large oil companies to show the final resting place of Abraham Gesner, M.D., D.F.G.S., who gave to America kerosene for a lighting fuel. The grave of Dr. Gesner has been graced by a tall black granite monument, "erected as a token of appreciation of his important contribution to the oil industry."

Briefly, the inscription on the stone tells of Dr. Gesner's work. It reads:

"Abraham Gesner, M.D., D.F.G.S.

"Geologist.

"Born at Cornwallis, Nova Scotia, May 2, 1797.

"Died at Halifax, April 29, 1864.

"His treatise on the Geology and Mineralogy of Nova Scotia, 1836, was one of the earliest works dealing with those subjects in this province, and about 1852 he was American inventor of the process of kerosene."

Excursions Were Popular

English Schoolboys Travelled Far Afield During Summer

Excursions of public schoolboys of the United Kingdom to far-off places during the summer were very popular, these including a tour of 11 schoolboys to the Maritime Provinces of Canada, Newfoundland and the coast of Labrador, with J. Guise, a schoolmaster at Winchester, in charge, and an exploration party of 30 to the Arctic Circle, with Commander G. Murray Levick, R.N., a member of Scott's last Antarctic expedition, in charge. In the lonely wastes of Finnish Lapland these 30 schoolboys split up under three leaders and penetrated uncharted wastes with only the compass and the Arctic lights to guide them.

Survivor Of Lucknow

Oldest living survivor of the siege of Lucknow, Charles George Palmer of Duncan, B.C., was still hale and hearty on his 86th birthday, Sept. 24. Mr. Palmer was not quite 10 years old when the siege, the historic incident in the Indian mutiny, occurred in September, 1857. Only eight other survivors of the siege are alive.

Highway Motor Accidents

Everything Considered It Is Surprising There Are Not more

One is appalled by the neverending succession of motor accidents on the highways these week-ends. But is it really surprising? From our observation of the traffic, the remarkable thing is that there are not more mishaps.

Take a drive along any public highway after dark and as you turn out to avoid a passing car you see the forms of pedestrians walking as far out of the dark pavement as they dare, as if to proclaim their right to a place on the pavement. An admirable sentiment in a way, but fearfully dangerous. Another good candidate for the Suicide Club is the bicyclist riding along the busy highway in the dark. One has to be keen-visioned to avoid these gentry, of whom there are many. Then there are the cars with one light and the cars without tail-lights. Even worse still the buggies without lights. They take big chances. Even should their occupants come through an accident with a whole skin, they would be legally responsible for the well-being of those they clash with.

It appears that there must be much preaching and teaching and public warning before people will take even a moderate degree of caution. Looking to the future it would seem as if something should be done in the schools to train the upcoming generation in the need of caution on the highways. Would it not be well for the Department to require school children to familiarize themselves with a code of rules for safety? The day-by-day accident list surely challenges the authorities to take every possible step to curb its fatal progress.—St. Mary's Journal-Argus.

A Chinese Methuselah

Li Chung Yen Who Died Recently Claimed To Be 256 Years Old

Amazing longevity was attributed to a Chinese who has just died at Kiah Sien, where he was born in 1677, two hundred and fifty-six years ago. The deceased Methuselah, who was called Li Chung Yen, had a number of wives the last of whom predeceased him a century ago, and seventy grandchildren. His youngest great grandson is now seventy years old. Chinese tradition tends to confirm the dead man's age as being 256. Li could only account for his longevity by the fact that on one of his youthful trips to the mountains to search for herbs he found and ate a rare plant which he believed gave him long life.

Reception Almost Too Perfect

Stolen Radio Astonished Thief By Broadcasting His Description

A startling coincidence had amusing consequences. A man walked in to a Charlotte, North Carolina, radio store, carrying a radio which was fitted with a short wave adapter, under his arm. He wanted to sell it. He put the set down and started to "tune it up" to give the radio dealer an idea of its splendid reception. The reception was perfect—so perfect, in fact, that the man caught his breath, dashed out to the street and has not been seen since. For the broadcast was a police description of the receiving set which had been stolen only a short time before. Within a few minutes the radio was returned to the owner.

Moose Seen Farther North

Strange phenomena observed by frontiersmen along the sub-Arctic and Yukon Valley is the gradual spreading north of moose herds. The animals have been seen far north in the caribou country. Within the past ten years the rabbits have practically disappeared from many regions south of the Yukon, and it is the belief that the moose have found the area more suitable to browsing since the rabbits disappeared.

Stressed Safety First

English Town Staged Program As Warning Against Accidents

If dramatizing safety first has the effects hoped for, Reigate will be the safest town in England. Adopting as its slogan, "Make safety pay every day," the town staged an elaborate programme. A salient feature was the staging of mock accidents at the sharpest curves and steepest hills. Overturned and smashed-up cars, decorated with warning notices, acted as grim warnings. Every prominent building exhibited banners carrying a red triangle and cautionary notices. In a public square there was a demonstration of automatic signalling. One evening was devoted to first aid of "victims."

DOLLFUSS IS APPLAUDED AT LEAGUE MEETING

Geneva, Switzerland.—Highlight of the 14th meeting of the League of Nations assembly came when the short, brisk figure of Englebert Dollfuss, Austria's pocket-size chancellor who has been waging a heroic battle against Naziism, stepped quickly to the rostrum and appealed for support, to be greeted with deafening applause from the assembled statesmen.

Earlier, Canada, through Hon. R. J. Manion, Minister of Railways and Canals, pleaded for leadership towards disarmament and world peace, and coupled this with a declaration that the private manufacture of armaments for profit should be abolished. Sir John Simon, British Foreign Secretary, also addressed the assembly, declaring a disarmament convention was the greatest need of the world today.

But keenest interest was aroused when Dollfuss appeared. In the uproar, the German delegates seated in the front row remained stonily silent.

Chancellor Dollfuss was emphatic that Austria was determined to maintain her independence.

"After an arduous struggle for her existence," Dollfuss insisted, "Austria today asserts more than ever before her freedom and independence—not so much in the virtue of formal treaties as essentially through the free will of her people."

Austria counted on the friendly cooperation of other powers, the chancellor said. She appealed to the league to encourage her efforts in every direction by its high moral authority.

And more cheers broke out as he concluded his speech.

Except for the Austrian interlude all thoughts turned to disarmament. The need for positive action rang through the speech of Sir John Simon, who opened general debate. Dr. Manion pressed for the application of the Kellogg peace pact and the outlawry of war. The disarmament conversations that have been proceeding for some time are continued by meetings between the Italians and the French and British, as the statesmen seek common agreement promising results when the disarmament conference resumes next month. The league council will meet but the assembly will not sit.

Sir John Simon said a prompt disarmament agreement was a vital necessity for world political and economic recovery.

"A disarmament convention based on concession and co-operation is the greatest need of the world," he declared, adding he detected certain signs of a beginning in economic recovery, but such a recovery could not make strides without political amelioration.

B.C. Election Campaign

Premier Tolmie Makes Appeal To Set Aside Party Politics

Victoria, B.C.—Premier S. F. Tolmie, of British Columbia launched his government's election campaign at Saanichton in an address in which he reiterated his appeal "to men and women of character and ability who will set aside party politics," to unite to solve the problems of the day.

A union government so constituted, in his opinion, would "oppose the dole system and propose that services shall be rendered for relief granted;" and in conjunction with labor and industry conduct a survey to find and develop every means of creating employment. Rotation of work and shorter hours of labor would be among the questions considered.

He would ask federal co-operation to obtain legislation for orderly marketing of primary products: such co-operation was necessary because provincial laws in British Columbia to that end had been declared ult a vires. He would urge the Dominion to appoint a royal commission to inquire into the subject of "better terms" for British Columbia than those under which the province entered Confederation. They had not been as favorable as those given other provinces.

The "Brandon" returned to the United Kingdom with a cargo of 360,000 bushels of wheat; 200 head of cattle, the first shipment of livestock from Churchill, a shipment of lumber, and a carload of Manitoba honey for overseas buyers.

Increase In Antelope

Reported To Be Worry To Ranchers In Southern Alberta

Lethbridge, Alberta.—Ranchers in southeastern Alberta cattle range country are worried over the marked increase in the number of antelope ranging in the district between the Coutts branch of the Canadian Pacific Railway and the Cypress Hills.

As many as 200 of the graceful little animals are reported on single ranches. It is only a few years since the Dominion Government established an antelope park at Nemiscam, fearing the antelope, like the buffalo, were in danger of being wiped out entirely.

Praises H.B. Route

Col. James Arrives In France After Trip Described As Safe Way To Europe

Winnipeg, Man.—Enthusiastic support of the Hudson Bay route for carrying of western Canada's products to the markets of Europe is expressed by Col. F. J. James, of Regina, vice-president for Saskatchewan of the On-to-the-Bay Association, who has arrived at Marseilles, France, aboard the grain carrier S.S. Pennyworth.

In a communication by General R. W. Paterson, president of the On-to-the-Bay Association, Col. James said:

"Had a wonderful trip, especially through the Bay and Hudson Straits—the safe way to Europe. Wheat in splendid shape."

Nineteen days out of Churchill, with a cargo of prairie wheat, the "Pennyworth" reached the French port Sept. 14, and later went to Genoa, Italy, where the grain was unloaded. The ship now is returning to Newcastle, England, her home port.

Deplore Sunday Work

Alberta Lord's Day Alliance To Make Protest

Edmonton, Alberta.—Sunday operation of grain elevators, claimed to be an unnecessary form of Sunday labor, will be protested by the Lord's Day Alliance, it is stated by Rev. G. G. Webber, western secretary of that organization, who is now in the city. The alliance, he points out, does not take exception to emergency harvesting operations on Sunday when necessitated by weather conditions, and on that score there have been but few complaints this season; but the operation of elevators on Sunday is not considered as coming under that head.

"There has been no marked indication of Sunday threshing this year," says Mr. Webber.

To Discuss War Debts

Delegation From Britain Sails For United States

Southampton, Eng.—Three British officials including Sir Frederick Leith-Ross, government economic adviser, have sailed for the United States, ready to discuss war debts with President Roosevelt.

Sir Frederick, while saying his plans were indefinite, declared he was visiting America "to observe the feeling toward the question of the war debts."

"And I expect," he added, "I shall be presented with an opportunity of discussing the position with President Roosevelt. Although for the moment he is very busily engaged with internal problems."

The other members of the party were Sir Ronald Lindsay, British ambassador to the United States, and T. K. Bewley, treasury official who has been attached to the Washington embassy.

Prefer Marriage

Test In Britain Would Show That Cleverest Women Are Married

London, Eng.—The brainiest women prefer marriage is the only logical conclusion to be drawn from this announcement that of 12 women entering the examination for the highest class in the civil service, not one was successful.

This examination is the stiffest in the civil service, but it is no harder than the Oxford final schools' or the Cambridge tripos examinations, where women prove proportionately as successful as men.

But here's the sticker. Candidates for the civil service examination must be either unmarried or widows, and they are required to resign any appointment on marriage. Apparently these stipulations balked the women cleverest at examinations.

British Aviators Killed

Two Burned To Death When 'Planes Were Wrecked

London, Eng.—Two Royal Air Force 'planes crashed as they were returning from the manoeuvres of the home fleet off Scotland and two men were burned to death. A third 'plane was missing and six others were forced down by thick weather.

The two men killed crashed at Belford, Northumberland, in a bomber. Crew of the second 'plane, which was wrecked at Sunderland, escaped. None of the ships forced down was damaged.

Death of the two men aboard the bomber brought to 44 the number of fatalities in the air force this year.

Leaving Dried-Out Areas

Settlers In Alberta Take Advantage Of Free Movement Scheme

Edmonton, Alberta.—Settlers are continuing to move from the dried-out areas, and new applications are being received in large numbers at the government relief offices. To date somewhat over 200 families have actually been moved, and it is believed that the original estimate of 300 families during the season will be considerably exceeded. By the end of October, when the free-movement scheme will terminate, the total may have reached, it is thought, the figure of 400.

PROMINENT MEDICAL LEADERS ATTEND CONFERENCES

NEW RULING IS MADE REGARDING U. S. HOOK-UPS

Montreal, Quebec.—Canadian radio stations are forbidden to establish a permanent hook-up with United States broadcasting systems in an announcement of policy made here by Hector Charlesworth, chairman of the Canadian radio broadcasting commission.

Mr. Charlesworth said this was the policy of the commission "now and in the future."

Reports were that a Montreal station had been negotiating an agreement by which the programs of one American chain would be carried to the exclusion of all other material, but Mr. Charlesworth made no specific reference to this case.

French language programs would be made more frequent in the province of Quebec, but not throughout the Dominion, the chairman said.

"We are not originating any commercial programs ourselves yet," Mr. Charlesworth replied to a question. "Proposals, however, are now being discussed which will lead to a new policy altogether, though it is premature to discuss them yet.

"I am anxious to see a national broadcasting restored on terms reasonable to the advertisers, which will be beneficial also to the newspapers. Newspapers will be the first to benefit by the new policy," he added.

Canada could not tolerate domination from the United States and therefore there would be no permanent hook-ups. At the same time the commission had no objecttion to programs coming in "so long as there are not too many of them."

Arrangements have been made to have broadcasts from New York of the New York Philharmonic Orchestra, enabling the whole of the Dominion to listen in. These will start very shortly.

Hundreds Are Made Homeless In Earthquake

Nineteen Killed And Many Injured In Italian Disaster

Rome, Italy.—Latest reports showed 19 persons killed, approximately 200 injured and hundreds made homeless in the earthquake which rocked the Abruzzi mountain region.

Hundreds, still terrorized at night, slept in open fields, huddling about huge bonfires to protect themselves from the chilly autumn mountain air. Soldiers and Fascist militiamen erected villages of tents. The hospitals in the area were overtaxed with the injured.

Despatches from the Ligurian coastal town of Savonna said a tidal wave swept the city following a slight 'quake in the inland region.

Age Limit For Architects

Any Over 55 Years Are Too Old To Compete

London, Eng.—The government has decided architects more than 55 years old are too old to compete in designing the great $10,000,000 office block to be built in Whitehall, centre of the United Kingdom administration.

This rules out such world-famous architects as Sir Edwin Lutyens, Raymond Unwin, Herbert Baker, Reginald Blomfield and Banister Fletcher.

The reason given for the age limit is that building of the new block will occupy several years, and, according to the government, experience shows that elderly architects engaged on a big undertaking often die before the work is completed.

U.S. Naval Program

Britain Is Informed That United States Cannot Postpone Work

Washington.—The United States has informed the British government it cannot postpone any part of the naval building programme now underway as was suggested in London.

The British government was reported as feeling that carrying out the whole $238,000,000 naval construction programme might have a bad effect on moves to limit armaments. The source through which the American position was made known in reply was not disclosed at the state department.

The following from Sirdar made the journey to Boswell for the dance on Saturday night. Misses Margaret and Daisy Rogers, Annie and Rosie Pascuzzo, Lily Cam, Chas. Wilson, Frank Hamilton, D. Pascuzzo, F. Lombardo.

The highway between Sirdar and Atbara was closed for a period of twenty four hours starting on Monday night for the purpose of blowing a large blast and to enable the crew clean up in this time, so that traffic may be interfered with to the minimum.

The Canadian Smelters Limited have just completed the loading of a very heavy car of ore from their Sanca Mines. This is the fourth car. With the facilities recently installed production will be stepped up and other two cars will be despatched this month. The ore is consigned to the Trail smelter.

The local road crew were augmented by crews from Wynndel and Creston under the supervision of Engineer Dalgas for the purpose of clearing away the debris from the shot successfully fired Monday night. A section crew was on duty on the railway just below the shot. While it was not possible to have the road clear just on time the operation was very successfully handled taking all the factors into consideration.

The most disastrous fire Erickson has encountered was that of Monday morning in which the residence of R. M. Telford was quite badly gutted by fire and a heavy loss sustained by water damage to the contents. The blaze originated behind the kitchen range and had gained some headway before it was noticed. Fortunately, when the alarm was sounded the crews at the packing shed responded promptly, and with ample water available the flames were checked and most of the contents removed, although there was some loss of wearing apparel. Although by no means completely destroyed the house is badly wrecked in the effort of the firemen to get at the blaze. Insurance was carried and the adjusters are expected to arrive Thursday to adjust the damage, and permit of reconstruction commencing.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Gray Creek-Crawford Bay Road

Editor Review:

Sir,—Although signs of better times, such as increased wages and higher commodity prices, are much in evidence in the principal countries of the world, the recent change in unemployment administration from the Provincial to the Dominion Government points to the probability of considerable relief being dispensed during the coming winter.

It behooves us then from a national and district standpoint to concentrate on those public works which open up rural communities, which give employment where it is most needed, and which will yield adequate return on the capital invested. All these requirements will be met in full measure by the construction of the Grey Creek-Crawford Bay link in the Trans-Provincial Highway.

Crawford Bay is a wide, fertile well watered valley, which supports the largest settlement on the east shore of Kootenay Lake. That the greater number of its fifty families are there to stay is obvious to anyone who takes notice of the comfortable homes, prosperous farms, and purebred stock to be seen on every side in this locality.

Within the settlement itself, and stretching to Kootenay Bay, Deanshaves and Riondel, there is a network of roads either in use or on the point of completion, which are adequate, and much better than the present Gray Creek-Crawford Bay highway. This single track road though only four miles in length is a positive nightmare to the motorist, and a disgrace to the province. Its bumps and hairpin curves upset the digestion of all but the stoutest.

Prior to 1931 lake transport prevailed and there was no great need for a road between these points; now every pound of import for the large prosperous settlement must go over this perilous trail.

The population living north of Gray Creek are entitled to safer travel. They should be able to market their produce in good condition and at a moderate transportation cost.

Both the province and the Dominion as a whole will benefit from the construction of this link for it is part of the proposed cut-off in the trans-provincial highway, which will at once reduce the cost of ferry operation to the province and to the individual motorist. The route has been surveyed, and there is apparently nothing to prevent the work being completed this winter.

From the purely local standpoint this east side of Kootenay Lake, which was previously tributary to Nelson, is now politically and economically a part of the Creston district. Already an increasing number of Crawford Bay residents avail themselves of our professional and business services, and more would do so if the road under discussion were constructed. However cheap and frequent the ferry service between east and west shore, Kootenay Lake will always be an economic boundary. In any state of the weather, at any hour of the day or night, a resident of the east shore may leave by car for Creston, or leave Creston for his home.

Then let Creston public bodies and business men get behind the movement for completion of this link, for Creston's prosperity lies in the prosperity of its outlying districts.

Hospital Auxiliary Meets

The September meeting of Creston Hospital Women's Hospital Auxiliary was held at the home of Mrs. McLaren. Mrs. R. Stevens, president, was in charge.

Mrs. C. Murrell reported for the activities of the buying committee, which included the ordering of 100 yards of curtain material for the new hospital. Mrs. M. Ross of the visiting committee stated that she had visited the hospital and had found everything in order.

It was decided to donate $25 toward the wiring of the second floor of the new hospital. Mrs. C. H. Hare will represent the Auxiliary on a special committee of representatives from the board of trade and village council to evolve a plan to finance the new hospital.

As far as possible arrangements were made for the opening of the new hospital but as no definite date has been set it could not be fully carried out.

The fruit shower will be held at the opening and donations of fruits, vegetables, etc., will be welcome. There are still empty jars available at the hospital.

A vote of thanks was given Mrs. Cook for entertaining the members of the Auxiliary at the August meeting at her home. Also the hostesses of that day, Mrs. W. L. Rell and Mrs. Warren.

$18.75 was turned in proceeds from the sale of raffle tickets on a quilt. Roll call was answered by 21 members. Tea was served by Mrs. R. J. Forbes and Mrs. W. McL. Cooper. The freewill offering was $2.

The Road to RECOVERY

A Statement by the Prime Minister of Canada

WITHIN a few days the Dominion of Canada will offer for public subscription the 1933 Refunding Loan, the purposes and terms of which will be announced in detail by the Minister of Finance on Tuesday, October 10. In this national undertaking an opportunity will be afforded both for sound investment and for public service, and I have no doubts as to the readiness with which Canadian investors will respond.

I feel, however, that the 1933 Loan marks a point in Canadian affairs to which it is only proper that public attention should be drawn as a means of extending justifiable encouragement to many thousands of men and women who have endured adversity with such admirable fortitude.

With due precaution against unwarranted optimism I think I may say that in Canada we are now on the road to recovery. The road may be long and progress may be slow, but the events of the past six months appear to demonstrate with increasing clarity that the downward trend has come to a definite stop and that an upward trend is now in progress.

The evidence of improvement is written in the statistical facts of our industry and trade. These records show that our general economic condition reached its lowest point during the month of February last and that today we are definitely above that level following a recovery which has been gradual but persistent and unmistakable.

The most significant of these figures are probably those dealing with the physical volume of business, wholesale prices and employment, and I give here briefly the record of recovery in each case as shown by the reports of the Dominion Bureau of Statistics.

The index of our physical volume of business, which represents virtually the economic pulse of the nation, stood last February at 67.1. For August, the most recent month for which the index is available, the figure was 89.9, an improvement of approximately 34%.

Wholesale prices, in which even minor changes are highly significant, have risen over 9%, or from an index of 63.6 last February to one of 69.4 in August.

Employment, although still at a regrettably low level, has, nevertheless, been gaining steadily for the past five months. On the basis of partial reports from industrial employers some 116,000 persons have been added to pay-rolls since last April. An estimate by the Bureau on a more comprehensive basis places the total increase in employment at 246,000 during the same period.

Our external trade figures are equally encouraging. Both exports and imports have risen, with the former showing the more rapid increase. As a result, Canada had a favourable trade balance of over $114,000,000 in the twelve months ended August 31st this year. For the corresponding period last year the favourable balance was only $38,000,000, and in the two previous twelve months' periods instead of favourable figures we had unfavourable balances of $45,000,000 and of $103,000,000 respectively.

All these facts and figures I think we may quite safely take as sign-posts on the road to recovery. In our further progress, no single factor will have more significance than the success of our national loan operations. The recent 4% loan in London was a notable tribute to Canada's credit standing. It was immediately oversubscribed many times and now commands a substantial premium. I feel satisfied that our own people will be quick to perceive that the 1933 Refunding Loan in Canada is at once a challenge and an opportunity —a challenge to aid in the restoration of business recovery and an opportunity to serve thereby their own and their country's best interests.

SYNOPSIS

Camilla Hoyt, young and beautiful, falls in love with Peter Anson, fellow student in an art school. She is the adopted daughter of a wealthy family, and he is a poor, struggling sculptor. On their first date Peter spends most of his money to show Camilla a good time, and then decides he must give her up because he cannot stand the financial pace. A chance meeting, however, paves the way for another date. This time they walk in the park. Camilla tells Peter that she is not rich; or, at least, will not inherit the Hoyt fortune. Peter in turn confesses he is practically penniless. They fall into each other's arms. Together, in the park, Peter and Camilla try to arrive at some plan for the future. Mrs. Hoyt, Camilla's foster mother, suspects from Camilla's actions that a romance is brewing. She is anxious to see Camilla wed wealth. Mrs. Hoyt immediately begins to question the girl about the interest Peter is showing her. She manages to be present on one occasion when Peter calls for Camilla, but the latter's clever stage management thwarts her plan.

Now Go On With The Story

CHAPTER XI.

The art school reception was a gay soiree—a gesture of youth to capture and hold the last drop of freedom and irresponsibility before it took up the grave problems of life and maturity. Balloons decorated with clever and facetious sketches floated above the dancers. Some of them were tied to the girl's arms and some had escaped to rest gleefully against the ceiling. Costumed entertainers mingled with the guests and added hilarity to the intermissions.

It was the first time Camilla and Peter had danced together since the first and last extravaganza which had almost ruined Peter. He never had recovered from it and was financially anxious, but he would not admit to Camilla how serious his situation was.

Tonight, he resolutely dismissed his anxieties and abandoned himself to the delight of holding her in his arms, his face resting against her fragrant hair that was like the twilight dusk hovering above a cloud of lace-rose. He left her regretfully to meet the obligations of courtesy dances.

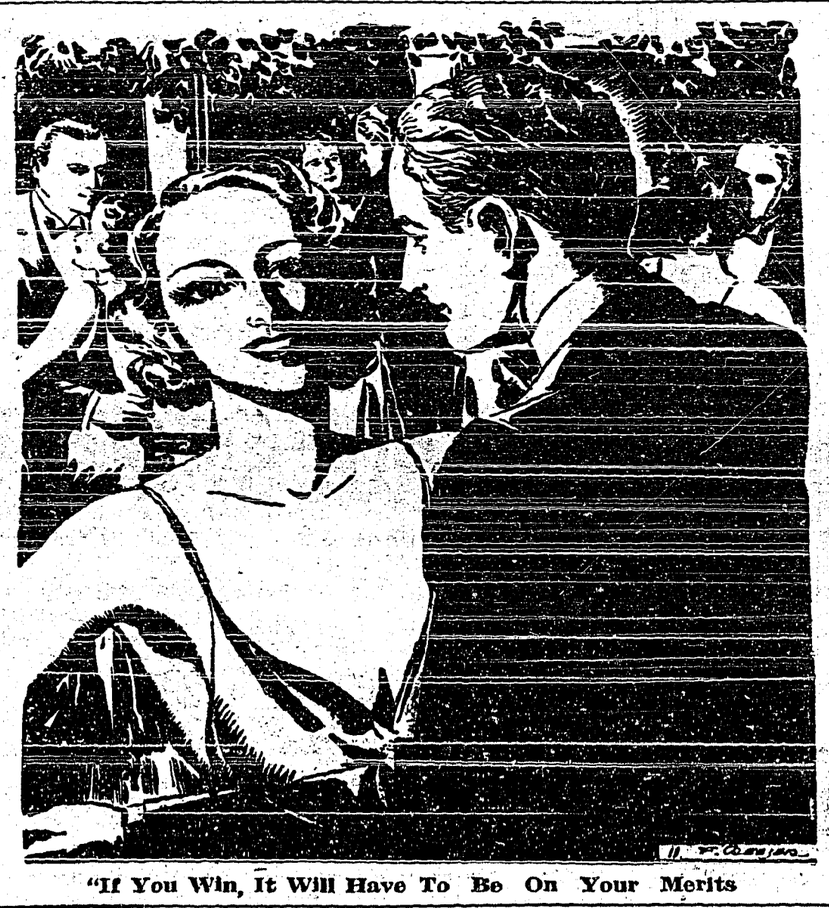
Always, he would have to be a social diplomat for the sake of his career. Camilla understood that— bless her! She seemed to understand everything, he thought fondly. Capable little thing, who worked problems out for herself. Life had mocked her, handed her a serious problem and said, "Now, what will you do about that?" With a flash of her black eyes and a flare of determination, she accepted the challenge. Now, he had complicated her problem, and she had accepted that in the same spirit. Brave little thing!

Sometimes, he half decided that he would make things easier for her by dropping out of her life. Some fellow with money would be glad to take care of her. But that was the trouble, she wouldn't let anyone do that—not when she loved someone else. And that other person whom she loved was Peter—himself. So he accepted the miraculous fact, and hoped for the best.

Of course, Camilla never lacked for partners while he danced with other girls. He was glad of that, and resented it, too. It seemed to him that too many fellows stood in the stag line, waiting to cut in and force him to relinquish her loveliness into their arms. Taking the girl you loved to a dance was like everything else—you got what you wanted and at the same time had to take something else you didn't like so well, and make the best of it.

Just now, his philanthropy was devoted to Avis Werth, whose object in attending National was what Peter had suspected first of Camilla. She had time on her hands and money in her purse, and nothing to do but look for an eligible man. No doubt almost anyone would have qualified, but just now her hopes favored Peter. He was the kind of man women lose their heads over, anyway, and their hearts. He was the kind for which women contrived special traps and offered generous concessions of principle for bait, on the chance of luring him into their possession.

Contrary to most men's vain beliefs, few of them select the women they want for wives, anyway. A woman finds her man and goes about it to get him. She stops at nothing. Whether she is sophisticated or naive or ill-bred, it makes no difference. Only her methods differ—subtle or clumsy or bold—she gets her man.



"If You Win, It Will Have To Be On Your Merits"

Being sophisticated, Avis was subtle. She gave her body to the sensuous rhythm of the music. Vexation turned him cold. His eyes wandered about the crowded room, seeking for Camilla. His lack of interest piqued Avis. She knew for whom his eyes were searching. But she also knew the vulnerable spot of Peter's interest. It was not in his heel. Furthermore, she knew that Peter hadn't a dollar in the world. But that was of no consequence. Ambrose Werth controlled an impressive fortune, most of which he would settle upon his only daughter.

Having everything else in the world, Avis' sole ambition was a husband. Preferably a handsome one, and if his ambitions promised fame and a fortune of his own eventually, there could be no objection to that. She knew Peter's ambitions. If feminine appeal were not bait enough, she could add flavor that was more alluring, perhaps.

"You are planning to enter the National exhibit, aren't you, Peter?" she turned her face close to his, intimately, and her intonation implied that she shared his most personal affairs.

"Yes, of course," his reply brought his attention back from the search for Camilla.

"Did you know that my uncle has been appointed to the scholarship committee?" she asked triumphantly.

"No," he replied tonelessly. "Which one is your uncle? I have the new literature from the foundation."

"Mr. Dunforth. His influence could do a lot for you, Peter,'" confidentially.

He became more aloof, suddenly. His action was not perceptible to others, but Avis was resentfully aware of it, and made some resolutions of her own. He said sharply, "I don't care about influences. All I ask is fair judgment in any contest I enter."

"Of course," she agreed suavely. "But are—you know, Peter, that prejudices always influence the judgment of art. No two critics see a picture or a play or a book or a piece of sculpture with the same measure of appreciation. The measure is gauged by mental reactions, and you can't escape that fact."

"Mental reactions are all right, but mental prejudices have nothing to do with fair judgment."

"That depends," she observed aloud, and added in her thoughts, "who influences those mental prejudices. I'll have you eating from my hand, yet, Peter Anson, if you want that Paris scholarship."

"Well, I can't be responsible for all the mental reactions of the judgment committee, any more than the other entrants can. I'll just have to take my chances along with the rest," he smiled ruefully.

His smile tantalized her, without intention on his part. It was the kind of smile that unconsciously conveys a personal confidence. It betrayed him, unwittingly, to this woman who adored him and coveted his attention. Her lips answered his smile and almost touched his, for she was taller than Camilla, to whom he had to incline his head to meet her face. Avis whispered, "I intend to be responsible for a few reactions in your favor."

He shrugged indifferently, "Nice of you to be concerned about me, but I don't want you to attempt anything like that. If I win, I should want it to be on my merits alone. Besides, I'm sure that even you could not influence a member of the National Scholarship committee," he added with an effort to be gracious at the same time that he intimated the subject was closed.

"Oh, don't worry about that. If you win it will have to be on your own merits," she warned him with a suggestion of malice.

The dance ended and he surrendered her to a new partner, gratefully. With eager joy, he searched for Camilla. She seemed to have disappeared. After an anxious inspection of the room, he stepped outside for a cigarette. Perhaps she had gone to the dressing room. He had seen her last, dancing with Gus.

Of course, those two had met during the month since Peter and Camilla had pledged their love to each other.

Peter finished his cigarette and went inside again. Vainly, his eyes sought the vision in pink lace that would be Camilla. She was not dancing, he finally concluded. And wondered. He began to watch for Gus. Perhaps he would know where Camilla had gone after dancing with him. But he was nowhere on the floor, either. Peter grew anxious.

He stepped outside again and strolled down the campus walk, slowly. The night was softly caressing. He thought, it would be heavenly walking home with Camilla across the park. Always, it was like paradise to be with Camilla. He must find her. Perhaps she was out here somewhere resting in the coolness. He wished he might find her if she were, and have her for a few minutes alone.

A root set in the finest soil in the best climate, and blessed with all that the sun and air and rain can do for it, is not in so sure a way of its growth to perfection as every man may be whose spirit aspires after all that which God is ready and infinitely desirous of giving him. For the sun meets not the springing bud that stretches toward him with half the certainty as God, the source of all good, communicates Himself to the soul who longs to partake of Him.—Wm. Law.

Gasoline With Real Kick

Jugoslavia has decreed that all gasoline used in the country must contain at least 20 per cent. of industrial alcohol. The decree is to help the producers of industrial alcohol in Jugoslavia and also to reduce the amount of foreign currency needed for the purchase of gasoline abroad. The mixture is reported to give good results.

Cutting From Willow Tree Growing On Michigan Estate

A willow tree with an unusual history grows on the property of the Mathias Ullenbruch estate at Port Huron, Michigan. The history is explained by a plate on the tree reading:

"The parent tree from which this willow sprung grew over the tomb of Napoleon Bonaparte in the Island of Ste. Helena. Cutting from the parent was brought to America and planted at the World's Centennial Exposition in Philadelphia in 1876. A branch from that tree is this present monument."

The late Mathias Ullenbruch, then head gardener at the Detroit House of Correction, attended the Philadelphia Exposition and brought the cutting back to the prison. Later he transplanted the young sapling to his greenhouses in Port Huron.
