Groceteria Evens League Standing

Cardinals Drop a Fast, Close Game to Groceteria in Over-time Play—Creston Motors Triumph Over Rival Garage

Friday night saw two favorite teams go down to defeat before the largest crowd that has yet packed the Park Pavilion for the regular league games. Creston Motors outplayed a weakened team from Cecil Moore's Garage, 18-11, and the Cardinals found themselves after an overtime struggle on the wrong end of a 26-22 score, bringing themselves into a first place tie with Imperial Groceteria.

The Moore's Garage found the loss of their captain, Neil Payne, who was on the sick list, too much of a handicap, and substituted a hard checking defense for their usual vigorous attacking tactics. The Motors, however, under the scintillating leadership of Liz. Armitage, were too much for them and maintained a slender lead throughout the whole game. Mary Abbott was the centre of the Moore's Garage floor game, their last chance vanishing when she left the floor in the second half. Poor foul shooting was another factor in losing the game, the Moore's Garage converting but one of thirteen penalty shots. The teams:

Cecil Moore's Garage—Tompkins 3, Abbott, Lewis 2, Speers 2, Crane 4. Total 11.

Creston Motors—M. Armitage 4, Avery, McCreath 3, E. Armitage 11, Payne, Clark, Wightman: Total 18. Referee: F. P. Levirs.

The men's game was a real struggle, both teams being a little over-anxious, consequently checking hard and shooting poorly. On the small end of a 10-7 score at half time, the red shirts made a real battle of it in the second half, tying up matters at 22-all by the final whistle. The Groceteria went into overtime with four men, the penalty list proving costly to both teams. Forty seconds before the end there were but six men on the floor. Howard Corrie and brother Doug, starred for the red-shirts, Martello and Haddon for the Groceteria. The teams:

Cardinals—H. Corrie 11, Holmes 5, Clark, Cobus 1, Ross, D. Corrie 5, Crawford: Total 22. Imperial Groceteria—Martello 4, Downes 4, Haddon 11, Bourdon 5, Payne 2, Couling: Total 26. Referees: F. P. Levirs and Marriot.

High School beat Public School boys, 26-6. High School beat Public School girls (exhibition), 21-8.

Yahk Badminton Talent Winners

Trim Creston 14-7 Playing on Home Floor, Making Sweep of Men's Doubles—Low Ceiling Hampers Creston Play.

Honors are now even in badminton as between the Creston and Yahk clubs. In a tournament at Creston on November 19th the locals had the best of it by 31-16 margin. In the return game at Yahk on Saturday night, Yahk doubled the count on Creston at 14-7.

Creston players were unable to adapt their play to the low ceiling in the Yahk hall, which contributed largely to their downfall. Best two out of three games was the order of the evening, with most of them won in two straight. Play was quite even in the mixed and ladies doubles but in the men's doubles Yahk captured all six games played. The total scores for the evening were Yahk 472, Creston 319. The competitors were:

Slingsby and Mrs. A. Benedetti.

An unusually large crowd attended the regular K.K. Klub meeting on Wednesday last. Immediately following the bridge fun's regular session Pharmacy and Moore's garage teams of Creston met in an exciting basketball game, the garage team bowing to their hitherto lowly rivals 14-8. The LaBelle trio clicked beautifully time and again to pile up most of the points for Pharmacy, while Moore's garage, minus their fast centre, Neil Payne, failed appreciably to get within shooting range. The refereeing was well handled by Howard Corrie and Buff Nastasi, of Creston. Following basketball dancing was enjoyed, with music by Messrs. Ness and Goplin of Creston. Supper was served at 11.30.

There was a splendid lunch at midnight, and the music was by Mrs. Hamilton and Messrs. Ron, Smith, C. Ostrowsky and Geo. Willis.

Dyking Work Half Completed

Reclamation Company Shareholders Have Report on Construction—Annual Shareholders' Meeting Held Monday.

There was a representative turnout of shareholders at the annual meeting of Creston Reclamation Company, Limited, at the town hall on Monday evening, with President C. O. Rodgers presiding. In addition to the usual reports and election of directors, R. B. Staples submitted an operation statement from Creston Dyking Company Limited, which has the contract of dyking the Reclamation Company lands on Kootenay flats.

In reporting on the progress made in constructing the dyke, Mr. Staples stated that the Creston Dyking Company, Limited, felt that the work being done was of so much interest to Creston district as a whole, and the public generally were so sympathetic toward the project that the fullest possible information covering the progress of the work should be given.

Mr. Staples stated that the Dyking Company had definitely arranged for their financing up to the full amount of the contracted price before undertaking the contract. Roughly 55 per cent. of the contract price had been expended on the work to date. The total amount of dyking to be done was, roughly, twelve miles and of this six miles has been completed. Of the six miles completed, slightly in excess of two miles was the high dyke connecting Dow's slough with the Goat River at the red bridge. The dyking Company felt that so much difficulty had been encountered in building this high dyke and the yardage per mile was so much greater than any of the remaining miles left to be done that even if difficult conditions were encountered, the company, at the present time, had sufficient finance arranged for to complete the job.

The time set for the completion of the work was February 15th, and here again it seemed reasonable to suppose that the time limit would not be exceeded. Very little work had been done towards building the dyke on September 20th and, as the operators were all "green" men, there seemed to be a reasonable margin of safety since less than half of the allotted time had been used.

Mr. Staples stated that, apart from the reasonable assurance that the dyke would be well built and built on time, one of the most pleasing features of the operation was the splendid manner in which local men have been able to master the none-too-easy work of scraper and bulldozer operation. The twenty or more machinery operators employed by the company are a credit to the intelligence and efficiency of Canadian workmen.

President Rodgers presented a businesslike statement of the company's activities during the year, and the balance sheet submitted and adopted showed the company's finances to be in excellent condition. The work of the directors was so satisfactory that they were re-elected by acclamation, as follows: C. O. Rodgers, R. B. Staples, S. A. Speers, F. Putnam, and F. V. Staples, and at a subsequent meeting of the board, officers were elected as follows: President, C. O. Rodgers; vice-president, S. A. Speers; secretary, C. F. Hayes; treasurer, F. Putnam, and auditor, J. W. Hamilton.

The Cotter's Saturday Night

Creston is to be favored, thanks to the Ladies Aid of Trinity United Church, by a visit from a real, honest, genuine, legitimate, travelling theatrical attraction, Thursday, December 18th, at the Grand Theatre. There will appear one of the outstand ing touring attractions in the Scottish Musical Players. For their Creston appearance they will present the two-act classic, "The Cotter's Saturday Night", arranged from the poem of the same name by Robert Burns. Not only for those of Scottish descent and interests, but for all who appreciate folk drama, portrayed by gifted artists, who interpret in the e plays the spirit of the simple home life and people, immortalized in literature by Robert Burns, do these plays appeal. These players and musical artists come to Creston from engagements in Winnipeg, Edmonton, Calgary and Lethbridge. Among the players to be welcomed here are Mary McMahon, soprano; Edythe McGregor, contralto; Anne Forsythe, the dancer, who introduces unusually intricate play ing on the bag-pipes; Florence Reed, pianist; William T. Wilson, comedian; that sterling actor T McAllister Wallace; Randolph Salmons, tenor; Gordon Douglas, baritone, and others "The Cotter's Saturday Night" as prepared by these actor-singers is sure to prove outstanding dramatic and musical event in the history of Creston. Reserved seats are now on sale at Creston Drug Store. All seats will be reserved. For those out of town, mail orders are now being received by Mrs. W. Fraser, president of Trinity United Church Ladies' Aid.

The Hospital Drive

The first dollar to reach the secretary for the membership drive was from Mrs. M. F. Burton, Claresholm, Alberta. The sale of this first ticket and others outside the province is the direct result of publicity in the press, and the distribution of literature by mail by the residents of the valley. It is earnestly requested that supporters of the drive will continue to enclose the descriptive sheet in their outgoing mail so that the membership campaign and Creston Valley may be widely advertised.

The canvas of the Valley has been progressing well, and already 50 stubs have been handed in by C. S. Hester, 40 by J. G. Abbott, Wynndel; and thirty from Mrs. Canute Anderson.

Examination of the slips shows that the purchasers of eleven tickets have donated their chance of winning ten acres or $750 to Creston Valley Hospital.

It is hoped that those who have not already purchased their tickets will do so now from their local seller or from the secretary.

The water as indicated by gauge at Slough bridge reads 2.45, a fall of 0.25 for the week. The normal trend should be downward from now on.

The mountains round here are now capped with snow down to the five hundred feet level, a sure indication that it will lie there for the winter.

The number of cars and other vehicles passing through here is astonishing for this time of the year, cars with licences other than B.C. still predominating.

CRESTON, B.C., FRIDAY, DEC. 7

HOME BREW

With 245 pupils enrolled at the public school and with some reason for expecting a still further influx of new citizens who will, doubtless, be blessed with families, residents within Creston school district may as well wake up to the fact that increased educational facilities will have to be provided, not only on the score of more pupils but to get away from the two divisions now quartered in the basement of central school, which were never intended to be a permanent feature of local school facilities. A couple of years ago trustees from outside districts conferred at Creston in connection with a consolidated high school. While no definite conclusion was arrived at most of those present were favorably impressed with the idea and it is to be hoped when Creston is compelled to provide more room and staff that the matter of the district high school will again be given consideration. But whether there is to be a valley high school development or not, Creston school district ratepayers should be prepared to face a heavier school budget than during the past few years.

Down in Idaho they have a very practical way of spending money on unemployment relief. Instead of concentrating their effort on highway improvement almost exclusively, as is the policy in British Columbia and other Canadian provinces, our American friends provide funds for work on all sorts of projects for community betterment. For instance at Bonners Ferry the unemployed have just completed a swimming pool about 40 x 110 feet that will be available for next season. And in last week's Herald we read that the next project to be undertaken is one to improve things around the fair grounds in that town. The plan is to level and sod the spare within the race track for an athletic field and to rebuild the stock buildings which were destroyed by fire a year or so ago. In connection with these two pieces of work funds are forthcoming to buy most of the necessary material, the government providing the money to pay the labor costs. If Canadian governments ever get around to working on the American plan the village should have no time in recommending a sewer system for quick and favorable consideration.

The market authorities who quite early in the year figured Eastern Canada would provide an outlet for a considerable volume of British Columbia's 1934 apple crop appear to have been well advised in making such a prediction. According to figures compiled by the B.C. Tree Fruit Board cartel, up to November 23rd, eastern Canada has been the second best domestic market customer the Okanagan has had to that date, accounting for total purchases of 336,000 boxes, a d taking 41 per cent. of the McIntosh Reds sold in Canada up to that time. Unbelievable as it may seem, the cartel statement shows that Saskatchewan has been the biggest apple buyer with a total purchase of 373,000 boxes. Of the sales to eastern Canada 168,000 boxes are classed as "bulk." Saskatchewan took 263,000 boxes "bulk." In Delicious sales to that date Eastern Canada has been the Okanagan's best customer, with Saskatchewan ranking second. The overseas preference for the different varieties is eloquently stated in the figures given out covering export sales, as follows: McIntosh 463,034; Jonathan, 580,153; Wagner, 1,245; Winter Banana, 3,180; Northern Spy, 751; Grims Golden, 59,690; Early Sundries, 25,683; Rome Beauty, 6,527; Delicious, 178,375; Spitzenberg, 6,566; Stayman, 3,908; Late Sundries, 1,176; Winesap, 49,328; Yellow Newtown, 168,115.

Over at Rossland the light is beginning to break as to a likely way to control the younger generation, who, in large numbers, prefer to be on the street rather than at home, during the early hours of the evening at any rate. 32 years ago Rossland passed the curfew law compelling children to be off the streets at 9 p.m. in summer months, and 8 p.m. during the winter, and referring to this local enactment the Miner says: "Rossland has a curfew law, and each night the curfew bell is rung. It is apparent, however, that many parents and children do not know what it is for." The Miner is all for the use of the army by the people of Rossland; instead of having the children wandering around the streets why not give them something to do if they must be out. Creston citizens who are so strong for the curfew law locally could do worse than give some serious consideration to the plan that is being offered at Rossland.

The police dog menace which a few weeks ago was so bad at Cranbrook that the always truthful editor of the Courier was constrained to take his editorial pen in hand and forcibly demand action to rid the city of this type of unlicensed canine which was said to be hurting business in that lady residents of the divisional city were becoming too timid to venture out on shopping trips while the police dog population was so numerous and allowed to run without let or hindrance, has made its appearance at Fernie. Read this from the last issue of the Free Press: "We have before this drawn the attention of this city to the menace of the so-called police dogs. With the bringing to town of a large number of deer carcasses a pack of these police dogs, half tamed wolves, roam the streets every night making it unsafe for any little dog to be abroad. The latest pet to fall a victim to them was Bert Johnson's little Boston terrier. Two of these curs literally tore the pup to pieces. This is the third case of this kind in a few weeks. Other towns have put heavy licenses on this particular brand of dog, but as yet Fernie council has taken no action. Some day some child is going to fall a victim to these untamed brutes and then there will be a real howl."

At Bonners Ferry the farmers have just organized a co-operative concern that will enable them to buy their own gas, oil and tires at almost cost.

Prosperity must be just around the corner. The Roman Catholic Church bazaar at Cranbrook this year, had double the cash intake of the same affair in 1933. This year the ladies cleared over $700.

Kaslo Kootenai: Inspector Robinson of the fisheries department was in town on Friday looking into conditions here. He is anxious to get the stomachs of squaw fish for the department, which is making a study as to just what havoc these coarse fish are doing to the trout population. The department is also studying the depredations of the meganser ducks on the trout supply.

"...So that Our Visitors will be Sorry to Leave"

"If we are going to invite people to this country, we must be honest with them . . . Courtesy costs nothing and is one of our greatest tourist assets . . . Let us so treat strangers within our gates that it will be easy for them to come, pleasant for them to stay, and difficult for them to leave."

Rt. Hon. R. B. BENNETT, Prime Minister of Canada, to the Canadian Association of Tourist and Publicity Bureaus, November 6, 1934.

Canada's tourist activities represent more than a great industry from which everybody benefits. They provide an opportunity to create what the Prime Minister has described as "that feeling of neighbourliness" which is such a vital factor in building up cordial relations within the family of nations.

For both these reasons, may I urge upon the people of Canada the importance of showing consideration, courtesy and honesty to guests of our country? Let us all do those little acts of kindness which count for so much when one travels in a strange land.

We have a beautiful country. We must keep it so. We want our visitors to travel highways free from disfigurement, walk the streets of cities that are orderly and clean, and find at the end of every day's travel an inviting spot to rest. Canadians should turn their attention now to the important work of preparing for next year's tourist season.

As a nation, we are advertising abroad the attractions of Canada as a holiday land. We must see to it that our guests return home with only the happiest recollections—and the determination to come back again and again.

Nor should we forget, in planning our own vacations, that there are beauties to discover and friendships to be made in our neighbouring provinces. We live in one of the world's most glorious playgrounds—let us learn to know better the rich variety of its travel attractions.

HER ARMS AND LEGS IMMOVABLE

Ten Years With Rheumatism

To this woman it must have been like commencing to live a new life, when she began to use her arms and legs again, after they had been helpless for ten years.

"I suffered with rheumatism," she writes, "and had been bedridden since 1920. I could not move arms or legs, and had to be fed like a child. Everybody thought I should be an invalid all my life. I forced myself to fight against it, and tried a number of different things. It was Kruschen that eventually saved me, and to-day I consider it is saving my life. My condition has greatly improved, and my limbs are gradually becoming more supple. Already I can eat without assistance, and dress myself—which I had not done for ten years."

—M. H.

Two of the ingredients of Kruschen Salts are the most effectual solvents of uric acid known to medical science. They swiftly dull the sharp edges of the painful crystals, then convert them into a harmless solution. Other ingredients of these Salts have a stimulating effect upon the kidneys, and assist them to expel the dissolved uratic needles through the natural channel.

THE TENDERFOOT

By

GEORGE B. RODNEY

Author of "The Coronado Trail," "The Canyon Trail," Etc.

SYNOPSIS

"You've fallen heir to a half-share in plenty of trouble," the lawyer told Gerald Keene. "The Broken Spur has been systematically looting the ranch, and old Joe Carr, your partner, is drinking himself into ruin."

But Keene decided to go see what was happening for himself—not as Gerald Keene, half owner of the Hour-Glass Ranch, but as Duro Stone, tenderfoot in a Montgomery Ward wild west outfit.

Dad Kane, desert rat and luckless prospector till now is returning to tell Dustin and Spike Goddard, owners of the Broken Spur ranch, who had grubstaked him, of his discovery of a rich gold mine, and shows samples of the ore. He sees Broken Spur men rustling Hour-glass cattle and protests against it.

Spike Goddard and Sam Dustin, fearing the old prospector may tell others the things he has seen as to the branding of Carr's cattle, plot to get him to show them the location of the mine and then to kill him.

Gerald Keene, dressed in ridiculous cowboy costume, arrived at the Hour-glass ranch and is hired as a cowboy by Joe Carr. The impersonation of a tenderfoot is successful, and he is accepted as such by the other occupants of the bunkhouse.

Proof of Dustin's cattle stealing activities was accidentally discovered by Stone, who accompanied by Edith Carr was riding fence a long way from the Hour-glass ranch house.

(Now Go On With The Story)

At the sound of hoof-beats on the trail, man and girl looked up.

"Hullo," he said. "Here comes some one . . ."

She gave a quick glance at the on-coming horse, a towering black, and turned a pretty shoulder.

"It's no one I want to see," she said coolly. It's the man I was thinking about in connection with that stolen cow. It's Mr. Dustin of the Broken Spur."

The black shouldered through the tangle by the pool and rushed the water, and the rider caught sight of the two above him. The next moment he jerked his horse back on his haunches, knelt him out of the pool and forced him through the brush to Edith's side.

"I'm glad to see you, Edith. . . ." He grinned at her. . . . "You're out early, aren't you? . . ." His quizzical glance took in Stone, sitting awkwardly in his saddle, looking straight ahead of him into space. "I gun-muzzle dropped into line with his hip. Even a 'store gun' can hit at seven feet.

"If you try that," said Stone grimly "I'll sure plug you dead center, see your father's hauled posts and wire down here to fence Soda Springs. Sorry, but I can't allow that till the courts have decided. . . ."

"Till they have decided, the Springs are ours," she said hotly. "I fear I've seen too much. . . ." She nodded at the dun cow and the calf. "It just happens that I can swear to that cow in any court of law."

"Yes? Well? Courts are pretty expensive amusements for the Hour-glass. It'll only need a little sense to straighten this mess out. It needs a judge and twelve jurors to take the Soda Springs away from your father. A justice of the peace or a priest can give them back. . . . In five minutes, if you say the word. . . ."

For fully a minute she did not understand what he meant. Then her face went white under its tan and her head flung high. Her red lips had paled and her eyes seemed to emit little sparks as she turned to Stone.

"Did you hear that, Mr. Stone?" she called. There was a fighting edge to her voice that thrilled Duro to his inmost fiber. "Mr. Dustin, if I have not misunderstood him, has offered to withdraw his suit to take from us what we own. . . . These Springs. He will do this if I go before a justice of the peace or a priest and become one of his women. A legal one, I understand. I feel I need some advice. You are disinterested. What shall I tell him?"

Dustin, appalled, uttered a hot oath. He had thought she would at least take the matter under consideration. He regarded Stone no more than one of the ponies but he felt ashamed. Edith's words, her manner, her whole demeanor cut him like knives.

Stone's face was impassive. No one would ever have guessed that under that exterior his blood was leaping like molten lava. God, how this girl could fight. What a wife she would some day make! . . .

"You see," she said, "he would only offer that to get what he can never get but by purchase. . . . A wife. No sane person would tie their life to him except for gain. He has one establishment in Sepulveda. He. . . ."

"Oh, here! . . ." Stone raised a hand. "It's not my business, Miss Edith. . . ."

"By God! You and she have made it yours," shouted Dustin. The last vestige of self-control gave way and the dam burst "Marry you? Yes, I did offer it. I'm a fool. I don't have to marry you, you red-headed fire-brand. You'll be glad enough some day to have any man give you his name. Don't forget that when you put your fool of a father in the County Poorhouse. . . . You didn't like to have me tie my horse to the Hour-glass tie-rack but you can traipse over the hills with any bit of human tumble-weed that turns up dressed from a catalogue. No wonder people talk about you. . . ."

He got no further. Stone flung out of saddle and in one movement his iron grip closed on Dustin's off-foot. The Household Cavalry in London streets know that grip. Cleverly used, it can dismount any horseman who ever sat in saddle, provided only that he is unprepared.

Dustin was totally unprepared. There is but one guard for that clutch. The rider must let his gripped leg go loose. He must let it swing up and over the horse's back. He must pivot on his other foot. There is no real guard. There is a counter-attack. . . . The rider swings back into saddle and his free foot drives down like a pile-driver on the defenseless head of his attacker. But Dustin did not know this. He struggled and his own weight added to his catastrophe. Stone heaved at his ankle, raised it chin-high, and the next moment Dustin, with a queer yell that almost strangled him, was rolling in the deepest part of the pool with his horse atop, while Stone, his eyes alight, watched him from the bank.

"Sorry I had to do it," he said. "You just asked for it when you spoke to Miss Edith like that. . . . No, you don't!"

Dustin's hand stopped midway to his holster as Stone's nickel-plated hands up."

Dustin's hands went high in air and the dripping pony struggled to the bank, where Edith sat holding her head in both hands. It had all happened so quickly that she had not comprehended.

"Come on out o' your sea-foam, you . . . you bloomin' Venus," said Stone. "You ain't much to look at right now."

As Dustin struggled up the slippery bank, Stone snatched the gun from the wet holster and flung it back into the pool. Then he struck the black on the haunch with his hat and sent him at a gallop into the scrub.

"You can walk home and cool your caliente cabeza (hot head)," he said. "Come on, Miss Edith. Let's head for home."

She drove her spurs in to the rowel-seats and sent her astonished pony at a gallop through the scrub and waited for him at the entrance to the open trail.

"You've made a deadly enemy," she said breathlessly. "You must never forget that man. He is more deadly than a rattlesnake. . . ."

"Uh hur. . . ." He was obviously inattentive and it angered her. "Mind what I'm sayin'," she snapped. "That man will kill you if he gets a chance."

"He won't have a chance," he said casually. "I was just wonderin' . . ."

Again she drove in her spurs and took the gallop and the two swept in in a glorious rush to the home corrals of the Hour-glass.

Once inside the ranch-house, Edith must have told a rather complete story, for Crewe tackled Stone when they were alone by the water-trough in the corral that evening.

"Son," said Crewe, "you're sure as green as hell, but the Hour-glass owes you a debt for what you did this afternoon to that damned cur, Dustin. Edith told her father and me. . . ."

"Did she say anything about that cow and calf that started the mess?" "Sure she did. How did they start it?"

"That man Dustin had just done brandin' 'em," said the amateur puncher. "When his horse come out o' the water I noticed that the cinch ring was all newly blackened by fire. He'd been usin' that to change the brands."

"Huh. That's queer. You . . . a amateur at that. . . . All right. . . . But you take it from me. . . . Look out for Sam Dustin. He'll get you if he kin."

"Sure," said Duro Stone. "That's fair. If he can. Let it go at that."

CHAPTER VI.

Frank Crewe, coming out of his room, stood looking over the wide range behind the ranch-house of the Hour-glass. He was disturbed over what Stone had told him the night before and he had thought much about this new employee. Stone was apparently honest. He was a glutton for work and there was something likable about him. But Crewe was suspicious at heart in all matters affecting the Hour-glass. He sighted Lee heading for the kitchen and halted him.

"Send that new man Stone to me," he said.

The bunk-house took the word and presently Duro shot out of the open door like a pea from its pod. Crewe grinned amiably at him.

"Look a-here, Stone," he said. "I've forgot all that you told me last night. I ain't too durned good to remember much sometimes. I'm goin' to forget it till we can find some proof. Mind you, I don't expect you to find any proof but I just dassent start a civil war on the range unless and until I got my gun loaded. Old man Carr is too old to pick a row with this man Dustin even over Edith. You see that? We're tryin' to locate this man Keene, who owns the other half of the Hour-glass. Till we find him, we can't do much but watch and wait. I'm tellin' you this so you'll see right where we stand. If you feel like keepin' on here at the Hour-glass, we want you. We want all men who'll be loyal to their suit. That's about all, I reckon."

He strode away to his breakfast and Duro wandered back to the bunk-house.

"Loyal to his suit. . . . That was the word. He reflected that he had come here to the Hour-glass to find out what was wrong and he was finding out with a vengeance. It was

VICKS PLAN FOR BETTER CONTROL OF COLDS

Dustin . . . ! All Dustin! But so far he could show no proof. There was no ground yet for any action. He must wait.

In the meantime there was . . . Edith.

That experience over by Soda Springs had given her a confidence in the new employee that she was sure was not misplaced. She accepted him, since that day, at his face value and sometimes she flushed at the thought that she awoke to the fact that she seemed to have always known him. She liked him, too. True, he was densely ignorant of all the ranch life that she knew; true, at twenty-five he had no settled business; he had admitted that to her, but . . . Oh, well! She stopped her analysis at his point and went for her pony.

The bunk-house accepted Stone frankly . . . yet wondered at him. Technically, he was as ignorant of ranch life as any tenderfoot. Yet he could ride . . . after a fashion (they never suspected the trouble it was to appear awkward) and they grinned a little at Edith's frankly proffered friendship.

"You'll be wantin' a permanent mount," said Crewe. "Better take that big Isabella horse in the far corral. If you take time to gentle him, he'll make you a good mount."

Stone knew and had coveted that horse, a half-bred, bigger than most and made of steel and whalebone. Crewe watched his new hand catch his newer horse and laughed a little at his awkwardness.

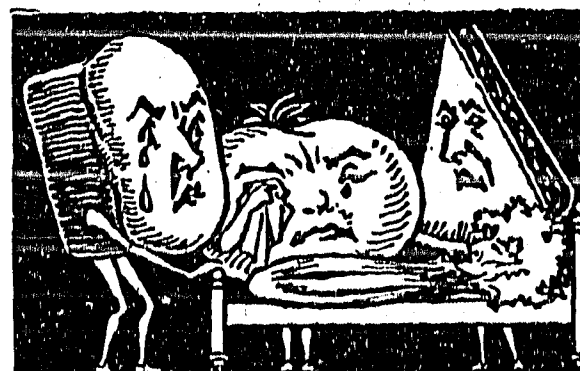

It took him days to master that horse, for months of idleness had filled him with an equine devil and he knew no master. When Duro Stone shot out of saddle to land twenty feet away on feet and hands, the bunk-house laughed. . . . All but Red Thom, who screwed an inquiring eye as the limp figure that rolled away like a shot rabbit as the horse fell.

According To Sight

According to experiments conducted by Prof. Francis B. Sumner, color-changing fish depend on their sight to change their colors. When the upper portion of the fish eye was shaded, they assumed a darker shade, while they turned lighter when the lower part of the eye was darkened.

There was a good attendance at the December meeting of Creston Valley Post Canadian Legion on Tuesday, with President John Bird in the chair. It was announced that drawing for prizes in connection with the raffle to provide Christmas hampers would take place in the Grand Theatre on Saturday, December 22nd, by kind permission of C. O. Rodgers. A hearty vote of thanks was extended to the Ladies' Auxiliary for their splendid work in distributing poppies, and serving supper at the Armistice ball. The ball yielded a profit of $57.80 after all expenses had been met. It was decided to make a contribution to a memorial to J. A. Gibbs, late president and secretary of Cranbrook Legion, and for many years an active worker in the interests of ex-service men. Notice of motion was given to change the date of the annual election of officers from April to the first meeting in 1935.
