"Good Brothers We"
Who love B. C."

Here's to the girl the sweetheart girl,
The girl of our ardent youth,
She was a Queen and I a King
The day we trothed with golden ring,
In the bygone days forsooth.
Here's to the girl the heart-true girl,
The girl that is pledged for life,
The girl who cheers thro' rain and shine,
Who fights along life's battle line,
A truehearl, lover and wife.
Here's to the girl, the old old girl
The only girl we've got,
The only girl we ever had,
The girl we took for good or bad
In the matrimonial lot.
Here's to the girl the B. C. girl,
Of bountiful virgin wealth,
Who dowers all with lavish hand
From stores of mountain, sea and land,
We drink to thy bonnie health.

Mrs. R. Dowdell and family left for Victoria last Saturday. Dick is now a batchelor.

The Australian S. S. Barama, is calling at Union Wharf this week.

Seattle, May 5—(Special)—Not less than twenty five men deserted from the Pacific squadron before it started last week for San Francisco. A few of the men have been recaptured by the police, but most of them will get clear away.

The City of Nanaimo had to run into Deep Bay for shelter Thursday.

Valley Notes

Mr. Harry Martin has purchased two tons of powder for blowing stumps. He must intend clearing some land.

The C. T. and M. I. S. met on Friday night last and initiated three new members, Come and join and enjoy yourselves.

Mr. N. B. Pollock took a sudden departure for Regina where he has received a Government position.

The Rev. Mr. Menzie has gone to Victoria on business, while Mr. T. J. Barren is filling his place at Sandwick, and Mr. Mumdell at Courtenay.

Mr. G. Bristow of Little River was the guest of Mr. Lloyd Dunham on Saturday night and Sunday.

Mr. Bennet has brought his automobile to the valley and causes quite an exitement throughout the district.

The Government is busy repairing the road between Courtenay and Cumberland.

Mr. Palmer, of Chemainus visited Courtenay with his auto last week.

Mr. Richard Plews is pretty busy clearing up his property on Wall Street extension.

Mr. William Urquhart is able to be around again after his illness.

Messrs Creech and Crocket have installed a new team in their livery business.

Soon the wedding bells will ring.

THE FRIGHTSOME "AUTOMOBILE."

No less than four of these creatures were loose on the Valley roads last Saturday—puffing and screeching and stinking—to the dismay of women and horses. Like other wild beasts, it seems to be impossible to shut them altogether out of this new country as is done in more civilized parts of the Dominion; so the next best thing would probably be to corral a "billie" and make him sweep the roads every day for a month, till the horses got used to him. Failing this, the vexed residents will undoubtedly find some other means of protection.

FAREWELL

On Wednesday 6, the Choir of Holy Trinity Church gave a farewell evening, in honor of one of the members, Miss Madge Dowdall, who left on Saturday for Victoria, where she will reside in future. Progressive whist was played until a late hour. Refreshments were served and all spent an enjoyable evening.

The Saltpeter Men.

The saltpeter man of the first half of the seventeenth century was hated even more, if that be possible, than the "window peeper" of those more recent days when light was subject to heavy taxation. Before the importation of saltpeter from abroad as an important ingredient in the manufacture of gunpowder it was a crown monopoly, and agents, popularly known as saltpeter men, were sent all over the country to seek for it in stables, pigeon cots, pigsties and indeed in almost all other places the soil of which was supposed to be impregnated with animal matter. The injury these men did and the irritation they caused by digging up floors and pulling down fences were great. No householder was free from their visits, which were rendered especially odious from their being empowered to impress carts and horses for the purpose of carrying away the unclean and the utensils employed in its manufacture. This galling domestic tyranny, though, of course not to be compared with things of far greater moment, was no doubt one of the factors in the mutual bitterness which made the civil war possible. The monopoly was put an end to by parliament in 1656.—London Athenaeum.

Russian Fairy Tales.

A book of fairy tales was once the cause of the expulsion and consequent ruin of 175 persons at Poltava. A pupil at one of the state schools there was caught in the act of reading this book of fairy tales, which had been prohibited by the censor on the ground that certain of the tales might be applied to Russian conditions and Russian politics. The boy explained that the caretaker of the school buildings had lent him the book. The principal of the school reported the caretaker to the police, and on the ground of this denunciation the offender was sent to Siberia.

The officials of the institution, together with several parents of pupils, were so indignant at the conduct of the principal that they drew up a protest describing his denunciation as a mean and despicable act. The only consequence was that the officials lost their posts and, together with the residents who had signed the protest, were expelled from the province of Poltava for three years. The order of expulsion was extended to all the relatives of the offenders, so that 175 persons were sentenced to this severe punishment on account of a book of fairy tales which in other countries is given to every child to read.

Whittier's Simple Life.

If Whittier had cared for money or society, he could have had his own way in Boston, but he preferred the simple life to be found out of town. What he might have regarded as a state of wealth did not overtake him until his sixtieth year, when he received $10,000 for the first edition of "Snowbound" and it was ten years later before he yielded to the wish of Bostonians to do him honor. Here was a man born and reared in hard circumstances, who made slippers at a profit of 8 cents a pair while he enjoyed his brief term at Haverhill academy, who had little liking for social or academic pursuits, who spent more of his time away from the so called literary centers, and yet who lived to enjoy such fame as has come to not more than a dozen other New Englanders. The secret of his rare success is not hard to find. He was the poet and evangel of a great liberal era. It was his principles as much as his verses that made Whittier famous and influential.—Washington Times.

along that he wouldn't be much of a comfort to his friends afterward if that gun did land on him.

Still, he wasn't so awful dead, for as we jumped for the horses he kind of hitched himself to the rock, and, laying the rifle across it and working the lever with his left hand, he sent a hole plumb through my hat.

"Bully boy!" says I. I snapped at him and smashed the lock of his rifle to flinders. Then of course he was our meat.

As we rode up to him my pard held dead on him. The Injun stood up straight and tall and looked us square in the eye. Say, he was a man, I tell you, redskin or no redskin! The courage just stuck out on him as he stood there waiting to pass in his checks.

My pardner threw the muzzle of his gun up. "D—n it!" says he. "I can't do it. He's game from the heart out. But the Lord have mercy on his sinful soul if he and I run foul of each other on the prairie again!"

Then we shacked along down to Johnson's and had breakfast.

"What became of Frosthead and his gang?" Oh, they sent out a regiment or two and gathered him in—'bout twenty-five soldiers to an Injun. No, no harm was done. Me and my pard were the only ones that bucked up against them. Chuck out a cigarette, Kid; my lungs ache for want of a smoke.

CHAPTER II.

"HOW did I come to get myself disliked down at the Chanta Seechee? Well, I'll tell you," said Reddy, the cow puncher. "The play came up like this. First they made the Chanta Seechee into a stock company; then the stock company put all their brains in one think, and says they, 'We'll make this man Jones superintendent, and the ranch is all right at once.' So out comes Jones from Boston, Mass., and what he didn't know about running a ranch was common talk in the country, but what he knew about running a ranch was too much for one man to carry around. He wasn't a bad hearted feller in some ways, yet on the whole he felt it was an honor to a looking glass to have the pleasure of reflecting him. Looking glass? I should say he had! And a bureau and a bootblacking jigger and a feather bed and curtains and truck in his room. Strange fellers used to open their eyes when they saw that room. 'Hello-o-o!' they'd say. 'Whose little birdie have we here?' And other remarks that hurt our feelings considerable. Jonesy, he said the fellers were a rank lot of barbarians. He said it to old Neighbor Case's face, and he and the old man came together like a pair of hens, for Jonesy had sand in spite of his faults. That was a fight worth traveling to see. They covered at least an acre of ground; they tore the air with upper swats and cross swipes; they hollered, they jumped and they pitched, and when the difficulty was adjusted we found that Jonesy's coat was painfully ripped up the back and Neighbor Case had lost his false teeth. One crowd of fellers patted Jones on the back and said, 'Never mind your coat, old horse; you've licked a man twice your age,' and the other comforted Neighbor, saying, 'Never mind, Case, you can ease your mind by thinking how you headed up that rooster and he fifty pounds lighter than you.'

"Jonesy put on airs after that. He felt he was a hard citizen. And then he had the misfortune to speak harshly to Arizona Jenkins when Old Dry Belt was in liquor. Then he got roped and dragged through the slough. He cried like a baby while I helped him scrape the mud off, but not because he was scared! No, sir! That little runt was full of blood and murder.

"'You mark me now, Red,' says he, the tears making bad land water courses through the mud on his cheeks. 'I shall fire upon that man the first time I see him. Will you lend me your revolver?'

"'Lord, Jones, see here,' says I. 'Don't you go making any such onery [illegible] play as that. Keep his wages until he apologizes. Put something harmful in his grub; but, as you have respect for the Almighty's handiwork as represented by your person, don't pull a gun on Arizona Jenkins. That's the one thing he won't take from nobody.'

"'D-d-darn him!' snivels Jonesy. 'I ain't afraid o-o-of him.' And the strange fact is that he wasn't. Well, I saw he was in such a taking that he might do something foolish and get hurt, so I goes to Arizona, and says I, 'You ought to apologize to Jones.' What Zony replied ain't worth repeating. 'And you along with him,' he winds up.

"'Now, ain't that childish?' I says. 'A six footer like you that can shoot straight with either hand and yet ain't generous enough to ease the feelings of a poor little devil that's fair busting with shame!'

"'Well, what did he want to tell me to shut up my mouth for?' cried Old Dry Belt. 'Men have died of less than that.'

"'Aw, shucks, Zony,' I says. 'A great, big man like you oughtn't to come down on a little cuss who's all thumb hand side and left feet.'

"'That be blowed,' says he, only he says it different. 'I'd like to know what business such a sawed off has to come and tell a full grown man like me to shut up his mouth. He'd ought to stay in a little man's place and talk sassy to people his own size. When he comes shooting off his bazoo to a man that could swaller him whole without loosening his collar it's impidence; that's what it is.'

"'Well, as a favor to me?' I says.

"'Well, if you put it in that way—I don't want to be small about it.'

"So Arizona goes up to Jones and sticks out his hand. 'There's my hand, Jones,' he says. 'I'm mighty sorry you told me to shut up my mouth,' says he.

"'So am I,' says Jones heartily, not taking in the sense of the words, but feeling that it was all in good intention. So that was all right, and I stood in with the management in great shape for fixing up the fuss so pleasant. But it didn't last. They say nothing lasts in this world. There's some pretty solid rocks in the Coeur d'Alene, however, and I should like to wait around and see if they don't hold out, but I'll never make it. I've been in too much excitement.

"Well, the next thing after Jonesy got established was that his niece must come out during vacation and pay him a visit. 'Jeerusalem!' thinks I, 'Jonesy's niece!' I had visions of a thin, yaller, sour little piece, with mouse colored hair plastered down on her head and an unkind word for everybody. Jonesy told me about her being in college, and then I stuck a pair of them nose grabber specks on the picture. I can stand most any kind of a man, but if there's anything that makes the tears come to my eyes it's a botch of a woman. I know they may have good qualities and all that, but I don't like 'em, and that's the whole of it. We gave three loud groans when we got the news in the bull pen. And I cussed for ten minutes straight, without repeating myself once, when it so fell out that the members of the board rolled out our way the day the girl had to be sent for, and Jonesy couldn't break loose, and your uncle was elected to take the buckboard and drive twenty miles to the railroad. I didn't mind the going out, but that twenty miles back with Jonesy's niece! Say, I foamed like a soda water bottle when I got into the bull pen and told the boys my luck.

"'Well,' says Kyle Lambert, 'that's what you might expect; your sins have found you out.'

"'No, they ain't; they've caught me at home as usual,' says I. 'Well, I'll give that eastern blossom an idea of the quality of this country, anyhow.' So I togs myself up in the awfullest rig I could find; strapped two ca'tridge belts to me, every hole filled, and a gun in every holster; put candle grease on my mustache and twisted the ends up to my eye winkers; stuck a knife in my hatband and another in my boot; threw a shotgun and a rifle in the buckboard and pulled out quick through the colt pens before Jonesy could get his peeps on to me.

"Well, sir, I was jarred witless when I laid my eyes on that young woman. I'd had my mind made up so thorough as to what she must be that the facts knocked me cold. She was the sweetest, handsomest, healthiest female I ever see. It would make you believe in fairy stories again just to look at her. She was all the things a man ever wanted in this world rolled up in a prize package. Tall, round and soople, limber and springy in her action as a thoroughbred and with something modest yet kind of daring in her face that would remind you of a good, honest boy. Red, white and black were the colors she flew. Hair and eyes black, cheeks and lips red, and the rest of her white. Now, there's a pile of difference in them colors; when you say 'red,' for instance, you ain't cleaned up the subject by a sight. My top knot's red, but that wasn't the color of her cheeks. No; that was a color I never saw before nor since. A rose would look like a tomater alongside of 'em. Then, too, I've seen black eyes so hard and shiny you could cut glass with 'em. And again that wasn't her style. The only way you could get a notion of what them eyes were like would be to look at 'em; you'd remember 'em all right if you did. Seems like the good Lord was kind of careless when he built Jonesy, but when he turned that girl out he played square with the fambly.

"I ain't what you might call a man that's easily disturbed in his mind, but I know I says to myself that first day, 'If I was ten year younger, young lady, they'd never lug you back east again.' Gee, man! There was a time when I'd have pulled the country up by the roots but I'd have had that girl! I notice I don't fall in love so violent as the years roll on. I can squint my eye over the cards now and say, 'Yes, that's a beautiful hand, but I reckon I'd better stay out,' and lay 'em down without a sigh, whereas when I was a young feller if I had three aces in sight I'd raise the rest of the gathering right out of their foot leather—or get caught at it. Usually I got caught at it, for a man couldn't run the mint long with the kind of luck I have.

"Well, I was plumb disgusted with the fool way I'd rigged myself up, but fortunately for me, Darragh, the station man, came out with the girl 'There's Reddy, from your ranch, now ma'am,' says he, and when he caught sight of me: 'What's the matter, Red? Are the Injuns up?'

"Darragh was a serious Irishman, and that's the mournfulest thing on top of the globe, and, besides, he believed anything you'd tell him. There ain't any George Washington strain in my stock, so I proceeded to get out of trouble.

"'They ain't up exactly,' says I, 'but it looked as if they were a leetle on the rise, and, being as I had a lady to look out for, I thought I'd play safe.'

"The color kind of went out of the girl's cheeks. Eastern folks are scandalous afraid of Injuns.

"'Perhaps I'd better not start?' says she.

"'Don't you be scart, miss,' says Darragh. 'You're all right as long as you're with Red—he's the toughest proposition we've got in this part of the country.'

"'I'm obliged to you, Darragh,' says I. He meant well, but hell's full of them people. I'd have given a month's wages for one lick at him.

"I stepped up to her, with my hat in my hand. 'Miss Andree,' says I (she was Jonesy's sister's child), 'if you come along with me I'll guarantee you a safe journey. If any harm reaches you it will be after one of the liveliest times in the history of the territory.'

"At this she laughed. 'Very well,' says she, 'I'll chance it, Mr. Red.'

"'His name ain't Red,' puts in Darragh, solemn. 'His name's Saunders. We call him Red because of his hair.'

"'I'm sure I beg your pardon,' says Miss Loys, all of a fluster.

"'That's all right, ma'am. No damage done at all,' says I. 'It's useless for me to try to conceal the fact that my hair is a little on the auburn. You mustn't mind what Darragh says. We've had a good deal of hot weather lately and his brains have gone wrong. Now hop in and we'll touch the breeze.' So I piled her trunk in, and away we flew.

"Bud and Dandy were a corking little team. They'd run the whole distance from the railway to the ranch if you'd let 'em—and I never interfered. A straight line and the keen jump hits me all right when I'm going some place, although I can loaf with the next man on occasion. So we missed most of the gulleys.

"The ponies were snorting and pulling grass, the buckboard bouncing behind 'em like a rubber ball, and we were crowding into the teeth of the northwest wind, which made it seem as if we were traveling 100 per cent better than a Dutch clock would show.

Base Ball Match

The first game of the season held by the Comox-Atlin baseball league was played at Cumberland on Sunday last, between the Union Bay team and Cumberland "Mixtures", and resulted in Union Bay getting a bad beating, score 8 to 1 in favor of Cumberland. The game started at about half past two and was largely attended, quite a number of people from the wharf came up with the players to witness the game. The next match will be played at Union Bay next Sunday. The train will be free for those wishing to go to see the game, and will start from the usual place at 12:30 p. m. returning at 7:30 in the evening. The "mixtures" must be all right judging from the way they played on Sunday, and the U. B's. will have to get a move on to redeem themselves. Hurrah for the "Mixtures"

The Battle on Parliament Hill, Ottawa.

We quote the following from the Ottawa free Press April 29th, 1908

The clan MacIntyre took the warpath last Wednesday afternoon and smoth the opposition. Their battle plan had more of strategy in it than the whirlwind rush that spelt victory for Prince Charlie's Highlanders at Preston Pans, but it was quite as effective. Mr. G. H. Macintyre [South Perth] was the first in the fray, by pre-arrangement, the object of his attack being the amendment moved last Monday by Mr Monk, on motion to go into supply, which proposes to abolish paying of bonuses to booking agents of immigrants, and which was made the basis of a general assault on the Governments' immigration policy. Mr. Macintyre made a direct frontal attack on the Opposition, dash and skill characterizing his efforts. Mr. W. MacIntyre of Strathcona ably secondey his colleague. Between them the MacIntyres were able to show that Opposition had again repeated the error they have so often fallen into this session of taking up an untenable position with the ramparts that give way on the slightest impact with facts.

Abe & Ito,

Calcutta, May 5.—An examination of thirty prisoners arrested yesterday confrim the gravity of the bomb conspiracy. Some of those in the hands of the police deny complicity in the affair, while others made startling admissions regarding the intentions of the organization against public officials and of actual attempts at the use of bombs which however, proved unsuccessful.

One man said he traveled all over India in connection with the movement, which he described as a great revolutionary campaign against the Government. The prisoners were remanded.

Trouble occured the other day, between some whites and Chinese, with the result that a white man was knocked out with a blow from a bottle. Fortunately events of this nature are very rare in Cumberland.
