TUESDAY, MAR. 30, 1909.

Seattle, Wash., March 28.—When Edward Payson Weston, the greatest walker the world has ever known, left New York City on his birthday, March 1st, it will be to come directly to the Alaska-Yukon Pacific Exposition in Seattle.

Although seventy years old on the day given, Weston declares that he is in as fine fettle and as fit for a record breaking walk as he was when in 1907 he walked from Portland, Maine, to Chicago in 25 days, covering the same route in the same time that he covered it forty years before when he made the world's longest walk.

It is 4,000 miles from New York City to the Exposition grounds in Seattle, but Weston declares that he will do the distance handily in 100 days. In England, in his younger days he defeated all comers by walking 5,000 miles in the same.

It has been Weston's desire to view the big World's fair in the Northwest ever since it was announced and as he had long planned a lecture tour he has decided to combine the two ideas and see the exposition, profitably speaking on physical culture in the cities through which he will pass.

The Exposition opens in Seattle on June 1. Weston will proceed by the northern route, which should bring him to the Exposition city during the early part of July.

ARTICLES OF AGREEMENT.

Entered into this day, March 29th, 1909 by the undersigned do hereby agree:—

6.—Referee to be chosen from the ringside.

7.—C. Segrave chosen as stake holder.

8.—Either party failing to agree to said articles to forfeit said $25.

9.—Contest to take place in Cumberland Hall, on Monday evening, April 19th 1909.

Is it not a little peculiar that while the smallest battleship in the navy is named after the biggest State, the biggest battleship just launched is named after the next to the smallest State? It does seem, considering the cost, that we might at least get a little proportion between the different States and their naval namesakes.—Exchange.

There is a newspaper—published in the English language of course—at Bangalore, in British India, and it sheds this light on the Panama question:

"Panama is one of the nine States in the District of Columbia, which is the seat of the United States Government provided by the State of Maryland."

The "Pay Streak," which is to be the amusement street of the Alaska-Pacific Yukon Exposition is three quarters of a mile long, yet there were five applications for every foot on it which enabled the Directors to select only the very best attractions. The fair opens in Seattle June 1.

GRAFTING.

A Lesson In Horticulture With One Serious Omission.

My neighbor Brown came to the garden fence and said:

"How do you do your grafting?"

"My grafting?" said I.

"Yes—grafting apple trees. I want to try it myself."

"Oh!" I exclaimed. "Yes, yes! Well, in the first place, I begin by lying—that is, I lie in bed to think the whole thing out in every detail. I watch my opportunity, and on the first fine day I steal a few hours from my business. Then I borrow a saw—a steel one—and with it I rob the tree upon which I want to graft of some of its larger branches. This I try to do in such a way that the loss of the branches will not be noticed. Those limbs should not be left lying that is, lying on the ground. They are unsightly and may attract the attention of passersby. They should be hustled behind the lattice-work screen at once. So far so good. Now, let me see—oh, yes! I rob another tree of a few twigs having buds on them and insert them in the ends of the sawed branches on the tree. Then I take some beeswax and tallow and melt them together. This must be thoroughly mixed. Work it for all you're worth to make it pliable. Finally with this I try to hide all appearance of the graft, from sunlight and air, and there you are—the job is done."

"I see," said Brown, "and I think I'm foxy enough to do the trick the first time trying. Many thanks."

Shortly after I heard Brown telling his wife how I explained the process. This is the way he had it:

"First," he says, "you must be a [illegible] and steal a half day from the company's time; then you steal a saw; then you defraud the tree of some branches, which you must hide, so nobody will get on; then you rob somebody's tree of twigs, put them in the [illegible] and cover your tracks with beeswax and tallow."

Said Brown's wife: "I don't think that man can be trusted. He has two kinds of grafting mixed, and, besides, he didn't tell you where to steal the apple trees."

MYSTERY OF THOUGHT.

Try to Concentrate Your Mind on One Theme For Five Minutes.

A St. Louis physician who has given much attention to the study of mental disease in its various phases, though, as he says himself, not enough to qualify as an alienist, has a curious theory with regard to concentration of thought on any particular subject.

His idea is that no human can so fix his mind on any special topic as to avoid even for a moment the errant thoughts that come and go, not only without our volition, but in spite of our most earnest efforts at mental application.

He goes so far as to maintain that nobody but a monomaniac can think of one subject continuously for five minutes and even believes that the ability to do so is one evidence of something wrong in the upper story.

"I once heard the subject discussed by a party of intelligent men, and one of the number was so confident of his ability to think of one subject an indefinite length of time that he roused his opponents to the point of making a test.

"'If you can repeat the Lord's Prayer and then declare upon your word of honor that you have not thought of anything else while doing it, I'll make you a present of a horse and saddle and bridle.'

"The confident one took up the challenge and in order to fix his mind requested the company to keep still until he got through. Then, with frowning brows and tightly drawn face, he began aloud and went slowly and apparently with the most determined attention straight through the prayer.

"After he said 'amen' and opened his eyes he was asked how he had got along with his task.

"'It's a failure, gentlemen. I didn't get to the end of 'hallowed be thy name' before I wondered what kind of a horse it was going to be, and before I reached 'thy will be done' I thought about black saddles and white saddles and about the horse again; then of the bridle and the rein, whether they would be of light or dark leather; then of old Pete, a horse my father had and how he threw me over his head when I switched him with a locust thorn branch; then of a mare that kicked old Pete in the ribs while they were in the pasture together and left the imprint of both shoes on his side, and before I reached 'amen' I thought of a drove of wild horses that used to be out on the plains and what a pile of money a man would make by rounding them all up and selling them for farm horses.

"'I did think I could fix my mind on one thing for awhile, but when I tried my brains seemed to scatter like an old fashioned shotgun.'"

An Eccentric Will.

In the year 1736 a gentleman living in England named Samuel Baldwyn died after a somewhat unhappy married life. By his will Mr Baldwyn left his property to his young wife on the condition that she should from time to time dance upon his grave.

The motive for this strange request was evident when the instructions for his interment were read. Mr. Baldwyn desired that his remains should be taken by boat to the Needles and then cast in the sea. This singular wish enabled him to revenge himself on his wife for past disagreements, and the widow lost the property, as she could not fulfill the conditions of her husband's bequest.

The Word "Ogre."

Old fashioned etymologists used to say that the word "ogre" commemorated the sufferings of Europe during the ninth and tenth centuries at the hands of the ravaging "Oigours," or Huns. This derivation, however, is now abandoned. "Ogre," which reached the French language by way of Italian and Spanish, is really Orcus, the Latin hell, afterward the god of the underworld. In Romanesque folklore this god became a shaggy, black, man devouring monster, with a particular taste for lost babes in the wood.

One View of the Kiss.

The olfactory kiss is Mongolian. The nutritive affair is European. The Mongolian kiss is with the nose. The European kiss is with the mouth.

The Mongolian kiss indicates that the party sniffed would be an agreeable prey. The European variety indicates that the party embraced would make a delectable meal.

They are but the different forms of the same instinct of preservation—the give and take of wild beasts.—Exchange.

Art of the Superior Smile.

The superior smile is a useful accomplishment for any young man. It is taught in vogue at the universities, where it may be studied at its best on young Don. Many men who learn nothing else at the universities learn this art and find it uncommonly useful in after life. It is an excellent cover for a naked mind and should be cultivated after by parliamentary candidates.—Oxford Varsity.

Flooring Papa.

Five-year-old Tommy was being put through a test in numbers before the admiring family one day at dinner. Finally papa asked him the question that had proved the Waterloo of the older children in past years.

"Now, Tommy," said papa, "how many are two apples and three pears?"

"Five fruits!" promptly answered Tommy.—Delineator.

We exaggerate misfortune and happiness alike. We are never either so wretched or so happy as we say we are.—Balzac.

"And you say the idiot of a poacher told you that you had an extravagant taste of a father?"

"That's what he meant."

"But what did he say?"

"He said it was criminal folly to waste money on the education of such a chump as I am."

THE HUMAN ENGINE.

To Operate This Masterpiece Air Is the First Necessity.

Of all the engines cunningly devised by man not one can equal that masterpiece of construction, the engine of the human frame. To run that engine all is the first necessity. Construct it how you will, the greater part of the energy which feeds a power plant is lost before it reaches the applying machine. The body only has the power of using energy really economically and efficiently. Its food is its fuel. To be available all the constituents of that food must be burned, producing heat and power. For that burning the oxygen of the air is essential. Equally true is it that nitrogen must be present to prevent the rapid combustion which would take place in oxygen alone. But, whether the combustion be fast or slow, the action is the same. The body burns the carbon and hydrogen of its food and gives out the oxides of those substances, carbon dioxide (carbon acid gas) and hydrogen oxide (water). The water that is formed within the body by the burning of hydrogen is of comparatively slight importance in a consideration of the vital questions of the effect of city air upon the individual, but the other factor, the carbon dioxide formed in the body, is of direct importance.—Hollis Godfrey in Atlantic.

FOES OF THE LEVEES.

Sources of Danger to the Artificial Banks Along the Mississippi.

"People who know little about our system of levees, the artificial banks built to confine the flood waters that pour into the Mississippi, no doubt [illegible] that the heavy rains are the only enemy with which the levees have to contend," said a Baton Rouge man.

"On the contrary, the levees, both during times of flood and low water, are subject to the incessant attacks of living foes, the destructive work of which [illegible] Those foes are alligators, turtles, muskrats, field rats, fresh water terrapin and crawfish. Of all these burrowers that prey on the levees, excavating within them goodly chambers or tunnels, the crawfish do the most damage, with the turtles and terrapins a good second. The harm done by the alligators is comparatively small.

"In repairing the banks crawfish holes are often found of immense size. It is these hollow spaces that in time of freshets cause a caving in and break of the levees, which of course bring on an inundation of all the adjacent country. The worst part of the business is that no way of exterminating these pests has yet been found, and the only thing to be done is to try to keep them away from the banks as much as possible."

It is regarded as probable that an increase in the salary for the position will be announced at the same time as the appointment of Mr. McInnes is made.

SPORTING SPARKLETS

Hugh McIntosh, the Sydney fight promoter, has slightly increased his offer for a fight between Jefferies and Johnson. He now offers to put up a $50,000 purse run the contest, pay all expenses and give the contestants 50 per cent. of the receipts. this last item would be an important one.

Abe Attell, the world's champion featherweight, knocked George Pierce cuckoo, out in the sixth round of a go schedule for fifteen stanzas. Then Abe picked up his victim and carried him to a corner. When Pierce recovered he burst into tears, and it was thirty minutes before the flood ceased. Who shall now say that a pug is not possessed of sentiment?

"They all look alike to me," says Jack Johnson. A lot of the others must be color blind.

SERVANTS' SIGN LANGUAGE.

Peculiarities of Employers and Tourists Noted by Marks.

Servants and hotel porters in many cities of Europe have a sign language as complete as that of the American tramp.

"It is not generally known," said a courier, "that servants are in the habit of giving useful tips to their successors and to the man who delivers the groceries and meat by marks on the back entrance. In most of the big Paris flats and apartments, such as Americans like to take for the season the back door is literally covered with barely perceptible signs which nobody but the initiated can understand.

"A freshly engaged domestic knows exactly what to expect, whether his masters are easy or hard to please, whether it is 'monsieur' or 'madame' who is hard to get along with. Other signs tell whether the food is good or bad, whether the work is difficult or not, etc.

"The boy from the grocer's or the baker's or the butcher's will also be informed whether he can expect a big tip or not.

"The system is even more developed among hotel servants. A family arriving from Italy, after having refused to give what some Italian porter considered a sufficient tip, will have the fact advertised in every hotel he visits in Switzerland or France. A little mark on the trunk is all that is needed."—Philadelphia Ledger.

AMERICAN FRENCH.

The Struggles of a New Yorker in a Paris Restaurant.

He gazed complacently at the gay labels on his trunks. "Funny how you hear in Paris"—so he continued his reminiscences of travel—"onr thin American accent struggling with the sonorous French tongue. You hear queer mistakes, too—no end of 'em. The queerest I came across was made by a New York man.

"This tourist at the Chatham wanted to say, 'I am hungry.' He should have said, 'J'ai faim.' Then the waiter would have brought him a meal at once. What he did say was:

"'Je suis fameux, garcon.' He said there, 'I'm famous, waiter.' And the waiter, impressed, bowed and smiled. 'Congratulations, sir.'

"No food came. He must have made an error, so he tried again:

"'Garcon, j'ai une femme.' That meant he had a wife. The waiter said he was sure she was a winner.

"Rather red now, he took a third dive:

"'Je suis femme.' This time the New Yorker said he was a woman.

"'And madam dresses in this way for comfort's sake?' the waiter inquired, with a gallant smile.

"Chuck It, Duke!"

While the Duke of Connaught was in Cairo he went for a stroll one morning, and on his way back to his quarters he came face to face with an old Englishman wearing the ribbon of the Indian mutiny on his breast. The duke stopped and spoke to the man about his military service for some little time. Presently the man said, not knowing, of course, to whom he was speaking, "Are you in the army yourself, then, sir?" The duke smiled and admitted that he was. "Getting on all right?" was the next question. The duke smiled again and said that he had not very much to grumble at, on the whole, though perhaps he was not doing quite so well as he could wish. "No, and you never will, my boy," was the surprising retort of the veteran. "What you want in the army today is either brains or a tremendous amount of influence behind you. You may take my tip, old chap, and chuck it!"—London T. P. O.

Fencing With Umbrellas.

Recently a French publication printed a picture of some American girls fencing with umbrellas and stated that they were trying to acquire thus the necessary skill and assurance to parry, with a simple gesture, an attack of Apaches.

It also stated that this sport was not born in America; that for several years in France a noted fencing mistress, Mme. Guillemot, at the same time that she taught fencing with the sword for hygienic reasons and for personal defense, also taught her pupils to "play" with the umbrella.

The article finishes by saying that it is certainly "piquant" that this modern application of an ancient sport was taught by a Parisienne long before America claimed the original idea.

Spirit of the Open Life.

The great charm of scenery and the country life is the moral feeling that seems to pervade it. This has prevailed through all English literature from Chaucer to Wordsworth and down to our own times. It has cast its spell over almost all of our Canadian poets, who have wooed nature in her most secret haunts and studied her minutest caprices.—Montreal Witness.

R. Webster, Manager.

A fatal accident occured at Extension mines yesterday where by Oscar Masset, a Belgian was instantly killed. Masset was a digger and was working in the face when some top coal came away upon him. The unfortunate man was caught on the head and almost instantly killed.

Masset was well known in the district having worked at most of the mines in the district. He is survived by a wife and a large family with whom the deepest sympathy will be felt. The deceased was a member of Harmony Lodge I. O. O. F. and the funeral will take place under its auspices.

The funeral will take place on Sunday afternoon and the Rev. Mr. Miller, of this city, will officiate.—Nanaimo Free Press.

London March 24.— Admiral Lord Charles Beresford, commander of the Channel fleet, hauled down his flag at Portsmouth today thus bringing to an end fifty years of active service. He was given a rousing sendoff by some 10,000 enthusiastic friends and admirers, who had gathered around the dockyard gates. The admiral is now a free lance, and it is expected that he will take an active part in the agitation for a big navy.

Winnipeg, March 25.—The conference between the coal miners of Southern Alberta and Southeastern British Columbia and the coal mine operators was settled at Macleod, Alberta, last night and there will be no strike. A final settlement will be signed today both sides being satisfied with the adjustment of the schedule. The miners get higher wages and better hours.

Batavia, N. Y., Mar 25. Edward Payson Weston encountered a south wind west of Rochester today, and was compelled to stop at Bergan, three miles east of Batavia where he arrived at six o'clock tonight. If the weather clears he will leave for Batavia at midnight Weston said he felt fine but was tired out from the heavy blowing.

Chicago Mar 25.—J. Johnson, the heavyweight champion, announced today that Aarons of Chicago had accepted the position of manager. Several years ago Aarons managed the colored fighter, but there was little money in it in those days. Johnson said he would leave for New York on Sunday.

Toronto, Mar. 25.—It was rumored today that Alf. Shrubb would not start in the Marathon Derby at New York on April 1.

"Are you going to start in the Marathon Derby?" Alfred Shrubb was asked.

"I am under contract to do so," was the reply. "If I am well and feel right I will do so. I don't care about running Marathons; I know the distance is too far, but you can bet if I start I will do my best to win out. This looks like my chance to clean up a Marathon I think Dorando is the man to beat."

Notice is hereby given that Thirty Days after date I intend to apply to the Honourable Chief Commissioner of Lands and Works for a License to prospect for coal and petroleum under the following described lands situate in Sayward District, B.
