King Edward VII Dead.

George V Reigns.

London, May 7.—The tolling of the great bell in St. Paul's Cathedral at minute intervals between 5 and 6 this morning, offices performed only for the sovereigns and the Archbishops of Canterbury and York, conveyed to the countless thousands of London and suburban people the first information of the death of King Edward VII.

London, May 7.—The council met in the throne room at St. James' Palace under the presidency of the Earl of Crewe, who officiated in the absence of Viscount Wolverhampton, Lord President of the Council.

The new monarch was given the title of George V. The King, who had driven over from Marlborough House, waited in a room adjoining the council chamber, while the lengthy formalities leading up to the actual proclamation were proceeded with.

With todays ceremony and in his forty-fifth year, the second son born to King Edward VII. and Queen Alexandra, becomes the ruler of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland and of the British Dominions beyond the seas, King, Defender of the Faith and Emperor of India.

London, May 10th.—It is stated that the Duke of Connaught in accordance with the desire of King Edward, will succeed Lord Grey as Governor General of Canada.

London, May 9.—George V. was proclaimed King throughout the Empire today.

A DR. JOHNSON STORY.

Illustrating the Difference Between Assertion and Argument.

Among the anecdotes of Dr. Johnson is one written not by his biographer, Boswell, but by another contemporary, Dr. John Moore. It is illustrative of Johnson's manner and the importance he gave to argument properly conducted. Dr. Moore said that he was one of a company at Mr. Hoole's. Mention was made that counsel were to be heard in a certain case at the bar of the House of Commons. One of the company asked Sir James Johnston if he intended to be present. Sir James answered that he believed he should not, because he paid little regard to the arguments of counsel at the bar of the House of Commons.

"Wherefore," asked Dr. Johnson, "do you pay little regard to their arguments, sir?"

"Because," replied Sir James, "they argue for their fee."

"What is it to you, sir," rejoined Dr. Johnson, "what they argue for? You have nothing to do with their motive, but you ought to weigh their argument. Sir, you seem to confound argument with assertion. But there is an essential distinction between them. Assertion is like an arrow shot from a longbow—the force with which it strikes depends upon the strength of the arm that draws it. But argument is like an arrow from a crossbow, which has equal force whether shot by a boy or by a giant."

The narrator of this incident said the whole company was struck by the aptness and beauty of this illustration, which certainly was expressed in clear and forceful English and with few of the Latin derivatives with which the good doctor delighted to ornament his sentences.

One of the company said, "That is indeed one of the most just and admirable illustrations that I ever heard."

"Sir," said Dr. Johnson, "the illustration is none of mine. You will find it in Bacon."

Wealth at the Bar.

Just entered upon his seventieth year, Mr. Justice Bigham is one of the many eminent lawyers who have first started on other careers. Before devoting himself to law he spent five years on the Liverpool Exchange. Educated in Paris and Berlin, he had already acquired a knowledge of languages that was to prove of excellent service to him in the courts. But it was not destined to be all plain sailing for him at the first. "What on earth has induced you to come to the Bar?" was the discouraging question asked by Lord Russell of Killowen when the future Justice Bigham entered the chambers of the famous advocate as a pupil. It was a question that took the pupils some years to answer! During his first twelve months at the Bar the young lawyer earned only seven guineas, though later on, when he had succeeded Lord Russell of Killowen as leader of the Northern Circuit, his income was one of the largest ever earned at the Bar. Until a few years ago there was a certain judge distinguished among other things for the unpunctuality with which he began the judicial day. On one occasion Mr. Bigham, then one of the busiest advocates in the Common Law Courts, waited twenty-five minutes for his arrival. Having a second case to attend to in another court he went out to see how it was faring, and while he was gone the unpunctual judge made his appearance on the bench. "I have waited five minutes for you, Mr. Bigham," exclaimed his lordship impatiently when the busy counsel returned. "My lord," was the bold retort, "I waited five times as long."

Dickens and Pickwick In Court.

What is perhaps the most interesting piece of furniture in the legal centre of London belongs to Mr. Henry Fielding Dickens, K.C., whose sixty-first birthday was celebrated a short time ago. It is the desk on which his father, Charles Dickens, wrote nearly all his novels. Where the famous novelist penned "Martin Chuzzlewit," with its delightful description of the Temple fountain; his son, the distinguished K.C., has prepared many a statement of claim and defence. Mr. Dickens was once briefed because he was his father's son. A witness in the case bore the name of Pickwick, and Mr. Dickens was chosen to examine him. He happened to be engaged in another court when the case was reached, but Sir Frank Lockwood, who was particularly anxious not to be deprived of the pleasure of seeing Mr. Dickens examine Mr. Pickwick, addressed a note to Mr. Justice Hawkins, asking him to adjourn the case, and the learned judge, entering into the spirit of the request, at once granted it. When Mr. Dickens was able to attend and called Mr. Pickwick the whole court was delighted with the coincidence. "I do not know, gentlemen," observed Mr. Dickens to the jury, "whether Mr. Pickwick will appear in his gaiters." The eagerly-looked-for witness proved to be one of the thinnest men that ever stepped into the witness-box.

A Match For a Matchmaker.

The story is told by Allen Synesworth, the British dramatist, of how a well-known peer who was the prey of match-making mammas for a long time and who was imprudent enough to show more than ordinary attention escaped responsibility. One day the mother of the young lady in question, thinking she had a trump to play, met his lordship and observed:

"People are talking a good deal about your attentions to my daughter and are asking when your engagement is to be announced. What can I say?"

"I would advise you to say, madam," replied his lordship, "that I asked you for your daughter's hand and that you refused it."—O'Connor's Weekly.

Russia.

Russia took its denomination from the Russ, or Russi, a people of the south of Russia, who possessed themselves of the country in the declining days of the Greek empire. Being the predominant inhabitants, they imposed their name on all the rest.

A Le Roi Mine Romance.

In 1892 Maurice Yenzil, a merchant of Moscow, Idaho, sold a suit of clothes for $60,000, writes Harold Sands in "Romances of Rossland" in the February Canadian Magazine.

Of course there is a story in that transaction, and a wonderful story it is; nothing less than the romance of Rossland and its mines. Yenzil didn't get his $60,000 down on the nail. It was five years before he received the final payment on that suit of "hand-me-downs."

Truth to tell, Yenzil did not expect to get a cent for the clothes. One day an acquaintance he had known in various mining camps of the West wandered into his store in Moscow dressed in his best and his worst. In other words the man's clothes were much the worse for wear, but they were all he had.

"Just come down from Rossland, broke," he explained to his friend the merchant. "I've got nothing except these 2,000 share of Le Roi gold mine. Give me a suit of clothes and stake me to a meal and they're yours."

Yenzil did so, and threw the certificate for the mining stock into the back of his safe. He was out a suit of clothes and "four-bits"; that was the way he figured.

By 1897 he had received in dividends and from the sale of the stock the sum of $60,000. The great Le Roi mine, after nearly breaking the hearts of those who stood so splendidly by it in the days of adversity, had first developed into the most prominent property in British Columbia, and then had been bought by the British company headed by the late Whitaker Wright, of somewhat painful memory.

When the Americans who held the mine disposed of it to Wright for about $4,000,000, Yenzil cashed in for that suit of clothes.

Ragman Wit.

Last autumn a Toronto lady got a taste of real Russian Jew repartee. One morning a strange dog drifted into her back yard, and, stretching himself under the shade of a fruit tree, died. The problem of how to dispose of the beast was worrying her. A little later she was picking flowers in her garden when a rag and bottle man drove by and stopped.

"Any rags?" he called in his Yiddish dialect.

"No," said the lady.

"Any bones or bottles?" he persisted.

"No; go away," said the lady tartly.

"Any oldt boots?" he went on. "I give five cents each for oldt boots."

"No; please go away," said the lady. Then a thought flashed upon her. Perhaps he could use the dead dog in his business. Perhaps the hide would be worth his taking. So she said:

"Do you want a dog?"

"Yah!" cried the man, jumping off the wagon; "where iss idt?"

She took him around to the back of the house and showed him the unwelcome guest. When he found that the animal was dead, he flew into a spluttering rage, and as he raced back to his wagon he hissed at the lady:

"Don't you vandt idt? Don't you like idt? Don't you vandt idt to eat?"

With this crushing retort, which would be a most savage and significant insult among his own people, he drove hissing away.

SPRING SKIN TROUBLES

Pimples, Eruptions and "Spotty Complexions."

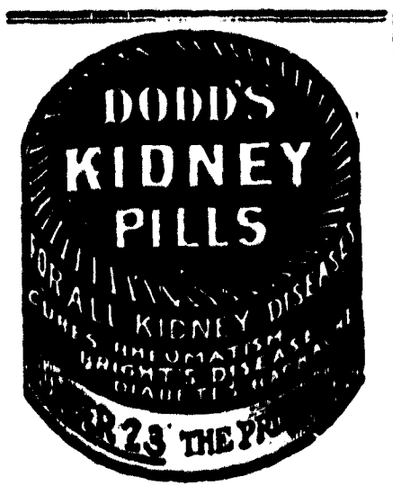
At this season, scores of people—girls and young women especially—find their faces disfigured by pimples, dark spots, eruptions, etc. The skin needs attention—needs renovating after the trying time it has passed through during the winter.

Just think what it has gone through! You have been out in rain and sleet and snow. You have been at one moment perspiring from skating, or some other exertion. Then you have stood to "cool off." You have spent hours of the day indoors at a temperature equal to summer heat. Then you have covered up your skin—except your face—and gone out into a temperature away below zero! No wonder that, with all these changes, the skin of the face and neck shows signs of needing attention.

Don't forget that the skin has to do work just as any other organ of the body, and if you overwork it, it gives out. Zam-Buk is the remedy. Smear it lightly over the spots, the eruptions, the sallow patches, at night, and notice how quickly your appearance improves. As the rich, refined, herbal essences sink deep into the tissue, the hard, security-like patches are removed. Better color results. The cells of the skin become transparent. The blood beneath is able to impart its proper coloring to the tissue, and the delicate bloom of health replaces the sallowness and pallor of disease.

Zam-Buk is also of great use for skin injuries and diseases. Eczema, ulcers, chaps, ringworm, acne, yield to its use. For cuts, burns, bruises, children's rashes, etc., it is unequalled and it is a sure cure for piles. All druggists and stores at 50c a box, or Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, for price. Refuse harmful substitutes and imitations.

The kitten calmly washed its face
Before the grate so bright,
But Little Willie murmured: "Gee,
Someone will hold you up to me,
'Cause I found Santa!"



A Little Cold.

He caught a little cold—
That was all.
So the neighbors sadly said,
As they gathered round his bed,
When they heard that he was dead.
He caught a little cold—
That was all. —(Puck).

Neglect of a cough or a cold often leads to serious trouble. To break up a cold in twenty-four hours and cure any cough that is curable, mix two ounces of Glycerine, a half ounce of Virgin Oil of Pine compound pure and eight ounces of pure Whiskey. Take a teaspoonful every four hours. You can buy these at any good drug store and easily mix them in a large bottle.

Frequently

An old colored man, who could neither read nor write, and who had been found by his master to be deficient in his market book accounts, blamed the butcher with tampering with his book. The gentleman of the house remonstrated by saying:

"But, Tom, figures don't lie."

"No," answered the old man, "but liars do figger."

CURE MEN AND WOMEN ALIKE

WHAT DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS DID FOR ONE FAMILY

Cured Chas. Bell of Rheumatism and His Wife of Inflammation of the Kidneys—Mrs. Bell's Statement.

North Range, Digby Co., N.S. (Special)—That Dodd's Kidney Pills cure the Kidney ills of men and women alike is shown in the cases of Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Bell of this place. A short time ago Dodd's Kidney Pills cured Mr. Bell of Rheumatism from which he had suffered for ten years. This led Mrs. Bell to try them for Inflammation of the Kidneys and she makes the following statement:

"I was troubled with Inflammation of the Kidneys for twenty-four years. Some few weeks ago I got worse and was laid up for a long time. When I was able to be up again the doctor told me I must on no account do any work. I suffered from Dropsy and my feet would swell so I could not wear my shoes.

"My husband benefiited so much from taking Dodd's Kidneys Pills I decided to give them a trial, and though I have taken only three boxes I am well and can wear my shoes and do nearly all my own housework. I cannot say too much for Dodd's Kidney Pills."

Dodd's Kidney Pills make weak Kidneys strong and sick Kidneys well.

Querieus—Who is the happier, a man who has $500,000 or one who has seven daughters?

Rabbi—The latter.

"Why?"

"The man with the $500,000 wants more; the other doesn't."

Sleeping Draughts and Soothing Mixtures

A mother should never give her child a sleeping draught, soothing mixture or opiate of any kind except on the advice of a doctor who has seen the child. All these things contain poisons and an overdose may kill the little one. When you give your child Baby's Own Tablets you have the guarantee of a government analyst that this medicine does not contain one particle of opiate or narcotic and cannot possibly do harm—but always do good. The Tablets promptly cure all stomach, bowel and teething troubles, and give healthy, natural sleep. Sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

"Physical culture, father, is perfectly lovely. To develop the arms I grasp this rod by one end and move it slowly from right to left."

"Well, well!" exclaimed her father; won't science discover? If that rod had straw at the other end you'd be sweeping."

Minard's Liniment Cures Burns, Etc.

A friend met a cheerful Irish citizen who had painly suffered some hard knocks.

"Well, Pat, how are you getting along now?" he enquired.

"Oh, Oi'm hard up yet; but Oi have a fine job in Honnolulee, and fare paid. Oi sail to-morry."

"Sure, man, you'll never be able to work there. The temperature is a hundred in the shade."

Pat had enjured too much cheerfully to be discouraged.

"Well," he replied hopefully, "Oi'll not be worrukin' in the shade all the toime."

Indigestion Cured

This disease from which so many suffer gives the average physician a great deal of trouble. The best medical men have endorsed PSYCHINE, and recommended it in scores of the most obstinate cases. It has never failed in a single instance to give prompt relief. When directions have been followed, a few doses will remove that tightness and weight on the stomach. Taken regularly it positively cures General Distress, Flatulency, Nervousness, Coated Tongue, Heart Burn and Palpitation. If you have never used PSYCHINE, don't hesitate a moment longer. Try PSYCHINE to-day.

PROOF

Mr. Arthur Tennison, 88 London Street, Toronto, says: "For six or seven years I was troubled with indigestion and dyspepsia. Too much acidity of the stomach the doctors said, originated the troubles. I tried scores of remedies without avail. Eventually I used PSYCHINE and this brought immediate relief and cure."

NO HOME SHOULD BE WITHOUT PSYCHINE

It prevents the children taking cold, wards off that terrible malady, La Grippe, and completely fortifies them against disease. It should always be used for colds weariness, loss of appetite, bronchitis and weak lungs.

For sale by all druggists and dealers, 50 cents and $1.00.

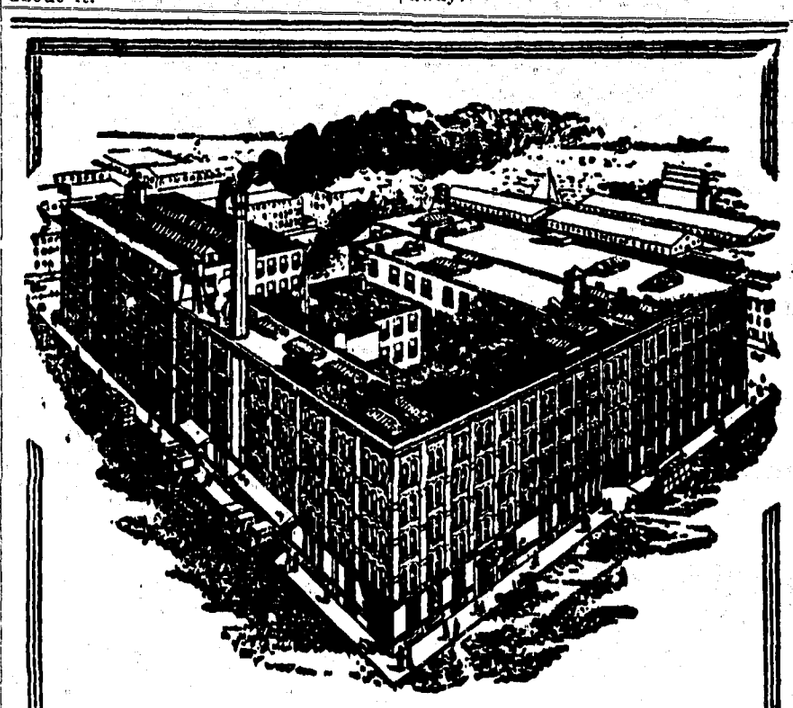
Successful Fishing

"Ah," said a visitor, "so you are back from your fishing trip to the States. Well, what did you catch?"

"We did pretty well,' 'said the fond mother. "Julia caught a banker, Bertha a lawyer. Fanny landed one of the finest looking army officers you ever saw in your life. Hattie was unfortunate. She had a young fellow with all kinds of money on the hook, but just at the last moment he got away."



Where Christie's Biscuits come from—

The cleanest factory in Canada

THE Christie, Brown biscuit factory is in keeping with the international reputation of the firm. Visitors know just why Christie's biscuits are the best baked—and hundreds visit the big factory every season.

The Christie, Brown people stake their reputation on cleanliness and quality. The raw product is the purest and best money can buy, and every ounce of it is carefully analyzed before it can enter the bake rooms. Every device and machine—making for the perfection of the product—is used in the big factory. The bright and cheerful employes, all arrayed in spotlessly white uniforms laundried on the premises, speak volumes for the sanitary conditions under which they work. You just buy Christie's Biscuits once and you'll know why your neighbors call them "so good." The best grocers keep them and they cost no more.

TO DEVELOP A BEAUTIFUL ARM

An awkward position

This thin upper arm is not hopeless

Pumice Powder followed by a cream bandage

A Wringing movement develops the forearms

I MIGHT change the story of the ancient chronicler and begin my talk this week by singing of arms and the woman; for, indeed, a beautiful arm is one of the most important factors of grace and good looks. The question is vital to you, for words from the headquarters of fashion are suggesting that short sleeves are coming upon us. The arms, then, must be improved, softened and developed, and I am giving today a few suggestions that I am sure will help my readers.

We have had dimpled and smiling elbows flaunted at us to our chagrin, because this part of the arm seems to grow unattractively hard with age or work. The skin can be softened by a bath in olive oil. Place the liquid in a deep dish or plate and allow the elbows to rest in the friendly oil for fifteen or twenty minutes. Then massage it gently into the skin and prepare for the next step.

With powdered pumice stone rub the points of the elbows. The previously softened cuticle can be quickly rubbed off, and a counter irritant should be applied in the form of a cream bandage.

Many arms are robbed of beauty because of an awkward position. This is due to several things. Sometimes the sleeves of a dress are too tight; then the corset may be improperly adjusted, which produces a ridge of flesh under the arms and interferes with a natural position. Look at yourself to discover if you are making it impossible to have a graceful carriage by the awkward holding of your arms.

But suppose that your arms need developing. Let me emphasize here that no arm is ever hopeless. It is not natural to be bony. There should be flesh enough to cover up traces of the framework of the body.

Now, exercise is the great developer. If the upper arm be thin, take ten or fifteen minutes each morning, with the windows open, to stretch out the arms to the side and to bend up to the shoulders and to straighten out again. Concentrate your mind upon the work and put all of your energy into the movements. Vary the arm exercise by swinging them above the head and in front of you, describing an arc. Your arms must respond to this treatment.

For developing the forearm a wringing movement is excellent. Take a towel or a piece of cloth between each hand and wring hard and forcefully. The wrist muscles are also brought into play and are rounded out into a beautiful line.

I cannot emphasize too much the importance of persistence and determination in the cause. I hold it true that many things are within arm's length if you but approach the subject with a sane will to give everything a fair trial.

Let me plead with you to give the arm a chance to be beautiful.

Answers to Beauty Queries

OWING to the great amount of mail received and the limited space given this department, it is absolutely impossible to answer letters in the Sunday issue following their receipt. The letters must be answered in turn, and this ofttimes requires three or four weeks.

All correspondents who desire an immediate answer must inclose a self-addressed stamped envelope for a reply. This rule must also be complied with in regard to personal letters.

Spots on Finger Nails

Dear Mrs. Symes.

There has recently appeared on every one of my finger nails little white spots. Can you tell me what causes this?

Also kindly let me know if celandine leaves are used constantly will they in time remove superfluous hair? I have been using a depilatory on my arms to remove the hair, but lately the hair has grown so very low on my arms. I cannot wear my short-sleeved gowns on account of this trouble.

APPRECIATIVE.

The spots on the nails may be caused by lack of care or by bruises. Nothing can be done but to file them away as they grow out toward the end of the nails.

The celandine leaves will remove the superfluous hair in time, but if you are anxious for an immediate and permanent cure I advise the application of the electric needle by an expert operator.

To Improve the Taste

Dear Mrs. Symes.

I see you often prescribe olive oil to increase flesh. I should like to try this treatment, but the oil is so disagreeable to take. Can you offer any suggestion?

AGNES P.

If you will pour a little grape or orange juice into a glass, then the dose of oil on that, and on top another small quantity of juice, the taste of the oil will hardly be detected.

To Induce Sleep

Dear Mrs. Symes.

What can I do to induce sleep? When I go to bed at night I toss from one side to the other.

DISTRESSED.

First of all, it is necessary to have a well-ventilated room. Lie flat on your back, with every muscle as flaccid as possible. Drive away all unpleasant thoughts, and make yourself drowsy thinking over some pleasant story. A glass of warm milk sipped slowly before retiring will have a soothing effect and produce sleep.

Face Becomes Flushed

I wish you would tell me why it is my face becomes flushed after meals. Also give me a cure for the trouble.

(Mrs.) TOM S.

The unpleasant flushing after meals is very often caused by weak or poor digestion. Tea should be avoided and little or no liquid should be taken with the meals. A tumbler of hot water should be taken each meal.

Shiny Skin

Dear Mrs. Symes.

After I wash my face it looks so shiny and feels drawn. What can I do for this?

MABEL F.

Possibly you use too much soap on your face. This will dry the skin, making it feel [illegible] soap and after drying, [illegible] it over with fine oatmeal. Allow it to remain on for a few minutes, then remove with a soft piece of cheesecloth.

Tired Feet

Dear Mrs. Symes.

My feet seem to be so tired when I get home from work at night that they are almost painful. What can I do to find relief?

RALPH D.

Soak your feet every night in hot water to which has been added salt. Dry them gently and apply a little vaseline to them, rubbing it well into the skin. Change your stockings often, and do not wear the same pair of shoes two days in succession.

Enlarged Pores

Dear Mrs. Symes.

After removing blackheads the pores seem to be so large. What should be done to close them?

INQUISITIVE SUE.

When the pores are large after the blackheads are removed, the following recipe will make an excellent lotion for you to rub into your skin:

Boric acid..... 1 dram
Distilled witch hazel ..... 4 ounces

Apply with a piece of soft linen or a bit of absorbent cotton.

Manicuring the Nails

Dear Mrs. Symes.

I always admire pretty and well-kept nails, but I cannot afford to have mine manicured. Do you think I could do it myself? If so, please give me a few hints.

A DEVOTED READER.

Although there are many little dainty touches to be added during the process of manicuring, I shall tell you briefly how you may treat yours so that they may have a trim and neat look.

Soak the fingertips in hot, soapy water to which a little lemon juice has been added. Dry them and push back the skin around each nail with an orange-wood stick. File off the nail the precise shape of the end of the finger and then polish with a good nail powder. Polishing the nails with the palms of the hand will give good results, as it gives them a pretty, deep tint.

For Tired Eyes

Dear Mrs. Symes.

What is the best thing to do for eyes when they grow tired? Do you ever advise the use of belladonna to brighten up the eyes?

MAY M.

When the eyes are hot and tired after hard usage, you should stop whatever you are doing and try the following lotion: One teaspoonful of boracic acid in half a pint of boiling water. Bottle when cold. Bathe the eyes with some of the lotion, taking care to dry them thoroughly. This is a perfectly harmless solution and most soothing.

Never use belladonna in the eyes to make them sparkle. It is a most dangerous habit, and sooner or later, if persisted in, is bound to injure the eyesight.

Remove Tartar

Dear Mrs. Symes.

Kindly advise me what can be done to remove tartar from the teeth? I don't like to visit a dentist every time it appears.

BLUE EYES.

If you will brush your teeth after each meal and before retiring, you will not be troubled with tartar. The tartar may be removed, however. Procure some magnesia, wet the toothbrush in warm water, dip it into the magnesia and rub the teeth with it. If one application does not entirely remove it, give a second treatment the next day.

Red Nose

Dear Mrs. Symes.

Will you please tell me what causes the nose to become red, and how to prevent it?

GRATEFUL.

There are a few reasons for this. Indigestion, tight lacing and poor circulation of the blood are some of the causes. For the first, diet and exercise are prescribed; for the second, a general inspection to see that all clothing is sufficiently loose, and for the last, massage is necessary.

To Thicken the Hair

Dear Mrs. Symes.

Kindly advise me. My hair is entirely free from dandruff and is very long, but thin. What will thicken it?

What is the very best cold cream that will not grow hair on the face?

What is considered the most delicate and refined perfume?

GRACE.

Have your druggist make a preparation of crude oil and oil of lavender, and rub this mixture on your scalp three days a week. On the intervening day massage your scalp and brush the hair, giving it one hundred strokes each time.

If you will make a cold cream according to the following recipe you may feel sure that it will do your skin no harm:

Kentucky Cold Cream.

Rosewater ..... 4 ounces
Almond oil ..... 4 ounces
Spermaceti ..... 1 ounce
White wax ..... 1 ounce

I cannot give you the name of any perfume, but I think every individual has her favorite. Any perfume which gives a faint but pleasant odor is the best to use.

To Remove Hair

Dear Mrs. Symes.

[illegible] I could rid myself of hair in the ears, nose and under [illegible] for the hair seems to be like bristles.

DISGUSTED.

The only safe and sure way to get rid of the hairs is to have them removed by the electric needle; but be certain that you have a thoroughly competent person to perform the operation.

Cost of Powder

Dear Mrs. Symes.

Are my measurements correct? I am 16 years old, my height is 5 feet 6 inches, weight 118 pounds. My hips measure 33 inches, my waist 25 inches and my bust 37 inches.

Also please tell me how much the recipe you printed in a recent paper for face powder will cost.

A SUBSCRIBER.

Your weight is not nearly enough for your height, but you are quite correct in size for your age and your body has had a chance to develop.

I cannot tell you just how much the powder will cost [illegible] but will be able to feed your soul as it has looked over the recipe.

Solutions to Social Problems

Without a Chaperon

DEAR Mrs. Adams,

1. Is it proper for girls of 14 and 15 to have boys take them home evenings without being chaperoned?

2. What should a girl say when a boy is continually throwing insults?

BABE AND HON.

1. Girls of 14 and 15 should not go to evening entertainments unless they are provided with a chaperon.

2. You would be justified in telling such a boy that if he cannot treat you in a kind and courteous manner you do not care to have anything more to do with him.

Was Unfair

Dear Mrs. Adams.

1. I have been engaged to a girl for over two years. Early last summer she wanted to break the engagement because we could not get married then. I told her we could get married the latter part of the summer, but when I asked her to make up her mind she said she was not sure that she cared for me. Then she went around with an old friend of hers. Now he has left town, and she made up her mind to marry me. Do you think she was fair to me?

2. How much should a man be earning before he contemplates matrimony?

3. What is your opinion of a girl who will flirt and smoke cigarettes?

A CONSTANT READER.

1. The girl was surely most unfair in her dealings with you, and I advise you to make sure that she really does love you before taking the final step.

2. It depends a great deal upon his station in life; but he should be sure that his income is sufficient to make both his wife and himself comfortable.

3. Such a girl lacks dignity and has no self-respect.

A Heart-Broken Girl

Dear Mrs. Adams

A young man in my town became very dear to me, and I went with him for five months. [illegible] I saw he was taking another girl to the skating rink. I acted very coldly toward him the next time he came to see me, and now he shuns me. Do you think I had better "make up" with him if he wishes to, or shall I act as if I do not care at all?

MARGIE L.

If you were not engaged to the young man under discussion, you had no claim to [illegible] because [illegible] he paid attention to another girl. Perhaps he avoids meeting you because he sees you think too seriously about him. Act indifferently toward him, but always be kind and civil.

How Long Should He Stay?

Dear Mrs. Adams.

1. How long should a young man stay at the home of a young woman after taking her home, if he should be invited inside?

Also, if he is asked to call again, who should set the [illegible]

2. When my sister's girl friend calls to see her, is it necessary for me to take her home when she is ready to leave?

3. If my sister, her friend and myself attend church, would it be necessary for me to take the friend home after the service?

A READER.

1. If you reach the girl's home after 10 o'clock, you should not go inside the house, but should leave her as soon as you reach the door. If you arrive home at an early hour, you should not remain later than 10.30.

2. It is not necessary for you to take the girl home. If she has any distance to travel, she should make arrangements to have one of her own family take her home.

3. If you accompany the two girls to church, then it is your duty to see that they both arrive home safely.

Never Introduced

Dear Mrs. Adams.

I received a note through the mail from a young man asking me if he might not be a friend of mine. I have never met him, but business has caused me to talk to him several times. Do you think I should notice his note?

B.

Do not reply to the note, for it would not be wise to start a friendship until you have been properly introduced to the young man.

Fork or Spoon?

Dear Mrs. Adams.

Is ice cream eaten with a fork or spoon?

WORRIED.

A special kind of fork is used for ice cream; if you do not have this, the spoon should be used.

A Gentleman Caller

Dear Mrs. Adams.

1. Would it be all right for a girl of 16 to have a young man call on her for a few hours in the evening?

2. Is it proper for a girl of 21 to have men callers when she has been going with one man for over a year, he being at college?

[illegible] a young man to take her home from a party when he did not accompany her there?

ANXIOUS.

1. Yes, if an older member of the family helps to entertain him.

2. When a girl is not engaged to any man she is at liberty to accept the attentions of other men.

3. Yes, if he is willing to walk along with the girl and her [illegible]

Four Queries

Dear Mrs. Adams.

1. Is there anything out of place in accepting the attention of a young man who is not of my nationality?

2. If a party of girls and boys have a sleigh ride party and one of the girl's father drives, will another chaperon be necessary?

3. Is there anything wrong in young people dancing?

4. If a girl likes a young man real well, should age be considered if he is about three or four years your senior?

PANSY.

1. Not if he is a desirable companion and a gentleman at all times.

2. While the father would be capable of shouldering all responsibility, I think it would be better to have an older woman along to act as chaperon.

3. I cannot see that there is any objection to dancing if the right sort of persons are gathered together. In my opinion, dancing is a pleasure which, if not abused, should be enjoyed by all young persons.

4. Age should not make any difference; in fact, it is well to have friends of various ages.

Tired of His Company

Dear Mrs. Adams.

1. When a young man calls at my home and brings a friend, is it all right to ask a girl friend to spend the evening? Should light refreshments be served?

2. Is it rude to refuse a young man a dance if his dancing does not please me?

3. I have been going out with a young man for some time and do not care for his company any longer. How could I tell him this without offending him?

B. R. E.

1. It would be very nice to invite a girl friend and would add to the enjoyment of the evening. It would not be necessary to serve light refreshments, although it would not be improper if you care to do so.

2. It would not be very kind to refuse the young man a dance. How is he to improve if every girl shuns him?

3. If you decline all future invitations he extends to you and act indifferently toward him, I do not think it will be necessary to tell him you do not care for his company any longer.

Would Like Undivided Attention

Dear Mrs. Adams.

I am very much in love with a young man who is very popular among the young ladies. I think he likes me also. How can I gain his whole attention?

LOVESICK.

You cannot with propriety do anything to gain the young man's whole attention. Any effort you may make to draw him away from his friends may cause him to lose all respect for you.

Doesn't Care to Lose Her

Dear Mrs. Adams.

I am a young man 20 years old and am in love with a girl of 18. I know we are rather young to be married, but there is another young man trying to win her affections. What would you advise me to do?

A. N. M.

You are both too young to think of marriage, and the best thing for you to do is to associate with other girls. Do not become jealous if another boy is a [illegible] few years hence, when the minds of both are broadened, you may find that you do not care for her at all. Just at present you think such a thing impossible, but it has happened before.

Serious Affection.

Dear Mrs. Adams.

I am 24 years old and am very much in [illegible] Like your advice about it. Her husband is gone most of the time and he does not provide for her as he should. She does not care for him, but she says she does care for me. She is 23 years old.

K.

My advice to you is to keep away from the woman and her home. Cannot you see that you are doing her and yourself a great injustice, and are probably causing her more unhappiness than if she were left alone [illegible] affairs? The third party often causes very serious trouble.

Refreshments Are Not Necessary

Dear Mrs. Adams.

I am 18 years old and have callers frequently and when I entertain girls I have always served refreshments. Would you approve of doing the same when I entertain young men?

Should a girl start to call a boy by his Christian name, or should he take this step? A young boy whom I have known for a year always calls me "Miss Brown," while the other girls he calls by their first names. How can I get him to call me by my first name?

ONE WISHING TO LEARN.

Refreshments are not really necessary every time you entertain girl and boy friends, although an occasional treat is not at all improper.

A boy should take this initiative. You can do nothing to force your friends to call you by your first name. A stronger friendship will bring about such familiarity.

Eating Baked Potatoes

Dear Mrs. Adams.

1. When baked potatoes are served, with what does one put butter on them? Do you use the individual butter knife?

2. When butter plates are used, what should one do with the butter knife after using it?

3. The girls and boys I know seem to think I am too fussy and proper. I shall relate a few things for you to tell me whether I am or not, but you need not publish this part of my letter, for I know it will take up too much of your valuable space.

A SCHOOLGIRL.

1. The butter is taken with your fork from the bread and butter plate, and only sufficient to flavor each mouthful of potato. It is inelegant to butter, salt and pepper all of the potato at one time.

2. The butter knife is kept on the bread and butter plate after it has once been used.

3. Conduct yourself just as a young lady should, and I advise you to continue such behavior even though your friends think you are too proper. As for your longing for some one to care for you, I shall say that you are too young to expect any young man to pay particular attentions to you.

Received No At Home Card

Dear Mrs. Adams.

Some time ago a member of the firm employing my husband was married. We received an announcement card only, others received at home cards of course. I did not call either upon the newly married couple or upon her mother. I maintain that such discrimination in a small village was snobbish, and I wish you would tell me whether I did right or wrong? Some of my friends have said it must have been an oversight, but how was I to know.

I, too, believe that your failing to receive an at home card was an oversight. [illegible] I think it would be well for you to go as soon as possible and disregard the omission of the card. [illegible] the bride returns your call

The following is a synopsis of "Resurrection" by Leo Tolstoy, and will be shown at the City Hall on Wednesday and Thursday May 11th and 12th. It will also be repeated as an extra film on Saturday evening, May 14th.

RESURRECTION

Free adaptation of Leo Tolstoy's powerful novel. The subject opens with the return home of Prince Dimitri, who meets Katusha a peasant girl and is exceedingly charmed with her beauty. Young, innocent and as pretty as a rose she bewitchingly fascinates the prince. His noble appearance likewise impresses her, and his little attentions bother her, until at last she is unable to resist his advances. The poor girl is meted the usual fate. An alliance is out of the question. The disparity of the ranks even forbids it, and soon the prince must cast her aside. Five years later we find that the girl, who is now a loathsome sight, has learned the bitter lesson of the eternal truth "the wages of sin is death." It is death to the soul at all events. She has gone down to the lowest depths and is arrested in a low Russian tavern. As she is carried to the tribunal she passes Prince Dimitri who now sees the terrible result of his sins. He grows repentant and attempts to plead her cause before the jury, but they are callous to it and pay no attention to the arguments for nor against, and by force of habit vote to have her sent to Siberia. She is dragged out to the pen of detention and herded with a lot of poor unfortunates who scarcely bear any more [illegible] human beings. The repentant prince determines to give up his life to right the wrong he has done, and visits her here with a view of turning her now vicious nature, handing her a copy of the Bible. She does not recognize him at first, but when she does she flies into fury, beating his body and face with her fists and the book. He leaves her and she sits moodily on the bench with the book on her lap. Shortly she turns its pages and lo, the Resurrection! Her eyes fall on the passage (John xi, 25), "And Jesus said unto her, I am the Resurrection and the Life; he that believeth in me, though he were dead yet shall he live." In an instant her whole being changes. There is hope for her salvation, and she reads on. The guards arrive and we next see her with the poor unfortunates trudging over the snow clad steppes toward the goal from whence few return. She becomes the ministering angel, sharing her comforts with them. The prince meanwhile, has secured her pardon, and hastens after her. Giving her the welcome notice he begs her to return with him as his wife; but no, she prefers to work out her salvation helping those poor souls to whom a kindness is an indescribable blessing, and bidding him farewell, she renounces the world for the path of duty, so we leave her kneeling in the snow at the foot of the Holy Cross.

CHAPTER XI.

KINROSS, sauntering in front of the porch, overheard the farmer "fixing" poor Hen.

"There ain't no use your settin' here waitin'. She's went off buggy ridin' with our Abe. Him and her's wonderful took with each other, and neither of 'em's got eyes fur no other ones."

"I seen Abe's buggy ahead of me when I was drivin' over here," Hen answered, his tone expressing timid doubt of the truth of Mr. Morningstar's assertion, "and I didn't take notice to no lady settin' alongside of him. He rode clean down the pike ahead of me. Our buggies was so close apart I could see right into his'n. And till I got here a'ready Eunice she was here."

"She knowed better'n to git in with him near here. She likely walked over the schoolhouse and behind Zoar's church up and then got in his buggy above the town out, so's us we wouldn't see her."

Very low in his mind and looking abjectly disappointed and discouraged, Henny on receiving this information rose to go home.

Kinross mused on the situation as for an hour longer he wandered up and down the garden in the gathering night. His promenade brought him every now and then to a corner of the house from which he could see in all unoccupied and reputedly "haunted" part of the building a faint flickering light in one of the windows.

He had been told of the tradition concerning the ghost who visited this wing of the old house. The Morningstars were very proud of the distinction of living with the only ghost of the township, and strangers to the neighborhood were never left long in ignorance of it. Kinross felt sure, from what he had seen of the family, that none of them could possibly be induced to go near that haunted quarter of the house after dark and he was naturally puzzled, therefore, to account for the light he saw in the window just now. He thought he would ask Mrs. Morningstar to let him sleep in the haunted room some night and see whether he could not meet and lay the spirit that troubled it. It did not occur to him to associate the light with the absence of Eunice. He accepted, as unquestioningly as did Hen Mucklehenny, Mr. Morningstar's story of her clandestine drive with Abe. Indeed, the family's agitation over the fact was keeping them up long after their usual early bedtime, as he knew from the lamp light in the kitchen to which the circuit of his stroll periodically brought him.

His impressions of Eunice were in dire confusion and refused to lend themselves to readjustment. That a girl capable of even accidentally reading "The Compleat Angler" and discussing it as she had done should "take up" with Abe Morningstar was singular, to say the least. The flower-like beauty of her face, the peculiarly thrilling quality of her voice, her grace and, in some respects, exquisiteness made it seem incongruous that she should, as Mr. Morningstar had expressed it, be "wonderful took with our Abe." And then the intelligence she had revealed this evening: what was it she had said about "The Compleat Angler?"—it was not "for its didactic instructions about fishing" that she cared for it, but "for the anecdotes scattered through it, the quotations and songs and poems."

Good Lord! Should he presently discover that Abe was familiar with Chaucer and Spenser and that Ollie was a student of Shakespeare and Milton? He couldn't have been more astonished if he had found Mrs. Morningstar quoting Henry James or come across Mr. Morningstar intelligently reading George Meredith. As a psychologist he could not reconcile the fact of the girl's having left school at the age of twelve, according to her foster mother's own acknowledgment, with her capacity for assimilating Izaak Walton's little classic. He recalled that Mrs. Morningstar had told him of the child's grief at being taken from school. "She cried wonderful," the woman had said in the unsympathetic tone with which she always spoke of the girl.

"It would take a Sherlock Holmes to ferret out this mystery," he said to himself.

As he turned in his walk brought him in sight again of the haunted back building, and he saw that the lighted window had become dark. "The ghost has gone to roost," he decided.

A moment later as he came around to the front of the house the light of a lamp illumined one of the upstairs bedroom windows, the room in which, as he knew, Ollie and Eunice slept. But a moment before he had passed the kitchen in which he had seen Ollie and her parents sitting about the table. Who, then, was in that upstairs room? No member of the Morningstar household would commit the extravagance of leaving a lamp burning in an empty room. Had the ghost wandered from the back room to the front one? But ghosts did not move by the light of kerosene lamps.

Presently in his circuit about the house he found that the trio in the kitchen had at last taken their lamps and gone upstairs, leaving the kitchen door unlatched for him and for the truant lovers.

Kinross felt an impulse of pity for Eunice as he thought of the retribution she would have to face on her return or on the morrow.

"But she never seems to mind the old lady's upbraidings; she takes them with an apparently philosophical calm," he thought. "I wonder whether, against all the stress that will be brought to bear upon her, she will with equal calmness and philosophy persist in her devotion to Abe. I should think she'd find it hard to hold out against the cold blooded obstinacy of that brutal old Morningstar—harder than against the woman's warm temper. I fancy the Dutchman could be cruel under some circumstances. Now, I'm inclined to think Eunice would fare better if she favored that sheep that came to court her this evening—Hen Mucklehenny. He looks inoffensive and soft hearted, while Abe Morningstar is a genuine son of his father—small souled, selfish and brutal. But she doesn't know that it is she Hen came to see, and the Morningstars will take care that she doesn't find it out. I might do her a good turn by telling her on the quiet."

His meditation turned at last from sheer weariness into another channel, and he fell to thinking of the awkward situation he would have to confront when, on his return to town, he should be obliged to meet Miss Ellery and Miss Parks in his true character. How he was going to carry it off was a question which not infrequently occupied his leisure moments.

"I wonder whether Georgiana was in the least shaken out of her orbit by the shock of Eunice's correcting her quotation from Izaak Walton and declining to be 'a recipient of charity'—that was the damsel's phraseology, if I remember. Probably not. She could hardly forget herself long enough to entertain more than a mere passing wonder about another woman.

"Her wishing to give that dress to Eunice—it was not because of any sympathy with Eunice; it was merely an exploiting of herself, an insistence upon her theories, which she feels set her above and apart from the common herd. If something could happen to her to knock out of her her own fool idea of herself and make her just a simple, natural girl, why, with such beauty and distinction as she has, she might be a very charming woman."

He took his pipe from his mouth and clasped his hands behind him as he bent back his head to the stars while he dwelt upon the picture of a revised Georgiana which his fancy called up. He was just wondering whether the deception he was playing upon her in his disguise might not be made in some way to work such a revision in her when his attention was arrested by the sound of approaching carriage wheels.

In the quiet of the country evening the beat of the horse's hoofs could be heard from a distance, and he had time to decide that it was no doubt the buggy containing the truant lovers that was coming up the road and to wonder how their return would be met by the angry hands of the house when the vehicle drove in at the barn, and he saw as he strolled in that direction that Abe was alone.

What had the fellow done with Eunice? Kinross was surprised into a quick feeling of alarm for the girl's safety. He was on the point of stepping after Abe into the barn to inquire after her when he bethought him that he would do better to keep out of the "mixup."

"It's none of my business. Of course Abe would justly resent my solicitude for the girl."

So, with the reflection that he was living in the midst of fast thickening mysteries, he shook out his pipe and went indoors for the night.

To reach his bedroom he had to pass the opening to the long, narrow hall which led into the redoubtable back building, and it was just as he came to this passage that his step was arrested by something which gave him a momentary thrill of excitement. The lamp he carried shed a light down the passage, and his eye was caught by a white figure moving swiftly and noiselessly at the farthest end of it. Almost instantly the figure disappeared. Whether it had run around a turn in the hall or dissolved into ether he could not be sure. Was it a wraith or what? Should he pursue it? No; its garb was too suggestive of a woman's nightgown to make pursuit on his part advisable. He would get Mrs. Morningstar's permission to sleep down there some night, and then, if ghost it were, he would surely make its acquaintance.

With this conclusion and feeling actually exhausted with the evening's succession of episodes he went to bed.

CHAPTER XII.

KINROSS' aversion next morning to the woods, the small interest he felt in the philosophy of the schools as compared with the philosophy of the actual life of the Morningstar farmhouse, led him to risk exciting the suspicion of his fellow boarders by "shunning round" the kitchen porch during the greater part of the forenoon.

On coming downstairs to his breakfast he had found Eunice, as usual, at her kitchen drudgery, moving about, as she always did, as though only half conscious of her surroundings. If as the result of last night's developments there had been a scene, the girl bore no sign of it.

He put a few leading questions to Mrs. Morningstar as she gave him his breakfast. This matter of his late and solitary breakfast had troublesome one to adjust in his assumption of the character of a farmhand, since not even his desire to retain his incognito would have induced him to get up to the family's 4 o'clock meal. He had finally, after considerable difficulty, negotiated with his landlady for breakfast in his room, except on such mornings as the coast was left clear by the early departure of the other boarders to the woods or "wherever," as Mrs. Morningstar referred to their wanderings.

"Well," he remarked as he broke an egg, while Mrs. Morningstar filled a glass with milk for him, "where was Eunice last night, anyway, when you were all looking for her?"

"Och, her!" snapped Mrs. Morningstar disparagingly. "Well, us we conceited she'd went off buggy ridin' with Abe. The way she tries behind my back to make up with our Abe! I tell her she hasn't a shame, and after all I done fur her yet a'ready!"

"But she had not gone with Abe?"

"No; here when Ollie she went up to bed I guess near an hour after we was astin' you had you saw Eunice anywheres, why, there was Eunice in bed asleep. Ollie she waked her and ast her where was she awhile back when we was all lookin' fur her, and Eunice she got stubborn headed and wouldn't answer to Ollie. She's the worst stubborn head, that girl is! I just believe she was out somewheres makin' up to our Abe. But Abe he got rid of her and went to see some other one, I guess, fur he didn't come home till late."

AMONG THE MONGOLS.

British Expedition Will Explore Little Known Land.

Preparations are in progress for the despatch of an important British expedition, which is being organized privately, to western and Northwestern Mongolia, a region concerning which practically nothing has been written in the English language. Russian explorers alone have done any extensive work in the country. A great point of interest is the fact that the region is the cradle of the ancient Turkish race. The objects in view are thoroughly to explore the country from the botanical zoological, and geographical standpoints. The scene of exploration presents various aspects, the Gobi desert being bordered on the north by high mountain ranges. The goal of the expedition is the upper source of the Yenissei, a large shut-in basin, very little known. This is surrounded by high mountains, and is covered by dense forests and bogs. The expedition will consist of Mr. M. P. Price, who goes especially to study the forestry and botany of the country, and Mr. J. H. Miller and Mr. D. Carruthers, who will divide the work of natural history and the management of the expedition. Both the last named have had considerable experience in Central Asia. The expedition will leave England at the end of March, traveling via St. Petersburg to Kransnoyarsk the nearest point of the Siberian railway to the field of exploration. Then they will go by steamer up the Yenissei river to Minnusinsk. There the caravan will be organized, and the travelers will proceed into Chinese territory. The country to be traversed lies between Lake Baikal and Chinese Turkestan. The expedition will probably be absent a year, and the route of its return will depend on circumstances. The Chinese Government has given the necessary permission to travel in the country, and is lending all assistance. It is hoped that some archaeological discoveries will result. Although the country is too far north of Chinese Turkestan to yield discoveries similar to those made by Dr. Stein, it may yield some traces of the original Turkish people, regarding whom no real investigation has been made. Possibly the chief interest of the undertaking centres in these investigations, which will now be conducted by Englishmen for the first time.

A WOMAN'S WORKER.

Mrs. Willoughby Cummings Has Held Many Positions.

The selection last week of Mrs. Willoughby Cummings as field secretary of the women's department of the annuities branch of the Department of Trade and Commerce is generally recognized as a good appointment. Mrs. Cummings has been an active worker in women's organizations for several years past. She was a member of The Toronto Globe's editorial staff for ten years, conducting the women's department with industry and discrimination. She early became interested in the National Council of Women of Canada, and was its secretary from its formation in 1894 until a few days ago. She has since been nominated as a vice-president. She has also been chairman of finance committee of the International Council of Women, a diocesan officer of the Church of England Women's Auxiliary to Missions since its formation, and also an officer of the general board. As if this were not enough, Mrs. Cummings has also been vice-president of the Associated Charities, a member of the ladies' committee of the Canadian National Exhibition, and a member of the board of the Victorian Order of Nurses. Mrs. Cummings is a graceful platform speaker, a good organizer, and should be a good officer in her new position.

Could Have Been Avoided

Mrs. Newrich was growing accustomed to power. She enjoyed it, and was irritated when any one presumed to differ from her in opinion. When the sailing party of which she had been a member, landed on the shores of the lake, rainsoaked and frightened, Mrs. Newrich was the only one who cared to talk.

"It could all have been avoided if that captain had done as I told him," she said, between the chattering of her teeth, as the party stood huddled under a small shelter.

"When I saw that cloud coming from that corner of the lake I said to him, 'I think you'd better make straight for home, and not sperd any more time ticking;' but he paid no more attention than if I hadn't spoken!"

125 Preparations Under One Trade Mark.

A most striking example of the growth of the Trade Mark idea in Canada is being announced for the first time to-day in the newspapers throughout the Dominion. It is the "NA-DRU-CO." line of about one-hundred and twenty-five toilet and medicinal preparations, compounded by the National Drug and Chemical Company of Canada, Limited.

All these preparations bear the NA-DRU-CO. Trade Mark, the shield with the red cross, prominently displayed, and to make the line still more distinctive each article is attractively dressed in a pleasing shade of red.

In their first advertisement, which appears on another page in this issue, The National Drug Company feature this Trade Mark. They point out some of the important advantages to every family in Canada of a thoroughly reliable, easily recognized line, covering practically every household need in the way of toilet and medicinal articles, and guaranteed by a responsible firm.

The National Drug Company guarantee that every NA-DRU-CO. preparation is compounded by qualified chemists only, and from the purest drugs. As a proof that the formula are such as the best physicians would use, they make a unique offer which completely disarms the doubts which often creep into one's mind with regard to medicinal preparations.

Their "Money Back" offer helps still more to inspire confidence in the NA-DRU-CO. line, whose variety and completeness is shown by the partial list given in their advertisement.

Blood Poisoning Started from Wound

An accident which threatened worst Results until DR. CHASE'S OINTMENT was applied.

No wound or hurt but what has serious possibilities unless antiseptic treatment is applied to prevent blood poisoning.

Lives are often saved by having at hand a box of Dr. Chase's Ointment. Its antiseptic properties prevent blood poisoning and it is so remarkably healing that cure is soon brought about.

This case will interest you. Mrs. C. Hopkins, St. George, Ont., writes: "I feel like shouting the praises of Dr. Chase's Ointment. One day last year while threshing my son got badly hurt by having the prongs of a fork run into his leg. In a day or two it began to get very sore and blood poisoning set in. We did everything for it but it would heal in one place and break out in another. This kept on for three months when finally we got a box of Dr. Chase's Ointment.

"In about a week's time we noticed a wonderful change and by using three boxes he was cured completely. He has had no return of trouble. My husband was cured of a bad case of piles by the use of two boxes of Dr. Chase's Ointment."

Dr. Chase's Ointment is useful in scores of ways in every home. While its great reputation has been made as a cure for eczema and piles there is not a case of itching or irritated skin disease in which it will fail to bring relief.

The better you become acquainted with Dr. Chase's Ointment the better you will appreciate its wonderful soothing, healing qualities. Any druggist will tell you of its remarkable record of cures.

"OLD DRURY'S" KING.

Arthur Collins Is the Manager of the Great Pantomime Theatre.

Mr. Arthur Collins, the man who makes the pantomime at the National Theatre, the world-famous "Old Drury," in London, is a particularly interesting personage. The production of a pantomime at the most renowned of British theatres is a task of huge proportions. It sets and keeps going for many months prior and subsequent to the event a vast army of workers. Some of these are "regulars," some few are enthusiastic "volunteers," whilst there is a large company of "reservists." All drill zealously during the prolonged training period for the ultimate triumph of their able general, Arthur Collins.

Each year sees something glorious attempted, each year sees something glorious done. Each season brings a new ambition to eclipse the one gone before; each season registers the desire fulfilled. For years Drury Lane Theatre has been pursuing a course of pantomime excellence that every recurring Christmas is pronounced by delighted audiences to be superlative.

How is this achieved?

Thus. The scheme of the pantomime having been conceived in the master managerial mind of Mr. Arthur Collins, the heads of the numerous departments in the great National Theatre are enlightened, and soon the whole machinery is set in motion. It is no exaggeration to say that one pantomime has scarcely run its course when the first stages of the next one are entered upon. The "book" is not written till late in the proceedings, so that "topics" may receive their full attention therein; but he who writes a pantomime must be prepared to "miss" the bulk of his pen-work when the piece has been running for a few weeks. This is the result of alterations and interpolations. A well-known pantomime writer was once lately asked by the manager of a theatre, where one of his Christmas pieces was being played, what he thought of it. "Well," replied the scribe, "what I found of it wasn't bad."

The music, upon the attractiveness of which so much of the success of a pantomime depends, has to be composed and arranged; the elaborately beautiful dresses designed and executed, the company and supernumeraries engaged, the scenery painted, and the "properties" made.

Drury Lane has a very fine paint-room and commodious property-rooms. The former is lofty, well-lighted, and fitted with every appliance for the convenience of the scenic artist. Enormous frames, one of them seventy feet long, work up and down through slots in the flooring by means of a windlass. This enables the artist to work at his ease upon any portion of the canvas fixed upon it. Mammoth "cloths," "flats," and "wings" are thus readily dealt with.

The "property-rooms" at "Old Drury" are bustling but orderly beehives for many weeks before the opening of the season's great pantomime spectacle. Men and women work at top speed, the latter attending to bead-work and drapery, the former turning out colossal figures in papier-mache. It is very interesting to note that "properties" of the best quality cannot be procured so satisfactorily from abroad as those which are made in Britain. As may be readily supposed, the cost of a Drury Lane pantomime is enormous, and the "houses" need be packed and many to properly balance the managerial ledger and leave a surplus to be "carried forward." But "thorough" is the watchword of all who take office at "Old Drury," and the traditions of the ancient house can alone be sustained by lavish show and unstinted outlay.

Princess In the Slums.

Sympathy for the poor, kindness, and unconventionality are the chief characteristics of Princess Victoria of Schleswig-Holstein, whose water-color sketches have been sold in aid of King Edward VII. Hospital at Windsor. Many instances are recorded of the princess' devotion of both time and money to the poor, and her untiring labors of love and her complete absence of "side" have gained for her a place in the hearts of the people of the slum districts. In Bermondsey, where her good work is chiefly carried on, few of the dwellers are aware of her identity. Princess Victoria tells many good stories of her work in the slums. On the occasion of a visit to a poor home her royal highness found a pale-faced young mother unsuccessfully trying to soothe her crying babe to sleep. Princess Victoria suggested that the mother should try milk as a remedy. "No," said the parent, "'es's 'ad enough. There's only one thing that will do it, and I can't do it because I've got a sore throat." "Perhaps I could?" suggested the royal visitor. "I should be glad if you could," responded the woman. "If you make a noise like a bottle 'e'll be off in a jiffy."

His Cue.

Supers on the stage are responsible for a great many amusing incidents and Mr. Gerald Lawrence, the London actor, told a particularly good one recently. He was conducting a rehearsal, and at one point of the play, where there is a general assembly of soldiers and courtiers, one of the supers lagged behind. "Why didn't you get off with the others?" cried Mr. Lawrence. "You saw them all go." The man looked confused for a moment. "Well, sir, I wasn't the same cue as I had when I played in this piece afore." Now there could only have been one cue, so Mr. Lawrence said, "Really! Well, what cue did you have before?" "Well, sir," came the reply, "it was like this: the gentleman as used to stand behind me used to turn round and say, 'Get off, you idiot!'"

Inducements to Servants.

From the plaintive phraseology of their advertisements, one infers that Australian housewives are confronted with a crisis in the problem of domestic service. One offers "plenty of outings"; another throws out the bait of "Sunday free"; while a third goes one better with "Saturday afternoons and Sundays off."

Made No Difference

"Sir, I wish to make your daughter my wife!

The old man hesitated. "Hadn't you better see her mother first?" he asked, gently, after thinking a moment.

"I've seen her mother, and it doesn't make any difference—I'm willing to take the chances!" exclaimed the youth, with all the ardor of honest love.—Puck.

FROM A SHADOW TO ROBUST HEALTH

Is the Change Dr. Williams' Pink Pills Made in a New Brunswick Woman.

Anaemia—bloodlessness—is a trouble confined largely to women and growing girls. Its victims are pale; they lose all strength—the least exertion greatly fatigues them and they suffer continually from headaches and depressed spirits. Nothing will cure anaemia so quicly or so surely as Dr. Williams' Pink Pills—they have cured thousands of cases, not only in Canada but throughout the whole world. They do this because they make good blood. Among those cured by these Pills is Mrs. T. Chalmer Hartley, East Florenceville, N.B., who says. "At the age of sixteen I fell away to a mere shadow. I had scarcely any blood and suffered from all the distressing symptoms of anaemia. Doctors did not help me in the least, and acting on the advice of a friend I began taking Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. They effected a remarkable change in my condition; indeed I really believe they saved my life, as I have been well and strong ever since I took them. I also recommended the Pills to a neighbor's daughter who was similarly run down, and they also completely restored her health."

Every woman and growing girl should take Dr. Williams' Pink Pills occasionally. If you are ailing from any of the many troubles which afflict your sex they will cure you, if you are not ailing they will protect your health and keep you well and strong. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by all dealers in medicine or direct at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

At a church school, once upon a time, when a concert was being held, the choir was on the programme to sing an anthem and their place was designated by the single word "Anthem." The gentleman who was master of ceremonies, a high-toned, pompous individual of the old school, when he came to that part of the programme announced, in a dignified way:

"Mr. Anthem will now favor us."

KEEP BABY'S SKIN CLEAR

Few parents realize how many estimable lives have been embittered and social and business success prevented by serious skin affections which so often result from the neglect of minor eruptions in infancy and childhood. With but a little care and the use of proper emollients, baby's skin and hair may be preserved, purified and beautified, minor eruptions prevented from becoming chronic and torturing, disfiguring rashes, itchings, irritations and chafings dispelled.

To this end nothing is so pure, so sweet, so speedily effective as the use of Cuticura Soap, assisted when necessary by Cuticura Ointment. Send to Potter Drug & Chem. Corp., Boston, U.S.A., sole proprietors, for their free 32-page Cuticura Book, telling all about the care and treatment of the skin.

"Your methods," said the indignant official, "were simply highway robbery."

"Again you wrong me," answered the sugar importer. "They were low-weigh robbery."—Ohio State Journal.

A Remedy for Bilious Headache.—To those subject to Bilious headache, Parmelee's Vegetable Pills are recommended as the way to speedy relief. Taken according to directions they will subdue irregularities of the stomach [illegible] blood vessels that the pains in the head will cease. There are few who are not at sometime subject to biliousness and familiar with its attendant evils. Yet none need suffer with these pills at hand.

An athletic dropped in a fit on the streets of Boston not long ago, and was taken to a hospital. Upon removing his coat there was found pinned to his waistcoat a slip of paper on which was written:

"This is to inform the surgeon that this is just a case of plain fit, not appendicitis. My appendix has already been taken out twice."—Healthy Home.

The Result of Observation

Helen was having a spirited conversation over her doll. Her brother tried ineffectually to get in a word here and there and at last, just stood and listened.

"My dolly can see, tause she has eyes. And she can hear tause she has ears. And she can smell tause she has a nose." Then she hesitated, but only for a second. "But my dolly can't talk," she finished.

At this juncture, Harold entered with desperation into the conversation. "But if your dolly was a girl dolly," he said, "she could talk."

John and Mary had been sharing one chair all the evening. John sat on the chair and Mary sat on John. After about three hours of this Mary suddenly exclaimed:

"Oh, John, aren't you tired?"

John smiled a brave, patient smile. "Not now," he said, gently. "No; not now. I was about an hour ago, but now I'm only paralyzed!"

"I can see you're worried about me, dear," said the very sick man.

"Oh, not at all," replied his wife promptly.

"But why do you look so gloomy, then?"

City Council

The City Council met in regular session on Monday evening last, there being present Aldermen Stewart, McLeod, Merrifield and the Mayor.

The minutes of previous meeting were read and adopted.

A communication was received from D. Cameron, of Vancouver, stating that he would serve in the capacity of engineer for sewer construction for the usual five per cent on cost of sewer and certain expenses. The communication was laid on the table.

Accounts, Colonist, $33.00; Vancouver Province, $16.50; P. P. Harrison, $10.00; A. McKinnon, $8.00; M. F. Hennessy, $13.50.

Constable Gray's report, Scavenger, $113.50; Night Watchman, 74.50; Road Tax, $68.00; Hall Rent, $25.00; Police Court, $53.00; Scavenger Buckets, $2.40.

A delegation from the hospital board was present. Mr. L. Mounce speaking for the delegation, said that they were there in the matter of hospital drainage. The overflow from septic tank was running into government grounds, which was objected to as an offensive nuisance. Mr. Mounce asked the council if they could do anything to abate the nuisance as it was a menace to health. The mayor in reply, said that he was sorry, but nothing could be done until a proper sewerage system is installed. The delegation also stated that the free telephone promised the hospital, had not as yet been installed. The Telephone Company will be asked to place same, as promised.

M. Manson, M. P. P. who was present, addressed the council on the government's attitude toward Cumberland in the matter of aid to sewerage, and stated when last in Victoria he discussed the matter fully with the government and although he could not exact any definite promise from them, yet he thought that he had impressed favorably in the city's behalf, and recommended that they write to the government asking them to make the loan or guarantee the bonds, also stating how much of the loan they would be prepared to pay off each year. If this was done he thought that they might be induced to favorably consider the matter.

A hearty vote of thanks was tendered Mr. Manson for his interest in the matter.

The Pilsener Brewing Co., will be permitted to connect with city sewer, and will pay a rental of $2. per month for the privilege.

There being no further general business, the council went into private session on the sewer loan by-law.
