A Hot Vancouver.

Vancouver, Sept. 7—The Asiatic League had a meeting this evening. Parade was organized at Cambie street grounds and marched a thousand or more strong to the city hall where Lient-Gov. Dunsnuir was burned in effigy. They carried white banners labeled for white Canada. Several resolutions were brought in and finally an amendment was carried asking McBride to report at next meeting on Thursday.

While meeting was in progress the Chinese and Japanese quarters were raided where windows were smashed. Fire brigade was called out to keep mob back. Crowds gathered at corner of Hastings and Carrall streets but was kept from Chinatown by crowds of policemen. The Japs come out armed and shouting "Banzai" attacked the crowd. The police fired to intimidate.

Vancouver 9—The Japanese quarters was armed campaign on Sunday night. An extra edition of the Japanese paper came out early in the day announcing that police were unable to afford protection to life and property, and that the Japs themselves must be prepared to repel the attack. The mob found 5 blocks of Powell street patrolled by Japs prepared and armed without fear. Lined up along the street the Mikado's men had clubs, revolvers or long knives in their hands. It put fear into the hearts of the mob and none of Saturday night's scenes were repeated. Japanese were prepared for battle if a single window were broken. They were incensed that one Japanese injured Saturday night had died and that a second had been murdered but the police were unable to find any confirmation of this.

Hishi says that 56 windows were broken on Powell street alone. Costs of damages will be prepared immediately and presented to the city for payment. He regards the present incident much more important than that of San Francisco where but little damage was done.

Vancouver, 8—For five hours last night the city was a roit town ruled by a mob. Seven men were placed under arrest and a dozen persons stabbed or bruised in and subjects for the hospital. The scenes were the wildest ever witnessed in Western Canada.

Vancouver, Sept. 9—The latest in the situation is that all the Chinese domestics and mill employees in Vancouver quit work this morning and announced their intention of staying in Chinatown until the roit trouble is over. Chinese boys who sleep in their employees houses were notified by telephone that they must leave immediately or they would be killed. A great many instances of this threat being made are given. When the hardware stores opened this morning Chinamen swarmed the sidewalk and crowded the stores immediately. Hundreds of revolvers were sold in a few minutes and the Chinese struck for Chinatown. An hour later the police notified the stores to stop selling guns till the trouble was over.

How He Got 'em.

Game season stories are so many and so fierce these days that the present hot spell is likely to continue for some time. The following is worth remembering. Last week one chap killed three birds in one shot and then becoming weary sat down on the bank of the river to rest. He saw fish. Puzzled look passed over his face, not knowing much about the fishing he began to plan how he might surprise the other chaps on their return. The upshot of it was that he cut the boys' bacon into long strips, and attached one on a hot pin at the end of a short string. He succeeded so well in chocking the fish to death that in a short time he had a baker's dozen to show the boys on their return to camp half an hour later.

A Grand Time.

The big Game Supper and Grand Ball given by the Gun Club has been enjoyed and by this time the boys are enjoying three square meals same as before "the great event of the season." Ask any of those present if they had a good time and their faces will suddenly lighten up and eventually beam like a day in June. The answers may be many and varied but all show that the few happy hours spent last Wednesday evening would be well worth living over again.

The boys had the hall decorated with evergreens, pictures of woodland scenery, deer heads, ducks and anything that betokened a hunters life during the shooting season. On the platform was a tent all ready for the return of the hunters. The whole presenting a most artistic appearance.

The dance was a good one, with excellent music, making everyone feel it was good to trip to such magnificent time.

The supper at the Cumberland was the great drawing card of the evening, and well it might be for the hostess, Mrs. Picket, in her well known hospitable style, not resting upon the reputation already established, had spared no pains in preparing the feast. A banquet at the Cumberland is to be remembered and a glance at the following bill of fare will possibly make some of our readers wish they had been there.

The Hunters.

There is usually a limit to most things but there is apparently none to the stories told of the time the boys went out to shoot game for the grand supper. The other evening at the Waverley one was telling the boys how he had killed twenty birds in ten shots. He and some others had gone out together but he killed more than the others put together. Along strolled another. "How many'd you kill?" asked a doubtful acquaintance.

"Fifteen birds," replied the late comer. "Just twice as many as him," pointing to the first comer.

Another of the party arrived. "Set 'em up," he cheerfully ordered. "I'm buying now, I was the only one in the crowd got a grouse. He, pointing to the first comer didn't shoot nuthin' but his dog, and he, pointing to second party, got a woodpecker." Such are the tales, but if every hunter killed half of what he claimed there would be a close season for grouse for the next ten years on Deanna Island.

On Wednesday and Thursday the 18th and 19th the Comox exhibition will be held and if the energy of Secretary Ball during the past few months will count for anything the fair will be a grand success. Cumberland people can look for something extra judging by what we hear.

As to the sports, the programme will be out in the course of a few days and it is expected to be a good one. Cumberland boys are hoping the committee will have baseball as they are anxious to get at the Little River team once more.

FAMOUS JUDGE AND JESTER.

Wit of Scottish Bench Who Lived in Five Reigns.

The death is announced of Lord Young, who passed away in a private nursing home in the West End of London. His Lordship, who was in his 88th year, met with an accident when walking through the Temple, and the shock hastened his end. The cause of death is certified as cerebral hemorrhage and old age. His remains were removed to Edinburgh for interment. Born when George III. was still on the throne, the Right Hon. George Young—his title was purely honorary—lived in five reigns. He was still at Edinburgh University when Lord John Russell was fighting on behalf of his Reform Bill, and before Queen Victoria had been three years on the throne he was making a name at the Scottish Bar. For over 30 years he was a judge of the Court of Session, Edinburgh, retiring only two years ago, and his rare legal erudition was pleasantly seasoned with the salt of a ready wit. Before his nomination to the judgeship by Mr. Gladstone he made his mark in the House of Commons, where he represented the Wigton Burghs in the Liberal interest, and twice filled the office of Solicitor-General to Scotland and Lord Advocate. It has been said of Lord Young that he was the only judicial humorist of whom Scotland could boast. One of the sayings attributed to him was that there are three degrees of those who bear testimony in courts—the liar, the—liar, and the expert witness. In the case of a clever swindler who had earned some fame as a philanthropist, an advocate pleaded clemency, reminding the judge that those who gave to the poor lent to the Lord. "True, Mr. —," said Lord Young, "but I'm afraid we cannot cash your man's post obits in this court."

A Heavy Premium.

Another of his sayings was that the gift of half a million to the Church of Scotland by the late Mr. James Baird, the ironmaster, was the "heaviest fire insurance premium ever paid." He was staying at Dalmerly when news came that Lord Wolmer had been returned by three votes for West Edinburgh. The next arrival explained that the figures should have been 300, and that two Lords of Session, whom he named, had voted for Lord Wolmer. "That accounts for the two ciphers," said Lord Young. Going on—assize—with the late Lord Deas, when it was the custom to open the court with prayer, Lord Young remarked at luncheon afterwards, "Very long prayer that fellow gave us to-day, but, after all, I suppose it's quite right when Deas goes on circuit that the attention of the Almighty should be specially called to the fact." When one of the Lords Ordinary in the outer House of the Court of Session, Young had a somewhat heavy roll of business, partly owing to a vacancy on the Bench having been kept open longer than usual. One of his colleagues at the time was Lord Craighill, and the new judge, when at last he was appointed, took the title of Lord Curriehill. On the appointment being announced Lord Young gratefully quoted the first two lines of the 121st Psalm:

I to the "hills" will lift mine eyes,
From whence doth come mine aid.

Lord Young's speeches and stories were always good. At the banquet which followed the ceremony of conferring upon him the freedom of Dumfries, four years ago, he told the company a story about his father who in the old days owned some very fine apple trees.

Raids Upon Fruit.

There were many raids made upon the fruit, and Lord Young's father laid hold of a likely youth one day and offered him half-a-crown if he would give a hint as to who was responsible. The boy accepted the money on the condition that when the culprit's name was disclosed he would not be punished. In telling this story Lord Young caused much merriment by turning to the Provost of the town, who was in the chair, and asking him what he did with the half-a-crown. His lordship was one of the last links with Robert Burns. He knew Jean Armour, Burn's widow, and frequently partook of hospitality in the house in which the poet had lived, and in which he died. His lordship also knew Burn's children, and the poet's granddaughter, who lived with Jean Armour, frequently visited his father's house. Lord Young was one of the benchors of the Middle Temple, and though his visits were rare, he was one of the most popular of the Masters. He was the senior member of the Bench excepting only the King, who from the time of his election when Prince of Wales of course took priority.

Overlooked the Side Issue.

Andy Horn, who was once a well-known proprietor of a large saloon on the east side, New York, was hiring as barkeeper a man since prominent in political life and who told the story with considerable glee.
"I'll give you $10 a month," said Andy.
"Ten dollars! A man can't live on that!"
"You forget the pickings," said Andy in serious earnest. "The barkeepers down here tell each other that my ill's the easiest one to work in New York."
"I took the job without further argument," says the ex-barkeeper.

Tommy—But it hasn't made any difference.—Punch.

No Alcohol in It—Alcohol or any other volatile matter which would impair strength by evaporation does not in any shape enter into the manufacture of Dr. Thomas' Electric Oil. On one occasion a person entered Professor Agassiz's room with a picture which he desired to sell, denominated a "Birdseye View of Cambridge." The professor contemplated it for a moment, lifted his eyes, looked at the vendor of the picture, and said with his characteristic accent: "Well, I thank my stars zat I am not a bird."—Boston Transcript.

Minard's Liniment Cures Distemper.
ANOTHER CANUCK MAKES GOOD.

Dr. Miller Takes Up Important Appointment in the States.

Dr. L. W. Miller, who has just taken up his duties as psychopathologist at the Cook County Institution at Dunning (Chicago), Ill., is a young Canadian who is making quite a name for himself in the United States. The case of Dr. Miller may be cited as an example to illustrate the extent to which civil service reform has been carried on in the Republic during the last few years. When he first offered himself as a candidate as an assistant in an institution for the insane in Massachusetts—although he had been assured that merit alone would be considered in making the appointment—he naturally had misgivings that, as an alien without influence, and in view of the general impression regarding the prevalence of political "pull" in filling offices in the States, that he would be discriminated against. But the result of his application proved a pleasant surprise to himself and his friends. There were three places to be filled and, of the numerous candidates who wrote on the examination, only two came up to the standard set and received appointment. One was a Canadian—Dr. Miller himself—and the other a Scotchman from Glasgow—both British subjects.

Since that time Dr. Miller has become quite widely known by the medical profession in the United States as an authority on the pathological treatment of insanity. He secured his present quite important and remunerative position entirely on his merits. Of the ninety candidates for the place he made the highest showing on examination, and was promptly offered the appointment.

There has been in the United States of late a great awakening to the need of more scientific and rational treatment of insanity as a mental disease possible of prevention, amelioration and cure. We in Canada are far behind our neighbors in this regard. Unfortunately, although a Canadian, Dr. Miller would not, under present conditions in Ontario at least, stand much chance of being given the opportunity to turn his talents to the service of his native country, his family being strong Liberals. It is understood that had he been a Conservative he would probably have been secured by the Ontario Government to improve methods of treating the insane in this province. It is said, indeed, that one member of the Cabinet was very desirous of securing him for this work. But although the doctor would have willingly remained here at a smaller salary than he is receiving in Chicago, such an appointment was a political impossibility.

Dr. Miller is a son of Mr. C. J. Miller, ex-Mayor of Orillia, Ont. He graduated in medicine at the University of Toronto in 1895.—Saturday Night.

Congenial Employment.
The high prize of life, the crowning fortune of man, is to be born to some pursuit which finds him in employment and happiness, whether it be to make baskets or broadswords or canals or statues or songs.—Emerson.

Able For the Rest.
"William, were you ever whipped at school?" queried the visitor.
"Only by the teacher," was the rather significant reply.

Use For Scraps of Soap.
A good way of using scraps of soap is to add them to the household cleansing mixture. This is useful in every household for cleansing paint, removing grease from clothes and all other occasions when a good cleansing preparation is needed. Keep a wide mouthed bottle, and into it throw all odds and ends of soap. When you have a small collection of these, add a teaspoonful of powdered saltpeter, ditto rock ammonia and about a quart of warm, soft water, says the Cos. Corner. Leave the mixture till it is cooled. A little of this may be dissolved in water or on a flannel and will be found an invaluable cleanser.

Making it Worse.
Wife—I'm sorry I scolded you this morning, dear. It has affected my peace of mind all day.
Husband—Oh, then you have made the discovery at last, have you?
Wife—What discovery?
Husband—That you have only a piece of mind.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Not Her Game.
"Low bridge!" sang out the guide taking the party over the vessel.
The society matron held her head still higher, with appreciation of her consequence.
"Oh, but I always play high," she remarked in haughty disdain of the warning.—Baltimore American.

Then We'd Hear Something.
"It's in the world of politics," said the talkative man, "that the truth of the old saying 'money talks' is most frequently proved."
"Yes," replied the wise citizen, "but if hush money would only talk, what sensations we would have!"—Detroit Free Press.

PEN-ANGLE

What you spend for underwear buys about real value in fit, comfort, service—only when each garment bears the trade mark in red that guarantees you satisfaction or your money back.

Made in many fabrics and styles, at various prices, in form-fitting sizes for women, men and children. See that the PEN-ANGLE is there—it insures your money's worth.

"Well, are you getting better?"
"No, I'm just managing to keep out of the grave."
"Oh, I'm sorry to hear that." —Smialek.

Worms derange the whole system. Mother Graves' Worm Exterminator deranges worms and gives rest to the sufferer. It only costs 25 cents to try it and be convinced.

Artist—No, they rejected my picture, the wretches.
Friend—Why?
Artist—How should I know? The oil was bad perhaps.—Nos Loisirs.

Boy—My mother bought some slippers last week.
Man—Felt?
Boy—Yep. Three times already.—Denver Post.

THE RECORD ADMIRAL FURNACE

Is fitted with the improved Record Triangular Grate—the most perfect furnace grate on the market. Of the four triangular grate bars, each bar is operated by the use of a handle applied to either of the two centre bars. To remove this handle after shaking is impossible until the grate bar has been returned to its original position, flat and in place, without any of the coals sticking up. The result is that the bars are always flat under the fire and that it is impossible for lumps of coal to drop through and be wasted. The Record Triangular Grate can be entirely removed from without without lying on stomach or bothering with a light.

SO HARD TO BE POLITE

IT'S very hard to be polite
If you're a cat.
When other folks are up at table
Eating all that they are able,
You are down upon the mat
If you're a cat.

You're expected just to sit
If you're a cat.
Not to let them know you're there
By scratching at the chair,
Or a light, respectful pat
If you're a cat.

You are not to make a fuss
If you're a cat.
Though there's fish upon the plate
You're expected just to wait.
Wait politely on the mat
If you're a cat.

GOOD TIMES FOR ALL

Blowing the Candle.

PLACE a lighted candle on a table at the end of a room. Invite someone to stand in front of it, then blindfold him, make him take three steps backwards, turn round three times and then advance three steps and blow out the candle. If he fails he must pay a forfeit. It will be found that very few are able to succeed, simple though the test appears to be.

"Brother, I'm Bobbed."

Two players having seated themselves side by side their heads are then covered with a cloth or shawl, so that they are blindfolded. One of the players, who understands the game, slips the coverting from his own head, and taking his slipper, calls out, "Brother, I'm bobbed." The second player replies, "Brother, who bobbed you?" The first player names one of the company, as though he was making a guess, and the company, entering into the fun, cry out "Wrong." The player then taps his blindfolded companion on the head. He at once cries out, "Brother, I'm bobbed." His companion asks him, "Brother, who bobbed you?" Naturally, the victim calls out the wrong name, and it is generally some time before he discovers the trick played upon him.

Capping Verses.

The players are supplied with slips of paper and a pencil, and every one writes a line of poetry, either original or from memory. Then the slips must be folded, so that the line is hidden; but the last word of the line must be written over the fold. The slips are passed on, so that a different writer supplies the next line, which must rhyme with the last word of the previous line. Again the slips are passed on, a new line is written and passed on with the new rhyming word, written on the fold. When the papers have gone the round of the company the slips are unfolded and the verses read out.

In the Land of Let's Pretend.

IN the Land of Let's Pretend,
Ah! what magic hours we spend!
Boy and I are knights of old,
Clad in armor of bright gold,
Or he a hunter after prey,
And I a bear, or wolf, gaunt, gray,
And with a fearful roar! We twain
Another day, fight foes in Spain,
Ah! what magic hours we spend,
In the Land of Let's Pretend!

In the Land of Let's Pretend,
We have battles without end.
I the Dragon am, and Boy,
Brave St. George, his sword no toy
But a "blade" that glitters bright,
Always for "the true and right."
The wicked bandits always yield,
When Boy waves his sword and shield,
In those battles without end,
In the Land of Let's Pretend.

In the Land of Let's Pretend
Ah! what magic hours we spend!
The witchery of elfland falls
Upon those modest nursery walls.
Rosy childhood's fairy spell
Holds his soul—and mine as well.
Who fares the further, Boy or I,
In day-dreams guests "to do or die"
Ah! what wondrous hours we spend
In the Land of Let's Pretend!

lineator.

These Are Rival Ponies

TWENTON
The smallest Shetland pony born and bred in England.

FOR years the Shetland pony has been popular with those who could afford to purchase one of these diminutive animals, and in many wealthy households they have been installed as pets. There has now appeared what promises to be a serious rival to the Shetland pony, however, for of late ponies have been imported from Iceland of even smaller stature than those that hail from Great Britain's northernmost isles.

The Iceland pony is shaggier and altogether less imposing than his Shetland kinsman, but he makes an ideal steed for the little children of the aristocracy to bestride. Society has with one accord welcomed these little ani-

A MISUNDERSTOOD FRUIT

Taking out the Eyes

Use a Silver Fork to Break it Apart

INSTEAD of being the indigestible fruit which for so long they were believed to be, pineapples are winning name and fame for themselves as one of nature's numerous specifics for the very trouble they were supposed to create—indigestion. It was Senor Marcano to whom the credit of the delicious discovery is due—he it was who found that it was only the tough core that was indigestible, and which gave the fruit its bad name.

Then another discovery was made—an old story in the country of the pineapple, Africa, but now, indeed, to this country—that it was of use in certain throat troubles, notably quinsy and tonsillitis, the fresh fruit, or its sweetened juice, or even the canned form, when the other was not available. So good a medicine has it proved, in fact, that it is ranked among drugs, both in powdered form and as a tincture. Serving the fruit as a dessert, after a heavy dinner, proves conclusively enough its value as a digester; and, like all of the natural medicines, it cures without causing some other trouble by way of reaction.

There are dozens of ways to serve it, perhaps none of them more delicious than the simplest of all—the picked pineapple.

Picked pineapple is delicious in winter time, served with vanilla ice cream, with a dab of whipped cream on top.

Some interesting ways of preparing it are:

Picked Pineapple.

Peel the pineapple and remove the little dark protuberances upon the surface of the fruit. With a fork pick or tear the fruit into strips, strew these with granulated sugar and set in the ice until wanted.

Pineapples and Berries in the Shell.

Trim the bottom of a large pineapple so that it will stand upright. Cut off the top, but do not throw it away. With a sharp knife dig out the inside of the fruit, taking care that the knife does not penetrate the sides or walls of the pineapple. Put this hollowed case and the top into the refrigerator until needed. Pick the inside of the pineapple into tiny bits, and mix with it a cupful of red raspberries or strawberries. Sweeten abundantly with granulated sugar, and turn the fruit into a glass, or a china jar, with a closely fitting cover. Put on the lid and bury the jar in the ice for several hours. Just before time to serve it, remove from the ice, fill the hollowed shell with the fruit mixture, replace the top on the pineapple and send to table.

Pineapple Trifle.

Grate or chop a pineapple very fine, after peeling it and removing the "eyes." Soak a half-box of gelatine for an hour in a half cupful of cold water, then add a cupful of granulated sugar and a cupful of boiling water, and stir over the fire just long enough to dissolve the gelatine. As the mixture cools add the pineapple; set the bowl containing it in a vessel of cracked ice, and stir steadily until the mixture thickens. Now beat in a pint of sweetened, whipped cream and turn into a mold wet with cold water. When formed, eat with powdered sugar and cream.

Pineapple Fudding.

Peel and chop a pineapple and cover with granulated sugar. Let it stand in the icebox for an hour; then drain the juice from the fruit, saving both. In the bottom of a buttered pudding dish put a layer of split "lady fingers," and over them pour a little of the pineapple juice, to which you have added two teaspoonfuls of lemon juice. Spread the lady fingers with a layer of the chopped pineapple; put in another layer of the pineapple and more of the juice and fruit. Have the top layer of the moistened pineapple. Cover, set the pudding dish in an outer pan of boiling water, and bake in a steady oven for at least an hour. Uncover and brown lightly. Serve this pudding with hot liquid sauce flavored with the juice of two lemons and the grated peel of one.

Pineapple Cream.

Soak a half box of gelatine in a scant cupful of cold water for an hour. Peel a small pineapple and grate it; then cover with a cup of sugar, and let it stand for an hour before stirring the soaked gelatine into it. Turn all into a saucepan set within a pan of boiling water, and stir until the gelatine and sugar are dissolved. Remove from the fire and let it cool, but not stiffen. Whip a pint of cream very stiff. Stand the saucepan containing the gelatine and pineapple in a deep bowl of cracked ice, and as the mixture stiffens heat into it by the spoonful, the whipped cream. Beat steadily until all the cream is in and the jelly is stiff and white. Turn into a glass bowl, and set in the ice for some hours. Serve with rich cream.

Pineapple and Orange in the Shell

Cut the top from a pineapple and carefully remove the inside so that the shell may not be broken. Cut the pulp into bits, mix it with the pulp of three oranges, also cut very small, and liberally sweeten the mixture. Smooth off the bottom of the pineapple shell so that it will stand upright; refill with the fruit pulp, put on the top and set in the ice for about hours.

New Corset Covers

ARATHER pretty fad this season is the embroidery corset cover. "That is nothing new," says some one. "We have done those for years." Perhaps you have, but have you ever done them in color?

If not, you should do so at once. Work the scallops, eyelets for the ribbon and whatever floral spray is used, in some delicate color. Forget-me-nots in pale blue, or tiny pink, rosebuds are favorite motifs. Ribbon the same shade as the embroidery is done through the eyelets.

This embroidery may be done either in mercerized cottons or in silk. There seems to be rather a prejudice against using silk on lingerie materials, yet in colors it generally launders better than the cottons. The white silk, however, is not to be advised, as it turns very yellow. Instead, use a good quality of mercerized cotton.

If you care for color under a sheer blouse, such a corset cover is really very effective, and is not at all difficult to make. Choose one of the patterns that slip on over the head. This is a much better style than to have an opening down the front.

To Press Silk Seams

EVERY woman who has ever put a warm iron on silk knows the effect is disastrous one yet seams must be pressed flat. Accomplished tailors and dressmakers obtain the desired result by passing the open seam over the edge of an iron which is just warm enough to leave it flat. Such treatment does not involve any serious amount of labor, while it leaves the silk unharmed. If the garment is a large one it can sometimes be held taut by two persons while a third passes the point of the iron over the seams.

How to Finish a Skirt

It is in the finish of the garment that the amateur dressmaker generally fails. In this day of very lightweight materials it is important that the hem or facing of the skirt should be properly treated. Lightweight cloths and materials of the sort are greatly improved by the use of an interfacings of percaline, or something similar. Taffeta, foulard, pongee and the like take on an added effect of beauty when a strip of oaten flannel is similarly used. As a matter of course, this interfacings is either shaped to fit the skirt or cut bias and stitched into shape.

Local Items.

Constable Wilson has a smile on that won't come off. Miss Wilson arrived last Wednesday.

Col Dudley, American Consul at Vancouver, Major Murphy, U. S. Consul General were the guests of Mr. G. W. Clinton, American Consul, for a couple of days last week.

Dr. D. E. Kerr, dentist, desires to notify his numerous patrons in and about Cumberland that his next visit will be about the last week in September.

Mr. James Hill has secured a position with Messrs Bryden and Kilpatrick as bookkeeper and will reside in Courtenay.

Master Leland Mounce left last week for Victoria where he will attend Collegiate School for boys, on Belcher Street. He was accompanied by his mother.

It is altogether likely that Constable Thomson's small family of seven Japs now at the provincial jail living on the fat of the land will be considerably diminished by Thursday or Friday of this week that is provided customs' officer Roe and the captain of the Vanguard can make satisfactory arrangements with each other. The boat has returned to Union Bay and again be leaving in the course of a few days. The captain has it is reported, been fined $350 for landing the Japs without the proper authority. It is altogether likely he will have to put up the amount of the Japs' board bill at the province's dining-room and other expenses before the Japs are ready to go on board the boat. The Japs are to be sent back to sunny Japan.

Master Wilt Clinton who has been spending the summer vacation with his parents, returned to Victoria last week where he will again attend the Collegiate School.

Mr. Charles Smith has left to attend school at Walla Walla, Washington. Miss Pearce of Minto will also attend the same school.

Special police court news is unavoidably left out as we received something hotter by wire from Vancouver.

Miss Mabel Abrams who has been sick at Nanaimo is her many friends here will be pleased to know rapidly recovering.

Miss Louisa Bickle accompanied by her mother left for Victoria last week where she will attend school.

A Great Opportunity.

for young men wishing to obtain instructions in MINING and kindred subjects;

An Evening Class will commence on Tuesday evening October 1st, 1907, at 7 p. m. at John Cunliffe's house, Cumberland, B. C.

Subjects dealt with will be:—
Geology. This comprises the various classes of rocks that compose the crust of the earth, especially those in which coal seams are enclosed and attached, etc.

Boring and Sinking. All modern methods adopted for boring, sinking, and proving coal seams, including hand boring, percussive boring by machinery, boring with a diamond drill, the necessary appliances for such work with comparisons as to efficiency and cost of each method. Sinking through water strata, and quick sand, the securing of shaft sides, their verticality and lining, the sizes of shafts and their most suitable position in a coal-field, etc.

Mechanical Engineering. Comprising the plant necessary for a modern up-to-date colliery where a large output is of first importance. This subject embraces the steam boiler, the injector, the steam engine, air compressing plant, and the drainage of mines, pumps and pumping appliances, the fitting up of shafts both surface and underground, ropes, conductors, and cleaning arrangements, haulage the different systems and comparative economy of each, various examples as to the sizes of engines, number of boilers, and all requisite machinery suitable for an extensive modern mine will be worked out and explained in full detail.

Chemistry relating to Dalton's Atomic Theory, the atomic weights of the several elements, their manner of combination and the changes that take place by combination, the difference between simple and compound gases, etc.

The Gases. Their nature, composition, chemical symbols, specific gravity and how ascertained, the law of diffusion, how affected by temperatures and pressures, and the manner they affect human or animal life.

Coal Mines. The different methods adopted, the furnace, the waterfall, the steam-jet, and the fan (including the several kinds of fans and their reputed efficiency), the barometer, thermometer, anemometer and water-gauge, the friction of air in mines, the effect of splitting and extent to which splitting may be carried economically, with various examples worked out and explained in detail.

Ventilation. The safety lamp, fire-damp detectors, carbonic acid gas detectors, and of Mines. naked lights.

Surveying and Levelling. How to make and connect a surface and underground survey, plotting and plan-making, how to adjust and check your instruments and the necessity of doing so regularly, the systems of keeping the field book that the notes may be plotted at any future time. The level, its adjustment and uses, the manner of keeping the levelling book and plotting a profile.

Explosives. Their nature, composition, uses, and storage, comparisons of the efficiency of each kind, and the gases emitted by each after combustion.

Note. Any or all the above subjects will be dealt with, during the session commencing on above date and ending about the end of May 1908, not necessarily in the above order, but will be varied to suit the requirements of the students. For further particulars apply to Cumberland, B. C. Sept 4th, '07. JOHN CUNLIFFE, M. E.

This range's oven is rather larger than seems necessary, but you'll like the extra room, since it takes less fuel and less fuss to do better baking. Oven lined with heavy asbestos to keep heat where it belongs; top, bottom and back uniformly thick.
