Ottawa, Dec. 5.—The situation in British Columbia arising out of the decision of Justice Hunter declaring ineffective the restrictions against Hindu immigration, is receiving close attention of the government, and has been discussed at different cabinet councils during the week. It is recognized that if a shipload of the Hindus should come in, as is quite possible, both under the judgment of the court and the disposition of the Hindus themselves, rioting might occur and a grave diplomatic problem be precipitated. The government has been in communication on the subject with Sir Richard McBride, and some definite action may be anticipated very shortly. Nothing can be finally determined, however, until the text of Justice Hunter's decision is received. It is now on its way to Ottawa.

Mr. O. H. Fechner, of the Riverside Hotel, Courtenay, has been confined to his bed for the past two weeks with a bad leg.

Cumberland Citizens League met on Tuesday evening for organization, after which, the following ticket was chosen as candidates at the next civic election: For mayor, T. R. Bate; for aldermen, Messrs Banks, Willard, Parnham, MacDonald, McFayden, John Brown; for school trustees, Messrs McFayden and Carey.

MEETING OF COUNCIL

The City Council met in regular session on Monday evening, a full board being present.

The minutes of previous meeting were read and adopted.

Communication was received from the matron of the Isolation Hospital, requesting that electric lights be placed in that institution—received and filed.

Communication was received from the Deputy Provincial Secretary, notifying the Council, that Mr. Abrams had been re-appointed police magistrate for the city, at a salary of $300 per annum—received and filed

Constable Gray reported collections amounting to $129.25.

Accounts:—Elec Light, $48.15 C. Mussatto, 18.00; A. McKinnon, 14.00.

Amendment to Municipal Rate By-Law was adopted and finally passed.

Ald. Coe moved, seconded by Ald. Miller, that Messrs Gray and Conn be requested to render a statement of moneys received for attending New Westminster Assizes—carried.

There was considerable talk over the Cave prosecution account, which has been paid by other than the city. Ald. Maxwell contended that the city had a right to pay same, and that if the other clique had been elected, the city would have had to pay hundreds of dollars for prosecutions; Ald. Beveridge said thousands.

Mr. Wm. McLellan, who was present, was anxious to get information from the Council about agreements of sale; which appears to be a burning question just about now. He also spoke of "British Fair-play" in connection with same. He did not get very much information, but he got what little the Council could give him. P. McNiven, also seemed interested in agreements

Constable Gray will be instructed to take an inventory at Isolation Hospital.

Council adjourned.

"Foul Deeds Will Rise, Though All The Earth O'erwhelm Them, To Men's Eyes."

The public now know that twelve good and true men, acting in the capacity of a jury, decided doubtless after mature and grave deliberation, that the pugilist Crowler was not the person who wantonly, brutally, and as a savage beast, attacked and severely injured Constable Taylor in Nanaimo, some months ago; so the matter is still open as to the identity of the abyssmal brute: One does not wish to appear hysterical or to employ intemporate expressions in reference to the matter, but it is enough to make one's blood boil to think, that of the great crowd who were at hand when Constable Taylor was so savagely attacked, there must have been scores of cowardly creatures who were eye witnesses of the crime and yet failed to make the slightest genuine effort to interfere and who have ever since remained silent as to the identity of that savage baboon who masqueraded as a human being.

It is now Superintendent Geo. W. Clinton. Congratulations. The promotion was well merited.

The marriage took place at the Manse, Sandwick, Rev. P. Menzies officiating, on Monday evening, Dec. 1st, of Bethea, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Gray, of Minto, and Wm. Davis. The bride was attended by her sister, Marian, and the groom supported by Mr. Ronald Delaney. The young couple will make their home at Minto.

MAYOR CAMPBELL WILL AGAIN BE IN THE FIELD

Mayor Campbell, who will seek re-election at the forthcoming election, will present his address to the electors in next issue of the NEWS.

BIRTH—At Cumberland, on Tuesday, December 9th, to Mr. and Mrs. M. E. R. Macfarlane, a daughter.

I. Sugawara, a Japanese, of Denman Island was charged before G. D. Beadnell, J. P., on the 4th inst, with having a pheasant in his possession, also T. Gotem, a Japanese, charged with having parts of a deer in his cookhouse at a logging camp on Denman Island. They were convicted, and fined $50 each with costs. Mr. Beadnell stated, that if either of the defendants appeared before him again on a similar charge, they were liable to get imprisonment as well as a fine. Deputy Game Warden Dawley laid the information.

The Court of Revision of the voters list, will continue its session on Thursday evening at 6.30.

A SUCCESSFUL BANQUET

Held in Honor of Messrs J. R. Lockard And Geo. W. Clinton at The Union Hotel

Last Monday evening, at the Union Hotel a number of prominent citizens gave a banquet in honor of Mr. J. R. Lockard and Mr. G. W. Clinton, general manager and superintendent, respectively, of the Canadian Collieries.

The affair was attended by one hundred and twenty guests and was a representative gathering, there being present, physicians, hotel men, clergymen, bankers, merchants, mine officials, etc., and the editors of the two local newspapers. The law was well represented by the presence of Magistrate Abrams, the Registrar of the County Court, Mr. J. Baird, the Chief of Police of the District Mr. Grant, and last but not least, the Attorney of the Canadian Collieries, Mr. P. P. Harrison.

Mr. John Baird carried out the duties of chairman to perfection and pleased everyone with that delightful dry humor in which he excels.

A great and favorable impression was created by Messrs Lockard and Clinton, who, instead of delivering the usual stock speeches, spoke in a very comradly and sincere manner, and assured all of the very friendly feeling of the Canadian Collieries and themselves towards the City of Cumberland.

Messrs T. Hudson and Kirkum sang various songs in a very pleasing manner, while Mr. McMillan, whose ability as a violinist is so well known, rendered a number of excellent selections.

A large proportion of those present delivered short speeches, some of which were very good indeed, especially that of Dr. MacNaughton.

The attitude of everyone showed very clearly that their feelings in regard to Messrs Lockard and Clinton were of the warmest friendship and esteem and of good feeling towards the Canadian Collieries.

Mrs. William Anderton, for many years a much beloved and highly respected resident of Comox, died at the hospital there, on Sunday last, in her 75th year. Mrs. Anderton had been in declining health for some time. The funeral took place on Tuesday.

RECEIVES FLATTERING OFFER.

Our local attorney received today, a very flattering offer from one of the leading legal firms in Vancouver, to join them in the early part of next year, for the purpose of assisting to take care of that part of their business which embraces matters, of which Mr. Harrison has considerable knowledge and experience in handling.

We understand that it is not likely that the offer will be accepted.

The forthcoming civic election promises to be a hot one, both sides being loaded for bear with double-ball cartridges.

Someone is liable to get hurt before this election is over. It is sweet and pathetic to see the brotherly feeling (?) that exists at civic election time. The Kilkenny cats aren't in it.

Why don't you elect "Dad" for mayor, and have peace and prosperity. Some people have no sense, and pass over a good thing.

CHAPTER XXIII

Billy Man

There was no answer to her summons, and again she knocked. Still there was no answer, but she was aware of an impression that some one from within was watching her intently through the shuttered window. She knocked again, and louder than before and some of the idlers of the street began to congregate round her. One untidy, unwashed woman asked her who she wanted.

I want to get in here, said Dora, and knocked still more loudly, and this time an answer came; perhaps those within began to feel too much attention was being attracted.

The door opened and Dora saw a sullen-looking woman in whom she failed to recognize, having only once had a passing glimpse of her, the Mrs. Crookes who had acted as cook at Jermyn Gardens. But Mrs. Crookes knew her, and surveyed her and the little crowd of onlookers with equal disfavour.

You had better come in, she grumbled, evidently unwilling to talk in the hearing of these others, and she opened the door more widely.

Dora hesitated, but she had not gone so far to draw back at the last moment. In spite of her fears, she entered, and Mrs. Crooks at once banged, locked and bolted the door behind her.

Well, now, what d'yer want? she demanded angrily.

Dora looked about her without replying immediately. She was in a narrow dirty passage which she noticed with surprise and some alarm was closed at the end, where the foot of the stairs should have been, by a door of strong and massive appearance, apparently only recently put up. On each side of the passage were rooms which Dora observed through their open doors were quite unfurnished.

Come, what d'yer want? Mrs. Crookes demanded surlily, at the same time glancing over her shoulder with a certain air of uneasiness.

I want to see a man named Green, Dora answered.

Green, Green, Mrs. Crookes repeated. Nobody of that name here, never was.

Dora hesitated. She did not believe the woman, and she decided to try the effect of a bribe, having found that method so effectual with the Clerkenwell landlord. She put her hand into her pocket, and produced her purse, and the moment that she showed it Mrs. Crooks leaned forward and snatched it and slipped it into her own pocket.

Why—why, stammered Dora, perfectly astonished, how dare you? Give me back my purse this instant.

But the woman laughed and then seemed to hesitate, as if after all rather doubtful of the wisdom of what she had done.

Well, you didn't ought to come 'ere a tempting poor folk that way, she grumbled.

Give it me back this instant, cried Dora in a great temper.

Oh, hush, the woman said with an accent of alarm, and turned to look with fear over her shoulder.

What is it? Give me back my purse Dora repeated, and then she heard plainly some one opening the door which blocked the end of the passage.

Who is coming? she asked quickly.

Mrs. Crookes's face expressed increasing fear.

'Ere, take back your purse, she said, giving it to Dora, and cut along and don't you come back no more—'urry, now, 'urry.

She tried to hustle her towards the door but Dora would not move.

No, no, she said, who is there? Is it Green?

No, no, you little fool, cried Mrs. Crookes in an agony of terror. Be off—'urry—you had best never be born nor wait 'ere to find that out; go quick, I say, or you'll repent it to your dying day. Oh, stop then, you fool of a girl, so much the worse for you.

Though Mrs. Crookes had spoken with an impassioned vehemence, bringing out her swift and hurried words with a sincerity that could not be doubted, Dora would not budge an inch. She still stood waiting, and she was standing in the same spot, looking intently, as the door opened and the figure of a man appeared.

He looked at her and she at him, and for a long time there was silence.

Even Mrs. Crookes, standing trembling against the wall, made not a sound, and it was quite a long time before Dora lifted her hand and pointed and said:

Who is that?

For this man standing in the doorway at the end of the passage was familiar to her in every line of his form and feature, and yet was unfamiliar, too, with a strangeness beyond beyond the power of words to describe.

The long, thin hands were the same but the gestures that they made were different; the shape of the mouth was the same, but different, the snarling, vicious grin that sat upon the lips; the color of the eyes was the same, but changed indeed was their expression, cunning and strange and ferocious; even the body, though it seemed the same, was carried with a slinking, treacherous prowl instead of the upright, simple carriage she knew. All was the same and all was changed, and she cried out in a very incredulity of horror:

Oh, you are not Wilton Mayne, but you are very like him.

The man in the doorway laughed harshly, and the laugh, too, was the same but changed till it had become sinister and evil. He walked down the passage nearer to her and she saw that his neck was black and swollen. Another step he came nearer, and it was borne in upon her beyond doubt that the bandage, loosely and ineffectively covering his wounded throat, was that very one she had herself adjusted a few days before.

Wilton Mayne! she said with a long, shuddering sigh, Wilton Mayne!

Oh, Wilton Mayne, he answered contemptuously. No, that good man is not me—he is too stupid.

Then, who are you? Dora asked.

Billy Man, to be sure, he answered with a loud laugh.

Well, get upstairs, Mrs. Crookes, still pale and trembling, interrupted, there's no sense standing here.

Right you are, old girl, said this man who called himself Billy Man, and he turned and slouched back along the passage and through the door and up the stairs behind it.

Mechanically Dora followed with Mrs. Crookes close behind. At the head of the stairs, Billy Man turned into a room at the right. It was a good-sized apartment, very dirty and neglected, with furniture much broken and dilapidated. A fire was burning in the rusty grate, and before this a man kneeled toasting a herring at the end of a piece of wood; and on an old broken piano near the wall stood two pots of beer and an empty whisky bottle. Hearing them enter, the man at the fire looked up, and seeing Dora cried out and gave so violent a start that his herring fell into the fire.

Miss—Miss Rose, he cried, you—oh, you must be mad, clean balmy, to come here, here of all places—balmy, he repeated with an accent of despair and then made a sudden dart to save his burning herring. Oh, just balmy, he muttered again as he rescued his fish, and twisting his head he looked alternatively at her and at Billy Man.

Is that you, Green? said Dora, as very slowly ... Why, is that you? Then tell me who this is? and she made a gesture towards her companion.

Ah, muttered Green, staring at her but making no other answer.

Tell me—tell me, Dora repeated in ... of despair and pleading that Green could not help but answer.

He is Wilton Mayne, he said. He is Wilton Mayne part of the time; and the rest of the time he is Billy Mann. It comes upon him like a fit, but this go he's been Billy Mann for quite a while.

Right, screamed Billy Man with a sudden shout of laughter, Billy Man I am and Billy Man I'll stay, and as for Wilton Mayne—" He made a gesture of contempt and turned to Dora. I'm glad you've come to see me, my dear, he said; you were always too good for that poor stick of a Wilton Mayne, and now you shall marry me instead and we will have great times together. Do you remember that time Black Monday and I tried to catch you on the stairs? I wanted to take you off and marry you then, but that meddling Joan Durand came interfering. But now there's no one to interfere, and you shall marry me my dear, and not that fellow, that prim prig, that Wilton Mayne.

Was that you who attacked me on the stairs? asked Dora slowly; but there was no one there when we searched?

Why, because I hid in Wilton Mayne's room, he answered with a laugh; you see, that poor fool remembers nothing, but I—I remember all.

He began to walk up and down, puffing out his chest with pride and trying to swagger, but somehow only managing to make his wretched slouch more pronounced than ever. With a kind of frozen amazement Dora stood and watched him, and twining her hands together she asked herself if this could be? How was it possible that this degraded, wretched creature could possibly be identical with her admired poet? Why, he had been drinking, she could see that, and his eyes and his way of talking made her shudder. Green kneeling by the fire and holding his rescued herring in his hands watched her with a look of compassion. Suddenly she came up to him.

Tell me, she said in a whisper; tell me if I am mad, or who this man is?

He is Wilton Mayne, Green answered, but he is Billy Man, too; and if you don't understand, no more don't I. But sometimes he is Wilton Mayne, what you know, a gent on the square with money and friends, and 'is what not; and sometimes then he goes all dazed like, and when he comes to, he ain't Wilton Mayne no more, but Billy Man, the toughest, wildest, cross cove in all Nodnol—London, I mean, that is. And when he is Wilton Mayne he don't seem to know nothing about it, but, when he is Billy Man then he remembers everything; and he uses the things he knows as Wilton Mayne to 'elp 'im out as Billy Man. It's like as though, he was two different coves in one, d'y' see, miss, and sometimes, he added with a shiver, it makes me cold all through.

SALT RHEUM CAME OUT ON HANDS

Formed Watery Pimples, Itchy and Had Horrible Burning Sensation. Lost Some of Finger Nails. Could Not Open Hands. Cured by Cuticura Soap and Ointment.

235 N. Elgar St., Toronto, Ontario.—"For seven years I have been troubled with salt-rheum. It came out on my hands and formed kind of watery pimples all over them which became itchy and it had a horrible burning sensation which caused me a good deal of pain. It came out on my hands in the fall and remained there till after spring. I might mention that I lost some of my finger-nails by the disease. During this length of time I was utterly useless, as I could not open my hands. I tried several other patent medicines without a bit of ... try Cuticura Remedies so I sent for samples and by using them there was a great improvement. Then I went to the druggist and bought one cake of Cuticura Soap and two boxes of Cuticura Ointment; after using them I ... cured. I had given up all hope of being cured. I can say to all those who have suffered as I have, not to lose courage but to give Cuticura Remedies a fair trial." (Signed) Miss Lillian Irwin, Oct. 13, 1911.

Dragon Club Leads Simple Life

The Dragon Club in London, with dinner for sixpence, has stirred many inquiries. It was a woman journalist who, at her last sixpence, offered to organize that Chelsea restaurant on cheap line and run it as a club. It was the superfluities that were cut off. The laundry bill—why should not you eat from a bare table that can be easily cleaned? The crockery business was run on careful lines, there is too much crockery for the simple life.

We eat off bare tables, writes the founder of the Dragon Club, and the food is dished in French fireproof bowls with lids to them, serving the double purpose, when necessary, of saucepan and plate. Our spoons are of horn and bone, to save labor in polishing silver, and our mugs are Doulton to save labor, and we wait on ourselves, also to save labor. The meal is substantial, and the hungry person can get it by joining the club and putting up his sixpences for tickets.

Not Very Nourishing

Doctor—For dinner you should take forty minutes.

Timid Patient—Would it be dangerous to add a bit of meat and some vegetables?

Little Bobby was told to sweep the sidewalk, and when he was doing so a friend came along.

Hello, Bobby, said the lady. Is your mother in.

Sure, she's in, answered Bobby. Do you think I'd be sweeping the sidewalk if she wasn't in?

Old-Time Health, Eating Grape-Nuts.

"I had been sick for 10 years with dyspepsia and a lot of complications," wrote a Western woman.

"An operation was advised, change of climate was suggested, but no one seemed to know just what was the matter. I was in bed three days in the week and got so thin I weighed only 89 lbs. No food seemed to agree with me.

"I told my husband I was going to try some kind of predigested food to ... continued tumor.

"Grape-Nuts and cream was the food I got and nothing has seemed to satisfy me like it. I never feel hungry, but have a natural appetite. Have had no nervous spells since I began ... one.

"I have gained so much strength that I now do all my housework and feel well and strong. My weight has increased 5 lbs. in 2 weeks and I shall always eat Grape-Nuts as it is far pleasanter than taking medicines." Name given by Canadian Postum Co., Windsor, Ont. Ancient City Port Unearthed

The most important discovery at Pompeii for centuries is announced. It came through the efforts of Lorenzo Cozza, the sculptor of Rome, who has been carrying on the work begun by his father. He has just unearthed the first remains of the ancient city port situated 1,250 meters from the old city seashore now, and 700 meters from the old city gate. It was known as Porta Marina. The city of Pompeii itself is half a mile further inland than at the time of its destruction, the coast having been advanced.

Mr. Cozza worked on the theory of this displacement of the coast line and for years he has been experimenting on a prolongation of the street leading eastward from Porta Marina. Recently he came upon solid blocks of granite at a depth of 23 feet under successive layers of ashes, lava and sand. Excavations proved that he struck the original quay, whose stones still bear indentations caused by the action of the waves. Much new light will be thrown on the shipping customs of ancient Rome. Further important discoveries are awaited.

5 YEARS' RHEUMATISM REALLY CURED!

Your Case Isn't Likely to be Worse, and Can be Cured Quickly by Nerviline

"After being an enthusiastic user of Nerviline for years, I feel it my duty to tell you personally what your wonderful preparation has done for me.

"I suffered torture from rheumatism and heart trouble, tried scores of so-called remedies, consulted for weeks and months with Toronto's most eminent physicians, but derived only slight benefit.

"A friend insisted on my using Nerviline, and to my surprise a vigorous rubbing of this powerful liniment eased the pains and reduced the stiffness in my joints. I continued to use Nerviline and was permanently cured. I am now perfectly well, and for three years have had no rheumatism at all. I know many families where no other medicine but Nerviline is kept—it is so useful in minor ailments like earache, toothache, neuralgia, coughs, colds, lumbago, and sciatica. I call Nerviline my 'Life Guard,' and I urge all to try its merit."

Dec. 17th, 113 Palmerston Avenue, Toronto.

(Signed) FLORA CHAPMAN.

It is almost criminal to keep on suffering when Nerviline can be had in any drug store. 50c. buys a large bottle, 25c. for the trial size. Prepared The Catarrhozone Co., Buffalo, N. Y., and Kingston, Ont.

The Muzzled Wolves

The wolves were upon us, he related to the girl he was trying to impress. Their howling penetrated to our very marrow. We fled for our lives. But each second we knew that the ravenous pack was gaining on us. Closer and closer—at last they were so close that we could feel their muzzles against our legs so that—

Ah, signed the lady, greatly relieved, how glad you must have been that they had their muzzles on!

Fair Warning

Say you will be mine!! If you do not I'll throw myself into the Seine.

Thank you for warning me. I must get a filter.

What, asked the Sunday-school teacher, is meant by bearing false witness against one's neighbor.

I know, said a little girl, holding her hand high in the air. It's when nobody did anything and somebody went and told about it.

Not a Bad Case

So that ... your avuncular relation. He was. But the new doctor we got cured him.

Place of Desolation

The abomination of desolation is this lake, declares a traveler who has visited the island of Trinidad, whence comes most of our asphalt. In spots, a palm killed by the asphalt droops disconsolately. A few tufts of grass have secured a footing in places. But for the rest it is a solid mass of black, dull, evil-smelling pitch, with pools of water here and there in which swim little par-boiled fishes. Against any of the hot spots in the world, bar none, this can be backed.

A wicked looking black snake six feet long glides into the bushes near the margin of the lake. It has been sunning itself on the asphalt. No wonder the serpents are supposed to be creatures of the devil. As for ourself, 15 minutes stay takes away every bit of vitality we can summon. Not enough interest is left in life to inquire what the negroes hewing with mattocks at the asphalt receive in wages. They earn the pay, whatever it is.

There is no mechanical way yet discovered by which the stuff can be dug. Hour after hour these negroes hack the brittle pitch, which flakes away in pieces a foot square. They lift the burden to their heads and dump it into steel buckets, which start their slow way to the ship. The holes fill up in a few days with new pitch.

The lake is 90 to 100 acres in extent now, but it is gradually shrinking with the removal of such large quantities. A good percentage of the asphalt pavement in the world comes from this one lake and its geological compliment in Venezuela.

Salt Cellar Hoodoo

In some parts of the world, particularly in Germany, it is still believed that the upsetting of the salt cellar is the direct act of Satan—the peace disturber. And the habit of trying to avert any catastrophe which may happen by tossing a little of the salt over the shoulder is due to the belief that by so doing one hits the invisible Satan in the eye, which temporarily at least, prevents him doing further mischief.

Temperance

Beginning with the first of 1914, Icelanders and tourists alike will have to quench their thirst with other than alcoholic drinks. Under the Anti-Spirit law, consumption of the present stock of liquors in Iceland, which will to a certainty be exhausted by January 1, was permitted.

Since Iceland began to deal with the liquor question in a drastic manner, her trade and industries have tremendously increased. In the past 20 years a great dairying trade has been built up and sheep raising and fishing have grown to enormous proportions.

It Will Cure a Cold.—Colds are commonest ailments of mankind and if neglected may lead to serious conditions. Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil will relieve the bronchial passages of inflammation speedily and thoroughly and will strengthen them against subsequent attack. And as it eases the inflammation it will stop the cough because it allays all irritation in the throat. Try it and prove it.

He was a young man—a candidate for an agricultural constituency—and he was sketching in glowing colors to the audience of rural voters the happy life the laborers would lead under an administration for the propogation of sweetness and light. We have not yet three acres and a cow, but it will come. Old age pensions are still of the future, but they will come. Similarly every item of his comprehensive programme was indorsed by the same parrot cry. Then he went on to talk of prison reforms. I have not yet personally, he said, been inside a criminal lunatic asylum. Then there was a voice from the back of the hall: But it will come.

On the train out Medford way, Subbubs got into conversation with a stranger, who remarked: I see you are putting up a good many new buildings.

Yes, answered Subbubs; new buildings are the only kind we put up.

Owl Plays Piano

Hearing the notes of his piano struck, first up the keys and then down, Mr. Ernest Lemmy, of St. Paul's road, Peterborough, England, peeped through the open door and discovered that the player was his pet owl. The owl would step on a key and then listen as if pleased with the sound. It tried another and another, and seemed highly pleased with the noise it was making.

VOLCANOES IN BRITAIN

Eruptions of Ancient Times Formed Scenic Beauties

When the report of a destructive volcanic eruption appears in our newspapers, most English people reflect, with some satisfaction that such awe-inspiring displays of nature's terrible power are never seen in this country. The British Isles, however, have not always been free from volcanic outbursts. Some of the greatest eruptions known have occurred within the United Kingdom. But our volcanoes have been extinct for ages. The last British volcanic fire died down long before man made his appearance on the earth, though great numbers of other creatures must have lost their lives during the eruptions which occurred.

Geologists have discovered traces of the action of these old volcanoes in many parts of both Britain and Ireland.

Those who has visited the Lake District have probably walked over beds of lava, which were poured out of the bowels of the earth during what has been termed the sage of fire. The eastern shore of Lake Dedwentwater, for example, is lined with hills which are composed of sheets of lava and ashes. No fewer than twelve distinct beds of lava have been noted there, piled up to an altitude of 1,500 feet above the sea level.

One of these hills, named Castle Head, is the stump of the volcano, whence came the huge mass of molten rock which formed the neighboring heights. Wastwater, again, the deepest lake in Cumberland, and Thirlmere, the source of Manchester's water supply, are entirely surrounded by the volcanic rocks of which Scawfell, Helvellyn, and other huge mountains are composed.

Wales was the scene of numerous eruptions. Volcanic rocks are found over a great part of North Wales, especially in the Snowden district, where lavas and ashes build up a great mountain group. Mynydd Mawr (great mountain) three miles west of Snowden, has been proved to be the remains of one of these volcanoes.

In Scotland, at a somewhat later period, a line of volcanic cones belching forth liquid rock stretched right across the country. One of the best known of these is Arthur's Seat.

These facts led our ancestors to the conclusion that a causeway had been constructed by giants for the purpose of connecting Ireland with Scotland. It is known, however, that these columns, which have four, five, six or even more, sides, result from the cooling of hot lava.

It is not possible to state exactly the extent of the outflow of volcanic products which took place in this area, but it was certainly the greatest as well as the last of British volcanic eruptions. A moderate estimate of the area covered by the lava streams is 50,000 square miles. Part of this great tract is now covered by the sea.

It is worthy of notice that the volcanic rocks occur in those parts of the country which are famous for fine scenery. This is a close connection between rugged scenery and volcanic rocks. The Lake District, Wales, and Scotland owe much of their beauty to the eruptions which millions of years ago mingled igenous with sedimentary rocks.

Economy is not going without the thing we need when we have the money to buy it. Economy is not keeping a good thing on the top shelf and using a poor one because it will do. Economy is making the most of what we have, and getting things that will help us to do better as fast as we earn the money to buy them.

Apropos of vaulty Senator Root told at Yale about a politician who, the day before he was to make a certain speech, sent a forty-one page report of it to all the papers. On page 20 appeared this paragraph: But the hour grows late, and I must close. (No, no! Go on! Go on!).

Pills That Have Benefit. Thousands.—Known far and near as a sure remedy in the treatment of indigestion and all derangements of the stomach, liver and kidneys, Parmelee's Vegetable Pills have brought relief to thousands when other specifics have failed. Innumerable testimonials can be produced to establish the truth of this assertion. Once tried they will be found superior to all other pills in the treatment of the ailments for which they are prescribed.

Books and Bacon

A miner, who was proud of his boy's attainments at school, one evening picked up a home-lesson book and read from it a quotation which ran like this: Some books should be tasted and some swallowed, and some chewed and digested.—Bacon. Turning to his boy, he said,

What's this, sonnie? Thou doesn't get books at school, does tha? I know you are very clever but you cannot do these nany-goat tricks. I'm sure. I'll warrant that'll be one of those printer's errors, sonnie.

Oh, no, father, said the boy. Metaphorically speaking, we eat books.

Now, you cannot diddle me like that, said the father. I didn't go to school very long, but I ken that's one of those printer's errors. Why, can't thou see? He's put the word Bacon in the wrong place. It should be: Some bacon should be tasted, some swallowed, and some chewed and digested.—Books.

Minard's Liniment Cures Dandruff

The Lancashire people are fond of dogs, in fact, very proud of them and therefore, when a prominent dog fancier came home one night and found his son had brought a nondescript mongrel he was not pleased.

How much didst thee gie for that dog? he inquired.

Five shillings, replied the son.

Tell thee what ah'll do, replied the parent. Ah'll go shares wi' thee. A'll gie thee half a crown for ma share.

The half crown was duly paid, then the father remarked: Ah'll take tail end, and I'm going to kick my half outen t' door!

And he did.

Godiva's Ride a Myth

The latest story to suffer at the hands of the implacable investigators is that of the ride of Lady Godiva through the streets of Coventry—although the town of Coventry is still on the map and a Lady Godiva actually lived there about the 11th century. But the scientific chaps have delved into musty records and found that Lady Godiva wanted her husband to aid in building and endowing a noble church. He agreed on condition that she strip herself of all her earthly possessions and live in poverty. A liberal interpretation would construe the clothes on her back as among her earthly possessions. The prosaic investigators have so far discredited the famous ride that the people of Coventry have abandoned their annual celebration of the event, accepting the judgment that there was nothing to celebrate.

Specimen of Rare Bird

The zoological division of the museum of the geological survey at Ottawa, has recently secured a specimen of an extremely rare bird.

This bird is called Corey's Least Bittern, and according to S. A. Forerer, who is in charge of the division only about 35 specimens have been captured. The one now at the museum was taken near Point Pelee, Essex County, Ontario.

The Question

A Scotchman was riding a donkey one day across a sheep pasture, but when the animal came to a sheep drain he would not go over. So the man rode back a short distance and turned and applied the whip, thinking of course, that the donkey when at top speed would jump the drain. But when the donkey got to the drain he stopped sharply, and the man went over his head and cleared the drain. No sooner had he touched the ground than he got up and, looking the beast straight in the face, said: Vera well pitched; but, then, hoo are ye goin' to get over yersel'.

A SAFE TONIC FOR MOTHERS

Who Do Not Recover Their Strength as They Should

Every mother who fails to regain her health and strength after confinement needs a tonic. The years of weakness and suffering which so often follow are unnecessary and easily avoided. The fact that her strength does not return is a certain indication that her blood supply has been overtaxed and is impoverished. This condition is often made worse when the mother takes up her household duties while she is still weak, when a complete breakdown results. The strength a weak mother needs can be quickly found in the tonic treatment with Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. These Pills increase and enrich the blood supply, and thus bring health and strength to the exhausted system. Mrs. Robt. Little says: "I have nursed for upwards of twenty-five years, and I could relate many cases, relieved and cured, through the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. In maternity cases which I nurse I always use ... medicine that so speedily builds up the mother at this critical time. I have also found them of great value in the case of young girls, and I can add that as for myself they have saved me many a doctor's bill. I feel safe in saying they are the best tonic medicine I know of."

Nursing mothers will find Dr. Williams' Pink Pills will give her just the strength she needs, and they will at the same time aid in keeping her child healthy. If you do not find these Pills at your dealer's they will be sent by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 by writing The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Both Ways

A white man during reconstruction times was arraigned before a colored justice of the peace for killing a man and stealing his mule. It was in Arkansas, near the Texas border, and there was some rivalry between the states, but the colored justice tried always to preserve an impartial frame of mind.

We got two kinds ob law in dis yere co't, he said, Texas law and Arkansas law. Which will you hab?

The prisoner thought a minute and then guessed that he would like the Arkansas law.

Den I discharge you fo' stealin' de mule and hang you fo' killin' de man.

Hold on a minute, judge, said the prisoner. Better make that Texas law.

All right. Den I fin' you for killin' de man an' hang you for stealing de mule.

CANADA CEMENT COMPANY LIMITED — PORTLAND — CANADA — CEMENT — MONTREAL

Do You Know What This Label Means ?

It means cement of the highest possible quality.
It means cement tested by experts whose authority is final at all our mills.
It means cement acknowledged by engineers, architects and hundreds of thousands of farmers to fulfil every requirement of scientifically made Portland cement.
It means a cement that is absolutely reliable, whether used for a great bridge or for a concrete watering trough. You can use with complete confidence that your concrete work will be thoroughly satisfactory. You ought to have this confidence in the cement you use, because you have not the facilities for testing its qualities, such as are at the disposal of the engineers in charge of big contracting jobs.

Canada Cement

These engineers know that when cement has passed the tests made upon it at Canada Cement mills, it will pass all their tests.
And this same cement is sold to you for your silo, your foundations, your feeding-floor, your milk-house or your watering-trough.
Used according to the directions in our free book "What the Farmer can do with Concrete," Canada Cement never fails to give satisfactory results. Write for the book. It not only tells you how to mix and place concrete, but will also suggest scores of uses for it on your farm, every one of them valuable to you. In asking for the book you do not incur the slightest obligation.

Cute Tommy

Mrs. Jordan had ideas on the way children should be reared. Her young hopeful, Tommy, caused her a little anxiety in this respect. Now and again, therefore, a serious politeness lecture was administered.

Now, Tommy, dear, she started, supposing you accidentally stepped upon a gentleman's foot, what would you say?

I would say: Beg your pardon.

That's my own little son! smiled the pleased mother. And if the gentleman gave you a penny for your politeness what would you do?

The innocent look passed from Tommy's eyes as he quickly answered:

Why, I would stand on the other foot and say: Beg pardon again, of course!

An Interchange of Ideas

Ambassador Page, discussing the labor question one day, said to a reporter:

The labor question, like the question of capital, will be settled when labor and capital come to understand one another—when, as it were, they learn to speak the same language.

Bring them together now and they are apt to get on like the French girl and the American girl who met after a correspondence course in one another's tongue.

Well, how did you get on? her mother asked the American girl after this conference.

Oh fine, was the reply. Mademoiselle understood every wood she said, and I understood every word I said.

Indorsed

She advanced to the paying teller's window and, handing in a check for $50, stated that it was a birthday present from her husband and asked for payment. The teller informed her that she must first indorse it.

I don't know what you mean, she said hesitatingly.

Why, you see, he explained, you must write your name on the back so that when we return the check to your husband he will know we have paid you the money.

Oh, is that all? she said, relieved.

Benj. Franklin's House May Go

The quaint little house in Craven Street, London, where Benjamin Franklin lived in his more prosperous days, and from which he issued his delightful series of papers called 'Craven Stree. Gazette,' forms part of a block of property which have been purchased for the construction of a large hotel, and unless immediate steps are taken to save it, this historical building will be torn down. An appeal has been made to Americans to save the house and a proposal will be made to the hotel builders to include Franklin's rooms within the new building.

Judge—Have you been in this court before?

Prisoner—No, sir.

Judge—Are you certain?

Prisoner—I am, sir.

Judge—But your face looks decidedly familiar. Where have I seen it before?

Prisoner—I'm the bartender in the saloon across the way.

Poor Professor

The mild-mannered old gentleman who was staying with Mrs. Slimkins was a geologist, and when one morning his landlady's little son informed him that there was a queer old stone in a neighboring field, he was in high glee.

Come along and show it me, he said, making his way to the spot.

I—I—I ain't got time, sir, said the boy, and then beat a hasty retreat.

There were cattle in the field, but the professor took no notice of them until a terrible roar attracted his attention, and he saw a fierce bull advancing to greet him. It was a near thing, but the professor won by a trouser button. On the other side of the hedge he was surprised to see the landlady's son.

You little ruffian, shouted the professor, I believe you sent me into that purposely. I expect you wanted to see me killed.

No, I didn't, sir, it was mother did.

What? gasped the professor.

She heard a dog howling outside our house last night, and as it means there'll be a death soon, mother thought it was only right to try and have it out of the family.

HAD ITCHING PILES FOR 27 YEARS

Often Laid Up for Days at a Time—A Wonderful Tribute to Dr. Chase's Ointment.

Few people were ever more enthusiastic in praising Dr. Chase's Ointment than the writer of this letter. When you read the description of his case you will not wonder why.

Mr. John Johnson, Coleman, Alta., writes: "Three years ago I was cured of blind, itching piles of 27 years' standing by using Dr. Chase's Ointment. I used to think that death would be the only relief I would ever get from the terrible misery of piles. Often I was laid up for three days at a time, and at other times worked when I should have been in bed.

"Dr. Chase's Ointment is worth sixty dollars a box instead of sixty cents. I am a different man since using it. I am farming all the time, and never miss a day. Words fail to express my gratitude for the cure this ointment made for me. I cannot tell half as much about it as it deserves. Anyone doubting this can write direct to me."

The stationmaster, who was standing near, reproved him. Haven't I told you before, he said, to sing out the names of the stations clearly and distinctly? Bear it in mind, sing them out. D'ye hear?

I will, sor, replied the porter, and the passengers in the next train that arrived were considerably astonished to hear the new official singing:

Sir Sanford A Pathfinder

The London Times continues a series of articles on representative Canadians and devotes a column to Sir Sanford Fleming, whose mind, it says is still vigorous and unclouded.

When he went to Canada at eighteen years of age, he sailed on a sailing ship which took forty days for the voyage. On landing at Quebec he had but two or three pieces of gold. He has since been a counsellor to the country's various governments, a pathfinder for the Government and devoted himself to problems of the Empire, but has seldom been involved in party conflicts. To his mind there is servitude in party allegiance.

Details of the work of settling the Maine boundary dispute were undertaken by him, as also were surveys for the C.P.R. construction in 1880 and 1883.

The writer says that Sir Sanford never evaded the obligations of citizenship and was not content with the perfunctory performance of duty. He is also referred to as having a gracious manner, fine courtesy and adequate dignity.

A fire broke out one day in Francis Wilson's dressing room at the theatre where he was playing.

He had some of his books around him, and in an agony of despair asked himself:

Which shall I save? He glanced at his precious Chaucer, at some Shakespearian volumes, when—

Come, Mr. Wilson, broke in at the door from a fireman, you have not a moment to lose.

Yes, yes. Coming, replied Wilson, absently.

He was looking for a special illustrated volume very dear to him.

Come, Wilson, cried his manager, come, get out.

All right, all right, said Wilson, and grabbing some clothes in one hand, he snatched with the other the nearest volume and ran to the street. There he looked at the huge volume in his arms. It was the city directory.

Captain Foretopp tells a story of a certain noted divine who was on his steamer when a great gale overtook them off the Oregon coast. It looks pretty bad, said the bishop to the captain. Couldn't be much worse, bishop, replied Foretopp.

Half an hour later the steamer was diving under the waves as if she were a submarine, and leaking like an old door. Looks worse, I think, captain, said the bishop. We must trust in Providence now, bishop, answered Foretopp.

Oh, I hope it has not come to that, gasped the bishop.

Miller's Worm Powders destroy worms and correct the morbid conditions in the stomach and bowels that are favorable to worms, so that the full nutriment of the child is assured and development in every way encouraged.

Exit the Postage Stamp

Is the postage stamp doomed?

It is if a postal innovation hailing from New Zealand, where it has been tried with great success, is generally adopted by the postal authorities of the world. In the future, instead of buying postage stamps, licking or otherwise moistening the gum on their backs and applying sufficient pressure to ensure adherence, all we may need to do will be to put our letters under a machine and turn a crank.

The machine, which in New Zealand is rented from the postal authorities, records the amount stamped, just like a gas meter, and payment is made to a collector, who calls at intervals. It gives impressions of half penny, one, three and six pence and one shilling, and as each impression is made its value is automatically recorded on a set of dials at the top of the machine.

As a precaution against fraud, the machines are turned out from the workshops with only one means of opening them and that is by patent lock, the key of which is handed to the postal authorities after the machine has been exhaustively tested. There are no screws that will give admission to the interior and therefore the mechanism cannot be tampered with. The greatest safeguard, however, lies in the fact that the labor of committing a fraud would be valueless.

Chatty Waiter (glancing out of window) The rain'll be here in a minute or two now, sir.

Customer—Well, I didn't order it; I'm waiting for a chop.

Yes, said a smart young man, I used to be in the insurance business. I once got a man to take out a policy only about a week before he happened to be killed. He was a mighty hard chap to land, too. I had to talk to him for nearly six months before I got him.

I suppose, remarked his friend, you regretted, after it was all over, that your persuasive powers were so good?

Well—er—no. I never felt sorry about it. The fact is, I made the best of a bad job by marrying the widow.

George is going to take me to my first baseball game this afternoon. What would you advise me to wear?

Proud Father—Why, the other day he ate all the preserves in the pantry, I overheard him say, as he smeared the cat's face with the stuff: I'm sorry Tom, to do this, but I can't have the old folks suspect me.

Now They Don't Speak

Maud—So Jack compared me with something sweet, did he? The dear fellow! What was it?

Marie—I don't think I should tell you.

Maud—Oh, do. I insist.

Marie—Well, he referred to you as the human marshmallow. You certainly had laid the powder on thick, dear.

BUILDING A BIG TEMPLE

MORMON STRUCTURE AT CARDSTON IS ON LAVISH SCALE.

Great Building Will Have Rooms Representing the Various States of the Universe Before and After the Fall — Lecture Rooms, a Sealing Room, and Apartments For Higher Priests Are All Provided.

Another great occasion has come to the Mormon world. When Southern Alberta began to be populated with the people of this faith, and throughout all the years since, yearly visits were made by many of the Mormon people to their home state, Utah. These visits were in most cases to perform duties in the temple there. It was thought wise by the leaders at Salt Lake and the authorities in Canada, to build a temple in Canada for the use of the Canadian members of the church.

President Smith, of Salt Lake City, was at Cardston, Alta., for the dedication of the site a short time ago. A large delegation was present from Utah, and the occasion will be long remembered in the history of the church in Canada. The new temple, moreover, will be the first to be erected on British soil. It is probable that the excavation will be completed this fall, but building the foundation will not be begun till next spring, when work will be pushed with the utmost vigor.

The ceremonial work for which the new temple will be built will comprise baptism, specifically baptism for the dead; ordination and associated endowments in the priesthood marriage ceremonies; and other sealing ordinances. Each of these ordinances may be performed either for the living, present in person, or for the dead, who are represented by an individual living proxy. Ordinance work for the dead exceeds by a great preponderence that for the living. The temple will be maintained largely for the benefit and salvation of the dead relatives of Canadian Mormons.

For the performance of these ordinances many different rooms will be required. The most important of these, perhaps, is the baptistry. In the Mormon Church baptism is required of all who have lived to the age of accountability. Only those who die in infancy are exempt. Many ancestors of the Mormon people have died without this water baptism, and for these an opportunity of posthumous repentance is given and the rite of baptism for the dead is administered. Baptismal fonts are usually placed in the basement floors and the accustomed plan will be carried out in the Cardston temple. Laying on of hands will also be performed in this room.

In the lecture rooms of the temple instruction is given to candidates relating to the significance and sequence of past dispensations, and the importance of the present time. This course includes a recital of the most important events of the creative period—the condition of Adam and Eve in the Garden of Eden and their expulsion; the plan of redemption as taught by the Mormon Church; the restoration of what the Mormon speaks of as "The Gospel," personal purity, etc. Provision is made for the giving of these instructions in different rooms, each devoted to a particular part of the course.

The garden room represents the earth as it was before sin entered and brought with it its curse. It is the Garden of Eden, depicted in miniature. Ceiling and walls will be decorated to represent sky and clouds, with sun, moon, and stars. The wall will show sylvan grottoes, mossy dells, lakelets, and brooks, waterfalls and rivulets, trees, vines, and flowers, insects, birds, and beasts—in short, the earth beautiful before the fall.

The world room will be painted with scenes typical of the earth after the fall. There will be similar landscapes to those in the garden room, but the whole representation will be that of the fallen state. Trees will be gnarled and mis-shapen, rocks rent and riven. Beasts will be shown contending in deadly strife. Thorns, thistles, and noxious weeds will abound everywhere, and in the distance a raging storm will be depicted. The lectures in this room will be on the fall of man, and the scenes painted on the walls will remind the candidate of the fallen world.

From the scenes of turmoil in the world room the candidate will be led to the peace and quiet of the terrestial room. In it are given instructions relating to the significance of the endowments and the practical duties of a religious life. Next to this room and joined to it will be the celestial room. Between the two will hang silken portieres known as the veil of the temple. Through this the candidate enters to the celestial room.

In the sealing room for the living is solemnized the rite of celestial marriage. In the Mormon faith marriage ceremonies for the period of mortal life are not performed in the temple. In this sealing room contracting parties are married for eternity. Here also living children who have been born outside the pale of celestial wedlock, though within the legally-constituted state of matrimony, may be sealed to their parents provided those parents have already been sealed to each other. In the sealing room for the dead similar ordinances are performed for the dead.

The holy of holies of the Cardston Temple will be situated between the two sealing rooms. It will be elaborately finished, and its entrance will be guarded by a pair of sliding doors, which, in a measure, will correspond to the inner veil of the ancient sanctuaries. This room will be reserved for the higher ordinances in the priesthood relating to the exaltation of both living and dead.

Other rooms will make provision for presiding councils of the quorums of elders belonging to the two Canadian stakes, Alberta and Taylor.

The Alaskan Boundary.

The Canadian Alaskan boundary is 1,507 miles long.

ANCIENT BONSECOURS.

Montreal's Great Market Is Picturesque Spot.

In the ancient heart of Montreal there gathers on certain days of the week, a buying, selling, bargaining, chattering throng. It is in a convenient place to transact business, convenient to get a large selection of what you want. If you go early enough, convenient for watching the various selling and purchasing methods. Some days they crowd to this place till you wonder whether any more could have room enough to walk about and effect their dealing. It is considered a boon to the poorer people to come to this spot and purchase their table necessities. It is not a grocery store, confectionery, or butcher's shop, that I am speaking of, but a genuine, price-lowering, popular, public market, so much talked about as a factor in cost-reduction by political economists and other guessers at the riddle of the rise in the price of living.

The market is called Bonsecours, in honor of the gray old-time church which stands within hailing distance. The market is old, but the church is older, built in 1771 in place of an older edifice burned in 1754. Here is where Montreal comes in as an historic town. The market comprises Jacques Cartier Square and a fine, old time-honored stone building, once a city hall. It is a familiar landmark to thousands of Montrealers. Talk about your fairs, and national exhibitions, here is an exposition every lawful working day. If you like the looks of cabbage, turnips, carrot, onions, chickens, ducks, turkeys, all the produce of the farm except the coarser grains, all on their best behaviour, you will be delighted to take a stroll along these booths and peer around and perhaps buy something to hale home with you, if you are not single, but double. Outside you see rows of booths, on the north side selling vegetables and poultry mostly, on the south side, stores offering all sorts of Canadian and even foreign fruits. It resembles a main thoroughfare of an active business town with the shops reduced to its size. But everything is done here in the open. You see the operations of the dealers from the street as it were and it somehow increases your confidence in making purchases, you do not seem to take so much on faith, at least it looks that way on the surface.

You will see two men in a booth piled high with cages holding the feathery denizens of the farmyard, crowing shrilly, or cackling wildly, and if you stand long enough you may see a long arm thrust into a cage, extract a chicken, wring its neck, pluck it, and put on the counter for sale. Some of the purchasers prefer to buy their chickens alive, lug them home, and commit chicken-slaughter in their own back yards. Strange, but most of these purchasers wear long beards, whitish or sandy, if they are masculine, and are of the religious faith that calls Christians Gentiles. These customers prefer preparing a live animal for the pot in their own way, make a sort of religion out of it, as it were.

You will see also some unusual things offered for food, or pets, just as your inclinations are. For instance, rabbits. Two or three booths make a specialty of these among other articles. Another dealer sells red foxes, and by the number he had for sale you would judge that quite a market existed for these cute little animals. Those on display are young and would make boyish pets.

The old market building was erected in 1845 when Hon. J. Ferrier was mayor. Inside of its splendid central dome it bears inscribed the names of the Council, Mayor Ferrier, Alds. Linn, Trudeau, and Molson, and Councillors Laroque and Currie. Montreal had "commission" government in those days, with the aldermen elected by the council, and acting as a sort of Board of Control, after the old English style which was done away with by the British Municipal Act of the thirties.

The old market house stood on the site of a hotel, several stores, and an opera house, where Charles Dickens recited from his works when he visited Montreal in the thirties. It remained in use as a city hall till 1878, when the present City Hall was erected.

Was a Brave Sailor.

An interesting figure passed away recently in Toronto with the death of Captain O. G. V. Spain. He was one of Canada's few authorities on naval matters and coast defence, and had an active career as a sea fighter. As midshipman, he served on His Majesty's battleship "Minotaur" in the Egyptian War in 1882, and first scented the smoke of battle. For bravery in this war, he was awarded the Khedive's bronze star. In 1884-5 two years later, as Lieut. Spain, he served on the "Dolphin" during operations at Suakim in the East Soudan, and was again recognized for bravery in connection with a long-drawn-out defence of the army's water supply.

When he retired from the British navy, Captain Spain was made commander of the Canadian armed cruising fleet, of eleven ships, guarding the fisheries on the Canadian coasts.

In 1893, he was made Commissioner of Dominion Police. In 1904, he was appointed wreck commissioner for Canada, and a nautical member of the lighthouse board. In 1905, he was made commander of Canada's marine service.

Rooster Travels Free.

A red game rooster beat his way over the G.T.R. from West Toronto Junction to Guelph, but was arrested as soon as he arrived in the G.T.R. yards. The rooster, flying up on the pilot of the engine as it stood at the water tank taking water, ensconsed itself above the cow-catcher, and as the train drew out of the yards crowed lustily.

It stuck to its post until the train got to Guelph, where one of the train crew found it. It presented a most bedraggled appearance, and was almost all in, its features being filled with cinders and sand.

PLANS WOLFE CHURCH.

Canon Scott Would Build Memorial To Hero.

A proposal to erect a church to the memory of Wolfe, on a conspicuous site in the new Battlefields' Park, which is now being opened up by the National Battlefields Commission, has been made by Rev. Canon Scott, of Quebec. Already a beautiful avenue has been put through, connecting the Plains of Abraham, on the cliffs overlooking the St. Lawrence, with the battlefield of Ste. Foye, overlooking the St. Charles Valley. This avenue is named the Avenue des Braves. It is proposed to erect the church on a piece of ground which is the highest spot on this avenue, and the highest part of the whole future park. The option on the site has already been secured, the property having a frontage of 260 feet on the Avenue des Braves.

Standing on the proposed site one can see across the fields the very place where the battle was fought, and, when the trees are bare of leaves, even the spot where Wolfe fell. To the north an extensive view of the Laurentian Mountains across the valley of the St. Charles is obtainable, while in the immediate foreground is to be seen the monument Aux Braves, marking the battlefield of 1760.

Plans of the church have already been prepared. Two designs have been submitted, one of which is by R. A. Cram, architect of the extensions to St. Alban's Cathedral, and provides for a building in late Gothic style, with lofty interior, stone-vaulted roof, with nave of six bays, triforium, and large clerestory traceried windows. The interior is completely flanked with flying buttresses, with the exception of the west end, while the east end is to be rounded. The cost of the building will be in the neighborhood of one hundred thousand dollars.

Already Canon Scott has received considerable support for the idea, and has got the ear of some very influential men both in England and in this country. The Archbishop of Canterbury writes: "Nothing could be better than that a church should be erected to the memory of Wolfe, whose claims to our gratitude are recognized, I think, by everyone." Prof. Osler, regius professor of medicine at Oxford, thinks the suggestion excellent, and promises to help in any way he possibly can. Lord Halifax, of whose family Gen. Wolfe was a distant connection, approves highly of the proposal, and will give his support. The Archbishop of York says he is much interested, and hoped the idea would meet with every success. He will contribute later as a token of his interest and of his connection between Gen. Wolfe and the Diocese of York. Others who are interested are the Duke of Newcastle, the Bishop of Winchester, Lord Stanhope, and many others.

The body of Gen. Wolfe at present lies buried in the family vault at St. Alphege's Church, Greenwich, Eng., but, at least, in this memorial church a cenotaph to Wolfe might be erected if it could not be that his actual remains might be brought to Quebec. Again, no more suitable place could be found to hang the flag in which Wolfe was wrapped and carried off the field of battle. This flag is at present carefully preserved and hung in an English cathedral. Possibly other relics of Wolfe may find their way to the church, such as his private Communion Book, which is still preserved. In an age when such a thing was uncommon Wolfe led a pure life.

Canon Scott has been in England doing some necessary work in connection with the matter.

The Great Lakes.

We all know in a general way that Lake Superior is the largest and Lake Ontario the smallest of the Great Lakes, but the relative facts are scarcely known to the average person. While Lake Michigan ranks second in size, being forty-five miles shorter than Lake Superior, it is twice as deep at its greatest depth, the figures being 900 feet for Lake Superior and 1,800 feet for Lake Michigan, so that in cubical contents the latter far outreaches Superior. Lake Huron's greatest depth also is a hundred feet more than that of Lake Superior, so that the greatest is not superior in everything, after all.

Lake Erie and Lake Ontario are comparatively shallow, with maximum depth of 204 feet and 412 feet, and yet we should not like to fall overboard in either of them. In width —maximum figures — Lake Superior comes first with 160 miles, Huron second with 105, Michigan third with eighty-four, Erie fourth with sixty, and Ontario last with only fifty-two miles of greatest breadth.

In comparison with its area, Ontario leads with a drainage of 29,769 square miles for its area of 6,700, the others being Erie, drainage 39,680, area 10,000 square miles; Huron, drainage 74,000, area 23,000 square miles; Michigan, drainage 70,000, area 22,400 square miles; and Superior, drainage 85,000, area 32,000 square miles. Drop in elevation is very gradual, Lake Superior being 600 feet above sea level, Michigan 578 feet, Huron 574 feet, Erie 564 feet, and then comes a big drop to 234 feet for Lake Ontario.

Plague of Rats.

While removing an oat stack on his farm near Carman, Man., recently, Wilson Roblin discovered a large colony of rats. With the aid of pitchforks Mr. Roblin and his hired man were able to kill eighty-six. As Carman is 50 miles west of Winnipeg this is regarded evidence that unless drastic and determined effort is made to exterminate them it will be but a short time until this pest spreads all over Western Canada.

Not All "Pure Maple."

Extensive adulteration of maple sugar and maple syrup is indicated in bulletins just issued by the Inland Revenue Department. Of 128 samples sold as maple syrups, only 86 were found to be genuine, while of 82 maple sugar samples, 36 were adulterated.

CANADIAN HOWLERS.

Our Boys and Girls Can Muddle Their Answers on Occasion.

Canada's great wheat crop this year is almost rivalled by the wonderful crop of amusing answers in the examination papers which the examiners have been going over during the past few weeks.

Canadian pupils seem to need considerable coaching on history, according to some of the tales told by the examiners. Here are a few of the answers to queries in the History paper:

"The Boers tried to take Canada, but were defeated by a famous British general, John Bull."

"The Jesuits were so strict that a number of young men took to the woods and married Indians."

"Gen. Braddock had five horses shot from under him, and was mortally wounded, but his men escaped, leaving their arms, ammunition, guns and baggage, and everything but themselves."

"Lloyd George is a Christian because he helps the cause of woman suffrage."

"Bosworth field is important because it was at this place that Mary blew up her first husband."

"Frontenac established royal government, the fur trade and other religious institutions."

One of the questions was a request to define a Papal interdict. List to one reply:

"An interdict was an edict from the Pope forbidding all births, deaths, marriages and baptisms."

Another candidate for honors expressed his belief that the eldest son of the Pope always succeeded to the Papal chair.

Out in the west one pupil wrote that Hon. Robt. Rogers was the Premier of Canada. Other guesses were Henri Bourassa, W. H. Taft, Sir John A. Macdonald, and General Booth.

One hopeful set down his conviction that the C.P.R. began at the St. Lawrence River, crossed the Great Lakes and goes through the Welland Canal.

Here are a few other odd answers:

"The races of men are white or Caucus, Red or Indian, and Negro or Episcopalian."

"You should not feed a horse while it is eating."

"The robin lays between four and five eggs in her nest."

"The solar system was originated by Neptune, the English astronomer."

A Sentimentalist.

The following story is told of James L. Hughes, the widely-known educationist, who recently resigned the inspectorship of Toronto's schools.

"One of my boys was attending a school in the east end, and my wife and I thought he was not doing well there. We wanted to get him into Dufferin school, where we had both been educated, by the way, but it was filled. The principal referred us to Dr. Hughes. I went to see him and stated my desire. He leaned back and said 'For what reason?'

"'He has to cross the street car tracks to get to the school he is attending now,' I said.

"'Many other children also have to cross car tracks. That reason won't do,' said he.

"'Well, we don't like the progress he is making under his present teacher,' was my second plea.

"'Reason No. 2 won't do either,' was his reply.

"'Well, I'm a Dufferin school old boy and I would like him to go there,' was my next.

"He shook his head. 'Can't do it for that reason, either.'

"Those were the only three reasons I had thought of using and every one of them had failed to move the inspector. I was beaten. But suddenly I thought of another—one that I had previously discarded as of little weight—and I decided to try it.

"'My fourth and final reason,' I said, 'is that my wife and I first met and grew to love each other at Dufferin school.'

"Dr. Hughes brought his fist down on the table with a decisive smash.

"'Good!' he exclaimed. 'That's a sufficient reason. Your application is granted'."—Canadian Courier.

Married Mighty Young.

Government members received much sound, if strenuous, training in the art of "sizing up" human nature and its versatility when the busy days of job-hunting commenced, and many, indeed, are the tales told of the weird and original methods adopted by applicants to gain the coveted goal. It is related of Mr. W. F. Nickle, the young Conservative, who captured the former Liberal riding of Kingston, that on the morning after the election he encountered a stalwart who saw him first.

"Me and my two sons voted for you," the man volunteered.

The member-elect beamed his acknowledgments and then put them into words, good, heartsome words, too, But the voter tarried.

"I want to be appointed guard at the pen."

"But how old are you? The age limit is forty."

"No trouble there, I am thirty-six," was the prompt, unblinking response. The member smiled. "Married mighty young, then weren't you?" he observed.

"How old are those two voting sons?"

Salmon Pack Poor.

The canneries of northern British Columbia report a lean year for the season just closed, the sockeye salmon pack totalling only 180,000 cases. The average pack of the last sixteen years was 750,000 cases. Puget Sound canneries, however, report a big season.

The Fraser River pack amounts to 500,000 cases this year, against 1,000,000 in 1911.

Tasmania's Record.

During the 1911-12 season Tasmania's products included 659,615 bushels of wheat, 1,504,632 of oats, 433,364 of peas, 1,505,944 of apples and 62,164 tons of potatoes.

AFTER MUSHROOMS.

Now Is the Time For the Little Fellows To Show Up.

Mushroom time is at hand again and all over the broad Dominion the young and the grown-up are keeping an eye in likely places for the succulent dainty.

Perhaps the best known of all the varieties is the meadow mushroom, whence is derived the spawn from which the ordinary commercial article is grown. Very partial to pasture fields, particularly where sheep run, there are several places near the city where its white cap and pink gills attract the gatherer. None of the bad growths can be mistaken for it. The gills turn a brown, later a black, before decay.

How could anybody mistake this second variety? The morel is pale buff in color, it is deeply honeycombed and pitted, and its stem is partly hollow. In Queen's Park or Trinity College Grounds, in High Park, Toronto, or down at the Riverdale, even in Clarence Square, it is indigenous to a great many of our city breathing spaces—this Morchella Esculenta—and a diligent ambulator may gather him by the big basketful, so prolific is the crop, any time from the season's opening till late on in November. Hunt for morels wherever you see a patch of filled land. Many is the big, tasty mess come from the city water-side dumps, even, and they say that an enthusiast has named a near morel a—haunter of the earth backing to the sea-wall—after a onetime controller. Nothing will bring out the morels like the warm, damp nights to be looked for during September.

Pronounced by epicures the choicest of all mushrooms, the third of our local grass-fleshes, is termed by the learned, the Agaricus Procerus. Anyone will enjoy swallowing a toothsome dish of these, rather than the name. Once again it is not understandable how an amateur, the veriest tyro, can mistake this variety for any detested toadstool ever trod under foot. Like the last, it is a buff color, but spotted with dark shaggy patches, and to secure the parasol mushrooms frequent any place where cattle pasture or horses graze, or seek the margins of woods.

You do not need to take my word for it. "Wherever," says an authority, "an agaric on a long stalk, enlarged at the base, presents a dry cuticle, more or less scaly, a darker colored umbonated top, a moveable ring on the stalk, and white gills, it must be the agaricus procerus, and it may be gathered and eaten without fear."

A pocketful, or a peck, you will like the tender succulence of the shaggy-maned variety—Coprinus comatus—common all over, and a delicious, nutritious dainty of the fields. Yet once more, no poisonous kind looks like it—in shape of a closed umbrella, of a downy whiteness, beautifully spotted with brown. Beneath it is a delicate pink when young, but speedily turns black and dissolves into an inky substance, leaving but the bare stalk standing. You can often have them as late as December.

Remindful of a "swell" dinner, that name—he's the fairy-ring mushroom, and may be growing in the coming fortnight right outside your window, unbeknown, unless you acquaint yourself with the buff-colored, leathery-looking fungus, growing in crescent-shaped patches, or sometimes forming irregular rings. The full, soft masses may be picked and strung, it is said, and retain their piquant flavor for years.

Slow and sure now, gleaner of the wood-lots! The false fairy ring differs from the true in the gills and in the lines under the cap—where they are crowded close together, and not wide apart as in the true food. The false kind has a depressed cap, the true has it always mounded. Also, if it's taste is acrid and not sweet and agreeable, reject it.—C.M.C., in Toronto Star Weekly.

A Delver In Figures.

A book has just been printed at Lindsay, prepared by the town auditor, H. J. Lytle, that represents many months, or even years, of tedious, exacting labor. The copy contained over two hundred thousand calculations, only one-half, however, being used in the published work. It is somewhat difficult for one not versed in municipal lore to understand the magnitude of the work, but an idea can be formed from the fact that any rates levied by a council which can be expressed by one or any possible combinations of two or three figures, on amounts from $100, increasing by sums of $100 until $9,900 is reached, are to be found on its pages, or, in other words, every rate from one mill to nine and ninety-nine-hundredth mills is furnished. In order to make the work as nearly perfect as possible after reading the proofs with the copy, Mr. Lytle again proved the calculations mentally without the copy. He disclaims any credit for ability in his work, further than a little stick-to-it-iveness.

Mr. Lytle's book will never figure among the best sellers, nor will he coin money with it. Only one copy will probably be sold in any municipality and possibly not that many in some of the smaller communities.

Nuns' Sacrifice.

Three nuns have just left Montreal to spend the remainder of their lives in the leper colony at Sheckiung Island, near Canton. All three are only a little more than twenty years of age. For a time, at all events, they will be the only nuns to care and tend for four hundred Chinese women suffering from the awful disease of leprosy, and a separate hospital has been erected for them by Father Conrardy and his few assistants.

King's Beer as a Prize.

Mr. Tom Wright, the heaviest inhabitant of Derby, ran a 50 yards' race at Burton-on-Trent with Mr. George Fairbairn, an elderly Burton man, the prize being a bottle of the famous ale brewed by King Edward. Mr. Wright fell, his opponent winning easily.

Woman's World

Pretty Girl Appointed Game Warden.

MISS NORMA FREDERIC GIBBONEY.

"I have already made two arrests for game violations. I had no trouble with the prisoners. I carried a revolver and a shotgun, and the pothunters knew that I could use either of them."

Which announcement goes to show that Miss Norma Frederic Gibboney didn't become game warden merely to wear a bright badge. Miss Gibboney was appointed warden recently by Governor Emmet O'Neal of Alabama. She probably is the only woman in the United States with this sort of commission.

When the news of her appointment was made public the pothunters in their huts along the Mobile bay marshes thought it a good joke.

"She's one of these society women," they laughed. "She never would come out on a rainy day for fear of getting her feet wet. On with the killing."

They were fully convinced of their mistake when the handsome warden came upon two of their number slaughtering ducks and marched them in with one hand resting significantly on the black butt of the revolver at her hip.

Miss Gibboney's home is Aloha. It stands among acres of forest and foliage. Mobile bay stretches away to the east, and at the back is the Dog river. She is a deadly shot with a rifle and can bring down the mallards from behind a blind with the best shots in Mobile. It was her love for animals and not the passion for hunting that led her to become one of the Alabama game police.

"It is the birds that I particularly want to protect," said Miss Gibboney recently when speaking about her work. "We seldom realize how much good they do. If they didn't prey constantly on the insects we would be without vegetation before very long. I am familiar with every bird of Alabama. Ten years ago you could see flocks of beautiful blue cranes in the edge of the water out there. Now they are curiosities.

"I have recently fitted out a log cabin in the midst of ten acres of forest that is just as nature made it. I intend to spend the rest of my life there."

Miss Gibboney is well known over the entire south. She is a frequent visitor to New Orleans. She is a descendant of Zack Taylor, Patrick Henry and the Virginia Sheltons. She is prominent in society. From now on she won't see much of receptions and pink teas.

Concerning Women.

Mrs. Elsie Clews Parsons of New York has written a book, which she calls "The Old Fashioned Woman." Mayor Gaynor, who generally is credited with saying what he thinks, declared that it is a most interesting book, but suggests that the title might be changed to "Primitive Fancies About the Sex."

Mrs. Metcalfe resides at the station at Sackett Harbor, on Lake Ontario, and looks after the buildings, which are old and worn, for $1 a day. She is therefore the only woman "commandant" in the United States and was present when the monument to commemorate the victory in the war of 1812 was dedicated recently.

[illegible] "Reminiscences of a Diplomat's Wife," by Mrs. Hugh Fraser, is described as a former friend of the grandchildren of Queen Victoria. Upon one occasion one of the princesses gave her a ring and excused the fact that it was not a more expensive one by the remark, "But, you know, Granny Vic is so stingy."

Mrs. Susie Root Rhodes, librarian of the League of American Penwomen, is a member of the school board of Washington and has been chosen by the commissioners to represent the District of Columbia at the International congress of school [illegible] to be held in Buffalo the [illegible] week in August. She is [illegible]

Next year will be a crucial one in the history of Cumberland, if present conditions continue. It is up to the electors to consider carefully and well the best interests of this city, and then vote accordingly. Let there be no antagonism, just for the sake of antagonism, against those who are both able and willing to assist our city very materially. At this stage of the game we want, and must have, seven of the best men in Cumberland, as mayor and aldermen for 1914. We must stop drifting, we must re establish our credit, we must restore confidence, or we will drift into bankruptcy and nothingness as far as our civic status is concerned. The power is in your hands on election day to remedy existing conditions; so it is up to you.

Judging by the utterances of Messrs Lockard and Clinton, general manager, and superintendent, respectively, of the Canadian Collieries, at a banquet given in honor of their promotion to the above-mentioned high positions, on Monday night at the Union Hotel, they are willing and anxious to lend their hearty co-operation in forwarding the best interests of Cumberland, providing they have the hearty co-operation of next year's council and the citizens generally. Their utterances were not mere idle words, but were expressions of deep interest in the city's welfare. But if we have not the best interests of the city at heart, why should they? They, (the Company,) can get along very well without our assistance, but can we without theirs? The sympathy and assistance of such a large and wealthy corporation, means much to this city. "Be sure you're right, then go ahead."

Mayor Campbell is to be commended on his firmess at the Court of Revision. The mayor in our experience of him, has at all times been a gentleman, in that which pertains to his position as mayor of this city and in business.

The provincial Conservatives are tickled to death, over the election of Foster for the Islands constituency. Who can blame them; after the race?

The many friends in the city of Mrs. James Reid, Haliburton street, will be pleased to learn she is progressing most favorably toward recovery from the effects of a terrible burning on Saturday last. On that day Mrs. Reid was polishing the kitchen stove with a polish in the manufacture of which gasoline is used. The stove contained a little fire which caused the polish to ignite, the flames catching hold of the woman's clothing and burning her seriously about the arms and body. Mrs. Reid was immediately taken to the hospital and her injuries given prompt attention,—Nanaimo Herald.

For MAYOR

To the Electors of the City of Cumberland.

LADIES AND GENTLEMEN:—

Having been requested by a large number of electors to offer myself as a candidate for mayor, and, after careful consideration, have decided to accept nomination. I have served you seven years as alderman. If elected, I will look after the best interests of the city and citizens, and will do my duty without fear or favor.

I will address you publicly and go fully into the matter before election day.

Soliciting your votes and influence for a thorough business and up to date method of conducting the affairs of your city.

I am, Yours Respectfully,

Big Fall in Cycle Prices

During stock-taking we have found that we have quite a number of second hand shop-soiled and "returned from hire" machines and are holding an end of season clearance at big price reductions. Look into this.
