BIG HOSPITAL PLANS FINALLY APPROVED

The plans of Archt S. B. Birds, Duncan bldg, for the proposed Royal Columbian hospital bldg at New Westminster, have been finally approved. Tenders will be sought next week at a definite date, to be later announced. The bldg will cost in the neighborhood of $200,000.

The plans, as previously mentioned, call for a 3 sto edifice of brick. There will be four wings, two being occupied as private wards and two as public. The children's ward will be on the second floor. The second floor will also contain operating rooms equipped with the latest scientific appliances. The bldg will be fireproof throughout and among other features will be a first class laundry plant and fumigating appliances.

F. L. Sprague, consulting engineer, was specially engaged to prepare the heating plans. These he has completed and surrendered to Archt Birds. The heating plans call for a two-pipe vacuum system with alternate drawings and estimates for the Paul system. Oil burners and tubular boilers will be installed, there being two boilers, each 54x14. Provision is also made for a future boiler in the event of an addition being planned. The heating plant will be thoroughly complete and up to date in every particular.
