Happenings About Town Briefly Told of More than Local Interest

FRUIT WANTED FOR EXHIBITION

Mr. Brandrith, who has had charge of the Government exhibits which have been made in the Northwest and Eastern Canadian fairs the past few years, will again have charge of the exhibit to be made this year. Mr. Brandrith is already preparing, and writes from the coast asking what the fruit growers of Enderby are going to do this year in the way of getting together the varions fruits to make a showing from Enderby.

The Government pays for all fruit sent for exhibition purposes. Following are the dates of the fairs:

Winnipeg, July 8th to 16th.
Brandon, July 15th to 26th.
Regina, July 28th to August 2nd.
Saskatoon, August 4th to 9th.
Edmonton, August 11th to 16th.
Toronto, August 23rd to Sept. 6th.
Ottawa, Sept. 5th to 11th.
London, Sept. 5th to 11th.

Mr. Brandrith says: "I would like strawberries and gooseberries for Winnipeg; strawberries, gooseberries and raspberries for Brandon; same for Regina with black currents added; same for Saskatoon and Edmonton; for Toronto, Ottawa and London, apples, pears, plums and crabs."

Anyone prepared to furnish any of these fruits can learn all particulars at The Walker Press office or of G. R. Lawes.

INFANTS TAKEN BY COUGH

Mr. and Mrs. Percy Rosoman are this week receiving the sympathy of the community in the untimely loss of their twin children, ten months of age, by the whooping cough epidemic. The little girl died Thursday morning, June 19th, and the little boy Monday morning, the 23rd. They were buried from the English church on Friday and Tuesday afternoon, interment at the Enderby Cemetery.

These deaths bring us face to face with the seriousness of this cough epidemic. It required just such a lesson to show us the folly of ignoring the precautions demanded by law to prevent the spreading of the disease. The quarantine law has been farcically observed, if observed at all. The notice to householders issued by the Health Committee may as well have never been given. Perhaps the blame does not rest upon anyone in particular. All have been more or less indifferent to the importance of isolating the afflicted children. The result is that there are few children in town who have not tasted or are tasting the sweets of either measles, mumps or whooping cough, and no serious effort has yet been made to stop the spreading of the maladies.

WHOOPING COUGH SPECIFIC

It might be of interest to many who have children suffering from the dreaded whooping cough to learn that the paroxisms of coughing can be greatly reduced and the patient placed out of all danger by a whooping cough specific known as Pertussin—a remedy that is taken internally, is perfectly harmless and is readily taken by the children. Pertussin originated in Taeschner's celebrated laboratory, Berlin, Germany. It is sold by druggists in this part of Canada at $1.25 a large bottle. It is a preparation of the good old thyme extract and syrup. Every one knows the medicinal qualities of thyme, and can safely give the preparation to the smallest infant. Medical men of Eastern Canada are most unanimous in recommending the preparation. Those who have tried it in Enderby say it cannot be recommended too highly. This is not an "ad" for Pertussin, but the information is given in the hope that it may be of service in relieving the suffering of the little ones.

GARDOM CASE UP AGAIN

"One can scarcely fail to respect a man who defends his honor under the provocation alleged to have been given the accused," said Magistrate Shaw in reviewing the Gardom case of alleged assault this morning.

"Technically there may have been an assault committeed by both parties, and this court is aware that there is no 'unwritten law,' although at times it would seem best that there was one," the court added.

Judgment was reserved in the case of Reginald Gardom while the charges against Basil Gardom and C. A. L. Payne were dismissed without the formality of a defence being put in. Mr. A. D. Taylor asked that the Magistrate state his reasons for dismissing the action against these two that it might be used in case of an appeal. This, he argued, was a matter of law, and as such he had every reason to expect a stated case.

His worship promised to hand down a ruling on this point on Thursday.—Vancouver Province.

WILL OIL OKANAGAN ROADS

With a view of making experiments with oil on the dry roads of the Okanagan district, Road Superintendent Hamilton Lang of Okanagan, who has been in the city some days, says the Vancouver Province, on Saturday went over the Point Grey highways with Road Superintendent McBride of Richmond district, and examined the oiling done in that part of Greater Vancauver. It is planned by Mr. Lang to sprinkle oil on one or two of the Okanagan highways this summer and if the experiment works out well in the dry belt to make more general use of this method of road treating next year. Okanagan roads are rapidly achieving prominence as being among the best traffic highways in the province and it is planned by the road superintendent of that district to improve them to an extent which will reduce the cost of motor tires and fruit transportation to a minimum.

BURNING POTATOES

Tons upon tons of new potatoes are being burned by the Fruit Inspection department, at Vancouver, on their arrival from California. This work is being undertaken to destroy the lavae of the Cuba moth which has gained a very strong hold on the state from whence the potatoes are shipped. The same precautions are taken with imported carrots and turnips.

Mr. J. A. Lee, formerly mayor of New Westminster, died suddenly while driving his auto on the streets of the Fraser river metropolis, one day last week.

Robinson was fined $10 and costs and McDonald $5 and costs. Harry Robinson was charged with assault while McDonald came up for being drunk and disorderly.

Are your city taxes paid? Don't forget that Monday next, June 30th, is the last day on which you can get the discount. On that day, for the convenience of the public, and in order that as many as possible may take advantage of the rebate, the City Clerk's office will be kept open continuously from 9 a.m. till 6 p.m., and again in the evening from 7 till 9 o'clock.

SLAP AT CANADIAN CITIES

Mr. Horne Payne, the broker seer who floats more watered stock rail road bonds in London than perhaps any other, a few days ago in London made the broad statement that Canadian municipal bonds were unsafe, and he advised the money lords to steer clear of them. His remarks have caused bitter protests from all over the Dominion. When considering the matter on Monday the city officials of Winnipeg took a very determined stand against the accusation. Alderman R. C. MacDonald expressed the opinion that whatever action may be taken by Winnipeg, the whole question should be taken up by Premier Borden. Commissioner Roller Cookburn said that an official protest should be made by every city in Canada.

PELKEY IS ACQUITTED

Arthur J. Pelkey, charged with manslaughter in connection with the death of Luther McCarty, at Calgary in a prize fight held on May 24th, was adjudged not guilty, the jury returning a verdict Monday evening after an hour's deliberation. The case was tried before Chief Justice Harvey. Pelkey is an eastern Canadian boy, and now bears the title to the championship of the world.

The men who have succeeded best in life have been cheerful and hopeful men, who went about their business with a smile on their faces, and took the changes of this mortal life like men, facing rough and smooth alike as it came.

DOVES OF PEACE

It is particularly noteworthy and not a little amusing to read in the Liberal press how much we Canadians are lovers of peace, and how we dislike to join with the Mother Country in building up a navy that will protect the Empire against all foes. This line of argument has just come forward since the Borden Naval Aid Bill was killed by the Senate. It was not heard until the Liberal Senate put its foot into it. And now we see the same course is being followed by all our Liberal exchanges. War is pictured as a deplorable thing—and this no one would care to deny—but it is very funny in Canada, a part of the British Empire, and a part that has for 150 years or more depended entirely upon the strong arm of the British navy for protection, to suddenly reach the conclusion that it is a menace to the world's peace, this strong and mighty power of the Motherland, and therefore we as Canadians will have nothing to do in the making of the British navy stronger, but on the contrary will sit down and sing peace odes while England taxes her people still the more to provide our protection.

The Canadian Courier voices the argument of the Liberal press when it says: "Should Canada send a message to the world such as this: 'We are warlike descendants of a warlike race, and we intend to take our part in the making of armaments'? Or should we say: 'We believe that the world has gone crazy on the building of big navies, and while we shall prepare to protect our own, we shall not join the world wide craze'?"

This statement of the case by the Canadian Courier is the baldest bit of drivel ever put in print. The facts are these, and every Canadian must admit it: As a colony and as a Dominion Canada has been nursed along as a baby by the Motherland. Our very inception and our existence has been made possible by England. We have taken all the Mother Country has had to give, and what have we given in return? The prestige of our commerce on the seas, and our internal development has been the result of the Mother's care. Without her strong naval arm to protect us, what would the Dominion be today? It is all very well to talk of peace and to hold high and lofty desires along this line—so long as we do not have to foot the bills for the protection of our commerce and the development of our resources, but it comes with ill taste this criticism of the Mother Country's strenuous efforts to provide for the protection of British territory wherever it may lie.

Is this the answer Canada is prepared to give to the Motherland for all the protection we have received in the past and must receive, even if we should begin to-morrow with the construction of our own warships, for the next half century? The message Canada has sent to the world (thanks to the party discards in the Senate) is more like this: "We are descendants of Britains, loyal to the Motherland at so much per head; we have been reared and nourished by her and are now thriving under her protection; we are all swelled up in the pride of our own importance, all of which we admit; but we love peace bought and paid for at a tremendous price by the Motherland and we do not intend to take any part in the making of armaments—not while the Motherland will make them and pay for them for us."

Here is another gem from the Canadian Courier: "Those opposed to a contribution may be wrong in their apprehensions, but they fear a contribution would make Canada a participant in European quarrels."

What a lofty conception! We glory in the British flag; we prate on our loyalty and claim to have hearts of Britons, and cling to the Mother's apron strings for protection, and yet when we are asked to take a hand in paying the price of our existence we "fear our contribution would make us a participant in European quarrels!" When England was asked to quell the Fenian raids; when she settled for Canada the Alaskan and fisheries disputes; when she provided the millions for the construction of the C. P. R. and the innumerable other enterprises that have meant so much to Canada; when she bore for Canada all the cost and responsibility attaching to the carrying on of the Dominion's business with other nations in the early colonial days, did she refuse in fear of being implicated in troubles that might arise on the American continent?

When the same knowledge was conveyed to the little Mala states as was conveyed to Canada as to the needs of the Motherland, did these little states refuse, fearing that they would be made participants in European quarrels? Did New Zealand refuse? Did Australia? On the contrary, they gladly came forward with the ships required.

STIMULUS TO SHEEP INDUSTRY

Particular efforts have been made by Hon. Martin Burrell, Minister of Agriculture, since he came into office to encourage the sheep and wool industry in Canada. Sheep raising in many parts of Canada has almost died out and the industry for years has been steadily declining. One of the first moves taken by the Minister was the appointment of two committees of sheep experts, one to study conditions in the Maritime Provinces and the other in the West and British Columbia. As a result of their recommendations a great stimulus has already been given the industry.

To provide for the prosecution of an aggressive and systematic campaign for the industry a sheep specialist was appointed, whose duty it has been to give direct assistance to sheep raisers and to devise means for bettering the conditions under which sheep are raised and their products marketed. He has devoted his attention particularly to the West so far and has been able to assist in the organization of two flourishing wool-growers associations in the West and two wool experts have been sent West to assist in this year's wool clipping.

"Enderby is a charming villiage with city airs. When Paddy Murphy shook the snow of Sandon off his feet he came here, and now owns one of finest brick hotels in the country. What the Great Timber Wealth of B. C. Means to Every Industry

British Columbia possesses one of the few great timber areas of the world. While the countries of the far East have lost all the timber they ever had, while European nations are resorting to the most intensive methods possible to secure continuity of stand and a certainty of yield, and are planting trees by hand over great areas to ensure crops in the future; while Eastern Canada and the New England States are clamoring for lumber and viewing with alarm the rapidly diminishing supplies in their country, British Columbia has a vast area of over 65 million acres of timberland, which should produce, according to the estimates of experts, at least one hundred board feet per acre per annum, or a total of 6½ billion feet. This would return to the Government over 6½ million dollars every year. The province is the possessor of a glorious heritage of over 300 billion feet of timber, which is quite half of all that standing in the Dominion at the present time. At the present rate of cutting, the loggers are taking annually only one-fifth of the amount which is added by the natural process of growth.

If one looks over the industries in the province, the shipping and all the allied and dependent trades, one will see that at least three out of every five men in the country are looking to the forest to supply their livelihood. There are very few industries which are not to a greater or less extent under obligation for their existence to the forest resource. Outside altogether of the loggers, millmen, transport men, builders, and all those who use wood in a secondary way, the vast majority of the great farming population are dependent upon the forest-clad gills for the wealth of the wonderful natural soils from which spring the crops which have become renowned the world over.

It is plainly evident, therefore that to maintain the prosperity of the Province it is necessary to maintain the forest resource. This resource is subject to one of the greatest dangers in the world, the danger which brings havoc into towns, cities, and settled communities, which mounts into the hundreds of millions every year. And the forest has no protection such as have the buildings in the great cities. When the great enemy—fire—breaks out in the forest, there is practically nothing to impede its progress or check its work of devastation save favorable climatic conditions or some peculiar configuration of the ground. The trees stand close together; if one tree goes the one next it will go; fire reaches up from the ground, gets into the crowns, and then sweeps over mountains and valleys without any possibility of being checked. In the cities there are fire patrols, some of them on motor trucks which can speed as high as sixty miles an hour. In the forest, on the other hand, there may be no one to see the fire until days after it has begun. The gospel of an ounce of prevention being better than a pound of cure applies so thoroughly to the forest that every effort which is being made, and should be made in the future, should look to the early extinguishing of a fire before it attains a size which renders it impossible to put out.

The causes of the vast proportion of forest fires to-day are in the carelessness of people who have fires and do not properly extinguish them. According to the report of the Chief Forester for the past year, over 70 per cent of the blazes which originated in other ways than from lighting were from sheer carelessness on the part of campers, brush burners land clearers, etc. There were a great number of conflagrations traceable, it is true, to railways whose lines were not cleared of brush, and sparks from the passing engines set blazes in the debris by the right-of-way with disastrous results to the surrounding timber.

There are numerous methods devised by the Provincial Forest Branch authorities to prevent and extinguish forest fires. There were employed last summer over 150 forest rangers, whose sole duty was to safeguard the standing timber and collect and organize fire fighting parties in case of an outbreak. But greater than the work of the rangers, and vastly more important than the expenditure for their activities is the expenditure by every citizen of the province of care over all the sources of danger which enter into his every-day life. A single cigarette butt thrown carelessly by the road-side will occasion a fire which will wipe out more value in timber than would buy the province rigarettes for the next fifty years; a little carelessness with brush burning may occasion a fire which will burn up more than the cleared land of the whole valley will produce in the life of him who neglected the blaze; a hole punched in a donkey stack, or neglect in the use of fire pans might consume the money which would be devoted to all the logging machinery for the timber district for the next generation; an uncared-for camp fire—and this is the greatest source of danger of all—may burn away in the ground and finally blaze up in a mighty conflagration which will sweep away more wealth than would be produced by all the mines which the careless camper or prospector might uncover in all his gold-seeking days.

If the average citizen will give his moral support to all the activities of the Government in its efforts to put out fires; will work hand in hand with the district forest officers and respond quickly when the call comes for assistance to a fire, he will build far more broadly and securely than he imagines the basis of prosperity for himself, for the people in his community and for the coming generation. There devolves upon every man in the province a duty to his country in this regard, and he will truly serve his native land who does the simple acts of carefulness and prevention in the ordinary course of his daily occupation.

MINISTER GOES TO EUROPE

Hon. Martin Burrell, minister of Agriculture, will sail in July for Europe to visit the Ghent exhibition in the interests of Canada. Mr. Burrell while there will consult with Wm. Hutcheson, exhibition commissioner, in regard to the Panama exhibition, which will be held in San Francisco in 1915. Mr. Burrell feels that Canada should make a special effort to be well represented at San Francisco, especially in view of the value of the opening of the Panama canal to the Pacific coast and the prairie provinces.

COLONEL HUGHES COMING

Colonel Sam Hughes, Minister of Militia and Defence, together with General Ian Hamilton, of South African war fame, will arrive at the coast in June 26th. Two private cars—the Dominion Government coach, "Roleen" and the "Olivette" are on the special train which left Toronto June 7th. General Hamilton is Inspector General of the Overseas forces of the Empire.

CHINA WAKING UP

During the last twelve years only some 5,000 miles of railway were constructed throughout the entire territory known as China. It is proposed during the next decade to build 60,000 miles. If this program is carried out it is easy to conceive how many new openings for trade will be made and how the present trade of that country will develop.

Hon. William Pugsley in his closing speech in the Dominion House wanted an election to test public feeling. R. B. Bennett of Calgary said that he would resign his seat if Mr. Pugsley would resign his in St. John and they would test eastern and western sentiment on the navy question. Mr. Pugsley immediately took to the tall timber.

It is only the weak mind that is disturbed by strange doctrines.

AGRICULTURE IN B. C.

In connection with the Agricultural Commission which is at present touring the Province, studying the conditions of the industry, and gathering data to be embodied in an official report which may be used for furthering the interests of the same, it can now be stated that at the close of the series of itineraries at present arranged by the commission to exhaust the agricultural features of this country, members of the Government body will be sent to Australia and England to study the conditions of the industry in these countries.

It has been pointed out to the Government that the agricultural conditions of this Province are extremely peculiar, that they differ radically from what is to be encountered in most of the other provinces, and that consequently for a suitable comparison it may be deemed advisable to extend the scope or rather the sphere of the commission's work by sending delegates to Australia and the Old Country, where the industry is carried on in practically every conceivable manner. It is well known that in parts of Great Britain the agricultural conditions are more in keeping with the prevailing conditions of this Province than perhaps any other part, and then again the wonderful diversity of systems in the great agricultural Commonwealth of Australia is believed to harbor many suggestions that would prove of value if incorporated in the prospective Government report.

"OPTIONAL NEUTRALITY."

Dr. Lawrence, a recignized authority on international law, had something to say about this question in his lectures on "Colonial Problems," in the University of London. According to the Morning Post report (London) of May 15th, he said:

"He strongly suspected that this controversy in Canada, as elsewhere, was largely due to the use of technical terms in a non-technical way. What was meant by 'neutrality' in those cases was that the Dominions reserved the right to give or withhold the assistance of their armed forces in time of war. All this was a matter of internal arrangement which did not concern foreign nations, but it had nothing to do with neutrality. Neutrality and belligerency were the functions of sovereign states. Further, it should be remembered that neutrality meant more than not taking part in a war. Neutrality had its obligations as well as its privileges. Would Canada like her commerce to lose the protection of the British navy in time of war on the ground that she was a neutral power? Would foreign Powers recognize Canada's prestige as a part of the British Empire in time of peace and exempt her from the disabilities of neutrality in time of war? Such a curious in-and-out policy would break down utterly if it was ever seriously attempted to put t into operation."

"REDEMPTION" PICTURES

The Opera House management has made a special effort of late to secure a better class of pictures for Enderby, and as a result our lovers of the "movies" are now seeing the best plays produced. It is the intention of the management of put on each Saturday night, special features—plays that ordinarily would be shown in the larger cities. On these occasions the price of admission will be raised to 25c for adults and 15c children.

Next Saturday evening pictures of that greatest of moral plays "The Redemption" will be flashed upon the curtain. It is said to be a wonderful production, showing 500 people in the 50 big scenes. The story is one of surpassing interest throughout, and is devoid of anything approaching the frivolous or the distasteful. It depicts the life of a woman from girlhood caught in the meshes of folly and worse, and tells of the power of kindness over brute force, and the final redemption of the wayward one. It is a picture play that all should see.

MEETING INTERRUPTION

"My dear brethren, this is my last address to you. I am going from you, and you may never hear the voice of James Moore again."

"Amen!" came loudly from the seat before him.

He looked at the man with a little surprise; but, thinking it was a mistake, went on, "My days on earth will soon be numbered. I am an old man and you may not only never hear the voice of James Moore, but never see his face again."

"Amen!" was shouted back from the same seat more vigorously than before. There was no mistaking the design now. The preacher looked at the man. He knew him to be a hard, grinding man, stingy and merciless to the poor. He continued his address:

"May the Lord bless all those of you who have done their duty, who have honored Him with your substance, who have been kind to the poor, and," pausing and looking the intruder straight in the eye and pointing to him with his finger, "may His curse rest on those who have cheated the Lord and ground the poor under their heels! Say amen to that, brother!" He was not interrupted again.—Victoria Colonist.

SICK OF THE WHITE ELEPHANT

Here is what the Toronto Daily Star (Liberal) says about the senate:

"The Star has advocated the abolition of the senate for twenty years, and especially during the period that the Liberals were in power. It still holds that it should be abolished, and is therefore not particularly interested in the threat that it will be abolished or reformed if it rejects the naval bill. It ought to be abolished or reformed, preferably abolished, whether it rejects the naval bill, amends it, or passes it in its present form."

There is a bit of irony about the visit of a New Zealand dreadnought—one of the ships given by New Zealand to aid the Motherland—to Victoria the past week.

THE JOYS OF GOSSIP

Wisconsin has done many notable things in the legislative way, says the Saturday Evening Post, but it will not succeed in suppressing malicious gossip by law. Even if it were possible it would be a pity to do it. Malicious gossip is the chief mental resource of a great many people whose intellectual balance sheet consists mainly of liabilities. Taking gossip away from them would be like taking away the crutch of a one-legged man who has forty miles to go uphill. It lightens the gloom and relieves the bile of the envious and inefficient. The man or woman who edges into the twilight with a gnawing sense that he or she is of no particular account, and that everybody knows it, can still catch a little burst of sunshine by repeating a neighbor's foibles.

WORK OF THE FIRE WARDENS

James Evans, of Salmon Arm, Fire Warden for this district, was in Enderby this week getting a line on the work being done by his deputies. Mr. Evans has twenty deputy fire wardens under him, and these men cover the district as it was never covered before. In the olden times, not so many years ago, either, the office of fire warden and deputy fire warden was looked upon as a sinecure. No boundaries were defined, and when a fire occurred a deputy would generally conclude that it was in another deputy's territory and would lose himself in the woods in an opposite direction while the fire burned on. When Mr. Evans took charge of the district he called his deputies together and each man's territory was laid out. Every deputy was given to understand what he was to do, and "it's up to you boys, now, to make good," said he. Each deputy was told to prepare his trails into every part of his territory, and t keep them open for any emergency call. Each man had to personally visit every part of his district as frequently as possible so as to keep in touch with its development and to know at all times what was transpiring. More than that, and this was laid down as all important, the deputies were instructed to keep in personal touch with the men in the woods and the settlers, and to work in conjunction with them to keep down the fire losses and at the same time assist in every way practicable in the burning off of the lands where clearing was going on.

How well this work has been done under Mr. Evans' supervision will be recognized when it is known that the cost of fire protection last year in this district was less than it has been for any year in the history of the Province. There were no bad forest fires and very little standing timber was destroyed by the slashing fires getting away from the settlers doing the burning. And there have been no convictions for fire-setting without a permit. Nor has there been any serious delay at any time when a burning permit was desired.

This satisfactory condition of affairs is entirely the result of good generalship by the fire warden himself, and the mutual co-operation of the deputies and the settlers themselves. The men in the woods now look upon the fire warden and his deputies as friends who are prepared to assist them in every way possible. All are working together for the common good, and the results are the best possible testimony of the substantial good growing out of the broad policy inaugurated by Mr Evans and the department under which he works.

In the immediate vicinity of Enderby and the district east to Mabel Lake, south to Armserong and north to Sicamous, the work is carried on by Thos. Hughes and Frank Hawes. Mr. Evans states that he is well satisfied with the wrok of these men. They are always on the job and work to please the people of the district whom they are serving.

Did the little Mala states have to "appeal to the country" to learn if the Malaian people were willing to help the Motherland? Did the people of Australia? Did the people of New Zealand?

EDISON'S MASTERPIECE

What the world owes Thomas A. Edison has not yet been fully realized. It may be one hundred years hence before the true greatness of the man and his marvelous patience and productive ability are fully conceived. One cannot hear the Edison phonograph without feeling some of the marvelous power of this great inventor. But when one hears the new Edison disc machine he marvels still the more, for this IS IT. It was in 1877 that Mr. Edison invented the first phonograph. In 1878, one year later he invented and patented the first disc phonograph. This information may come as a surprise to many for not until the end of 1912 has the great master permitted a disc machine to be offered to the public in his name. He has been working all these years to master the baffling problems of acoustics in the reproduction of music. For the past two weeks the public of Enderby has had the pleasure of hearing music from this new Edison wonder at the Enderby Music Store. Any talking machine can and does reproduce the fundamental tone of the original music, but the quality and the beauty of music are in the overtones or tone colors. An instrument which cannot truly reproduce the overtones cannot truly reproduce music. It is here that the new machine accomplishes the heretofore impossible. Mr. Edison has mastered the accoustical difficulties in the perfect recording of music, and then the perfect reproduction of it.

WOULD POOL THE NAVIES

The Montreal Star has the following somewhat remarkable editorial advocating a change from the Borden emergency naval policy:

"We venture to suggest, now that during the parliamentary recess, the more immediate purposes of party do not so entirely engross the attention of party leaders, that the leaders of the Conservative party in Canada might well look a little into the future and take up the great task of preparing the ground for the naval policy which they must eventually present to the people.

"Their present policy is admirable in every way. But it is a pure accident that theys till possess it. If the stupid, party-ridden Senate had not played the game of the Conservative party so neatly—if so unintentionally—by rejecting the Borden Bill and so let the Borden Government with the excellent policy of getting the bill passed, still in its hands, the Conservative party would be today without a naval policy.

"Mr. Borden came home last year from London and presented his policy to us as an emergency policy. The 'emergency' was real enough—altogether too real and grim to be comfortable. The battleships he proposed to build were imperatively needed—as has been shown since the action of the Senate by the promptness with which the British Government ordered them on its own account.

"It was and is our belief that this policy of not contributing—a thousand times no—but of "pooling" our naval efforts with the naval efforts of the rest of the Empire in one great imperial navy is the sound policy for all British peoples, whether there be an 'emergency' or not. If the 'emergency' were to pass, this would still be our policy. It is the naval policy which spells efficiency—which will buy us the maximum of naval strength for the minimum price—which will protect the Empire at the smallest cost—which will ensure protection against the greatest odds.

"So far as we understand Mr. Borden's utterances, he is for this policy. He emphasizes constantly his belief in 'one navy' as contrasted with the system of several separate navies embodied in the Liberal policy. He purposes to have cruisers built in this country; but they are to be cruisers built under Admiralty direction for the "one British navy." He hinted in his closing speech on the third reading of his bill, at the creation of dockyards and fortified naval bases on the Coast of Canada; but these are only the requirements of a united imperial navy, and do not at all imply necessarily to a separate Canadian navy.

"Is it not time that the Conservative party launched a campaign of education along these lines?
