Col. Edgett Scores Meighen Government

Col. C. E. Edgett, the Soldier-Farmer candidate for the Federal House, was in Enderby on Wednesday and last evening had a rousing meeting in the U. F. hall. Certainly if his meeting in Enderby was characteristic of other meetings held by him in the riding, and if these meetings indicate the trend of the electors' thought and intentions in voting, Col. Edgett will be the next member for the Yale constituency. And we have Col. Edgett's word for it that he has received the same cordial treatment in every section where he has addressed the electors. At Penticton there was a larger audience at his meeting than attended the meeting held there by Mr. Meighen. At Vernon the Empress theatre was crowded.

Col. Edgett modestly declines to take any credit for being the attraction which draws the people together at these meetings. But, he says, it shows the interest the people are taking in the political movement now launched in opposition to the Unionist Government idea.

Speaking of the difficulty in covering the territory he is expected to cover, Col. Edgett said he would hardly be able to get into some localities he originally intended to visit, but he would do his best and cover as much ground as the present condition of the roads would permit.

In his address at Enderby Col. Edgett gave a good account of himself. He has a trenchant way of stating his case, though no flights of oratory are gifted him. He hits straight from the shoulder and leaves no question as to where he stands on a question. His hearers do not heckle him. And the spirit of the audience is one of intense seriousness and determination. There is no subterfuge. His hearers want to know; they come to listen determined not to be fooled and demanding the right to form their own conclusions and to vote accordingly.

Col. Edgett was assisted in his Enderby meeting by Mr. Copeland, president of the United Farmers, who spoke briefly on the excellent attendance at the Edgett meetings throughout the valley.

Colonel Edgett on being introduced received a splendid ovation. Speaking with eloquent force he said: "I appear before you tonight as the Independent Candidate for Yale for the coming bye-election. I take this stand in order to register a solemn protest against the present administration at Ottawa, and to endeavour to bring on a general election at an early date. I feel that the present government as at preset constituted is not representative of the people."

Continuing Col. Edgett said: "My every endeavour in parliament as it has been as a soldier and a citizen, will be to legislate in the best interests of the people as a whole. I wish to make it clear that I am not representing any particular class, I feel that certain classes have been catered to in the past at the sacrifice of certain others even more deserving. Has the Farmer had a square deal? It is realized that agriculture is the basic industry of our Dominion. Over 50 per cent of its entire population is devoted to agricultural pursuits. This percentage would be even higher if rural housing conditions were better. The Government itself has its own responsibility in this connection. Take for instance the free timber grants to the E. A. U. Clair Co. of Calgary, who sold lumber in 1914 at $16.00 per thousand, now charging $55, an increase of over 300 per cent. In addition to this the advance in other building material, freight rates, and market manipulations resulting in inferior housing conditions." Stating that there were 194 armouries as against 25 experimental farms, he asked if every endeavour had been made by the present government to properly represent the agricultural industry. How the Government looked upon the farmers must be judged by a quotation of Sir Geo. E. Foster's speech at Elgin, Sept. 10th, of this year, as follows:

"Soviet, Bolshevik, Miners or Farmers Party, I care not what it is, one is almost as bad as the other."

"Can a sympathetic hearing be expected from such men as Mr. Meighen, and his associates who class farmers amongst the wreckers and agitators of our country," he asked. "The farmer does not believe he has to choose between Mr. Meighen and Bolshevism. The farmer does not want a farmer government. He only wants fair representation and that representation in agricultural districts. With regard to Labor, Colonel Edgett held that Labor had a right to express its views. The worker must be taken more into our confidence. He is human and should be given a square deal in the shop and field, and be treated in a human manner. No one class should control, but a government should be composed of representatives of all classes. Speaking of the Veteran not having had a square deal he said: "In 1917 and 1918 when we were hard pressed with our backs against the wall you in Canada bent further to the task of helping us, and statesmen appeared who were big enough to forget party ties for the good of the common cause, and as a result the Coalition Government was formed. This government was supported by the soldiers' votes for we thought this government was in earnest, and I believe they were. Some have remained true to their obligations and upon fulfillment of the task for which they were appointed resigned, believing that the reconstruction period called for a mandate from the people."

He said that many promises were made to the men over there and such headlines appeared in the papers as "The Union Government can alone save your home and win the war"; "Every vote against the government is a vote to weaken the Canadian divisions in the field"; "Sir Robert Borden has pledged his word that the men in the trenches will not be betrayed."

The impression was created that the soldiers should not suffer as a result of his service. What has been done? Feeble attempts have been made to give men a limited course of training. The S. C. R. can only touch 20 per cent at most of the returned men, that is those discharged from hospital, and this cannot properly be called re-establishment. Under re-establishment for the year 1919 40,000 men had been trained at a total cost for pay and administration of $80,000,000. Of this the average pay to a man is $400, the cost of administration per man is $1,600. Think it over. It is taken from the Blue Book issued by the S. C. R.

The Soldier Settlement Board has been demonstrated by large figures showing what has been done to re-establish the returned man. This only reaches a few, and you know yourselves how many of those benefitting under this scheme will make good.

Col. Edgett said the Government has not kept its trust and played fair to the men who sacrificed their health and all that was dear to them in making Canada a place worth while. "Can you wonder at the dissatisfaction of the returned man when it is known that a special committee of the house sat for twelve months with the result that pensions to soldiers and their dependents were increased 20 per cent, while it only took four hours for a committee to decide to raise the members' indemnity from $2,500 to $4,000 per year."

Col. Edgett went on to say that the time would come when we had women members in the Federal House. Women will tend to purify politics. Education would receive the attention it should.

"Mr. MacKelvie states that during the present life of parliament I could not secure as much for you as a Government supporter could. I ask you, what has the past minister, the Hon. Martin Burrell, obtained for this constituency during the last seven years? Nothing."

Colonel Edgett said that the present government would be out before the next crop of apples is picked.

He closed his address with asking his hearers to vote according to the dictates of their own consciences. He had no fear of not being returned head of the poll should they so do.

You cannot run away from a weakness; you must fight it out of you or perish; why not fight it out of you now, right where you stand?—Stevenson.

When old Adam ran the universe,
Before the famous fall,
He was a power in politics,
Till woman spoiled it all.

ENDERBY NEWS

Dr. Sumner will be in Enderby Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, November 22, 23, 24, at his dental office, Cliff Street.

Mr. and Mrs. S. Teece are expecting to leave for Los Angeles, Calif., next week, to spend the winter with their daughter and husband, Rev. and Mrs. Hall.

By appointment of the Kamloops Presbytery Rev. J. W. Stott was in Summerland this week assisting at the induction ceremony of the Rev. W. A. Alexander, who has been called to that charge.

The ladies of the Catholic Church are holding a home-cooking sale next Saturday afternoon at the U. F. Hall. Tea will be served.

It is estimated there are 3,000 tons of onions unmarketed in the vicinity of Vernon, and 4,000 tons in th vicinity of Kelowna, and the market demand is fully supplied. Some growers are storing their onions in the hope of a market being found before spring.

Mrs. A. Broom of Kisbey, Sask., and Mrs. E. Jones of Arcola, arrived in Enderby last week. Mrs. Broom joins her daughter and son here and contemplates taking up her permanent residence in Enderby.

GRANDVIEW BENCH

A public meeting was held in the Grandview Bench school house on Saturday, November 13. It was decided by vote to build a new hall in the near future.

Mr. T. W. Lidstone paid a business visit to Salmon Arm last Saturday.

Grandview Bench was well represented at the Deep Creek concert on Friday. Everyone thoroughly enjoyed themselves and voted the affair a huge success.

Mr. Jess Tomkinson and Mr. Lawson Stronlger had a streak of luck last Monday. They each bagged a fine buck.

It's a good thing Grandview Benchites are good climbers as the polling booth for the coming election is on the Glenmary Mountain, five miles away at Mr. Charles Garden's house.

GRINDROD NEWS

Its quite a common sight nowadays to see sea-planes floating over Grindrod.

Mr. and Mrs. Wells were in Salmon Arm on business this week.

A most distressing accident happened on the Enderby road last week when Ed. Clarke was thrown from a wagon onto the tongue which caused the horses to bolt, dragging him quite a few yards before he fell, the wagon passing over him causing serious injury. Ed. made many friends during his short residence here and they all hope for his speedy recovery.

CANDIDATE LAIDMAN

Well Received at Mara and Grindrod and Great Interest Shown.

Candidate Laidman was in Enderby this week and Tuesday afternoon addressed a meeting at Mara. At this point Mr. Laidman was most cordially received and was given a most interested hearing.

In the evening some forty or fifty of the electors of Grindrod and Grandview Bench gathered in the Farmers' Hall to hear the farmers' candidate. Here, also, the interest was most sympathetic and Mr. Laidman was assured of generous support.

Wednesday Mr. Laidman was driven to Hupel when he met most of the settlers along the way.

Mr. Laidman will address the electors of Enderby next Wednesday evening, Nov. 24th. This is expected to be Mr. Laidman's largest meeting held in the Enderby district and should be attended by all those desiring to hear the farmers' candidate.

A little girl was asked upon her return home how she liked the singing of the congregation in church. "I liked it very much indeed," she said, "although all the people said it was bad."

"All the people said it was bad! What do you mean, my dear?"

"Oh, it was so bad that the people prayed, 'Lord have mercy upon us miserable singers.'"

MARA NOTES

Wm. Coell was a week-end visitor returning to Vernon on Monday.

Geo. Little and Tom Gray were passengers south bound on Monday.

Mr. MacKelvie, the government candidate held a meeting here on Wednesday but owing to the short notice there was very few present. Mr. Stacey, M. P., who came in on the morning train, also spoke. It is a pity that more notice is not given of these meetings. It was brought to Mr. MacKelvie's notice the position of the timber limits adjoining the school and asking that they be cut up and made available for soldier settlers, for the present lessees have no mill and apparently have no means of putting one in. If the recent high price of lumber will not pay for logging it off they never will be. Mr. McKelvie said it was a rotten condition of affairs and promised his best endeavors to have it remedied.

Chas. Little of Vernon arrived for the meeting and stayed over for a few days to have some shooting, returning to Vernon on Friday.

The residents were treated to a flight of a flying machine on Saturday and Sunday apparently coming from Sicamous way, returning there after a trip up the valley.

Dr. K. C. MacDonald held a public meeting here on Monday night. A fair-sized audience braved the bad weather and road to hear him, including several ladies. Miss Seymour spoke very highly of the different measures that the government had put on the statutes, more particularly as affecting the women. Dr. MacDonald gave a very clear and full report of conditions four years ago and now and spoke hopefully of the future with the return of the Oliver government. E. Bennett was chairman.

We are having a fill up of political meetings here just now. Mr. Laidman is here Tuesday afternoon this week and Col. Edgett is billed for Wednesday afternoon. It is amusing how many of the new voters get mixed up in the Federal and Provincial candidates. There is also noticed a difference in the manner of conducting of the campaigns now to what was in vogue a few years ago —no bluff or bull-dozing. The various candidates deserve credit for the gentlemanly manner in which they are conducting themselves.

HULLCAR—DEEP CREEK

Mr. P. H. Smith, representative of the Okanagan Telephone Company, spent the past week in the district, and assures us that the phone line from Knob Hill through the Deep Creek valley to the Enderby-Salmon Arm road will be constructed in early spring.

The social given in the Deep Creek school house last Friday evening was fairly well attended, Grandview Bench being well represented. Everyone thoroughly enjoyed themselves. On Friday evening, November 19th, a basket social and entertainment will be held at the same place and everybody is assured a good time with plenty of "eats."

Dr. K. C. MacDonald was a visitor to the Creek Thursday of last week.

Mrs. Henry Hill returned home last week end after spending a week with Mrs. Gaylord of Enderby.

Mr. James Duncan was a business visitor to Salmon Arm last Thursday.

Mr. and Mrs. John Gillick were visitors to Armstrong on Wednesday.

Mr. Woodhouse was a business visitor to Armstrong last Friday.

Work was discontinued on the Deep Creek road last week. Considerable work is still to be done and credit is due Roadmaster Davidson for the improvement thus far completed.

Now that the phone line for Deep Creek is assured the next item on the program is a tri-weekly mail service over Rural Route No. 1, Enderby.

The United Farmers of B. C., Hullcar local, held their semi-monthly meeting in the hall last evening.

On Thursday evening of this week Mr. W. F. Laidman, the farmers' candidate for the provincial house, will address the electors at the Hullcar hall. On Friday evening Dr. K. C. MacDonald, Liberal candidate will hold a public meeting in the same hall.

Citizens can perform no better community service than that of supporting the local press.

Fatal Auto Accident at Mill Street Bridge

Sunday evening shortly after eight o'clock six young people, girls and boys, started from Salmon Arm on an auto trip. Miss Jennie Peters, Miss May Clark, Miss Florence Horn, Jas. H. Ball, Arthur McDermid and L. W. File constituted the party. They rode in Mr. Ball's McLaughlin Six, driven by Herbert Ball. All were from 16 to 20 years. They were going no place in particular; just out for a ride.

Driving out Silver Creek way they found themselves at Hullcar where they ran out of gasoline. A gallon was obtained from a farmer and they drove in to Enderby, arriving at the King Edward Hotel between 12 and 1 o'clock. More gasoline was obtained from the mill company and the party started for Salmon Arm at 2 o'clock.

Mistaking Mill Street for Knight, where the Salmon Arm road markings are clearly placed, Young Ball drove across the railway track and on past the old flouring mill gates to the river bank, where some 40 feet of a temporary bridge used some months ago when the Enderby bridge was rebuilt, still remain part of the street end. There was no abstruction across the road and with snow falling and obscuring the view through the windshield, the driver could not see where he was heading. Going at a speed of 15 miles an hour or thereabouts the car hit the bridge and in a moment shot off into 18 or 20 feet of water with a drop of some 15 or 20 feet.

Young Ball and Miss Peters were in the front seat and the other girls and boys in the rear. They scrambled out as best they could, none realizing just how, and came to the surface.

A pile with a rope attached was close at hand and five of them clung to this. They then noticed the absence of Miss Peters.

Young File swam to shore—only a shot distance—and went for help. After being in the water from 20 minutes to half an hour all but Miss Peters were rescued.

Young Ball was badly cut about the face as if by broken glass, otherwise none were much worse for the ducking.

The body of Miss Peters was rescued Monday about noon and the car was pulled up the bank.

Coroner Keith held an inquest Monday afternoon, when the story of the three boys was substantially the same and as above given.

Messrs. R. Peel, A. Fulton, Wm. Duncan, A. Teece, Geo. Rands and Jas. Murphy acted on the jury. An open verdict was rendered without placing the responsibility for the accident. All the boys testified that they had no liquor in the car and the evidence went to show that it was clearly a case of mistaking the road and getting off into a blind street with no markings to indicate the danger ahead.

Particular note should be made of the gallant work of Mr. Gordon Fulmer, druggist, employed in the Reeves' Drug Store. Hearing the cry for help from his bedroom in the King Edward hotel, he hurriedly dressed and finding a rope rushed to the river bank. The night was densely dark and a drizzling rain and snow was falling. By the aid of a lantern he could distinguish the girls clinging to the rope. With Wm. Huffman holding the shore end of the rope he swam with the loose end to the perishing, and brought them safely to shore one at a time. Young Ball and McDermid, who had remained with the girls, were then pulled ashore, all but exhausted.

Miss Horn, who is but 15 years of age, was unconscious from the cold and fright, when carried to the hotel. There all were given rooms and made as comfortable as possible.

The spirit of the management and men of the Okanagan Saw Mills was also particularly praiseworthy. As soon as it was daylight a gang of men headed by Foreman Robarge were detailed to search for the body of the drowned girl. With drag hooks and ropes they located the car, and one of their number, Mr. W. Martin, night engineer, volunteered to dive to the wreck to see if the body was in the car. The water was icy, but, while dozens stood heavily clothed shivering with cold, Martin plunged beneath the surface. He found the car nose down and resting partly on it side. The body of the girl was not in the car. As reported above, it was later found on the river bottom twenty yards or more down stream. It was taken to McPherson's undertaking rooms where it remained until Wednesday when it was taken to the home of the parents in Armstrong. Miss Horn, Miss Clark and the boys were taken to Salmon Arm Monday afternoon by Mr. Ball, who came over to attend the inquest.

VETERANS' CONCERT

Armistice Evening Made Most Enjoyable by Enderby Returned Men.

U. F. hall was filled by a very appreciative audience last Thursday evening to hear the first of a series of concerts given by the G. W. V. A. of Enderby. The affair was a great success and all taking part are to be congratulated on the excellence of the numerous numbers given. The program was well balanced with songs, musical selections, comedy, monologue and recitations, every number winning generous applause.

After the program, the veterans and their wives served refreshments and dancing followed.

The entertainment opened by several of the Returned Men leading the audience in singing familiar choruses from the trenches, "Tipperary," "Keep the Home Fires Burning," "There's a Long, Long Trail," "I want to go Home," "Good-bye-e." Then A. D. Glen favored with "The Old Songs," and Comrade Bogert with a mandoline solo. Miss Fyle and Miss Robertson sang solos, and the Veterans' male quartette gave popular selections. Mr. Charlish recited "The Dover Patrol," and Mr. Gilders' enlivened the proceeding with a comic song. Mr. A. D. Glen pleased all by a vocal solo, and Mrs. Peacock, Mrs. Gibson and Mrs. Jaquest a trio. Miss Robertson gave a piano symphony, and Miss Lang sang most pleasingly "Dear Little Boy of Mine."

Following Comrade Gilders recital of "The Christening," that took the wind out of everybody, including himself, there was another selection by the male quartette, and then the audience stood while Miss Broom sweetly sang "In Flanders Field." "The End of a Perfect Day" was given by Comrade Bogert on the mandolin with singing accompanying by the quartette. Rev. Mr. Gibson sang "When Irish Eyes are Smiling" and the audienc joined in the chorus and a laughing sketch was given by Comrades Gilders and Bogert on "Somewhere in France."

DEEP CREEK LINE ASSURED.

Practically Every Resident of the Valley Meets the Requirements of the Telephone Company.

Capt. Smith, financial representative of the Okanagan Telephone Company, is now in Enderby canvassing Mabel Lake Valley and vicinity in the hope of securing sufficient backing to induce the company to extend its lines from Enderby to Mabel Lake.

Capt. Smith spent all of last week canvassing Deep Creek. He met with unqualified success there and orders are already being given for the necessary equipment to build and install telephone service covering that important locality. It is proposed to erect the line as early in the spring as the necessary equipment can be secured, and it is confidently expected the Deep Creek line will be in operation early in April if not before.

The Mabel Lake line will follow about the same time provided the efforts of the company receive the liberal support given by the Deep Creek farmers.

Capt. Smith will visit the settlers of Mabel Lake and will place the matter before Enderby business men as well. This line to Mabel Lake is greatly needed and the telephone company's efforts should meet with hearty support by all. The Okanagan Sawmills Company already has signified its willingness to do more than its share to get the line. If anything like a proportionate liberal support is given by the residents of the valley the line will be built for the coming summer's service.

Who Is Responsible?

Where does the responsibility lie for such an auto accident as that of Sunday night-Monday morning, when an Overland Six with a load of six young people still in their teens, shot off the end of a partly demolished bridge into 18 or 20 feet of water, and one of their number was drowned? Whose business is it to close street-ends jumping off into the river? Whose duty is it to make the river bank safe against a stranger lost in the dark walking or driving over the bank into the water? Surely it is the duty of somebody. Courts, we are told, have ruled against the right of a city to close its street-ends leading into a river. The banks of all navigable streams is reserved by the Crown, and no person or corporation is privileged to obstruct free access to the water's edge where a street leads thereto. Assuming this to be the case, and if blind street-ends are to be left unguarded or unobstructed, what is to prevent the recurrence of such a distressing accident as that of a few nights ago?

True, as you may observe, the accident would hardly have happened under ordinary driving and weather conditions, which would have permitted of more care and attention being given to the direction of the road and the driving, but the best and eldest of us will sometimes find it impossible to get in on time when we start out with the gas low in the tank.

There is nothing to indicate to a stranger that there is danger ahead at the Mill street crossing. This street is frequently mistaken for Knight or Belvedere by auto drivers going through Enderby to Salmon Arm. There is extreme danger at Mill street of a recurrence of this fatal mistake, if the city does not take some steps to make clear to strangers that Mill street beyond the railway crossing is not a through street. Similar steps taken with regard to the river-bank end of Knight street might prevent something of the nature of Monday morning's fatality there.

Farmer Representatives

Unless we mistake the signs, and misread the handwriting on the wall, we are going to see a number of farmer representatives in both the Provincial and Dominion parliaments after the elections now pending. Away back in the early history of Canadian politics, the agrarian party was known as Conservative. From that day to this the two old parties have become so much alike that both can be cradled in one blanket without quarrelling, and, we are informed the best of each have concluded that the only way that the country can be made safe for democracy is for them to join hands under the banner of Unionism. This makes room for the agrarian party to be revived, and it is coming in under the banner of the Farmers party. That it will accomplish its purpose now as it did of old is certain, for, in addition to the farmers of the country, it has back of it a very large percentage of the labor and silent vote.

In this riding, it looks like victory for the Farmer candidate. If the farmers stand true to their party, and vote as they have talked, there is not any question about the success of their candidate, Mr. Laidman. And, dispite all the talk we have heard about the direful things that might happen should a farmer's government come into power, we believe we should find a farmers' government quite as "safe" as any government we have had in power in Canada in any period of the country's history. For old-line politicians to point to the farmers of Canada as a menace in politics is absurd. Have not our safest men in all periods of our Dominion's development been our farmers? And have they altered any in disposition? Is it not possible that our old-line parties have changed, and that, because they have changed, the people are coming back to their former position in politics, and intend to place enough of the people's representatives in parliament to afford a check upon legislation not in the interest of the many so much as of the few?

A Definite Road Policy

The definite road policy of California has made that state the greatest automobile state in the union. The 1920 census gives the state a population of 3,426,536, with a total registration of 535,000 motor vehicles, or an automobile for every six persons, slightly less than a car per family.

These facts call attention to the part good roads have played in building up California and making it the greatest tourist resort of the West.

Good roads develop transportation, help the farmers to market their products cheaply and quickly, open up the country for settlement, foster industries and attracts tourists in large numbers. Distance lends enchantment if motor parties can travel over good roads.

It is the fact that we need so badly in British Columbia the adoption of some such system of road building as California has, that makes the road plank in the Farmer candidate's platform of so much interest. This Province needs a radical change in the road policy of the government. Something better than the present vote-getting road policy which is very active when an election is on and dies a sudden death as soon as the last vote is polled. Mr. Laidman's plank in favor of the adoption of a definite road policy will appeal to all who have the interests of the community and the farming industry at heart.

Getting Away from Party

It is only a little over a year since the United Farmers, as an organized body, began to nominate candidates for Parliament, but what they have accomplished in that short period gives ground for confidence that the apparently hurried action of the United Farmers in entering the political field in British Columbia is not ill-advised, but is likely to result in the election of many of their candidates.

In the federal field there is no doubt that the government is paying more attention to the farmer movement than it is to the Liberal opposition. In fact, Mr. Ballantyn at a recent banquet in Montreal, said that the fight in East Elgin was a straight fight between the government and the farmers, though a Liberal is in the field and he is said to be a formidable contender. What have the farmers done in this field to give rise to this feeling on the part of the government? Out of six bye-elections in which they participated during that period they have won five seats. And the prospects are that they will win the contest now proceeding in Yale. Not a bad showing for a new organization.

In the provincial field their first appearance in a large way was in Ontario, where they elected forty-five members, and now, with the assistance of a few labor allies, are governing that province under the able leadership of Hon. E. C. Dury, and are likely to continue to do so for sometime.

The next trial of strength was in Manitoba where they elected eleven out of fifty-five members. In that province they, at present, hold the balance of power. Their next test was in Nova Scotia, where they elected seven members. Altogether the showing made by the farmers in politics recently has surely been impressive, and the indications are that it will not be long before they will have a representation in the parliaments of our country such as their calling entitles them to. —United Farmer.

Whither?

Let nobody doubt what the ultimate will be of the present political uncertainty in Canada. That it is the rapid working of a cleansing policy of action we firmly believe; that it will bring us good we do not doubt. But that good cannot come tomorrow. It must come by degrees, and will come, just in proportion to our readiness to undertake and to forgo in the interest of the common weal.

Recently when the notorious sugar order was passed at Ottawa, the people of every section of Canada rose up against the order, with the result that it was sqeulched as quickly as it was made a law. And yet, that sugar deal was not very much more serious than the tariff game we work upon ourselves right along and think little or nothing about it. Our leaders and our newspapers tell this district and that, of the benefits certain individuals will receive through a tariff being imposed upon this article or that. We see wherein we as individuals will benefit by the tariff being imposed and we vote for the men who promise the tariff. The selfish motive may not be the dominating motive but it has much to do with the way we vote.

The same principle was back of the sugar deal. The only difference was that the sugar order hit every individual and made him pay a tariff to the few sugar barons. And the sugar tariff as proposed was more direct and the source of supply more restricted. But in the main, the object was the same. The difference was in who had to wear the shoe.

Spurgeon once said that good luck will help a fellow over the ditch if he jumps hard. That is the spirit back of the campaign efforts of W. F. Laidman, the Farmer candidate. He is leaving nothing to chance, and has placed himself fairly and squarely before the electors in his open statement of policy in this week's Commoner; also his itinerary, which leaves him with no time on his hands between now and election day. Mr. Laidman will not have it said that he failed to appear before the people of any part of the constituency.

If the price strikes you as being too high, say so—and walk out. That will soon put an end to the excess profits we hear so much about.

STICKING ON THE JOB.

It isn't men of genius
  This giddy country needs,
Not men to stage us miracles
  Nor pull astounding deeds;
But the ordinary fellow,
  Executive or slob—
Just the ordinary fellow
  Who will stick upon the job.

Nations thrive or flivver,
  They never quite know how;
But interrogating history
  From Genesis to Now
We find their fate has always
  Turned upon the mob—
The ordinary fellow
  And how he did his job.

'Twas similar, they tell us,
  Two years ago in France
And on the seas and everywhere
  The boys kicked Heinie's pants—
They were ordinary fellows,
  The doughboy and the gob,
Just ordinary fellows,
  But they stuck upon the job.

It isn't hifalutin,
  Economic schemes
We need, nor men to peddle us
  Iridescent dreams,
But just a lot of fellows
  Like Bill and Jim and Bob—
They're ordinary geezers,
  But they stick upon the job!

It isn't giddy prophets
  That the country really needs,
It isn't men of miracles
  To spring amazing deeds,
But ordinary fellows,
  Sams and Petes and Bobs—
Just ordinary fellows
  Who will stick to their jobs.

To aid European emigrants and prepare them in every possible way for conditions existing in Canada, the Canadian Pacific Ocean Services has placed an interpreter on each of their vessels sailing from European ports. Each of these men speaks several European languages and already the innovation has fully justified itself in the assistance rendered both to ships' authorities and intending settlers.

The British Admiralty is sending engineers to investigate the Ground Hog coal area in northern British Columbia, according to Mr. R. C. Campbell-Johnston. Mr. Campbell-Johnston stated that negotiations are now pending between a syndicate representing the Admiralty, and the owners of the Ground Hog. About two thousand acres of land is involved.

A 1,500-acre farm purchased in 1918 near Three Hills, Alberta, recently sold at an increase of $15 per acre, which, with the proceeds of the sale of the crop, netted the owner about $50,000 for eighteen months work.

Recent sales of farm lands in the province of Saskatchewan show a decided incease in value. One farm purchased near Milestone in 1906 in 1906, recently sold for $59,000 or at the rate of $150 per acre.

Now is the time to get that Overland 4

A reduction of $140 has been made on the Willy Overland Four. This will be the price until July 1st next.

We have a few cars now on hand, and these we will sell at the old price less $140. The difference in buying one of these cars and a car to come in later is the sum of $35 in favor of the customer. The $35 represents the difference in the freight.

You should see the Canadian-made Overland in action; understand its exceptional riding qualities, its stamina and its gasoline economy—the car that made an ocean-to-ocen trip on 32.6 miles to the gallon, that won the Scottish fuel-saving contest, that is getting Canadian owners up to 38 miles per gallon.

Call and allow us to demonstrate.

Where COL. C. E. EDGETT Stands

To the Electorate of the Yale Constitutney:

In presenting myself to you and asking for your support at the coming Federal By-election on Monday, November 22nd, I wish to emphasize the following points:

The present Government was elected for the purpose of carrying the war to a successful conclusion, and there is no doubt in the mind of the people that they have outlived their mandate. Their methods are autocratic and distatorial, and by no means representative of the wishes of our country.

Standing as an Independent candidate, endorsed by Farmers, Veterans, Liberals, Labor, and Independent Voters, it follows that my actions cannot be subject to the dictates of any political party. I stand on my platform which has appeared in the public press from time to time.

The old political parties have failed to meet the requirements of the people, and to live up to their promises. The time has arrived in our history when the interests of Canada as a whole can best be served by men of independent thought and action, who are unfettered by party ties. Just legislation, regardless of its source, will receive my earnest support.

You will be doing yourself and your country the best possible service by electing me to represent your interests in the Federal House. You had faith in me whilst overseas, and I trust that my record and character display integrity sufficient to warrant you feeling that your Empire defenders are worthy to be your Empire builders

Relying on your support and co-operation,

Yours faithfully,

C. E. EDGETT.

Storing the Vegetable Crop

The vegetable crop has been an abundant one in most places in Canada this year, and many persons will have a large quantity to store. It is important that care be taken in storing s othat losses will be reduced to a minimum.

Potatoes should be dry when stored and where possible put where the temperature will not go above 40 degrees F. or below 32 degrees. In order that the surface of the potatoes can be kept dry and in the best condition to avoid rotting, provision should be made for air to pass underneath and through them. If they are stored in considerable or large quantities such provision is made by keeping the potatoes about six inches off the floor by first putting down a slatted temporary floor with the boards just close enough so the potatoes will not fall through, and a similar slatted temporary wall a few inches from the permanent wall would pemit a still freer circulation of air. Keeping them in crate-like boxes with openings between the boards on tops and sides is a good method.

Beets, parsnips, carrots, salsify and turnips keep best under conditions somewhat similar to potatoes, though it is not so important to keep them dry. Indeed in the aveage cellar they are liable to become too dry and lose their firmness. If there is danger of this they may be kept in boxes and covered with a sack kept wet. In a warm cellar they will grow.

Onions are very liable to rot unless kept in a dry place. Keep them spread out as thinly as possible. Where quantities are small an attic room where there is no frost will be found a good place to store them.

Cabbage will soon wilt in a warm dry cellar. Keep them outside as long as possible by protecting them with leaves, straw, or soil. If they begin to crack before it is time to pull them, loosen them in the ground by twisting the plant and thus checking growth. When stored where the air is very dry they keep better with the roots and stems left on, and wrapping each head in a newspaper will prevent wilting to some extent.

Celery is left outside until danger of severe frosts. To keep well in storage it needs a moderately dry, well ventilated cool cellar for best results. The celery should be planted in the cellar in rows close together in sand or light soil, separating each row with a lath or other pieces of wood to keep the tops somewhat apart and better to ensure a circulation of air. The soil should be kept moist but the tops dry. Avoid wetting the leaves and stalks if watering is necessary.

To store green tomatoes to ripen them put in closed boxes or drawers where they will be in the dark and in a moderately warm place.—W. T. Macoun, Dominion Horticulturist.

ANOTHER WAY TO SAVE MONEY

A man who did not appear to be too prosperous approached a telle's window in the Fort Dearborn National Bank Saturday.

"I want to borrow $10," he said.

"Three blocks north and two east," said the teller. "You'll know the place by—"

"I ain't kidding," said the man. "I want to borrow ten beans—bucks—clams; and I got these for security.

The teller's eyes opened when he saw ten $1,000 Liberty bonds.

"Right over thee," he said, pointing to the sanctum reserved for vice-presidents and stenographers.

"Have a cigar," said Marous Jacobowsky, a vice-president. "What can I do for you?"

"I want to borrow $10," said the man, producing the bonds.

Jacobowsky laughed.

"All right," he said. "Give me one."

"Nope," said the man. "You gotta take 'em all."

The official finally agreed and wrote a receipt.

"Now what's the idea?" he demanded.

"I borrow $10 at 7 per cent," said the man. "You keep my bonds and I come in and clip the coupons—you can't stop me, you know. My bonds are safe.

"You're responsible and I save $10 a year, which I would pay for a safety deposit vault, minus 70 cents which I pay as interest."

"O-o-oh!" said Jacobowsky as the man left the bank.

The Slate Products Company of Canada is building a plant for crushing slate. At the outset the company will crush about 100 tons per day, the commodity being used in the manufacture of ready roofing, etc.

GONE FOR KEEPS

Most things come back that go away; our ships come sailing to the shore; the blooming flowers come back in May, the bird to its accustomed spray, but money burned comes back no more. Oh, often when old age is here, the man of sorrow walks the floor, and thinks of joys that cost him dear, of spendthrift courses year by year, but money burned comes back no more. To think of chances large and fine he wasted, makes the dotard sore; had he put down his coin in brine he might possess his tree and vine, but money burned comes back no more. Old thoughts come back to break his heart, old memories of days of yore, when he forsook the shop or mart to joyride in a mortgaged cart, but money burned comes back no more. And there were gay enameled maids who helped him blow his scanty store; their forms come back from out the shades, and march along in dim parades, but money burned comes back no more. There's nothing sadder 'neath the sky than seeing one whose head is hoar bewailing roubles he made fly, recalling chances with a sigh; and money burned comes back no more. So let us from the weekly wage salt down nine plunks, perchance a score; then we'll enjoy our green old age, if we still loiter on the stage; but money burned comes back no more.—Walt Mason.

And that support must not be limited to the spending of money upon advertising space or subscriptions, but must be to an extent personal and from the heart.

EXPERIMENTAL FARMING

Every Agricultural School Garden a Demonstration of What the District Can Best Grow.

It may come as a surprise to many of our residents to learn that we have an experimental farm right in our midst, but that is what we have. Not only are experiments in the production of our staple crops being carried on in our little farm at the old high school in Enderby, but our boys and girls are being taught how to conduct tests with common crops.

The results of the potato test conducted this season are of interest to all who grow potatoes,—and that takes in nearly all our farmers and city folks. This year's test was with fourteen varieties of good commercial tubers, as follows: Table Talk, Million Dollar, Drought Proof, Blue Rock, Royal Russett, Eureka, Wee McGregor, Irish Cobbler, Rural New Yorker, New Queen, Rochester Rose, Early Surprise, Carmen No. 1 and Netted Gem.

These potatoes yielded in the order given above; the Table Talk gave eight times as many marketable tubers as the Netted Gems. Of course this test was on clay soil and has been conducted for only one year so the results cannot be considered as final. However, it looks as though Table Talk and Million Dollar will be safe potatoes for us to plant on our clay soils.

Of all the annual hay crops grown in the school garden the ordinary Hog Millet gave the largest returns and the quickest growth. Common Hungarian grass also turned out to be a good hay crop.

The plot of Quebec No. 28 Flint corn gave good stalk growth and the ears ripened uniformly and well, showing that this variety may be considered suitable for field culture for this region. Another silo crop grown was the Giant Russian Sunflower. It gave immense stalk growth but yielded very little seed. This plant is growing in favor as a silage source on the prairies, but it appears that with the possibilities corn possesses for these parts we may do well to grow larger acreages of Quebec No. 28 next year. Kaffir corn and Sorghum did not prove a success in our experimental plots. Their stem growth was poor and they were too late for maturing.

Other crops occupied a place in the garden but owing to the very peculiar fall weather it was impossible to accurately determine what value they might have under ordinary weather conditions here. Among these crops were Soja Beans and Vetches.

The results of these experiments will be kept on record at the high school and similar tests will be made next year, seed being saved from this year's plots for that purpose. It is the aim of the Agricultural Instructor to make the school garden of practical value to the public and to train the students in the way of conducting tests with a view to finding what crops are valuable and what ones are grown at a loss.

Make your chart before you start. Know what you're after before you start out for it.—Herbert Kaufman.

SELF FEEDER FOR SWINE

One often hears that it does not pay to give pigs more than the most ordinary attention and the farmer can scarcely be blamed in this respect if his help is inexperienced and has yet to be paid as high a wage as a real good experienced man.

The keeping of a few pigs is practically always a paying proposition but to make it more so, means must be resorted to whereby the labor can be reduced to a minimum, particularly as the pigs are apt to receive the smallest of attention in any case. Toward this end, then, it seems only natural to try to find out just how well pigs will thrive if allowed to feed themselves. By feeding themselves is meant the adoption of a self-feeding method whereby the pigs are allowed access to a limited supply of dry feed whenever they feel so inclined. This system is of value to the breeder who goes in for swine-raising on a large scale and also to the small farmer who has other countless duties to perform but finds the feeding of pigs the worst chore of all. The latter might find the self-feeder of great value particularly in reducing expenses.

With a view to getting some definite information on the use of the self-feeder for swine, experiments have been carried on at the Experimental Farm at Agassiz for several mental Farm at Agasssiz, B. C., for several seasons. Comparisons have been made in the use of the self-feeder as against the trough-feeding method. As far as cost of feed is concerned results go to show very little difference one way or the other, but when the labor question is considered the value of the self-feeder cannot be ignored. This comparison of the self-feeder with the trough-feeding method is being continued until absolute and definite results are obtained but up to date, however, the advantages of the self-feeder have been strikingly evident. With all classes of feeders this device can be used to advantage while it also may be used in the feeding of young sows up to breeding age. With mature breeding stock, however, it is well to avoid the use of the self-feeder.

The self-feeder for swine has a number of features to commend it, one of the most important being the fact that, of all farm animals, none adapt themselves to this method of feeding so profitably as do swine. When only two or three pigs are kept, the use of a self-feeder can hardly be recommended but, with more than ten pigs the adoption of a self-feeder is well worth a trial. As a means toward the reduction of the labor expense, the self-feeder has a distinct advantage over hand-feeding methods.—K. McBean, Assistant Superintendent, Experimental Farm, Agassiz.

Cost of Producing a Pound of Butter

In these days of 70c and 80c butter the city consumer figures it out that the farmer is reaping a rich reward. The farm management department of the Missouri College of Agriculture investigated the cost of producing butter in that state, November to April inclusive. The figures given are based upon costs obtained from a large number of farmers, and show that the average cost of producing a pound of butter during this period was 73 cents. The case for the farmer is summarized as follows:

In those six months he produced 65 pounds of butter per cow. He spent $4.35 for 2.9 bushels of corn at $1.50; $12 for half a ton of hay at $24; $7.20 for 0.9 of a ton of silage at $8; $6.30 for nine bushels of oats at 70 cents; $1.63 for fodder roughage; $5.75 for mill feeds, and $1.27 for pasture and stalks. Add to that $16.75 for man labor at 25 cents an hour (which is very low considering the unreasonably high prices paid for unskilled labor); 60 cents for four hours of horse labor at 15 cents; $6 for upkeep on buildings, taxes and miscellaneous expenses; and $3.60 for 24 hours of his wife's labor in the home at 15 cents an hour (which is also low as may be determined by hiring domestic labor); and you have a grand total cost of $64.45 for the 65 lbs. of butter produced.

Yet the farmer will be fair with you. He will deduct from this cost $7.50 for the calf raised, and will subtract also $9 for the three tons of manure produced. That makes the total cost $47.95. Divide this by 65, the number of pounds of butttr produced, and you will get so near to 73 cents a pound that you had just as well call it that.

For Progress, Equity and Victory

To the Electorate of the North Okanagan Riding:

Ladies and Gentlemen,—In presenting myself to you in the coming Provincial election on Wednesday, the first of December, I do so as a Farmer Candidate.

In standing as a Farmer candidate I am placing Agriculture before party.

In soliciting your support as a Farmer candidate I do so mainly on the ground that Agriculture is the basic industry of British Columbia and it is in the best interests of this constituency and the province at large that the personel of the Provincial Legislature should contain a fair percentage of Farmer representatives.

In asking you to pass judgment as to my ability to serve this constituency faithfully and to its advantage I am relying on my record in the various local public matters with which I have been connected in the last few years.

I do not advocate that the Agriculturists of this province should attempt to organize for the purpose of forming a Farmers' Government.

I am positively opposed to class legislation and believe that the various industries of this province should receive equitable consideration.

If returned as your representative on December 1st I will endeavour among other things to secure legislation on the following matters:

Legislation with a view to encouraging and increasing the agricultural production of B. C. by the improvement of marketing methods and facilities.

Betterment of social conditions in rural districts with a view to encouraging the rising generations to remain on the farm.

A thorough investigation in the working of the various agricultural departments with a view to avoiding the present overlapping and duplication of work.

Efficiency in the departments of agriculture and horticulture with adequate salaries to the officials.

An equitable and definite road policy for the Province of British Columbia.

More economical administration of the Public Works department.

Government assistance to Municipalities and Hospitals on a definite basis.

Development of the natural resources of the province with the removal of the present restrictions placed on prospecting for iron, oil and coal.

Conservation of water by Government ownership and control of all watersheds, and for Government guarantee of bonds for development of irrigation works.

The above are some of the principal issues on which I venture to appeal for your support, and if honored by being chosen as your representative in the Provincial House I am prepared to devote my energies to the best of my ability in your behalf irrespective of your political opinions.

Yours respectfully,
W. F. LAIDMAN.
