LIBERAL MEETING

Since the eighth page of this week's issue of The Sun was printed it has been found advisable to change the date of the meeting of the Grand Forks Liberal association in the Miners' Union hall from Wednesday evening, February 11, to Thursday evening, February 12, in order not to interfere with other attractions.

LIBERAL LEADERS DRAW BIG AUDIENCE

Oliver Discusses Equal Suffrage, Advocates a Department of Labor and the Passage of an Adequate Workman's Compensation Act—Does Not Believe That All Public Men Are to Be Judged by the Government's Standard

In spite of the many counter attractions in the city, the Liberal meeting in the opera house on Tuesday evening was one of the most largely attended ever held here. All the seats were filled when President McIntyre, of the local association, took the chair on the stage, accompanied by H. C. Brewster, leader of the opposition and president of the Provincial Liberal association, and honest John Oliver, ex-M.P.P. for Delta.

The chairman, in a brief speech, introduced Mr. Brewster, who was given an ovation by the audience. Mr. Brewster said the leaders of the Liberal party of the province had decided to present the principles of the party to the people at a time when they were stirred by the passions of a political campaign, in order that they might have a better opportunity of considering them calmly and seriously. The Conservative party of the province had lived past its youth, and senile decay was now setting in. He described as a patriotic movement rather than a political one the growing determination of independent Conservatives to effect a change of government, a movement of which very striking instances are to be found in all sections of province. When the present government came into power they found an empty treasury and an unalienated province. Now, after eleven years of rule, there is an alienated province and the same wail of an empty treasury. Premier McBride had recently made the boast that there were $2,000,000 in the treasury. It was easy to conjecture where this money had come from. About the first of each year the province received a grant of $750,000 from the Dominion government, and $1,500,000 had been borrowed on treasury notes.

Mr. Brewster said the government had set a dangerous precedent in disposing of the public lands to speculators. He referred to Premier McBride's statement in a recent speech, wherein it was said that it had been necessary to sell land to get money for the prosecution of public works. Properly expended, money was well spent which was laid out in that way, though in this province there was a decided lack of care in the expenditure. But with all the best of the available land alienated, and held by speculators at prices which no bona fide settler could pay, for what settlers were the lateral roads and trails to be built? The premier tried to frighten the people by asking where the Liberals would get the money for public works except by direct taxation, if no more lands were to be sold. Contrasted with this was Mr. Bowser's statement in Vancouver that there was practically no more land beyond a little at the coast for sale. Mr. Brewster said that the Liberals, if given power, would enact laws that would force the speculators to dispose of their vast holdings to bona fide settlers at reasonbel prices.

Mr. Brewster examined Mr. Ross' statement about the fifty thousand alleged pre emptors, and asked where they were. He convicted the minister of lands of marked exaggeration out of the mouth of the minister of finance, who had to admit in his budget speech last year that production on the farm had materially fallen off. The varying estimates of the premier, attorney-general and minister of lands as to the area of land available for settlement and production was contrasted with that of R. E. Gosnell, Conservative statistician, who says he could never find over fifteen million acres of such lands.

Brewster dealt at length with the waste of mouey in the appointment of royal commissions, the payment of commissions to party friends for moving Indians to new reserves, and the system of public works expenditur s which was so corrupt and inefficient that only 50 per cent was honestly expended and the balance used to keep the machine running. A liberal allowance was made to the hired government press, which had to be pap-fed.

Honest John Oliver, ex-M.P.P. for Delta, who followed Mr. Brewster, was pleased to note the many improvements made in the city since his last visit here. He touched on nearly all questions of the day of public interest, but devoted most of his time to a discussion of the qnestion of equal suffrage and to the plank in the Liberal platform providing for the adoption of an adequate workman's compensation act.

Mr. Oliver expressed himself as being unqualifiedly in favor of equal suffrage. "Are not the mothers of the land," he asked, "who have the forming of the minds of the rising generation in their care, as well qualified to vote intelligently as the men who work in the streets and in ditches?" In the state of Washington the women had now exercised the franchise for several years. As one of the results of their participation in public affairs, Washington had now on its statute book the most perfect workman's compensation act on this continent.

Mr. Oliver said there were some people who admitted that the present government is corrupt, but they invariably supplemented this admission by saying that if the Liberals obtained power they would be just as bad. "This is taking a degraded view of public life," he said. "There is such a thing as honesty among those who administer public affairs. During all the years I spent in the house, do you think that I did not have opportunities? And do you think I took advantage of any of them? If you believe I did, you believe what is not true."

Mr. Oliver drew the attention of the audience to one of the most important provisions of the Liberal platform, namely, the creation of a department of labor under a responsible minister of the crown. The duties of this department would be to keep thoroughly informed in respect of all conditions of employment; to see that the protection laws were properly enforced; to recommend and secure the passing of needed legislation for providing additional safeguards for prevention of accidents and disease, and generally to protect the interests of labor throughout the province.

The speaker then came to what, to his mind, was of the utmost importance to the workers of this province, the providing of the necessaries of life to the persons injured during the course of their employment, and for providing for those dependent upon them in case of death. It was true that we have a workman's compensation act upon the statute book at the present time, but it was very limited in its scope. There were so many doubts as to its applicability in any specific case, and resulted in so much litigation that it was probably more injuriout than beneficial in the aggregate. Authentic statistics, covering a period of seven years, show that in the state of Washington 48 per cent of the amount paid in premiums to the casualty companies reach the injured workmen. From this must be deducted litigation expenses, and in many cases the injured workman fails to receive anything. About three years ago the state of Washington provided industrial insurance for a limited number of classes of employees, and this system of insurance provides certain and prompt compensation for injured workmen. Litigation betweeu employer and employee is abolished; 91.8 per cent of the premiums paid by employers are available for compensation purposes. The Liberals of this province propose to adopt the same principle as that of Washington, but will extend scope of the law to include all hazardous employments and simplify many of the working details as well. Briefly stated, we will create a department of industrial insurance. This department will be administered by commissioners. These commissioners will be as far as possible free from political influence; will hold office during good behavior and only will be removable for cause. These commissioners will administer the law which will provide that employers shall pay an insurance premium based upon the amount of the payroll and the hazard of their employment. If an accident occurs whereby a workman is injured the accident is reported to the commission. Medical attendance will be

HE LOST AN ARM

Nels Larsen, an old gentleman nearly eighty years of age who has been employed at the Granby smelter for some years, met with a serious accident on Tuesday morning by having his right arm caught in the cog-wheel of one of the big pumps in the power house. Before assistance arrived and the limb could be extricated from the machinery, it was terribly mangled.

The injured man was hastily removed to the Cottage hospital, and after an examination, the doctors found it necessary to amputate the arm near the shoulder. The patient's condition is reported to be satisfactory at present.

Good Tempered Turtles

Place a number of different kinds and sizes of turtles in a small space and the forbearance which is exhibited might well be a lesson to men. Big and little will crawl about, heedless of each other's comfort or security from harm. A small painted terrapin, for instance, will clamber solidly over the head of a vicious snapper and the chances are that the later will merely duck its head or move to one side so that the claws of the former will not injure its eyes. There seems at such times a look of patient resignation or sullen submission, which would immediately change to savage resentment and fierce attack if a man made a hundredth part of the commotion. These creatures appear to be able to distinguish between 'no offense meant' and intentional mauling. While they submit to the one, they will fight over the other, if fight has not been previously thrashed out of them.

A Story of Labouchere

Labouchere's popularity at Frankfort, according to his own account as given in 'The Life of Labouchere,' rested on a very simple basis. Great Britain was represented at the diet by Sir Alexander Malet, one of the most popular chiefs to be found in the service.

But I was even more appreciated than my chief, he would relate, and this is why: Sometimes there was a ball at the court which we were expected to attend. At my first ball supper I found myself next to a grandee, gorgeous in stars and ribbons. The servant came to pour out champagne, I shook my head, for I detest champagne. The grandee nudged me and said, let him pour it out. This I did, and he explained to me that our host never gave his guests more than one glass. So you see, if I drink yours I shall have two. After this there used to be quite a struggle to sit near me at court suppers.

PIMPLES NEARLY COVERED FACE

Especially on Forehead and Chin. Ashamed to Go Out. Cuticura Soap and Ointment Cured in Month and a Half.

McMillian St., Oil City, Ont.—"My face was nearly covered with pimples, especially on my forehead and chin. The trouble began with pimples and blackheads and there were times I felt ashamed to go out. They were little red lumps and then festered and I squeezed the matter out.

"I rubbed on different remedies, ——— Salve and ——— Cream but they did no good. Then I saw the advertisement of Cuticura Soap and Ointment and sent for a sample. I got it and began using them and in a week's time I noticed a change. I used the sample of Cuticura Soap and Ointment and one box of Cuticura Ointment from the drug store with the Cuticura Soap. In a month and a half the pimples and blackheads were gone and I am completely cured." (Signed) Miss Lydia McIlwain, May 23, '13.

A generation of mothers has found no soap so well suited for cleansing and purifying the skin and hair of infants and children as Cuticura Soap. Its absolute purity and refreshing fragrance alone are enough to recommend it above ordinary skin soaps, but there are added to these qualities delicate yet effective emollient properties, derived from Cuticura Ointment, which render it most valuable in overcoming a tendency to distressing eruptions and promoting a normal condition of skin and hair health. A single cake of Cuticura Soap and box of Cuticura Ointment are often sufficient when all else has failed. Sold by druggists and dealers everywhere. Liberal sample of each mailed free, with 32-p. Stopped His Talking

In the memoirs of Li Hung Chang the great Chinese viceroy, commenting on his visit to Russia, refers to the manner in which the czar and all the high officials appear to be surrounded by would be assassins. I do not think I would like to exchange positions with the czar even to have the fine czarina as wife and my choice of the rarest tea, says the statesman. He adds the following anecdote, which seems to show that he would have been quite at home in the atmosphere of assassination which he believed to exist in St. Petersburg: Once in Tientsin a low fellow came into my courtyard and told the banner captain in charge that he intended taking my life. He had a long piece of wire and said he was going to hang me to my own gateposts. I had to have his head cut off before he would stop talking.

John Paul Jones was something more than a sea fighter. After his great battle he knew brilliant days in Paris, where Queen Marie Antoinette paid him attention and invited him to sit beside her at the opera. All the great ladies ran after him, and quite a few lost their hearts to him. An American woman who met him in Paris wrote this account of him. He is small of stature, well proportioned, soft in his speech, easy in his address, polite in his manners, vastly civil, understands all the etiquette of a lady's toilet as perfectly as he does the mast, sail and rigging of his ship. Under all the appearance of this softness he is bold, enterprising, ambitious and active.

I have one, said a man in the audience.

What is it?

Why don't you get a hair cut?

The True Condition

I suppose that you like those that have done a lot for you.

Oh, yes, but I can't say that I like them as well as some other folks.

Why other folks, for instance?

Well, how do you live anyway?

I have lived on patrimony.

Huh!

Then, as you know, on matrimony.

Well?

And now I am thinking of trying alimony.

Unappreciated

I have a good suggestion.

Let me tell you what to do with it.

Go ahead.

Carry it out and shut the door after you.

Takes a Smart Dress

You can't flatter her.

Why has she got too much sense?

No, you haven't got sense enough.

Mrs. Brown lately awoke to the solemn fact that her young daughter Margaret was gifted with an oversized imagination which threatened to run into exaggeration, and this might very easily oversoon develop into decided prevarication. And so this enthusiastic disciple of the new psychology called Margaret to the stand for a hearing.

Margaret, said she, do you remember what happened to those children in the Bible who told stories—how the big bears came out of the woods and ate them all up? She had gone a bit astray in her biblical history, but we will let that pass.

Oh, yes, mamma, said Margaret, with goose flesh shivers. I remember. Wasn't it dreadful? And I am not going to tell another story as long as I live, because, mamma, would you believe it, only yesterday when I was in the back yard playing, a great big black bear came out from under the currant bushes in the garden and bit me right on the knee.

Migrating Birds

During many of the nights in September the inhabitants of the island of Helgoland are astir with big lanterns and a kind of enormous butterfly net, the former to attract and dazzle the migrating birds when they come to earth to rest, and the latter to secure them. Mr. Seebohm, the great authority on bird migration, states that he has known as many as 15,000 skylarks to be caught on the island in a single night. The migrating birds are always interesting to the ships that ply across the North sea and the Baltic. In September they settle on yard arms on deck rather tired, and the seamen catch flies and collect them into receptacles for the benefit of the birds.

The Reason

They say that contentment is better than great riches. I wonder who knows about it?

Lots of people.

How is that?

There are more people who can get the contentment than can get the riches.

Easiest Thing you Know

BANK OF MONTREAL

Ninety Sixth Year the Best in its History

The 96th annual report of the Bank of Montreal is the best ever issued by Canada's oldest and best known bank. The net profits for the year amount to $2,648,000 as compared with $2,513,000 for the previous year, being at the rate of 16.56 per cent. compared with 16.21 per cent for 1912. An examination of the report shows the bank to be in a particularly healthy condition. The Capital stock of the bank is now $16,000,000, while the Rest Account is also $16,000,000. During the year, dividend disbursements amounted to $1,920,000, being made up of four quarterly dividends at the rate of 2½ per cent. and two bonuses each of 1 per cent. Altogether the bank has $3,451,000 available for distribution, which is made up of net profits for the year of $2,648,000 and a balance carried forward from the previous of $802,000. Dividend disbursements absorbed $1,920,000 and bank premises account $485,000, leaving a balance of profit and loss carried forward of $1,046,000.

During the year eleven branches were opened and three closed, making a net gain for the year of eight branches.

A further examination of the report shows that steady and consistent progress was made throughout the year. The Note Circulation of the bank is now slightly over $17,000,000, showing a gain of almost $1,000,000 over the returns of the previous year. The Deposits show a gain during the year of $2,500,000 which must be considered satisfactory in view of the many calls for capital made during the past few months. The bank shows a healthy increase in gold and silver coin, but on the other hand, Government notes and other quickly available assets show a slight falling off. The proportion of liquid assets to the liabilities to the public is almost 50 per cent. which is slightly less than it was a year ago, but is still unusually high. Current Loans made throughout the year amounted to almost $129,000,000 or $10,000,000 more than those made in the previous year. Considering the many demands made upon banks during the past few months by manufacturers, business men and brokers, the conservative attitude of the Bank of Montreal in holding current loans to within $15,000,000 of the previous year's record must be regarded as satisfactory. The total Assets of the bank now stand at almost $245,000,000 as compared with $237,000,000 for the previous year. Altogether the showing made by the Bank of Montreal reflects the highest praise on the president, general manager, and officials connected with it. The past year has been a somewhat trying one to banks and the fact that the financial storm has been weathered so successfully and with so little inconvenience to the public indicates careful and conservative banking practices.

The address of the president was a masterly summary of financial and economic conditions both at home and abroad. Mr. Meredith reviewed the history of the bank, touched on the trade and industrial expansion of the Dominion, referred to the monetary situation abroad and throughout it all maintained a note of optimism. While advocating a policy of conservatism and caution, he expressed the opinion that the commercial condition of Canada was fundamentally sound.

In his discussion of the general situation, Mr. Meredith described the year 1913 as a memorable one. 'In Great Britain the demands for money have been unusually heavy with the result that the rates were higher than in other years. He pointed out that there were many factors affecting the monetary situation, the most notable being the Balkan War, the world wide trade activity, the rise in prices of commodities and the serious political disturbances in France and Germany. Further, the demand for gold on the part of several countries such as Egypt and India, added to the acuteness of the monetary situation. Counled with this was a considerable degree of social unrest in Great Britain. Another disturbing factor was the Mexican situation.

In his review of the trade of Canada, Mr. Meredith was most optimistic, pointing out that the export trade is now showing a marked advance while the imports are practically stationary, indicating thereby that Canada is paying her bills by the exportation of produce.

The aggregate foreign trade of Canada for the 7 months ending October was $636,000,000 as against $580,000,000 for the same period a year ago, while in the same period the excess of imports over exports have been cut down from $190,000,000 to $145,000,000. Mr. Meredith estimated the value of the field crops this year, at present prices, at $500,000,000. He then took up each province by itself, showing the conditions prevailing in each and summarizing the trade outlook, closing with the following optimistic summary.

"Business as a whole continues good. Our vast resources have been scarcely scratched. Immigration is large, railway construction active, new territory and new sources of wealth are being steadily opened up and the confidence of British and Foreign capitalists in our country is unabated. A temporary halt can only refresh Canada for yet greater achievements."

HURRAH, NO MORE LAME BACKS!

This Case Proves That the Best and Strongest Liniment Ever Made is Nerviline

When it comes to determining the real merit of a medicine no weight of evidence is more convincing than the straightforward statement of some reliable and well-known person who has been cured. For this reason we print the verbatim statement of Juan E. Powell, written from his home in Carleton: "I am a strong, powerful man, six feet tall, and weigh nearly two hundred. I have been accustomed all my life to lift great weights, but one day I overdid it, and wrenched my back badly. Every tendon and muscle was sore. To stoop or bend was agony. I had a whole bottle of Nerviline rubbed on in one day, and by night I was well again. I know of no liniment possessing one-half the penetration and pain-subduing properties of Nerviline. I urge its use strongly as an invaluable liniment and household cure for all minor ailments, such as strains, sprains, swellings, neuralgia, sciatica, lumbago, rheumatism, and muscular pain."

No better medicine for curing pain was ever put in a bottle than Nerviline—rub it on and rub it in—that rubs out all aches, pains, and soreness. Large family size, 50c., trial size 25c., all dealers, or The Catarrhozone Co., Buffalo, N.Y., and Kingston, Ont.

Oil for Toothache.—There is no pain so acute and distressing as toothache. When you have so unwelcome a visitor apply Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil according to directions and you will find immediate relief. It touches the nerve with soothing effect and the pain departs at once. That it will ease toothache is another fine quality of this Oil, showing the many uses it has.

Ralph Perkins, an artist making a sketching tour through Rhode Island, chanced one day upon a picturesque old barn, so alluring to his eye that he sat down on a stone wall and immediately set to work.

He soon became aware that he had two spectators in the persons of the farmer and his wife, who had come out to watch him.

Presently the artist discovered that he had lost his rubber eraser; and wishing to correct an error in the sketch, he went to the farmer's wife and asked her if he might have a piece of dry bread. This, as is universally known, makes a good eraser.

The farmer's wife looked at him with an expression of pity not unmixed with surprise.

Dry bread! she repeated. Well, I guess you won't have to put up with dry bread from me, young man. I have got sons of my own out in the world. You come right into the kitchen with me, and I'll give you a nice slice of fresh bread with butter on it. No, not a word, she continued, raising her hand to ward off his expostulations. I don' care how you came to this state, nor anything about it; all I know is you're hungry, and I have never yet allowed anybody to leave my house craving food.

WOOD-USING INDUSTRIES

Over 1,200 Ontario Firms Contribute Statistics

According to a bulletin now obtainable from the Forestry Branch, Ottawa, 807,456,000 feet, board measure, of wood were used by thirty-eight different industries in the manufacture of all sorts of finished products, from spools to ships. The value of the wood so used, as purchased in the rough, represented a total of $19,161,384, and the capital engaged in these industries (which do not include sawmills, etc.), together with the labor engaged in the manufacture of these finished products, represents a very important economic asset to the resources of the province.

Thirty-four different kinds of wood were used, chief of which was pine, representing 21.7 per cent of the total and costing, on the average, $25.60 per thousand feet, board measure. Good clear, white pine, however, is becoming comparatively scarce and it is being increasingly substituted by spruce, which costs little more than half as much, being one of the cheapest woods on the market. It is significent to note that only six native species were purchased entirely within the Province, considerably over $5,000,000 being paid for imported wood.

The bulletin contains forty-three tables, containing summarized and detailed information regarding the quantity, value, kind and source of supply of the woods used in each industry. Short descriptions of each species with a list of their uses are also included and suggestions are made as to the utilization of waste, while the appendix contains a classified directory of all the manufacturers.

One afternoon not long ago a certain Brooklyn youngster was much depressed by loneliness. His own brother had gone away for a week, and the lad across the street, with whom he played occasionally, was ill in bed. Moreover, there were no toys that he found amusing.

In this sad state his mother found him. Perhaps, she suggested, I can play with you. What is it you wish? To play Indians?

No, ma, sighed the boy, I wish I was two little dogs, so I could play together.

No, my good man, this is not mine. It was a twenty dollar bill I lost.

But it was a twenty dollar bill before I got it changed.

What did you get it changed for?

FRIDAY, FEBRUARY 6, 1914

THE large attendance at the Liberal meeting on Tuesday evening was significant. It indicates that the people have awakened to a realization of the state of affairs in this province, and are now willing to listen to all sides of public questions. A few years ago they were so completely under the spell of the Victoria machine that a Liberal speaker could not get a hearing. We yet hope to live to see the day in British Columbia when a man will be able to openly avow his political principles without jeopardizing his business interests.

PERHAPS we should feel grateful to the member for Grand Forks for telling—even at this late hour—the government a few facts about the Doukhobors. Perhaps the government will do something to remedy the evils, or perhaps it will continue to follow the advice of Commissioner Blakemore—but this is too difficult a problem for one who is not in the good graces of the machine to solve.

After discussing a number of other subjects, Mr. Oliver turned his attention to Conservative platform. He said it was a very good document. Some of the planks he endorsed The only bad feature about it was that it had not been carried out. He read it clause by clause, but failed to find a single pledge in it that had been fulfilled by the administration. In order to afford the electors an opportunity of contrasting the principles they voted for with the government's policy, The Sun reprints the platform in full:

1. That this convention reaffirms the policy of the party in matters of provincial roads and trails, the ownership and control of railways and the development of the agricultural resources of the province as laid down in the platform adopted in October, 1899, which is as follows:

To actively aid in the construction of trails throughout the undeveloped portions of the province and the building of the provincial trunk roads of public necessity.

To adopt the principle of government ownership of railways in so far as the circumstances of the province will admit, and the adoption of the principle that no bonus should be granted to any railway company which does not give the government of the province control of rates over lines bonused, together with the option of purchase.

To actively assist by state aid in the development of the agricultural resources of the province

2 That in the meantime and until the railway policy above set forth can be accomplished a general railway act be passed, giving freedom to construct railways under certain approved regulations, analogous to the system that has resulted in such extensive railway construction in the United States, with so much advantage to trade and commerce.

3. That to encourage the mining industry, the taxation of metalliferous mines should be on a basis of a percentage of the net profits.

4. That the government ownership of telephone systems should be brought about as a first step in the acquisition of public utilities.

5. That a portion of every coal area hereafter to be disposed of should be reserved for sale or lease, so that state owned mines may be easily accessible, if their operation become necessary or advisable.

6. That in the pulp land leases provision should be made for reforesting and that steps should be taken for the general preservation of forests by guarding against the wasteful destruction of timber.

7. That the legislature and government of the province should persevere in the effort to secure the exclusion of Asiatic labor.

8. That the matter of better terms in the way of subsidy and appropriations for the province should be vigorously pressed upon the Dominion government

6. That the silver lead industries of the province be fostered and encouraged by the imposition of increased customs duties on lead and lead products imported into Canada, and that the Conservative members of the Dominion house be urged to support any motion introduced for such a purpose.

10. That as industrial disputes almost invariably result in great loss and injury both to the parties directly concerned and the public, legislation should be passed to provide means for an amicable adjustment of such disputes between employers and employees.

11. That it is advisable to foster the manufacture of raw products of the province within the province as far as practicable by means of taxation on the said raw products, subject to rebate of the same in whole or part when manufactured in British Columbia.

TAKES OFF DANDRUFF, HAIR STOPS FALLING

Thin, brittle, colorless and scraggy hair is mute evidence of a neglected scalp; of dandruff—that awful scurf.

There is nothing so destructive to the hair as dandruff. It robs the hair of its lustre, its strength and its very life; eventually producing a feverishness and itching of the scalp, which if not remedied causes the hair roots to shrink, loosen and die—then the hair falls out fast. A little Danderine tonight—now—any time—will save your hair.

Get a 25 cent bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any drug store. You surely can have beautiful hair and lots of it if you will just try a little Danderine. Save your hair! Try it!

SUDDEN CHANGE OF TEMPERATURE

Sudden and extreme changes of temperature are the exciting causes of many diseases, but more particularly such ailments as arise from derangements of the kidneys.

When the body is chilled the pores of the skin are closed and on the kidneys is suddenly thrown additional work in an effort to rid the poisons from the system. If the kidneys are in healthful, vigorous action the critical time is passed in safety, but otherwise the blood is poisoned, there are pains and aches, rheumatism and lumbago, and serious disease is a frequent result.

For this reason it is most important that the kidneys be kept in perfect health during seasons of sudden changing temperature by use of such treatment as Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. Colds do not last long when the kidneys and bowels are kept active in removing the accumulating poisons, and serious and painful diseases are avoided by keeping these eliminating organs in health and vigor.

Began Neal Drink Treatment On Friday, Back Home on Monday

A man who has tried every way to give up drinking and failed, time and time again until he took the Neal Treatment, says: "Long and expensive trips to mineral springs, Turkish baths, medicine and advice from physicians, all failed to overcome the physical demands of my system for continued indulgence resulting from my use of liquor. Acting on the advice of a friend I began the Neal Treatment on Friday morning and was back home the next Monday morning in better mental and physical condition than I had been for over six years, and with a loathing instead of the old craving for liquor."

The Neal Treatment consists of a purely vegetable remedy taken internally which leaves no bad after effects. No hypodermic injections are employed, and the patient is restored to perfect health. You can be successfully treated at any of the Neal Institutes in Western Canada.

THROAT STRENGTHENED---CURE FOLLOWS

No Failure, Cure in Every Case Treated by Catarrhozone

Catarrhozone can't fail to cure Bronchitis, it is so healing, soothing and balsamic that every trace of the disease flees before it. When you inhale the pure piney vapor of Catarrhozone, you send healing medication to the spots that are diseased and sore.

Isn't it rational to apply medicine where the disease exists? Certainly! And that's why Catarrhozone is so successful; it goes where the trouble really is, gets where a spray ointment can't penetrate. For the relief and complete cure of bronchitis, asthma, catarrh, throat trouble, we guarantee Catarrhozone in every case. You don't take medicine. You don't take drowsy drugs—just breathe the balsamic essences of Catarrhozone; it does the rest safely and surely.

"For three years I was seriously bothered by a bronchial cough. At night I would awaken with a dry, irritable feeling in my throat. I couldn't cough up anything, but very soon coughed my throat into quite an inflamed condition. Once I got a Catarrhozone inhaler I was all right. I took it to bed, and if an attack awakened me a few minutes use of the inhaler gave me relief. Catarrhozone has cured me and I strongly urge everyone with a weak throat to use it regularly.

THE FORT GARRY, WINNIPEG, MANITOBA

Winnipeg, Man. Dec. 10th.—This magnificent hotel was opened for the reception of guests to-day.

Adjacent to the ruins of that historic monument 'Old Fort Garry' memorable in the early history of Canada's new Western metropolis, has been erected the Grand Trunk Pacific Hotel, The Fort Garry, a magnificent edifice, one of the world's finest hotels, embodying in its construction the most advanced scientific and architectural ideals. Located in the very heart of Canada's greatest of western cities, to which all lines of traffic converge, it is readily accessible to the railroads and electric car lines and the leading theatres, the great stores and a 'stone's throw' from the new terminal station of the Grand Trunk Pacific.

The Fort Garry is built of the finest of Canadian granite and bluff limestone, in the style of the old French chateau of Normandy and Touraine, and rears its stately heights to fourteen stories.

The keynote of The Fort Garry, as judged from the design and interior arrangements, is to be 'homelike comfort.' From basement to roof every detail of construction and furnishing has been worked out in perfect accord with this one idea and would seem to assure the largest measure of personal enjoyment and restfulness to its guests—a place where comfort-loving people might enjoy life to the utmost and feel thoroughly at home.

The main entrance of the hotel faces on Winnipeg's most beautiful thoroughfare, 'Broadway,' and opens upon an imposing rotunda which suggests in its decoration and refinement the cheer and comfort provided within its walls—and from which one may enter the spacious dining and tea rooms, also the cafe and bar.

The central feature of the main floor is the circular tea room of impressive and beautiful Adam design, unbroken by columns, lofty in height, and finely lighted by broad windows and circular domed ceiling.

The Mezzanine gallery is also a novel feature, and is obtained by the introduction of a storey midway between the office floor and the parlors. It is reached by a broad marble staircase from the main entrance lobby and is finished and decorated in white and delicate shades of color. It overlooks the entrance lobby, dining room, cafe and tea room and will be used as gentlemen's writing room. It commands a splendid view of those portions of the house where the most life occurs, and yet at the same time affords a quiet sense of retirement. On this floor is also located the ladies' parlor and drawing room and the executive offices of the management.

The ball room, banquet hall and foyer have been located on the seventh floor. These rooms are of the richest of the public rooms, and have been so arranged with separate kitchen service, reception and dressing rooms, so as to in no way interfere with the privileges of the guests of the hotel. The banquet room with its stage and dancing floor, and on account of its location, will be particularly attractive for concerts and meetings.

Immediately in front of the foyer of the ball room and banquet hall is a beautiful loggia forming a promenade the entire width of the building and commanding a view of the city of Winnipeg.

The building as a whole forms a fine example of what modern science can do in the elimination of fire risk; every girder, beam and rafter is of non-expansive steel, every partition of terra-cotta, every floor of marble, tile or cement, and the stairways of iron. It is absolutely fireproof, and while every precaution has been taken to insure absolute protection to life and property, an equal measure of attention has been devoted to its sanitation and the safeguarding of health. Seventy per cent. of the bedrooms are outside rooms, all are lighted and ventilated with adequate window areas and each room has its own private bath. No treatment of the interior which effects garishness has been used. The color tones are in perfect harmony and the furniture has been made to order from special designs such as one would ordinarily find in private homes of refinement.

On the first floor are the state apartments, consisting of parlor, bedrooms and dining room, beautifully decorated and furnished in the Adam period. There are also four private dining rooms on the floor each one of different size and character, and furnished to suit the needs of the most fastidious. On each floor there are parlor suites consisting of two or more rooms.

Jack Hunter's Thanksgiving

How He Dined on Thanksgiving Day

By DELIA ELLISON

Jack Hunter, a sailor boy, having come ashore with some companions on the arrival of his ship after a three years' cruise, following sailor customs, proceeded to blow in all his savings within a few days.

Now, this was sowing the wind to reap the whirlwind, for they had all received permission to go to their homes to spend Thanksgiving, and, having spent all his money instead, he had not the wherewithal to pay for a ticket on the railroad to anywhere.

"What'll you do, Jack," asked Joe Baxter, one of his mates—"go back aboard the ship for the ordinary Thanksgiving dinner of salt pork, with plum duff thrown in for Thanksgiving, or walk where you are going?"

"I'll not go to the ship," Jack replied. "I don't like the railroads, anyway. They're dangerous. They swing around the curves in a way to make an old salt sick, and if they don't make him sick they scare him to death, which is worse. There's no sea room on a railroad, and when two trains are comin' together head on on the same track there's no sheerin' off, and there's no savin' of life by jumpin' into the water, for there's nothin' but hard ground below. No, sir. I want an open sea for my meanderin's. I'm goin' to walk."

"What you going to do for grub on the way?"

"Reckon I'll fish in the streams."

"Fish! You can't eat the measly little fish that swim in fresh water."

This staggered Jack. He was born on the ocean, his father having been captain of a schooner, and his knowledge of the land was very meager. His parents were both dead, and he had no brothers or sisters; consequently he had no reason for going to where his mother had lived. There was no one he cared to see, no one with whom to eat a Thanksgiving dinner after he got there. He was somewhat discouraged at the information that fresh water fish were not eatable, for he could not think of any way to support himself on a journey except by grub out of the water. He hesitated whether to try it or go back on to the ship.

But there was one attraction that decided him to go on. During one year that he had lived on land he had played with a little girl named Margie. What her other name was he didn't know. Margie was the only being living—if, indeed, she did live—who connected him with the past. He longed to see her just once to ask her if she remembered playing hide and seek in the haycocks with him.

So he started out the morning of Thanksgiving day to walk to the village where he had spent this one year. He didn't remember much about the route, but had been told that he must proceed in a northwesterly direction. Baxter had 25 cents left, which he bestowed upon Jack. After a discussion as to how the money had best be spent it was decided that Jack would need a compass even more than food. So they stepped into a shop, bought a compass, and after a farewell handshake Jack started on his journey.

Jack soon found that he could get on better by inquiring the way than by relying on his compass, for sometimes the compass would take him across a bay, and a man he met told him now he could go by road. About noon, getting hungry, he stepped into a small restaurant and traded his compass for a couple of sandwiches. During the afternoon a glimmering of memory came to him as to the route he passed over, and here and there a house, a clump of trees, a meadow, a bridge, struck him familiarly. About dusk he came to the schoolhouse where he and Margie had learned to spell words of one and two syllables, had played at recess and had gone together to their homes after school let out.

After that he didn't need a compass or any one to tell him the way—that is, he wouldn't have needed either had it not been for night coming on. He pursued his way, guided rather by distance than sight, and, presently coming to a crossroad, he remembered that Margie used to live down the road to the right for about half a mile. So he turned into it and walked on, though overhanging trees darkened the way.

Jack had proceeded down the crossroad about a quarter of a mile when he came to a house. It couldn't be the house where Margie had lived, for that house, as has been stated, was half a mile from the crossing of the roads. At any rate, it had seemed that distance to Jack sometimes when he triangulated it with his little seven-year-old legs. But what surprised him was that the house looked like the house in which Margie had lived. The only light was one downstairs in the rear. Jack went back where he saw the light and looked in through a window.

The sight he saw excited an appetite already keen. He was looking into a kitchen, and viands were cooking on a stove. There was no sound except the sizzling of the cooking viands. Jack put his hand to the sash and found he could easily raise it. He did so, and the odor of the cooking, mingled with the sound of the sizzling, was delicious to a hungry man. Together they took away every vestage of conscience. He climbed into the window, determined to partake of the refreshment before him.

The first thing he did was to throw open the oven door, and there was a turkey just turning a delicious brown. Jack had served a term in the galley aboard ship, and he instinctively basted the sizzling bird. Then he uncovered a dish on the rear of the stove and from the delicious odor it emitted judged that it was a mince pie being warmed. Other dishes were in process of preparation, but Jack was so entranced with the turkey and the pie that he took little notice of them.

It was hard for him to wait till the turkey was thoroughly cooked, but he held on to himself and waited. Finally he could refrain no longer, and, "dishing up," he placed the various viands on the table and sat down to eat.

Jack remembered that his mother used to ask a blessing before each meal. He could not repeat a blessing to save his life, but he was so thankful for the delicious dinner provided for him by Providence that he shut his eyes, bent his head and expressed his thanks in his own peculiar way. Then, straightening up and opening his "blinkers," he sat for a few moments rigid. A young woman stood looking at him from the other end of the room. On her face was an expression of consternation at seeing a man sitting at her table about to eat her Thanksgiving dinner.

"Ship ahoy!" said Jack by way of speaking to this person, who had so suddenly appeared on the scene.

"Well, I declare!" was the reply.

"Would you mind tellin' me what port you hail from?"

"Would you mind telling me what you mean by making yourself at home in my house and eating my dinner?"

"Is this your dinner?"

"My dinner! Goodness gracious, what impudence!"

Had Jack not been in his sailor togs doubtless the girl would have been frightened out of her senses. As it was, she was simply astonished. Besides, Jack was a good looking chap, with an honest eye in his head, and when, realizing the situation, a smile broke out on his comely young face the owner of the dinner could not help responding in kind. Jack rose and in a few words told her how he had just reached port and had been given leave to go home for Thanksgiving; that he had no home and had been looking for a little girl he used to play with called Margie when hungry as a bear he had stumbled on a dinner. Then he begged her pardon for proposing to eat what belonged to her and added that he would go on a quarter of a mile farther to where Margie used to live when he was a boy.

"Why, my name is Margie," said the girl. "I'm Margaret Wharton."

"You can't be my Margie! She was a little bit of a— Anyway, it was farther from the crossroads to her house than this house is."

"Are you Jack Hunter?"

"Of course I am. How did you stumble on that?"

"Why, Jack!"

"What's the matter? Is this a story in a book, or am I Jack Hunter, able seaman on the—"

"You're Jack, and I'm Margie, and you've just come in time to eat a Thanksgiving dinner with me. Sit down."

They talked so fast, each constantly breaking in on what the other was saying without stopping from doing justice to the dinner, that it would be impossible to lay down just what they said, but Margie got in information that her parents were dead, her only brother was somewhere else and she was teaching school in a neighboring city. She had come to the old homestead to spend Thanksgiving by herself and while waiting for the dinner to be cooked had gone to a neighbor's to borrow some articles which she had forgotten to provide.

Well, to make a long story short, these two, each being quite alone in the world, decided, as Jack expressed it, to convoy each other. Jack concluded not to go back to sea, accepting a position with a boat builder. In time Margie gave up her school, and the couple are now quite contented with their lot and under Margie's able management of their finances slowly accumulating funds as well as a family.

Prehistoric Relics From Africa.

Central Africa was once the home of a highly civilized people. The latest proof of this comes from Leo Frobenius, a German explorer, who collected and brought back to Berlin recently many specimens of ancient art. Much of this material is not older than the sixth century after Christ, but the various objects were found in the ruins of places from 15 to 25 feet below the surface, and these buildings had been built on the ruins of still older and more pretentious structures. The latter were of solid, well built masonry with court yards and gardens surmounted by roofs of tiles.

Some of the finest specimens of statuary and bas reliefs in bronze, terra cotta and carved quartz come from these prehistoric ruins. They rival in perfection of workmanship the best relics of ancient Egypt, thus proving that in very remote ages Central Africa must have been inhabited by a highly civilized people, and supporting the theory that Africa was the seat of the first high civilization which was transmitted across the Mediterranean to Europe, while the peoples who had founded it sank gradually into a condition of savagery, through what cause we can only conjecture.

Shady and Sunny Side of Japan.

A remarkable difference exists between the climates of western and central Japan, so much so that these districts are distinguished by the two names Sanindo—shady side—and Sanyodo—sunny side—respectively. During the long and rigorous winter of western Japan the central provinces, bordering the inland sea, enjoy dry and comparatively mild weather. The two regions are separated by mountain ranges, and the factors determining their climate conditions are distinct. A Japanese writer says that while the winter climate of central and southern Japan depends on the southwestern monsoons, that of the western coast is directly related to the barometric area of north China.

A Prophetic Dream.

One of the most inexplicable forms of dream is the prophetic one, instances of which abound. The late Lord Dufferin when in Paris dreamed one night that he was in a hearse en route for the cemetery. A day or so later he was entering the lift at a hotel when he recognized the attendant as the driver of the hearse in his dream. He stepped back and the lift ascended without him. As it neared the top something broke, and it crashed to the bottom again, killing every one in it.

Hard to Suit.

"Maria," sharply asked Mr. Dorkins, "is that worthless young whipper snapper of a Dick Doogood still coming to see Bessie?"

"What do you mean by talking that way, John?" said Mrs. Dorkins. "He hasn't been here in six weeks."

"Hasn't he? Is the scoundrel trifling with her affections?"

A Lack of Foresight!

The primary teacher asked for volunteers in story telling or singing, and one little girl finally offered her services. She came to the front of the room and after standing quietly for a moment, turned to the teacher and remarked:

"Gee! I wish I had kept still."

PUZZLES THE TRAVELER.

The Native Names of Various Foreign Cities and Countries.

A person who is starting on a trip around the world must be thoroughly acquainted with the names of the different places in which he is to stop or he will find himself much perplexed on arriving at the same. One would think that London is called London the world over, but such is not the case. Once you arrive in France and London become Londres. To most persons in Canada, the capital of Turkey is called Constantinople, but the inhabitants of the Ottoman empire call their chief city Stamboul, and it appears as such on all Turkish maps.

Rome and Florence in Italy may sound all right to the average Canadian, but once you visit the two cities you discover that they are called Roma and Firenze, respectively. Not one in six of the ordinary inhabitants of Greece call their country by such name. The proper name is Helles.

Most travelers making their first visit to the Holy Lands are startled by the announcement that Jerusalem is called El Kuds, the Sea of Galilee, Bahr Tubaripeh; River Jordan, Sheriat el Kebir; the Dead Sea, Bahr Lut, and Bethlehem, Beit Lahm.

Every person in the Dominion knows what country you are referring to when speaking of Switzerland, but the traveler visiting the little European republic discovers that the inhabitants of the same call it everything but Switzerland. The population of that country is mostly made up of French and Germans with about six per cent. of Italians and those nationalities call it respectively La Suisse, Schweitz and Svizzera.

Three peoples in one country calling that country by three different names may appear bad enough, but the English and other tourists stopping in the capital of Egypt call it Cairo, the French officials stationed there call it Le Caire, and the Arabs, who were there first and should know best, call it Masr el Kahira.

A Japanese has to leave his own country and go to the nearest English-speaking settlement to know he has ever been in Japan at all. Japan, to its own natives is Nipon or Niphon—whichever way you think gets nearest to their pronunciation.

Likewise there is no China and more strangely still, there is no word in Chinese to represent China as a whole. We of the outside always think of that vast republic as of one country and of one people, whilst in reality it is practically a number of countries with a wide divergence of language and race. The natives range from copper to almost white, and vary in religion from Buddhists to Jews, and in language from Siamese and French in the south to Russian in the north.

The best way to express the term China and the one most often used seems to be Chung Kwoh, China proper, but it is to be expected that the new Government will soon adopt a more comprehensive name for its country along with its other modern improvements.

Most Chinese towns with which we think we are familiar are quite something else if we happen to visit them—such as Kuang Chou, for Canton.

Corea calls itself Tsiotsien; the natives of Siam when speaking of their country refer to it as T'hai, and the Persian thinks he lives in Iran.

Strength of Eggshells.

Most people are aware of the power of eggshells to resist external pressure on the ends, but not many would credit the results of tests recently made, which appear to be genuine. Eight ordinary hens' eggs were submitted to pressure applied externally all over the surface of the shell, and the breaking pressures varied between 400 and 675 pounds per square inch. With the stresses applied internally to twelve eggs these gave way at pressures varying between thirty-two and sixty-five pounds per square inch. The pressure required to crush the eggs varied between forty and seventy-five pounds. The average thickness of the shells was thirteen-thousandths of an inch.

Famine Origin of Game.

Herodotus learned from the Lydians that the Greek ball game originated in a prolonged famine in Lydia. For some time they endured it, but at last they invented dice, knucklebones, the ball and all other games except draughts. One day they played these games so as to keep their minds off food; the next day they took food and did not play. This alternation eked out their provisions for eighteen years, at the end of which time, the situation still being desperate, half the population emigrated. One can only suppose that the ball games were not very athletic, otherwise the increased appetite given by them must have undone much of the saving.

HOW SCOTSMEN MARRY

CURIOUS LAWS AND CUSTOMS IN THE LAND OF CAKES.

The Old Gretna Green Weddings, Which Consisted of a Mere Declaration Before the Village Blacksmith, Have Passed and the Scottish Laws Governing Matrimony Are Highly Intricate.

If you ask anyone, layman or lawyer, outside of Scotland to give you a correct definition of the marriage laws of Scotland, there is the ten-to-one chance that he will be unable to do so. People have been heard to gravely declare that if a person, even in jest, introduced a lady as his wife to somebody else in Scotland, they were thereby tied together in matrimonial bonds. Others who do not "joke with difficulty" have been heard to state their belief that many Scots do not know whether they are married or single! Such matrimonial travesties may have had some semblance of reality in the romantic days of Gretna Green, when runaway couples were united in wedlock by the village blacksmith, but in these days a higher standard is placed upon the ceremony of marriage, both by the civil law and the law of the church.

Only the other day an important point arising out of evidence given by a Scottish minister at a bigamy trial in London was settled by the Registrar-General for Scotland, who has laid it down that "witnesses are essential" to the due observance of a Scottish marriage. The essence of the Scots' law is that marriage is essentially a civil contract. Thus, if two parties in the presence of witnesses solemnly and deliberately say to each other, "You are my wife," "You are my husband," they are as indissolubly married as if the whole ceremony of banns, clergyman, and marriage lines had been gone through. No need, therefore, for anxiety on the marriage day about mistakes in these formalities; the want of any or all of them does not in the least impair the validity of the marriage. Or again, if a man and woman write, say, on the fly-leaf of a Bible the words, "I take you, A, for my wife," and "I take you, B, for my husband," respectively, and add their signatures, both intending to marry, they are as firmly knit as if they had been wedded by the Archbishop of Canterbury. Such are the unromantic facts of a Scottish marriage.

The propriety of allowing marriages to be effected in this simple way without the safeguard of any religious ceremony has often been questioned, but the fact remains that the Legislature allows it and that "it is suited," as one authority has said "to the Scottish national character and circumstances." It cannot be said, however, that such marriages are regarded with favor either by the law or by public opinion.

Another interesting point cropped up the other day when a minister refused to marry any couple whose names had been published on the registrar's board instead of having been proclaimed in the parish church. He did not object to the registrar's certificate on the ground that proclamation in the church was a guarantee of greater publicity, but simply that it was a prerogative of the minister that he was not obliged to marry parties unless after proclamation of banns. In olden days the fees charged by church officials or kirk session for proclamations of banns were very heavy. An ordinary charge was $5 to $7 50, but sometimes it rose as high as $10. After the Marriage Notice Act of 1878 came into operation (for the express purpose of encouraging regular marriages), the church had to set its house in order, and in 1880 an act was passed by the General Assembly, in which it was decreed that the fee for proclamation of banns and certificates should in no case exceed 60 cents. When originally instituted, proclamation of banns was made on three successive Sundays preceding the marriage, but it is now sufficient if proclamation is made on one Sunday "for the first, second, and third times."

Dissenters of strong opinions like to show their independence by patronizing the registrar rather than the Clerk of the Kirk-Session, but the women still have the preference to be "cried in the kirk." The marriage "lines" are issued by the session clerk or the registrar, as the case may be, and the minister of any church can carry through all the formalities of the marriage at the bride's home or in an hotel. A small party of relatives, or a large assembly, is gathered, according to the accommodation of the house and the means at disposal. The more fashionable have their weddings about noon or two o'clock. But a great number of marriages take place in the evenings about seven or eight o'clock. Among the working classes Friday evening is the popular time, and in Glasgow and the other great towns the last Friday of the year sees as many weddings as any ordinary month. In recent years in Scotland marriages in church have become quite common among the "better class" people, but it is not often that a couple belonging to the artisan population are wedded in church.

As is the case in England, civil marriages are greatly on the increase in Scotland. They provide a lucrative business for a certain class of solicitors in large towns.

ANNUAL ROLL CALL

The fiftieth anniversary of the founding of the Order of Knights of Pythias will be celebrated in the local lodge on February 17, when the special Golden Jubilee Ritual, specially prepared for that occasion, will be used and a fitting service held to commemorate this grand occasion.

On the same night will also be held the thirteenth annual roll call of the local lodge. This annual custom has prevailed with the Grand Forks lodge ever since its institution, which took place on October 9, 1901.

Special invitations are being issued to the members, and an excellent program is being prepared by the committee having the matter in charge.

Made Like a Locomotive Boiler

IT LASTS A LIFETIME

The Arcadian Malleable Non-Breakable Range is not made of cheap coke steel, but of the best Charcoal Iron Plates, and its castings are not made of common gray iron, but of the Highest Quality of Malleable Iron.

Malleable Iron is the ideal material for a practical, durable and economical range. Owing to its close, dense and compact texture, it is better fitted to resist the strain of heating and cooling. It possesses great strength.

Charcoal Iron, of which the best and largest steam boilers are made, in order that they may endure the greatest strain, is what is used for the body of the Arcadian Range. This charcoal iron has a density and fineness of grain which gives it great power of resistance against rust and crystalization, making it practically indestructible.

A pure asbestos mill-board is used to line the flues and other parts of the range. It is held between a sheet of charcoal iron and the charcoal iron body.

All joints of the Arcadian Range are riveted so closely and solidly and with such skill that they are as tight as a locomotive boiler and will never open from expansion or contraction.
