NEW QUARTERS FOR HIGH SCHOOL

Government Has Decided to Grant Request of Citizens for Use of Portion of Court House

E. C. Henniger, chairman of the school board, this week received a telegram from Hon. J. D. MacLean, minister of education, saying that the government had decided to grant the request of the Grand Forks citizens for the use of a portion of the provincial court house for high school purposes. The telegram further stated that a man would be sent here at once to inspect the premises and to report on what alterations in the building would be required. A request was also made by the minister for a statement as to when the building would be needed for school purposes.

MEIGHEN'S MINISTERS

Only Three Portfolio Changes From Borden's Ministry--Calder President of Privy Council

Ottawa, July 13.—Additions to the new cabinet of Hon. Arthur Meighen are: E. K. Spinney, M. P. for Yarmouth, N. S.; W. S. McCurdy, M. P. for Colchester, N. S., and R. Wigmore, M. P. for St. John, N. S.

E. K. Spinney and R. Wigmore were this afternoon sworn in as members of the new cabinet, the former as minister without portfolio and the latter as minister of customs and inland revenue. The others sworn in were Sir George Foster, Sir James Loughheed, Hon. Hugh Guthrie, Hon. J. A. Calder, Hon. A. E. Sifton, Hon. Dr. Reid, Senator Robertson and Sir Henry Drayton.

Of the former ministers who served under Sir Robert Borden, a number of whom are now sworn in under Arthur Meighen, only three have any change in their resignations. Sir James Loughheed now becomes minister of the interior and superintendent general of Indian affairs instead of minister of soldier's civil re-establishment; Hon. J. A. Calder retains his old portfolio as minister of immigration and colonization, but in addition is named president of the privy council, the position held by Hon. N. W. Rowell, who resigned; and Sir Edward Kemp, former overseas minister of militia, is now minister without portfolio.

Only two ministers of the cabinet, Hon. S. F. Tolmie, minister of agriculture, and Hon. P. E. Blondin, postmaster general, now remain to be sworn in, and the oath will be administered to these two by the clerk of the privy council.

MORE TIME REGISTERING

Lists Are to Be Kept Open Up to the End of the Present Month. Requests From Many Sources

Victoria, July 14.—On account of representations from many sources, and by reason of the fact that it is its desire to obtain as full a registration as possible, the government has decided to extend the period in which all eligible voters may gain admission to the new provincial lists until the end of the present month.

This decision applies to all districts alike, and in making the announcement this morning, Hon. J. D. MacLean, minister of education and provincial secretary, urges upon every qualified elector the desirability of his or her name appearing on the voters' list now being compiled.

Reports reaching the parliament buildings indicate that registration in the outlying districts has been slow, and unless there is considerable more interest taken during the extended period it is feared that not more than half of the rural electorate will have been included in the new lists.

It would be well for voters to bear in mind that if their names are not filed with the registrars named to take the same for the new provincial voters' list, they will be disenfranchised from voting on the prohibition plebiscite this fall, and in the provincial election, which it is generally believed will follow soon after the former vote is taken. Don't postpone the registration for a moment. Do it now. The date of closing the new provincial voters' list has been fixed by the government for August 1.

According to a report from New York, the Granby Consolidated Mining, Smelting & Power company produced 2,181,219 pounds of copper in May. This is comparable with 2,105,199 pounds in April. Unofficial returns indicate that the coal and coke situations are improving. The improvement in the coking department has been brought about by an addition of coal from mines other than of the Granby. The mixture is said to have resulted in a better coke product.

E. C. Henniger and family returned this week from a motor trip to Salmon Arm.

FINANCIAL CRISIS AVERTED BY CITIZENS' LOYALTY

Victory and War Bonds Are Pledged for Funds to Retire Debentures Amounting to $55,000

A crisis in municipal financing has apparently been averted by the loyalty of the citizens of Grand Forks to their city.

On the 15th inst. debentures issued twenty years ago to the amount of $45,500 became due. To retire these and another issue of $11,700, which matured in May last, the city was, by an act of the late session of the legislature, granted permission to issue $55,000 of refunding debentures. These bonds have been issued and placed with an eastern financial firm for disposal, but owing to the depression of the money market no buyers have been found.

In the meantime the old bonds arrived in the city promptly on time, and payment was demanded. But there were no available funds with which to comply with the demand. This was the ugly situation that confronted the people of the city this morning.

A citizens' meeting was called for this evening to endeavor to devise some means whereby the good reputation of city in financial matters might be retained. Mayor Acres, who presided, laid the situation before those present very plainly, and in this task he was ably aided by Chairman Hull of the finance committee and by Manager Niles of the Bank of Commerce.

The situation was squarely faced by those present, and the opinion prevailed that at all hazards the city must be kept from defaulting in payment or from going under a receivership. After a free discussion it was decided to induce citizens holding war and Victory bonds of which there are nearly $300,000 held in the city, to pledge a sufficient amount of these with the bank for funds with which to retire the old debenture issue. The Victory and war bonds will be returned to the owners as soon as the new city bonds are sold.

A committee consisting of Mayor Acres, E. C. Henniger and Chairman Hull was appointed to canvass the city for bonds. This (Saturday) evening they report having been pledged $47,000. Only a few more thousand dollars are needed to make up the required amount, and the committee has yet a number of prominent citizens to call on.

It might be pointed out that those who are pledging their war bonds are taking no risk whatever, as they are guaranteed the return of their property as soon as the refunding debentures are disposed of. The entire property valuation of the city is back of the new bond issue, and Grand Forks, when its assets in the way of public utilities is taken into consideration, is in better financial condition than any other city in British Columbia.

Joe McDonald, one of the original old-timers of Grand Forks, returned on Saturday from Vancouver where he been making his home during the past few years.

NEW SYSTEM NEXT MONTH

From August 1 Luxury Will Be Collected By Means of Internal Revenue Stamps

Instructions have now been received by the inland revenue department officials on the coast regarding the decision to institute a new system of collecting luxury taxes.

This new system will go into effect on August 1. Up till that date the system instituted when the taxes were imposed will continue in effect. The new system will mean a great saving of labor to merchants. Instead of having to keep track of the amounts collected on innumerable sales, turning in the collections and duplicate sales slips to the department, it will only be necessary to buy a quantity of inland revenue stamps at intervals, these stamps to be attached to the article sold or to the receipt and defaced. There may be objection to the new system on the score that in some cases it will involve heavy initial outlay on the part of the merchant.

ELLIOTT TO PAY PREMIER'S COSTS

Jury Had Stood Six to Two to Give Oliver $1000 Damages--Costs Will Be Heavy

R. T. Elliott, K.C., must pay all the costs of the Oliver Elliott libel suit, which was won by the premier with a verdict of 25 cents damages.

This was decided last Friday by Mr. Justice Macdonald of the supreme court. The costs will be heavy.

"I think it plainly a case where the plaintiff is entitled to costs," said the judge. He pointed out that in the famous case of McAllister vs. Stevens only damages of one farthing were awarded, yet the defendant had to meet the costs of the action. He also quoted the case of Anderson vs. Ford-McConnell, tried in Vancouver a few years ago, in which Anderson got 5 cents damages against the Saturday Sunset publishers. But they had to meet the costs.

While the question of costs was being argued before the judge the division of the jury in the trial last week was made public. Of the eight men on the jury, six were awarding the premier $1000 damages.

SESSION OF THE CITY COUNCIL

Routine Business Transacted and Communications Read and Considered

The mayor and all the aldermen were present at the regular meeting of the city council on Monday evening.

A letter from Premier Oliver relating to the collection of school taxes in urban districts was ordered filed.

A resolution was adopted empowering the finance committee to deal with the debentures which matured on the 13th inst.

A letter was read from the Provincial Old Men's Home in reference to Wm. Carter, an inmate of the home from this city. A resolution was adopted asking the home to release Mr. Carter, and stating that the city would pay for his transportation home and for his maintenance if it should be found necessary for him to re-enter the home.

The chairman of the board of works reported, the board sidewalk to the Great Northern depot had been torn up and a cinder walk put down in its place.

The chairman of the water and light committee reported that the city electrician was at present engaged in transferring the meters from the inside to the outside of houses.

The chief of police was instructed to notify the City Cartage company to remove the pile of manure in the rear of the fire hall.

The appeal for aid from the Children's Home, Vancouver, again came before the council. The clerk was instructed to inform the home that the appeal was under consideration and that they would be informed of any later action taken by the council.

A resolution was adopted authorizing the clerk to advertise the sprinkling hours in the local papers.

FRIDAY, JULY 16, 1920

The splendid loyalty of the citizens of Grand Forks to their city in coming to the aid, financially, of their municipality, and thus save it from humiliation and the stigma of going into the hands of a receiver, deserves all the praise that the people can bestow upon those who have pledged their private wealth to meet an extraordinary emergency. While the circumstances leading up to the present plight of the city are peculiar in many respects, yet the ratepayers do not feel inclined to absolutely absolve the present and past councils from blame for not having taken steps to avert the climax precipitated today, although the extenuating circumstance may be advanced that enabling legislation was lacking for the council to act earlier in the way which it did. But some other course might have been found. We think the denouement of the situation has demonstrated this fact. The incident should serve as a warning to future councils to guard our city's honor more zealously, and also act as a reminder to the ratepayers that they must take a deeper interest in the financial affairs of the city. We have kept the publication of this week's issue of The Sun back a day in order to enable us to give a correct version of the incident in our news columns, because distorted and pernicious reports concerning it are sure to find their way to the outside world.

Something has been said about the happy termination of this unpleasant affair proving a valuable advertisement for the city, but we can not see it in this light, and the least said on this subject the better. If a friend comes to my rescue when I am in financial difficulty, it shows that I have got a friend. But it does not improve my standing in the financial world.

There is much cause for congratulation in the fact that our school board, headed by its energetic chairman, has been successful in obtaining permission from the government to use a portion of the provincial court house for high school purposes. Those who have had charge of this matter attribute no small part of their success to the fact that they approached the government officials with the courtesy due their positions. They state that they were treated with equal courtesy by the premier and the minister of education. During the late visit of these two officials to our city, a member of the city council attempted to use "bulldozing" tactics in dealing with the subject. Had this method been adopted by the school board the city might have been without a high school when the school term opens. The victory gained is no small one, because with its other obligations the city is not in a position to erect a high school building this year.

What we need in Canada, as in all other countries, is goodwill and sanity and industry and cooperation between classes, and the sense of equity and decent confidence in one another, said Sir John Willison, in a recent speech before the Canadian club. Revolution in Russia began with constriction of wealth, land and factories and ended with conscription of labor. And the intervening stages are disfigured by violence, murder, anarchy, starvation and ruin. Many voices, angry and menacing, demand "free speech" and admittedly freedom of discussion is of the genius of British institutions. For my part I would concede complete freedom of debate so long as men confine themselves to constitutional agitation, but those who attempt so achieve their objects by intimidation, violence and revolution I would repress with all the authority which the state can command. And where democracy fails to maintain law and order just as where it fails to express the free judgment of the people it is a sham and a failure. Let us forget our old quarrels and prejudices and set aside old theories which have no practical relation to the new situation in Canada. One hopes that the "bloody shirt" will not become the emblem of any party in this country as it was in one of the American parties for long years after the fall of Richmond. Let us put behind us any differences which the war produced and go on in mutual trust and mutual confidence. We have too many people who have come to this country with a disposition to impose their grievances upon us and to make us responsible for evil conditions elsewhere. They would punish Canada for the sins of other lands. They abuse Canadian freedom and endanger Canadian institutions. Against all such elements we must oppose a resolute and uncompromising Canadian spirit. We want a new birth of devotion to Canada. I am not thinking that we have no patriots save those who speak the English language. I am thinking of all those who were born on this soil and by right of birth are citizens of this country. I am thinking, too, of thousands born elsewhere who are devoted Canadian patriots. With these lie the honor, the dignity, and the prosperity of Canada, and we must unite against disturbers and trouble makers and grievance mongers, come they from where they may and whether they represent few votes or many, whether they are politically insignificant or politically formidable.

A young man in Wyoming drove two miles alone before he discovered that his sweetheart had fallen out of the buggy. Love making in that state must lack some of the ardor that characterizes it around here.

Saints have halos because a country boy made a curious mistake some hundreds of years ago when he first began to paint holy pictures. In order to keep the rain from discoloring the statues of saints that stood just under the eaves of churches, the church authorities used to place wooden disks over them. Giotto, when a boy, assumed that the disks were an essential part of the sacred figures. At first he painted above the head of each saint a disk that looked like the bottom of a tub; later he made a mere circle, dark at first, but more and more luminous in successive pictures until it became the circle of light that painters ever since have used as the symbol of sanctification.

Several theories have been advanced to explain the rings that close examination shows on the scales of fishes. The favorite theory is that they denote the age of the fish—a ring to a year, like the rings that show the age of a tree. Ichthyologists in many European countries have made a careful study of the matter and have deemed it of enough importance to make it the subject of a report published as a British bluebook. They hold that the scales do tell with near approach to accuracy the age of salmon and herring; as to other fish they are in doubt. The Norwegians maintain that the rings bear relation merely to the length of the fish. It has been found that the food of the fish and the temperature of the water that they inhabit have an influence on the scale rings.

SOME NECTAR
SECRETING PLANTS OF THIS PROVINCE

By Mark Marsh.

The Canada thistle yields nectar from which the honey is of good color and quality.

Willow herb, or fireweed as it is commonly called, grows from two to six feet in height. Its growth is confined to regions where forest fires have occurred. As a rule it springs up and come out in blossom the year following the fire. It blossoms from first of July until the latter part of August. The flowers are dark pink arranged in clusters, generally around a single stem, and as the season advances the first bloom go to seed, and as the stalk extends upward more blossoms appear, and buds. Blossoms and seed pods may be seen on the same plant. It is one of the most valuable honey plants known, and gives some nectar every year. The honey has a fine flavor, is very sweet and some say that it is slightly suggestive of spice. Where it grows in eastern North America the honey is very clear, but for some unknown reason the honey from it here in British Columbia is considerably darker.

Smartweed, of which two varieties are common in this part of the province, one variety having vine like stalks and the other stouter stalks that grow up fairly straight and branch out. It blossoms during August and September. The extracted honey from it varies in color from a light to a dark amber. Its flavor, while not as good as clover, is not poor. When it granulates it is in very fine crystals and looks much the same as the candied product of the best light honey.

The cucumber, in the vicinity of pickle factories, yields quite a harvest of nectar after the clover is gone, but the honey is rather a poor flavor.

Goldenrod does not appear to give a great deal of nectar. The honey is golden or dark amber, thick and has a fine flavor.

The fall dandelion has several slender main stalks which come from the same root. There are several branches to each stalk, each supporting a flower which is the same color as that of the common ones. It yields a small amount of nectar until late in the autumn.

There are many other plants in this province that yield nectar and a number of them, no doubt, yield it very abundantly, but as the bee-keeping industry is in its infancy here the possibilities of many of these are unknown.

This paper was followed by a discussion of other nectar secreting plants in British Columbia, the following, among others, being mentioned.

Asters—Some honey in the fall.
Goldenrod, of which there are two varieties. One blooms all summer and yields very little nectar. The other grows in August and September and yields considerable Skunk Cabbage—No honey.

Cottonwood Trees—No honey.
Raspberry—Great yielder of honey. At Hatzic the best honey is yielded from raspberries. The bloom is so constructed that it holds nectar, otherwise the nectar would be washed out by rain.

Cornsperry (?)—Very small flower. The bees work it about July and August and get considerable nectar from it. It grows in boggy places, and its stem is like the buttercup or bladderwort.

Oregon Grape—This has a downward pointed flower, which is often sought by the bees.

Sweet Clover—This is grown more extensively in the interior than on the lower mainland. It is classed as a great honey plant in some districts.

Cascar—This plant is scarce but is worked quite frequently by bees.

Elderberry—Light green leaf; blooms about end of May. Honey producing.

White Everlasting Flower—Very little nectar.

Holly—Yields some honey.

Ivy—Blossoms about end of July with small greenish flower, from which the bees sometimes get honey.

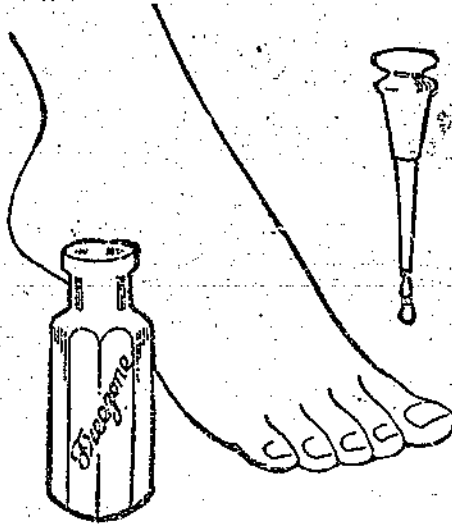

English Ivy—Also bears honey.

Oxeyed Daisy—Very little yield.

Labrador Tea—A great honey producer. Yields a strong smelling honey.

Records will be granted covering only land suitable for agricultural purposes and which is non-timber land.

Partnership pre-emptions abolished, but parties of not more than four may arrange for adjacent pre-emptions with joint residence, but each making necessary improvements on respective claims.

Pre-emptors must occupy claims for five years and make improvements to value of $10 per acre, including clearing and cultivation of at least 5 acres, before receiving Crown Grant.

Where pre-emptor in occupation not less than 3 years, and has made proportionate improvements, he may, because of ill-health, or other cause, be granted intermediate certificate of improvement and transfer his claim.

Records without permanent residence may be issued, provided applicant makes improvements to extent of $100 per annum and records same each year. Failure to make improvements or record same will operate as forfeiture. Title cannot be obtained in less than 5 years, and improvements of $10.00 per acre, including 5 acres cleared and cultivated, and residence of at least 2 years are required.

Pre-emptor holding Crown grant may record another pre-emption if he requires land in conjunction with his farm, without actual occupation, provided statutory improvements made and residence maintained on Crown granted land.

Unsurveyed areas, not exceeding 20 acres, may be leased as homesteads; title to be obtained after fulfilling residential and improvement conditions.

For grazing and industrial purposes areas exceeding 60 acres may be leased by one person or company.

The time within which the heirs or devisees of a deceased pre-emptor may apply for title under this Act is extended from for one year from the death of such person, as formerly, until one year after the conclusion of the present war. This privilege is also made retroactive.
