PREMIER OLIVER VISITS THE CITY

Prime Minister and Hon.
J. D. MacLean Spoke to a Large Audience on Monday Evening

Hon. John Oliver, prime minister of British Columbia, and Hon. J. D. MacLean, minister of education and provincial secretary, arrived in Grand Forks at 12 last Monday, Mr. McPherson having driven them down from Greenwood in his big motor car. One of the first remarks the premier made after his arrival was, that coming the Phoenix hill and looking on the orchards on the Covert in full bloom was the grandest sight he had seen on his present journey through the province.

After luncheon the premier and Dr. MacLean were taken for an auto drive through the lower part of the valley in E. C. Henniger's car, the party comprising the government officials and three members of the executive of the local Liberal association. The object of the outing was to show the premier and the provincial secretary the land around Cascade available for a soldiers' settlement community. To give the visitors a proper conception of the amount and the quality of the land that can be acquired for this purpose, Cascade, Laurier and Christina Lake were visited. The visitors appeared to be favorably impressed with the appearance of the lands, and also expressed some surprise at the reasonable valuation placed on them.

At 5 o'clock the party returned to the city, and from that hour until 6 the ministers were in consultation with the executive of the Liberal association.

The Public Meeting

At 8 o'clock in the evening the premier and the minister of education addressed a public meeting in the Empress theater. Every seat in the house was filled, and the standing room in the rear was also taken up. The chair was taken promptly at the appointed time by R. Campbell, president of the Liberal association, who introduced the speakers with brief but appropriate remarks.

Dr. MacLean was pleased to speak in the city on the same platform with the premier. He was gratified to see the large audience present. It was a healthy sign when the people took an interest in public affairs. He reviewed the educational system, and stated that it was an expensive system, the government paying municipalities 46 per cent of the cost of maintaining the schools. The University of British Columbia was the fourth in size and importance in Canada and the people of the province had every reason to feel proud of this splendid institution of learning.

The speaker devoted considerable time to the provincial health department. The government, he said, had been criticized for not supporting the hospitals more liberally, and he showed that British Columbia was twice as liberal in this respect as the prairie provinces.

The balance of Mr. MacLean's speech was taken up with a refutation of the charges leveled against the government by Mr. Bowser when he last spoke in Grand Forks. Mr. Bowser had criticized the government for squandering money on a provincial audit. The audit, said the doctor, had disclosed, among other things, the slipshod method in which the late government had done business. He considered that the cost was money well spent. Another criticism the leader of the opposition had made was in regard to the amount of money the government had spent for royal commissions. The speaker showed by actual figures that the present government had only expended one-tenth as much for this purpose as the old regime.

The salary of Premier Oliver had not been increased, as had been alleged by Mr. Bowser. On the contrary, it was, the speaker said, considerably less than that drawn by the former premier.

The cost of government had naturally increased, because salaries and the cost of living had increased.

Mr. MacLean devoted a great deal of time to the government's treatment of the returned men. As an evidence of their attitude towards the government, he cited the fact that in the last by election the Liberal candidate had received 88 per cent of the soldiers' vote. Their interests, he said, would be well looked after in the future.

Premier Oliver's introduction to the audience created enthusiastic applause. He was glad of an opportunity to appear before the people of Grand Forks to give an account of his stewardship.

The premier went fully into the dealings of the late government with Mackenzie and Mann, whom he characterized as the greatest confidence men the world had ever produced. These artists had let contracts to themselves as subsidiary companies of the C.N.R. After discussing railway matters and railway legislation at length, he appealed to the audience to be Britishers. They had had the money and squandered it; now they must pay the piper. In other words, they should not grumble at increased taxes or think of repudiation.

Dealing with the question of increased taxation, the premier said the condition of the province's finances at the time present government come into power had made this step absolutely imperative. The former government had collected vast revenues, but they had been expended with the utmost prodigality. Citing instances, he mentioned cases where costly court houses had been constructed that are now used as provincial jails and lunatic asylums. And, he added aside, the inmates of these institutions are largely the product of the former government's policy.

The income tax, he said, was now being collected more rigidly and more economically than it ever had been in the past.

Touching on the irrigation question, the premier pleaded unfamiliarity with the local project. He said, however, that the money market is

WILL SURVEY HEINZE LANDS

Engineer Holland Will

Today and Start Work

Government Engineer Holland will arrive in the city today, and will at once commence to survey the lands in the Columbia & Western land grant in this neighboring, which have reverted to the government. gradually tightening and intimated that when the time came for starting work on the system it might be difficult for the government to raise the necessary funds. In this connection he read the following telegram from J. E. Thompson, member for Grand Forks, who is now in Vancouver:

"Only unavoidable circumstances prevent me being with you tonight. Have wired your chairman and Dr. MacLean my regret. Please arrange for meeting to get the following information: First, Mr. Davis will reach Grand Forks this week to arrange for irrigation scheme. Second, tenders are being called for construction of Cascade to Rossland road. Third, arrangements are made for satisfactory improvement to the telephone line to Franklin camp. Best wishes for successful meeting."

The premier was proud of the Dolly Varden legislation. He considered it one of the best acts ever placed on the statute books.

Mr. Oliver concluded his speech by reviewing the Woman Suffrage act; an act passed by the present government giving the mother equal guardianship of her children with the father, and an act establishing juvenile courts and also providing homes for incorrigible children where medical examination and treatment were given those whose mental condition was found to be responsible for their moral delinquency. The fixing of a minimum wage for women and prescribing the conditions under which they shall work was another act of this government from which over 2000 women had already benefited. Similar provision had been made for girls under 18 years of age. Laws had also been passed protecting wives deserted by their husbands, providing for childless married couples legally adopting children, and an act providing for mothers' pensions.

Mr. Oliver's peroration was one of the finest examples of oratory heard in this city for many years.

H. A. Glaspell and C. A. S. Atwood made fervent appeals for irrigation. The meeting closed with the singing of the national anthem.

Premier Oliver and Dr. MacLean left for Rossland Tuesday morning on the Great Northern passenger train.

GIVE THE BEES LOTS OF ROOM

[EXPERIMENTAL FARMS NOTE.]

Swarming is the bees' natural method of increase, and the instinct to swarm is particularly strong under the extremely favorable conditions for bee activity of the Canadian spring and summer.

The uncertainty of swarming, the loss of honey following the division of the working force of the colony, the possibility of swarms escaping, and the difficulty of preventing swarming in many parts of Canada without considerable labor, all make the control of swarming quite the greatest problem in bee management. To encourage work in the hive and to discourage the desire to swarm, plenty of room, both in the brood chamber and in the super, and large entrances should be given to all colonies as soon as conditions are favorable, but these measures will not always be enough to prevent swarming in many places, especially in the north.

If the apiary can be watched all day, it is a good plan to clip the queen's wings at fruit bloom time. When the colony swarms, remove the hive to a new stand, place on the old stand an empty hive, to which the swarm will return, the queen having been meanwhile picked up and placed in a cage in the new hive. The field bees will join the swarm and the parent colony will be so much weakened by their loss that it is not likely to swarm again.

Where the apiary can not be watched, the plan of preventing swarming by examining all brood in every colony every week and destroying all queen cells is very laborious and not always effective. A similar plan is to remove the queen at the beginning of the clover honey flow, and eight or nine days later destroy all the queen cells except one, or destroy all and give a ripe cell of select parentage. In this way a young queen is obtained which will not swarm and, besides, will be more prolific in the fall and next year than the old queen, and will be less likely to swarm next year. This plan, however, causes a certain amount of loafing until the new queen starts laying. This loafing can be much reduced by introducing a ripe queen cell at the time the queen is removed, and if this is done early enough before any preparations for swarming have been started, the bees are unlikely to build further queen cells. Where, however, one prefers to use the surer method, only those colonies that are actually preparing to swarm should be treated, and some means for quickly ascertaining if a colony is building queen cells in preparation for swarming should be employed. One of the best of these is to have the brood nest occupy two chambers, and then by prying up the upper chamber one can see at a glance if the queen cells are being built along the lower edge of the combs in this chamber.

In many parts of southern Ontario, southern Quebec and similar regions the desire to swarm is strong only during the first two or three weeks of the honey flow from clover, and the separation of queen and brood by a queen excluder, the queen being put into a lower chamber containing only empty combs

GRANBY MAKES MANY CHANGES

Sylvester Quits and New York Executive Takes Over the Management of Company at Anyox

Vancouver, June 2.—Reorganization in the higher direction of the Granby Consolidated Mining & Smelting company is in progress. R. F. M. Sylvester, managing director in British Columbia, has resigned and a new executive, sent from New York to take charge in this province, will have his headquarters at Anyox. Mr. Sylvester today confirmed the report of his retirement from the company. At a meeting of the directors in New York on May 26 the position of managing director was abolished.

H. S. Munroe has now been sent from New York to be general manager and will proceed to the company's mine at Anyox to take charge. W. A. Williams, for many years chief of smelting and other operations in the north, has been given an extended leave of absence. A new consulting metallurgist has arrived in the person of E. P. Matheson. Mr. Munroe is an American with an experience in copper production gained in the western United States.

It is an open secret that fundamental differences of opinion on broad questions of the future policy of the company have developed during the last year between the New York directors and Mr. Sylvester, and the latter's decision to retire has been the result. Mr. Sylvester is understood to have strongly favored an aggressive policy which would include acquisition of new prospects and the development of new properties. Granby is one of the largest corporations in British Columbia. Its assets have steadily become stronger, and are now estimated at between $11,000,000 and $12,000,000.

Good Enough for a Girl

A father and mother, says a British weekly, had brought their month-old twins to an East London church to be christened. All went well until the rector asked, "And what is this child's name?"

The father drew himself up and replied, "Haig Pershing Foch Marne Mons Lloyd George Clemenceau Jones."

The rector gasped. Then, taking a deep breath, he turned to the mother, who was holding the other child, "And the name of this?"

The meek little woman smoothed her dress and whispered, "Maud."

and foundations may be enough to tide the colony over this period. Another good plan that may be enough to prevent swarming in this region is to use two brood chambers and confine the queen to the lower one early in the honey flow, at which time the combs in this chamber usually contain a large number of empty cells.

FRIDAY, JUNE 4, 1920

That the public meeting Monday evening displeased a portion of the audience, especially some of the ranchers, it is useless to attempt to conceal. That they were displeased, and why they were displeased, was too apparent. And yet the grounds for their displeasure may not have been as tenable as they supposed. They came to the meeting to hear the question of irrigation for the valley discussed and to obtain, if possible, some definite pronouncement from the ministers regarding governmental aid for the project. The gathering was advertised as a public meeting, and the members of government came to give an account of their stewardship to the people. That they succeeded in doing this is undeniable. At the same time the displeased portion of the audience, having come to the meeting under a misapprehension, undoubtedly had some cause for their displeasure.

That the question of irrigation is of vital importance to the people of this valley does not admit of controversy. But it may be well to make an effort to endeavor to discover to what extent the government would be blamable for failure to support the scheme under certain conditions. Sit down and do a little Socratic self-examination. The case most frequently cited in support of assistance for irrigation in this district is the government's action in assisting the Okanagan fruit growers. But this is not a parallel case with the situation here. In the Okanagan the government merely came to the assistance of the farmers to help them to repair and maintain old irrigation systems, and to save them from being swindled by private corporations. No new systems were undertaken there. Here we asking for an entirely new irrigation plant. As far as we are aware, no similar work is at present being carried on in any section of the province, except in connection with soldier settlement areas. If other districts of the province are getting improvements which we need, and are not getting, then an injustice is being done us, but, on the other hand, if we demand money for work which no other portion of the province is getting, then we sanction an injustice being handed out to our fellow citizens in other districts. Are we willing to insist on a brand of "justice" which is an injustice to other people?

While we have by no means given up hopes that the government will do everything in its power to aid the fruit growers of this valley to get water on their land, yet certain contingencies may arise that would make such assistance impossible. To prepare the farmers of the district for such an eventuality, the above note of warning is sounded with the best possible intention. The premier, in his speech Monday evening, stated that the money market was beginning to tighten, and there is every indication that the financial situation of the country will become more acute from now on. In such an event, the government, as well as private individuals, will be compelled to practise economy and retrenchment, and no justification would exist for blaming the government for not acting in the matter when its hands were practically tied. Neither would there be any reason for descrtions from the party on this score. And no matter what steps may be taken, or may not be taken, on the proposed project, we do not believe that the defeat of a government that has done more for the farmer than any that preceded it would be justifiable.

There is a fine old saying to the effect that "God helps those who help themselves." In former generations people relied more on their own recourse. Now they want the governments to do everything. As a natural consequence many sections of the country which have not the requisite "pull" with those in power must smart under the lash of injustice. When we were a boy the farmers of our county built their roads, the people of our district built school house and paid the teacher's salary; if there was a slough or a lake to be drained, the people did the work themselves, without calling on the government for assistance. Government aid for local improvements was, in fact, unknown in those days. It was the days when men had faith in their own powers, and when the people lived within their means. And none were every known to go hungry. Now paternalism is at large in the land. If a poor man gets a day's work he takes his family to the picture show, and then when he happens to be out of employment for a week he calls on the municipal or provincial government for assistance to pay his grocery bill. And still we wonder why taxes are increasing.

If we had discarded the idea of paternalism years ago, the chances are we would have an irrigation system in operation in this valley today. If we discard the idea tomorrow, there is still an even chance that we get water on the land as soon we would be waiting on the government. If the government builds the system, it takes a lien on the land for the repayment of the cost of the plant; if we organize a water municipality and issue bonds, the land is pawned for the redemption of the bonds. There is not much choice between the two methods, and whether the work is done by the government or by the farmers themselves, the cost would probably be about the same. A competent engineer, however, working for the ranchers, should be able to install the plant cheaper than the government, because governments are supposed to have an unlimited supply of money, and workmen have never been known to work themselves to death while employed by them.

General uncertainty as to who will pay the new taxes and how they shall be paid is well illustrated by the conditions which prevails among the business men of the entire country. Retail merchants who have applied to the Ottawa government for information on the subject were informed that the new taxes were effective May 19, and that any merchant failing to collect must pay the taxes out of his own pockets. A common misunderstanding is in regard to the tax applying to the gross price of an article taxed or to the difference in cost between that and the sum exempted. It is the gross price that is taxed. For example, a $45 suit is exempt; if a suit costs $46, however, the tax to be added would be $4.60, making the suit cost $50.60. If the cloth is bought at a store and taken to a tailor to be made up, the tailor must collect the tax for the work done and for the price of the cloth well. The new taxation is based largely on that in force in the States, where the practice is to make the sales slip show the price of the article and the war tax also. Most stores already require duplicate slips for their sales systems, and as the department of finance also requires a copy, some merchants fear that they must scrap their cash registers.

The frontiersman needs courage; what else than a frontiersman is he who goes fearlessly onward into the future?

A Prehistoric Niagara

A dead and buried Niagara, its thunders stilled for countless ages, once perhaps as great in height and volume of water as the present falls, has been unearthed by excavations made in the course of the new Welland ship canal near Thorold, in southern Ontario.

No memories of this lost Niagara linger even in aboriginal tradition. When it existed or when it ceased to exist has not even been conjectured. It may have been thundering in primeval solitude before the age of man. The mastodon and the pterodactyl may have pastured upon its brink. Giant winged lizards may have sailed above its clouds of rainbow vapors.

The engineers who partly uncovered it believe it was the original Niagara marking the course of the paleolithic river that connected Lake Erie and Lake Ontario. Some mighty prehistoric cataclysm, it is supposed, diverted the course of the stream and buried the falls and the old river bed level with the surrounding country.

Slightly Mixed

Makhan is the Hindu word for "a large house" while mukken is the word for "butter." The similarity of the two names caused complications for a fervent young minister who wished to preach on the glories of the Celestial city. The text which he actually announced to his congregation was:

"In my Father's house there is much butter."

King John once asked a shepherd where the center of the universe was.

"Right here where your majesty is standing," replied the shepherd glibly, "and if anyone is disloyal enough to question it let him disprove it if he can?"

An Expensive Ornament

A young Scotsman had married an English lady, and some time afterwards he paid a visit to a bachelor uncle.

"Weel, Sandy, I hear ye hae gotten a wife," said the old man.

"Yes, uncle."

"What can she dae?"

"Do? What do you mean?"

"Weel," the uncle went on, "can she sew and knit? Does she mend your claes?"

"No," the young man admitted.

"Humph!" commented the uncle.

"Weel, does she cook? Can she mak parritch?"

"Oh, no, uncle," the young man explained. "The servants do all those things. But you should hear her sing. She has the most beautiful voice you ever heard."

"Sing!" repeated the old man, scornfully. "Man, could ye no hae gotten a canary?"

And the Class Understood

The story of the good Samaritan was being expounded to the class. The Samaritan was pictured lying bleeding by the roadside, where the robbers who had set upon him had left him.

"Now," asked the teacher, "does any little child know what happened to the poor man?"

One child had the answer. "Please, ma'am," she said, "I think he was run over by an automobile."

Failure to make improvements or record same will operate as forfeiture. Title cannot be obtained in less than 5 years, and improvements of $1000 per acre, including 5 acres cleared and cultivated, and residence of at least 2 years are required.

Pre-emptor holding Crown grant may record another pre-emption, if he requires land in conjunction with his farm, without actual occupation, provided statutory improvements made and residence maintained on Crown granted land.

The scope of this Act is enlarged to include all persons joining and serving with His Majesty's Forces. The time within which the heirs or devisees of a deceased pre-emptor may apply for title under this Act is extended from one year from the death of such person, as formerly, until one year after the conclusion of the present war. This privilege is also made retroactive.

No fees relating to pre-emptions are due or payable by soldiers on pre-emptions recorded after June 26, 1918. Taxes are remitted for five years.

CITY PROPERTY

CITY OF GRAND FORKS will hold a sale of Acre Plots and smaller parcels of land suitable for gardening or building.

These properties have been listed at very low upset prices and may now be purchased at the City Office.

Many of these parcels of land are located on City Water Mains and Irrigation can be arranged for at low cost, while many, especially those in West Grand Forks, will come under the Irrigation system when installed.

These would all be good buys at any time, but should be particularly attractive with the coming of irrigation to the valley.
