PHOENIX MINES' BIG PRODUCTION

Value of Production of Smelter in This City for Past Twenty Years $55,550,000

The Granby Consolidated Mining, Smelting & Power company has produced 12,314,946 tons of ore from its mines at Phoenix since the beginning of production twenty years ago, according to an official report. From the ore its smelter at Grand Forks produced 636,291 ozs. of gold, 4,330,345 ozs. of silver, and 271,079,000 pounds of copper, having an approximate value of $55,550,000. The capacity of the smelter was increased until it reached 4500 tons daily, then becoming the largest copper smelter in the British empire.

MILES CONVICTED OF SELLING WOOD ALCOHOL; 10 YEARS

Richard L. Miles, colored, of Carini, who was formerly a dealer in second-hand goods in this city, was indicted at the assizes in Vernon last week, before Mr. Justice Morrison, for the murder of Alex Paul, an Indian, the allegations of the prosecution being that the prisoner supplied him with wood alcohol, the drinking of which resulted in his death. There was a second true bill returned against the prisoner by the grand jury for the murder, under similar circumstances, of Kalamalka Paul, father of Alex. W. H. D. Ladner represented the crown and W. Clayton defended.

The evidence advanced, according to the Vernon News, by the prosecution showed that a few days before Good Friday Miles purchased some wood alcohol at Main's store in Pentiction and from J. W. S. Logie at West Summerland.

About the date named, April 18, Miles was seen at West Summerland in the company of the two Indians, and there was a statement from Daniel Paul, the eight year-old grandson of Kalamalka Paul, that he saw his uncle Alex give some paper money to Miles, after which they went behind a barn. On their way home to Shingle Mill that evening, said the boy, through an interpreter, both his uncle and grandfather drank from five bottles, which were then thrown away. Next morning the boy saw his grandfather lying in a ditch near home and he expected he was drunk. Later he saw him lying at home, and he had not seen him around since.

Dr. White, of Pentiction, spoke of being called to see Kalamalka Paul, whom he found to be suffering from wood alcohol poisoning, although he admitted the same symptoms might have been produced by exposure. He found a bottle containing a small quantity of wood alcohol, which he turned over to the police. This wood alcohol could be used medicinally, but never was on account of its poisonous character. Distorted vision or partial blindness was one of the symptoms from which Kalamalka Paul was suffering. He was later called in to see Alex, but the man died before he got there.

Witnesses traced Miles' movements between Summerland Pentiction about the date named, and Wm. Johnson, a restaurant keeper at West Summerland, corroborated the statement about the prisoner going behind a barn with the two Indians.

Dr. McGregor, of Pentiction, testified that he had conducted a post mortem and reached the conclusion that the Indians had died from the effects of poisoning by wood alcohol. For the defence the prisoner was put in the witness box and told a long story regarding his movements at Summerland Pentiction, where he claimed he was trying to engage teams from the Indians to haul wood. He denied that he had furnished the alcohol to the Indians. He had bought two bottles, he said, of methylated spirits to use in a spirit stove. One of these had disappeared from his bag, and the other had been accidentally spilt.

The jury was out only about a quarter of an hour when they returned a verdict of "guilty of man slaughter." His lordship said that he was thoroughly concurred with the verdict.

At the conclusion of the assizes sentence of ten years' imprisonment in the penitentiary was passed upon Miles.

JUDGMENT FOR WOLFRAM AT ASSIZES

Mr. Justice MacDonald presided at the spring term of assizes in the court house in this city yesterday. There was only one civil case, that of Seiler vs. Carl Wolfram, on the docket. This was an action for the payment of two promissory notes involving $1820. Judgment, with costs, was given defendant Mackenzie appeared for plaintiff and Pincott of Rossland, instructed by J. H. Ryley, for defendant.

DECLARES DELAY CAUSE OF UNREST

Agent General Wade Protests Against Holding of Canadians in England

LONDON, June 5—Agent General Wade, of British Columbia, in a letter to the press, attributes unrest among Canadian troops here entirely to delay in repatriation and protests against the military men of the Dominion still fretting here in idleness and expense. The Prince of Wales had led the way in constructive imperialism by denouncing the order for further detention from home and other punishments for refractions of regulations as brutality itself and a wrong to the country. His remedy for the shipping shortage is the employment of the fleet and transports as the United States has already satisfactorily done.

ORCHARD SOIL IMPROVEMENT

If the orchard lands are under an irrigation system the question of improving soil fertility is not difficult. Legume crops may be grown annually and then ploughed in deeply; this operation followed by shallow surface tillage, and the problem is largely solved. But in districts where there is no irrigation, and the summer rainfall is not sufficient to supply the needs of both the trees and a growing cover crop, the problem is more difficult. The mulch system offers partial relief to the dry districts, in that it reduces destruction of organic matter caused by tillage; conserves moisture that is usually lost from exposed soil surfaces. At the experimental station for Vancouver island the orchard was established under a tillage practice that during the fourth year a green mulchment. Peas and red clover are the mulch materials used. Peas are sown in October and the clover is seeded in March, the rotation consisting of one year peas, two years clover. The green crops are cut early in June and at once spread beneath the trees. By this method the decay of the mulch materials will greatly increase the organic matter in the soil and there is no summer tillage to destroy it after it has been produced.

An Editor's Apology

We wish to apologize to Mrs. Orville Overholt. In our paper last week we had as a heading, "Mrs. Overholt's Big Feet." The word we had ought to have used is a french word, pronounced the same way but spelled fete. It means a celebration and is considered a very tony word.—Williamsville (N. D.) Item.

The Policy of Go-Ahead

Those who make a study of social and political economy have opportunities in times like these to apply theories and also to so reconstruct them that they are adaptable for practical purposes. There was a time when, if conditions were not satisfactory, a remedy was suggested from behind a pair of spectacles, but since everybody has been getting closer together the policy is to work out a practical way.

This is the sensible method of improvement. If there are two sides to a dispute, and there must be two sides if there is any argument at all, it does not help matters to have someone propose a pet theory as a basis of settlement. Neither is any good brought about when the two parties stand apart and indulge in declaration and recrimination. Even in a case of war, the opponents get together immediately and stay together until the matter is settled. Now that there has been enough war to do everyone in the world for several generations, cooperation is the basis of settlement more than ever.

The spirit of construction is prominent. It is recognized that as long as there is bickering or dissatisfaction in any body of workers, efficiency is not up to standard. Production is not what it might be and everyone concerned feels the ill effect when the industrial machine labors along instead of running smoothly. Instinctively, each of us feels that if progress is to be made, matters of difference must be settled, and the way to settle them is to discuss them at first hand.

Adjustments in any large industrial undertaking can not be effected in a few moments. Neither can there be a stated settlement in advance. Points arise from time to time and these have to be attended to at once, so that results will not happen. There needs to be a permanent base of operations, some settled method of procedure, and while general rules may be decided upon for guidance, no particular lines of settlement can be laid down. It is just the same as in building a house. Plans are drawn up, but the working foremen are always on the ground to see that troubles which arise are attended to and not allowed to develop into interference.

The workmen of today should realize that the way to improve the present system under which we are engaged is to keep going, work out new suggestions and apply what has been proved to be beneficial and correct. They should know that what is in the interest of one part of the business, assists the other and that without cordial relations all the way through there is less benefit to all. Doctors tell us that if one part of the body suffers an injury, the whole physical system feels the effect, and that, according to the laws of nature, the whole body rallies to the support of the injured part. So unconsciously, perhaps, the industrial body has been gradually proving the same principle, and evolving in a practical way a method to cure ills which exist, without unnecessarily jarring the whole system.

Cooperation is construction, and construction is absolutely necessary if we would progress. If we stop constructing, if we stop producing, not only do we not go ahead but we go back, we lose what we have gained. Every one of us knows that, and because we realize that it is commonsense we are carrying it out to the best of our ability. Perhaps in the old days, we may have been a little reserved in acknowledging that we were clinging to old ideas, but manliness is bringing us to where we say, "Let us profit by our experiences and make the most of the future."

The past is only of use in pointing out to us our mistakes and in showing us the right way to proceed. The future can not be stated absolutely. The best we can do is to outline our course, and, as we advance according to the chart, take all possible precautions against what snags may be floating about and weather the storms as they arise. No voyage is ever made in which storms and difficulties are not encountered, and in nearly every instance they are weathered. When weather conditions are unsatisfactory, no mariner thinks of sinking his ship and casting about for a new one. On the contrary, the whole ship's crew get together, work their hardest, and pull through.

We must go ahead, we can not stop. We can not fail to realize that cooperation and advancement work in one with the other.

If heads of families drawing interest from Victory bonds do not consider the amount large enough to invest on their own account, they might well put it into war savings stamps for their children. The holder of a $100 Victory bond receives $5.50 a year, which, if put into war savings stamps for a child, would mean a saving of 10c a week on which an amount equal to about 5 per cent simple interest is paid. A $200 Victory bond annually bears $11 interest, which, put into war savings stamps, would mean the saving of a little over 20c a week, drawing about 5 per cent simple interest. A $500 bond pays $27.50 a year in interest, which, invested in war savings stamp, would mean the saving of 51c a week, or 7c a day, for every day in the year, and constitute a very considerable sum. So if the amount paid in Victory bond interest is too small for the parent to put into war savings stamps, it should at least make a fine start for a child.

The process of drying potatoes so that they can be kept indefinitely and transported as easily as wheat or flour has given them an important place in world commerce; but the potato is likely to become even more important as a source of motive power if those experts are right who prophesy that alcohol will take the place of gasoline for internal combustion engines. Since a bushel of potatoes will produce a gallon of alcohol, and since an acre of land produces one hundred bushels of potatoes in this country and more than two hundred bushels in Germany, the possibility of making alcohol in large quantities is obvious.

Although the Russian government used to print more than 3,000,000,000 rubles of paper money every month, it is unable now to get the raw materials to print more than 1,250,000,000 rubles. Even that much smaller amount is largely in the form of "kerenki," roughly printed notes for twenty and forty rubles, which are very easily counterfeited, for when the Bolsheviks seized the state bank and tried to continue the bank notes of the old regime, they were unable to master the difficult processes, and on the few notes of the old style that they did manage to print the numbers were identical, not consecutive.

Having obtained absolute control of the surface rights of nearly one-half of the North American continent, the Canadian Pacific railway is now reaching out for franchises to dominate the aerial transportation business. The air has heretofore been free; and it should remain free.

Remember the Others!

There's an obligation that goes with party-line telephone service—an obligation shared by all persons on the line, an obligation which each owes to the others.

Inordinarily long conversations frequently cause annoyance and even grave distress. Some other person on the line may be trying to call a doctor or make some similarly urgent call. Perhaps, too, there's a most important message, incoming, for some one on the line—perhaps even for the person who is "holding things up."

Think it over! The obligation is one that will appeal to all who give consideration to it.

SAYS STORIET OF NUDE EXHIBITIONS ARE FABRICATIONS

Editor Grand Forks Sun.

Sir.—Last week I sent a copy of the enclosed letter to the Grand Forks Gazette; but, as I expected, with the unairiness and lack of courage characteristic of that organ, it was not published. However, if you should see fit to print it, it will probably reach all the Gazette readers, and then some. Yours truly,
G. A. S. BELL.
Grand Forks, June 5, 1919.

Editor Grand Forks Gazette.

Sir.—It is untrue that our neighbors, the Independent Doukhobors, annoy us by unseemly exhibitions of the nude. We, who live within a few hundred yards of them, have never witnessed any indecency; but, as most of the animal kingdom will, when irritated, make themselves obnoxious to others, I trust you will stop insinuating that we are complaining of their conduct. When annoyed by constant prodding a skunk stinks, a man sweats, a baby yells, a lion eats you, a suffragette hunger strikes, a porcupine shoots its quills, a goat sheds its clothes, and if you go butting in and monkeying with any of the above you only get what you are asking for. The Community Douks, who have been our neighbors for the past seven years, are kindly and industrious, hospitable and honest, and I am indebted to them for many little acts of kindness. Yours, etc.,

Tricking a Witness

The best piece of cross-examination ever heard in the law courts was done by the late Mr. Montague Williams many years ago.

He was defending a man of good position against whom a very serious charge had been made. The only real question was identity, and this turned on the evidence of a young woman who swore positively that she had seen the prisoner at the particular spot on the night of the fireworks.

Everybody was expecting a long cross-examination of the witness when Montague Williams rose to his feet.

But he only asked one question, which was, "I suppose it was a bright moonlight night, and so you did not see the fireworks well?"

Back came the answer: "Nothing of the sort, sir; it was as dark as pitch."

Montague Williams sat down. Of course, if it had been as dark as the girl described she could not have been able to distinguish the accused. So the man was acquitted.

There is no doubt that more cases are lost to opponents by long cross-examination than are won from the other side.

"Do you find public office an easy berth?"

"I shouldn't exactly call it a berth," said Senator Sorghum, thoughtfully. "It's more like a hammock: hard to get into comfortably and still harder to get out of gracefully."

"Do you know, Mr Churchill, that I like your moustache as little as I like your political views," a frivolous little lady said to him, rather pertly, at a certain reception. "That is of no consequence, madam," was the instant reply, "since you are never likely to come into contact with either."

Statistics
"Have ever been disappointed in love?"
"Two and a half times, dear lady."
"Two and a half times?"

LIFT OFF CORNS!
Apply few drops then lift sore, touchy corns off with fingers

Doesn't hurt a bit! Drop a little Freezone on an aching corn, instantly that corn stops hurting, then you lift it right out. Yes, magic!
A tiny bottle of Freezone costs but a few cents at any drug store, but is sufficient to remove every hard corn, soft corn, or corn between the toes, and the calluses, without soreness or irritation. Freezone is the sensational discovery of a Cincinnati genius. It is wonderful.
