

A CUTE REDSKIN

Indian Pete Gains His Liberty by Taking the Fire Route.

Indian Pete, who was confined in the provincial jail here for horse stealing, and whose trial was set for Thursday of this week, made his escape Wednesday night in a very unique if not a daring way.

All the signs of Pete to be seen by Constable Dinsmore on his arrival at the jail Thursday was a good sized hole, burned in the lower left-hand corner of the door, just large enough to allow the wiley Indian to crawl through. How he managed to burn the corner off the door without starting a conflagration is a puzzle; but he did it, and as a consequence his trial will have to be postponed to some future date.

SUNSET SAUNTERINGS

Ed Hardy returned Wednesday from a trip as far east as McLeod, Alta., in the Crow's Nest pass. He remained some time at Coleman, where his brother, Tom, is erecting a hotel, which he expects to have completed in two weeks' time. They have applied for a license, and do not anticipate any trouble in getting it. There is about a foot of snow in Coleman, and the thermometer registered 24° below when Ed was there.

The C. P. R. will commence the improvements in their yard here which they decided on some time ago, and work will be started on the new roundhouse next week. Additional sidetracks will also be put in, and the freight shed will be removed from its present site to a place near the old Ingram-Muir warehouse. These improvements will add greatly to the handling facilities of freight traffic, which lately has been very congested in the yard, thus being the cause of several small wrecks.

A hunting party composed of Jack Beckett, W. Brown, C. W. Harrigan and two others, returned from Pass creek last Monday. They report having killed five deer, Mr. Beckett getting four of the five.

A. D. Morrison, the well known jeweler and optician, has decided to hold an auction sale of watches, diamonds, rings, etc., without reserve, on Nov. 28th. Now is your chance to buy Christmas presents for your friends in the east.

A citizen who is in business in this city, but who resides in the Columbia end of the town, asked THE SUN reporter the following puzzle the other day: "Why are the arc lights in Columbia like the slag pile at the smelter?" After scratching his head for a while, the reporter gave it up. "Well," said the puzzle propounder, "because they only light up the scene occasionally."

Harry Folger, who owns the hotel on Riverside avenue known as the Stockholm, will reopen it in a week or ten days. Mr. and Mrs. Folger have decided to run a first-class boarding house and restaurant. It will be known as the Royal hotel and restaurant. No bar will be run in connection, as they intend to make it a strictly temperance house.

James Anderson, of the firm of Anderson & Dunham, of Coleman, Alta., is in the city on business. This firm is erecting one of the finest hotels between Kootenay Landing and McLeod in the Crow's Nest pass, and will have it open to the public in the course of a week or so.

The Rev. Dr. Waight has resigned the pastorate of St. Paul's Presbyterian church in Nelson, which he has occupied for the past eighteen months. His resignation is to take effect the latter part of the present month.

Don't fail to read A. D. Morrison's ad. on the second page.

Printers' Ink, a journal published solely in the interests of advertisers, says: "The merchant who advertises liberally makes the best investment he can possibly make with his money. No investment he can make will bring in the returns that judicious advertising will. If you have goods to sell, advertise them. Let the people know that you have them, and that you are willing to sell at living profits. Some merchants expect a paper to educate its readers to patronize home industry and buy at local stores, and at the same time fails to give any support to the paper for so doing. This should not be. If the merchants support the paper, it will support and advance their interests."

This world is composed of all sorts and conditions of men, and Grand Forks appears to have a goodly sprinkling of all the elements. The other day a representative of THE SUN was subjected to insult and abuse simply because he endeavored to collect a two years' arrears subscription bill from a gentleman who labors under the delusion that he is a leading citizen of the community, and that the sun would be compelled to still if he should command it to do so.

Owing to the prevalence of a few cases of scarlet fever in the city, the school trustees this week decided to close the public school, which they did Wednesday at noon. Last week the little son of Jeff Davis contracted the disease, and a few days later Maud Wooster, who was in attendance at the school, became ill, and Wednesday morning Dr. Kingston was summoned to attend Mr. Chas. Hay's youngest son, Maurice, and the doctor immediately diagnosed the case as scarlet fever. A strict quarantine is enforced wherever the disease is found to exist, and every precaution will be taken to check its spread. It is unfortunate that the school should have to be closed so near the Christmas holidays, as this season of the year is a very important time in educational circles.

Biden opera house, Nov. 25th, a first-class con show, one that will surely please. Rag-time songs and dances, buck and wing dancing and plenty of comedy. Popular prices, 75c, 50c and 25c.

WILL BUILD A RINK

Wm. McNee and Peter Donaldson Are the Promoters.

Peter Donaldson and Wm. McNee have about decided to erect a skating rink, but up to the present time they have been unable to secure a suitable location. However, they expect to have a site selected in a few days, when they will commence work on the building and rush it to completion. The rink will be 140 feet long by 75 feet wide, and will have comfortable dressing rooms and all modern conveniences. It is a matter of satisfaction to the people of Grand Forks that the prospects of a good skating rink are so bright, and there is no doubt but that it will be well patronized. Skating is a healthy exercise for both young and old, and the promoters are to be commended for their enterprise.

SUNSET SIGNALS

The price of coal at Princeton is quoted by the Similkameen Star at $3 per ton, and wood is almost distributed free. The chances are that before spring the majority of householders in Grand Forks will be wishing that Princeton was a suburb of this city, as dry wood will be at a premium by the 1st of January. The demand is greater than the supply now.

Young man, there is now excuse for not buying your best girl a watch, a diamond ring, or some other sweet thing, as A. D. Morrison will put the price within the reach of all.

Biden opera house, Nov. 25th, the Original Senator Hamden's Serenaders, a high-class colored vaudeville company. Popular prices, 75c, 50c and 25c.

Attention is called to W. H. Itter & Co.'s new advertisement in this issue of THE SUN.

Owing to the prevalence of two or three cases of scarlet fever among the school children, it has been decided to close the Sunday schools in this city for a short time. It is unfortunate that the Christmas entertainments which are being gotten up by the different Sunday schools should receive a set-back by the closing of the schools. The course adopted, however, is the only safe one to pursue in order to stamp out the disease, and it is to be sincerely hoped that it will be all over in plenty of time to complete the list of amusements on the program for the Christmas season.

Reduced prices on jewelry, watches, rings, etc., will be given at A. D. Morrison's, commencing Monday, the 23d inst., and continuing until the big auction sale on the 28th.

Senator Hamden's Black Serenaders; all original black American up-to-date company, composed of ladies and gentlemen. Old-time melodies, plantation, jubilee and rag-time songs. Strictly a high-class vaudeville company. Biden opera house, Wednesday, Nov. 25. Popular prices, 75c, 50c and 25c.

Mr. Neil McCallum and bride returned home from the east by today's Great Northern express.

Criminals have been known to saw, file, carve, dig and dynamite their way out of prison, but it was left to the wiley Indian to burn his way to freedom. Indian Pete must be of "fire eater" brand.

A. B. W. Hodges, superintendent of the Granby smelter, and C. A. DesBrisay, right of way agent for the Great Northern, went up to Phoenix today.

Jeff Davis & Co. have just received a car of good winter apples; also one car of stock salt.

The Cosgrove family will give a concert and dance in the Biden opera house on December 3rd.

Usual services in Knox church next Sabbath, conducted by Rev. J. R. Robertson, pastor. Subject for morning service: "Christ's Third Temptation." Subject for evening service: "The Training of Christian Character."

Rev. M. D. McKee has accepted the call of the Greenwood congregation to become their pastor, and the induction will take place in the church there on Wednesday, Dec. 9. Rev. Robertson will preside and address the congregation, Rev. Thomson will preach, and Rev. Dr. Wright will address the minister.

J. Ehrlich, manager for P. Burns & Co. at Greenwood, spent several days in the city this week.

George Fraser, M.L.A., will leave for Victoria Sunday to attend the opening of the provincial legislature, which takes place next Thursday, the 26th inst.

NEWS OF THE MINES

C. A. S. Atwood Secures an Interest in Three North Fork Properties.

Last week W. A. Pounder, who is a well known miner and a pioneer of Grand Forks, disposed of a half interest in the Alaska, Emma and New York mineral claims, located north of this city, to C. A. S. Atwood, manager of the Hunter-Kendrick company's local store. The consideration is said to have been $1500. The Alaska, which was located by Mr. Pounder several years ago, is the most promising of these properties. Development work will be commenced on it in the spring.

A short time ago the Granby Smelter company bonded the Senator and Fremont mineral claims, two promising properties in Summit camp. A force of men was at once put to work on the Fremont, with the result that they will, as soon as the siding which the railway company is now extending to the property, is completed, be shipping about ten cars of ore per week, taken from a glory hole on the surface. The ore will be sent to the Granby smelter.

* * *

Dr. Avonil was down from Summit camp the latter part of last week. He has been directing work on the Minnie claim, owned by himself and Al Traunweiser, in that camp during the past two weeks. They now have a force of four men employed on this property, and from the work already done some good looking ore has been exposed. The Minnie is close to the Fremont, which was bonded by the Granby company recently, and on which work is now being prosecuted.

The second locomotive for hauling slag at the Granby smelter has been shipped from Sherbrooke, Que., by the Jencks Machine Co.

A contract has been let by the Rathmullen company for cutting wood, preparatory to the commencement of work on the company's claims in Summit camp.

The No. 2 steam shovel, recently put to work at the Granby mines, is doing satisfactory work in the No. 1 pit. The No. 3 engine is expected to be shipped from the manufacturers, at Lorain, Ohio, the latter part of this month.

Five men and teams are at work on the Senator in Summit camp, which was recently bonded by the Granby company.

E. O. Windsor, piano tuner, will be in Grand Forks in a few days. Leave orders for him at Woodland's drug store.

FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 10, 1911

It is certainly a healthy sign of the times to note the number of important mining deals which are being made every week in this vicinity. One deal is no sooner made, than close on its heels another is announced. Within the last month some of the best properties in the Grand Forks mining division have either changed hands or been placed under bond, and in the majority of cases to outside capital. These deals are fraught with great possibilities to the Boundary country. Upon the success of a number of those properties which will now be worked on a large scale depends the future of a large number of very promising claims in the same camps. Very little doubt is, however, entertained on that score, as past experience has fully demonstrated that Boundary properties, backed by capital and worked by good, experienced companies, have turned out to be dividend paying mines. The same will be the result with a number of the promising prospects that have recently been bonded or purchased by legitimate mining companies. And it is gratifying to learn that the mining industry of British Columbia is on a firmer footing today than ever before in the history of the province. The prospects for a mining boom throughout the Boundary country in 1904 are most flattering. All things come to them that hustle while they wait.

At the last meeting of the city council Mr. Wm. Dinsmore, Sr., addressed the mayor and aldermen on behalf of some deserving citizens who are anxious to see a free library or reading room established in Grand Forks. He pointed out the need of such an institution in our city, and urged the city fathers to favorably consider the project, and, if possible, to lend financial aid for the early establishment of the same. Mr. Dinsmore is to be commended for the interest he has taken in so worthy an enterprise. We certainly think that the city council should do all in its power, and if possible strain a point, to financially assist such an undertaking. There is no doubt a number of the well to do citizens of the community would be found only too willing to help by liberal donations. A reading room and small library would be a boon to a great number of young men of this city. They could spend the long winter evenings in comfortable quarters reading good literature, instead of idling around hotel offices and other places, with no other object in view than to kill time. With several buildings unoccupied at the present time, one could be secured for such a purpose at a nominal rent; then with the donation of magazines and newspapers and the purchase of some books, a start could be made. It is to be hoped that some good will come from Mr. Dinsmore's agitation and the suggestions we have made.

What business is so good but that it could be made better by good advertising?

Every business has some good points. These points, if constantly advertised, will bring business.

His Forte.

The seven-year-old pride of the family had concluded his recitation of "The Boy Stood on the Burning Deck," and the fond mother, turning with dignified complacency to the unnerved visitor, remarked:

"And I have been assured by really eminent judges, Mr. Marterdum, that he closely approaches Sir Henry Irving in dramatic style, without, however, that great actor's offensive mannerisms."

"I am not surprised to hear it!" assented the victimized one, with a strained smile.

"Mabel, also," continued the matron, blandly indicating a six-year-old mite of flaxen-haired precocity, "plays exquisitely. Her rendering of 'In My Cottage Near a Wood,' with variations, is not dissimilar in touch and feeling to Paderewski at his best—as you shall presently determine; while Egbert, yonder (get your slate and pencil ready, darling), though barely turned four, draws engines and railway lines in a manner suggestive of Academy honors at so very distant future. They all have their fortes, you see! In fact, most people have when you come to think of it. What is your forte, Mr. Marterdum?"

"Mine, madam?" gasped the wretched listener. "Mine? Oh, I—I run!"

And he suited the action to the word

WHY GO EAST

Over the sun-burned, sage brush and alkali plains, when you may just as well take a delightful, cool and comfortable ride through the heart of the Rocky Mountains in view of the grandest scenery on the American continent?

This you can do by taking on the Rio Grande system, the far-famed "Scenic Line of the World,"
the only transcontinental line passing through Salt Lake City, Glenwood Springs, Leadville, Colorado Springs and Denver enroute to eastern points.

Three daily express trains make close connections with all trains east and west, and afford a choice of five distinct routes of travel. The equipment of these trains is the best, including free reclining chair cars, standard and tourist sleepers, a perfect dining car service, and also personally conducted excursion cars
each in charge of a competent guide, whose business is to look after the comfort of his guests. No more pleasant and inexpensive means of crossing the continent can be found than is provided by these excursions.

A Matrimonial Entanglement.

In "Chapters From My Diplomatic Life," which Andrew D. White, the United States diplomatist, is contributing to "The Century Illustrated Magazine," there occurs an interesting reminiscence regarding the working of the German marriage laws:—

"One morning a man came rushing in exclaiming: 'Mr. Minister, I am in the worst fix that any decent man was ever in. I want you to help me out of it;' and he then went on with a bitter tirade against everybody and everything in the German Empire.

"When his wrath had effervesced somewhat he stated his case as follows:—
'Last year while travelling through Germany I fell in love with a young German lady, and after my return to America became engaged to her. I have now come for my bride. The wedding is fixed for next Thursday; our steamer passages are taken a day or two later, and I find that the authorities will not allow me to marry unless I present a multitude of papers such as I never dreamed of! Some of them it will take months to get, and some I can never get. My intended bride is in distress;
her family evidently distrust me; the wedding is postponed indefinitely; and my business partner is cabling me to come back to America as soon as possible. I am asked for a baptismal certificate—a Tauschein. Now, so far as I know, I was never baptised. I am required to present a certificate showing the consent of my parents to my marriage—I, a man thirty years old, and in a large business of my own! I am asked to give bonds for the payment of my debts in Germany. I owe no such debts;
but I know no one who will give such a bond. I am notified that the bans must be published a certain number of times before the wedding. What kind of a country is this, anyhow?'

"We did the best we could. In an interview with the Minister of Public Worship I was able to secure a dispensation from the publishing of the bans;
then a bond was drawn up, which I signed, and thus settled the question regarding possible debts in Germany. As to the baptismal certificate, I ordered inscribed, on the largest possible sheet of official paper, the gentleman's affidavit that in the State of Ohio where he was born no Tauschein, or baptismal certificate, was required at the time of his birth, and to this was affixed with plenty of wax the largest seal of the Legation.
The form of the affidavit may be judged peculiar, but it was thought best not to startle the authorities with the admission that the man had not been baptised at all. They could easily believe that a State like Ohio, which some of them doubtless regarded as still in the backwoods and mainly tenanted by the aborigines, might have omitted in days gone-by to require a Tauschein, but that an unbaptised Christian should offer himself to be married in Germany would perhaps have so paralyzed their powers of belief that permission for the marriage might never have been secured.

"In this and various other ways we overcame the difficulties, and though the wedding did not take place upon the appointed day, and the return to America had to be deferred, the couple at last after marriage first before the public authorities and then in church, were able to depart in peace."

The Blighting of His Fame.

"Ruined!" he cried, as he dashed paper to the floor and trampled upon it.
"Ruined, disgraced! My fair famblasted! My honor gone!"

"Dearest, what disaster is this?" I was his fond wife who gasped the question, in tones of anguish.

"A disaster which is irremediable;
calamity which will crush me to the earth!" He ran his white, thin finger through his luxuriant crop of long aninky hair, black as the raven's wing, a top-and-a-half bottle of black, was ranted to defy detection—not a dye, no stain, but a harmless liquid that merely has to be combed into the hair.
(Vide advt.).

"Heavens, Horatio, tell me what has befallen thee!" The fair girl turned her dolorful eyes upon him. Her young soul, aged thirty-eight, shared his agony.

"Felicia," he cried, "do I look like humorist?"

"The fates forefend!"

"Do I strike you at all as being funny man?"

"Anything but that!" she shuddered.

"Am I not known as a serious author?"

"You are," she admitted.

"Do I not paint the serious side of life?"

"You do," she interjected.

"Am I not a novelist of grave serious endeavor?"

"You are," she whispered.

"Does not my fame depend on my reputation as a man that abhors a jess as a writer who revels in the darkness of despair and the greyness of existence?"

"It doth!" she moaned.

"Then listen to this," he faltered.

"These are the words that should have wound up the 'Fourpenny Monthly':—
'As the light flickered out, she bent her queenly head and kissed him in the dark!'"

"Beautiful!" she ejaculated, enraptured.

"Yes, but listen to what the printer has made of it—she bent her queenly head and kissed him on the beak!"

"Oh, Horatio!" she murmured, and swooned.

"The horror of it!" he wildly cried.
"The public will take me for a new humorist!"—"Ally Sloper's Half-Holiday."

Who Owns The Liberty Bell?

Quite a controversy is raging around one of the most precious relics of American history—the "Liberty Bell," that rang out the proclamation of national independence. This bell, as all the world knows, is hung in the belfry of Independence Hall, Philadelphia; but lately it has been taken from its place and exhibited in Boston, Charleston and other cities. Incensed by what is regarded as the undignified exposure of the relic to the dangers of these "junketing trips," three ladies, members of an old Philadelphia family, now make the claim that the bell is their private property. Their announcement, says the Philadelphia "Evening Telegraph," "comes with a sudden shock to the people of Philadelphia." The same paper continues:—

"It is doubtful if the claim which has been put forth could be sustained in a court of law, and certainly the city would resist it to the uttermost, if it should be so seriously advanced as to take the shape of a demand for the surrender of the custody of the bell. That, however, the claimants declare, is not their purpose; all that they desire is that the sacred relic and emblem of our national independence shall not again be exposed to the vicissitudes attending the carting of it around the country for exhibition purposes, even when the cultivation of patriotic sentiment is the underlying motive. If the alleged owners of the bell should succeed in establishing their claim so far as to prevent it from being taken on another councilmanic junket, they would deserve and receive the hearty thanks of the vast majority of Philadelphians.

"The basis of the claim to private ownership of the relic is at least a plausible one. It is declared by the claimants that the councils which bargained with their ancestor for the casting of the Liberty Bell's successor put such a light valuation on the relic that they agreed to let it go to the bell-founder as old metal, in consideration of an abatement of his bill to the amount of $400. The person who thereby became its lawful owner might have treated it as junk by breaking it up and throwing the fragments into the melting-pot; but he was more patriotic than the City Fathers of that day, and permitted the bell to remain in the custody of the city confident that it would in due time be appreciated at its true value.

"From that day to this the claim of private ownership has been in abeyance and City Solicitor Kinsey expresses the opinion that, even if the foundation of the original claim should be recognized, the Bell has become the absolute property of the city of Philadelphia by prescription. Whether or not this view would be upheld by the courts can only be ascertained by the test of litigation. An appeal to the courts may possibly be made, if councils should grant the request of the St. Louis Fair manager to have the Liberty Bell carted across the country to become one of the side attractions of the Louisiana Purchase Exposition next year.

Wasted Moments.

Next to his prayers, the most regular and unflinching duty that old Mr. Snipes performed was the winding-up of his clock.

As he explained to his chums, "That clock is the pride of my life. For thirty-five years, man and boy, have I wound him up every night right upon ten o'clock, and always before eleven. I couldn't sleep without doing it; I'd as soon, or sooner, go without my food than miss doing of it."

It was quite a mania with him, and his good wife, sharing his pride in the timepiece, naturally sided his madnes on the one theme.

One evening they had a new acquaintance to supper, who happened to be a watchmaker.

"Excuse me a minute," said Mr. Snipes, at ten-thirty, "while I wind up the clock."

The jeweler looked at it. "That rather a nice clock," he said.

"I should think it is," cried Mr. Snipes. "It's the pride of my heart. So it is of yours, ain't it, wifey?"

"That it is," said his complacent spouse.

"Man and boy," went on Mr. Snipes, commencing his usual story, "man and boy for thirty-five years have I wound up that clock every night regular between ten and eleven—"

"Every night!" struck in the jeweler.

"Ay, man, every night!" echoed Mr. Snipes.

"Well, of all the born idiots!" returned the other. "Why, how many weeks of your life have you wasted? It's an eight-day clock!"

A word with you, Mr Merchant—"Advertise!"

GOOD SERVICE is composed of two elements—excellence of the work and promptness in the execution. Bad work executed promptly is not good service—good work delivered behind time is not good service; but the two combine to make one of the most necessary, but hardest to obtain and often most expensive, requirements of the twentieth century business man. That we have learned the lesson in theory we have shown. Our customers will testify that we have also learned it in practice.
