

GOOD MAN GONE

J.M. Simpson, While Attempting to Cross River is Drowned

Body Was recovered at Three O'clock This Morning In 15 Feet of Water

A most distressing drowning accident, by which a worthy and popular citizen was cut down in the prime of life, occurred a short distance from the city last Sunday afternoon.

Saturday last J. M. Simpson and R. M. Feeney started on a few days' camping out and hunting trip. They established their camp about five miles below town, near the Great Northern railway on the south side of the river. Shortly after pitching their tent their packhorse broke loose. On Sunday afternoon Mr. Simpson forded the river and went in search of the animal. Before leaving he told his partner that if he could not find him he would go back to town for one. Mr. Simpson found the horse without much difficulty, and went over to Pete DeWilde's ranch and borrowed a bridle and saddle. Mr. DeWilde told him where there was a shallow ford, and he started back for camp. That was the last seen of him alive.

Mr. Feeney remained in camp until yesterday afternoon. As Mr. Simpson had told him that he might return to the city, he felt no apprehension for his safety. But as time dragged on and his partner did not put in an appearance, he began to get uneasy, and after making enquires of a couple of smelter men who happened to be hunting in that neighborhood, he left them in charge of the camp and came to the city and reported the strange disappearance of Mr. Simpson.

A searching party composed of a number of citizens was immediately sent out. At DeWilde's it was learned that Mr. Simpson had borrowed a bridle and saddle there and had started to ford the river. Shortly thereafter the horse had returned to the ranch, riderless and drenched with water, but Mr. DeWilde states that he was too busy to pay much attention to the animal. The river bank was then examined, and at a deep place in the stream the footprints of a horse entering the water were found; and a short distance below, on the same side of the river, it was found that the animal had again emerged. On the opposite side of the river no marks of man or horse could be discovered. The party therefore concluded that Mr. Simpson had attempted to ford the river at this point, and that the horse had got out beyond its depth and had sank under the weight of its rider, who, being a heavy man and unable to swim, had evidently fallen out of the saddle and drowned.

So firm was this conviction that a man was at once dispatched to the city for a team and hooks and tackle with which to drag the river bottom. The team left here shortly after 12 o'clock last night, and after working until about 3 this morning the remains of Mr. Simpson were found in about fifteen feet of water. They were brought to this city, and are now at

F. E. Cooper's undertaking establishment.

A strange phase of the accident is found in the fact that Mrs. Simpson, who attended the Labor Day picnic at Curlew lake yesterday, had a premonition that some calamity had befallen her husband. On alighting from the train last night she asked Mr. Wm. Bonthron, who is an intimate friend of the family, if Joe was there. On being told that he was not, she reiterated her statement that some accident had overtaken him, and immediately became prostrated with grief.

Deceased was a man of the highest integrity and well liked by all who knew him, all of whom will miss him from their midst. He came to this city in 1898 from New Brunswick, where his parents and relatives now reside. Since coming here he has been engaged in the blacksmithing business, having been in partnership until two years ago with Mr. R. Feeney, with whom he always had the pleasantest relations. He was 32 years and five months of age, and leaves a wife and infant daughter in this city to mourn his untimely death. He was a member of the Oddfellows lodge, the Independent Order of Foresters and the Fraternal Order of Eagles, and carried $4000 insurance. He had been foreman of the fire department for a number of years, and up to the time of his death was acting chief in the absence of Mr. Savage. The community mourns an up right and honest citizen, and his family a kind and loving husband and father. The profoundest sympathy is being expressed for his wife, who is prostrated with sorrow at her sudden and unlooked-for bereavement.

The funeral will be held at three o'clock tomorrow, Wednesday, afternoon from Cooper's undertaking establishment under the auspices of Gateway Lodge I. O. O. F. The service will be conducted by Rev. McLeod of Knox Presbyterian church.

The firemen will hold a meeting this afternoon to decide as to what part they are to take in the funeral services.

There was a rumor afloat last Saturday that the Grand Trunk Pacific railway was headed toward Grand Forks. After due investigation it was ascertained that a Grand Trunk boxcar in the Great Northern yards was the cause of the report.

MODERN FARMING

Prof. Shutt Explains How Farming Can be Made Profitable

Deputy Minister Urges Ranchers to Secure a Wider Market

The meeting of the Farmers' Institute in the city hall last Saturday night was the best attended of any ever held in the city, nearly all the prominent ranchers of the valley being present. Martin Burrell presided over the meeting, and introduced the speakers to the audience. J. R. Anderson, provincial deputy minister of agriculture, Victoria, and Frank T. Shutt, chemist of the central experimental farm, Ottawa, were the speakers of the evening.

Mr. Anderson spoke briefly on the work outlined for the district farmers' institutes and the good work that could be accomplished if more meetings were held than attempted at present. He urged the farmers to join the institute, which they could do by addressing the secretary at Nelson and paying a yearly fee of 50 cents, thus receiving free all the publications of the institute. He warned the farmers against depending too much on the local market, but advised them to take advantage of the clause in the Farmers' Institute Act authorizing the organization of farmers' exchanges, thus giving them a wider market and freeing them from the mercy of local dealers. He was of the opinion that too many early varieties of apples were being planted in this valley. He was afraid that this would result in an overproduction of these brands. He congratulated the district upon the appointment of Mr. Burrell as member of the board of Horticulture.

Prof. Shutt's admirable address was couched in simple and very easily understood language, translating the latest scientific conclusions, as applied to the best system of fruit and vegetable production. The speaker carried on his lecture in a most informal conversational way that was greatly appreciated by all who were present. His suggestions were eminently practical. He was of the opinion that he could accomplish more good if he could meet each rancher on his own ground, instead of speaking to them collectively in a hall. The experimental farms had become a sort of bureau of information to the farmers. Of late years he had done more good for British Columbia than any other portion of Canada. People coming from Manitoba and the Northwest territories thought that all that was necessary to be done in fruit raising was to plant the trees and sit on the fence and watch them grow. People living here knew better. A rich soil, such as was found in this valley, was only half the battle. There must also be suitable meteorological conditions. Only from 3 to 5 per cent of the nourishment required to grow fruit and vegetables came from the soil, the balance being extracted from the atmosphere. He explained the composition and proper treatment of soils, giving much useful information as to the life process of plants and trees, showing what nourishment was derived from the soil and what from the air breathed in by the foliage. His discussion of the treatment of alkali soils was followed with keenest interest. His opinion was altogether against the success of this so-called inoculation, and in favor of thorough manuring or the turning into the soil of some of the leguminous crops, especially clover, to increase its productivity and general fertility. A well considered rotation of crops and mixed farming were strongly recommended.

He explained that while he was here to give any useful information in his power, he was in the west more to learn than to teach. He desired to understand conditions out here at first hand so as to be able to grasp matters referred to him in the east from out here. Success of the district here as a fruit growing one, had fairly passed the experimental stage, and had been proved. The government desired to help as much as possible and valuable assistance could be given, but all the problems could not be worked out at once. Temperature and rain fall were two most important factors and the speaker proceeded to show this, illustrating his remark by simple everyday applications, adding that while it was easy to obtain data, it was by no means easy to properly interpret data so obtained. Irrigation was as a rule necessary at times and under existing conditions here, and it would not be safe to go on without it. One thing at least should be looked after and that was making the soil retain moisture by cultivation and by mulching. Commencing with making of soils, clay, sand and vegetable matter, the speaker said there had been a steady improvement due to scientific research in the methods used to supply deficiencies. Many facts had been ascertained but much was yet to conjecture. Many soils contained the ingredients of plant food, but in insoluble state, and so useless for practical purposes. This insoluble plant food was made soluble by science. The speaker explained the advantages to be gained by irrigation, but warned his hearers that excessive irrigation did more harm than good in the long run, washing out and away the rich ingredients. Every effort should be made to conserve the moisture by cultivation. The growing of hay and grain in the orchard was condemned, because it absorbed the moisture. The advantages to be derived from mulching was explained by a series of experiments carried on at Ottawa, and early planting was strongly recommended. Then the professor went at length into the question of the use of fertilizers, explaining in detail of the various kinds.

The address of Prof. Shutt was listened to with the greatest interest and attention.

After the address was concluded a very hearty vote of thanks was passed to Mr. Shutt for his address and half an hour was pleasantly spent in the professor answering questions put to him by persons in the audience.

Messrs. Shutt and Anderson left for the coast yesterday.

Last Saturday was the first day of the open season, and local nimrods were in the field bright and early. One or two of the sportsmen report having had trouble with their crack thoroughbred dogs. They persisted in chasing groundhogs instead of chickens. Dogs will be dogs.

LABOR DAY SPORT

Workingmen Hold a Monster Picnic--Have Fine Time at Curlew Lake

The Prize Winners--Grand Forks Won the Tug-of-War

Yesterday was an ideal day for outdoor life, and the picnic of the workingmen of the Boundary district at Curlew lake was an unqualified success, and Grand Forks and Greenwood unions may well feel proud of their first combined effort. Grand Forks, Greenwood, Boundary Falls, Midway, Danville and Curlew contributed between four and five hundred participants, and Republican sent an equal number. Besides, every rancher within a radius of ten miles was present. The train from this city and Greenwood, composed of five passenger coaches and two boxcars, arrived at the grounds at 10:30 over the Kettle Valley lines.

The music for the day was furnished by the celebrated Citizens' band of Greenwood and the recently organized Grand Forks band, reinforced by the Scotch bagpipes, which were played with charming effect on the tranquil surface of the lake. Considerable surprise was expressed at the class of music rendered by the Grand Forks band, and our boys divided the honors and applause with Greenwood's crack musicians.

The dance pavilion was one of the strongest attractions, the excellent music discoursed keeping it crowded from the arrival of the musicians until the departure of the last train.

The Labor day address was delivered by Rev. Henry Steele, of this city. He took for his subject the social condition of the wage earners. His remarks proved quite effective, and they were liberally punctuated with applause from the interested listeners. He expressed gratification at the fact that the world had advanced far enough in thought to enable him to address a workingmen's without stultification to his religious conviction. There were a lot of people who called themselves socialists who were not true socialists, and others who spurned that term were socialists. To blow the capitalists up with dynamite would not cure the social inequality of the present day. It would act like shaking a crop of apples from a tree. A new crop would appear next season. The evil must be remedied by getting at the very root of the capitalistic system, which could be done by the workingmen obtaining control of the machinery of production.

The following were the prize winners:

Men's foot race, 75 yards--W. Destail, Republic, first; Joe Burby, Grand Forks, second.

Boys' race, under 16, 50 yards--McMillan, Deadwood, first; Mickey O'Connor, Grand Forks, second; J. Summer, Republic, third.

TUESDAY, SEPTEMBER 4, 1906

A special meeting of the city council was held last Saturday afternoon, and the Fourth street bridge by-law was reconsidered and finally passed by an unanimous vote, notwithstanding the fact that there is a difference of opinion even among the legal profession as to whether or not the by-law was approved by the taxpayers.

The Great Northern depot at Danville was broken into last Sunday night by sneak thieves, presumably the ones that have been operating at Midway and other places of late. The burglars had made an entrance by breaking a window in the rear of the building, and inside the depot had broken through the window of the waiting room into the express office. The contents of this office had been rummaged through, but apparently nothing of value had been found by the intruders. At Midway last week a burglary of the Canadian Pacific section house was perpetrated in broad daylight, and this practically under the nose of the police. The roast that these Sherlock Holmes get at hands of a business man of that village in a late issue of the Star is delightful literature.

Throwing shoulder stone—W. Miller, Grand Forks, first; J. McLaughlin, Greenwood, second.

Swimming contest—Joe Gavanagh, Grand Forks, first; Joe Thompson, Boundary Falls, second.

The tug-of-war contest between the Greenwood and Grand Forks teams was the most exciting event of the day, and resulted in an easy victory for the latter.

All the rowboats were in constant commission, and the gasoline launch made hourly trips around the beautiful sheet of water. A number of disciples of Isaac Walton were amply repaid for their labors. All the booths and cafes were conducted by the unions, and there was absolutely no grafting.

Taken all in all, it was a most enjoyable day's outing, one long to be remembered by those who were fortunate enough to participate in the excursion.

CITY NEWS

A new orchestra was organized in the city this week consisting of the following participants: Arthur Walgamott, leader, violin; F. H. Thomas, tuba; Harry Thomas, alto; Neil Thomas, clarinet. Mr. Walsmott, who arrived from Butte, Mont., last week, is a violinist of rare talent, and under his leadership an excellent musical organization can be expected.

Miss Rhodes, formerly matron of the Cottage hospital, returned last Saturday from the coast, where she has been spending the past six weeks for the benefit of her health.

Frank Macgowan, local agent of the Dominion Express company, who left for Vancouver about three weeks ago for the benefit of his health, returned to the city last Saturday, having been greatly benefited by his vacation.

A. C. Van Hess, mining engineer of Greenwood, was in town today, leaving in the evening with the new diamond drill that is to be used on the Hesperus property. It is expected to sink the drill to a depth of a thousand feet at present, but as to the extent of development work on this property nothing definite has as yet been given out.

T. H. Rea, manager of the Betts & Hesperus, has signed a contract with the Diamond Drill Contracting Co., of Spokane, for another thousand feet of diamond drill work.

Emil Larsen will give a social hop at his Province hotel parlors on next Tuesday night. Good music and a good time assured.

Geo. Binn, of Curlew, who exhibited symptoms of suffering from an attack of typhoid fever, was brought to the Grand Forks hospital last night.

J. McMillan, machinist at the Granby smelter, returned yesterday from a visit to Greenwood and vicinity.

Carl Wolfram returned last night from a hui ing trip near Phoenix.

Our job department is superior to any other in the Boundary country. We have both the material and the experience to turn out high class work.

When

You consider that a poorly printed job costs just as much as one that presents a neat and tasty appearance, do you not think that your business demands the latter kind?

Good Printing—the kind we do—is in itself an advertisement, and a trial order will convince you that our stock and workmanship are of the best. Let us estimate on your order. We guarantee satisfaction.
