NEWS OF THE CITY

Ranchers South of River Inconvenienced by Shortage of Bridges

The ranchers on the south side of the river complain of the inconvenience caused them by the removal of the old Cooper bridge before the new one was finished. Poor connections appear to have been made in this matter. Either the city government was too swift or the provincial government is too slow. The two governments should have compared dates.

New Logging Machine

What is expected to revolutionize the field work of the lumbering industry is a machine invented by two Portland men, which, it is declared, will reduce the cost of logging from 50 to 75 per cent, in addition to saving an average of eight feet to the tree that is wasted under the present methods.

An equally important function of the device is the removal of stumps in cutting over lands, and it is the practical solution of the perplexing land-clearing question.

The machine is a simple piece of mechanism, consisting of a gasoline motor similar to a motorcycle engine, to which is attached a drill operated at 6000 revolutions a minute. By moving the drill back and forth it cuts its way through a tree with such rapidity that it will fall a tree eight feet in diameter at the butt within five minutes.

According to the inventors the machine will fall and cut into logs a tree at a cost of 25 cents for each 1000 feet. By the present method of falling, it costs from 65c to $1 to do the work. Two men operating the machine can cut 400,000 feet of logs daily, while under the present system two men are able to cut only 30,000 feet daily, declare the inventors. The device can be so placed as to cut a tree at any angle.

By digging the earth from around a tree or stump, the machine can be operated at an angle to make the cut from one to two feet underground. With the stump thus removed the hole is covered up and the ground is ready for the plow.

THE BEST POLICY

Sir Wilfrid Laurier Stand on the Naval Question is Popular in Ontario

Since public attention was focussed on the naval issue and its underlying principles by the dramatic dead lock in parliament, says an Ottawa dispatch, the response to the Liberal demand for an appeal to the country has exceeded the highest hopes of those engaged in the struggle. Telegrams by the hundreds have ponred from all parts of Canada to the Liberal leaders and to their followers, enthusiastically endorsing the stand taken, and assuring them that the country is with them. Last Friday Sir Wilfrid Laurier himself received over two hundred telegrams of this character, and it is significant that the majority came from Ontario, where the Liberal defeat in September of 1911 was most severe. Several of these came from representatives of the farming and laboring interests. The old chief has been suprised at the signs of reaction, especially in the premier province, and the eagerness manifested there for a fight. The only backdown now must come from the Conservative side, and it is frankly admitted by many of the ministerial supporters that the party leaders made a big mistake in getting into the present predicament. They are anxiously looking round for some way out that will prevent going to the country and getting the verdict of the people at this juncture. The boasts of three months ago are heard no longer.

Ore Shipments

The ore shipments and smelter treatments of the Boundary mines and smelters for the past week were: Granby mine, 23,164 tons; Mother Lode, 7613; Rawhike, 5221; Nopoleon 1105; Queen Victoria, 559. Smelter Treatments—Granby, 24,590 tons; Mother Lode, 15,947.

Lists Close April 7

From March 3 to April 7 is the time set apart under the act during which names may be put on he new lists. After April 7 no names may be added. Liberals are reminded of the date and are urged to take the necessary action without delay, so that none of their names will be left off through neglect.

A NOTABLE COIN

This Piece of Gold Has An Interesting Record

Albert Almon, the well-known collector of Louisburg relics and other articles of antiquarian interest, showed The Montreal Gazette a French gold coin of 1730, worth probably between $10 and $15 for the gold in it, aside from its historical interest, which formed part of the treasure in a ship which was lost shortly after that date at Point Micheau, Richmond County. The coin is practically as good as new and on one side bears an effigy of the French King, Louis XV., with a small lion rampant below, with the inscription: Lud. XV. D.G. Fr. et Nav. Rex. On the reverse there are the fleur de lis and shield, arms of France and Navaree, surmounted by a crown, and surrounded by the inscription: Chrs. Regn. Vinc. Imper. with the date 1730. The initial T below the heraldic device would indicate that the coin was minted at Toulon.

The history of this coin is an interesting one. About the year of the first seige of Louisburg, a French gun boat left France with $7,500,fi000 of gold coin to pay the troops and all other expenses which were standing for some time in Louisburg. On nearing the Cape Breton coast a fierce storm arose and drove the little ship off her course towards Point Micheau (which name is a corruption of Poin Micheau, after this ship, which was named St. Michael). The ship stranded on a reef at Point Micheau known as Gros Bos (big rock). All the crew were lost. The gold was in oak kegs bound with copper or brass hoops.

That the story of the loss of this treasure ship was true was shown in the year 1900, when a big storm swept over this shore and a piece of oak keel 40 feet long, with copper bolts, came ashore. Further proof was given by the finding of many gold coins on the western beach, one man finding six coins. This created much interest in the Point Micheau gold, so that hundreds went there. The beach was plowed and dragged, but no more gold was got at the time.

The piece owned by Mr. Almon was found last June and owned by Mr. Taylor. It was obtained through Wm. M. Murphy of Point Micheau. The coins were all of gold, dated 1725 to 1780. Mr. Almon states that in his French histories mention has been made of ships leaving France with gold for Louisburg, and he thinks that through further study the story of this ship could be secured in full detail in some of the histories or from the French navy records.

Exhausted Nerves Sleepless Nights

Continually Grew Worse Until Dr. Chase's Nerve Food Restored Vigor and Strength.

Mrs. Campbell.

What misery to lie awake nights and think of all sorts of things without being able to get the rest and sleep which is necessary to restore the nervous energy wasted in the tasks of the day.

This symptom of sleeplessness is one of the surest indications of an exhausted nervous system. You must have sleep or a breakdown is certain. Dr. Chase's Nerve Food feeds the feeble, wasted nerves back to health and strength. In a few days you obtain the natural, restful sleep which helps so materially in restoring vitality to the nerves and strength to the whole body.

Mrs. Sarah Campbell, 108 Alma street, St. Thomas, Ont., writes: "For months I was so bothered with nervousness that I could not sleep nights. There were other symptoms of exhausted nerves, but none caused so much misery, and I found myself continually getting worse.

"I began using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and it was not long before I noticed great improvement in my health. It built up the nervous system wonderfully, strengthened the nerves and enabled me to rest and sleep well."

A CIVIC GALLERY

Montreal Now Possesses a Handsome Building for its Pictures

A new era in matters artistic in Montreal has been inaugurated by the opening of the Art Gallery just built by the Art Association of that city, aided by generous contributions from a few public-minded citizens. Not only will it mean a big step in advance by those who have striven so hard, and with so much success, to make Montreal an art centre, but it will make a substantial addition to the attractions of the city for residents and visitors alike.

Up till now Montreal has had no public picture gallery. The city is peculiarly rich in artistic treasures, but most of them are either in private collections or in the semi-private collection of the Art Association.

The Art Association has hitherto existed exclusively for its members. It has had a certain social prestige that has always been carefully maintained, notwithstanding that its rules and its fees have placed but little restriction on the qualifications for membership. From time to time the question of extending its usefulness by giving the general public free access to its galleries has been discussed, but it has always been felt that this would destroy the essential character of the institution, for which its leading members have worked hard and made many sacrifices.

A year or two ago there came the bequest of the famous Learmont collection of pictures by modern and ancient masters—a collection of almost priceless value. One condition attached to the bequest was that the galleries in which the pictures were displayed should be open free to the public for two days in every week.

The bequest thus focused the question of public privileges into a crisis in the history of the association—a crisis that was accentuated by the fact that there was no room in the old building in which to hang the collection.

The net result was a quickening of interest that ultimately determined the council of the association to sell the old Art Gallery—which being in the centre of the shopping district had greatly enhanced its value—and to erect a new building commensurate in size and dignity with the city of Montreal. It was further decided that this new Art Gallery should be open to the public free for two days in every week. Thus, when, on December 9, the building was opened by H. R. H. the Duke of Connaught, a new and valuable centre for the elevation of the public taste will be placed freely at the disposal of the citizens, while at the same time an opportunity will be given them of seeing many of the treasures in private collections, for the most comprehensive loan exhibition ever held in Canada is being arranged for the occasion.

The building is on Sherbrooke street in the centre of the most fashionable residential district, and quite close to the magnificent Ritz-Carlton Hotel, now nearly finished. It is of marble throughout, much of the interior fittings being of marble quarried and sculptured in Italy. The huge columns surmounting the steps at the entrance are solid monoliths which the architect claim are the largest on the American continent. The design inside and out, is on simple classic lines harmoniously blending into an impressive and dignified whole. Inside a pleasant relief to the white marble is afforded by balustrading of dull bronze and capitals and bases for the columns of the same metal.

Perhaps one reason why the fool killer is out of a job is because he soldiers on it.

Baby's Own Tablets are the one safe medicine to make baby well and keep him well. They are guaranteed by a government analyst to be free from all injurious drugs and are absolutely safe to give even to the newborn babe. I know of nothing to equal them as a children's medicine." The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

THRESHED HER 15 Long Years

"For over fifteen years," writes a patient, hopeful little Ills. woman, "while a coffee drinker, I suffered from Spinal Irritation and Nervous trouble. I was treated by good physicians, but did not get much relief.

"I never suspected that coffee might be aggravating my condition. (Tea is just as injurious, because it contains caffeine, the same drug found in coffee). I was down-hearted and discouraged, but prayed daily that I might find something to help me.

"Several years ago, while at a friend's house, I drank a cup of Postum and thought I had never tasted anything more delicious.

"From that time on I used Postum instead of coffee and soon began to improve in health, so that now I can walk half a dozen blocks or more with ease, and do many things that I never thought I would be able to do again in this world.

"My appetite is good, I sleep well and find life is worth living, indeed. A lady of my acquaintance said she did not like Postum, it was so weak and tasteless.

"I explained to her the difference when it is made right—boiled according to directions. She was glad to know this because coffee did not agree with her. Now her folks say they expect to use Postum the rest of their lives." Name given upon request. Read the little book, "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs. "There's a reason."

Postum now comes in concentrated powder form, called Instant Postum. It is prepared by stirring a level teaspoonful in a cup of hot water, adding sugar to taste, and enough cream to bring the color to golden brown.

Instant Postum is convenient; there's no waste; and the flavor is always uniform. Sold by grocers—45 to 50-cup tin 30cts., 90 to 100-cup tin 50cts.

THE FARMER AND HIS GRAIN

The only sure and satisfactory way in which the Western Farmer can secure the highest possible market value for his wheat, oats, barley and flax is by shipping it by the carload to Fort William or Port Arthur, or to Duluth if cars cannot be got for the other terminals (loading it if possible direct into the car over the loading platform so as to save elevator charges and dockage) and employing a strictly commission firm to handle and dispose of it.

We continue to act as the Farmers' Agents solely on a commission basis. We are not trackbuyers and we never buy the Farmers' grain on our own account, but look after and dispose of the grain entrusted to us, as the agents of those who employ us, and it is our desire and endeavor to give everyone the very best service possible. We make liberal advances against car shipping bills, and will also carry the grain for a time under advances at a moderate commercial rate of interest, if considered advisable. We invite all Farmers to write to us for shipping instructions and market information, etc.

He Lacked the Agility

When Louis Cyr, the famous strong man toured the fall fairs around Ontario back in the Nineties, his appearance in Bruce County aroused probably greater interest than anywhere else. On one occasion when he was performing at the Kincardine Fair, two Tiverton Scots watched his exhibition with the canny reserve characteristic of the race. After the big feat—that of lifting sixteen or seventeen husky countrymen crowded on a platform and weighing in the neighborhood of two tons or so, the larger of the two Scotsmen observed to his companion: Yon's a strong man, Sandy." The other one, who was of the wizened, dried-up variety of transplanted Highlander, weighing about one hundred and twenty pounds, nodded his head: Yon's strong a' right, he said, but he nefer had the agility that I had.

Peoria, Ill.—"I wish to let every one know what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me. For two years I suffered. "Then one of my friends recommended Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and after taking it for two months I was a well woman."—Mrs. JOSEPH A. LYNCH, Jessup, Pa.

Women who suffer from female ills should try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, one of the most successful remedies the world has ever known, before submitting to a surgical operation.

TURKS THREATEN TO SUE POSTUM CO.

The Turkish consulate in this city is indignant. Whether it is because the Turkish people have been called the "most nervous people in the world," or because the statement has been made that they are "also the greatest coffee drinkers in the world," is not clear, because the Turkish consul will say nothing further than the Turkish people have been libelled, or nearly so.

The whole trouble came about because of an advertisement of the Postum people in which the statements already mentioned were printed, and it was added:

"See the point?" "We are not quite sure we could help them, but Instant Postum helps lots of people. "There's a reason."

The Turkish consul's office called several newspaper offices on the 'phone, and said the advertisement was "Silly," ridiculous, and threatened to bring suit in the courts.

At the office of the consul, 55 Liberty street, a man connected with the office, and who acted for the consul, said:

"We did telephone about the ad, and have the matter under consideration, but no action has been decided upon as yet. A statement may be issued in a few days."

"Will there be any court action?" he was asked?

"There may be. We haven't quite decided. We can give you no further information just now."—New York Globe and Commercial Advertiser.

WHY DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS CURED MME. DUFAULT'S ILLS

She Had Diabetes, Sciatica, Backache and Headache but Found Speedy Relief in the Great Canadian Kidney Remedy.

St. Boniface. (Special).—After suffering for three years from a complication of diseases, Madame Oct. Dufault, of 84 Victoria-street, this city, is once more in perfect health and Dodd's Kidney Pills are credited with another splendid cure. Speaking of her cure, Madame Dufault says:

'Yes, I am again a well woman, and I thank Dodd's Kidney Pills for it. I suffered for three years and I may say I had pains all over my body. I had sciatica, neuralgia and diabetes. My back ached, and I had pains in my head. I was nervous and tired all the time; there were dark circles around my eyes which were also puffed and swollen, and heart fluttering added to my troubles.

"But when I started to use Dodd's Kidney Pills I soon began to get better. I took thirteen boxes in all, and I think they are a grand medicine."

Every one of Madame Dufault's ailments is a direct result of diseased kidneys. That's why Dodd's Kidney Pills so quickly cured them all.

The witness on the stand was being subjected to cross-examination. In answering the question he nodded. Whereupon the court stenographer who could not see the witness, demanded: Answer that question.

The witness replied:

I did answer it; I nodded my head.

Well, I heard it rattle, but could not tell whether it was up and down or from side to side, answered the stenographer.

They Cleanse While They Cure.—The vegetable compounds of which Parmelee's Vegetable Pills are composed, mainly dandelion and mandrake, clear the stomach and intestines of deleterious matter and restore the deranged organs to healthful action. Hence they are the best remedy for indigestion available to-day. A trial of them will establish the truth of this assertion and do more to convince the ailing than anything that can be written of these pills.

FRIDAY, MARCH 21, 1913

Saturday, April 5, will be "Apple day" in the state of Washington. On that day the people will pay homage to the "king of fruits" by general use. For several days preceding many newspapers will publish recipes for preparing the apple in various inviting ways. Through the activities of commercial clubs throughout the state a number of railroads will feature the apple on their dining car menues on the day named. School children and grown-ups, too, will prepare essays lauding the fruit, and every dining-room in the state will be urged to give the apple prominence. The commercial club of North Yakima, in the center of one of the large fruit districts of the state, is behind the apple day movement, and has enlisted the active co-operation of the Spokane chamber of commerce and of commercial bodies throughout the state. By this means it is hoped to increase the home demand for Washington apples.

"Not only one crown minister, but three of the members of Hon. Mr. Borden's cabinet will have to face direct charges in connection with the last Hochelaga bye-election." Such was the open statement made in Montreal last Saturday by Tancrede Marcil, one of the opposition leaders in the fight which resulted in the re-election of Hon. Louis Coderre last November. It has been rumored for some time past that the opposition had in its hands sworn affidavits which would cause a tremendous political scandal. Tancrede Marcil, who was defeated in Bagot in the last general election, is one of the first recruits in the Nationalists ranks. Formerly he was a journalist, widely known in Quebec.

An Angry Tree

In Idaho there exists a species of the acacia tree that a writer in Harper's Weekly says is entitled to be classed as one of the wonders of plant life. The tree attains a height of about eight feet. When full grown it closes its leaves together in coils each day at sunset. When the tree has thus settled itself for its night's sleep, it will flutter violently if touched, and if you shake the branches it will emit a nauseating odor strong enough to bring on a headache.

In Idaho it is called the "angry tree," and it is said that it was discovered by some men who were making a camp for the night, and placed one end of a canvas covering over one of its sensitive branches, to use it as a support. Immediately the tree began to jerk its branches sharply. The motion continued with increased "nervousness," until at last there came a sickening odor that drove the tired men to a more hospitable camping place.

The Dog in the News

Every attentive reader of the newspapers must have noticed the almost daily appearance of the dog in the news. It has been said that three subjects are of perennial interest to newspaper readers—love, women and money. The dog is a close fourth. He touches human life at more points and more nearly than any other animal. So the frequent accounts of his intelligence, his bravery, his devotion in saving people from drowning, from fire and from burglars; his loyalty to his master, his death from grief and even his deliberate suicide, are read with avidity by all who really know dogs.

Not the exceptional dog, like the one recently exhibited at various universities, that dog has a vocabulary of over 300 words and that does all manner of impromptu stunts at the request of strangers, but just the common, ordinary dog, is full of human nature. He has a sense of humor and a sense of shame. Every dog lover knows that there is no such thing as a bad or vicious dog that has not been made so either by abuse or neglect.

Death of Pauline Johnson

The death of Miss E Pauline Johnson has removed another talented Canadian woman. She was the daughter of a chief of the Mohawks, the most enlightened branch of the Six Nation Indians, and was endowed with the natural dignity and eloquence which have been the distinguishing characteristics of that proud and capable tribe. From her mother, an Englishwoman, she inherited that profound regard for British traditions and institutions which was visible in her lectures and many of her literary works. She was instinctively a child of the Muse, at a very early age gave evidence of her gift, and as she grew older her charming verse found a ready acceptance in the prominent publications of two continents. The pity of it is that on her the heavy hand of the destroyer should be laid just as she reached the full meridian of her powers.

Moonset

BY E. PAULINE JOHNSON.

Idles the night wind through the dreaming firs,
That waking murmur low,
As some lost melody returning stirs
The love of long ago;
And through the far, cool distance, zephyr fanned,
The moon is setting into shadow-land.

The troubled night-bird, calling plaintively,
Wanders on restless wing;
The cedars, chanting vespers to the sea,
Awaits its answering,
That comes in wash of waves along the strand,
The while the moon slips into shadow-land.

O! soft, responsive voices of the night,
I join your minstrelsy,
And call across the fading silver light
As something calls to me;
I may not all your meaning understand,
But I have touched your soul in shadow land.

Strange that the prophets of evil should be such uniformly cheerful individuals.

Currying favor with a money lender is an easy job compared to getting on the right side of a pert sister-in-law.

Something That You Never Seen Nor Heard Of

A PARISIAN NOVELTY—In Europe it is used this year as a little Easter present, or rather a mark of courtesy to friends and relatives. Its value as a token lies more in the novel idea than in the price of the article It is arranged so that it can be sent, just like a postcard, for a cent or two, to any place in Canada or the United States The endearing idea about it is the embedded LUMINOUS CROSS, which will shine all night long (or in any dark room) in a GLORIOUS, MYSTIC BLUE LIGHT, after you have had it exposed to daylight for a few minutes. The price is so low that anyone is enabled to be convinced of its real nature It is indeed an article which is held in high esteem by any Christian family or person. The shining cross is made of a stone which is found only near Jerusalem and of which already the Bible speaks as the LUMINOUS STONE in picturing Solomon's Temple.

PRICES ARE—15 cents each, 2 for 25c, 5 for 50c, and 12 for $1.

Average price of eggs, 35c per dozen Pen temperatures: Highest, 62°; lowest, 24°; mean, 42.6°. Rainfell on six days only. Snow on two days. Frost was registered on seventeen days, and sunshine was absent on five days.

Taking into consideration the variety of breeds and strains competing, the egg production for the month has been very satisfactory. The yield averages a little better than 50 per cent for the whole forty pens.

The outstanding feature of the month has been the performance of pen 32 (Buff Orpingtons). It is true that several records have been broken this month, but their yield of 140 eggs in 28 days certianly deserves special mention. Appended is the daily record for the month: 5, 4, 5, 5, 6, 5, 6, 5, 6, 2, 5, 5, 6, 6, 3, 4, 6, 6, 4, 6, 6, 5, 5, 4, 6, 5, 3, 5, total 140 eggs. In addition to this, it might be mentioned that only two other pens in Class 11 are laying larger eggs than pen 32. The eggs average 26¼ ozs. to the dozen from this pen. In the first contest the highest monthly yield in either class was 118 eggs for 31 days.

In Class I, pen 15 has ousted pen 17 from the leadership by one egg. Pen 4, with a splendid yield of 123 eggs, jumps up two places. Pen 8 commenced laying on the 20th.

The leading six pens in Class I are: 15, 17, 16, 4, 10 and 14.

The following pens in Class I were the heaviest producers for the past month: Pens 4 (123 eggs), 15 (114), 16 (106), 18 and 20 (102 each), 3 (101), and 17 (100).

In Class II, as mentioned above, pen 32 especially distinguished itself, and so moves up from fifth position to first. Pen 30 moves up from sevenrh to second place, having a record of 122 eggs for February. Pen 25 moves up one place. The leading six pens are as follows: Pens 32, 39, 22, 39, 25 and 35.

The following pens were the heaviest producers: Pens 32 (107 eggs), 39 (122), 37 (113), 25 (107), and pen 28 (102. The last mentioned pen, White Cornish Game, soon got into their stride, as the first egg was laid on February 1.

At the first experimental weighing of eggs it was found that all pens were producings eggs well above the minimum weight proscribed—22 ozs. per dozen. Pen 37 heads the list with 27¾ ozs per dozen.

The following pens in Class I lay the heaviest eggs: 7, 9 and 17 (26 ozs.), 2 and 3 25½ ozs.), 1 and 14 (25 ozs.). Class II—37 (27¾ ozs) 39 (26½ ozs), 21 and 32 (26¼ ozs.) 22, 26, 30 and 34 (26 ozs.), 40 (25¾ ozs.), 27 and 29 (25½ ozs.), 39 (25¼ ozs).

Heaviest day's production, 140 eggs.

WHAT A REAL TONIC WILL DO
Strikes at the Root of Disease and Gives New Health.
If you look in your dictionary you will find the word "tonic" defined as 'a medicine that increases the strength and vigor of the system." That tells why Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are a real tonic. Thousands of men and women are ailing to-day, not sick in bed, but without strength and ambition, utterly tired out after a day's work. No one organ seems to be at fault, yet the whole system is lacking in health. They do not sleep well and are always tired and nervous, many have headaches, backaches and stomach trouble. All these people need the tonic help of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. The beneficial influence of this medicine reaches the whole system. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills do more than relieve the symptoms, they actually remove the cause of the trouble. The case of Mrs. J. H. Sharpe, London, Ont., is one in proof of the above statements. Mrs. Sharpe says:—"I was so run down and weak that life was a burden. The least exertion would exhaust me so greatly that I could hardly breathe. If going up stairs, I would have to rest several minutes when I reached the top. My heart would palpitate until I felt as if it would choke me. I was extremely nervous, in fact a complete wreck, and would sometimes have to remain in bed for a couple of days or more at a time. I found no help from medicine until I began using Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and my experience with them was that they made a complete cure. I gained in weight and my friends tell me I look younger than I did ten years ago—I know I certainly feel younger. I feel sure that what Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have done for me they will do to other women if given a fair chance."
If you are at all unwell do not fail to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and you will find new health and strength. Sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 50 cents, a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

A Singular Call

It Came From One Who Had Seemed Ungrateful

By F. TOWNSEND SMITH

I was starting for the office of the Henderson Wrecking company, by whom I was employed as a diver, when a boy stepped up to me and handed me a telegram:

Alec is caught in the Clapham reservoir. Come quickly and get him out.

MABEL.

I ran for the station to take a train for Clapham and found one made up to start in twenty minutes. But it seemed an hour before I was rolling out of the station on a fifty minute trip. While I am making it I will tell how I came to receive the telegram.

I received a common school education. One day in the school yard I saw one of the boys take a doll from a little girl, and, holding it by its legs, he smashed its china head against the hard, sandy ground. I walked up to the boy and without saying a word slapped his face. Of course there was a fight, at which I got the credit of having thrashed my antagonist. But this was rather because the boy I fought was in the habit of doing mean things for no cause whatever rather than for any advantage I gained over him.

The little girl whom I had befriended surprised me after the fight by making a face at me. Children are but ungrown men and women, and I suppose my resenting her ill treatment was like interfering in family feuds, for everybody knows that protection against tyranny in the case of those who are fond of each other is liable to result disastrously to the protector. Refraining from showing any feeling at the girl's ingratitude, I walked off with my hands in my pockets, whistling a tune to make it appear that it was a matter of no consequence.

During the rest of my school days I had the mortification to experience the ill will of both this boy and girl, both of whom seemed to have taken a dislike to me. It was a period when we were passing out of childhood into youth, and for the several years remaining before we finished school something about the girl—I knew not what—was growing upon me. Her treatment of me pained me—indeed, I would have given my best tennis racket for a smile from her. When our last term at school was finished I found myself in love with her. True, I was but sixteen years old and she fifteen, but my experience in the matter has proved that the younger the person the more violent the love.

It was very distressing for me to see a girl whom I had befriended and whom I loved not only showing repulsion for me, but lavishing her admiration upon the boy whose malicious treatment of her I had punished. But in matters of the heart one never knows what a woman will do, and a man is not much more to be depended upon. Be this as it may, I saw my love grow to womanhood lavishing her affection on the person who had out of pure devilry smashed her doll. I think that as a child her turning against me was natural. As a woman it may have been encouraged by my rival.

Fate threw the three of us together not only as children, but after we had become men and women. The girl I secretly worshiped married my rival, and I attended their wedding, though rather as her guest than his, for my intimacy was always rather with her family than his. There was a coldness between me and him that never wore off. Whether his betrothed and afterward his wife suspected my feelings for her I did not know. But I did know that after her marriage she treated me in a much more friendly manner than before.

About the time we finished school and were ready to go to work a ship was sunk in the harbor on which we lived, and divers were sent down to put the chains under whereby to raise her. There can be nothing more interesting to a boy than a man dressed in a diving suit going under water, while those above pump air down to him. We boys were constantly on hand watching the process, and the consequence of it all was that several of us determined to adopt diving as a trade.

This brings me to my telegram. It was from Mabel Granger, the wife of Alec Granger, the two in whose childish companionship I had interfered many years before to my discomfiture. Alec and I had been divers ever since we left school, and now he, having been caught in a dangerous position, his wife had called on me to save him. During my journey to Clapham I could not drive from my mind that scene in the school, Mabel standing with her headless doll hugged to her bosom, making a face at me as I moved away, while Alec was brushing the dirt on his clothes with his hands.

Furthermore, there was every reason to believe that what I was called upon to do I would do at the risk of my life. If it were an easy matter to rescue Alec Granger I would not have been summoned. I saw in Mabel's telegram a cry for help in her distress. I can give no idea of my feelings at such a call. Let any one reading my story put himself in my place and try to conceive how he would feel. I can only say that among the confusion within me there was one predominant sentiment. I was eager to give comfort to the woman I still loved by restoring her husband to her.

When I reached Clapham I found a man waiting for me at the station with a carriage, in which we drove at a gallop to the reservoir. On the way he told me that Granger had been sent down to examine the outflow of water from beneath and while doing so had got caught in the powerful suction at the orifice through which the flood was escaping. Air was being pumped to him, but it had not been possible to draw him up. Two different men had been sent down to fix about him a rope strong enough to bear his weight and overcome the suction, but neither of them had dared go near him for fear of being sucked into the same position as he. It was upon this information that I realized fully that Mabel had called upon me to probably sacrifice my life in attempting to save that of her husband.

On reaching the scene of the trouble the group there all turned toward me. Mabel was present, and when my eyes met hers I was at a loss to understand the expression there was in them. I had expected to see a pathetic appeal. Whether she realized that such an appeal would be asking me to risk my own life, perhaps give it, for her husband, I did not know, nor do I know now. She simply looked at me. Perhaps she considered her telegram an appeal which should not be repeated.

I put on a diver's outfit, and a two inch cable was looped under my arms. I was lowered some distance from the hole through which the water was flowing and walked toward it till I began to slightly feel the suction. I stopped and saw Granger lying partly across the hole. After a few moments' thought I signaled to be brought to the surface. On reaching it I called for another two inch rope—besides the one under my arms—looped at the end. I would have preferred wire rope, but it was not at hand.

"What are you going to do?" I was asked.

"There's no way to save him but to go into the suction myself, place the rope under his arm and signal you to draw us both up."

"You'll both perish," was the response.

Mabel was looking at me, and my eyes met hers. We understood each other, though not a word was spoken. But what passed between us? Ah, that only we and the Lord know! Hanging the loop of the duplicate rope on my shoulder, I went down again. I had advanced but a few inches nearer to Granger than before when I was caught in the suction, and it seemed that a mountain was on me. I was pulled down on to him, and so strong was the current that I could not move the rope from my shoulder to put it around him. The only motion I could make was a lateral one with the current. Placing my hands and knees against him, I managed to move my body so that my shoulder, on which the rope rested, was near the top of Granger's head. I moved so that it slipped off, and by a great effort I guided it so that it went down over his head. He was lying on his back, and it would go no farther, but I managed to insert my knee between him and the masonry beneath him, and this enabled me to slip the rope down nearly to his waist. By a succession of efforts I got it below both hands, so that when moved back again toward his armpits it left the arms free.

I had now done all I could do. The question remained would the rope stand the strain of hoisting him—would he live till this question was decided? As to myself, only the first of these questions pertained. I was in my full strength. Granger just before my second descent had made a feeble pull on the cord.

I gave the signal and waited for the final act in the play for two lives. I felt a strain on the rope under my arms which soon grew to be terrific. I signaled on Granger's cord. The strain on me ceased, and the rope under him tightened. For a time I saw no movement in him; then I could discern one similar to the minute hand of a clock. He was slowly sliding away from over the hole. If he were removed and I remained I would be sucked into his position.

A machine on the capstan principle had been provided which would enable those above to pull us both up if the ropes would stand the strain. I pulled my own rope and Granger's at the same time. There was a halt, and in a few minutes the strain on both of us recommenced. The ropes slanted, and we very slowly began to move horizontally. I knew from the strain, which was intensely painful, that only the stoutest rope could stand it. We moved so slowly that I would not have known we moved at all had I not noted our positions in relation to the masonry. Suddenly the upper part of our bodies passed beyond the suction column of water, and the strain was perceptibly lessened. Then it diminished rapidly, and we began to rise.

There was no shout when we reached the surface, for it was not known whether we were alive or dead. Those present soon knew that I lived, for I motioned them to attend to Granger. When his helmet was unscrewed his wife removed it. Her head dropped on his breast, and I knew that he was dead.

No one could do enough for me to show appreciation of the risk I had taken to save a fellow man. When Mabel and I parted she conveyed her thanks by a pressure of the hand without looking at me. I heard nothing from her and did not go to see her for a year. The day after the anniversary of her being made a widow I called upon her. What passed between us I would not think of transcribing here, but within a few months she gave me my reward for my effort—herself.

"Bells of Shandon."

In one of the dormitories of the Irish college at Rome there is a space on the wall left unpainted and unpainted, whatever repairs the rest of the room may undergo, for there, carelessly scrawled, is the first rought draft of Father Prout's "Bells of Shandon."

WOULD COME BACK.

Finally Bourchier and His Friends Destroyed the Suit.

The English drama owes much to Mr. Arthur Bourchier, who has been one of the most influential actor-managers for a number of years. He has portrayed all manner of roles, from Shakespeare to very modern comedy, and his career has been as lengthy as it has been successful.

From his earliest years Arthur Bourchier was stricken with stage fever. When a very small boy he was sent to a private school kept by a Dr. Hawtrey, the uncle of Mr. Charles Hawtrey. He spent the greater portion of his pocket-money on toy theatres, in which he produced fearful melodramas. Even at the age of twelve he was noted throughout his native place of Newbury for the zeal with which he produced plays and charades during his holidays, and all the boys in the neighborhood were pressed into service for these dramatic triumphs.

But when young Bourchier began to show signs of whiskers, his father, Captain Bourchier, informed him that his career was to be the army. Eventually a compromise was made by the father saying: "Go to Oxford—take your degree—then you shall go on the stage."

At Oxford young Bourchier maintained his interest for things theatrical. At that time the only theatre in Oxford was a wretched place, visited by fifth-rate companies. One night a melodrama was produced, and in the first act a character entered sporting a suit that had once been black-and-white, but was now green with age. The suit was greeted with weird noises, and when at the end of the act its wearer announced his intention of going to Africa for ten years the cheering was tremendous. When the second act commenced the ten long years were supposed to have elapsed, but, nevertheless, the wanderer returned in the same moth-eaten suit in which he had left the old home a decade ago. This was too much for the audience. Some rowdy Christchurch men jumped on to the stage, chased the wearer of the suit to the wings, thence to the stage-door, and out into the street. Finally they caught him, and tore the offending suit into as many pieces as decency would permit, so that there might not be any chance of its appearing again. This episode came to the knowledge of authorities, and the offenders, amongst whom was Arthur Bourchier, received a severe wigging. The final upshot of this adventure was that Mr. Bouchier received permission from the vice-chancellor to found the University Dramatic Society, and build a theatre at Oxford.

Mr. Bouchier made his first professional appearance at Wolverhampton twenty-three years ago in 'As You Like It." Five years later he married Miss Violet Vanbrugh, who has been associated with him in all his big successes.

Elephants and Railways.

More than one railway train in Siam has of late had encounters with elephants. In two cases the animals were killed, but in one the train was derailed and several cars were telescoped. Oriental cars have no "cowcatchers," for old world engineers generally smile at cowcatchers as devices suitable only for what they deem to be American conditions of traffic. It is now observed, however, that the American device might be very serviceable in the case of stray elephants. Cowcatchers have already been introduced on the large locomotives of the line between Damascus and Mecca in anticipation of possible collisions with camels.—

There is nothing more distressing
Than the grouch that will not down.
There is nothing more depressing
Than the unrelenting frown.
Far better is the greeting

Than the indignation meeting
That a man holds by himself.

BRIGHTENS MAN'S HABIT.

Tailor Anticipates Pendulous Swing To Brilliant Hues.

A movement has been initiated which has for its object the brightening of the clothes which men wear. From the tailors' point of view this is a dull age. Men wear only sombre colors, a reflection of the grey things of life, with none of its beauties.

The women, say the tailors, tread the right path. Their dress to-day is as beautiful as ever it was, and just as expensive. But the men, say the tailors, are depressing, and in no way worthy their title of the "lords of creation." So a revolution is coming. In the van of this movement is Mr. H. Dennis Bradley, of the West-end tailoring house of Pope and Bradley. He has every hope of seeing a Merry England in which men will not be ashamed to wear colors, and when the black or dark coat will be neglected to strictly gloomy functions.

"The only way for us to begin," said Mr. Bradley, "is by encouraging a taste for brighter colors. It is no good talking of changing the form until brighter ideas are accepted; once men are accustomed to seeing colors on their fellows they will be prepared to see radical changes of form, and such changes would certainly follow in time on the adoption of more cheerful colors. If men once accept pink as a color, for instance, they will in time see that trousers are not a suitable garment for the employment of pink, and will therefore adopt some other form of nether covering.

"I think that there is no doubt that within the next few years our dress will undergo considerable changes in style, color, and material. The manufacturers are sympathetic to the idea, and already produce materials in beautiful colors whose only fault is that they are a little in advance of the courage of men. What we want is pioneers, individuals with a little courage who will not shrink at the idea of wearingy a green waistcoat simply because it is green. Pioneers are always hard to find, of course, but they are coming. There has been an enormous change towards brightness in the last ten or fifteen years if you only think of it. Take such things as socks and underclothing, the garments that are hidden. Ten years ago they were all of the "all-wool" variety, without color of any kind. Now look at socks and undergarments—they are produced in the most beautiful colors. Go into the chambers of any well-to-do bachelor, and you will find that his bath gowns and dressing gowns are of the most delightful color schemes. Men are fond of color just as much as women, but they do not like to show it to the world.

"And, above all," concluded Mr. Bradley, "let it be understood that this is not a plea for what we used to call the 'masher' and what is now called the 'nut.' We want color and brightness, but we want it all in harmony and taste."

So now for the pioneers of the new movement.

More Schoolboy "Howlers."

Speaking at a meeting recently, Dr. T. J. Macnamara, M.P., told some amusing stories of quaint sayings attributed to children, which he had collected from schoolteachers in various parts of the country. Here is a selection:—

Teacher: "What is a mediator?"

Pupil: "Please, sir, a mediator is a chap who says, 'Hit me instead.'"

Teacher (to a London class): "What is grass?"

Boy: "Grass is what you have to keep off."

"Why would David rather be a doorkeeper in the house of the Lord?"

"Because he could walk outside while the sermon was being preached."

"How do yo know the earth is round?"

"Because it says in the Bible, 'World without end.'"

When he once asked a London class of girls, added Dr. Macnamara, what they would say if he told them he saw the sun rise in the west, he got the reply that it was impossible.

"But," he persevered, "supposing I still declared I had seen the sun rise in the west?"

"Well," one of the little girls at length replied, "I should think you must have got up rather late."

Stripped at the Law.

Dickens describes in his novel "Bleak House" the woes of those who were involved in suits in the chancery court and the delays to which they were subjected before the English judicial procedure was reformed. Tradition says that an artist once represented the same idea in much less space. Two suitors in chancery, being reconciled to each other after a very tedious and expensive suit, applied to him to paint a device in commemoration of their return to peace and amity. He gave them entire satisfaction by painting them in the act of shakng hands—one clad in his shirt, the other without even that.

Hockey.

The oriental origin of hookey is proved by the fact that it is often mentioned by Arabian writers in the earliest days of Islam at a time when France and England had no national existence. They speak of it as koura and describe it as a game in which the ball is struck with a curved stick, called mihdjan or sanladjan. The latter word is Persian, which seems to indicate that the Arabs learned the game from their neighbors of Iran, who first taught there civilization.

TRIAL LASTED THREE MINUTES.

Summary Dismissal of Cases In Early Victorian Days.

In these days of criminal trials long drawn out it may be not uninteresting to glance back at a time when, in England at least, complaint ran in the opposite directions. Such were the earlier years of Queen Victoria, when the old criminal code still survived in much of its archaic barbarity, and the picturesqueness of legal procedure inadequately compensated for its cruelty.

The late Lord Brampton, better known as Sir Henry Hawkins, refers in his reminiscences to the scandals of what he calls the "after-dinner" trials of that period. It was then a custom for the court to adjourn for dinner at five o'clock, at which meal there was no lack of conviviality, so that, when bench and bar returned to their duties, they were in no mood for protracted toil. In Lord Brampton's own words, "Judges and counsel were exhilarated, and business was proportionately accelerated." In confirmation of this he notes that these "after-dinner' trials "did not occupy, on an average, more than four minutes apiece," and, in illustration, cites an actual case, the paltry nature of which, contrasted with the enormity of the punishment involved, throws a lurid light on the inhumanity of the times.

The case was that of a pickpocket, in which the prisoner had, inconsiderately, pleaded "not guilty," and, therefore, had a right to be heard. We may quote Lord Brampton's account, beginning with the examination of the witness for the prosecution by the prosecuting counsel:

"I think you were walking up Ludgate Hill on Thursday, the 25th, about 2.30 o'clock in the afternoon and suddenly felt a tug at your pocket and missed your handkerchief, which the constable now produces?"

"Yes, sir."

"I suppose you have nothing to ask him?" says the judge. "Next witness," Constable stands up.

"Were you following the prosecutor on the occasion when he was robbed on Ludgate Hill, and did you see the prisoner put his hand into the prosecutor's pocket and take his handkerchief out of it?"

"Yes, sir."

Judge to prisoner: "Nothing to say, I suppose?" Then to the jury: "Gentlemen, I suppose you have no doubt? I have none."

Jury: "Guilty, my lord."

Judge to prisoner: 'Jones, we have met before. We shall not meet again for some time. Seven years' transportation. Next case."

Time: Two minutes, 53 seconds. As this seems to be a "record," it is only fair to add that the judge's name was Muirhouse. Verily "nous avons change tout cela."

Wouldn't Stand For It.

Lady Duff-Gordon, who is regarded by English women as an authority on fashions, hasn't much use for the new gown that is slashed at the knee nor for the woman who wears that kind of a gown.

"That departure from convention is too much—too much even for this 20th century," she said, at a tea recently given in her honor. "I'll tell you a story about these gowns:

"An Englishwoman bought one in Paris and, while she was shooting in Scotland, her maid wore the gown to a ance in the Queen's road.

"Somebody betrayed the maid and her mistress, on her return from the Highlands, said to her severely:

"'Smithson, you wore my new slashed gown to one of your low dances! You bold brazen creature, aren't you ashamed of yourself?'

"Smithson burst into tears and, her handkerchief to her eyes, she sobbed:

"'Indeed I am ashamed of myself, madam Ive lost my young man who I've been walking out with these four years. When I sat down in that gown, and my knees showed through the slash, my young man gave me one look, and he said, said he, that I could consider it all off between us, for any one that would wear a gown like that in public, says he, was too bold and brazen ever to be his wife. Boo hoo.'"

For the Baby.

Make the baby a nice little warm kimono of some sort, pale blue French flannel, or white if preferred, being the most serviceable. Or the little coat may be knitted of soft wool, which will make it all the warmer. There are many times when the baby needs this added warmth, as when it takes its daily outing, for however well it may be wrapped it is certain to displace the covers, but the little jacket so close to its body will serve the purpose.

A Dainty Dessert.

For a dessert there is a whipped cream mousse which is effective and toothsome.

It is made by sweetening the whipped cream, flavoring it with sherry, filling with candied fruit and nuts chopped in bits and packed in a melon mold with ice and salt for four or five hours. It should be served on a bed of whipped cream.

The snowball ice cream is also delicious and carries out the note of red that should be suggested in every Yuletide party. Plain white ice cream is frozen in round molds and when taken out a dozen maraschino cherries are put over each one.

REV. CHAS. SAGER SAYS

Mr. C. A. ABBOTT, August 21, 1905.
60 Ann St., New York City,

Dear Sir: I have known for over 40 years of the effects of Wilson's Remedy [Wilson's Preparation of Hypophosphites and Blodgett's] in cases of pulmonary troubles. At this point I will say to you what you have not before known of; that 48 years since, while I was a resident of N. Y. City, I was severely ill with lung trouble. Physicians said I was a consumptive and my family physician told my wife that he thought I could not recover. My attention was directed to the Wilson Remedy, which I used with splendid effect. I have been on my feet and at work ever since my cure. Yours truly,

REV. CHAS. SAGER,
Pastor M. E. Church, Hunter, (Greene Co.,) N. Y.

On Dec 1, 1911, Mr. Sager wrote Mr. Abbott; "My health is very good."

If you will write Mr. Abbott he will gladly furni h you any further information you desire.
