HUNTING ACCIDENT

Young Man Instantly Killed by Dragging Gun Through the Brush

Walter Cooper, aged 17 year, son of D. Cooper, the North Fork rancher, was instantly killed by the accidental discharge of his gun while out hunting with a younger brother last Saturday. The weapon was a shotgun, and the top of the young man's head was blown off. The accident was caused by yonng Cooper dragging his gun through the brush. The remains were brought to this city on Monday, and an inquest was held by Coroner Kingston. A verdict of accidental death was returned. The funeral was held Wednesday afternoon.

NEWS OF THE CITY IN BRIEF

Kavanagh & McCutcheon have on exhibition in thefr show room a chess and checker table which excels anything of its kind ever seen in this city. The table was made by Mr. McCutcheon, and consists of about 1200 different pieces, and as many varieties of wood as it was possible to obtain. The joints are so perfect that were it not for the different kinds of wood it would be impossible to tell where they were made. The table is varnished and polished as smooth as glass. They also have some excellent specimens of turning on exhibition.

The fafr just closed had the advantage over former efforts in being blessed with ideal weather, better exhibits of fruit and farm products, and a superior program of sports. Yet, after eliminating the race-track following, there was no appreciable increase in visitors from outside points. There was probably a reason for this. Some of the imported cheatnutty dodgers sent were bad enough to drive anyhody away. Other people did not take kindly to the inclusion in the directorate of a notoriously narrow-minded person, who possesses more conceit and bluster than sound reasoning power, and who believes in turning a public enterprise into a private gain. As he has probably made three or four hundred dollars out of the fair, he is undoubtedly satisfied with his work.

The British Columbia Copper company has declared a regular quarterly dividend of 15 cents a share. This will make a total of $556,637 disbursed by the company since organization.

There are 450 men employed by the Granby company at its Hidden Creek properties. A conservative estimate places the ore in sight at 5,000,000 tons. There is great activity in building operations and development work in the camp.

The bricklaying on the new post office is now nearly finished, and another week should see the building under roof.

Work on Canadian Pacific railway improvements in the West end is now being rushed seven days per week. The company will have all it can do to complete the buildings this fall. Brick is now arriving daily for the machine shop and rounnhouse.

Mrs. W. A. Cooper was awarded first prize for the best display of carnations at the fair.

Bert Scott has started an auto livery. His machine will call at hotels and meet all trains. Trips will also be made to any part of the valley at reasonable prices.

Some envious person has made the statement to the Nelson News that the Kaslo fair is merely a mutual admiration society, i.e., the people who make cash donations to the fair will have it returned to them in the shape of prize money.

City Threatened With Lawsuit by Reservoir Contractors

A surprise developed at the meeting of the city council last Monday night. It was supposed that the matter of extra compensation for excavating the city reservoir had been finally disposed of; but Ernest Miller appeared before the board for the contractors, and stated that if their claims were not allowed suit would be brought against the city. The contractors now cla m that they had a verbal understanding with the chairman of the water and light committee which would entitle them to extra pay. If the mater is brought into court, the result will, it is said, depend on whether the veracity of the chairman of the water and light committee is superior to that of the contractors. No decision was arrived at, final action being postponed until the next meeting. The council decided to dispose of the grey horse if a purchasers could be found.

Copper Shipments

Shipments of blister copper from the Granby company's smelter in this city for the past week amounted to 532,000 pounds, bringing the total shipped for the year to 16,052,500 pounds.

METEOROLOGICAL

The following is the maximum and minimum temperature for each day during the past week, as recorded by the government thermometer on Cooper Bros.' ranch:

	MAX.	MIN.
Friday	81	46
Saturday	70	43
Sunday	70	33
Monday	71	32
Tuesday	75	39
Wednesday	72	40
Thursday	60	37

With the elimination of the district display feature at the country fair its most potent factor as an advertising medium has been destroyed.

An honorable failure is better than a dishonorable success.

One of the humorous incidents of the United States political situation is to hear Col. Roosevelt denouncing bossism.

WAS TIRED OF LIFE

Jim Miller Attempts to Enter the Next World by the Morphine Route

Jim Miller, a young Scotchman only 33 years old, who has been working with the C.P.R. bridge gang at the smelter dam for a number of months, grew weary of the trials and tribulations of this world last Monday, and took a dose of morphine sufficiently large to kill half a dozen able bodied men. Luckily the rash intentions of the would be suicide were discovered shortly after he had taken the poison, and a conveyance was sent to his shack near the dam, where the act was committed, and he was brought to the Cottage hospital, where Dr. Kingston treated the case so successfully that the man is now supposed to be out of danger. For a couple of days it was an even bet whether Miller would cross the divide or remain here a while longer, but the doctor's skill, aided by Chief Savage, who kept the man from going to sleep by walking him around the city, finally prevailed Present indications are that Miller's mind has been affected by the drug.

A SUBSTANTIAL FENCE

Local Marble Will Enclose the New Court House Building

George Manson, who has the contract for the construction of a marble fence around the new court house, is making good progress with the work. The marble is a native product, coming from the quarry about three miles below the city. It appears to be superior to the imported article. The fence should last till doomsday. It will make a good adjunct to the court bouse. But it is apparent that the building was located too close to the street. Had it been placed in the centre of the lot and farther from the Winnipeg avenue fence it would have made a better appearance.

The common ailment at this season of the year—cold—has played havoc with The Sun's staff during past two or three days, and this week's issue is therefore a few seconds late.

Walter Demuth says that honey is worth $3 in Grand Forks.

H. A. Sheads this week sold his cottage and nine lots in the Ruckle addition, known as the old Cayley property, to Fred Downey. The consideration was about $1500.

Two new residences are being erected for renting purposes on Winnipeg avenue, near Donald street.

G. W. Averill this week sold a lot near the building formerly occupied by the Mann Drug company, on Second street, to H. A. Sheads. The price paid is said to have been in the neighborhood of $400.

Work on the concrete foundations of the C.P.R. roundhouse and machine shop, in the West end, was commenced the first of the week.

Eugene Herrick won the first prize for the best individual display of fruit at the fair.

Lumberjacks are in demand for the North Fork camps. As high as $3.25 per day is being paid.

Mr. Sheads buildings on Bridge street should be raised to the street grade before winter sets in, and the kinks taken out of the sidewalk.

END OF ENQUIRY

The Doukhobor Commission Has, This Far, Done More Harm Than Good

Sittings of the Doukhobor commission was held in the new court house on Monday and Tuesday. Even with counsel for the citizens no new or startling facts were brought to light, and it is to be hoped that we have heard the last o this matter until the government decides to enforce the laws against all offenders, natives and foreigners, irrespective of religious or political belief. The only accomplishments the commission can claim are, a vast amount of undesirable advertising for the southern portion of the province and the distribution of good salaries to a few of the govment's henchmen. The Sun is not entirely in sympathy with the petition presented the commission by the citizens' committee, because some of the statements in it are not borne out by facts. For instance, the assertion is made that the Doukhobors own the best lands in the valley. This would naturally give an outsider in search of a home the impression that there is no more desirable land to be had in this district, and he would naturally turn his face in another direction. As we said on a previous occasion, this strange sect is segregated in one corner of the valley, and lately the extension of the colony has been in the direction of the foothills and mountains. Another statement is made that they are undesirable settlers. That they are undesirable because they will not become citizens, trade or assimilate with the reet of the population, everybody admits. But they are not undesirable in the sense that the world regards an undesirable person. Such a term is usually applied to vagrants, incendiary agitators, cut-throats, and moral lepers. The worst that can be said of the Doukhobors is that they are religious fanatics, and that they evade the registration laws uf the province. No one has accused them of filthiness or immorality. No one has doubted their honesty. They are as harmless as kittens, as simple as childen. They are vegetarians, averse to taking any form of life, and on the question of war they are probably a thousand years ahead of the present-day civilization.

It is unfortunate that the petition should have been couched in the anguage it is, because it will undoubtedly be embodied in the commission's report, printed and circulated broadcast. After reading it, a person unacquainted with the facts, would naturally infer that the Doukhobors owned the valley. And no prospective settler, if convinced of the truthfulness of the petition, would want to live within a hundred miles of the colony.

The board of school trustees met last Saturday night, and let the contract for the construction of the four-room addition to the public school building to J. E. Wells, his tender being a little over $10,000. The contract for the plumbing and heating was awarded to Geo. W. Cooper for $2990.

Couldn't be Done

Once when Ned Hamilton was managing editor of the San Francisco Examiner, the other morning papers came out with a sensational story of a shooting affair in an up-state California city. It was a good story. The circumstances were exciting the persons involved had social position and there was a neat little scandal in it. The other papers had columns and the Examiner hadn't a line.

Hamilton called in the news editor Fire that correspondent, he shouted. Fire him by wire! Fire him by airship or carrier pigeon, or any other way—but fire him! Imagine him getting left on a story like that. Fire him—and do it quick.

The news editor went out. Presently he came back and said:

Mr. Hamilton, I think you'll have to excuse our correspondent this time

Excuse him, roared Hamilton. Excuse him for getting us beaten on such a story. I shall not! Fire him I say—and do it now.

But Mr. Hamilton, protested the news editor, there are circumstances—

There can't be circumstances that will excuse him said Hamilton. Fire him, I say.

Really, Mr. Hamilton, I can't do it.

Why not?

Well, you see, the Examiner correspondent has a good excuse for not sending the story. He is the man who was killed.

He Would Need One

A negro was in goal, awaiting his trial for the theft of a cow.

His wife called to see him, and as she went out the goaler asked.

Have you engaged a lawyer to defend Jim yet, Mandy?

No, said the dusky dame, with a decisive shake of the head. Ef Jim was guilty, Ah'd get him a lawyer at once; but he says he ain't guilty so o'course, Ah ain't a-gwine to get no lawyer.

Then came a voice from the darkness of the cells.

Mistah Grady, called the prisoner, tell dat yer niggah woman to git a lawyer—and a jolly good one, too!

She Wanted to Know

One of the "Seeing London," brakes was passing along Piccadilly, and the conductor was pointing out the various objects of interest on the way.

On the left, he yelled through his megaphone we have Apsley House, the London home of the Duke of Wellington. The mansion with the flower-boxes is the town house of young Lord Topknotch, one of our greatest landed proprietors.

The young American girl on the front seat clutched his arm excitedly.

Oh, say, she gurgled through her nose, do tell—who was it landed him?

Spoiling a Drive

Wilkins is an enthusiastic golfer, and when his friend Johnson met him coming away from the links a day or two ago he found Wilkins in a terrible frame of mind.

What's happened, old fellow? asked Johnson, amiably.

Everything's the matter, growled Wilkins. It's enough to make one give up golf and go in for fishing. That ass Fitznoodle has been running all over the course, and actually crossed my tee just as I was about to make a lovely drive. What would you have done had you been in my place?

Johnson is a smart man, and his retort was characteristic of him.

Well, he replied, with a smile, seeing that he crossed your t, I think I would have dotted his i.

'MARVELOUS' CURES OF SKIN ERUPTION

Four Children Constantly Scratching, Nearly Tore Limbs Off. Cured in a Month by Cuticura Soap and Ointment

"Two of my daughters and two of my sons were suffering from very bad heads, the doctor ordering my daughters to have all their hair cut off so as to prevent it from spreading all over their heads, and to get to the seat of the trouble in order to be able to rub some ointment, which he gave them, well into the sores. These sores started in small blotches which got larger and larger and then burst and spread all over their heads, and in some cases down their backs and bodies. The doctor said it was eczema, but they seemed to be daily getting worse. The sores formed like little boils, then filled with matter, and looked like abscesses. They became all inflamed and irritated, causing them to be constantly scratching themselves. This made the sores burst, and the matter flowed all over their heads. We had to cut their finger nails and at times to put gloves on their hands, the irritation was so bad, to keep them from digging into the flesh, and at night they would nearly tear their limbs off. The bolsters would be literally covered with blood.

"The teachers would not let them attend school for fear of infection spreading among the other children, so I resolved to try the Cuticura Remedies, which I found to benefit my children greatly. I continued with the Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment for one month, and the result is a marvelous cure." (Signed) George Arthur Robinson, 37, Fitzwilliam St., Hoyland Common, nr. Barnsley, Yorks., Eng., Jan. 3, 1911.

Although Cuticura Soap and Ointment are sold throughout the world, a liberal sample of each, with 32-p. book on the skin will be sent free, on application to Potter D. & C. Corp., 46 Columbus Ave., Boston, U. S. A.

Bismarck and His Landlord

Prince Bismarck was famous, of course, for his iron will. Austria, Denmark, France, and the German Parliament all had occasion to recognize this quality in the great statesman; so also did the landlord in the following anecdote. While in Frankfort, as Prussian representative in the Diet, Bismarck lived in the house of a particularly sulky and tight-fisted man.

One day Bismarck asked that a bell be put in his room, so that he should not be obliged to shout for his servant when he wanted him. The landlord declared curtly that he would go to no such expense—that it was entirely the lodger's affair.

A few days later the inmates of the house were startled by a succession of pistol shots coming from Bismarck's room.

The landlord, imagining all kinds of fearful disaster, rushed to the room from which the shots had come. Trembling with fear, he threw open the door. There, to his astonishment, he beheld Bismarck, quietly reading some papers, with a smoking pistol beside him. Without looking up, Bismarck asked quietly—

What can I do for you?

The quaking landlord managed to stammer—

W-w-what has happened?

Nothing, Bismarck replied, in the same even tone. I was merely calling my servant.

When he returned from a walk that afternoon, Bismarck found that a bell had been installed in his room.

Carrying the Despatch

An officer of Cossacks, during the Russo-Japanese War, offered to carry a despatch which ten horsemen had already failed to get through. The general remarked bitterly that the effort was useless.

The others have failed, the officer insisted, because they travelled on horseback. I shall go under my horse.

Under your horse? The general was astonished; but this is a prudent way of riding, very popular with Circassians when they wish to surprise anyone. The offer was finally accepted. He received the Communion, said his prayers, bade good-bye to his men, and started off in the middle of the night, strapped face downwards underneath his horse, which he guided by means of the bridle through the fore-legs The Japanese whistled to what they thought was a riderless horse. But the animal, egged on by blows from the officer's heels, accomplished the journey of twenty-five to thirty-five miles in safety. Stranger still, the officer accomplished the return journey on the following night.

I see Jack Hansom was married the other day to Miss Richly.

Yes; and was very sorry to see it.

Sorry? For her sake or his?

For mine. I wanted her.

Mrs. Noopop—Charlie, what do you think? Dad's just sent us a twenty-pound cheque for our new baby. Wasn't that good of him.

Mr. Noopop—I should say so! I'll write at once and thank him for his contribution to the fresh heir fund.

The Scorer's Paradise

Village cricket is not generally a slow game, but the match between the Pudmore Slackers and the Stopton Smashers was the exception which proved the rule.

Two of the former team had been in for about three-quarters of an hour and not a solitary run had been notched. It was a fine exhibition of how not to play cricket.

At last one of the pair, more by accident than design, made a hit that very nearly resulted in a run being scored

Derisive cheers came from the ever-dwindling crowd of onlookers, and when they died down the voice of the local butcher, who was by way of being a wit, was heard to remark:

Steady, there—steady! Keep your heads! If you get so reckless we shall have to wake the scorer!

When Governor Head was in office in New Hampshire, Colonel Barrett, of the Governor's staff, died, and there was an unseemly scramble for the office even while his body was awaiting burial with military honors. One candidate ventured to call upon Governor Head.

Governor, he asked, do you think you would have any objection if I was to get into Colonel Barrett's place?

The answer came promptly—

No, I don't think I should have any objection, if the undertaker is willing.

A Sure Corrective of Flatulency — When the undigested food lies in the stomach it throws off gases, causing pains and oppression in the stomachic region. The belching or eructation of these gases is offensive and the only way to prevent them is to restore the stomach to proper action. Parmelee's Vegetable Pills will do this. Simple directions go with each packet and a course of them taken systematically is certain to effect a cure.

TONIC TREATMENT FOR THE STOMACH

The Modern Method Most Successful in Treating Indigestion

The old fashioned methods of treating indigestion and stomach troubles are being discarded. The trouble with the old fashioned methods was that when the treatment was stopped the trouble returned in an aggravated form.

The modern method of curing indigestion and other stomach troubles is to tone up the stomach to do its normal work. Every step toward recovery is a step gained, not to be lost again. The recovery of the appetite, the disappearance of pain, the absence of gas—all are steps on the road to health that those who have tried the tonic treatment remember distinctly. Dr Williams' Pink Pills are a tonic medicine, every constituent of which is helpful in building up the digestive organs, and is therefore the very best remedy for chronic cases of stomach trouble. The success of the treatment is proved by thousands of cases like the following. Mr. W. W. Swain, Grand Valley, Ont., says:—"For several years my mother had stomach trouble from which she got no relief whatever until she began the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. She was treated at different times by three doctors, but their efforts did not avail. Then she was advised to try an electric belt, but it proved worthless. She suffered much during this time and food became distasteful. The trouble also affected her nerves and her general health was on the verge of a breakdown. One day a friend who was in asked her to try Dr Williams' Pink Pills. Without very much hope that the Pills would prove successful when other medicines had failed, we nevertheless got her a supply. In a few weeks we could see a decided change, and got six more boxes, by the time these were used mother was almost well, and she kept on taking the Pills for a short time longer and was completely cured. She is now a healthy and strong woman and is never bothered with her stomach in any way. I hope this statement will bring relief to other sufferers.

Why experiment with medicines of doubtful value, when you have such positive evidence of the benefit following the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills? Sold by all medicine dealers or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Chollie—I'm doing my best to get ahead, you know.

GRAIN

The surest and most satisfactory way in which the Western farmer can secure for himself the full value of his grain, is to ship it by the carload in bulk to Fort William or Port Arthur, and employ a reliable and experienced grain commission firm in the Winnipeg market to look after and dispose of it. A celebrated engineer, being examined at a trial where both the judge and counsel tried in vain to browbeat him, made use in his evidence of the expression, "the creative power of a mechanic," on which the judge rather tartly asked him what he meant by the creative power of a mechanic.

Why, my lord said the engineer, I mean that power which enables a man to convert a goat's tail into a judge's wig.

Mr Croker-King, the well-known actor, tells of an amusing incident of a theatrical tour. A certain town was "billed" for two great rival productions. Wonderful Cures Reported in Germany.

The use of simple herbs as remedies instead of the more concentrated and usually more dangerous inorganic substances, has been revived very widely of late. In Germany a new school of physicians has arisen which throws out almost a whole of the pharmacopeia and relies on an adaptation of the method of wild animals in curing themselves. . . . . *N. Y. It was Dr. R. V. Pierce, chief consulting physician to the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute of Buffalo, N. Y., who first advocated the extended use of some of our native roots, such as: Golden seal and Oregon grape root, mandrake and queen's root, black cherrybark. These are the chief ingredients in Doctor Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, which has been so well and favorably known for nearly half a century. A harmless cleanser and stomach tonic that nature has provided.

J. D. MATHESON, Esq.

J. DONALD MATHESON of Ossining, N. Took the 'Discovery' and also the 'Pleasant Pellets,' and can truthfully say I am feeling better now than I have in years. I cheerfully give permission to print this testimonial, and if any 'doubting Thomas' writes me I will 'put him wise' to the best all-around medicine in the country to-day."

He had returned home in the evening, tired and ready for a restful hour or two.

John, my love, said his little wife sweetly, did you post that letter I gave you this morning?

Yes, my pet, said John, hiding his conscience-stricken face behind the newspaper.

Well what is your answer? still more sweetly.

Wh-what is what? gasped John.

What is your answer, dear? said his little wife clearly. That letter was addressed to you.

Addressed to me! exclaimed John. I didn't notice it.

And then, like a foolish man, he fell into the trap and produced the letter from his pocket to see. The envelope was not addressed to him, but a long and severe lecture was.

Attacks of cholera and dysentery come quickly, there seldom being any warning of the visit. Remedial action must be taken just as quickly if the patient is to be spared great suffering and permanent injury to the lining membranes of the bowels. The readiest preparation for the purpose is Dr. J. D. Kellogg's Dysentery Cordial. It can be got at small cost at any drug store or general dealer's, and it will afford relief before a doctor can be called.

A solicitor, whose nose and chin were both very long, and who had lost his teeth, whereby the nose and chin were very close together, was told—

I am afraid your nose and chin will fight before long, they approach each other so menacingly.

I am afraid of it myself, replied the man of law, for a great many words have passed between them already.

Minard's Liniment Cures Diphtheria.

Sam Johnson, you've been fightin' agin. You'se lost two of yo' front teeth.

No, I ain't, mammy, honest. I'se got 'em in me pocket.

Shall I make a hash of this meat landlady.

Well, it don't matter whether you bile it agin or roasts it, replied the lodger; you're bound to make a hash of it.

Good-bye to Asthma. Persons suffering from that extremely trying trouble known as asthma know what it is to long with all their hearts for escape as from a tyrant. Never do they know when an attack may come and they know that to struggle unaided is vain. With Dr. J. D. Kellogg's Asthma Remedy at hand, however, they can say good-bye to their enemy and enjoy life again. It helps at once.

The Last Straw

The cruel winds tore at the waves as if to whirl them away.

The man and the maid sat close together on the beach and watched the storm.

How the wind howls, darling! she said, yelling to make herself heard.

Yes, shrieked her lover.

Why does it howl? she screamed.

Dunno. Perhaps it's got the toothache, he bellowed.

HOW MANY OF US

Fail to Select Food Nature Demands to Ward Off Ailments?

A Ky. lady speaking about food, says: "I was accustomed to eating all kinds of ordinary food until, for some reason, indigestion and nervous prostration set in.

"After I had run down seriously my attention was called to the necessity of some change in my diet, and I discontinued my ordinary breakfast and began using Grape-Nuts with a good quantity of rich cream.

"In a few days my condition changed in a remarkable way, and I began to have a strength that I had never been possessed of before, a vigor of body and a poise of mind that amazed me. It was entirely new in my experience.

"My former attacks of indigestion had been accompanied by heat flashes, and many times my condition was distressing with blind spells of dizziness, rush of blood to the head and neuralgic pains in the chest.

"Since using Grape-Nuts alone for breakfast I have been free from these troubles, except at times when I have indulged in rich, greasy foods in quantity, then I would be warned by a pain under the left shoulder blade, and unless I heeded the warning the old trouble would come back, but when I finally got to know where these troubles originated I returned to my Grape-Nuts and cream and the pain and disturbance left very quickly.

"I am now in prime health as a result of my use of Grape-Nuts." Name given by Canadian Postum Co., Windsor, Ont.

"There's a reason," and it is explained in the little book, "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs.

OBLIGED TO QUIT BUSINESS

SO DREADFUL WAS THE SUFFERING FROM ITCHING PILES

After Twenty Years of Pile Torture Relief and Cure Came With

DR. CHASE'S OINTMENT

You take no risk and you make no experiment when you use Dr. Chase's Ointment for piles. Many doctors still cling to the idea that nothing but an operation will effect a cure. But operations are expensive and dangerous, and often fail in their results. Some have been cured by Dr. Chase's Ointment after operations had failed.

Dr. Chase's Ointment truly has a wonderful record as a cure for piles and all itching skin diseases. Here is a case which was reported recently:—

Mr. John P. Marshall, 14 Barnes road, St. John's, Nfld., writes:—"For upwards of twenty years I was troubled terribly with itching piles; at times so bad that I was obliged to lay up, unable to attend to business.

"I tried many treatments without benefit, until I accidentally read of Dr. Chase's Ointment, and found at last a cure by using this ointment. I only used one box and part of a second one when I was completely cured, and have had no return of the piles. That was eighteen months ago, and needless to say, I attribute this cure to Dr. Chase's Invaluable Ointment."

Many sufferers from piles have tried so many scores of treatments that they cannot believe that cure is possible. In order to convince the skeptical we are always willing to send a sample box free to anyone who encloses a two-cent stamp to pay postage.

Dr. Chase's Ointment, 60c. a box, at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto.

Stockings embroidered with life-size figures of mice are the latest craze in New York. They cost $6 a pair.

A Quaint Statue

Humor in statutes is rare, except of the unconscious type; but the little parish church of St James, Yarmouth (Isle of Wight), has within its walls, a fine white marble statue of a dashing seaman who was Captain of the Wight from 1687 to 1692.

Sir Robert, as well as being an admiral bold was also a bit of a wag. On one of his nautical raids he captured a French vessel which had on board an unfinished statue intended to represent Le Grande Manarque. Holmes did not make the sculptor, who was on board, walk the plank, but compelled him to finish the statue in the likeness of his captor. The head was the head of Holmes, but the body was that of Louis XIV.

The contrast is striking and humorous, and, as the guide-book says, the statue is well worth a visit, if only to see the incongruity of partnership between a buccaneer face and a regal body.

Whether the corn be of old or new growth, it must yield to Holloway's Corn Cure the simplest and best cure offered to the public.

The Blarney of Blarney-Stone

Visitors to Southern Ireland should on no account miss the Blarney Stone. As the train from the North approaches Cork, the tower, which is practically all that is left of Blarney Castle, may be seen, and the magic triangular stone is situated near the top of this tower.

The gaining of this wonderful power sounds easy of attainment on first hearing of it, but in reality the aspirant is faced with a physical difficulty. To reach the stone, one must be held by the heels and lowered face downwards till one's face reaches the kissing level—no easy task, by any means.

The legend dates from the time of Queen Elizabeth, when the Lord of Blarney very effectively made empty promises of surrender and plausible excuses.

Minard's Liniment Cures Distemper

The Doctor Didn't Think So

A smart young doctor sat facing his patient.

Yes, my friend, he said gladly, you are quite well again now, and need not come here again.

The patient, recovering from a bad illness, was relieved to hear this Then his face became overcast again.

Bad about der bill, doctor, he said—need it be told he was a German—I ain't got mooch money. Vill you take der bill out in trade?

The kind-hearted doctor eyed his patient's shabby clothes.

Well, perhaps I might, he said agreeably Er—what is your trade?

I vos der leader off a Sherman band, doctor, said the patient proudly. We will play in der front of your house every evening for one month.

PERHAPS the most potent argument in favor of keeping the naval question in politics is the fact that the Canadian Manufacturers' association wishes to take it out of politics.

THE LIMIT has at last been reached in launching new publications in Vancouver. The Limit is an illustrated humorous weekly, modeled after the style of Life, for which Messrs. Smith & Bohannan are sponsors. Mr. Smith is an artist who has held responsible positions on the high-class eastern publications, and Mr. Bohannan handles the quill almost as cunningly as our own Col. Lowery. If The Limit draws on the newspaper talent in British Columbia it will become irresistable, and there will be no limit to its circulation.

A MAKE a city out of a hamlet it is necessary to encourage everyone, especially new men, to come in and settle among you, particularly those who are worthy and active, whether they have capital or not. Those who have capital will buy lots and build homes. Stimulate every worthy enterprise by giving it all the friendly encouragement you can, and by uniting your industry, intelligence and capital in a common cause. Cultivate a public spirit and talk less than you work. Help your neighbor. If he is in danger of breaking down, prop him up in some way, either by kind words, good counsel or a lift from your pocket. If he gets fairly down before you known of his situation, set him on his feet again; his misfortune is to be pitied, not blamed, and his talents and labor are worth money to the community. Besides, it may some day be your turn to need a corresponding amount of sympathy. Talk encouragingly of the town you live in, of its prospects, of your neighbors, and, in fact, of everything likely to advance the public good. It is such little things that make a town grow. Their cost is insignificant when divided among all, but when concentrated into general effort they do the business thoroughly.

WAR, says the Toronto Star, is a catastrophe in which half a dozen men should not have power to involve the people of a nation. The few who make of international politics a high game, and the few who make of soldiering a profession, bear but a trifling share of the consequences of war. From every home in the land young men march away and never return. The 143,718 unidentified dead of the army of the North in the American civil war were drafted from factory and farm, from shop and field. The men who do a nation's work in peace must pay the nation's sacrifice in war. Why should they stand by in an attitude of indifference while a few persons in high place, by reckless words, invite disaster?

If you are not worth more to your employer than you are costing him your stay with him will be short.

Political Equality

In view of the extraordinary interest being manifested, not only throughout the world in general but particularly in this Dominion, in the now vital question of woman suffrage, and especially in view of the facts that Premier Borden has consented to receive a deputation of Canadian women on this subject, and that the newspapers of every shade of political opinion are opening their columns to the sympathetic discussion of it as a matter of practical politics, it has been decided by the headquarters branch of the Political Equality league of this province that the time has come to organize the movement throughout the land, forming local branches which shall distribute information, arrange for meetings, and collect signatures to a petition which is to be circulated broadcast, asking that the government will introduce and carry a bill giving votes to women during the coming session.

The decision of the headquarters committee had to be made rather suddenly owing to unexpected and very promising developments, which convinced us that if a widespread and united demand were made by the women as well as by the present electors, we should get our recognition as citizens at once without all the expenditure of time, energy and money which has been necessary in less enlightened lands. And this opinion has been since confirmed by the magnificently progressive step taken by the government in the new University Act—the first, I believe, in the history of Canada to provide expressly for absolute equality of scope and privilege between women and men in every department of university life, even as regards the appointment of officials, from the highest downwards.

The men showing such liberality of mind, such foresight, judgment and courage, are not likely to delay to carry the principle it embodies to its logical conclusion, or to deny to their countrywomen that recognition of citizenship, and the key to its effective use, which they accord to any European immigrant when he has been in the country the stipulated time and has taken the oath of allegiance—(however far removed his traditions and ideals of life, social and political, from Canadian standard)—who has happened to be born a male.

I am therefore being sent out on a tour of organization, and hope to be in your district from November 18 to November 20. I shall be very glad to hear from all those interested in this very vital question on my arrival, or before, especially from any Australians or New Zealanders, who always give this movement the valuable support based on successful experience.

Lacrosse Championship

The world's lacrosse championship for 1912 will be determined at the Provincial exhibition in New Westminster on October 1 and 5, when the New Westminster team, champions of the British Columbia Lacrosse association, and the Cornwall club, champions of the N.L.U., battle for possession of the Minto cup, which carries with it the title of world champions. The cup was held by New Westminster for three years, going to Vancouver in 1911. The Salmonbellies regained possession of the trophy this summer, and the Cornwalls, by virtue of their victories in the east, have come west in an effort to carry off the silverware.

Apples Going Abroad

The largest single consignment of apples ever shipped over the Great Northern was sent out last week from Wenatchee. It was a train of thirty six cars loaded with over 24,000 boxes of Jonathan apples, going through to New York city without breaking bulk, where twenty-five carloads will be transferred to the steamer Southampton destined to Buenos Apres, Argentine republic. At Seattle last week, the Pacific Coast Steamship company's liners for San Francisco part of their cargoes were 15,000 boxes of Washington apples, to be transferred at San Francisco to a boat bound for Australia.

Wenatchee Apple Crop

The harvesting of the largest apple crop in the history of the Wenatchee valley is now on, and it is expected that 100 carloads a day will be sent out of Wenatchee during the season, as the entire crop of the valley is estimated at 3500 car loads. This will mean approximately 2,000,000 boxes of apples, which will average to the growers net $1 per box.

Utilizing the Mirror

A dentist was filling a lady patron's back teeth. When he had finished with the first tooth he handed the lady a hand mirror that she might see the result for herself. Then he went on with his task, repeating his performance with the mirror after each tooth was filled. Finally, when the job was completed and she had handed back the mirror with thanks, he said:

"Well, madam, how do they look to you?"

"How do what look to me?" she returned.

"The teeth I just filled."

"Oh, I forgot about the teeth," she exclaimed, reaching for the hand glass.

"What did you look at each time I gave you the mirror?"

"My hair."

Anybody can tell us what to do, but we can't get anybody to do it.

REV. CHAS. SAGER SAYS

Mr. C. A. ABBOTT, August 21, 1905.
60 Ann St., New York City.

Dear Sir: I have known for over 40 years of the effects of Wilson's Remedy [Wilson's Preparation of Hypophosphites and Blodgett] in cases of pulmonary troubles. At this point I will say to you what you have not before known of; that 40 years since, while I was a resident of N. Y. City, I was severely ill with lung trouble. Physicians said I was a consumptive and my family physician told my wife that he thought I could not recover. My attention was directed to the Wilson Remedy, which I used with splendid effect. I have been on my feet and at work ever since my cure. Yours truly,
REV. CHAS. SAGER,

Newspaper Law

1 A postmaster is required to give notice by letter (returning the paper does not answer the law) when a subscriber does not take his paper out of the postoffice, and state the reason for its not being taken. Any neglect to do so makes the postmaster responsible to the publisher for payments.

2. If any person orders his paper discontinued he must pay all arrearages, or the publishers may continue to send it until payments are made and collect the whole amount whether the paper is taken from the office or not. There can be no legal discontinuance until payment is made.

3. Any person who takes a paper out of the post office, whether directed to his name or not, or whether he has subscribed or not, is responsible for the pay.

4. If a subscriber orders his paper stopped and the publisher continues to send it, the subscriber is bound to pay for it if he takes it out of the post office. This proceeds upon the ground that a man must pay for what he uses.

5 The courts have decided that refusing to take newspapers or periodicals from the post office or removing leaving them uncalled for, is prima facie evidence of intentional fraud.

The Letter of the Law

Mr. F. E. Smith, M.P., tells a story of a County Court case he was once engaged in, in which the plaintiff's son, a lad of eight years, was to appear as a witness.

When the youngster entered the box he wore boots several sizes too large, a hat that almost hid his face, long trousers rolled up so that the baggy knees were at his ankles, and, to complete the picture, a swallow-tail coat that had to be held to keep it from sweeping the floor. This ludicrous picture was too much for the Court; but the judge, between his spasms of laughter, managed to ask the boy his reason for appearing in such garb.

With wondering look the lad fished in an inner pocket and hauled the summons from it, pointing out a sentence with a solemn mein as he did so. "To appear in his father's suit."

Elected Unanimously

It was a great occasion. The junior eleven of the village had met to elect a new captain, the previous one having retired at the age limit (15).

One youngster was particularly vehement in asserting his claims for the post, and talked down all the other candidates.

He was the son of the owner of the cricket-field, and had a snub nose and red hair, and a very aggressive manner.

I'm going to be captain this year, he announced finally after two hours of arguing, or else father's old bull will be turned into the field at once.

THE FARMERS AND THE GRAIN RING

The Duty of the Hour

In previous articles we have fully exposed the true inwardness of the proposed sample market for grain and the selfish motives of the Winnipeg Grain Ring who are seeking to force the grain growers of the Western Provinces to accept it. The grain men of Winnipeg are not to be trusted. In the past they have always sought to secure unfair advantages at the expense of the farmers, and when they propose to remove at one blow, all the legal restrictions that now check their rapacity by the establishment of a sample market, they must be resisted with untiring determination and vigor. The people of the western provinces cannot afford to sacrifice the advantages they have gained over this ring of sharks after years of determined conflict. The farmers should remember that when the sample market is established, all grain passes into the hands of the Winnipeg grain ring the moment it is shipped, to be sold by the grain combine for any price they choose to pay. The people of the West will never submit to such an injustice.

We wish to again to emphasise the fact that the farmers of the West have never asked for a sample market and will not have it at any price. The present system of grading and shipping grain gives general satisfaction to the producers of the West, and is also satisfactory to the buyers in Great Britain, France, Germany and other European countries as, well as the United States and home buyers. The foreign buyer can now buy on grade, sending his orders from his home office, and can be sure of getting just what he has ordered. On the contrary, if he orders from a sample market, he must either send an agent across the Atlantic at great expense (which is paid by the western farmer) or he must trust the Winnipeg grain sharks who will charge him a good fat commission for buying for him on the sample market (which commission must also be paid by the western farmers).

In a recent report of J. T. Lithgow, Canadian Trade Commissioner in Germany, he shows the value of the present grading system alike to the Western Canadian farmer and the German grain buyer. "He says:—Canadian wheat takes a very high place in the estimation of German importers and millers, and the large Hamburg importers express the greatest satisfaction at the grading and at the condition of the wheat on arrival. There is a probability that this year the demand for Canadian wheat will be greatly increased." The establishment of a sample market would greatly injure this prospective trade, if not entirely destroy it by abolishing the present standard grades. It would be folly not to foster the German market for wheat, particularly in view of the great crop that will be harvested this fall.

We wish again to emphasize the necessity of quick transit from the farmers market to the lake ports. The railway companies are making every endeavor to be ready to handle the immense crop that will be harvested next fall Last April the C.P.R. ordered for immediate delivery two hundred and fifty locomotives of the largest type and twelve thousand forty-ton freight cars in addition to the engines and cars being built at the shops in Montreal. The Grand Trunk Pacific and the Canadian Northern Railways have also ordered hundreds of locomotives and thousands of freight cars. But all these additions will scarcely suffice to move the crop on time, particularly when we consider that after the close of navigation on the Lakes there will only be a single line of railway from Fort William to Montreal to convey the grain left at the head of the lakes and in country elevators. In the face of these facts the grain sharks in Winnipeg and the Big Interests at their back, with monumental impudence and selfishness want to hold up for twenty-four hours in Winnipeg every car load of wheat grown in the western provinces, thus putting hundreds of cars daily out of commission.

The marketing of grain and all kindred matters are wholly within the province of the farmers, and no steps should be taken in such matters without consulting them. They are the best judges of what is to their interests, and they universally resent the attempt of the selfish grain dealers to saddle them with a system that would take from them the safeguards which they now possess.

An Oil for All Men.—The sailor, the soldier, the fisherman, the lumberman, the out-door laborer and all who are exposed to injury and the elements will find in Dr. Thomas' Electric Oil a true and faithful friend. To ease pain, relieve colds, dress wounds, subdue lumbago and overcome rheumatism, it has no equal. Therefore, it should have a place in all home medicines and those taken on a journey.

Well, exclaimed Katie, there would be one point you wouldn't linger on.

The mother of the young husband went to the bridal nest, and found her dear little daughter-in-law bathed in tears.

My child, she gasped, what is the matter? Has anything happened to Arthur?

What, already? said his mother, in consternation. It doesn't seem possible. How late does he stop out?

Well, said the little bride, gulping down her heartrending sobs gallantly, you know he usually leaves his office at half-past five The night before last he didn't get home till half-past six, and last night—she sobbed bitterly—last night it was a quarter to seven! Oo-o-oh what shall I do?

His Artificial Eye

It Served an Important Purpose

By ANNA G. SHORTALL

Some two hundred years ago there lived in Norway a young man named Walter Bogardus. When Walter was a little boy he met with an injury to his right eye, and the occulist who attended him decided to take it out. Walter grew up to be a fine looking fellow, the only personal blemish on him being the absence of one eye. But since he wore a green patch over it the maiming did not show. He was a great favorite with the young men and young women, both of whom sympathized with him on account of his misfortune, and this was a great advantage with the gentler sex. He knew how to use the eye that remained to him, the girls declaring that he could throw more meaning into that one eye than most men could express with two.

But like all persons who suffer from a blemish Walter was very sensitive about the loss of his eye, brooding over it constantly. When he was twenty-one he left the place where he had been born and had lived up to that time to go elsewhere. He determined before appearing in the new location that he would have a glass eye put in the empty socket. New friends would see him for the first time with two eyes, and if he could find a glass to perfectly match the natural eye, some, possibly all, would be ignorant of his physical deficiency.

Unfortunately his eye was hard to match. It was between a pale blue and a steel. The blues from which he endeavored to find what he wanted were too blue, and the steels were colorless. Not finding one to suit him, he went to a man named Herman, who had an eye factory in his back yard, and engaged him to make an eye that would perfectly correspond with the one remaining in its socket. Herman had a daughter, Gretchen, who painted that part of the glass which gave the eyes the color, and Walter sat before her while she copied his natural eye.

Gretchen was a pretty girl, with the fair hair and eyes of northern races. Walter chatted with her and, since he was a gallant fellow, paid her compliments, expressing his admiration with his natural eye. Under this influence Gretchen painted an eye for him that corresponded with the other perfectly. As soon as it was finished and put in its place Walter hastened to a mirror and was delighted with his improved appearance. There was no difference between the two eyes, except that one lived and the other did not. But there are many persons who do not notice such differences readily, and any casual observer would not notice that the young man wore an artificial eye.

Gretchen rejoiced greatly at her success, for during the sittings while she was painting the false eye Walter had looked at her so pleasingly with the one she copied that he quite won her heart. In truth, it was this expression he put into his natural eye that enabled her to do her work so well, for if ever a glass eye could be expressive the one she painted was. But the result of all this was that when Walter went away from Gretchen he took her heart with him.

Walter became a soldier in the service of a feudal baron who dwelt on a hilltop near by, from which the baron made depredations on merchants and other travelers passing through the valley beneath—that is, when he was not called upon to do military service for the king. But he found time to keep his larder well filled by plundering in a peaceful way, and even in war there was pillaging.

The baron had a daughter Bertha, who, following in the wake of most other girls, straightway proceeded to fall in love with Walter. Bertha was nearsighted, and in those days the eye was not so readily assisted as it is nowadays. It was either this or the remarkable work Gretchen had done in painting the artificial eye that prevented Bertha from noticing Walter's blemish. At any rate, she did not know that he wore a glass eye.

Walter, who was a fine soldier and was rising rapidly in the baron's service, saw what an advantage it would be to him to marry the lord's daughter, was not averse to yielding to the young lady's passion for him, and it was not long before they were engaged. The baron had no son to succeed him and, being greatly pleased with Walter, readily gave his consent to the nuptials.

It so happened that just before the wedding festivities were to take place the king called upon the baron to contribute two companies of pikemen for military service. Walter was not made of the stuff to remain at home at such a time. Indeed, it was his province to command the force the baron sent the king. So instead of wedding garments he put on his armor and rode forth to do battle with the king's enemies, deferring his marriage till his return.

The baron's contingent arrived just in time to take part in a decisive fight. Walter led them and greatly distinguished himself. But he met with a misfortune. Not having but one eye, he needed a broader range of vision than a man with two, so he raised the visor of his helmet for the purpose, leaving the upper part of his face exposed. Suddenly he felt a blow where his right eye should have been and minute particles of glass flying over him. An arrow had struck his artificial orb and shattered it.

He lowered his visor and fought the rest of the fight with his face concealed.

Now, it would never do for the young soldier to go back to his love without two eyes. He bethought himself of Herman and his daughter, Gretchen, and, turning over the command to the next officer in rank, rode away to supply his deficiency. Herman was quite ready to make him another eye and have his daughter paint it. The eye was made, but while waiting for it Walter, who could never be with a pretty girl without getting at least confidential, let it out to Gretchen that she must do as well as before, for he was engaged to marry the baron's daughter, and if Bertha discovered that he had but one eye it would deprive him of all his glorious opportunities.

Nothing could have been more unfortunate. Gretchen set to work pretending to copy his natural eye. She gave it the proper color, but while on the former occasion she imparted the pleasing expression of its mate, in this case she put into it an expression of what she felt. When the eye was finished it fairly gleamed with her malignant jealousy.

Persons do not see their own defects as others do. Although Walter did not like the eye as well as its predecessor, he was in a hurry to return and marry Bertha. Indeed, he hoped to join the pikemen he had led and march to the castle with them so that his absence from his command would not be noticed. He caught them when they were only a few miles from the castle and, spurring ahead of them, dashed over the drawbridge and into the court yard. Then, throwing himself from his horse, he sought Bertha.

It so happened that her cousin, a young man with whom she had played as a child, had come to pay a visit and was with her at the time. Walter entered the room where they happened to be, facing the morning sunlight streaming through a window. Bertha's gaze became at once fixed upon the new artificial eye and saw only its expression of diabolical jealousy. Attributing it to her affianced's finding her in company with her cousin and feeling insulted, she arose from her seat and swept out of the room.

Walter, astounded and dismayed, sought to follow her, but she waved him back and passed through a portal out of sight. The cousin, regarding him angrily, half drew his sword; then, thrusting it back in its scabbard, he, too, stalked away.

Walter, not understanding the cause of this treatment, sent to his fiancee begging for an interview. It was granted, but the moment she saw that fiendish look in his eye she turned on her heel and left him without a word.

Walter rushed out to the courtyard, where he accosted a friend and asked him to tell him what had occurred since his departure to prejudice his betrothed against him. The man looked him in the eye, then turned and stalked away. Walter tried several others and was at last informed of the cause.

Mounting his horse, he rode back of Herman's and besought him to make another eye. Herman consented; the eye was made and placed in Bertha's hands to paint. She pretended to bemoan her ill success and promised to do her best in another effort. But the third eye, when finished, gave the expression of an idiot.

Still another eye was made and painted by Gretchen, who at every attempt took a longer time to her work. Meanwhile she condoled with her sitter, and he encouraged her in her work till at last he fell to saying some very sweet things to her. But with all her painting, every eye she produced gave the wearer some hideous expression.

Then came the news that Bertha had married her cousin. This convinced Walter that his artificial eye had looked aright after all. Being now fairly in love with Gretchen and Bertha being married, with the help of a good deal of love making between Walter and the artist an eye equal to the first was produced, and Walter was so delighted with it that he took Gretchen in his arms and asked her to be his wife.

It is not necessary to say that she consented. They lived together happily till the glass eye was shattered; then, the freshness of youthful love having fled, she could not paint another.

What's in a Man.

A man has 500 muscles, 1,000,000,000 cells, 200 different bones, four gallons of blood, several hundred feet of arteries and veins, over twenty-five feet of intestines and millions of pores. His heart weighs from eight to twelve ounces, its capacity is from four to six ounces in each ventricle, and its size is 5 by 3½ by 2½ inches. It is a hollow muscular organ and pumps twenty-two and a half pounds of blood every minute. In twenty-four hours it pumps sixteen tons. It beats about seventy-two times a minute. In one year an average man's heart pumps 11,680,000 pounds of blood

Meekness.

Meekness is imperfect if it be not both active and passive, leading us to subdue our own passions and resentments as well as to bear patiently the passions and resentments of others.

The Word "Expire."

"Expire" in its literal sense is breathing out. Inspiration and expiration together constitute respiration. Izaak Walton observed that "if the inspiring or expiring organ of any animal be stopt it suddenly dies." The Romans spoke of "breathing out" the breath of life instead of "dying" by way of euphemism, just as they said "vixit" (he has lived) instead of "he is dead." In all languages the reluctance frankly to say "dead" or "die" appears; hence such words and phrases as "pass away," "decrease," "demise," "the departed," "defunct," "the late," "no more," "if anything should happen to me."

A Great Pair.

Mr. A. J. Balfour tells a story against himself. He was playing golf at North Berwick, and on approaching a hole he asked for his mashie.

"Ye'd better tak' yer brassy," said the caddie.

The ex-Leader of the Opposition acquiesced, and on finding his ball well on the green, he remarked:

"You are a clever boy. You were right."

"Aye," replied the boy; "if you had my brains an' I had your height, we'd mak' a grand pair in a fower-some!"

South African Lunches.

A novel idea for encouraging the use of South African manufactures of an edible character is the institution of what are called "South African lunches." These are now advertised at most of the principal hotels and restaurants in Johannesburg, and have met with gratifying success. The menu is exclusively confined to South African products.

Pun Upon Pun.

Strange, Moore and Wright, three notorious punsters, were on a certain occasion dining together when Moore observed, "There is but one knave among us, and that's Strange." "Oh, no," said Wright; "there is one Moore." "Aye," said Strange; "that's Wright."

Friends.

He's not afraid, no matter where
We go, because I'm big and strong
He looks up, and he sees me there
And takes my hand and goes along.
And if it's dark and he can see
Big black things where the shadows fall
He's not afraid when he's with me,
'Cause I'm his friend; that's all.

When he goes berrying with me
He takes his pail and goes so far
To get some big ones he can't see
If I am there, the bushes are
So thick and leafy where he went,
But pretty soon he hears me call
And knows I'm there, and he's content,
'Cause I'm his friend; that's all.

He seems to think that I can do
Most every kind of thing there is,
And he knows I will help him through,
Because I am a friend of his,
And he'll look up at me and say:
"My, but you're awful big and tall!
I hope . be like you some day!"
'Cause I'm his friend; that's all.

And when he sees me anywhere
That's where he always wants to be,
And if he has a thing to share
He saves the biggest part for me.
He l'"es to go on trips with me
And does not seem to feel so small.
He gets more courage, don't you see,
'Cause I'm his friend; that's all.

ANCIENT BOOKS.

Rare Relics of Bygone London Are on Exhibition.

Many curious English books and broadsides are now on exhibition at the Stationers' Hall, London, where Lord Balcarres opened an extensive exhibition arranged by the International Association of Antiquarian Booksellers. Our ancestors, it seems, were always being kept up to their duties by royal proclamations and appeals, so excellently printed that Lord Crawford has been able to lend a large number on this occasion. Thus, in 1660, two books written by Jno. Milton were called in and suppressed by the King. For they were said to contain "sundry treasonable passages against Us and Our Government, and most injurious endeavors to justify the horrid and unmatchable murder of our late dear Father." Now, Milton had "fled or obscured himself," and so all copies were to be delivered up to mayors or district officers within 10 days; otherwise they would be seized and the names of the offenders notified to the King. All copies seized or delivered up were to be publicly burnt.

In 1673, again, the King was extremely annoyed by the conduct of people at his London theatres. "Divers persons," he said, "do rudely press, and with evil language and blows, force their way into our theatres—the Theatre Royal, Bridges St., and Duke's Theatre, Dorset Garden—without paying the prices established." So he commanded that the money be paid in every case in advance, and that the doorkeepers should insist on seeing the ticket of those who enter. Nor would he allow people to sit on the stage any longer. "'Tis impossible," he complained; "to command those vast engines which move the scenes and machines, if any but those who belong thereunto be suffered to press in amongst them," and he ordained that in future no person of whatsoever quality might presume to stand or sit on the stage or come within any part of the scenes. The attendant soldiers were to execute his orders in the matter, and no doubt they proved very efficient "chuckers-out."

The Fire of London naturally produced a crop of such appeals. Plate, money, jewels, household stuff, goods, merchandise, and building materials were being purloined from the ruins. So the King ordered that "the finding of any goods thus exposed shall not excuse any person, who shall wilfully and feloniously take them, from the penalties of the law, and even from that of loss of life." All goods previously taken in ignorance had to be returned within eight days to the Armoury in Finsbury Fields. Another "Great Fire" broadside proclaims a general fast in "England, Wales and the town of Barwick-on-Tweed, Wednesday, Oct. 10, is to be set apart to implore the mercies of God, upon pain of incurring the utmost severities of the law, and in all churches and chapels collections for the sufferers by the Fire are to be made, and then sent up to London to be administered by the Lord Mayor and the Bishop of London."

In 1628, again, he is found complaining of the smuggling of tobacco. "The immoderate desire of taking tobacco," he proclaims, "has so far prevailed in this our kingdom so that it cannot of a sudden be suppressed, and the difference (or at least the opinion of difference) between Spanish or foreign tobacco and tobacco from the plantations of Virginia and of our own Dominions, is such that our subjects can hardly be induced totally to forsake the Spanish tobacco, which is secretly brought in in large quantities." Therefore he restricts Spanish imported tobacco to 50,000 pounds weight to be delivered at the Port of London. It is not only the history of English printing between 1477 and 1800 which is illustrated by the present exhibition, with its Caxtons, Wynkyn de Wordes, Pynsons, Richard Fields, and other exemplary impression of books, but the history of the customs and lives of our remote ancestors.

A New Anaesthetic.

The abolition of pain resulting from injury or operation is promised if the new anaesthetic process described in The London Lancet fulfills its discoverer's claim.

Dr. F. W. Forbes Ross announces in The Lancet, and from the fact that it receives publicity in that Conservative publication, the claim of Dr. Ross may be considered to have received orthodox approval. Moreover, Dr. Ross has met the professional requirements by giving his discovery to the public.

Speaking of the new boon to humanity Dr. Ross said:

"What I wish to make known is the discovery of the wide application of a prolonged local anaesthetic of incalculable value to humanity. I know, and I wish the world to know how to kill pain following the severest bodily injury from accident, or during and after the severest surgical operations.

"By the use of this anaesthetic it is possible to-day for a surgeon to guarantee to a patient freedom of pain after an accident or following an operation. I have found an absolutely harmless and non-poisonous antidote to physical pain and shock, and this antidote can be used without the least fear of local or general detriment to the sufferer."

"Oh, mother, may I go out to vote?"
"Oh, yes, my darling Ruth, dear!
Wear your best hat and your pony skin coat,
But don't go near the booth, dear."

SATURDAY NIGHT SERMONS

REV. SAMUEL W. POWELL, D.D.

THE GARDEN OF ALLAH.

Text, "He will make her desert like the garden of the Lord."—Isa. li, 3.

"It's God forsaken, sure enough," observed a fellow traveler as we stood on the rear platform of Overland train crossing section of Utah, a bit of great American desert now fast passing away. "Nothing but sand, rattlesnakes, skeletons of cattle and sagebrush," he commented. "Best honey on earth comes from that sagebrush," said another by his side. Good! I liked that. Not many can see blessings in the desert. Hichens explains the fascination of the Sahara; Mary Anderson helps depict it on the stage and Maude Adams in magazine. Ancient Israelite or modern Moslem finds it the garden of the Lord. "The man who is afraid of prayer is unwise to set foot beyond the palm trees," says a Hichens character. "Why unwise?" "The Arabs have a saying, 'The desert is a garden of Allah.'" Some thoughtful natures feel the call of the sands as others do the call of the waters. To them the desert stretches from the palms of human centers as eternity stretches from the edge of time. They revel in the impossible blue of the sky and the blood red of the moon. For them the quaint perfume seller, the weird sand diviner, the mystic fakir, the beating of tomtom, the Arab spreading his praying mat and falling with his face toward Mecca, have an absorbing charm. Kismet, destiny, narcotic fatalism, sweeps over them, and they quote the Koran, "The fate of every man have we bound about his neck."

The Garden of Allah.

The desert has its counterpart in the soul of man. "Come ye yourselves apart into a desert place," said Christ. A soul desert is any place where one is separated from man and left alone with God. It is the great brooding place of a human soul. "No one but God and I knows what is in my heart," is the strain of the African flute player. Sometimes when men refuse to isolate themselves from the world, become so wrapped up in acquirement of pleasures, position, wealth, that they never get alone with God, he calls them by misfortune, sickness, bereavement, beyond the palms into the garden of the Lord. "Oh, that I might know where to find him!" is the cry of the age. And when at last he is found it is where we had least expected it—at our side. "How near God is!" Yes, and how far we travel to find him! Defeats, thwartings, heartaches, are dry, parching sands. The dreariest acre of wilderness contained the well of Beersheba. There's no sorrow but there's a balm. Only there's nothing so blind as a sense of injustice, grief, disappointment. So some become doubters, hurt and offended at God. But listen! Do you believe in God at all? Certainly! Well, then, do you believe that he would make a desert, send us into it and not put a well of water into it? That would be a devil, not a God. If there is a God, then there is water! I care not for gathering vultures or blinding stand storm if God lives. Kismet? No, trust!

The Desert of Human Ill

The garden of Allah is open to those who suffer. Pain is part of humanity's lot. The more highly organized, the finer your nervous system, the more you suffer. Creatures without nervous systems do not suffer. An iron crowbar does not vibrate like a piano string. The body is a marvelous harp—not a clam or a crab. Those who mourn will find the desert a place of comfort. Remember "The Light of Asia?" Young mother, with her dead serpent bitten child, comes to Buddha. "What will heal my child?" "Go, beg some mustard seed from house where neither father, mother, child nor slave has died." The "bitter balm" of Buddha was to seek for what none could find. Christ says, "I am the resurrection and the life." The desert holds something else besides physical suffering and mental torment. The desert holds the personal presence and ministry of God. It has taught man some of the choicest secrets he has ever learned. Mystic words would never have been heard amid the din of daily life. Flashes of revelation would never have been noticed in the glare of the world. The God of the desert speaks louder than the God of the city.

Not Very Long.

"How long did your honeymoon last?"

"Until the first time I was late for supper, if I remember rightly."—Detroit Free Press.

Experienced.

"How dare you kiss me?" she exclaimed indignantly.

"Oh," he replied, "I've kissed a lot of worse lookers than you."—Detroit Free Press.

NEWS OF THE CITY IN BRIEF

A special meeting of the members of the Grand Forks Produce association was held on Saturday evening in the Miners' Union hall for the adoption of regulations and bylaws governing the association. Although the attendance was not very large, the consideration of the business for which the meeting was called was successfully carried out.

Bob Petrie says he has had forty thousand applications for rooms in his proposed thirty-storey brick block since the fact that he intended to erect such a structure was made public in The Sun. This is ten thousand more applications than our highest claimed circulation in this city, which shows that that number of persons must borrow The Sun.

Pat Burns, the cattle king, one of the "big four" who guaranteed and helped to make successful the "Stampede" at Calgary, has shown his appreciation of his native country's history by subscribing $500 to the Canadian monument to General Wolfe, to be placed over the grave at Greenwhich.

Neil Murray, Jack Reed and Carl Anderson went down the river on a hunting expedition last Saturday. They had to telephone to the city for assitance to carry the game home.

A. D. Morrison raised 701 pounds of Gold Coin potatoes from 8 pounds of seed this season.

James Blake, C.P.R. engineer, will erect a cottage near the C.P.R. station this fall.

Contract Let

The contract for the construction of about 42 miles of railway between Coalmont and Coquahalla summit has been awarded by the Vancouver, Victoria & Eastern Railway company to Guthrie, McDougall & Co. Work, according to the terms of the contract, must be completed by July next. The contractors will get their men and equipment on the work in the next few days. With this strip of railroad completed by July 1, 1912, early completion of the remainder of the strip from Coquahalla summit into Hope is predicted. The latter piece of road is that which the Great Northern and Kettle Valley lines wish to build, and which the railway commission now has before it for consideration. Until the railway commissioners act, the completion of the line from the summit to Hope is a matter of conjecture. It is probable that with the decision of the railway commission will come the announcement from the Canadian Pacific railway as to where the bridge across the Fraser river, connecting the main line of the Canadian Pacific railway and the Kettle Valley line, will be built. There are two sites in view now, one at Hope and the other at Ruby creek. In the estimation of engineers who are familiar with the country in that vicinity, Hope is the logical position for the bridge. The amount of the contract just closed by Guthrie, McDougall & Co., is said to be $1,500,000.

Opening of Panama Canal

Revised estimates made public by the Panama canal commission set Oct. 15, 1913, as the date on which the first vessel will pass through the new waterway between the Atlantic and the Pacific. The first vessel to go through will be a naval vessel, but which warship will have the honor has not yet been decided. The commission's estimate announces that the formal opening of the canal will be on January 1, 1915. Col. Goethals, who is supervising the construction of the canal, reports that its cost will be below the original estimate of $400,000,000, and that when the final stroke is done the cost may not exceed $375,000,000. The reason the canal will not be in use for commercial purposes until December, 1915, is because numerous tests are to be made to ensure perfect working before large vessels are permitted to pass through.
