STARTLING LETTER

The Doukhobors' Leader Forbids Sick Persons to Summon Physician

Nelson Residents Interested Concerning Outrages in the District

Residents of the city of Nelson and district are deeply interested in revelations made to a newspaper there regarding Doukhobor outrages of recent date. It appears that Peter Veregin, the leader, and Sherbinin, his so-called papal secretary and general manager, have been instrumental in preventing members of the colony at Brilliant from receiving medical attention. This has resulted in at least one death.

It has been proved time and time again that Veregin holds power of life and death over his subjects, the Doukhobors, and that this power is abused. The letter from Valdemar Kruglak has caused considerable excitement in Nelson, and the question is being asked when will the government take steps to prevent further outrages. Since the Blake-more report the Doukhobors have assumed an attitude of defiance, as they feel that they are being protected by the government. They are not forced to conform with the laws of Canada.

The letter follows:

"A report being made to the gold commissioner of Nelson by Mrs. J. E. Kennedy and myself. At his request, Dr. Hartin and Provincial Constable King went to the Doukhobor community at Brilliant, B. C., to enquire about a certain sick man, by name Vaceille Navakashownoff.

"On arrival they asked Mr. Sherbinin and his helpers to show them to the sick man. He positively denied to Dr. Hartin any knowledge of the man, declaring that there was no one of the name of Navakashownoff in the community (and I know Mr. Sherbinin is a great friend of his.) The other Doukhobors also said there was no sick man there.

"Then Mr. King came to me and asked me to accompany them to the community to find the sick man. I went with them across the river and every Doukhobor we asked said they didn't know of any sick person. It certainly seemed as if orders had been given to all Doukhobors to deny to a doctor any knowledge of a sick person, and not to reveal to him the house where the sick man lay. Finally one of Navakashownoff's relatives described the house to me, and upon arriving there we met a Doukhobor woman who lived in the house, and she also denied all knowledge of a sick person and said he was not there.

"Passing by the window I heard moanings and I looked in and I saw the sick man lying on a bed and an old man standing beside the sick man holding his hand over the sick man's mouth to suppress his moanings. I knew then this was the sick man we were seeking.

"We went into the house and found him lying on a dirty bed in a dungeon of a room, and he was breathing very heavily. We asked him how long he had been sick and he answered very feebly:

"I have been forbidden to tell."

"Then the doctor examined him and said, 'It's too late; he has a weak heart. If a doctor had been called ten days before he could have been saved.'

"Another case is of a young man 35 years old, by name Silikin, who has a wife and two small children. A year ago he caught a cold and, asking for a doctor's assistance, was refused. He has been sick a whole year, and now lies in a dying condition. A few days ago they brought him medicine and wanted him to take it, but he was afraid and sent the medicine by a friend to me to find out what kind of medicine it was. When I read it, it proved to be a poisonous liniment.

"VALDEMAR KRUGLAK,
"Brilliant, B. C."

(Translated from the Russian by Mrs. J. E. Kennedy, Nelson, B. C.)

Immigration Regulations

The new order in council respecting immigration is couched in the following terms:

"H. R. H. the governor-general in council under and by virtue of the provisions of subsection 3 of section 38 of the Immigration act, 9-10 Edward VII, and in view of the present overcrowded conditions of the labor market in British Columbia, is pleased to make the following order: From and after the date hereof and until after the 31st day of March, 1914, the landing at any port of entry in British Columbia hereinafter specified of any immigrants of any of the following classes namely, artisans, laborers (skilled or unskilled) shall be, and the same is hereby prohibited."

The order then specifies all of the ports of entry in British Columbia coming under its terms.

Granby's November Report

The Granby Mining, Smelting and Power company treated 106,173 tons of ore at its plant in Grand Forks in November, according to the monthly report. Of this 108,408 tons came from the company's properties at Phoenix, and the remaining 2765 tons was custom material, a large part of it from mines at Republic. The blister copper shipments aggregated 1,944,145 pounds for the period, well within a few thousand pounds of the record.

Rule of the Road

That the rule of the road in British Columbia be altered so that traffic should proceed on the right side of the road instead of the left, was one of the radical suggestions made by the grand jury in closing their work at the assizes in Vancouver. If the rule were changed, say the jury, the regulations of British Columbia would then be the same as in the majority of other provinces.

As soon as they have been converted into barges the old barques Gerard C. Tobey and Amy Turner will be used in the coke trade from Tacoma to Granby Bay. Coke for the new Granby smelter will be furnished from that port, and will amount to a cargo every ten days or two weeks.

ELECTS OFFICERS

Canning Factory Holds Its First Statutory Annual Meeting

The New Building Is Nearly Finished and Machinery Has Been Ordered

The first statutory annual meeting of the shareholders of the Grand Forks Canning company was held in the Davis hall last Saturday night. There was a large attendance, and a great deal of business was transacted. The election of officers resulted as follows:

President and managing director, Daniel McKinnon; vice-president, C. A. Wallace; secretary-treasurer, J. A. McCallum; board of directors, Daniel McKinnon, C. A. Wallace, Jeff Davis, E. C. Henniger, James McArdle, J. H. Patterson and D. J. McDougal. J. H. Wilson was appointed superintendent of the company and F. R. S. Barlee auditor.

The new cannery will soon be ready for the machinery. The building will be the most modern structure erected in the interior for the purpose. The plans were prepared by J. H. Wilson, who superintended the construction work. Mr. Wilson will leave shortly for the east to purchase the necessary machinery for the factory, and it is expected that by the 1st of March the plant will be installed and the factory equipped to commence operations.

Contracts with the local ranchers are being made by the management for all the fruits and vegetables they can produce. On this account it is expected that the acreage under cultivation in the valley will be greatly increased next year.

LIVE CITY SNAPSHOTS

All the members were present at the meeting of the city council on Monday night. The amendment to the trades license bylaw was reconsidered and finally passed. The mayor's remuneration bylaw and the aldermen's indemnity bylaw were put through their final stages. The report of the board of works, apportioning the cost for the construction of cement sidewalks, was adopted. The usual amount of routine business was also transacted.

The Baptist Sunday school will hold its Christmas tree entertainment on Tuesday evening, December 23.

Robert Keffer, son of Frederick Keffer, of Greenwood, has been appointed assistant mining engineer at the Stewart mine, Kellogg, Idaho.

The Chesaw News says that the British Columbia Copper company is making a bid for the ores of Myers creek.

John Dockstader and Miss Dorothy Winney were married at Midway on December 10.

Provincial Poultry Inspector J. R. Terry, who is in the city this week, says that, with the present price for feed at the coast, eggs should be produced at an average price for the whole year of between 12 and 14 cents per dozen.

Work was suspended on the Greenwood post office last Thursday until next spring.

Ed Saunier was fined $25 and costs before Major Glossop, J.P., at Rock Creek, for selling a deer without a head.

Raymond Moran and Miss Irene Humphrey, both of Carini, were married in Greenwood last Thursday.

There was a court of revision on the voters' list in Greenwood this week. An idiotic clause in the Municipal act compels such events to be advertised in Nelson and not in Greenwood. In this intelligent age no law is more absurd, and our legislature should erase it from the books in order to prevent accusations of insanity.—Greenwood Ledger.

Revolt Among the Doukhobors

If Nicholas Shakov, the Moscow capitalist and philanthropist, who is in Canada on a visit to the Doukhobor settlements in Saskatchewan and British Columbia, is not mistaken in his belief, the reign of Peter Veregin is nearing its close and the Doukhobors of this province will by their own efforts effect the reforms in their community which should have been brought about by the government more than a year ago. Mr. Shakov says that the Doukhobors are entirely dissatisfied with their leader and would, in his opinion, throw off the yoke immediately and break up the clan so far as common property is concerned. It is to be hoped that events will justify his belief, but it is hardly likely that Mr. Veregin will step down without making a vigorous effort to retain his authority. He has one weapon which may be used with powerful effect. All the property of the community is vested in himself, and for a time at least he might make it unpleasant for those who tried to oust him.

It is unlikely, of course, that the courts would uphold his right to ownership, especially as it is clearly understood that he is merely the trustee for the community, but it is the duty of the authorities to see that he does not intimidate his countrymen into subservience by the threat to dispossess them of the lands which have been made fruitful by their labor.—Vancouver Sun.

SPENDID EXHIBITS

Many Entries at Poultry Show But Attendance From Abroad Light

Chicken Talk Galore at Banquet on Wednesday Evening

The annual provincial poultry show opened in the opera house in this city Tuesday and will continue until tomorrow night. The weather during the week has been ideal for the occasion. There are about 130 entries, representing over 1200 exhibits of poultry and pet stock. A great deal of disappointment is felt because there are no exhibits from some of the coast cities. The fancy stock exhibited from interior points, however, is of an exceptionally fine quality, being the pick of birds exhibited at local shows throughout the province. The show was opened in form on Thursday morning with addresses by Mayor Fripp and others. While the exhibition has been liberally patronized by local people, the attendance outside points has not come up to the expectations.

Wednesday evening about sixty poultry fanciers and citizens attended a banquet given by the local poultry association in the Davis hall. In the absence of President F. W. Lang, Vice President J. A. McCallum presided. In his opening address the chairman referred to the progress in poultry raising made in the valley during the past few years. After the toast to "The King," E. Kale proposed a toast to the American Poultry association. He referred to this organization as the parent poultry associations of the west, and advocated closer ties between it and the British Columbia association. W. M. Higgs, the first president of the British Columbia association, responded. "The British Columbia Poultry Association" was proposed by G. Horstead. J. R. Terry, secretary of the association, in responding, went into figures showing the rapid growth of the organization during the short time it has been in existence. W. R. Patton proposed "The Grand Forks Show, 1913," and A. S. McKim and W. E. Hadden responded. A. D. Morrison proposed the toast to the judges, and C. A. Hines replied. E. N. Barker, one of the judges here, and practically the only representative from Alberta, spoke of the friendly relations existing between the two provinces. "The City of Grand Forks" was proposed by J. McMullen, of Maple Ridge, and was responded to by Fred Clark. E. F. Law and H. E. Upton responded to the toast, "The Ladies." The music for the occasion was furnished by McLeod's orchestra, and James West supplied the good things to eat.

It sometimes takes some people a long time to discover that they have become enamored of an ignominious.

PRESIDENT SUSPENDER

NONE SO EASY

Very Bitter

A man who frequently visits a scientific friend a short distance out of town once found him in his laboratory studying a dark brown substance spread out on a sheet of paper.

I say, Jones, said the scientific person, when greetings had been duly exchanged, would you mind letting me place a bit of this on your tongue? My taste has become sadly vitiated by trying all sorts of things.

Certainly, responded the accommodating friend, and he promptly opened his mouth.

The professor took some of the substance under analysis and put it on his friend's tongue, whereupon the visitor worked it around in his mouth for fully a minute, tasting it as he might have sampled a choice confection.

Note any effect? asked the professor.

No especial effect. It doesn't paralyze the tongue? Not that I can detect. I didn't think it would. There are no alkaloids in it, then. How does it taste?

Very bitter. Very bitter, eh? Then, after a pause, all right, that will do.

By this time the caller's curiosity was aroused. What is it, anyhow? he asked.

I don't know. That's what I am trying to find out. Someone around here has been poisoning horses with it.

Burned at the Stake

As late as the end of the eighteenth century counterfeiter, were publicly burned at the stake in London. On March 15 1789, Christiane Murphy was executed at Newgate tower, London, for the crime of coining. She was bound to the stake seated on a stool, the main tie being a cord around the neck. The funeral pyre was then lighted by the executioner and his deputies, one of the latter of whom finally jerked the stool from under the wretched creature, allowing the weight to fall on her neck. Within forty-eight minutes the body was entirely reduced to ashes and buried in a hole on the spot where the execution took place.

Father always spoils everything, said Miss Gladys Cumrox, tearfully. I'll never again tell him when anybody proposes to me.

What has he done?

When Baron Fucash asked for my hand I told him to ask father. And when he called, father looked through a card index and said: There are three ahead of you, but I don't think any of them will suit. Come around next Thursday.

An Explanation

A quack doctor was holding forth about his medicines to a rural audience.

Yes, gentlemen, he said, I have sold these pills for over twenty-five years, and never heard of a word of complaint. Now, what does that prove? From a voice in the crowd came:—That dead men tell no tales.

ECZEMA ITCHED AND BURNED

Until She was Nearly Crazy. Began with Watery Blisters. On Ears, Eyes, Hands and Ankles. Could Not Sleep for Scratching. Cuticura Soap and Ointment Cured.

Brunswick St., Fredericton, N. B.—"I had a very bad case of eczema. The trouble began with watery blisters and itched and burned until I was nearly crazy. It was on my ears, eyes, hands and ankles. I could not keep the bed clothes over me at night for the smarting and itching. My ears would swell. I would scratch until the blood would run and then form a scab. I felt as if I could take a knife and cut the flesh on my hands. It would disfigure my face and make it smart and burn and swell. I could not sleep at night for scratching.

"I tried everything I heard of without getting any benefit. I used lots of home remedies, such as lard and sulphur, and also was treated for it. Then I tried Cuticura Soap and Ointment and they gave me great ease. I used them about four months and I am happy to say I am never troubled now. The Cuticura Soap and Ointment cured me completely." (Signed) Mrs. A. S. Thompson, Mar. 9, 1912.

The regular use of Cuticura Soap for toilet and bath not only tends to preserve, purify and beautify the skin, scalp, hair and hands, but assists in preventing inflammation, irritation and clogging of the pores, the common cause of pimples, blackheads, redness and roughness, yellow, oily, mothy and other unwholesome conditions of the skin. Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment are sold throughout the world. Liberal sample of each mailed free with 32-p. Skin Book. Address post card Potter Drug & Chem. Corp., Dept. 44D, Boston, U. S. A.

Not His Fault

At the persuasion of a travelling agent, a farmer had two lightning rods fitted to a costly barn. But only a week or two later, during a violent thunderstorm, the barn was struck by lightning and in a few hours all that remained of it was a heap of charred, black refuse. Next day the farmer sought out the lightning rod agent.

Fine lightning rods you sold me! he shouted. Here's my barn been struck by lightning and burned to the ground. What, said the agent. Struck by lightning?

Yes, by lightning.

In the day time?

No, at night. Last night.

The agent's puzzled frown relaxed a little. Ah, he said, it was a dark night, wasn't it? Well, were the lanterns burning?

The agent stared in pretended amazement.

No, said the farmer, I never burn lanterns.

Why, he said, you don't mean to tell me that you didn't run up lanterns on the rods on dark nights?

I never heard of such a thing! shouted the farmer. Run lanterns up! Why?

Well, said the agent, if you don't know enough to make your lightning rods noticeable you can't blame me.

Describing Gout

A well-known clubman in the smoking room the other evening gave some of his fellow-members a picturesque description of the gout.

You lie in bed, he said, with the gouty foot stretched out, and you feel as though the sole of it was pressed against the bars of a red-hot fire.

In the middle of the furnace is a fellow with a gun loaded to the muzzle with red hot needles. Presently he fires the gun at your foot and you feel the red-hot needles travel up your leg and come out at the knee, not all at once, but like the animals went into the Ark, two by two. When the last couple of needles have finished the course you find yourself sweating with fear, and wondering how long it will be before the fellow fires the gun again.

Presently you find he is under contract to fire it every few minutes, and you get ready for the discharge. But you can never be said to get accustomed to it, because the black-guard loads it with a new kind of red-hot needle, every time, and sometimes adds half-a-dozen red-hot cork-screws and that's gout.

Who would patronize gout after that?

A Puzzle

A man lay groaning and writhing by the wayside, when up dashed a constable and proceeded to investigate but all he could get out of the sufferer was: I ate one, too—I ate one too, and he puzzled, but not for long.

Poison! was the diagnosis, and mindful of his training, he at once procured an emetic, which simply electrified the recipient.

Between convulsions he managed to ask the reason for such treatment and as the reason for such treatment and on his being told, and asked what it was he had eaten, he became more abusive.

What did I eat? yelled he. Why, you idiot, 1812 is the number of the car that knocked me down!

There is in Brooklyn a young recently married couple who have been raving the usual half pathetic and wholly amusing experiences incident to somewhat limited means and total inexperience. Last Saturday there was a hitch in the delivery of the marketing, and Sunday found them with a practically empty larder.

When dinner time came the young wife burst into tears.

Oh, this is horrible! she wept. Not a thing in the house fit for a dog to eat. I am going home to mamma.

If you don't mind, dear, the husband exclaimed, as he visibly brightened and reached for his hat, I'll go with you.

On one occasion, just before one of his recitals, Paderewski was stopped in the entrance hall by an excited lady.

Oh, M. Paderewski, she exclaimed, I am so glad to see you! I want so much to hear you play, but they tell me there isn't a seat left. Now, do try to find me a seat somewhere. I am sure they'll let me in if you ask them to. Please!

Paderewski bowed very gravely. Madame, he said, I shall be delighted to help you. There is one seat in the hall at my disposal, and you can take that if you care to.

Oh, that's too sweet of you! the lady gushed. I'll take it with pleasure. Where is it?

At the piano? replied Paderewski.

Senator Cullom of Illinois, gets a good laugh out of the story he tells about an old lady who, although she is a resident of his state, has a son in Montana.

One day the senator met the old lady, and knowing that the son was the apple of her eye, not to say her very heart bones, he inquired as to how the boy was doing. He was surprised to see that the woman dissolved into a storm of tears.

Why, what's the matter? asked Mr. Cullom.

He just writ me, said the old lady, that he's done been sent to the legislature. I don't now for what or for how long, but I prays to God they will be easy on him.

An Avaricious Woman

A woman who carried love of money to an incredible extreme was Lady Margaret Jardine, sister of the first Marquis of Queensbury. Although her husband was a rich man, Lady Margaret would actually carry foot passengers across the little river Annan for a halfpenny, and whenever there was a fair or market day she would sit on the banks of the stream all day long waiting for customers. She usually wore rags to save her clothes, but on the rare occasions when she visited anywhere she packed up a few decent garments, which she slipped on before entering the house, exchanging them for her dirty ones when leaving.

Used to It

Did you give this man the third degree? asked the police officer.

Yes. We browbeat and badgered him with every question we could think of.

What did he do? He dozed off and creely murmured now and then: Yes, my dear. You are perfectly right.

He's a mean man. How so?

When his little girl begs for an ice-cream sundae he asks her if she wouldn't rather have a gold watch when she's nineteen.

THE TORTURES OF RHEUMATISM

Driven From the System by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills

The sufferer from rheumatism who has not gone about curing himself in the right way must expect a return of the tortures with every change to cold or damp weather. It is not the change in the weather that causes the rheumatism, but it does start the aches and pains. Rheumatism is a deep-seated disorder of the blood. You cannot possibly cure it with outward applications of hot fomentations as so many people in their ignorance of the real cause of the trouble try to do.

Rheumatism can only be driven out of the system by driving out the poisonous acid in the blood. This can only be done by making the blood supply rich, red and pure. It is in this way that Dr. Williams' Pink Pills cure rheumatism, even after other remedies have failed. These Pills make rich, red blood, they go right to the root of the trouble, and the pains and aches are driven from the system and will not return if the blood supply is kept pure. That is the whole secret of curing rheumatism, and if you are a sufferer begin to cure yourself to-day by taking Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

Among the many sufferers from rheumatism who have been cured by this medicine is Miss Mary D. Kelly, South Dummer, Ont. Miss Kelly says: "Some time ago I had a very bad attack of rheumatism. At times I would be confined to bed for a couple of days and would seem almost paralyzed with the intense pain in my back and legs. At such times I could not walk, and my joints were stiff and swollen. I consulted different doctors and took their medicine, but did not get more than temporary relief. At this time a neighbor advised me to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and I got a supply. After taking a few boxes I found they were greatly helping me, and I continued their use until the trouble completely disappeared. I can strongly recommend this medicine to others who suffer as I did from the pains and tortures of rheumatism."

You can get Dr. Williams' Pink Pills through any dealer in medicine or by mail, post paid, at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

A medical professor wrote on the blackboard in his laboratory: Professor Wilson informs his students that he has this day been appointed honorary physician to his majesty the king.

In the course of the morning he had occasion to leave the room, and found on his return that some wag had added to the announcement the words: God save the king.

The Word 'Picnic'

Few people know the original meaning of the word 'picnic.' It is to be found set out in The London Times of a hundred years ago.

A picnic supper consists of a variety of dishes. The subscribers to this entertainment have a bill of fare presented to them, with a number against each dish. The lot which he draws obliges him to furnish the dish marked against it, which he either takes with him in his carriage or sends by a servant. The proper variety is preserved by the talents of the maître d'hôtel, who forms the bill of fare. As the cookery is furnished by so many people of fashion, each strives to excel, and thus a picnic supper not only gives rise to much pleasant mirth, but generally can boast of the refinement of the art.

The superintendent of a certain Sunday school in the Midlands, who had attained a good position, was trying to show his boys that he had gained it by total abstinence. He gave them several instances where men had lost their places through drink, and he had been fortunate enough to gain those places.

At the close of the address he said: Now, boys, to what do I owe my present position?

Much to his surprise the boys cried in chorus. Drink, sir!

He had just reached the philosophical stage when he slipped into a restaurant for a bite to eat. He ordered and then sat staring ahead, quietly thoughtful in expression, and waited.

It is admitted he did some waiting too. What happened to his order couldn't be understood outside the regular restaurant kitchen, but he spent half an hour sitting there "staring ahead of him."

At last it came. As the waiter put the order before him, he started from his deep study, as if he had forgotten he had an order coming. Then, looking up at the fair transporter of edibles, he said: You don't look a day older!

A WONDERFUL DISCOVERY

An eminent scientist, the other day, gave his opinion that the most wonderful discovery of recent years was the discovery of Zam-Buk. Just think! As soon as a single thin layer of Zam-Buk is applied to a wound or a sore, such injury is insured against blood poison! Not one species of microbe has been found that Zam-Buk does not kill!

Then again. As soon as Zam-Buk is applied to a sore, or a cut, or to skin disease, it stops the smarting. That is why children are such friends of Zam-Buk. They care nothing for the science of the thing. All they know is that Zam-Buk stops their pain. Mothers should never forget this.

Again. As soon as Zam-Buk is applied to a wound or to a diseased part, the cells beneath the skin's surface are so stimulated that new healthy tissue is quickly formed. This forming of fresh healthy tissue from below is Zam-Buk's secret of healing. The tissue thus formed is worked up to the surface and literally casts off the diseased tissue above it. This is why Zam-Buk cures are permanent.

Only the other day Mr. Marsh, of 101 Delorimier Ave., Montreal, called upon the Zam-Buk Co. and told them that for over twenty-five years he had been a martyr to eczema. His hands were at one time so covered with sores that he had to sleep in gloves. Four years ago Zam-Buk was introduced to him, and in a few months it cured him. To-day—over three years after his cure of a disease he had for twenty-five years—he is still cured, and has had no trace of any return of the eczema!

Mrs. Smith was on her first ocean voyage.

What's that down there? she asked of the captain.

That's the steerage, madam, he replied.

Really, exclaimed the woman, in surprise. And does it take all those people to make the boat go straight.

FRIDAY, DECEMBER 12, 1913

The coast papers now engaged in a fruitless endeavor to discover how the huge surplus reported to have been in the provincial treasury less than a year ago has so mysteriously vanished, might find a valuable clue if they will go to the trouble of taking a census of the government officials and employees. Nearly every other man one meets in the streets nowadays is in the employ of the province. There are inspectors of every imaginable commodity—inspectors of inspectors, road bosses, road employees, and an army of various kinds of wardens and other officials. The stage has nearly been reached where the man who works and pays taxes has to support one idler.

It is not too early to commence to take a census of the available mayoralty and aldermanic candidates. Grand Forks will need good civic officials for the coming year, because it will be our growing time. We want broad-minded men—men who will endeavor to advance the interests of every section of the city, and not men wedded to one of the many cliques that still survive pioneer days, nor men tied to the apron strings of any religious sect or secret society. We need honest men who will give a good, clean administration, without becoming so puritanical that to indulge in a smile on the Lord's day will land the offender in the city bastille. There should be moderation and common sense to all things. Let us have officials with good judgment, and who are not afraid to exercise it. The watchword for 1914 should be "Forward."

Of course it was a foregone conclusion that the Conservative candidate should win in the Islands. He was nominated by the government machine and elected by the road bosses. It is gratifying to learn, however, that the Liberal candidate polled a large vote. Had he been elected he might have asked the government many embarrassing questions from the opposition benches—we were on the point of writing it bench. For instance, he might have wanted to know why it should be necessary to float a new loan in London, what has become of the large surplus, and why a Victoria newspaperman should have been given $45,000 for which no accounting has yet been made.

We are thoroughly disgusted with the hypocritical fellow who poses as a public spirited citizen merely as a shield for lining his own pockets. Nearly every town has some of this species.

The deathknell of the amateur athlete appears to have sounded all over Canada. We appear to have unconsciously drifted to professionalism. There was lots of fun shouting for the athlete from our own town, whom we knew. But with the professional sport it is different. We can not become interested in his work. He is merely a hired man. When he starts out on his career he is content with a bull pup for a companion. Then by natural stages he gravitates to something worse. This may be the reason why he does not enthuse us.

The citizens generally express regret that more people from outside points should not have availed themselves of the opportunity to visit Grand Forks during the provincial poultry show. In view of the fact that the association has carried an advertisement announcing the event in one of the government's paid organs for nearly a year, they naturally looked for better results. Had not The Sun taken compassion on the government and given the show a little gratuitous publicity last week, it might have passed off unnoticed altogether.

Some of the questions asked by the Times in regard to the financial position of the province have been answered by the premier, but not all. We have not been told whether any of the large surplus that so suddenly has melted away was applied to assist

Most Important Events at Home and Abroad During the Past Week

Friday

Simultaneously with the royal proclamation prohibiting the importation of arms into Ireland, Prime Minister Asquith declares his willingness to accept Sir Edward Carson's basis for home rule conciliation.

In addition to scores of volumes of exhibits weighing 300 pounds and containing tables of figures which, if marshalled in single, would stretch from Ottawa to London and then form a girdle around Great Britain, no less than 3,760,800 words have been taken in evidence since the western freight case made its bow before the railway commission in February, 1912.

The Grand Trunk Pacific railway is ordered to give security for $200,000 pending the outcome of the arbitration for a right of way through Fort George.

After searching a third of the Utah Apex mine at Bingham, Utah, the posse which penetrated the stronghold of Ralph Lopez, slayer of six men, came out tonight and announced to the thousands of expectant miners that they had found nothing to indicate the crafty desperado was dead.

The Mexican rebels endeavor to cut off the retreat of the federal soldiers at Chihuahua.

An American corporation with a Mexican connection is believed to be ready to lend thousands of pesos to President Huerta.

Thirty-three persons are known to dead as a result of the great Texas floods.

Saturday

That the natural advantages of the west are such as to entirely make up for any advantages which may accrue to the east as the result of having water competition, was the view urged on the railway board on Saturday morning by M. K. Cowan, K.C., counsel for the provinces of Saskatchewan and Alberta.

W. W. Foster, Conservative candidate in the Islands constituency, is elected to the local house by a majority of 202.

The attempt to reach a settlement of the Dublin strike, which has been in progress for fifteen weeks, has failed.

Denver people turn out with snow shovels, and thousands of men are engaged in the gigantic task of clearing away enormous drifts in the streets.

No foreigners are allowed to join Gen Carranza's army, although hundreds of men offer their services. "A Mexican affair only," says he.

The Chinese are pouring into British Columbia at the rate of almost six hundred a month.

Ulstermen move arms and ammunition to secret depots at night.

Monday

The counsel for Saskatchewan and Alberta in the freight cases summarizes his main contentions and gives reasons why rates should be reduced in the west.

Gen. Villa threatens to confiscate the goods of merchants who raise the cost of living in northern Mexico.

Gaston Doumergue, the Socialist senator, today informed President Poincare that he would accept the office of prime minister of France.

The sheriffs will seal up the workings of the mine at Bingham, Utah, and try once more to asphyxiate Ralph Lopez. It is believed that the desperado is still alive.

Notwithstanding a cold, biting wind, one hundred women, headed by Dr. Anna Shaw, march the streets of Washington, headed for the White House. The president is asked to commit himself on the question of common suffrage.

The failure of the Dublin strike negotiations has caused the deepest disappointment in the country. Both sides admittedly conferred in the friendliest spirit. Larkin protested against the proceedings, but was ignored.

Tuesday

Decisive action is being taken by government at Ottawa today to stop immigration of Hindus into this country for the present. At a meeting of the cabinet an order passed prohibiting further immigration of artisans or laborers into British Columbia from the Pacific or the south until March 31 next. The overcrowded condition of the labor market is given as the cause.

The Mexican congress today nullified the presidential elections. New elections were called for next July. Huerta's position as provisional president is confirmed.

The prospects of a strike of the postal employees in England during the Christmas season was increased by the announcement today of the postmaster general that he would not concede the demand for 15 per cent increase in wages.

Lopez, the Mexican desperado, is still at large in Utah. A thousand dollars reward is offered for his capture.

The Duke and Duchess of Connaught receive a novel invitation—gold nuggets on an illuminated lantern—to visit the Yukon.

Wednesday

The Austrian imperial parliament is suspended amid an uproar.

The Nobel peace prize for 1912 was conferred today on Senator Elihu Root of New York, and that for 1913 on Senator Henri La Fontaine, of Brussels, Belgium.

It is reported that the Dublin strike has been settled and that the men have returned to work.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier criticizes the government at a banquet tendered Hon. W. S. Fielding at Montreal.

The electors of Wick Burga answer criticisms directed against the Asquith administration by giving the government candidate a much increased majority.

Concealed arms are sought in vain by the customs men at Belfast. The luggage of passengers is searched, but nothing incriminating is found.

"The only true purpose," says Richard Jebb, "of our British empire is the promotion and protection of nations and states combined for mutual help under the common crown. We must recognize Canada for Canadians and India for Indians, each state determining its own population and its own institutions."

Thursday

There is to be no general strike in England of the 97,500 government employees in the postal, telegraph and telephone service during the Christmas holiday season.

A Needle in a Haystack

A bottle of hay was formerly much used in Derbyshire, England, and probably is so still, to denote a bundle of hay, which was taken from a rick to fodder cattle in a field. When it was difficult to find anything that had been lost the farmer folk were wont to say: You may as well hunt for it as for a needle in a bottle of hay.

Sometimes the rope tied round the hay had a piece of wood with an eye in it at the end, through which the rope was passed to tie up the bundle and a sharp point at the other end, and this piece of wood may have been called a needle; if so a needle of this kind may have been referred to in the proverbial saying.

Certain morbid conditions must exist in the stomach and intestines to encourage worms, and they will exist as long as these morbid conditions permit them to. To be rid of them and spare the child suffering, use Miller's Worm Powders. They will correct the digestive irregularities by destroying the worms, conditions favorable to worms will disappear, and the child will have no more suffering from that cause.

When Tied Together

An Irish couple, whose married bliss was not without a few squalls, received a homely lecture from their spiritual adviser regarding their disgraceful quarrels.

Dressed the Part

The juvenile of Puddleford had opened their cricket season. The day was fine, and the player, were in good form; in fact everything was in season, even the disgust of the sharp-featured lady whose garden adjoined the pitch.

Funny thing your boy Jimmy can't play a game without having such big ideas, she remarked over the fence to the lady next door. What's he always want to stand umpire for?

Pity you can't get something better to do than to find fault, came the reply. He's got a right to stand umpire if he likes, I suppose.

Daresay he has, snapped the sharp-featured lady; but next time he sneaks my old man's nightshirt off the line to dress himself up in he'll get something that'll make him want to give other fellows a chance.

Turned Down

Dear Mabel, he began, do you love me?

Oh, George! Don't you, Mabel—just .. little, tiny bit?

Well, yes, George. And if I married you would your father give us a separate establishment?

Yes, George. And take me into partnership? Yes, George.

And would your mother keep away from us except when I invited her? She would, George.

And your brothers and sisters, too. Why certainly, George.

And of course the old gent would settle my debts.

Of course, George. And buy us a motorcar and provide you with a handsome dowry?

Yes, George. Darling, will you marry me? No, George!

THE FALL WEATHER HARD ON LITTLE ONES

Canadian fall weather is extremely hard on little ones. One day it is warm and bright and the next wet and cold. These sudden changes bring on colds, cramps and colic and unless baby's little stomach is kept right the result may be serious. There is nothing to equal Baby's Own Tablets in keeping the little ones well. They sweeten the stomach, regulate the bowels, break up colds and make baby thrive. The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

The Lincoln Highway

Toronto, Ont.—A. J. H. Ekhardt, of 107 Niagara street, has written a letter to W. G. Robertson, secretary of the Ontario Motor League here, in which he urges to assist in the building of the Lincoln Highway, sending contributions to the national headquarters in Detroit, Michigan, because he declares, the Lincoln Highway will benefit Canadians far more than residents in many sections of the United States.

"I am writing the lines," says Mr. Ekhardt, "to inform you that I have received from the Lincoln Highway Association a circular asking for $5 each from motor car owners to help build a highway from the Atlantic to the Pacific and asking: Will you help? This is a worthy enterprise. I do not think there is a Canadian but who would appreciate making a trip from the East to the Pacific Coast over this highway. I myself have sent a cheque for $5 and will take pleasure in riding over it some time if everything stays well with me.

Outside of that I appreciate the opportunity to subscribe to a fund in memory of such a grand man as Abraham Lincoln, who was, to my way of thinking, one of the greatest English speaking men ever born, the man who abolished slavery in America. Think how Canadians will appreciate this Highway. Automobile owners in the Southern States, or Michigan or Minnesota have no more right to subscribe to the highway than Canadians. Another reason why Canadians should appreciate this high way is because it will be impossible for Canada to build a motor highway with the rough country to contend with between Toronto and Winnipeg, conditions that are not the same in the United States.

I would like to see the Lincoln Highway proposition brought to the attention of the different motor clubs of Canada and I feel confident the Canadian people will look upon this subject in a very generous manner. Canadians will be much closer to this great highway than the average citizen of the United States. I am writing as a Canadian of the sixth generation, born within 18 miles of Toronto.

He Lost

A golfer noted for his meanness noticed that a strange lad was carrying his clubs.

You're not the boy I have usually had, he said.

No, sir, replied the lad; you see we tossed who'd be caddie for you. Oh, I see, said the golfer, and you won't.

No, answered the caddie, sorrowfully, I lost.

Scored
Mr. Smart was a very tasty old fellow, and there was one thing he hated more than another and that was to be caught napping. As a consequence he was always very suspicious of any deed or word the full meaning of which he could not grasp.

A few days ago he paid a visit to the Zoo, and being fond of animals, was greatly interested, and soon got into conversation with one of the keepers. A very entertaining chat ensued.

As Mr. Smart was about to leave the keeper turned to him and asked: By the way, sir, have you seen our black-faced antelope?

There, thought the old gent, was an attempt to 'have him.'

No, sir, he replied, stiffly. I have not. May I ask with whom it was that your black-faced aunt eloped.

The Widder's Pig

Mike Murphy was taken to task by his spiritual adviser for having stolen Widow Maloney's pig. The evidence against Mike was so direct and positive that it was worse than useless for him to deny the crime, and he listened with downcast eyes and much meekness to a well-deserved lecture from the priest upon the wickedness of the theft he had committed, till the reverend gentleman asked him what he would say on the Day of Judgment when he should be confronted by Mrs. Maloney and her pig, when he brightened up at a happy thought, and said: And ye say that the pig'll be there and Mrs. Maloney'll be there, too, living witnesses against you. What, I repeat, can you say in such a presence?

Yer riverence, I'll say, Widow Maloney, there's yer pig, take it.

Minard's Liniment Relieves Neuralgia

A Good Hand

Booth Tarkington, like most literateurs, writes a wretched hand. Of this he said in New York recently: Once, crossing to Naples, I sat on a chair with pad and fountain pen at work on a short story. A young Peorian stopped before me.

By gosh, he said, I wish I could write as well as you do.

I smiled and the Peorian resumed his promenade. The next time he passed me he said again: Gee, what a hand! If I could only write like that!

Again I smiled a flattered smile, and the Peorian made another round of the deck. Then he said a third time: Oh, if I could only write a hand like yours!

Nettled a little by this third interruption I said: Well, what would you do if you could?

Go to China, said the Peorian, and write labels for tea boxes.

WOMAN COULD NOT WALK

She Was So Ill—Restored to Health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Pentwater, Mich.—"A year ago I was very weak and the doctor said I had a serious displacement. I had backache and bearing down pains so bad that I could not sit in a chair or walk across the floor and I was in severe pain all the time. I felt discouraged as I had taken everything I could think of and was no better. I began taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and now I am strong and healthy."—Mrs. ALICE DARLING, R.F.D. No. 2, Box 77, Pentwater, Mich.

Read What Another Woman says:
Peoria, Ill.—"I had such backaches that I could hardly stand on my feet. I would feel like crying out lots of times, and had such a heavy feeling in my right side. I had such terrible dull headaches every day and they would make me feel so drowsy and sleepy all the time, yet I could not sleep at night."
"After I had taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a week I began to improve. My backache was less and that heavy feeling in my side went away. I continued to take the Compound and am cured."
"You may publish this if you wish."

ADDRESS 700-705 V., GRAIN EXCHANGE, WINNIPEG

Bacon's Mother's Advice
Bacon's mother appears to have kept a sharp eye on his behaviour long after he had attained years of discretion. In 1594, when he was thirty-three years old and the leading orator in the House of Commons, we find her writing to her son:
Look well to your health. Sup not nor sit up late. Surely I think your drinking to bedwards hindereth your and your brother's digestion very much. I never knew any but sickly that used it, besides being ill for head and eyes. Observe well, yet in time.

Indolent
Is Jones lazy? Lazy's no name for it. Why he'll go into a revolving door, and then wait for somebody to come in and turn it around.

She was giving orders at express rate, for they were married; and he as a rule the most meek and submissive of men, was like the proverbial worm, beginning to turn.
Do you think, he inquired, that you rule the whol of the universe?
No, she snapped, but I rule the first letter of it

Successful

The Jest That Recoiled

It Ended With an Unexpected Announcement.

By LOUISE J. STRONG.

Ellison had sometimes imagined what "might have been" had Millicent Waring been other than the only child of a multimillionaire—what would have been, rather, for he would have encompassed heaven and earth to accomplish it, and in his inmost heart he had felt that the accomplishing would not have been difficult.

At times wild pictures had presented themselves of the possibility of the beastly money taking the proverbial wings, opening for him the gates to paradise, but in his saner moments he decided such fancies, for with Mr. Waring to the fore there was not the slightest probability of such an occurrence. Instead, he had arrived at a condition where the wings were a necessity to himself if he would retain a rag of self respect. This cherished self respect was suffering considerably now in the yielding that had brought him back, and he had sternly limited himself to a week, even while calculating how often he might contrive to see her in the time without too greatly transgressing convention.

He was hurrying to his hotel to make himself presentable for an immediate call when, as he whipped into the broad, main avenue, a sight presented itself at which he recoiled as from a blow in the face. Leaning limply against a doorway, he stared, muttering, "Impossible, impossible!"

His wildest imaginings had materialized before his eyes, but he scornfully rejected the suggested explanations of his reason, repeating again and again, "Impossible!"

He was unconscious of the passing throng and too deeply shocked and absorbed to feel surprise when a hand clapped him upon the shoulder and a hearty voice cried: "Hello, old man! When did you blow in?"

Ellison seized the speaker and drew him around the corner.

"Fred," he demanded, "is that Miss Millicent Waring? My eyes tell me so, but I cannot believe them."

"Sure, that's Miss Waring."

"But—but—good heavens, what's she doing in the confectionery shop?"

"Selling, same as other shopkeepers."

"But why? Of course I see she is selling, but why?" He shook the other vehemently.

"Necessity, I suppose, same as the other shopkeepers again," he grinned, winking at a newcomer over Ellison's shoulder.

"Necessity!" yall d Ellison. "You don't mean—you can't mean—"

"Better moderate your emotion, Ellison," the newcomer advised, indicating a bluecoat who was regarding them suspiciously.

"Of course, boys"—Ellison's voice was a murmur—"of course I know you can't mean that she is obliged to do it."

"Why not? Couldn't old man Waring come a financial cropper, same as thousands of others just as astute as he?"

"The world could come to an end," Ellison jeered, but his heart had set up a sudden pounding that dizzied him.

"Comes to an end every day, dear boy, for those money kings when their little card houses tumble. It's a new world for them and their families, too, after that."

"You bet!" exclaimed one of another couple of youths who had added themselves to the group. "Miss Waring is undoubtedly finding a new world, all right."

Sundry sly winks and nods were exchanged by the four young fellows, acquaintances to whom Ellison had forgotten to give a greeting.

"Where's Mr. Waring?" he asked.

"Oh, he's around. He's plucky. He'll pull it off again some time in the near future, I reckon."

"She's pulling them in by the handful, too," said Hughes. "She seems a natural saleslady—has the gift for trade."

Ellison flushed resentfully. "But it cannot be pleasant—"

"Oh, her position has its unpleasant features, of course," Stievan interrupted lightly. "Some of the 'climbers' snub her, and disapproval riots on all sides, but Miss Millicent carries it off well. She might have married—that is, I suppose so," he insinuated, with wicked eyes.

"Yes, she might have married while the old man's pile was intact," Forrest asserted.

"But she didn't. And a wife with prospective millions and one with nothing but expensive habits and passable beauty are two very different things," Stievan asserted.

Ellison turned a furious face upon him and half raised a clenched fist; then, mastering himself, he remarked, "I suppose that's the way the world sees it," and strode away.

The four rascals burst into exuberant delight, digging each other in the ribs and chuckling hilariously as he disappeared down a side street.

Ellison had no coherent thought at first as he tore along. The knowledge that the barrier between them was removed dazed him. But soon he began to turn things over in his mind, to even consider the possibility of his own thousands, which had seemed puerile before, now serving as a foundation for a new beginning on which Mr. Waring might build. The other, the infinitely greater possibility of winning Millicent, he tried to keep in the background until a proper hour for its consideration.

Having at last adjusted himself somewhat to the new conditions, he felt that he could trust himself to see her. They shook hands quietly. There was little opportunity just then for words, but there was a humorous yet tender glint in her eyes as she occasionally glanced at his earnest, preoccupied face while she served a bunch of school children.

The four conspirators let her into the secret and departed to spread broadcast the jest, the prank upon Ellison, whose sentiment toward Miss Waring was an open secret. And presently, by twos and threes and in squads, her old friends and former associates began to saunter by. Some purchased of her with simpering patronage, some with a cold nod of recognition, while others passed with haughty, sneering oblivion of her. Some of the smart youths inclined to a familiarity that almost amounted to rudeness.

Ellison noted it all, his heart growing hotter until it burst all restraint.

"Miss Waring—Millicent," he breathed with low intensity as they were alone for a moment. "I cannot bear this! It may be presumption, improper even, for me to speak here—I cannot help it! I am sure you have long known of my deep love for you, though you cannot realize how it is my very life and soul. I have had so little to offer I felt I could not presume to ask you to give up for me your luxurious position, to—but I can provide you with a comfortable home, and my whole life shall be devoted to"

His stammering speech was interrupted by the laughing, bubbling crowd of conspirators, eager to witness his discomfiture.

"Ha, ha! Look at him!" "Oh, the easy mark!" "Has he offered you his purse, Millicent?" "Ha, ha! The idea of Mr. Waring—" "Failed!" "As if!" "Ha, ha!"

Unheeding the swirl, Miss Waring calmly began counting money from the drawers and piling it in heaps upon the counter. "There," she said at last, "$427.10. That means $854.20 for the hospital from you fellows. You folks who dared me to do this promised to double the amount I took in, you know." She beamed at them sweetly.

"My hat! I never dreamed you'd pull in so much!" gasped Stievan. "It's sure up to us, boys! But, oh, Ellison, sonny! Ellison—you—!" He doubled with joy. "Your face pays for it all! See it now, don't you? Catch on to it? It was such a chance as comes once in a lifetime! Oh, my! Oh, my!"

Ellison perceived and turned a blank, mortified face to apologize to Miss Waring, but she laid a gentle, restraining hand upon his arm and again addressed the gurgling, crowing crowd very sweetly, but distinctly, "I claim your congratulations upon my success as a saleslady, and"—(she blushed adorably)—"and also upon my engagement to Mr. Ellison."

Thief Proof Bulbs.

The thief proof electric lamp bulb is here, called into existence because of the growing habit of replacing dead bulbs with those unscrewed from sockets in a neighboring office or room. No locks are used, the principle simply being that once screwed in a socket they cannot be taken out without smashing them. Once a bulb burns out it may as well be smashed; so there is no loss by this method, but only the inconvenience occasionally that the owner is unable to put in temporary bulbs of higher candle power. The thief is completely foiled. A ratchet arrangement permits the screwing of the bulb into the socket, but prevents it from being unscrewed so long as the bulb is sound. To remove the bulb, the globe is broken; and a catch is then accessible, by means of which the ratchet may be released.—Exchange.

Velveteen which has served its purpose as a dress or blouse should be preserved and made into polishing cloths. In this connection velveteen is almost as good as chamol leather, and cannot only be used for obtaining a fine polish on satin wood and mahogany furniture, but as a means of brightening silver and plated goods. When soiled the velveteen may be successfully cleaned by washing it in soapy lather.

Famous Flags.

There are only a few Old Glories in the Annapolis collection of 173 historic flags, but each is connected with some incident that gives it the honor of its present position. There is the thirty-one starred flag that flew beside the sunrise flag of Japan when the close shut doors of that island kingdom were pried open for American commerce. The old flag that Lieutenant Charles Hayward defended so gallantly in 1847 at San Jose, Lower California, is there to recall the story of how he and his tiny garrison held an old mission house for over three months against an overwhelming Mexican force. Here, too, are a few reminders of our history's saddest war. Side by side in the one case are draped the ensign of the Union man-of-war Kearsage and the stars and bars of the ensign of the Confederate cruiser Albemarle. Another treasure is the ensign of the battleship Maine, which was recovered fourteen years after the catastrophe in Havana harbor.—Christian Herald.

Diamonds and Wealth.

A famous French scientist estimates that all the diamonds recovered in the history of the world could be packed in a box three feet wide, six feet high and eight feet long and would weigh less than thirty tons.

It seems almost beyond the power of mind to grasp the fact that a treasure worth more than a billion dollars in gold could be contained in so small a space. The high value of the gems is still more strikingly illustrated by the fact that gold to the value of a billion dollars would weigh more than 4,000,000 pounds. Diamonds as a measure of money occupy a large place in civilization. But when one takes into consideration how far diamonds are from constituting the real wealth of nations or a measure of brains, of true social standing or worth while success in life the enormous expenditure of human energy represented by the pile of gems valued at a billion dollars is an appalling waste.—Chicago Herald.

The Poison in Poison Ivy.

Poison ivy has long been a mystery both to scientists and laymen. Why and in what manner it causes the peculiar rash and irritating inflammation have puzzled both botanists and physicians. But Dr. Minande of Paris says his study of the plant shows that poison ivy contains prussic acid. This is found principally in the young leaves and buds. In older leaves there is very little of it.

In three and one-half ounces of young leaves there is about a quarter of a grain of the acid.

As with other plants in which prussic acid is found, the poisonous substance does not exist in its perfect form, but develops as soon as the leaves are bruised, a chemical action being set up through the union of an enzyme with a glucosid.

They Don't Want Strangers.

In the northwestern part of Switzerland, far from the tourist's path, is a little town, Seizach, where for more than 250 years watchmaking has been the chief industry. "There are no machines in the place for the production of watch parts—the men work as did their fathers and grandfathers," says the Berlin Post. "A feature of the place is the Passion play, produced every summer by the watchmakers and the members of their families. These simple people have succeeded in maintaining for their play a modest dignity and have not allowed it to become commercial. The few notices of the Saturday performances which one sees in the neighboring places contain the information that the town cannot accommodate many strangers."

Careful John.

A rural storekeeper was greatly bothered by rats which infested his building, says the St. Louis Post-Dispatch. Also he possessed a valuable watchdog which guarded the premises at night. One night, just before he locked up, he scattered poison around the place and left a note on the counter for the clerk who opened the store in the morning.

The clerk found the note as was intended. But he nearly dropped through the floor when he read:

"Jerry—you take the poison in the morning so the dog won't get it. There is some in the cellar too, John."

The Signal.

"How do you endure listening to Bligins' funny stories? He spoils them by laughing at them himself."

"That's what I like about him. You don't have to listen in order to laugh at the right time. All you have to do is to wait till he gives the signal."—Washington Star.

"If I had my life to live over," she began.

"Yes, I know," he interrupted. "If you had your life to live over you would marry one of the fellows who proposed to you before I came along."

"Nothing of the kind," she replied.

"If I had my life to live over I'd marry some weak minded, brutal person. Then I'd have nothing to expect and shouldn't be disappointed."—Chicago Record-Herald.

Mark Twain's Retreat.

At a hotel in Jericho was an American who had accompanied Mark Twain on his camping trip through the Holy Land.

"No, sir," said he in the course of the evening's conversation, "I cannot recall a single instance when the humorist was caught napping. Once we thought we had him sure. Mr. Twain came late to the dinner table, when we had sat down, and before he appeared we had invented a clever trap."

"He was still several courses behind when the rest of us were ready for salad, but every one stopped eating until Mr. Twain caught up. He had started before he noticed that no one else was eating. He paused questioningly. That was our opportunity."

"Now, Mr. Twain," some one asked, "why are you like Nebuchadnezzar?" expecting that the answer would imply that it was because he was eating grass like an ox. Instead, and without an instant's hesitation, came the retort:

"Because I am feeding with the brutes."—Pearson's Weekly.

Ice Glazed Salmon.

Ice jackets have been found to be the best protection for frozen salmon on their long journeys from the Pacific coast to all parts of the world. Thousands of tons of salmon are now frozen in the great factories of the coast for export, because the combination of the ice jackets and the frozen meat has been found to keep the fish from becoming tainted. After the salmon are bled they are kept at a temperature of zero, or near there, for forty-eight hours and are frozen hard. If they were shipped this way, however, the air would get to the fish to some extent and tainting would result, so they are dipped in tanks of water and given another freezing. This puts a thin jacket of ice all over each fish, or glazes him, as it is called. After two coats of glazing the salmon are wrapped in paper, packed in paper lined boxes and started to the export markets.—Saturday Evening Post.

Lucky Lightning Strikes.

To be struck by lightning is still a most lucky thing for the Greek peasant—if he is not killed. "Such a man," says J. C. Lawson, "may indulge a taste for idleness for the rest of his life—his neighbors will support him—and enjoy at the same time the reputation of being something more than human." This is an inheritance from ancient days. Artemidorus, an authority on occult matters who flourished in the times of Marcus Aurelius, commented on the fact that while a place struck by lightning had an altar erected upon it and was thenceforth both honored and avoided, "no one who has been struck by lightning is excluded from citizenship; indeed, such a one is honored even as a god." The election of Quintus Julius Ebrurus to the consulship in 110 B. C. is attributed to his having been favored thus by the gods.—London Spectator.

1st, 2d and 4th.

"Do the letters 'st,' 'd' and 'th' have to be followed by a period when used thus: 1st, 2d, 4th? What is this combination—an abbreviation, contraction or merely a sign?"

In the forms 1st, 2d, 4th, etc., we have ordinal numerals in which an Arabic figure is substituted for the spelled out name of the cardinal number from which the ordinal is derived. The letters added to the Arabic numeral form the specific inflection which changes the cardinal to an ordinal numeral. The forms in question, then, are neither abbreviations nor contractions, nor yet mere signs. They are like a humorist's bit for before, only they are not whimsical, as they would be if no one had seen them before and some one should suddenly use them.—Literary Digest.

When Juris Mets.

Up in Alaska there used to be a district attorney who was long on native oratory, but short on education. Once, while prosecuting a big case, he came to the finish of his argument, and, according to Wilson Mizner, who was up there at the time, he leaned across the rail and made this plea:

"All I ask of you, gentlemen of the jury, is that you now retire and mete out justice as she deserves to be met!"—Saturday Evening Post.

He Made Them Read It.

Daughter—Have you found out yet what it was that papa cut out of the paper? Mother—Yes. I bought a copy. I've read it all through, but to save my life I can't see anything wrong in it. It's an article on the vulgarity and silliness of buying gowns that are beyond one's means.

To Freshen a Feather Bed.

If you have a feather bed that has become rather limp looking because it has been out in damp weather, try this means of freshening it. It is best to try it, too, as soon as you come in:

Take a bowlful of boiling water, sprinkle into a handful of ordinary white salt and then when it is dissolved shake the feather bed in it.

MAGIC OF HOUDIN

He Scared the Algerians and Conquered the Nation.

A LITTLE BLACK BOX DID IT.

By the Aid of a Magnet and a Current of Electricity He Struck Terror to the Hearts of the Arabs and Took All the Desire For Fight Out of Them.

"These are great times," exulted the Electrician to his friend the Old Fogey. "With machine guns and other instruments of war we certainly are going some in the fighting game."

"Yes," agreed the Old Fogey as he adjusted his glasses, "but do you know that before such things were dreamed of an entire nation was conquered with a magnet and a little black box?"

And the Electrician confessed, "No!" "You have heard, no doubt," the Old Fogey rambled on, "of the marvelous inventions of Robert Houdin, the great French conjurer, a man who did great things with electricity when Alexander Graham Bell was an infant."

"Houdin applied electricity to many of his magical experiments and delighted the Parisian public for years in his little theater. When he retired he was the most favored performer of his day and had bowed to the plaudits of royalty."

"Heard all about that," snapped the Electrician. "What about the black box?"

"Coming to that, boy; coming to that. Houdin retired to his family estate on the left banks of the River Loire near St. Gervaise, hoping to end his days in peace. But after a year or so there came to him through a military friend a request from the French government that he go to Algiers."

"In his memoirs, translated into English some years before his death, he says that the Marabouts of that country, a sort of medicine men and wonder-working priests, controlled the masses and incited them to intermittent revolts against the French by their tricks. These tricks, he assures us, were of the simplest and most primitive type."

"It was the hope of the French government that Houdin by his mysteries could demonstrate that the white conqueror's magic was superior. And Houdin did it."

"With the little black box and the magnet?"

"Yes. His recital of his performance in Algiers is exceedingly interesting. Some of the most distinguished natives were there. Houdin showed them all sorts of things; allowed himself to be shot at and caught the bullet unharmed and many other such feats."

"But his piece de resistance undoubtedly was his box. He called for a strong man to come on the stage, and a giant responded. Houdin toyed with him for a moment, bantered with him about his strength and asked him if he could lift his little black box. Disdainfully the Arab lifted it and smiled."

"But Houdin warned him: 'Wait. But a moment, and you shall be as a little child!' He placed the box on the stage over the magnet and dared his huge guest to raise it. The Arab tried with one finger; grasped it with his great muscular hand; tugged at it with all the strength of his massive arms, bracing his legs like two huge bronze columns, so Houdin says, to no avail. Try as he would, this son of the desert could not stir that little box from its place."

"For a breathing spell he released his grip for a moment, then went at it again as Houdin gave a signal to have the current turned off. And while the awe-stricken audience panted in amazement he suddenly writhed in acutest agony and sank groveling to the stage. The current coursing through him had galvanized him into misery."

"Then Houdin gave a signal, the current from the electro magnet beneath the stage was turned off, and the Arab fell back groaning. He lifted himself to his feet and, hiding his face in his cloak, crept away to blush unseen. The little black box had conquered."

"And?"—inquired the Electrician.

"And," replied the Old Fogey, "Houdin was triumphant. The country had seen him shot at by a man who said he wished to kill; had seen him rob a giant of his strength. No Marabout had ever done that. No Marabout with primitive tricks could convince them that any revolt of theirs could prevail against the white man and his magic—his electricity. The conqueror's conquest was complete."—Popular Electricity.

"Had to abandon them in favor of a suffragette department."—Washington Herald.

LIVE CITY SNAPSHOTS

A Grand Forks business man on Monday related to The Sun a rather clever trick that he performed Saturday night. After closing the store at about 10, he spent the balance of the evening with a commercial traveller—buying goods and exchanging the latest anecdotes. When he reached home his wife awoke from her slumbers. "How late you are tonight, dear," she said. "Why, it must be nearly 12." Just then the business man glanced at the clock, and saw that it was about to strike 4. With rare presence of mind he stepped over to it and stopped it until his better half had returned to dreamland.

Charles McAllister, who aided materially in making conditions hum in Grand Forks in pioneer days, returned to the city yesterday. During the past seven or eight years he has been engaged in contracting work at the coast.

A social dance will be given in the Grunwell hall at Danville on New Year's eve. Thomas' orchestra will supply the music.

Parents of school children that are beginning school next term are requested to hand in the names of pupils to Mr. Hull at the post office or to the principal of the public school.

H. E. Waby, of Enderby, who specializes in breeding Buff Orpington and Barred Rocks, is in the city this week attending the provincial poultry show.

The public and high schools will close next Friday for the holiday season. They will reopen on the first Monday in the new year.

At last there are indications of a white Christmas. The quality of the weather which we had during the poultry show should prove as good an advertisement for the city as the show itself.

TAKES OFF DANDEUFF, HAIR STOPS FALLING

Save your Hair! Get a 25 cent bottle of Danderine right now—Also stops itching scalp.

Thin, brittle, colorless and scraggy hair is mute evidence of a neglected scalp; of dandruff—that awful scurf. There is nothing so destructive to the hair as dandruff. It robs the hair of its lustre, its strength and its very life; eventually producing a feverishness and itching of the scalp, which if not remedied causes the hair roots to shrink, loosen and die—then the hair falls out fast. A little Danderine tonight—now—any time—will save your hair.

Get a 25 cent bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any drug store. You surely can have beautiful hair and lots of it if you will just try a little Danderine. Save your hair! Try it!

It is desirable that you do your Christmas shopping early. It is also important that you ship your presents in time. Half the pleasure of receiving a gift is taken away by getting it a few days after the event for which it was intended.

Mrs. C. A. Wallace and Mrs. Eva Trahan left on the Great Northern Wednesday morning for Spokane, where they will spend the winter. Mr. Wallace will join them in a couple of weeks.

Two travelling men reached a small place in Alabama late one evening and found there was no room to be had at the hotel. The proprietor did not want to disappoint them, as they were regular patrons, so he told them that he would send some bedding over to an old church he just bought and make them as comfortable as possible there. About midnight the whole town was startled by the furious ringing of the church bell. An old colored man was sent by the proprietor to see what was the matter. Soon he came running back. "Massa Boss!" he exclaimed, "Massa Boss! Jes' cam' yo'self 'Twan't nothin' but de gemmen in pew twenty-six ringin' fo' a drink!"
