

IRRIGATION SYSTEM THIS SEASON

THE Kettle valley is to have a general irrigation system this summer. This was definitely decided at the largest and most representative gathering of ranchers ever held in the city in the city hall this evening. The system selected is to raise the water from the river with electric pumps. It can be installed cheaply and in the shortest possible time, yet it was shown that it will be as efficient as a more expensive gravity system.

President Rooke, of the Farmers' institute, presided. He called on Lorne A. Campbell, manager of the West Kootenay Power & Light company, for his views on the subject.

Mr. Campbell said that engineers of his company had gone over the ground carefully, and obtained levels. Nearly all the land in the valley could be irrigated at a cost of $50 an acre if wooden pipes were used, but on account of the short life of wooden pipes he did not advise the adoption of this scheme. Steel pipe would add 100 per cent to the above cost, which would make that system out of the question, as it would be too heavy a tax on the land at present. He was of the opinion that the most economical, as well as the best, system that could be adopted would be for the ranchers to build wooden flumes and install individual pumping plants. The flumes could be constructed very cheaply, and his company would sell electric power for pumping purposes at a rate of 3 cents per k.w. hour. This would bring the cost to $5 an acre per annum for 24 acre inches of water, based on a lift of 50 feet. If the lift was lower or higher, the cost would be lowered or raised proportionately. In some instances two or three small ranchers could combine and install a joint plant. For lighting purposes he would sell power at the same rate as he charged the city. The company would deliver the power at each pumping plant. At many places, in order to avoid carrying the water great distances, it would be advisable to sink wells. His company controlled all the water in the river, and they intended to hold on to it; but they would sell power to the ranchers and allow them to pump from the river. Water could be lifted to a height of 150 feet and be made to pay commercially. Mr. Powell, an irrigation expert from Wenatchee, had informed him that the land in this valley required 24 acre inches per annum. By adopting the individual pumping system, he said, the farmer only paid for the power he used. Some land did not require as much water as other; a bearing orchard needed more water than a young orchard, and some seasons the rainfall was nearly sufficient to raise crops without irrigation.

J. L. Manly then explained his gravity irrigation project, the details which were published in THE SUN a few weeks ago. He would dam the Kettle river at Curlew or Midway, and bring the water across the international boundary line in wooden pipes to each ranch in the valley. If he had no right to bring the water from the American side, it would cost the ranchers nothing, as his company would stand the cost of all litigation. The time for irrigation had come, and the water would come. Work on his system would begin on the first of March. He maintained that a gravity system was superior to any other. The cost would be $50 per acre, payable in ten yearly installments. At the end of ten years the ranchers would own the system. The ranchers would have to pay for the maintenance of the plant. He was making his contracts for 12 acre inches of water per annum. He had made the assertion last spring that he would put in water, and he would stand by it. There would be no danger of the water freezing in the pipes during the winter months, as it would always be in motion. He wanted 4000 acres to irrigate, but would install his plant if he only got one-half of that acreage. The money for the installation of the system would draw 6 per cent interest. He had not yet decided whether he would put the intake at Curlew or Midway. If at the latter place, the water at this end could be raised 180 feet. He was of the opinion, however, that the intake would be just this side of Curlew. If at any time the company should fail to deliver the water through litigation, the contracts would be null and void, and payments would stop. He expressed the opinion that a big irrigation plant would add a million dollars to the value of the land in the valley.

At the conclusion of Mr. Manly's remarks, a hearty vote of thanks was tendered him and Mr. Campbell for trouble in compiling irrigation statistics.

Messrs. Campbell and Manly then retired, and those present considered the merits and demerits of the two propositions. After a thorough discussion, in which nearly everybody present expressed their views, the question as to which scheme should be endorsed was put to a vote, which resulted in 31 to 1 in favor of Mr. Campbell's individual pumping system. This almost unanimous vote in favor of the Mr. Campbell's scheme was due to the facts that it can be installed in the shortest time, the reasonable rate charged for power, and to the absolute certainty of obtaining water whenever it is required. The further considerations that each rancher is independent of his neighbor regarding the water supply, and that power can be purchased for electric lighting purposes, were also strong arguments in its favor. On the other hand, the farmers were afraid that Mr. Manly's proposal to bring the water across the line might involve him in legal difficulties, and that the supply might be cut off at a time when the water would be most needed. The uncertainty as to the time when he would be able to complete his plant, and the lack of reliable statistics as to the life of wooden pipe, also worked against the adoption of his plan.

After the announcement of the vote, Mr. Campbell was recalled to hall. He stated that if at any time the farmers desired any further information in regard to the system than had been given out during the evening, it would be cheerfully furnished either by himself or Mr. Gibson. The power, he said, would be ready to hook onto the pumps by the first of April.

H. C. Kerman, W. A. Cooper and Messrs. McMasters and Feighner were appointed a committee to investigate the most suitable kind of pump, to obtain quotations for same, and to work out other details in connection with the scheme.

The meeting then adjourned, to reconvene at the call of the committee.

METEOROLOGICAL

The record of the rainfall at this since the installation of the government rain gauge on Cooper Bros' ranch is:

	INCHES	Snowfall
January	14.90	14.90

The heaviest snowfall during the month started at 12.45 p.m. on the 17th and continued until the night of the 18th and during that time 5.75 inches of snow fell.

During the night of February 1st the thermometer fell from 32° at 10 p.m. to zero at 6 a.m., a fall of 32° in eight hours, and the barometer rose from 28.00 to 28.40 (Grand Forks altitude reading) during the same time. This is the greatest fall of the thermometer and the greatest raise of the barometer during any night since 1904.

CUSTOMS RECEIPTS

R. R. Gilpin, customs officer at this port, makes the following detailed report of the customs receipts at the various sub-offices, as reported to the chief office in this city, for the month of January:

MARRIED

Harry Lutley, of Grand Forks, and Miss Olive Henderson, of Calgary, were united in marriage at the home of the bride's parents, 621 Fourteenth avenue west, Calgary, Alta., on Thursday, February 2. Mr. Lutley has been employed at the Granby smelter ever since the first furnace was blown in, and is at present one of the shift bosses at the works. The bride resided in this city until last fall, and has a wide circle of friends here. The couple will make their home in Grand Forks.

URGES WORK ON PUBLIC BUILDINGS

THE Grand Forks board of trade, at a well attended meeting held last night, expressed itself quite strongly in favor of the federal and provincial governments commencing immediate construction on the two public buildings in this city. A committee was appointed to draft a resolution, and forward the same to Ottawa, urging the Dominion government to start work at once on the new postoffice. Another committee was also appointed to take similar action in regard to the new provincial court house. The question of the C. P. R. making this city a division point was also discussed, and a committee was appointed to draft a resolution favoring such action being taken by the company.

Mrs. Glanville were away from home. All their household effects were also burned. The origin of the fire is unknown.

The Danville Lumber company at Danville has sold all the lumber in the yard, and a full crew is planing and loading as fast as cars can be secured. Plans are being made to put in new machinery before beginning to cut on this year's river drive.

Thomas Cunningham, inspector of fruit pests, states that certified invoices of all shipments of nursery stock, trees and plants must be furnished to the inspector of fruit pests at Vancouver when such shipments are delivered for inspection. This will greatly expedite inspection. It is in the interests of importers that mistakes can be checked that may have been made in shipping. The importation of nursery stock is largely on the increase, and Mr. Cunningham is completing additional facilities for inspection. If importers will comply with the regulations delays will be avoided.

It will be good news to the lovers of winter sports in this city that Rossland has decided to hold her regular winter carnival this year. Winter sport is the best kind of sport, and Rossland is fortunately situated in having a splendid rink for skating and an abundance of snow for ski jumping and other sports. The dates now set are from February 14 to 18, and unless there is a radical change in the weather these will hold good.

Following out the statements recently made by James J. Hill in Vancouver that the Great Northern would push construction on the V., V. & E. line from Princeton westward across the Hope mountains, the announcement was made this week that within a short time tenders will be called for the grading of forty-two miles of line between the new coal town of Cardiff, west of Princeton, and Summit on the Coquahalla river. It was also stated that steel would be laid this year from Princeton to Cardiff and from Abbotsford east to a point in the vicinity of Sumas river. Work is at present shut down at the eastern end of the proposed route between the Boundary country and the coast, but it is believed that within a short time construction operations will be resumed.

L. Reineke, of the geological survey department, spent the past season on the West Fork of the Kettle river. He has been engaged in topographically and geologically surveying this district for the Dominion government, and reports as follows regarding the mining development: "The small silver-lead workings near Beaverdell, on the West Fork of Kettle river, had shipped nearly $100,000 worth of ore at the end of 1910. The ore was hauled for nearly 50 miles by wagon to the railway, and only such as averaged $100 per ton or over could be shipped with profit. The mine was shut down in February of last year, and mining is now practically at a standstill. A railway is being constructed from Midway, on the United States boundary, through Beaverdell. Renewed activity is expected in the mines upon its completion. A promising seam of soft coal has been recently opened in the tertiary shales near Midway. Placer gold, gold-silver and copper prospects were formerly worked along Kettle river and its tributaries—Rock creek and West Fork.

WILL MARRY AVIATOR

MISS PAULINE CHASE TO WED GRAHAME-WHITE.

"Pink Fajama Girl," as London Actress Is Known, Is Protege of Mr J. M. Barrie; the Famous Playwright and Novelist—Also Played Peter Pan in the Play of the Same Name.

In the marriage of Miss Pauline Chase to Claude Grahame-White, which event, it has been announced, will take place before the elapse of many months, a beautiful and popular actress will become the bride of a famous aviator—an Englishman whose marvelous work is known to Canadians as well as to his admirers abroad.

The aviator's bride is equally famed in her particular line of work. She obtained her first stage success as a member of the Edna May Company in London. She is particularly admired in England and on the continent. Perhaps her fame lies chiefly in her enarming interpretation of the Pink Fajama Girl, though in J. M. Barrie's Peter Pan, in which she appeared in London and Paris, she was ideal in the part of the fairy boy, who never grew up. Miss Chase, by the way, is the adopted daughter of Mr. Barrie. She and her fiance have been acquainted for seven years and it has long been known that the aviator deeply admired the clever little stage favorite.

It will be remembered that at the time of Mr. Barrie's divorce from his wife there was a story circulated that he was to marry Miss Chase, but the announcement of the coming marriage gives the quietus to any such rumor.

Played Cricket With Edward VII.

Lord Halifax, who at the Church Congress spoke so strongly about our divorce laws, has been president of the English Church Union for over forty years. A real church worker, Viscount Halifax was also an intimate friend of the late King Edward, with whom he used to play cricket at Windsor fifty years ago. Lord Halifax has many interesting recollections of his boyhood. His Yorkshire parish was at one time served by a curate of sporting proclivities, who always wore a white neckcloth with a gold pin, was never (except on Sundays) without a flower in his coat, hunted in top-boots, and shot in brown velvet, with a servant and dog at his heels. His lordship saw many things at Eton which would seem strange to the boys there now, and remembers how the whole of "My Dame's" were swished, from the top to the last boy, for a row connected with playing football in the passages after lock-up.

"The Best 'Arper in England."

Concerning the time when he was singing in "Tannhauser" with the Moody-Manners Company in Birmingham, Eng., Mr. Joseph O'Mara, the well-known singer, who is appearing at Covent Garden during the opera season, tells an amusing story. Two young folks, apparently lovers, were heard to speak in high terms of the performance of Mr. O'Mara on his dummy harp with the five strings. Neither had the least notion that the music came from the prosaic person "in another place," and so the words ran from the lips of the girl: "My, 'ow beautiful he played that 'arp!" To which the young man, who had to maintain his position as a superior person of information, replied: "Yes; 'e is reckoned one of the best 'arpers in England!"

Manitoba Cattle Scarce.

The report of the Manitoba Department of Agriculture contains some pertinent figures on the cattle industry. Last year there were 372,520 cattle in the province; in 1908 there were 415,483 cattle, and in 1907 there were 463,862. The decline of nearly one hundred thousand head in two years in the face of a rapidly increasing population is a serious matter. There is an even more marked decline in the sheep industry. As long ago as 1893 there were 35,400 sheep in Manitoba. The numbers have steadily decreased, until in 1909 there were but 17,922. The hog industry alone seems to be thriving; the numbers have been gradually increasing, jumping from 104,113 in 1905 to 135,541 last year.

BACKWOODS' PHILOSOPHY.

Being Some Extracts From Old Abe Ward's Diary.

Abe Ward lived many years ago in the backwoods of Northern Ontario, when those parts were only just becoming known to the outside world. He was a good bushman, with a kind heart and a wise old head. In fact, his memory is kept green by the present generation around Simon Creek by numerous tales of the "sage of the bush."

Far away from the influence of progressive civilization, Abe thought and worked and lived by rules of his own, and even set wise precepts for his neighbors. Nobody could tell anything about Abe. His past life was a closed book. Where he came from and what he had been was never known. Abe rarely talked, and when he did he would not be drawn into a conversation about himself. He was a great favorite, however, with the whole countryside. Even Jim Faber and Peter Staker, who were the most disolute fellows for miles, would speak in high terms of Abe, and when one cold December morning he was found dead in his lonely shack, it was a mournful procession that laid his body reverently to rest a few hours later. Travelers to those parts to-day linger long over the stone erected by the boys, bearing the strange epitaph, "A dead man must be more useful than either."

When Abe died, among his earthly treasures were a bundle of pieces of bark on which were scratched numerous notes. These have been preserved and are known around Simon Creek as "Abe's Diary." Everybody for miles around has read the diary, but until now none of it has ever been published.

Here are some extracts from Abe's Diary. This part is known in Simon Creek as "The Bushman's Creed."

"I believe there is a source to every creek, a root to every tree, and a God at the beginning of both.

"I believe in a strong arm, a cool head, and a sharp axe with a stout shaft.

"I believe the best way to split a tough proposition is to use a good set of wedges, and swing a beadle.

"I believe in a future existence. If dead trees make good timber, and dead leaves enrich the ground, a dead man must be more useful than either.

"I believe the strongest part of a pine is the smell; the surest thing about the hemlock, its color, and the noblest thing about a man, his character. The pine-smell can travel a mile. The hemlock-blood dye a hide, but the influence of a good character is unbounded.

"I believe there is only one way possible for a tree to fall, and that is the way it means living. So with a man.

"I believe in gathering up the brush as I go along. It keeps the path clear for others."

But for the almost religious care taken of Abe's diary by dotting friends, it would 'ere now have followed the fate of all other pieces of bark. It is a source of lasting credit to the inhabitants of Simon Creek that they had the wisdom and foresight to keep the unique diary intact. Abe touched on many subjects of human interest, and because he expressed himself in an original way, heedless of the dictates of orthodoxy, casting aside the rigid claims of a narrow, petty-minded generation, his words immediately took new life and presented truths in simple language.

Here are two others of his short philosophical sayings, referring to human life in general:

"The highest form of life in this world is human, and as the acorn is to the oak, so human life contains the seed of something greater.

"A tree that bears branches on one side only cannot grow stately."

A Glove Cleaning Hint.

In washing chamol gloves do not wring them or even squeeze very dry, as with ordinary glove cleaning. The skins pull easily, and wringing breaks the tender fabric.

Put the rinsed gloves into a thick Turkish towel and press out most of the moisture, then hang them in a strong current of air to dry. Fasten the pair together by buttons and hang with fingers down.

The shrinking, of which many women complain in chamol glove washing, can be overcome by drying the gloves on the hand after they come from the Turkish towel and a few minutes airing.

Rub gently until dry. The heat of the hand makes this drying a quicker process than most women imagine, and there is little danger of taking cold.

Do not neglect rinsing as well as washing in soapy water if you do not wish your gloves to stiffen.

Lady Gordon's Dress Ideas.

Lady Duff Gordon thinks that every woman should dress according to her face and form. Middle aged women, she thinks, should not follow the fashions, but should have fashions of their own, as a dress that suits one's own face and form doubles the chances for looking well, which is all middle aged women may expect.

ON THE ROCKS.

A Mistake Is a Serious Matter to a Lake Captain.

Captains on the big passenger boats are expected to "know navigation," but a sea captain depending on navigation alone would make a sorry flat of it on the Lakes. "Navigation" is no good in a snowstorm. In fact, in that contingency, most lake captains prefer to tie up, or, if caught in mid-lake, to proceed with extreme caution, laying to, if at all practicable, under the lee of Whitefish Point, an island, or some such shelter.

In a snow-storm every landmark or light on shore is shut off as by a wall. The stars are naught. The sun is blotted out from the sky. There is no sky. A Lake Superior snow-storm isolates a ship in space. She is nowhere—only a little patch of black water and a great opaque, smothering cloud of driving snow, close over-arched and all-enveloping. It is at times like these that most of the lake disasters occur. "Went ashore in a snowstorm," is the commonest explanation of loss by shipwreck on the Upper Lakes.

When it is considered that a very small divergence from the angle of the prescribed course might, in the reach of a night's run, make a difference of fifty miles, and when it is further considered that some of the "passages" are narrower by far than that at Thunder Cape, opening up into the famous Thunder Bay, a doorway of four and a half miles, it will be admitted that loose courses, however they may be considered by the sea captain of Jim's acquaintance, won't do on Lake Superior. Two degrees may make but little difference to a liner on the Atlantic. The divergence can be made up next day or any time, like a man walking across a prairie—he doesn't keep to a line like a garden path. But on the Lakes, especially on Superior and Georgian Bay, two degrees divergence, from the course would in some cases bring on a bad case of shipwreck in half an hour. The Athabasca went on the Flower Pots, due to a wheelman's mistake, in less time than that.

Captain Brown of the Athabasca had been a C.P.R. captain for fifteen years. No more careful or experienced man was there on the Lakes.

He started out with the Athabasca from Owen Sound, one day last fall, and it came on to snow. Out off the Bruce, the sea was rolling and the night came down thick as a blanket. Georgian Bay was getting the full sweep of a nor-wester. Wisely Captain Brown decided to put about and run back to Owen Sound.

On nearing Flower Pot Island the captain sent a man back to read the log. By his watch he knew it must be nearly time to wear around the end of the island. He told the man to wait by the log until the figures read right and to come forward when on the run.

"Fly," said he, and the expression was quoted afterwards at the investigation. The island itself was invisible in the storm. To be sure of leaving plenty of room between it and the sail, until they were past far enough to turn, Captain Brown ordered the wheel to star-board. The wheelman, as he afterward testified, reversed his order by mistake, and put his wheel to port. For a moment the Athabasca ran on the false course. Then the captain noticed the compass and signalled the engine room to reverse. At the same moment the man came running up from the stern with the log reading. The point of the island was therefore dead ahead. Another moment on the proper course and the Athabasca would have cleared the Flower Pot, and Captain Brown would be a C.P.R. captain to-day.

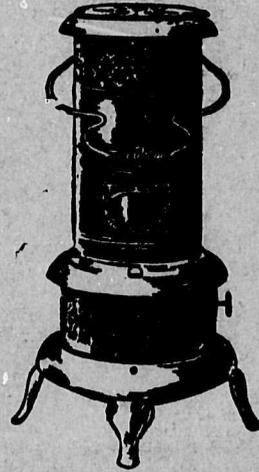

The vessel's way gradually slackened, and she was sheering off to star-board when, with scarcely noticeable shock, she slid up the flat rock of a ledge and rested there as quietly as in a dock. For the island broke the seas and the vessel lay in a lee calm. And there she had to stay until the tugs took her off and she steamed into Owen Sound a day later.

Captain Brown's papers were withdrawn on the head of this accident, and though the vessel went into dry dock and only one and a half plates had to be replaced, he remained under suspension for nine months. Not when, in response to a petition signed by the captains and mates of the Great Lakes and presented by the local members of Parliament, the Government restored his papers, did the captain regain his old berth with the C.P.R., which goes to show how completely the companies impress the cruel weight of responsibility upon their captains.

Plenty of Time.

Concerning the Bishop of Ripon, who has been prominent during the Church Congress, many stories are told. Although he is a magnificent preacher he never talks above the heads of his congregation. Queen Victoria had a very high opinion of his preaching, and a friend once asked him if he felt nervous when preaching before Her Majesty. "I never address the Queen at all," replied the bishop. "I know there will be present the Queen, the princes, the household, and the servants, down to the scullery-maid—and I preach to the scullery-maid." Once, while addressing an open-air meeting, an atheist asked him if he believed that Jonah was swallowed by a whale. "When I go to heaven I will ask Jonah," said his lordship. "But supposing," the other persisted, "he is not there?" "Then you will have to ask him," was the quick retort.

A New Tipping Hat

One of the most curious of all labor saving devices is that for a self-tipping hat, according to Popular Mechanics. The inventor, believing that even a Beau Brummell wastes much valuable energy in the frequent lifting of his hat, describes his invention as "a novel device for automatically effecting polite salutations by the elevation and rotation of the hat on the head of the saluting person, or persons saluted, the action of the hat being produced by mechanism therein and without the use of the hands in any manner." The hat is provided in the crown with a clock gearing which is set into action by a pendulum. When the man bows the pendulum swings, and the spring gearing being released thereby, raises and tips the hat.

It Belongs to Those Depending on You. For Their Sakes Preserve Health and Strength.

You never thought of it just this way before. While not feeling well you have neglected to take active means of restoring health, thinking all the time that you were the only one to suffer by delay.

Not so. For who among us has not someone depending on him for comfort, happiness or the means of livelihood?

When you lie awake, nights, worry over little things, get nervous and irritable, have indigestion and headaches, you may be sure the nervous system is becoming exhausted.

Time is not yours to delay. You must call a halt to the wasting process. Otherwise you will have a rude awakening some day, when prostrations, paralysis or locomotor ataxia lays you low. For such is the natural and inevitable results of neglected nervous diseases.

You can restore the nervous system by using Dr. A. W. Chase's Nerve Food. Being composed of Nature's most potent nerve restoratives, it cannot fail to benefit you. Each dose must of necessity bring you nearer to health, strength and vigor.

Mr. William Branton, Victoria St., Strathroy, Ont., writes:—"Before using Dr. A. W. Chase's Nerve Food my nervous system seemed all unstrung. I could not sleep, had no appetite, hands and feet were cold, my digestion was poor and I had jerking of the limbs. The first box of Dr. A. W. Chase's Nerve Food helped me, and I continued until I had taken twenty-four boxes. This treatment has made a radical change in my condition, building up the system and strengthening the nerves."

For Skin Sufferers

If you, or someone dear to you, have undergone the itching, burning, sleep-destroying torments of eczema or other cruel skin eruption and have suffered from its embarrassing, unsightly disfigurement; if you have tried all manner of treatment, no matter how harsh, to no avail, and have all but given up hope of cure, you can appreciate what it means to thousands of skin-tortured sufferers, from infancy to age, when the first warm bath with Cuticura Soap and gentle application of Cuticura Ointment brings instant relief, permits rest and sleep, and proves the first step in a speedy and successful treatment.

BRITAIN'S WEALTH.

Figures About a Thing Everyone Discusses But Few Understand.

Eighty years ago the total earnings of all the people living in the British Isles, amounted to 515 millions of pounds. These earnings have been increased at such an amazing rate that for the year ending March 31st, 1910, they passed the thousand-million mark, says Answers in a recent issue.

Of course, this does not mean that we are all twice as rich as our ancestors were in 1830, for, in the meantime, the population of the country has nearly doubled; so, in reality, we are very much where we were before.

The jump in the national income from last year to this year is, according to the "Report of the Commissioners of Inland Revenue," no less than twenty-nine million pounds; but this increase is largely explainable by the far more effective methods for ascertaining income which have recently been introduced.

For instance, in 1908-9 only fourteen individuals and seventy-nine firms paid income-tax on incomes of £50,000 or over. These figures rose in a twelvemonth to twenty individuals, and ninety-nine firms. The increase is too great to be natural, and must be due to the new forms of income-tax imposition.

After all, the question of our gross national income is not of any particular interest to you or me, who work for our living. What we want to know is whether wages and salaries are on an upward or downward grade.

In the engineering and shipbuilding trades the wages paid a quarter of a century ago did not exceed 36s. a week. They have since risen by two or three shillings, and at the same time, the hours of work have slightly decreased.

Ironfounders, who, in 1885, were paid 38s. now get £2, or more. Shipwrights' wages have remained fairly steady at about 42s.; but the number of hours worked weekly has diminished.

Compositors, cabinet-makers, and coal miners are all rather better off than they used to be.

In the textile trades workers are quite 10 per cent. better off to-day than they were only twelve years ago. The average weekly rise in all the weaving and spinning industries between 1896 and 1908 is 2s. 10d. per week.

Oddly enough, but quite justly, the women employed in the Lancashire mills have received a much larger rise, comparatively speaking, than have their husbands and brothers.

In the cotton mills, the men receive an average weekly wage of 29s. 6d., and the women of 18s. 8d. Twelve years ago the average wage of the woman cotton spinner was only 15s.

These figures which we have given are the average wages. In some towns they rule much higher. In Oldham, for instance, the skilled hand gets about 42s. a week, and his wife 18s.; while the children, as half-timers, earn 2s. 8d. or 5s. a piece. It is a poor family in Oldham that is not earning its £3 a week.

Agricultural wages have not improved on the same scale as those of other workers. They range from 22s. a week in Renfrewshire down to the miserable pittance of 9s. in County Mayo, Ireland. There are a score of counties in the Green Isle where the farmhand gets no more than 10s. a week and six English counties where they do not exceed 15s. Oddly enough, wages are lowest in the arable counties—that is, where most of our wheat is produced.

Clerks of all kinds are doing worse than any other class who work for their living. The latest statistics show that the salaries paid to employes of companies and firms are falling. They dropped £6 a head last year. But the numbers of employes, on the other hand, increased enormously—from 513,000 to 585,000.

The number of employes with salaries of £5,000 has recently nearly doubled. There are to-day 202 people drawing £5,000 or over for their work.

Whistler's Reveng.

The celebration of the twenty-eighth birthday of Lord Brooke, elder son and heir of the Earl of Warwick, and the fact that last year he married Miss Eden, the daughter of Sir William Eden, recalls the sensation created by Whistler, the famous artist, in connection with a portrait of Lady Eden, which he painted. Piqued on account of the modesty of the honorarium offered to him Whistler ripped the picture out of the frame and forthwith destroyed it. A law suit followed. Lord Brooke has had an adventurous career. He ran away from home when he was seventeen to serve in the Boer war, and, touched by his display of spirit, his friends obtained for him the post of A.D.C. to Lord Milner. Since then Lord Brooke has acted as a special correspondent and seen much service.

A Rare Luxury.

Every man has ideas in his mind. One of them, held almost universally, is to own two pairs of suspenders at once, so that he will not be obliged to change these valuable supporters continually from pants to trousers. Few achieve it, however. It is not a matter of money, for many well-to-do and even rich men are tied to one pair of suspenders through early habits of thought and training, inertia, absent-mindedness and the like errors. When we see a man who owns two sets of suspenders we say to ourselves, "there goes a king!"

NERVE AGONIES

All Nervous Diseases Cured
by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

Nerves that are over-worked or weak quickly indicate their distress by pain. That pain may be neuralgia or inflamed nerves, usually affecting the head, but often the spine and limbs. It may be nervous dyspepsia, easily started by worry, excitement or weakness. It may be St. Vitus dance, a common affliction among children, or neurasthenia, a condition of general nervous exhaustion accompanied by acute melancholy. Worst of all the pain may signal the early stages of paralysis or nervous decay. All these disorders signify that the hungry nerves are clamoring for nourishment in the form of good, rich blood. The numerous cures of the above named nervous diseases and weakness in both sexes by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, are accounted for by the fact that these Pills actually make new, rich blood and so supply the starved nerves with the vital elements needed to strengthen them. Mr. Wm. G. Jones, Westmead, Man., says: "A few years ago it was my misfortune to suffer from nervous debility, brought about through a severe attack of la grippe or influenza. When the first effects were felt I used to wake up in the middle of sleep trembling like a leaf, and in a bath of cold perspiration. Later the trouble grew so bad that I scarcely got a wink of sleep, and would toss about in bed, growing so weak that I feared for my life. A doctor was called in, and then another, but without avail. I became more and more low spirited, and without any apparent reason would have fits of crying. While in this condition, a nervous wreck, a pamphlet was given me telling what Dr. Williams' Pink Pills had done for others, and I determined to give them a trial. By the time I had finished a few boxes I began to get some sleep, and this greatly encouraged me. Then my strength began to return, my nerves grew steeper and in a few weeks more I was feeling as well as ever I did in my life, and you may be sure I will always gratefully recommend Dr. Williams' Pink Pills to every one sick or ailing, as they restored me to health and strength after all other medicines had failed."

You can get these Pills from any medicine dealer or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

A REMARKABLE NOTE.

George Cruikshank's Bank Bill Was the Beginning of Penal Reforms.

It was no banking corporation, but an artist, that issued what was perhaps the most remarkable banknote ever put out, and this artist was no other than George Cruikshank. The issuance of this note was coincident with the beginning of the last century, at a time when the penalties for crime in England were excessively harsh. About three hundred offences were punishable by death, these ranging from murder to the theft of a piece of cloth or the passing of a counterfeit one-pound note. Hanging was, therefore, so common that to witness an execution was among the most popular forms of amusement. All windows that commanded a view of Newgate or Tyburn were let at high prices, and parties were made up among people in the country to go to see a hanging.

Now it chanced one day, in the year 1813, that George Cruikshank was passing Newgate when a great crowd was gathered before it. His curiosity was excited, and he went forward and saw the execution of several men and women. Horrified at the spectacle, he inquired as to the crimes committed by the unfortunates and learned that the women were being hanged for passing one-pound notes. He learned, too, that the poor creatures often sinned in ignorance, being the dupes of men who sent them to buy some trifle and return the change.

Cruikshank went home and, moved by pity and shame, sketched a grotesque caricature of a banknote. He called it a bank restriction note—not to be imitated, says a writer in Harper's Weekly.

On it he represented a place of execution, with a row of criminals hanging by the neck. The spaces were filled in with halters and manacles. There was a figure of Britannia devouring her children, and around it were transports bearing to Australia the lucky or unlucky ones who had escaped death. In place of the well-known signature of Abraham Newland was that of "J. Ketch."

This note was seen by Cruikshank's publisher, Hone, who begged it for publication. So Cruikshank sketched the note and gave it to Hone, who exhibited it for sale in his window with startling effect. Crowds gathered round and purchased so eagerly that the issue was soon exhausted. Cruikshank was kept hard at work making more etchings, and the crowds grew so great that the street was blocked and the mayor had to send soldiers to clear it. Hone realized three thousand five hundred dollars in a few days.

But the effect in other directions was still more startling. The bank directors were furious. They had met with trouble from the prison reformer, Elizabeth Fry, but they seemed to have defeated her. Here, however, was an adversary of a different stamp whom they could neither silence nor crush. They held a meeting and stopped the issue of one-pound notes, a measure which had a sensible effect in diminishing the number of hangings at Newgate. Soon afterwards an indignant public compelled Parliament to make juster laws.

Churches in Colonial Days.

The New England churches in colonial days were all unheated. In Miss Earle's book on "Home Life in Colonial Days," we find that few of these places of worship had stoves until the middle of the last century. The chill of the damp places, never heated from autumn to spring and closed and dark throughout the week, was hard for every one to bear. In some of the log built meeting houses fur bags made of wolf skins were nailed to the seats, and in the winter church attendants thrust their feet in them. Dogs, too, were permitted to enter the meeting house and lie on their master's feet. Dog whippers or dog pelters were had to control or expel them when they became unruly or unbearable.

Old-Time Gambling.

The gambling of to-day is a mild affair compared with the extant records of English society. We shall never again see the days when Gen. Scott won a fortune of $1,000,000 at whist, chiefly by dint of keeping sober. And high play, it must never be forgotten, is a relative term. When Lord Stavordale gained $55,000 by a single coup at hazard his only comment was that if he had been playing "deep" he might have won millions. When the dimensions of modern wealth are taken into account the wildest excesses ever witnessed at the card table would have a timid and parsimonious aspect to the bucks of the regency.—London Saturday Review.

Coal in Scotland.

Directly or indirectly one-tenth of the population of Scotland is supported by coal, with an output of about 40,000,000 tons a year. Average wages of the miners are between $8 and $9 a week.

Electric Shocks.

Volt for volt the direct or straight current is more deadly than the alternating. There is always the danger in the brain to lay electric shock, so it is a mistake to try the shocked ones with the head low, for this increases the many little deadly bleedings in the brain.

CHILDREN

In disorders and diseases of children drugs seldom do good and often do harm.

Careful feeding and bathing are the babies' remedies.

Scott's Emulsion

FRIDAY, FEBRUARY 3, 1911

The reciprocity agreement negotiated by representatives of the Dominion and United States governments has superseded all other topics of discussion locally. Whether it spells ruin or prosperity appears to depend entirely on one's political affiliations. If you are a Conservative, its ratification means that the country will go to the dogs; if a Liberal, its adoption will be the making of a great nation north of the international boundary line. To the Socialists it is probably immaterial what becomes of it, because from their viewpoint the canines are already in full possession of the land. However, as Canada makes an average reduction of but 2 1/2 per cent on goods imported into the country from the States, while the average reduction on goods imported by the United from Canada is from 12 to 15 per cent, the treaty is undoubtedly in our favor; and as the most economical trend of commerce on this continent is from north to south, The Sun has no hesitancy in predicting that the ratification of the treaty would prove beneficial to both countries. British Columbia's interest in the treaty is mainly confined to the section which places fruit and farm produce on the free list. The Conservative politicians say that this means ruin to the agricultural industry of the province. But we are inclined to believe that they unnecessarily alarmed. The United States does not raise enough fruit to supply its own market. We believe that the agricultural industry in this province has been advanced to a stage where our products can successfully compete in the markets of the world.

THE assurance that the Kettle valley will have a general system of irrigation next summer should be the beginning of an era of activity and prosperity for the city of Grand Forks. The ranchers are to be congratulated on their good judgment in selecting the safest and cheapest scheme. They are also entitled to a mammoth bouquet for their enterprise.

John Oliver is urging the Liberals to get busy and do something. Referring to the Canadian Northern railway Mr. Oliver says that he will stake his reputation on the assertion that when the road is completed it will be weighted down with an indebtedness of $100,000 a mile. The contract for the construction of the road has been let to the Canadian Northern Construction company, another name for Mackenzie & Mann, and by this deal he is of the opinion that Sir William Mackenzie and Sir Donald Mann will be enabled to pocket more than $11,000,000.

The announcement that the Duke of Connaught will be the next governor-general of Canada was received at Ottawa on Monday with satisfaction.

Some people think more of a few dollars' interest than of a thousand dollars' principal.

SHORT COURSES

Meetings Under Auspices of Department of Agriculture

The provincial department of agriculture has arranged for a series of "short courses" in fruit growing. The department recognizes the importance of having every fruit grower acquainted with the principles of soil culture, tree growth, etc., that underlie his everyday operations. The principles of fruit growing are not less important than the practice. The application of principle to practice will be a feature of all the lectures. The different methods of culture necessary for most economical production in each particular district will be emphasized. Men in every branch of farming will find the lectures on soils, plant growth, and cultivation, of value to them, and all interested in agriculture are invited to attend these meetings.

The meetings in this city will be held on Thursday and Friday, February 9 and 10. The following is the program:

Thursday, February 9—2:00 p.m., "Types of Soils in Relation to Practical Fruit Growing," B. Hoy; 3:30 p.m., "Physiology of Plants in Relation to Practical Fruit Growing," J. F. Carpenter; 7:30 p.m., "Orchard Pests and Their Control," B. Hoy; 8:30 p.m., "Sprays and Spraying," J. F. Carpenter.

Friday, February 10—2:00 p.m., "Selection of Nursery Stock. Orchard Plans and Planting," M. S. Middleton; 3:30 p.m., "Irrigation and the Control of Soil Moisture," B. Hoy; 7:30 p.m., "Winter Injury, and Its Prevention," B. Hoy; 8:00 p.m., "Pruning: Summer and Winter," M. S. Middleton.

PEN POINTS

The crop of lovers is reaped as foals.

A woman is good because she wants to be; a man when he has to be.

His satanic majesty seldom wastes any time trying to tempt a busy man.

A woman shouldn't marry until she knows that the man knows his pocketbook.

A man with a reputation for veracity can draw the long bow and get away with it.

After it is all over the average man wastes a lot of time telling what he would do if he had another chance.

A woman shouldn't be foolish about her age. It's often better to tell the truth than have it guessed at.

Anyway, spinsters and old bachelors always agree as to how children should be brought up.

The more a man could love a woman, the more he could prove it by her making him say it over and over again.

How absurd it is that the young man in love with a pretty girl never thinks to investigate her cooking until it is too late.

A woman always tells her friends how much more her new clothes cost than they did so as to strike a fair average with how much less she tells her husband they did.

The legislature is in session. So far the windy members have been wrangling about what they are going to do, in a week or two they will be wrangling about what they are doing, and after the session the people will be kicking about what they haven't done. The talkers talk, the herd votes and the grafters graft.—New Denver Record.

This morning, on complaint of J. W. Cook, Dominion fruit marks inspector, E Herack was fined $10 for contravention of the Fruit Marks Act.

A hockey match between the Greenwood juniors and the Phoenix juniors was played at Phoenix on Tuesday evening. The score was 7 to 5 in favor of Phoenix.

The only policy holder who doesn't need to pay his premiums is dead. The only man who doesn't need to advertise is the man who has retired from business.

W. Carruthers, travelling passenger and freight agent of the Southern Pacific railway, has some original ideas on sizing the worth of a town. "When I enter a new city," he says, "I do not look up the newspapers to see the amount of sensational news they print, but turn to the advertising columns to see the character and volume of advertising carried by the local advertisers. I can always tell whether a town is a live or dead one by that."

Some business men are so fond of being deceived that they even endeavor to believe that they can reach the consumers of this district without advertising in The Sun.

Show cards for widows and inside are a fine form of silent salesmen. Make them brief, terse and pointed. Print them plainly, to be read at a glance.

6 Year Old Girl Cured of Kidney Trouble

Mrs Alex Moore, of James St., Oxford, N.S., says: "Booth's Kidney Pills cured our little daughter, Christina, aged six years, of many symptoms of kidney weakness. She complained of a sore back, the kidney secretions were frequent and uncontrollable, especially at night. Her stomach was weak and her appetite poor. This caused her to have frequent headaches, and the least exertion would tire her. We had tried many remedies, but she did not improve. Finally we learned of Booth's Kidney Pills and procured a box. In a short time she was well and does not now complain about her back, the kidney secretions have become normal, and she plays around the house with no apparent fatigue. We always recommend Booth's Kidney Pills."

Booth's Kidney Pills carry a guarantee that if you derive no benefit your money will be refunded. Booth's Kidney Pills are a specific for all diseases of the kidneys and bladder. Sold by all druggists, 50c box, or post-paid from the R. T. Booth Co., Ltd., Fort Erie, Ont. Sold and guaranteed by H. E. Woodland & Co.

DOCTORS FAILED

Suffered Several Years With Kidney Trouble, "Peruna Cured Me."

Mr. John N. Watkins, 3133 Shenandoah Ave., St. Louis, Mo., writes: "Among all the greatly advertised medicines for kidney and bladder trouble there is nothing which equals Peruna. I suffered for several years with this trouble, spent hundreds of dollars on doctors and medicine and all to no purpose until I took Peruna."

"One bottle did me more good than all the others put together, as they only poisoned my system. Peruna cured me. I used it for four months before a complete cure was accomplished, but am truly grateful to you. The least I can do in return is to acknowledge the merits of Peruna, which I take pleasure in now doing."

Bladder Trouble.

Mr. C. B. Newhof, 10 Delaware street, Albany, N. Y., writes:

"Since my advanced age I find that I have been frequently troubled with urinary ailments. The bladder seemed irritated, and my physician said that it was catarrh caused by a protracted cold which would be difficult to overcome on account of my advanced years. I took Peruna, hardly daring to believe that I would be helped, but found to my relief that I soon began to mend. The irritation gradually subsided, and the urinary difficulties passed away. I have enjoyed excellent health now for the past seven months. I enjoy my meals, sleep soundly, and am as well as I was twenty years ago. I give all praise to Peruna."

WARRANT FOR CONDUCTOR.

Wanted for Stealing Fares and Selling Tickets.

(From Montreal Gazette.)

Judge Lanctot, at the request of the crown prosecutor, has issued a bench warrant for the arrest of E. Smith, a former sleeping-car conductor in the employ of the Canadian Pacific railway company, who at one time ran between Montreal and Vancouver, and latterly between Montreal and Toronto.

Early in October information reached the Crown authorities which led up to Smith's arrest for stealing sleeping car fares, and for stealing and selling railway tickets to various persons in Montreal and elsewhere. Smith had a preliminary hearing and was committed for trial to the Court of King's Bench, his case being set for the 10th. When called, he failed to appear, with the result that his bail was forfeited and a bench warrant issued for his arrest.

The case caused a good deal of interest in railway circles, and it is probable that other than railway people will become interested, as the names and addresses of quite a number of people with whom he has been doing business are known, and it is likely that before the matter is finally disposed of several of the hunters for bargains in railway transportation will be dealt with.

"It is really too bad," said a high official of the Canadian Pacific, "that the travelling public should suggest such dishonesty to conductors. If passengers would refrain from making conductors steal from the company by offering them facilities and inducements to do so, it would be better for them in every way. We have the names of a good many men who have done this in Montreal and other places and they include some pretty prominent men. Morally they are as guilty, if not more so, than the conductors whom they train to become thieves, and the practice of trying to get this cheap transportation at the expense of the company and the honesty of the conductors cannot be too sharply repressed."

"In the present instance it has led to the ruin of a young man and the breaking up of his home. While we are sorry for those who suffer by it, the company must stop this business of stealing fares, and prosecution will follow every instance that is discovered."

Weak, Sickly Babies Make Home Wretched

No home is happy where there is a sick baby. The sufferings of the little one makes the whole household wretched, for what mother or father would not rather suffer themselves than to see their little one suffer. But there is no reason for wretched homes because baby is ill. Baby's Own Tablets will cure all the minor ills of babyhood and childhood; not only that, but an occasional dose of the Tablets will keep baby well. Thousands of mothers have found happiness through the Tablets making their little ones well and happy. Among them is Mrs. C. C. Roe, of Georgetown, Ont., who writes: "I can heartily recommend Baby's Own Tablets as a help to the baby during the hot summer season. We have used them and are much pleased with their results." The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

"Did your father leave your mother much?" asked the man with intentions of the little boy in black. "Twice a week," was the unexpected answer.

Often what appear to be the most trivial occurrences in life prove to be the most momentous. Many are disposed to regard a cold as a slight thing, deserving of little consideration, and this neglect often results in most serious ailments entailing years of suffering. Drive out colds and coughs with Bickle's Anti-Consumptive Syrup, the recognized remedy for all affections of the throat and lungs.

When you stand on the doorstep of love always get past into the hall before you give the belle a ring.

He Did Not Need a Wife

Kansas newspapers are getting a lot of pleasure out of this incident, which is said to have actually happened in an eastern Kansas county. A farmer received a note from a young man who had been "going with" his daughter. It read: "Dear Sir: Wood like your daughters hand in marriage. She and me are in love. I think I needs a wife. Yours truly." The farmer replied by letter, saying: "Friend: You don't need a wife. You need a spelling book! Get one and study it a year. Then write me again."—Kansas City Journal.

An officer bet another a large sum of money that he could not empty a quart bottle of champagne at one draught. He asked for half an hour to think the matter over, which was granted. When he returned he took the champagne, drank it off, and claimed the money. He was asked why it took him so long to accept the bet. "Well," he said, "I was not quite sure that I could do it, my dear fellow, so I went home first and tried the experiment."

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials. Address: F. J. A Cure for Rheumatism.—A painful and persistent form of rheumatism is caused by impurities in the blood, the result of defective action of the liver and kidneys. The blood becomes tainted by the introduction of uric acid, which causes much pain in the tissues and in the joints. Parmelee's Vegetable Pills are known to have effected many remarkable cures, and their use is strongly recommended. A trial of them will convince anyone of their value.

Wanted To Know

A young lady who appeared to be in perfect health, but who had a very worried expression upon her blooming face, entered the consulting room of a New York physician the other day. "Doctor," she said, "it is absolutely essential that I go to White Sulphur this summer." "Oh, perhaps not," the physician remarked, reassuringly. "Tell me fully your symptoms. What do you expect to cure at the springs?" "That is just what I came to find out, doctor," she confessed. "You see, I have got to talk with papa. What do you go to White Sulphur to be cured of?"

Mrs. Dresser was looking over the grocer's bill. "How many pounds are there in a peck, Henry?" she asked.

Her husband looked up from his newspaper.

An Embracing Remark.

The head of one of Toronto's theological colleges is well-known as a careful and deliberate speaker. He takes his time and chooses his words slowly, often pausing for several seconds to be sure of the right one, and consequently he usually expresses himself clearly. In spite of his care, however, he occasionally makes a slip, like less cautious speakers, and says something which he does not really mean. Before he became interested in educational work, he had a church, in which the work of the various societies proved highly successful. One Sunday morning, the minister was giving out a few notices regarding social activities of the church, and he took the opportunity to give some advice to the young men. When he had concluded, he paused and evidently recognized that his words might have been given a more general application. He accordingly added, "When I made those remarks to the young men, I hoped they would embrace the young ladies of the congregation."

An Ambitious Canoe Trip.

Captain Voss, of Victoria, B.C., is one of the world's most daring cockleshell navigators, set out to circumnavigate the globe in the Tilikum, a converted Alaskan war canoe, on May 21, 1901. Although rigged as a three-masted schooner, she was only of two and a half tons, 32 feet on the water line, 6 feet in beam, and drawing 22 inches of water. The cabin was 8 feet by 5 feet, and 4 1/2 feet high. Stores sufficient for six months and two sixty-gallon tanks of water were carried. Mr. Luxton, of the Winnipeg Free Press, accompanied him as far as the Fiji Islands, where another passenger was shipped, but five days after leaving he fell overboard and was drowned, and after that the captain was alone. He met gale after gale, which smashed the foremast, so that navigation had to be stopped while it was taken out, spliced, and resteped. No wonder that crowds flocked down to each port of call to see the intrepid sailor.

Two Sinners.

"It is very wrong to tell a falsehood," said his mother to little Jimmie, whom she had caught in one. "Then we're both of us sinners, ain't we, maw?" queried Jimmie. "Both! What do you mean?" "Why, you told Mrs. Smith yesterday that you hoped she'd call again, ar' after she wuz gone you said you wished she'd never come again."

Significant

It is related that a gentleman who was rying a horse in company with a jockey, noticed, after having driven him for a mile or two, that he pulled pretty hard, requiring constant watching and a steady rein, and the gentleman enquired: "Do you think it is just the horse for a lady to drive?" "Well, sir," answered the jockey, "I must say that I shouldn't want to marry the woman who could drive that horse."

HOW RAVAGES OF KIDNEY DISEASE ARE CHECKED IN QUEBEC.

Mrs. Julien Painchaud, for seven years a sufferer, finds quick relief and complete cure in Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Whitworth, Temiscouata Co., Que., (Special).—With the coming of winter the ravages of Kidney Disease are again felt in this province, and the fact that a sure cure is vouched for in this village is news worth giving to the world. Mrs. Julien Painchaud is the person cured and she states without hesitation that she found her cure in Dodd's Kidney Pills.

"For seven years my heart and Kidneys bothered me," Mrs. Painchaud states, "I was always tired and nervous. I could not sleep. My limbs were heavy and I had a dragging sensation across the loins. My eyes had dark circles under them and were puffed and swollen. I was so ill I could hardly drag myself around to do my household work."

"A neighbor advised me to try Dodd's Kidney Pills, and I found relief in the first box. Six boxes made me perfectly well."

If you have any two of Mrs. Painchaud's symptoms your Kidneys are diseased. Cure them and guard against serious, if not fatal results by using Dodd's Kidney Pills.

The Shade (crossing the Styx)—So you are called Charon, eh? Rather a romantic name for a boatman? The Ferryman (pleased)—It certainly is some improvement on "Hey, Bill!" isn't it?

"You seem to find that book very interesting." "Yes; it's delightful. I've glanced at the ending, and the hero and the heroine don't get married after all."

Ephraim's Luck

A Cat and a Girl Both Win

By EVELYN WINTHROP

Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.

Amy Wallace slammed the gate of the chicken yard and came down the path with tragedy written on her stormy countenance and in the very pose of her outstretched hand from which dangled the lifeless remains of a promising young broiler.

"Another one?" queried her sister disconsolately. "That makes—let me see—seventy-two chickens killed in the last six weeks. At a dollar a pair those broilers would have fetched $360."

"It is an outrage," sputtered Amy, flinging the defunct chicken far from her sight. "That cat must be killed at once!"

"Did you send Mrs. Beemer a bill for the chickens?" asked Louise, intent on her needlework.

Amy nodded. "Sent it Monday." "Heard from her today?"

"Ye-es."

"Did she say she was a soldier's widow and that the gray cat was her only solace?" Louise smiled mischievously.

"Word for word. Laugh, if you must, young woman," went on Amy gloomily, "but remember, please, that I am not a talented female artist who can earn the price of a gown with a few daubs of paint. I am a mere, commonplace plodder, and I haven't a talent in the world save for poultry raising, and now I begin to doubt my ability to succeed at that."

"I'll see Mrs. Beemer myself," announced Louise, arising and folding her work with an air of decision. "She must either pay you $36 and promise immunity from further annoyance from the cat or she must kill the beast."

"She won't do either," mourned Amy from the piazza as Louise passed out of the gate and crossed the street to the abode of the Widow Beemer.

Louise Wallace found the Widow Beemer seated on the back stoop in the act of placing a saucer of milk before the huge gray cat, Ephraim.

"Evening, Louey," remarked the widow amiably. "It's some warmer today."

"It is," agreed Louise coldly. "Mrs. Beemer, that cat has got to go."

"You mean Ephraim?" quavered the widow.

"Of course."

"I'm a soldier's widow"—began Ann Beemer in the melancholy tone she reserved for that oft repeated statement, but Louise lifted a slim finger warningly.

"And Ephraim is your only solace," added the girl dryly. "We know all that, Mrs. Beemer, and we are very sorry, but you must see that we can't continue to lose chickens at this rate. It's preposterous. Ephraim seems to kill just for the mere pleasure of the deed. He's a cold blooded old murderer."

The pale gray Ephraim turned a light yellow eye in her direction, and a faint sneer lifted his black lip. Then his red velvet tongue darted in and out of the milk, and his eyes were hidden.

Ann Beemer sighed. "Very well," she sniffed tearfully. "I'll have to give him up, I guess. He's the only comfort I've got now. But you can just take him away and kill him, Louey. I'll kiss him goodbye if you don't mind."

"If you will put the cat in a bag, Mrs. Beemer, I'll find somebody to dispose of him," interposed Louise impatiently.

With a hard little glitter in her black eyes, Ann Beemer brought a covered basket and thrust the scratching, spitting Ephraim within. She tied the cover securely and gave the basket into Louise's hands. Then she threw her checked apron over her head and rocked mournfully to and fro.

Louise paused at the gate and, looking backward, felt a pang of pity for the old woman. Then she thought of the mournful Amy across the street and Ephraim's bad reputation in the community as a chicken slayer and passed through the gate.

"I'll run around to Latimer's and see if one of the boys won't chloroform the cat. Amy will be relieved, indeed, when I return and tell her that Ephraim has gone to join his forefathers."

It was no light task to carry the shaking basket within which the big gray cat fought tigerishly for escape. Her hands were quite sore when she reached the Latimer place and found herself in the midst of a curious group of boys and girls at the back door. Mrs. Latimer came out and joined them.

"I want somebody to chloroform a cat," said Louise. "It's Ephraim, you know; he's been killing off our broilers. I thought one of the boys might I'll give a dollar."

Mrs. Latimer shook her head. "I don't want any of my folks to kill a cat, Miss Wallace; it's awful bad luck, you know. Perhaps Peter Swanson's folks will do it for you. Swedes don't believe in luck and such things."

"Very well," said Louise wearily. "Will you let Billy carry the basket for me? Ephraim's very heavy."

"I guess there won't be any harm in that—and he was wishing this morning that he could earn a quarter," insinuated Billy's shrewd mother.

"I'll see that he gets a quarter for the job," smiled Louise. And then, followed by the curious Billy and trailed by the remaining Latimers, they sought Peter Swanson, the blacksmith.

"I couldn't kill no cat, miss," said Peter apologetically, when Louise had told her story. "They tell me it brings bad luck. Yust now I can't afford no bad times. Maybe the Eyetallans in the Holler might—"

Louise sought the Italian settlement in the Hollow. Pietro Roncaglia averred that Ephraim possessed the evil eye and crossed his brown fingers shudderingly. Even the rattling crispness of greenbacks failed to break his resolution.

Old Abraham Johnson's black face expressed mingled greed and alarm when approached by Louise and her funeral train. He gazed longingly at the money and then clutched the voodoo charm that hung about his throat.

"I hate to dis'pint yo', Miss Louey, honey, but it am pow'ful bad luck to kill a cat. De bery debblin's in dat Ephraim. Folks say he's de recarnival ob ole Eph Beemer, hisself! I need de money right bad, too, miss—'shuk you, honey."

These were examples of the various interviews that Louise held that morning. Noon time found her at her own gate tugging the heavy basket containing the still active Ephraim. Her sister drew forward a rocking chair in the porch and Louise fell into its comfortable embrace.

"What is in the basket?" asked Amy. "Ephraim."

"Tell me about it—do," crowed Amy. Louise told her. "I can't find a person who will make way with that cat for love or money, and I believe Mrs. Beemer knew I couldn't—she gave Ephraim into my hands almost too willingly," she ended plaintively. "I didn't realize that intelligent people could be so silly and superstitious."

"We must dispose of the cat ourselves, then," said Amy firmly. "We are not superstitious."

"No, we are not, but it's horrible to kill anything like that, you know. I'll go out this afternoon and see if I can't find some boy who will do it. They can't all be fools."

At that instant the basket containing the doomed cat swayed violently on the grass where Louise had dropped her burden; then the cover flew up, and with a spiteful hiss Ephraim dashed out and scrambled up the black walnut tree over their astonished heads.

"That impish Tommy Latimer must have untied the cords," said Louise bitterly. "I saw him quarreling with Billy over the basket—and I gave them 50 cents too."

Amy had picked up a large stone and weighed it in her hand. "I believe I could hit that 'at," she said viciously. "If I can it will stun him—perhaps kill him." She shuddered slightly, aimed the missile carefully at the crouching Ephraim, threw the stone and turned her back. Louise had closed her eyes tightly.

They heard the stone crash through the branches and then there followed a slight groan. After that, silence.

"I believe I killed him," moaned Amy.

"You certainly came very near it," said an exasperated masculine voice, and the sisters turned to view the indignant countenance of Mr. Rupert Ames. That young gentleman clutched one shoulder as if in pain.

Over his head Ephraim crouched, spitting angrily and sharpening his claws on the rough branch to which he clung.

"Did I strike you, Rupert?" demanded Amy penitently. "I was trying to hit the cat, you see."

"You must be very fond of him," observed Mr. Ames, drawing near to them. "I'm very sorry. I hope you are not badly hurt. Fetch the witch hazel, please, Louise." Amy let her hand rest in Rupert's close clasp longer than he had dared hope. "We hardly expected to see you," she added pointedly.

"I felt that you needed me," lied Mr. Ames cheerfully. "My inner consciousness told me you were in trouble of some sort and required masculine assistance. What can I do for you?"

When Louise returned with the lotion they told the story of Ephraim and the slain broilers. "Will you kill the cat, Rupert?" they pleaded tearfully.

Mr. Ames shook his head. "I couldn't," he said regretfully. "You see, I'm superstitious, too, I am," he asserted in the face of their incredulous looks. "I know if I killed that cat and every one of his nine lives were extinguished—why, I'd never have a chance of marrying Amy after all!"

Louise smiled, and the swift color came to Amy's cheeks. "That was all settled six months ago," she said coldly. "I'm going to be an independent business woman and"—

"Very good," said Mr. Ames crisply. "I must be running along, now. My motor's down the road a piece—had a breakdown, you know, and just thought I'd drop in and see you. Hope you get the best of Ephraim."

Louise disappeared into the house, and Amy's face lost its color. "Then you won't kill Ephraim?" she faltered.

"I cannot, Amy, but I'll tell you how you can get rid of him. Just marry me and give up this notion of poultry raising. Louise is dying to get back to town, and I want you—I need you. Let Ephraim shift for himself."

"You merely happened in here. You had a breakdown," said Amy severely.

"My resolution not to see you broke down," confessed Rupert, drawing her into his arms. "For my part, it's great good luck not to kill a cat, eh, Ephraim?"

But the cat, taking advantage of lovers' meeting, was merely a pale gray streak headed for the welcoming arms of the Widow Beemer.

In the House Library.

One tall volume in the Parliamentary library at Ottawa contains all the issues of "Le Canadien," the first Canadian newspaper, which was suppressed by Governor Craig in 1810. It is a small sheet of two pages about eighteen inches long, and it serves to remind one how far we have traveled from that time to these days of huge Saturday editions.

The oldest book in the library is "La Somme Rurale," a body of rural regulations of various kinds, published in 1680. But the book on which Mr. Descelles especially prides himself is a volume of religious meditations from the collection of Henry the Third of France. It is a beautiful book, admirably printed and illustrated, and bears on its wonderfully tool'd cover the skull and motto which distinguished the books belonging to this monarch. The motto is "Spes Mea Deus." It was published in 1583. Another book which belonged to a character famous in French history is the "Cassandre" by Calprenede, which was owned by Madame de Pompadour.

There are two original editions of those interminable romances which occupied the attention of ladies of leisure before the days of the novel. One is "L'Astree" by Honore Durfe, in fourteen volumes, published in 1622. The other is that famous work, "Le Grand Cyrus," by Scudery, which was published in 1653. This edition is wonderfully bound in morocco, and once formed part of the library of the Comtesse de Verne, a great lady of that period.

Will Crooks' New Role.

An early working-man member for Parliament, Mr. Will Crooks, since his defeat at the last general election, has been keeping the "wolf from the door," as he bluntly expresses it, by lecturing; for, of course, he is no longer in receipt of the $1,000 a year allowed to members of the Labor Party in the House of Commons. He is being kept very busy as a lecturer, however, and will probably stand for Woolwich again in the Labor interest at the next election. Mr. Crooks is a man who has risen from the workhouse. A serious accident prevented his father from earning his living, and the whole family went into the union.

After the workhouse period he got a job at a grocer's at 50 cents a week and his dinner, and later on became a blacksmith. After his marriage he was out of work for some time, tramping the streets; but at last got a job in a brewery at $10 a week. It is those early struggles which make Will Crooks so sympathetic with people "down on their luck," and provided him with that knowledge of the under-world which makes him such an authority on questions dealing with the masses.

"Merry Monkey."

Not exactly an appropriate name for one of the Pope's cardinals, perhaps, but it was nevertheless earned by Cardinal Merry del Val, who has figured somewhat largely in the trouble between Rome and Spain, when he was at a private school near Slough, where he received his early education, for the papal secretary had a great propensity for playing practical jokes. The cardinal is still a young man—he will not be forty-five until October 10th—but for seven years he has been the power behind the papal throne and the virtual sovereign of 400,000,000 subjects, embracing every nationality. The cardinal, who is a Londoner by birth, made up his mind to enter the church at an early age. Ordained a priest of the Archdiocese of Westminster, he might now have been laboring in some poor London parish if he had not gone to Rome, where Pope Leo XIII. took a fancy to him and kept him, entrusting him with many important missions.

Seeing Around Corners.

There are many insects which have a very much larger field of vision than we have. This is due to the greater convexity of their eyes, enabling them to see around the corner, so to speak, behind and at the sides. This development in man would have its objectionable points, but also its good ones, not the least of which might be the detection of pick-pockets.

THE INDIAN'S BLANKET.

Great Care Exercised in Choice of Design and Coloring.

There are two important factors that in the mind of the brave must be present to comprise a genuine Indian blanket, and the skill and judgment he exercises in making his selection are worthy of mention. Whether he is to possess one or twenty blankets has nothing to do with the design used in selecting them.

His first demand is that the robe contain three colors—red, yellow and green, usually one of the three being the prevailing shade.

Secondly, he demands that the blanket have three bold stripes, all the same pattern and carrying the same colors, two being ten inches from each edge of the robe, while the third and centre stripe is a trifle wider and also runs the entire length of the blanket.

When the blanket is worn by the Indian the centre stripe falls in the middle of the back, giving the tall and stately effect so much desired.

If, perchance, the Indian is in mourning, the pattern is not changed but the blanket contains only dark blue and black as colors. The manner in which the Indian wraps his blanket about him denotes very often his state of mind. Grief or sorrow, for instance, would be marked by the blanket being drawn over the lower portion of the face, leaving exposed the nose and eyes only.

There is no article of wearing apparel as much used as the blanket by the Indian. As a saddle while riding his pony, a shelter or bed while hunting or fishing, carefully hung about the sides and bottom of his tepee during the winter and an indispensable covering the entire year, the blanket is ever in use.

Even on the hottest summer days an Indian would be laughed at by the members of his tribe should he leave off wearing his blanket. His theory is that if "it keeps out the cold in the winter it will keep out the heat in the summer." While he may not care to buy anything else expensive, the price of a suitable blanket is never questioned, but it would be difficult indeed to deceive him as to the texture of any robe.

A squaw will imitate almost anything that pleases her fancy, but in the matter of her blanket or shawl she exhibits an unusual amount of individuality. With great care and patience she designs her blanket, and when she places the order with the mill man he does not dare duplicate it until she has had an opportunity to wear it. If she makes the request that it shall not be duplicated her wishes are regarded, because it is the one article she possesses in which exclusiveness is much coveted and also because what would please one squaw would not appear at all attractive to another.

The lightweight blanket or shawl is thrown over the head of the squaw, and unless she is able to purchase a bright-colored silk kerchief it will serve as her only bonnet as well. It is just as common a sight now to see the papoose securely bound on the back of its mother by a portion of her blanket as it used to be to see the wee head of the Indian babe peeping from the "tekas," or frame cradle, which was carried on the back of the mother.

PANIC IN SHIPWRECK.

When Men Lose Their Wits and Their Manhood as Well.

What has most struck me in my many experiences of shipwreck has been the strangely diverse ways in which the passengers acquit themselves under intense excitement and panic, said a lifeboatman to the writer.

Women cry, faint and cling to each other, but are least trouble. Men often act very strangely. I remember one man throwing into the lifeboat a heavy trunk which he wanted to save, but which we promptly heaved overboard.

Some men become quite panic stricken. I've seen strong men, probably brave enough in other cases, fighting fiercely for the lifebuoys and thrusting the women and children aside in frantic endeavors to leap into the boat first; yet strangely enough, one man who thus disgraced himself has since obtained the Royal Humane Society's medal for saving life at sea, thrice volunteering with a scratch crew in aid of a distressed vessel.

I've known others who became so stupefied with fright as to resist all attempts at rescuing them, begging to be left to die and having to be forcibly thrown into the lifeboat. Some persons frequently become half demented, and I've known several cases where they have in a frenzy committed suicide by positively jumping headlong into the sea and drowning themselves, and one man, to insure his sinking, filled his pockets with coal.

Some years ago another passenger, hearing the ship had struck, went and drowned himself in the bathroom, anticipating his fate, as it were.

I remember another case where a passenger hanged himself in his cabin just as the lifeboat arrived.

In the Air.

East Wind—Well, they have us harnessed. West Wind—Yes, but they can't drive us tandem.

Heretic.

The word "heretic" is derived from the Greek hairesis, to take or choose for oneself.

Woman's World

Mary Roberts Rinehart, Novelist, Is Threatened With Blindness.

MRS. MARY ROBERTS RINEHART, AUTHOR OF "THE WINDOW AT THE WHITE CAT."

Mary Roberts Rinehart, the popular novelist and playwright, is threatened with blindness and is now on her way to consult a specialist in Europe who has done wonderful things in restoring eyesight. Last summer Mrs. Rinehart and her husband, Dr. Stanley M. Rinehart, spent a day at Lilydale, the spiritualistic camp meeting near their summer home, Lake Chautauqua, N. Y.

As one might suppose, at this meeting all sorts of mediums, slate writers, clairvoyants, etc., do congregate, and the air is said to buzz with the whizzing of spoons. Mrs. Rinehart found excellent situations for "copy." She said that day at Lilydale gave her suggestions for ten farce comedies and just as many mystery stories that will, if she is able to carry out her ideas, rival the success of her play "Seven Days" and the detective story "The Man in Lower Ten."

Coming back from the ghost convention in their automobile they had a terrible experience, being caught in a cloudburst after night on strange roads, with lamps that wouldn't light. For an hour they worked in darkness through wind and howling storm to get the chains on the car. And then they beat it back to Spokesville—a wild waltz-me-around-again-Willie ride, bub deep in mud and water, skidding every inch of the way and only recognizing the road by flashes of lightning.

Mrs. Rinehart's readers do not need ghosts, cloudbursts and spirit rappings for excitement. All they need is to sit in a comfortable chair and read her latest romance, "The Window at the White Cat." It sends up and down your back delicious thrills and chills. If some one rings the bell unexpectedly you jump five feet in the air while the spell of the story is on you. And yet all the time you're laughing your head off, it's so funny and clever. Mrs. Rinehart seems to have a monopoly on this combination of mystery and humor. She constructs a plot as intricate as any of Anna Katherine Green's. She solves it with an ingenuity worthy of Conan Doyle, and she adds to these virtues the priceless gift of ringing laughter.

The author of all this fun and mystery is a very domestic woman, devoted to her husband and children, and story writing at first was begun as a pastime, her family laughing at her first literary efforts, but in spite of little encouragement she is now one of the most successful of women story writers and playwrights of the day.

The Tallest Judge.

Standing well over 6 feet, Mr. John Eldon Bankes, K.C., who has been appointed a judge of the British High Court in place of the late Mr. Justice Walton, will be the tallest member of the Bench. He is a splendid example of hereditary genius, for he is the great-grandson of the famous Lord Chancellor Eldon, and the grandson, on his mother's side, of Lord Chief Justice Jervis. Like Lord Alverstone, whose pupil he once was, Mr. Bankes distinguished himself as an athlete, and while at Oxford rowed in the Varsity boat in 1875 and 1876. Mr. Bankes is not only a great lawyer but also a deadly cross-examiner, and gallant little Wales—Mr. Bankes is a native of Flintshire—is not unnaturally very proud of this distinguished son of the Principality.

When You Think

Of the pain which many women experience with every month it makes the gentleness and kindness always associated with womanhood seem to be almost a miracle. While in general no woman rebels against what she regards as a natural necessity there is no woman who would not gladly be free from this recurring period of pain.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription makes weak women strong and sick women well, and gives them freedom from pain. It establishes regularity, subdues inflammation, heals ulceration and cures female weakness.

Sick women are invited to consult Dr. Pierce by letter, free. All correspondence strictly private and sacredly confidential. Write without fear and without fee to World's Dispensary Medical Association, R. V. Pierce, M. D., President, Buffalo, N. Y.

If you want a book that tells all about woman's diseases, and how to cure them at home, send 3 one-cent stamps to Dr. Pierce to pay cost of mailing only, and he will send you a free copy of his great thousand-page illustrated Common Sense Medical Adviser—revised, up-to-date edition, in paper covers. In hand some cloth binding, 50 stamps.

Hyomei

The Breatheable Remedy for Catarrh. The rational way to combat catarrh is the Hyomei way, viz, by breathing. Scientists for years have been agreed on this point, but failed to get an antiseptic strong enough to kill catarrh germs and not destroy the tissues of the membrane at the same time, until the discovery of Hyomei (pronounced High-o-me.)

Hyomei is the most powerful yet healing antiseptic known. Breathe it through the inhaler over the inflamed and germ-ridden membrane four or five times a day, and in a few days the germs will disappear.

A complete Hyomei outfit, including the inhaler, costs $1.00, and extra bottles, if afterwards needed, cost but 50 cent. Obtainable from your druggist or postpaid from the R. T. Booth Co., Ltd., Fort Erie, Ont. Hyomei is guaranteed to cure asthma, croup, sore throat, coughs, colds or grip or refund your money back. Sold and guaranteed by H. E. Woodland & Co.

Indigestion

If you are suffering from indigestion and the attendant distressed stomach you should give Mi-o-na, the guaranteed remedy, a trial. Mr. William Shafer, of 230 Queens St. S., Berlin, Ont., says: "For years I have been a sufferer from acute indigestion, which caused the most distressing pains in my stomach. I decided to try Rooth's Mi-o-na Tablets and they have done me more good than anything I have ever used. I am now more free from this trouble than I have been for years. I am pleased to endorse and recommend this remedy to all who suffer with stomach trouble."

Remember Mi-o-na Tablets are guaranteed to cure acute chronic indigestion and turn the old stomach into a new one in a few weeks. All druggists, 50c a box or postpaid from The R. T. Booth Co., Ltd., Fort Erie, Ont. Sec'd and guaranteed by H. E. Woodland & Co.
