FATALITY AT NICKEL PLATE.

John McKinnon Is Killed by Falling Rock in Sunnysides No. 2.

Never in the history of the camp has so profound an expression of sorrow and of sympathy been called forth on the part of our townspeople for any mine fatality as that which occurred on Wednesday morning of last week when the word got about that John McKinnon, shift boss on the Sunnysides mine of the Yale Mining Co. Ever since he brought his father and mother from Antigonish, Nova Scotia, and had them comfortably domiciled in Hedley a little over three years ago, the people of this town looked upon him as one of themselves, although his work as a miner in the Nickel Plate compelled him to reside up at the mine. The manner of his death, too, as well as the high esteem in which he was held by all, tended to deepen the impression and lend to the occurrence the element of tragedy, for it would seem that an inscrutable fate had prepared the blow, and dealt it from the least expected quarter.

As shift boss it was his duty to see that the mine was safe for the miners, and that duty he never neglected, being always the first to lead the way in barring down loose ground. But the rock which snuffed out his life in almost the twinkling of an eye, did not fall from the roof of a stope but from an apparently solid wall and from a point no higher than his shoulders. It was in the glory hole on Sunnysides No. 2 that the accident happened, and it occurred a few minutes after going on shift in the morning. The particular point where it occurred was in broad daylight and was for 3 years considered so safe that the tool box containing candles and other supplies was placed under it, and in all probability the piece of rock weighing perhaps half a ton, which slipped out of the wall and dealt the fatal blow, had been looked at by the provincial inspector of mines who paid his official visit to the mine about two weeks before. These points we mention to clear the memory of the deceased from any suspicion of blame for carelessness; for there was none on his part, even although it was upon him the duty lay of guarding against all accidents of that kind. On reaching the fatal spot he walked to this box for a candle. Looking in and finding none, he remarked to two of his Cornish miners who were near him, "there are no candles here boys," and the remark was no more than completed when the rock left its place in the wall, and in falling struck him, killing him instantly. The others, hearing the rock fall, called to him and on getting no answer went up and found him. The first attempt to release him, failing, one of them went for help, but by the time he got back the other, by some means had managed to free the arm by which he was pinned down. On this box miners had been in the habit of sitting while capping their fuses in getting ready to blast. Had he been a second or so sooner or that much later the rock would have fallen harmlessly; but other things happened which took him to that place at that moment. A missed hole in Sunnysides No. 3 delayed him a little on his way down. This detaining him he ran from there to the spot where he was killed. Had he not hurried the rock would have fallen before he reached there, but he was anxious to get to the place where the men were to work in Sunnysides No. 2 and see that all was safe for them to begin. Thus his anxiety for them cost him his own life in this unexpected, mysterious manner. This was the last of a series of narrow escapes which he had had in his career as a miner. In Camp McKinney some eight or nine years ago while working in the bottom of a winze, carelessness on the part of another employe who was working above him, and dropped a piece of timber, gave him a close call, and this was but one of several.

As a man he conducted himself in a manner to win the respect and confidence of all with whom he came in contact. The writer has known him for nearly ten years and never either knew or heard of anything concerning him that was not honorable and praiseworthy. The care which he took of

ROSSLAND MINERS AGREE

To Take the Lower Schedule—This Sensible Action Appreciated by Townspeople.

Rossland, Nov. 26.—The Rossland Miners' Union by a referendum vote to-day consented to reduce the wage scale to that which was in effect prior to July 1. The old wage was $3.50 for machine men and $2.75 for shovellers, with the wages of the other employes about the mine in like proportion. The scale, which went into effect on July 1, was $4 for machine men and $3.25 for shovellers. To-day the mines closed down for the purpose of allowing the employes to discuss and vote on the question of the reduction of wages. The union met at 10:30 a. m. and discussed the question earnestly until noon.

A resolution prepared at the morning meeting providing for going back to the old scale was then voted on. When the union re-assembled at two o'clock a referendum vote was taken and the resolution carried by a two-third's majority. The mines therefore will not shut down as has been threatened for some time past, as the management declared there was no profit since metals went down, under the higher wage scale. And under the lowered scale it will now be possible to make a small profit. The mines will re-open to-morrow as usual and it is understood that no close down will now ensue, as was feared some days ago.

Rossland people are greatly relieved at the peaceful solution of what, but for the reasonable attitude of the miners, might have been a very serious problem.

his aged parents and the way in which he seemed to devote his whole life for their comfort and welfare is in itself sufficient to show the rare qualities of mind and heart which he possessed; and outside his own family, his friends (and he had many) found him true and staunch. It was his intention to give up work in the mine after New Year's and get a piece of land over in the Okanagan where he could make a home for his father and mother so that he could live with them constantly and relieve their minds of all anxiety concerning his own safety.

After the accident all work was stopped in the mine, none of the miners feeling like continuing their work until they had done all that was left for them to do to show respect for his memory and their sympathy for his bereaved friends. No inquest was considered necessary, and the remains were brought to his home in Hedley. The funeral was held on Friday morning and was conducted by Rev. Father Conan, under the rites of the Roman Catholic church, of which the deceased was a consistent worthy member who in his daily life adorned its doctrines. To the funeral, some came from Penticton, Okanagan Falls and Fairview. The pall-bearers were: J. K. Fraser, Angus McDougall, L. W. Shatford, M. P. P., Dr. White, Dr. Whillans and Superintendent G. P. Jones. On the coffin were placed many floral tributes among which were, a cross by the Miners' Union, crosses by Mrs. Brown and Miss Conn, Mrs. Loomer and Mrs. Bowerman; wreaths by Mr. and Mrs. Rotherham, Mrs. Winkler, Miss Megraw, and Mr. and Mrs. V. J. Rose; cut flowers by Mrs. S. L. Smith, Miss Avonia Jones and Mrs. Whillans. His immediate relatives who are left to mourn him are his father and mother and sister, Mrs. Fraser, who reside in Hedley, and two brothers, Donald, in Montana, and Colin, in Nova Scotia. Neil McLean and Angus McDougall, his cousins, were over from Okanagan Falls.

The autumn winds rushing
Waft the leaves that are scarest.
But our flower was in blushing
When blighting was nearest.
Like the dew on the mountain,
Like the foam on the river,
Like the bubble on the fountain
Thou art gone and forever.

THE INDIAN RESERVES

Provincial Conservative Convention Arranges to Set the Ball Rolling.

DECLARE FOR A BUSINESS POLICY

The Resolution Passed Shows That the Question is Thoroughly Understood—Diagnosis Perfectly Correct—No Doubt Remedy Will be as Sound.

It was with particular gratification that the Gazette noted the resolution passed in Convention in Vancouver ten days ago, dealing with the question of Indian reserves. It is a question to which the Gazette has devoted a great deal of attention, and in doing so we often wondered why other papers did not seem to recognize the importance of it and join in the crusade, for with the exception of an occasional outcry from Victoria papers on the Songhee monstrosity, affecting that city alone, other papers paid little or no attention to it.

At the convention the following resolution was moved by R. F. Green, former Commissioner of Lands and Works, and adopted unanimously by the Convention:

"Whereas under the terms of the convention between the governments of British Columbia and Dominion of Canada the former conveyed to the Dominion large tracts of the best lands of the province for the exclusive use and benefit of the Indians, with the express understanding that such lands should correspond to the actual needs of the Indians, and that the areas should be reduced as the tribes diminished.

"And whereas, in many cases there has been a material diminution of the Indians on the reserves;

"And whereas, certain of these reserves are within the confines of the larger cities of the province, to the detriment of the community;

"And whereas these reserves are being used by the Liberal government at Ottawa in the interests of political favorites and not as originally intended;

"Be it therefore resolved, that it is highly desirable that steps be immediately taken towards the re-adjustment of the areas of such reserves so as to make the reserved lands available for settlement."

While in the above resolution no definite outline is given of the plan proposed for solving the question, the clause recommending "that steps be immediately taken towards the re-adjustment of the areas of such reserves so as to make the reserved lands available for settlement," has the right ring. It shows that the framer of the resolution thoroughly understood the question and had a proper conception of the end in view. And so long as that end is attained there will be no quarrel over the method employed to gain it.

The resolution it will be noticed also makes reference to the tendency on the part of the Ottawa administration to exploit Indian lands for the benefit of political favorites. From transactions that have taken place in this valley, it will not be difficult to establish instances of that kind. When lease hold has been obtained with a view to utilizing land that was formerly in its wild state, and use is promptly made of it, not for individual benefit alone but in some enterprise from which the community as a whole will derive benefit, no objection is likely to be urged, but all transactions in Indian lands will be narrowly scanned. These lands either belong to the people or they are as the law says "for the use and benefit of the Indians," and the people will insist upon probing to the bottom all transactions or deals in them, and especially those that bear the semblance of graft.

The fact that the question has been made a part of the Conservative platform, as shown by the passing of the resolution concerning it at the convention, is evidence that not only will the provincial government take the matter up, but that the federal contest will be fought along the same lines until the province obtains her rights.

THE SITUATION.

The action of the Rossland miners in accepting the old scale of wages and thus averting from that camp and from the smelter towns of Trail and Northport the calamity which befel the Boundary, must have given a feeling of intense relief to the people of those towns. It showed the beneficial influence which the wise action of the Butte miners two months ago, has exerted in helping to clear the atmosphere, so far as the copper mining industry is concerned. To the Butte miners was due the credit of the advanced scale of wages which obtained during the summer of 1907 in the copper mines of Montana and adjoining states together with those of British Columbia. Taking advantage of the phenomenally high price of copper they went to the mine owners and were ready to negotiate on a business basis. The result of that negotiation was that they obtained from the mine-owners an agreement for increase in the wage scale based on the price of copper, the agreement fixing 18 cents per lb. as the dividing line between the then existing wage scale and an advance of about 15% thereon. This was secured by the Butte miners off their own bats without assistance or advice from outside sources. Of course all did not agree and fault was found with them for entering into this arrangement. Miners elsewhere used the Butte instance as a lever to have their wages increased to a like figure and British Columbia miners were on hand with the rest for the cutting of the water melon. When copper dropped below 18 cents the Butte mine owners waited for a while before calling on the miners to carry out their agreement, but finally they demanded it and the miners agreed to abide by their contract, when the former scale was again made to take effect on November first. This was greeted with more fault-finding from the outside and a fortnight or so later Boundary miners, taking advantage of the technicality that no 18 cent copper stipulation had formed a part of their agreement for increase they decided that they were under no obligation to go back to the old scale and would not do so. The result as we all know has been the closing down of Boundary mines and throwing out of employment over 2000 men, some of whom are now working down here on V. V. & E. construction at $1.80 for 9 hours who voted a few weeks ago in Greenwood against accepting $3.50 or anything less than $4.00 for 8 hours. Eyes were next turned to Rossland and Camp Hedley. In these two camps the situation was rendered more complex than in Butte because of the absence of the 18 cent copper stipulation and also because of the existence here of the Lemieux Act. Nevertheless Rossland miners were able to rise to the occasion. With them the Butte spirit of fairness and reason in the brains of men who owned property and had families to support was able to override the passions of fire-brand aliens who had no stake in the country and a two-thirds majority voted to agree to the old scale with the result that Rossland mines and the smelters in Trail and Northport will continue to work notwithstanding the disadvantage of the low price of copper. The Hedley situation at time of writing is more or less unsettled, but it is hoped that an amicable understanding may be arrived at in a few days. A grave responsibility rests on those who had any hand in unfitting the men to deal with the question sanely and impassionately when it was under consideration a few days ago. Only the fairness and forbearance of the manager who was induced to overlook the attitude of men some of whom were not in fit state to assert their better judgment kept this camp from being in the same position to-day as the Boundary. That that forbearance has not been misdirected nor undeserved it is earnestly hoped the sequel will show. [LATER—Since above was put in type it has been learned that Granby employees have approached the company with an offer to accept the old scale, and the management have agreed to resume operations to-day. This leaves Camp Hedley the only producing camp still on the high wage scale after November. It is also said that the Hedley miners realizing this and knowing that they had been given the high scale all November without shutdown are likely to make an offer to take the old scale from December 1st. Such action would show the management that the men have no wish to single them out for worse treatment than has been accorded elsewhere, and it would keep the way open for better relations in future; while a less considerate course would be apt to leave a sore spot to rankle.]

The solid phalanx from Nova Scotia has been broken. At the by-election last week Colchester went Conservative. It is the hand-writing on the wall. Both east and west want a change.

B. C. FRUIT GETS AWARD

A telegram from Hon. R. G. Tatlow was received by L. W. Shatford M. P. P. while in Hedley last Friday announcing that the B. C. fruit exhibit had received the Royal Horticultural Society's gold medal. Many individual exhibitors from B. C. also won prizes.

IN MEMORIAM

Lines on the Death of John McKinnon, Killed November 27th, 1907.

By J. Thurburn Conn
In the midst of life we are in death,
This thought is inward born;
Staggered and awed by mysterious fate
We mourn our friend thus borne.
Our heads to-day are bowed with woe,
We mourn the loss—the dear,
And wait by the threshold of the Great Unknown
For the dawn that will make all clear.

As a son, he was all that parents could wish,
The interest of home was his care;
To lighten and brighten their evening of life
Was his study, his joy and his prayer.
In his youth and prime he was noble and brave,
To his neighbor and duty true:
The "Key to Heaven" was his constant guide,
Yea, he found it the entrance too.

In love he lived, in peace he died,
His end so tragic, swift, implies
Life is uncertain and death is sure:
Let each to his own give heed, scarce
That peace with God which indicates
Happiness beyond this mortal trace,
Grieve not for him, the Lord doth take,
But love each other for his sake.

Town and District.

Dr. Whillans left by Royer's stage on Monday on a trip to Spokane.

Penticton has two new Justices of the Peace, J. R. Mitchell and W. J. Clement.

Miss Harris, nurse, returned Monday morning to her home in Vernon, going out by Welby's stage.

King Kennedy with moving pictures and other attractions in Fraternity Hall tonight, Thursday, Dec. 5th.

Mrs. S. L. Smith left for Calgary on Monday morning to visit her mother. She was accompanied by her daughters, Gertrude and Marjory.

Hugh Hunter, government agent, Princeton, was a visitor in town last week, going down the line to the work camps on railway construction.

Mrs. Whillans, who was spending a few days with friends in Princeton, cut her visit short on learning the death of the late J. McKinnon, returning here for the funeral.

Jimmy Riordan, the veteran prospector, was among those who came from a distance to attend the funeral of the late John McKinnon. They had always been warm friends.

Miss Conn, who had charge of the staff mess for the Daly Reduction Co. for about a year and a half, has gone to Vancouver where she has obtained a situation as housekeeper.

L. W. Shatford, M. P. P., came over from Penticton to attend the funeral of the late John McKinnon, and was accompanied by Dr. White, both of whom were warm personal friends of the deceased.

Abnormal pressure on our job department during the past week has compelled the use of larger sized type for a portion of the reading matter of this issue than we have been accustomed to using.

All who drive from here to Princeton are immensely pleased with the piece of new road to the west of Holmes' flat. Besides cutting out a difficult and dangerous portion of the road, it is claimed that it has shortened the time for making the drive by over half an hour.

The St. Andrew's Eve dance set for Friday night last was cancelled, out of respect to the memory of the late John McKinnon. It is the intention to hold it to-morrow (Friday), 6th inst., when the ladies are requested to carry out the same arrangements that had been made.

Rev. Mr. Conn's lecture on Friday night last on prison work in Scotland would have been more largely attended but for the uncertainty as to whether it would be held or not. Nevertheless there was a fair turnout and the lecture proved very interesting.

Deputy postmasters, Messrs. Wynne and Webb, having other duties that take up part of their time have arranged certain hours for keeping the wicket open in the post office. These hours it would be well for citizens to note, and by doing so they will save themselves the trouble of making some useless trips. The hours for keeping the wicket open are from 10 a. m. to 12:30 p. m., and from 2:30 p. m. to 5:15 p. m. On Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays also it will be open from 7:30 p. m. to 9 p. m.

J. H. Kennedy, chief engineer of the V. V. & E., is leaving Keremeos this week on a holiday of a couple of months, accompanied by Mrs. Kennedy. This indicates that peace with the C. P. R. (whether temporary or lasting) has at last been attained, for it is a long time since Mr. Kennedy could call his time his own, and not have to be ready to start off at an hour's notice to repel some attack. During his absence Mr. Hale will find it necessary to make more trips down to the Keremeos end of the work.

E. D. Boeing is building himself a commodious woodshed.

Part of Keremeos and Fairview correspondence is held over. Will appear later.

Don't forget the dance in Fraternity hall to-morrow (Friday) night. Everybody welcome!

Lost.—In Hedley, a gold ring with large opal setting. Reward at Gazette office.

Neil McLean, of Okanagan Falls, came over, accompanied by his nephew Angus McDougall, to attend the funeral of their cousin John McKinnon.

Hedley Rifle Association met on Monday night and arranged for holding the annual meeting on Monday 9th inst. in Hair-sine's billiard parlor. Interest in the Chechakho shoot on or about Christmas, is increasing.

For some reason or other Boundary exchanges take longer to reach this office since mail has been carried on the V. V. & E. than before, when they had to go around by the Arrow lakes. Papers that formerly reached here on Tuesday nights have lately taken until the following Saturday to get here.

Talk about sea serpents—the Gazette has a scoop on what looks like the durnedest animal ever seen in these or any other parts. It was seen over in Jim Grant's lake and is claimed to be 200 feet long by 40 wide—fearfully and wonderfully made, a cross between a lizard and a tamarack. When we can secure the services of an engraver and renew our stock of colored inks, reproduction of a drawing of the beast may be made. No information is to hand as to what brands of whiskey they keep in Olalla or Penticton.

HOTEL HEDLEY

BEGS TO ANNOUNCE to his old Patrons and the public in general, that he is now prepared to supply a long-felt want of an up-to-date Lunch Counter, where warm meals may be served at all hours, in future. The object of the management in establishing a lunch counter is to minimize the cost of serving and give the trade the benefit of the saving, and at the same time produce a Bill of Fare equal to those provided along the main line of the C. P. R., where provisions are much cheaper than in Hedley. And having secured the services of a professional Chef of wide experience in the C. P. R.'s service, both in lunch counters and dining cars. This fact should be a sufficient guarantee to the public. See hand bills! Our Bill of Fare is complete and our prices graduated to suit anyone. Prices ranging from 15c. up for a "dine preserver" for 25c. you get a "rightener" or for $1.00 you get a "swell." Give us a trial! We want your patronage. Call for what you want; pay for what you get only.
