Former Hedley Boy Writes From France

15th. Can. Batt. C. E. F.
No. 1, No. 4 platoon, France,

My Dear Friends, Lilly and Willie,

I'm afraid the first thing I will know you will be saying I did not appreciate your last letter or I would have written sooner, but if you will overlook it this time and write soon again why next time I will do better. Just try me.

Well its here we are again, but my I did enjoy my time spent in England after I got well enough to be out of pain. They certainly did everything to give a Canadian a good time as far as I could see. I had a lovely visit up to bonny Scotland with Bob Hogg's people. Of course you know Mr. Hogg being a parson we did not have many big blow outs but they are certainly very fine people, I met Helen Hogg that used to be in Keremeos. She is just the same Helen with the exception that she is married and has a fine bouncing baby girl. I was into London but as it was only for a week end I did not have a chance to see much of it but did see some things at that which opened my eyes, I saw the rest of the Keremeos boys at Shorncliffe and we had a few good times together. I think they are "somewhere" in France" now, least I had a line from Joe Brown last week saying they were all packed ready to leave any hour. I was glad to see our friends Etches and Hogg looking so hale and hearty when I got back, Joe Mason also I think you knew Joe. He is expecting to get a commissiou soon. Bob Hogg plays the big drum in the regimental band and he is sure some drummer. If you could only see him dressed in kilts. I'm afraid every minute to see the drumhead go in but so far it has stood the test. I hear Bob McCurdy has arrived home I guess there would be some time. It will keep Bob busy for some time I guess. I hope his other eye is quite strong. I heard Hedley was sending another contingent and that Robertson was among the bunch. Well I think old Canada is doing fine, don't you? Since coming back we have had it very easy so far it being very quiet along our line. We were out for a few days rest and had quite a time as most every regiment around has a baseball team so we had some real good games also of football. Then in the evenings, sometimes we would have a big bon-fire and have a concert, I tell you, you would be surprised, the singers there are here as well as violin players, step dancers etc, They had a real good program always. One night a bunch in the medical corps gave a minstreal show. There were fourteen in the troupe and they were extra good- Together with the sports it would sometimes put me in mind of 24th of May or Labor Day with the noticeable absence of ladies. Well I guess I had better close or I will be getting in wrong with the censor officer. Trusting this finds yourself Willie and family in best of health, from as ever,

Sincerely Yours,
Billy

Pte. W. R. Hope (77720).

Mr. W. J. Manery, of Similkameen, drove up Tuesday for a short business visit to town. He reports the Horn Silver mine pulling out some mighty fine ore which they are now shipping and if the present grade continues in all probabilities the owners will install a small smelter.

Daly Reduction Co. Adds to Equipment

During the last few months several additions have been made to the Daly Reductions Company's buildings, and quite a number of new units added to the equipment.

During the years 1913 and 1914, the Company installed the Similkameen River Hydro-Electric power plant of 2000 Horse-power. This plant, which was placed in commission during February of the present year, with a 2000 foot new compressor, cost approximately $197,000.

The improvements just completed are: one 5 foot x 22 foot tube mill, fitted with Montana Tonopah linings, one 22 foot x 5 foot Dorr Classifier, two 34 x 18 foot and two 30 foot x 16 foot cyanide tanks, one latest pattarn Oliver Filter Press, several pumps, agitators, and other equipment.

Both the north and south sides of the mill have been extended sufficiently to house the tanks and Oliver Press; the whole being suitably fitted with stairways, electric light, steam heat, etc. The retaining walls, as well as all the foundations, were constructed of Cyclopean Concrete. This would indicate that the management has faith in the permanency of the mine.

The large air-compressor engine, at the auxiliary power station, has been changed from a water-power drive to an electric drive, operated from the Similkameen River power-plant. The motor, operating this unit, was built by the Canadian General Electric Company, and will transmit 400 horse-power at 450 revolutions per minute.

The building has been enlarged sufficiently to house this motor and the drive of the 36 inch belt. All the new machinery is operating very satisfactorily.

We understand the addition, of the mill machinery, mentioned, is for the purpose of making a greater saving rather than increasing the output tonnage, although this may follow later.

Our Hedley mill does not make a great public demonstration, but is busy, nevertheless, 364 days in the year, allowing a surcease of one day, Labor Day, from labor. It has continued to operate so for the past twelve years, and if the permanency of the building, the high class of machinery and equipment that has been installed, is any criterion; it looks as if the management expected the "Old Nickel Plate" to keep the good work up for at least another twelve.

GEN. GORDON WARNED BRITAIN IN YEAR 1882

London, Sept. 15 (by mail).

A remarkable instance of prevision relating to the war was cited here today with an extract from a letter written by the famous General Gordon, to a friend, in 1882. He wrote:

"Every Briton should think of the future and each one should insist on the government passing a measure for compulsory universal military training! So far as England is concerned, she need not, for the next quarter of a century, be under any apprehension of serious difficulties arising with any of her European neighbors, but in 1910 or thereabouts there will have arisen a naval power which may prove mightier than she, and should she (Germany) gain the supremacy, England will become extinct both as a land and sea power, and all her dependencies, including India, will fall into Germany's clutches. You may live to see this. I shall not, but when that time comes, remember my words."

Ladies to Raise Fund on Trafalgar Day

Today we celebrate the 110th anniversary of the Battle of Trafalgar Bay, that great naval engagement in which Admiral Nelson defeated the naval powers of France and Spain and coined the immortal phrase,

"England expects that every man this day will do his duty."

What more appropriate than that we today, engaged as we are in the greatest war in the history of the world should turn to look back at that great naval achievement, and do honor to the memory of the men who in that crisis saved the honor of Great Britain and paved the way for British ascendency on the seas. This ascendancy is vital to us today in our struggle with the Teutonic Allies.

In answer to the appeal from Lord Lansdowne, which appeared in the last issue of the Gazette, Hedley Ladies Sewing Circle have arranged for an afternoon tea this afternoon from 3 to 6, at which the men of the town are requested to appear and bring a collection. In the evening they will engineer a dance in the Opera House, gentlemen will pay $1.00 and ladies will bring refreshments. These events will be carried out in the manner in which only the Hedley ladies do these things, which means that they will be a big success and augment materially the Red Cross fund, which is the object of the whole affair.

In speaking of Trafalgar Day one thinks back to the campaign of the power-mad Napoleon, whose conquest on land doubtless influenced him in the belief that he could also hope to conquer on the high seas. Joining forces with Spain, which at that time had a formidable navy, France with her powerful fleet planned a blow at Great Britain, estimating that the "Silver Streak" as they called the English Channel, would not be of much protection to John Bull, in his tight little island. But there was the fleet of Great Britain to be considered and we will see in the following quotation, (which, by the way is taken from the files of the Hedley Gazette of ten years ago), how this campaign ended.

We quote as follows;

While Nelson's battleships roved the high seas, unconquered, Napoleon dared not launch his hitherto invincible army in an invasion of England. France in that day had a great navy, and when to it was added the then great sea power of Spain, it was little wonder that Napoleon's hopes ran high of breaking down all resistance and hurling his army at the one power which stood between him and world conquest. The French men-of-war were divided into three squadrons at Brest, Rochefort, and Toulon. Napoleon ordered them all to leave port and sail for the West Indies where they were to effect a junction and united with their allies the Spaniards return in overwhelming force to the English channel and cover Napoleon's invading armies; but the British ships lay between the French division and maintained a ceaseless blockade. Villeneuve, the French admiral inside the Spanish harbor, had to bear the insulting taunts of Napoleon, who thus forced him to action against his better judgment. With thirty-three battleships the French navy put to sea, and Nelson with his twenty-seven his plans all pre-arranged, struck them like a thunderbolt. Nelson's plan was for his lee line of 15 ships under Collingwood of the Royal Sovereign to fall on the enemys rear, while the weather line commanded by himself in his flagship the Victory, was to feint at their head and then fall on their center and rear, which he determined to crush before Villeneuve's leading ships could return to help them. At half past eleven o'clock went out Nelson's famous signal, "England expects every man to do his duty," and at noon the first shot boomed out as Collingwood's ships opened the ball and in about half an hour he had cut the enemy's line of battle. Nelson watching this showed again that magnanimous spirit which made him idolized by his sailors, by exclaiming: "How splendidly that fellow Collingwood brings his ships into action.", and in a few minutes more his own Victory was grappling in the death struggle when he closed with the French "Redoubtable" commanded

When the war is over another census should be taken just to find out how many grafters there are in Canada's eight million people. We would like to see the army grafters sent to the pen for life and given the best medical attention so that they might live to be many, many years of age.—Victorian

While the Germans are more or less prepared for a Winter campaign in Russia and are building motor sledges for use on snow, it will be a very difficult matter for them to entrench themselves in frozen ground, writes a military expert. On the other hand the Russians have their trenches all prepared, and the cold weather does not affect them to the same extent as it does the Teutons. They are accustomed to extremes, and the keen, cold, icy air only gives an added zest to their fighting powers.—Colonist.

The Providence, R. I. Journal says that the reason why the German Government has consented to change its submarine methods is because more than 80 per cent of its submarines have been destroyed and its underseas warfare brought to complete failure within the past two months. Sixty-seven German submarines, 28 of which are declared to have been of the newest and latest construction, have been sunk and their crews destroyed by the British navy since the 5th day of May. It is stated on positive authority that the full capacity of the German shipyards for underseas boats is not more than three a month, but that even if Germany were able to replace her submarines as fast as they had been destroyed the most grave situation she faces in regard to this method of warfare is the actual destruction of the morale of the officers and crews of such vessels.

MINING NOTES

The Cranbrook Herald says: "Capt. Rogers is making arrangements to start the hydraulic plant at the Perry Creek gold fields. Operations will probably commence next week."

Yale Review:—"There is being exhibited in many Hope business houses several specimens of copper ore taken from diamond Group in the Skagit Valley. From these two assays have been taken with the following results: No. 1—Gold, $7.20 per ton; silver, 2.60 ozs.; copper, 23.30 per cent. No. 2—Gold, $2.40 per ton; silver, 1.60 ozs.; 18 per cent. The above are the two highest assays of copper ore taken from this locality."

Owing to the 10th coming on a Sunday, and the following day being a bank holiday, the employees of the Granby did not receive their pay checks until Tuesday. It was the busiest pay day since the mines resumed operations.—Pioneer.

George Hambly has a lease on a part of the Sally mine near Beaverdell. He recently shipped 17 tons of ore to the Trail smelter that gave returns of $195 to the ton. He will ship another carload of highgrade ore in a few days. This rich ore is causing a sensation on the West Fork.—The Ledge.

The first car of concentrates from the Ruth mill, at Sandon, was loaded the first of this week. A much more conveniet method of loading from the mill has been arranged for than was formerly in use. The mill is reported to be making a very satisfactory product and since starting up has been running entirely on staff from the Hoge dumps.

The payroll of the Merritt mines tomorrow will total well over $18,000, which is above that of September. The biggest portion is to be paid by the Middlesbore Colleries Ltd., thier payroll having increased by $2,000 over that paid out by them last month. The coal laden cars leaving Merritt are keeping the rails to Vancouver and the Interior humming daily.—Merritt News.

READ— Then Think!

Now that you have commenced to read this article, just keep right on to the end, and then you will have absorbed meat of the cocoanut.

What has this town ever done for you? It has fed you, and clothed you, and housed you, and given you employment and kept the wolf from your door for these many years.

It has done more. It has furnished you recreation, and enjoyment, and has guided you safely over many of the stones that beset the pathway of life.

It has praised your good deeds and has thrown the mantle of charity over your questionable ones.

It has been, and is, YOUR HOME. But what have YOU done for the TOWN?

You are making you money here but where are you spending it?

Are your buying goods from the local dealer, who pays and otherwise contributes liberally to the upkeep of the community and your home, or are you sending your money away to some catalogue house that wouldn't lend you a five cent piece to save your soul from purgatory?

And now you have reached the point where we want you to stop and think, and think hard, and to a sane, sensible and patriotic purpose.

FLOUR TALK

WITH the present increased cost of living it is really a serious question. If you can get a few more loaves each bake day, would you not be prepared to at least try the flour which guarantees this result?—OUR BEST. Victoria, B. C., Oct. 14, 1915

Editor, Hedley Gazette,
Hedley, B. C.

Dear Sir:

Will you kindly allow me a final word in reply to the epistle of a local clergyman in your issue of Oct. 7. Christian Scientists do not preach against other denominations, nor do they invade the press with condemnation of other people's religious views, and they ask the same Christian courtesy in return. But when this is not accorded, it is reasonable to insist upon the fact that a Christian Scientist knows what he believes, or what Christian Science teaches, vastly better than does his opponent.

I have no wish to recall our friend from his retirement. Next to an apology, to retire from discussion is probably the most graceful thing he could do. After reading his latest effusion of cheap ridicule and baseless diatribe, one must heartily agree with him that it is a waste of ink and paper.

I would like to touch again upon the central point raised in the recent correspondence, the point which gathers all that is of vital interest to humanity, and that is the infinity or allness of God, and its correlative, the unreality of evil. These are but two sides of the same truth, and since our critic could not deny one without the other, he rashly denies them both.

The problem of evil, the truth about it and how to destroy it, is the problem of mortals' salvation; but our friend denies there is any problem of human salvation, and gently (?) chides me for using the term. It is true that Jesus solved this problem for himself, and for all who will work it out according to his teaching and example; but until this is done, until the individual works out his own spiritual at-one-ment with God, his salvation remains an unsolved problem so far as he is concerned. Else why does our critic labor from Sunday to Sunday for the salvation of his flock?

The method by which he arrives at the conclusion that because Christian Science teaches that evil, in the absolute sense, is unreal, since it is not of God, it is therefore no sin to commit murder, is a fearful and wonderful innovation in logic. Every mathematician knows there are no errors in mathematics, but that does not mean that one can use any but the right figures and not make a mistake. Errors occur in one's ignorance of mathematics, or in his neglect to use what he knows of it, but these errors are not true, and never had any real existence. Likewise, there is no evil in the truth about God, nor in the truth about man, His image and likeness. One who commits evil thereby departs from the truth about God, even as one who says one and one are three, departs from the truth about numbers; and there we have the whole question in a nutshell.

St. John declared of Jesus that he came to "destroy the works of the devil", and our friend will doubtless admit that Jesus finished his work. The Master exposed the absolutely unreal nature of evil in his definition of the devil as a "liar", as having no place "in the truth, because there is no truth in him", He certainly did destroy the false claim of evil to be something or someone, by showing it to be but a lie. It is significant that our critic is silent about this quotation from our Master's teaching, to which I referred in a former letter. Let me repeat: When Christian Science declares of that erroneous sense called the devil or evil, that "there is no truth in him", it should be remembered that the Master first said it.

This clergyman's denial that God is all-in-all, in the face of Scriptural teaching, is an astonishing position for a minister of the Gospel. What message has he, then, for his church,—that there is something besides God? According to mythology, this is what the devils teach. Satan would surely go out of business, that is, even the belief in evil would cease to exist, if mankind universally accepted the allness of God, and practised it.

Christianity has no other foundation than the omnipotence and omnipresence of God. This is what Jesus came to teach and to demonstrate. Take this truth away, and Christianity would be a farce and a failure, a mere mockery of human hopes. The doctrine that evil is a reality, and that God is not all-power, would be as helpless as the multiplication table to save a mortal from his sins, because his sins are the direct result of the belief that there IS power and reality and intelligence beside or apart from God. There is absolutely nothing more to evil than that.

This clergyman's reasoning, or might I say unreasoning, reminds me of a one-time critic of Christian Science who at first stoutly maintained a belief in the infinity of God, but who when questioned further blandly modified it by asserting that God is, wherever the devil is not. This may express the present critic's views, since he apparently recognizes the impossibility of having an infinite God and a real devil at the same time. But what a doctrine to preach to suffering humanity:—a God whose sovereignty is opposed at every turn by the power of a rival, whose presence is restricted at every hand by a hostile presence, a God who, instead of maintaining His own supremacy, permits this adversary to exist, and to afflict and oppress His children. May I quote briefly from Science and Health, page 140: "The Christian God is universal, eternal, divine love, which changeth not and causeth no evil, disease nor death."

Our friend conceives of himself as one "set for the defense of the gospel", and "to declare the whole council of God", whatever he understands by that; but his "defense" consists mainly in abusing those who differ from him, and his sense of "the whole council of God" seems to be that it is a sin to condem evil as a lie.

His own statement declares him to be at variance with Jesus' definition of evil as untrue, and with the Scriptural teaching that "there is none beside Him," God. What need is there for further comment?
