AN ENJOYABLE HOLIDAY

Our Teachers Give a Glowing Account Of Their Trip To The Old Land

It has become a common occurrence during the last few weeks to see familiar acquaintances setting out for the front but it seems quite an event when some of our own people return from "there or thereabouts".

When our teachers arrived home last Monday Hedleyites in general, including the Gazette, pounced on them for a resume of the European situation. Not having the Roosevelt habit they replied casually that they believed there was some little misunderstanding between the Powers but in evident compliance with Lord Kitchener's plea for reticence they were not prepared to publish interviews on the subject.

About their trips the girls were enthusiastic. The tour which included points of interest for the artist, the educator and the student of history throughout the United Kingdom was handled by the "Hands Across the Sea" association whose perfect organization of the itinerary enabled the visitors to see everything most worth while without giving them an unpleasant sense of "doing time".

From London, as a base, journeys were made to Torquay, Stratford, Exeter, Edinburgh, Glasgow and other places, from which centres visits were made to nearby points of interest, including the English and Scotch Lake Country, the mention of which elicited the most glowing accounts from the teachers. Their one lament is, "We couldn't visit Paris!" Altogether the trip seems to have been a real holiday, genuinely instructive, but happily free from that burden some sense of "administering the uplift" so common to events of the kind.

FAILED TO MATERIALIZE

Films For The Photo Drama Were Held Up at The Customs

The photo drama of Creation which was billed for a four days' show at the Star Theatre under the auspices of the International Bible Students' Association proved rather a disappointment to those who were looking forward to a graphic presentation of Pastor Russell's teachings regarding the origin of the universe and Biblical history in general. The worthy pastor has ideas of his own on everything in the heavens above, the earth beneath and the waters under the earth. His theories are nothing if not original, and the lively anticipation of the local public was evidenced by the full house of the first night of the show. However the audience were generally disappointed by the sketchy, disjointed nature of the pictures.

It seems that the films were ordered from Bellingham to Hedley via Vancouver and Penticton, but through a blunder in the shipping department some were sent by Spokane and Keremeos without invoices, and some were sent by Penticton which resulted in those at Keremeos being held up by the customs officers and in such a hopeless mixup generally that only the second film of the series reached us in the time allotted to our town. We have referred to this matter at some length because the International Bible Students are trying to present a photo-drama which they believe to be of educative value and for that reason alone they deserve the benefit of an explanation of their failure to show at Hedley.

HEDLEY'S LABOR DAY CELEBRATION

In Spite of Bad Weather Full Programme Was Run Off—Rock Drillings, Baseball and Dance Well Handled by the Respective Committees. Complete Prize List

When Hedley celebrates, sometimes the gods send rain and sometimes they send more. This year they sent more. The history of the valley for the past two months might be written in the words "dust to dust; the shingles in the woodshed have curled heavenward and the gander has wandered about disconsolate, scanning the copper skies. New records for drought have been established each week. In unguarded moments of optimism the more sanguine among us began to cherish a secret belief that Labor Day might be fine. But the weather fiend rarely fails us. The day broke cloudy. Seven o'clock saw a few skirmishing rain drops. By nine the shower was falling merrily. By noon the sports committee had used up all the staple brands of profanity and were making steady inroads on the fancy varieties in their heroic efforts to carry out the programme in the brief intervals while J. Pluvius was taking water for fresh assaults. However, the sky cleared somewhat in the afternoon and those in charge, improving their opportunities by some slight changes in the order of the programme ran off the events with a smoothness and despatch that fairly outweathered the weather man.

One genuine source of disappointment was the scanty turnout of our immediate neighbours. The attendance from distant points was about up to par but Princeton and Keremeos were scantily represented. Keremeos usually turns out en masse and Princeton can generally be counted on for a contingent strong in numbers and enthusiasm; but this year we missed a good many familiar faces from both towns, owing no doubt to the unfavorable weather conditions which damped the holiday ardor and practically precluded travelling by any other means than the railway.

An extremely pleasing feature of the entire celebration was the general sobriety and orderliness of the celebrants. Here and there a solitary figure might be seen suffering from conflicting emotions, as it were, or here and there a trio mixing a little private war medicine; but taken as a whole, it was a sober, good natured, orderly crowd with the rough-neck element conspicuously absent. If an officer is to be judged by the order he keeps rather than by the convictions he secures, then Constable Sproule is to be congratulated.

BASEBALL

This year, owing to the fact that most of the nearby teams were already disbanded, the baseball tournament narrowed down to a "sudden death" game between Oroville and Hedley. The match was billed for the afternoon of the first day but was postponed on account of the rain till the next morning when baseball of a wild guerrilla species was waged in the mud. Hedley took the field with Hart and Corrigan on the points and for two innings played air-tight ball till Henderson in a fit of baffled ill temper threw away the ball, allowing Daly to score from third which he had stolen a moment before. After that the local machine commenced to wobble and about the same time the Oroville athletes began to straighten out Hart's slants to all parts of the field. This became a habit and coupled with the errors of the home brews yielded enough runs to cinch the game by a comfortable margin.

Davis and McGuffie, represented the "power commission" for Oroville and proved a gifted duo in the arts of deception. At first our boys seemed to be finding Davis nicely, Willett lifting the ball to deep left field for two bases went to third on a sacrifice and scored a moment later on an error by McGuffie. This ended Hedley's run getting. Though the boys got on the paths in nearly every inning, Davis was strong in the pinches and received sterling support from his team mates.

Following is the score by innings.

Hedley	Oroville
Willett shortstop	Bryan
T. Corrigan 2nd base	Bartell
Henderson 3rd base	Powell
J. Corrigan left field	Daly
R. Corrigan catcher	McDuffie
W. Corrigan right field	Hart
Bolan 1st base	Soling
Hart pitcher	Davis
Martin centre field	Wilson

Oroville—0 0 1 1 2 4 2 0 0—10

The game was lost to Hedley through lack of practice and lack of organization. In fact some of our new recruits do not seem to realize that teamwork has ever been invented.

What we want is men who will "cut the grand stand stuff" and play ball.

Roy Corrigan played the game of his life; but Oroville won.

The ball was wet of course; but Oroville won.

Daly would have played with us; but he didn't and Oroville won.

The umpire was rank of course; but Oroville won.

It was "jolly sporting" of us, old top, to play them in the rain; but Oroville won.

While Hart was meditating over the ball; Oroville won.

We wanted that "one, seventy-five" but Oroville won.

ROCK DRILLING

As expected the event that elicited the most genuine enthusiasm was the rock drilling contest into which four teams entered. Fitz, Trewhella and Greenlund from Hedley; Hamilton and Bowerman, also of our own town, McEaehern Bros. of Ollala, and Carmichael and Anderson, representing Rossland.

Trewhella and Greenlund were first to take the rock and, considering their few opportunities for practice together, made a remarkably good showing. Notwithstanding the hardness of the rock they drove their steel 30 1/2 inches. Next came the McEaeherns cheered by a strong following of old timers who have followed the fortunes of the brothers since they broke into the game years ago. The veterans were evidently a trifle under form as they failed to equal their former record in the same rock. Last year they drove their steel 31 21-32 inches; this year showed exactly 30 1/2. After the doughty Scots came the much touted Rosslanders who proved themselves even superior to their advance notices by giving the greatest exhibition of all round drilling ever seen in this locality. The personnel of the team was not quite the same as last year, when Anderson drilled with Selba to the depth of 34 23-32 inches. This year the new team, consisting of Anderson and Carmichael, hung up a record that is likely to stand for some time in this vicinity by putting down their drills to the unusual depth of 38 1/2 inches, thus beating the 34 1/2 inch hole of the Foulds Bros. which represented the best drilling seen in this locality prior to the present exhibition. Anderson and Carmichael are undoubtedly a splendid drilling machine and the way in which they handled themselves was a treat to local drill "fans". The contest came to a somewhat unsatisfactory close by one of those breaks of hard luck that sometimes beats the best of drillers. Hamilton and Boverman had run their bits down nicely to the depth of about 21 inches when the steel broke. Too experienced rock men not to know that this accident effectually put them out of the running, they, nevertheless, stuck gamely to their work and put down what was under the circumstances, a very creditable hole of 29 1/2 inches.

Taken as a whole the drilling contest was the bright and shining feature of our sports.

THE BALL

The very pleasant and splendidly conducted ball on the evening of the first day came as a tangible reminder of our infant enterprise—the Hedley Brass Band, under whose auspices the dance was held. As usual the ball was appropriately draped with flags and bunting, a new and rather unique feature being an attractive decorative scheme worked out with the band instruments.

While not so large as on some former occasions, the ball was one of the most enjoyable of the Labor Days hops held up at the big ball. Conditions which were so unfavorable during the day proved almost ideal for dancing, the hall being pleasantly cool throughout the entire evening. The dancing began about nine o'clock and continued till about three, with a brief intermission for supper which was served at the Grand Union Hotel. The music was furnished by the Hedley Band Orchestra, under the leadership of Prof. Glaze.

THE BOXING CONTEST

While the band boys and their associates were treading the mazes of the languid waltz, lovers of the fistic science were watching Barney Mullin of Spokane and Frank Byrnes of Winnipeg in the squared circle exchanging amenities with eight ounce gloves.

CAUGHT NAPPING

As the German army sweeps on toward Paris, we hear it said in some quarters that the allies were caught shockingly unprepared. There are just two objections to this contention. In the strictest sense of the term it is not true; and even if it were, the remedy offered by the critics is worse than the disease itself.

Examined point by point the situation is briefly this. As far back as 1830 the neutrality of Belgium was guaranteed by all the powers immediately concerned. That scrap of paper has stood the wear and tear of European politics for seventy-five years and was to be relied on if any treaty on earth is reliable. Now the written contract is the sheet anchor of all business, whether between individuals or nations. The man who signs a written agreement and then treats the other party thereto as though no such covenant existed not only defeats the very object of the contract which was to place them in a position of honorable compromise, but stirs in the breast of all and sundry a latent felling of resentment and a well grounded suspicion of his own good intentions. If it is more contemptible to deceive than to be deceived, if it is better policy in the long run to be genuinely honest than to be shrewdly unfaithful, then the allies were justified in regarding Germany's intentions as honorable and shaping their plans accordingly. Grant once that they were reasonably justified in relying on Germany to respect her solemn pledges, and it immediately follows that their preparations were perfectly adequate. The three members of the Triple Entente never made any pretence of being individually equal to Germany in all branches of the service; had they attempted that, they would have bled themselves white and perished in the attempt. Instead, each ally emphasized the arm of the service which would be of most use to her and for which she was best adapted, each thus becoming complementary to the other. France fortified her frontiers. Russia organized an army. Britain furnished the fleet.

And in the specific department where each ally professed to be prepared their efficiency has fairly outstripped rivalry.

For a time Germany has confounded the plans of the allies by the most cynical piece of treachery in the annals of modern history, and has thereby lost her moral standing in the civilized world. In taking Liege, Brussels and Louvain she has lost Washington, Tokio and Rome. For every thousand enemies killed she has slain a million friends. Now which shall we esteem the least?

The very fact that the Germans are adopting their present tactics is an outstanding proof that they exist consider the allies—their equals in a fair fight. After Mons and Amiens no sane man can question the calibre the morale of the British troops, but the critic replies that our organization is slow and faulty compared with the German. Britain might have had just such a machine had she been willing for twenty years to endure the Prussian system. Which of us would pay that price for a few initial victories?

The critic is ever with us. Political hindsight is the commonest malady in the world today, but the fact remains that, given certain conditions on which they were entitled to rely, the allies were adequately prepared. By treachery Germany has gained a momentary advantage, and in spite of initial success, by that act of treachery has she sealed her ultimate doom.

THE GRAND ANACHRONISM

It is an ill-wind that blows nobody good; though the tinsel of European civilization has been pretty well torn off by the blood lust of the combatants, though the events of the past month form the most scathing of all criticisms of modern Christianity, yet even now gleams of new and better times begin to pierce through the welter of carnage and rapine which almost staggers imagination.

The rumor persists that a parliament of the Poles is to be shortly convoked at Warsaw. Whether this be true or not, Russia has officially promised the Polish population political autonomy—practically Home Rule for Poland. We have been prone to look upon Russia as a backward nation scarce worthy of the European sisterhood and regard Germany as the very typification of the modern spirit. Now we stand confounded to have the tables turned. We have long been blinded by the flash and glitter of Germany's achievements; we have long taken her at her own valuation and we find her at last the very incarnate spirit of medievalism come down to dwell among men. It is instructive but not surprising to find Turkey alone in sympathy with Germany and Austria. Why should not the land of the morganatic marriage and the "mailed fist" itself allied with the land where women is a chattel and life is cheap? Why should not the course fibred brutality of the German Ullman be drawn to its Moslem counterpart? Why should not the believers in the divine right of Mohammed claim kindred with those who believe in the divine right of William II?

We do not claim to be a prophet or the son of a prophet, but it appears to us that Germany's defeat will mean the establishment of a German republic, and the elimination of William II, and all he stands for. Such things as divine right and the mailed fist are anachronisms, and an insult to the intelligence to the twentieth century mind. William is the Grand Anachronism and must be eliminated. Defeat for Germany in this war means her ultimate salvation and freedom. She will be the greatest gainer by the defeat, but not the only one. The entire social and political fabric of Europe will be altered, not in a month or a year but in the next decade, and as a direct result of the present conflict. Thought will run in new channels; total disarmament will become a real issue instead of a whimsical dream; and the socialist will begin to speak with authority not because he can create a new Heaven and a new Earth after his own image, as he so fondly expects, but because in the past he has been one of the few sincere apostles of peace.

Better than Ringing Door-bells

A PIANO manufacturer recently made a house-to-house canvass. He's one of those men with an absurd fear of the "waste-circulation" bugaboo—cannot get away from the haunting thought that only 10 out of every 100 readers of a newspaper may be possible buyers of his goods.

So he refused to advertise, and went a-canvassing—inviting people to come to his piano recitals. Then he wondered why they didn't come.

This is why:

He wasn't reaching the people.

His canvassers rang every door-bell in town. They talked to some one in every house.

But one in every household isn't enough—particularly if it doesn't happen to be the right person. And, as a rule, it wasn't the right person—it was a servant, or a child. The woman of the house was seldom seen; the man of the house, never.

Now, if the piano maker had placed an ad. in the newspaper, it would have reached thousands, where the canvassers could reach only hundreds.

And even though only 10 per cent. of the readers are actual piano buyers, this does not mean that the advertising read by the other 90 per cent. is wasted. Advertising talks, not only to the prospective buyer, but also to his wife, his grown-up sons and daughters, his mother—even his mother-in-law. Their coaxing will help to convince the head of the house—and pretty soon there'll be a piano in that home.

This and dozens of similar cases which might be cited to show that "waste circulation" is an empty bugaboo, and should deter no one.

Take the motor truck. It can be sold only to large firms. Yet a motor truck manufacturer is successfully Advertising in daily papers. He realizes that he must reach, not alone the managers of the concerns that require trucks, but also their directors, their foremen, their head machinists, etc. It is found in actual practice that this Advertising radiates in a thousand directions, and again converges most astonishingly to influence the house that has made up its mind that horse-trucking is too costly and inefficient.

Advice regarding your advertising problems is available through any recognized Canadian advertising agency, or the Secretary of the Canadian Press Association, Room 503 Lumsden Bldg., Toronto. Enquiry involves no obligation on your part—so write if interested.

School is once more under way with Miss Tompkins and Miss Walker in charge. Last Monday the teachers arrived from their European trip and Wednesday morning work began in earnest. The senior room opens with a considerably increased attendance while that of the junior room remains almost unchanged, the number of debutantes in the receiving class being just about equal to the number of senior promotions.

The ladies of Hedley are earnestly requested to come to the work meetings which will be held every Thursday afternoon in the Union Sunday School, to sew, knit and work for the soldiers, their wives and families and all suffering from the war. The first meeting will be held on Thursday, September, 10th., from 2.30 to 4.30 p.m. The Church of England Ladies' Guild meetings will be discontinued during the winter months.

Italy may not have declared war yet but there is a movement among King Victor's subjects abroad. Lucci di Felice a local Italian was in town setting his house in order with a view to returning to the colors. Lucci is not a fluent conversationalist it was difficult to learn whether the summons was official or not; but the fact of his going together with the news that Italians further up the valley have received similar calls seems to indicate that Italy is quietly preparing for business.

For years we have read Lowery's Ledge more or less amusement—mostly more,—wondered what sort of personage the editor was and rather wished to see him. The Colonel is an institution in B. C. as Bob Edwards is in Alberta and when a man becomes an institution such conjectures are not indelicate but perfectly pardonable. This week our desires were gratified when the Colonel's very self drifted into the office, and spent the afternoon with us, chatting over B. C. in the old days and every other subject from skirt dances to homiletics. The Colonel was heading for Princeton where he is interested in the Similkameen Star.

Don't Know They Have Appendicitis

Many Hedley people have chronic appendicitis (which is not very painful) and think it is just bowel or stomach trouble. Some have doctored for years for gas on the stomach, sour stomach or constipation and F. M. Gillespie, druggist, states that if they will try simple buckthorn bark, glycerine, etc., as compounded in Adler-i-ka, the German appendicitis remedy, they will be surprised at the QUICK benefit. A SINGLE DOSE stop these troubles INSTANTLY.

Where Are Your Interests

- Are they in this community?
- Are they among the people with whom you associate?
- Are they with the neighbors and friends with whom you do business?

If so, you want to know what is happening in this community. You want to know the goings and comings of the people with whom you associate, the little news items of your neighbors and friends—now, don't you?

That is what this paper gives you in every issue. It is printed for that purpose. It represents your interests and the interests of this town. Is your name on our subscription lists? If not you owe it to yourself to see that it is put there. To do so
