

Council Asked to Rename City Park

SUGGESTION TO ADOPT NAME OF MURDERED NURSE CAVELL

A suggestion to change the name of the City Park to "Cavell Park" in memory of the English nurse who was put to death by the Germans in Brussels a few weeks ago was made to the city council at its meeting last Friday morning. The suggestion came from the Loyal Orange Lodge which passed a resolution to that effect at a recent meeting, and forwarded it on to the council.

Although appreciating the sentiments actuating the Orangemen in passing such a resolution the suggestion was not received with much enthusiasm by the council. It was thought that it was really a matter for the ratepayers to decide, and a promise was made that the proposal would be put before the ratepayers at the first convenient opportunity.

From this the council turned to a proposal contained in a letter from the Bank of Montreal in which the council was asked to agree to allow the manager's personal taxes and those of the bank for the current year to be applied upon the Bank loan on unpaid taxes for 1914 and previous years.

The city clerk was instructed to reply that owing to the fact that the city was in debt to its employees and the employees of the school board to a considerable amount for deferred salaries, and also has a large number of outstanding accounts and sinking funds to provide for out of the current year's taxes, the city regretted being unable to comply with the request. The clerk was also instructed to draw the bank's attention to the very substantial reductions made in the city's indebtedness to the bank during the current year.

Alderman Rattenbury informed the council that the sewerage pumping plant had been temporarily put out of business during the past week by some towels and a block of wood which had been allowed to get into the sewer. He thought the attention of the public should be drawn to the serious damage which could be caused to the plant if such things were allowed to get into the system.

Alderman Rattenbury also reported that a sewer connection was at present being made with the fire hall.

The clerk was asked to submit to the council at the next meeting the necessary by-laws providing for the reduction of license fees of pool rooms and theatres, and also of the fees for the renewal of water, light and power connections.

Alderman Rattenbury stated that he had been requested to suggest to the council the removal of the old irrigation flume along Richter street.

The council agreed that such removal would be a very great improvement but decided that it would be inadvisable to take any steps until Alderman Copeland could secure the written consent of all the property owners interested.

Alderman Baymer on behalf of the Fire Protection committee stated that they had decided to insure the Fire Hall and contents as follows: Building $600; furniture, $400, and hose and equipment $300. This was confirmed by resolution.

Alderman Adams stated that he had investigated the water consumption at the Graham evaporator and very little water would be used after certain improvements were made. The committee had recommended that no additional fee over what the Western Cannery paid be charged.

The police report for October showed only two cases before the magistrate, one for demanding money under threat of violence, and the other for being drunk and disorderly. The total fines levied were $25; previous arrears collected $37.50, and road taxes $20.00.

An amount of $138 for registration fees in connection with the tax sale was received from the Land Registry Office. This had been provided for in the charge made.

Onion City Instead of Orchard City

MUQE QUANTITIES ARE GOING THROUGH EVAPORATOR

"Never mind, old fellow, don't cry! You'll soon get over it. We all have our troubles in this world!"

With this and other expressions of exaggerated sympathy was a "Record" representative greeted the other day when he paid a visit to the new evaporator of the Graham Company in the cannery building.

Our representative was too busy to reply. He could only glare savagely over the top of his pocket handkerchief at the hardened hypocrites who addressed him.

Although editors have their troubles too, just now, the tears which welled from his smarting eyes had nothing to do with grief. Onions to the right of him, onions to the left of him, onions to the north, south, east and west, above and below him were responsible.

Amongst the notes which he jotted down in the intervals between applications of that indispensable square of cambric was one to the effect that fifteen tons of onions are being treated daily in the plant. He can quite believe it! It seemed as though the whole concentrated essence of that fifteen tons had been stored up and liberated for his benefit.

For some time past the whole town has been flavored with onions. Stored in every available building are mountains of sacks which it will take three plant some months yet to consume. In the meantime the gentle breezes are wafting their fragrance around in generous profusion. It is said that one economical housewife hangs the beef-steak out on the back verandah until time to cook it, thus saving considerable on one article of diet. This may be exaggerated, but it is certain that it will take all next summer's zephyrs and a whole ear load of perfume to get the smell of onions right out of Kelowna.

But as one philosopher said, there are worse smells than onions, and so long as it means money we have no need to kick.

The evaporator is worthy a visit—if you can stand it. On the main floor is a double row of women and girls removing with nimble fingers, the skins of the onions which are then gathered up and carried to the elevator, an endless belt carrying them to the upper floor where they are sliced by machinery. Busy hands take the resulting shreds and spread them on wire trays, which are carried on trucks to the drying stacks and pushed into the spaces between coils of steam-heated pipes. When all the moisture is taken out the casual observer might be pardoned for mistaking them for a heap of shavings. The shavings however are rubbed through a sieve to powder them up and in that form are placed in sacks. The value of this concentrated product can be guessed when it is stated that it takes between twenty and thirty sacks of onions to make a sack of the dry powder. Last week the first carload was shipped to the head factory at Belleville, Ont., and this car held nearly $20,000 worth.

Something in the neighborhood of 1000 tons have been purchased in this district alone, and although the plant is running night and day it will take until next February to dry them all.

When the onions are disposed of carrots are to be treated. These are shredded instead of being sliced in order to quicken the drying process. Potatoes which will follow the carrots are treated in a somewhat different fashion. They are peeled by machinery washed and cooked, and afterward pressed through perforated plates into shreds and dried in that form.

The plant employs at present about forty men and sixty women peelers, whose work is divided into shifts in order to make the process continuous. Mr. Dan Deshane is in charge of the work here, while his brother, Mr. Adam Deshane superintends the driers. The Graham Company it might be mentioned are now operating plants at Kelowna, Vernon and Armstrong, and there is talk of another for Grand Forks.

All this enormous accumulation of produce is to supply huge war orders for a soup specialty placed by the British and French governments.

Growers Should Organize For Orchard Protection

Last week under this heading we discussed some of the advantages of "Community Organization" as a means of more efficiently guarding our orchards against the annual attacks of pests and diseases. We agree that neighbors must join hands in their efforts to most economically fight the pests common to the orchards of a community.

Orchard protection is not an individual, but a community problem. The pests and diseases which attack one grower are apt to do equal damage to his neighbor. An individual, who is spraying for pests, may have all his trouble for nothing, if his neighbor does not spray at the same time and with equal thoroughness.

Only one satisfactory solution has been found to protect the orchards adequately from their numerous enemies, and that is the "Community Organization of the Growers." These in the State of Washington were called "Fruit Protective Associations."

Fruit Protective Associations A Necessity.

There are men who will not do anything, no matter how practical it sounds, how effective it may be, until they are driven to it, by a direct loss.

This was exactly what happened in the districts surrounding North Yakima, Wash. The summer season of 1913 was disastrous to the growers in the widely segregated districts of Yakima, through the widespread appearance and terrific inroads of fire-blight. Government inspectors were helpless to meet the general demand on their services, and blight threatened to cause the loss of whole orchards.

A Practical Idea

In December 1913, a large meeting was held in the Broadway district, and plans for a working organization proposed. These met with immediate interest on the part of the growers because they recognized the community principle of "Orchard Protection," and many of them had been faced with direct loss due to inability of their neighbors to cut blight when they should.

Form of Organization Adopted

Yakima County was divided into five divisions, and for each of these the state supplied a regular district inspector to the County-Inspector-at-large. Among these divisions, 37 Fruit Protective Associations, consisting of 325 smaller units, with a chairman in charge of each, was formed. These district chairmen acted co-operatively with the state appointed inspectors, in matters affecting the situation, made recommendations and assisted in the details of carrying them out, even to the securing of labor with which to clean up an infected orchard. In this manner, the district inspector was backed up, not only by a large army of unpaid assistants, but by an active public sentiment.

In getting the local associations effectively organized, it was necessary to hold at least three meetings with each association. At the first, the organization was perfected, officers elected, districts outlined, and the district chairman named for each section or neighborhood. At the second, orchard demonstrations were held under the direction of the district inspector, to show the necessity of tree surgery, and the care that must be exercised in all details. At the third, verbal reports of the blight situations in each district and notes of the work being done were given. On the whole, the districts were well organized, and it was an easy matter to call the associations together later, as necessity became apparent, for meetings which were held with most beneficial results.

The fruit protection idea, of making organized effort by growers of a district, has taught that much is to be gained from the spirit of healthy co-operation. Regarding the control of fire-blight alone, replies to a circular letter sent out to all the important blight infected centres of the northwest, brought this reply to the following questions:—"Is fire blight causing orchards on a large scale to go into liquidation, and will fruit protective associations, rightly handled, prevent this?" Every man familiar with these organizations replied that it would save many orchards from facing liquidation, and several actual examples were cited. Such straight-forward evidence of the value of protective associations should be sufficient to gain every fruit grower's immediate attention and interest.

I may add that this series of letters on fire-blight, from the best authorities in the northwest, will be correlated, and conclusions drawn. These conclusions will be printed and circulated for information and guidance of the fruit grower, with the approval of the department of fruit pests.

Next week, another article, bearing on "Orchard Protection" through organized efforts of growers, will appear in the "Record." Every grower should discuss this vital question with his neighbor and be prepared to express his opinion on it.

Westbank News

(From our own Correspondent.)

Mrs. Lindstrom spent Tuesday in Kelowna.

Master Halpin Moffat visited Kelowna last Wednesday on business.

Miss Kathleen Hewlett of Westbank spent Saturday visiting Miss Pearl Gellatly at Gellatly.

Mr. James Duncan spent a few days at Peachland last week, returning to Westbank on Saturday's boat.

Messrs. H. C. Etter and J. Sinclair, and Miss Mabel Clark were visitors to Kelowna last Saturday.

The Misses Vina and Mary McLaughlin and Mr. James Moore of Peachland spent last Sunday at Gellatly visiting friends there.

Owing to a sudden and unfavorable change in the weather last Sunday, Rev. Mr. Henderson of Peachland found it impossible to attend church services at Westbank. In his absence a short time was passed in a song service after which the congregation departed.

Mrs. O. C. Etter and Mrs. A. F. Pelton, who is at present visiting Mrs. Etter at Pinehurst, spent last weekend in Kelowna, during their stay there Mrs. Pelton was the guest of Mrs. J. B. Knowles, while Mrs. Etter spent her time with Mr. H. Etter who is working in Kelowna. The visitors returned to Westbank on Monday evening.

The onion yield at Bushy Ranch, operated by D. E. Gellatly and sons, was certainly a record one this year. The total crop amounted to 9000 sacks or 400 tons, or about 27 carloads, these onions are at present being stored in the spacious green house at the Gellatly ranch, there they will remain until spring when it is the intention of Mr. Gellatly to export the crop to New Zealand and Australia, arrangements for this exportation being practically completed at the present time. Mr. Gellatly estimates that the shipment, which is of excellent quality will bring at least $30 a ton.

There has been much activity in the hunting line during the past week in Westbank and environs, the following parties have all taken a jaunt over the neighboring hills and have on the whole been well repaid for their exertions: Messrs. Campbell and Stubbling; Messrs. D. E. and Willie Gellatly; F. Featherstonehaugh and A. Johnson; and Messrs. Lake, Moffat, Zenger and S. Turnbull. In the last named party Mr. Lake secured two fine does and Master Moffat a good sized buck; other successful hunters were L. Featherstonehaugh and W. Gellatly. The remaining members of the different parties had to be contented with the "hunting" part of the "game."

Twelve hours after it became known that the company had secured an order for 72,000,000 pounds of powder for the Allies, the mill of the Dupont Powder Company, at Hagley, Del., was blown up. The damage is estimated at $20,000.

Government Pruning And Packing Classes

PRUNING CLASSES TO BE HELD THIS WINTER

The following announcement of pruning schools for the coming season has just been received from the Deputy Minister of Agriculture, Mr. W. F. Scott.

In 1914, the first year pruning schools were offered, says Mr. Scott, twenty-five were held, and in 1915 the number increased to forty-seven. As these schools proved to be very beneficial to the fruit growers, the department has decided to offer them again. Some requests have already been made and as there will undoubtedly be a big demand for them, it is hoped that applications will be placed as soon as possible.

The department of agriculture will provide a competent instructor, and pay his expenses. The local administration of the pruning schools will be placed in the hands of a responsible local body, such as the Farmers' Institute, the Fruit Growers' Association or the Board of Trade, who will be responsible for the guarantee of a minimum of eight pupils, (but not more than twelve), with the proper qualifications, at a fee of one dollar each, to take ten lessons of three hours a lesson, the school extending over five days. Where the number of pupils in a district justifies, two pruning schools may be arranged for, in which the minimum guarantee will be sixteen pupils, and not over twenty-four. The local organization will also provide an orchard or orchards, where the instructor may hold the pruning classes, and a hall or room in which the lectures may be held.

Any section of the district which can raise the necessary number of pupils may have a pruning school established and it can be started at once if desired.

Besides the actual practice in the orchard, of which the courses will consist chiefly, where the pupils will prune trees under the supervision of the instructor, there will be lectures on the theory of pruning, which will include talks on pruning as related to the formation of fruit buds, and to plant growth, also the subject of top grafting undesirable varieties will be dealt with, along with many other points of interest.

The pupils will provide their own pruning tools, the necessary tools being a pair of pruning shears, a saw and a pocket whetstone. A pruning pole and a light ladder may also be necessary for large trees.

The department expects that the instructor will be met on his arrival by some responsible person, who can provide him with all the necessary information, so as to get the school under way without loss of time.

It hardly seems necessary to present the important advantages to be gained from a pruning school. Pruning is one of the important operations in the production of first-class fruit and one on which the orchardist cannot have too much information.

FRUIT PACKING SCHOOLS AGAIN BEING ARRANGED FOR

The department of agriculture will also again offer fruit packing schools during the coming winter. While the supply of packers was nearly equal to the demand last year, there was a decided shortage in many districts this year owing to the enlistment of a number of our former packers, and it is hoped that advantage will be taken of this opportunity to supply the deficiency.

The responsible organization must guarantee not less than twelve pupils, but not more than fifteen, at a fee of two dollars each, to take the twelve lessons of two and a half hours each, the school extending over the week. Where twenty-four to thirty pupils can be secured, a double packing school will be arranged. The hall provided should not be smaller than 30 feet by 15 feet, well lighted, and sufficiently heated to prevent freezing of the fruit at night.

The department of agriculture provides the instructor and pays his expenses, supplies packing paper and tables, and bears the cost of fruit and all other legitimate expenses except that of the secretarial work, the rent of the hall, and its heating and lighting. Local fruit will be used where possible, and the department will pay the legitimate market price as determined by the market.

Agricultural Short Courses in Kelowna

WILL REPEAT LAST YEAR'S SUCCESSFUL EXPERIMENT

The results of the short course held at Kelowna at the beginning of this year were so gratifying to all concerned that the provincial department of agriculture is offering to continue the course next year providing the attendance will warrant the necessary expenditure.

The experience gained at the last course by the department will enable them to put on a course next year which will be even more instructive and interesting to the farmers of the district; no efforts will be spared and every endeavor will be made to put before the agriculturalists of Kelowna the underlying and essential principles of up to date agriculture. Special features will be practical demonstrations in soil management, stock judging, seed selecting, milk testing, mixing and preparation of sprays, etc.

This is an opportunity which farmers seldom have so close at hand to extend their knowledge for the improvement of their farming methods; and it is sincerely hoped that every farmer who can possibly do so will take advantage of this exceptional opportunity. The fee for this course which will extend over two or three weeks will be $1.00 only.

Anyone wishing to take this course should forward his name as early as possible to the secretary of the Farmers' Institute.

Packing Parcels for Soldiers at the Front

In a letter just to hand from the Post Office Department at Ottawa, the public is urged to exercise every care in packing parcels for the troops, as careful packing is absolutely essential to ensure delivery of the parcels in good order.

Parcels sent abroad require a higher standard of packing than is necessary in the Canadian Parcel Post, and this applies with even greater force to the parcels for the troops. Those which are inadequately packed run great risk of damage or loss of contents.

Thin cardboard boxes, such as shoe boxes, and thin wooden boxes, should not be used; nor does a single sheet of ordinary brown paper afford sufficient protection. The following forms of packing are recommended:

- 1.—Strong double cardboard boxes, preferably those made of corrugated cardboard, and having lids which completely enclose the sides of the boxes.
- 2.—Strong wooden boxes.
- 3.—Several folds of stout packing paper.
- 4.—Additional security is afforded by an outer covering of linen, calico or canvas, which should be securely sewn up.

The address of the parcel should be written in ink on the cover, preferably in two places.

The address of the sender of the parcel should also be stated in order that it may be returned if undeliverable. The contents of the parcel should be stated in writing on the cover.

In the case of parcels sent to the Mediterranean force, they should be very strongly packed. They should be as nearly round as possible, and well padded with shavings, crumpled paper or similar protective material. The outer covering should consist of very strong linen, calico or canvas, and should be securely sewn up. The use of wooden or metal boxes with square corners is undesirable, as parcels so packed are liable to injure other parcels in transit. No perishable articles should be sent, and anything likely to become soft or sticky, such as chocolates, should be enclosed in tins. Parcels merely wrapped in paper or packed in thin cardboard boxes, such as shoe boxes, cannot be accepted.

Fourteen super dreadsoughts have been added to the British fleet since the outbreak of the war, according to official announcement.

A decree has been issued by the New Zealand government providing that no males between the ages of eighteen and forty-five will be permitted hereafter to leave the country for destination overseas without military permit.

Old Furs Wanted for Italian Soldiers

A branch of the movement to collect old furs for forwarding to the Italian troops fighting amid the snows in the high mountains, has been started locally under the auspices of the Women's Institute, a committee having been appointed at a recent meeting to take charge of the matter. Furs are to be sent in to Oxley's store.

The movement throughout Canada is in the hands of the National Council of Women who have sent out copies of the following correspondence to all local branches:

National Council of Women of Canada 78 Pleasant Boulevard, Toronto. October 6th, 1915

Dear Madam,—The president has received the following important communication, which she asks you to be good enough to lay before your council, or nationally organized society in affiliation as soon as possible.

She asks me to say further that she hopes for a very generous response to this urgent appeal, made to us for our brave Italian Allies by our beloved advisory president, and so cordially endorsed by our honorary president, H.R.H. The Duchess of Connaught: "Dear Mrs. Torrington,—

"I am urgently requested by the central committee of aid for the Italian troops on active service at Milan to transmit an earnest appeal to the women of Canada, to help in collecting furs for the Italian troops now in the high altitudes, who are already beginning to suffer from frost bites.

"Work parties in Italy are stitching together skins of all kinds to make sleeping bags, and the idea has occurred to them that their friends and Allies in Great Britain, and especially in Canada, would be able to help them to collect skins, or old furs speedily.

"I think I cannot do better than place the matter in the hands of the National Council of Women of Canada, and that you and your officers will decide how best to make the appeal, as there is no time to be lost, as winter is already setting in, and Italy is so surrounded by high mountains that their only road to victory is over them.

"I enclose a circular of which 300,000 have been sent out in Italy. I will enclose a copy of his circular and of my letter to you to H.R.H. The Duchess of Connaught, in case Her Royal Highness may have any wishes as to the method of appeal, if you decide to make it.

Sincerely yours, (Signed) "ISABEL ABERDEEN AND TENAIR."

"From the Comptroller of the Household, Government House, Ottawa. Dear Madam.—I am directed by H. R.H. The Duchess of Connaught to say that she thoroughly approves of the scheme to send furs to the Italian soldiers who are already suffering from the intense cold in the mountain ranges. The Duchess presumes that you will address a letter to all branches of the National Council of Women of Canada. Her Royal Highness hopes that you will say that Lady Aberdeen's appeal will have her heartiest support. The Duchess will donate some furs through the Ottawa branch.

Translation of Circular "The painful experience of other nations at war teaches us that among troops engaged at high altitudes, serious and frequent irreparable injury has been caused by frost-bites. In order to reduce as far as possible such suffering and mutilation we must provide those of our soldiers most exposed to the risk of frost-bites with fur, even of a rough description.

"The most easily adapted and suitable would naturally be such skins as sheep skins, goat skins, lamb skins, etc., but as for obvious reasons the supply of these cannot be counted upon, the next best is to have an ample supply of skins such as rabbit skins, cat and hare skins, which can be utilized to supersede them.

"Many persons might concur helpfully now in the work by giving old furs for which they have no use, chauffeurs' coats, motor coats, skin rugs, floor, travelling or carriage furs of any sort, which rapidly adapted or transformed to a military regulation model, could be sent off at once to the front. Let all, then, who have any suitable furs which they can do without, make it a sacred duty to give them with the large-hearted generosity which knows no limit.

"This winter no woman could do so egotistically callous as to place her feet on a warm soft skin rug, no man could go on keeping an extra fur-coat or one which is 'out-of-date' if they think of the ice-laden blizzards beating on the soldier-brother up there fighting above the snow line.

"All fashionable women, millionaires, shop-keepers, even the humble shepherd, all who have the disposal of a fur coat, or a rug, or piece of fur which is not absolutely indispensable send it with a liberal heart.

"All those who have not the chance to offer themselves for the defence of their country, but who with heart and hand help their brothers at the front and remove their drawbacks and sufferings, may not only enjoy the rest giving satisfaction of a duty fulfilled, but on the longed-for day of victory they too, will know the personal joy and the secret pride of having, as it were, by their incessant loving care and sympathetic renunciation, helped to fight, and win side by side with the heroes and the martyrs who fought and won for us.

"Signed by the president of the Central Committee of Aid for the troop on active service.

"There are two general systems of interpretation of prophecy," stated Evangelist Potter in his lecture in the school house last Sunday. "One is the mystical or spiritualizing system invented by Origin of the second century to the shame of sound criticism and the curse of Christendom; the other is the system of literal interpretation used by such men as Tyndale, Luther and all the reformers. The first system has no law but the up-curbed imagination of its adherents; therefore there are on its side as many different interpretations as there are different fancies of different students. By the literal method where every symbol is explained by other passages of scripture which are literal, the interpretation of prophecy becomes subject to well established and clearly defined law making the subject of Bible prophecy a delight to thoughtful men and women. Mr. Potter cited as an example Sir Isaac Newton as a master mind who delighted in the study of the time prophecy of the Book of Daniel.

The subject of Evangelist Potter's lecture next Sunday at 3 o'clock in the school house will be "The Hand of God in History," in which he will draw lessons from the world wide movements of the sixteenth and nineteenth centuries.

I PERSONALLY wish to take this opportunity of thanking the many customers of this store and the public in general for the large volume of cash business we have received whilst in Kelowna and connected with the store. I regret in many ways leaving this prosperous valley as even under adverse conditions the business has been ever increasing. However, after the 15th of next month I hope to be located at 37, Hastings Street West, Vancouver, where I am taking an interest in a clothing business, from where I will always be pleased to submit you samples and prices. Do not hesitate to write me at any time I can be of service to you while I am at Vancouver. Again thanking you for one and all for your past favors and patronage.

How Spies are Disposed of in the Tower

In England since the war began eight persons charged with espionage have been found guilty and sentenced to death by shooting. The most recent case, only a short time ago, when a man and woman of German origin were found guilty of attempting to communicate to persons abroad information regarding the British fleet with the intention of assisting the enemy. The male prisoner was sentenced to be shot, and the female one, who was considered by the court to have been acting under the influence of the man, to be kept in penal servitude for ten years. This is the first occasion on which a woman spy has been sentenced to penal servitude since the war began. Previously seven spies had been sentenced to death, Lody, Muller, Rosenthal and four men unnamed. The spy Kuepferl hanged himself in Brixton prison during his trial, and his companion, Hahn, was sentenced to seven years penal servitude.

When a spy has been condemned to be shot he is handed over at once to the military authorities and the sentence is carried out at the Tower of London, that historic place of many tragic happenings. An acquaintance of the writer's who is a member of the Artists' Rifles, the regiment that is quartered at the Tower, tells me that the shooting of spies has been reduced to an absolute system. From his description of the ceremony the chief object of those who have elaborated it seems to have been to avoid unnering, not the prisoner, though the thing is done as humanely as possible, but his executioners.

When the fateful moment for the execution of a spy arrives the doomed man is brought out and seated in a chair to which he is pinned securely. This is to prevent his falling after he has been shot, a sight that was found too much for the nerves of some of the men composing the firing squads. Then the prisoner is blindfolded and both his ears and nostrils are stuffed with cotton wool. He is permitted to smoke a cigarette right up to the end, when it is taken away from him and he is told to open his mouth, when that, too, is stuffed with cotton wool.

Meanwhile the firing squad have taken their places. This number six picked marksmen, and there are 20 more men in readiness outside in case any of the first number should flinch. Contrary to what has been common custom in such cases, all six of the rifles are loaded with a ball cartridge. At the last moment an ordinary target printed on paper is pinned exactly over the prisoner's heart, and my acquaintance, who saw one of the targets after execution said it contained just one hole, directly in the centre of the bull's eye. Naturally death is instantaneous.

Someone is usually toled off, I understand, to stand guard over a condemned man on the night before his execution, and also with a view to cheering him in his last hours and in at least one of such cases, the story goes, the parts were exactly reversed, the prisoner, a man of 60, having been more or less stoical and having devoted himself to "bucking up" his guard who was considerably upset. All the spies have died unflinchingly and many have testified unsparingly to the fairness of their trial. The man who went furthest in this respect was Gustav Ahlers, who is said to have left a complete confession of how he helped to plan the Scarborough bombardment and gave other information of the utmost value to the British admiralty. This partly as retaliation for the action of the German government, which he served faithfully and which later disowned him.

METHODISTS AND THE WAR

Editor Kelowna Record,
Dear Sir,—It is said that the only reference to the war made in the recent conference of the Methodist church was to pass a resolution recommending that no tobacco should be sent to soldiers. Can any of your readers tell if this is true?

Yours truly,
INQUIRY.

B. C. AGRICULTURAL ORGANIZATION ASSOCIATIONS

Editor Kelowna Record,
Dear Sir.—We have formed here a British Columbia Agricultural Organization Association, and knowing something of the magnitude of the problem which we are facing have decided that local organizations of bona fide farmers only should be established throughout the province at all points where an interest can be created, and then locals should each send delegates to a convention where a central executive representing them all should be elected.

A campaign to organize local associations throughout the province has started and local associations are already formed. Meetings will be held throughout this valley, and we would be glad to receive communications from bona fide farmers only so that we can arrange dates for such meetings.

We shall be deeply grateful to you if you will insert this letter in your next issue.

Yours obediently,
J. L. PRIDHAM,
Chairman Organization Committee

(We are asked by Mr. Pridham to state that the B. C. Agricultural Organization Association referred to above and the meetings announced in last week's issue of the "Record" have nothing whatever to do with any government organization, and are intended for bona fide farmers only who hold no office in any company or organization for the sale of agricultural and horticultural produce).

THE TEMPERANCE MOVEMENT

Editor Kelowna Record,
Dear Sir,—In these days when the subject of temperance is being widely discussed it is important that justice be done to all parties interested in or affected by this great and important issue.

Doctor Brunton, the eminent English physician tells of a drunkard who complained because the temperance people were forever reminding him of his drinking, but never telling him how to get rid of the thirst that compelled him to drink.
Holy Writ declares that "the curse causeless shall not come" and there is a cause of the drunkard's thirst just as there is a cause for the fever patient's temperature.

If our modern dinner-tables could be cleared of those things that create a craving for the liquor, there would be more vacant places at the bar table.

Our modern strenuous life is developing a people of weak and sensitive nerves. The lining of the stomach, the physicians tell us, is as delicate as the lining of the eyelid. Therefore many who apply mustard plasters internally in the form of condiments and highly spiced foods, find that a feverish thirst is aroused that the town pump cannot quench.

A certain number of these unfortunates soon discover that the liquor dealer and the patent medicine vendor are the only ones who dispense the stuff that satisfies his craving.

It is astonishing that clergymen, statesmen, and other eminent men will furnish glowing testimonials for patent medicines that contain in some instances more alcohol than does ordinary whiskey.

Dr. Osborne, of Yale, in his paper read before a recent meeting of the Medical Association of America spoke of one patent medicine firm as reported to be using five hundred barrels of whiskey each week.

Great efforts are made to put down intemperance; but there is much effort that is not directed to the right point.

The advocates of temperance reforms should be awake to the evils resulting from the use of unwholesome food.

It is significant that nearly all the great religious reformers were true temperance reformers because they were health reformers.

John Wesley, who stirred England as no other man ever did, wrote a health book. To the early Methodist preachers he put the following questions: "Are you temperate in all things? Take for instance, of food—do you use only that kind and that degree which is best for both the body and the soul? Do you eat flesh suppers? Late suppers? These naturally tend to destroy the best health."

At a time when the use of stimulants was almost universal, he gave this teaching: "Strong and more especially spirituous liquors are a certain though slow poison."

Seventy-five years ago Sylvester Graham, a Presbyterian clergyman, took the lead in a health movement that swept over North America and took root in England between the years 1830 and 1844, in that period of time of spiritual revival unparalleled since the days of John Wesley or as some assert since the days of the apostles.

A monument to his memory may now be seen in every properly made loaf of "Graham" bread.

Two generations ago, Oberlin College was established for the Congregationalist church. It was one of the most remarkable missionary training centres that the world has seen since the days of Luther.

It was born in prayer. It was reared in adversity.

The founders of that institution stood stiffly for great health and temperance ideals.

They pledged themselves, by a solemn covenant, that in view of "the degeneracy of the church and the deplorable condition of our perishing world, we will, by industry, economy, and Christian self-denial, obtain as much as we can, above our necessary personal or family expenses, and faithfully appropriate the same for the spread of the gospel.

"That we may have time and health for the Lord's service, we will eat only plain and wholesome food, renouncing all bad habits, and especially the smoking and chewing of tobacco, and deny ourselves all strong and unnecessary drinks, even tea and coffee, as far as practicable."

The bread served on their tables was made from unbolted wheat flour.

Flesh meat and fish in all forms were banished from their tables.

Spices and fiery condiments were all ruled out.

William Booth, of the Salvation Army, had frail health in youth, but by "sowing for health" he passed the age of eighty in excellent health still giving his personal attention to the vast organization of which he was head. He did not eat fish, flesh or fowl in any shape or form.

Temperance workers today have not done their duty until they show by precept and example how to sow for temperance instead of intemperance.

The principle "whatsoever a man soweth, that shall he also reap" is as true in its operations as is the law of gravitation.

CALGARY RETAILERS MAKING DISPLAYS OF B. C. APPLES

This week in Calgary nearly every retailer of fruit has his window filled with apples from British Columbia, which together with the advertising of the department and that of the retailers themselves, coupled with the aggressiveness of the jobbers as well as the publicity given in the papers has stimulated an increased interest in British Columbia apples. Although there was no apple week in the ordinary sense of the term, everywhere, throughout the city the sign "Buy B. C. Apples" was to be seen in the shop windows. Show cards were printed by the market commissioner, and distributed to the retailers. These cards occupied a feature in the stores, and in the windows.

The Hudson's Bay Company had a most attractive window. In the background hung heavy green velvet curtains before which stood out prominently great large letters made of apples; these were B.C. Below this there were arranged a number of seasonable varieties in boxes, while at either side there stood large circular stands the tops of which were tipped toward the windows. Right up against the window there were a number of artistically arranged baskets of apples. All together the display was one of the most talked of apple displays in the city.

Christmas Cards

in most delicate designs and colourings

It would be extremely hard if not impossible to dissociate Christmas from that indescribable sentiment and feeling of goodwill with which we are all so familiar. In many cases, however, no matter how one feels, or may wish to shake old friends by the hand, we find that circumstances forbid our uniting around the Yule log. Still, we feel that more than a casual thought should be bestowed on those at home—or far away—hence the time honored custom of greeting by card remains with us, gaining favor as the years roll on.

You have been "thinking about" ordering your cards. Let us remind you that our albums are open for inspection. Orders have been coming in during the week.

Botanical Notes

Most of the colors mentioned in the lists of local wild plants have been tested by the French color chart, the only standard and international color guide. Color is important to botanists, both on aesthetic and scientific grounds, though it is by no means a proper basis for classification of plants. A few notes on the subject will not be out of place.

Chevrolat, the chemist, with his chromatic circle of twelve colors, and their tones, and the shades between them, in 1860, made some progress; and Lindley, the botanist, grouped color species in eight classes; but botanists have still, down to our own day, lost their way among the colors, especially between blues, violets and purples; and they might well take example from the ornithologists on this side of the Atlantic who use Ridgway's "Chromotaxis" as a color guide, which was published especially for bird study.

A color chart is essential, and a complete one for international use has been published only in recent years by the French Chrysanthemum Society, with the concurrence and assistance of other societies in France and other countries. This chart is used by our Royal Horticultural Society and is obtainable from them, (Vincet Square, London W., Eng.) for fifteen shillings and two shillings postage.

Three hundred and sixty-five colors are shown in this repertoire of colours each in four tones except the metallic hues, the origin of each color is told, and the names given in five languages, synonyms being often added.

The selection of names by the French color experts is admirable, and it may be added that where the names given by other nationalities differ from these they are usually inferior.

The chart begins with whites and goes on to yellows, oranges and reds, -as it may be observed, do, roughly speaking, the spring and summer flowers of northern countries. The French color experts find no examples of pure white in flowers except the white-rayed flowers of the composite family; and Luther Burbank concurs in this.

By a curious mental habit, popular ideas of a color have in many cases been exaggerated in one direction. Thus grass green denotes a shade bluer than grass, and of this color the Frenchmen remark briefly "no example" (in vegetation).

The proportion of color names derived from the plant world is about 84, as compared with 90 from animals, such as flesh color, otter brown, and with about the same number from minerals, including precious stones, such as copper-red, amethyst, turquoise. A fairly complete color chart can be made of the plants themselves, tabulated, and from even our own local flora, thus:-

WHITES.- Snow white to cream white, Spring Beauty (2), Snowberries (169), Milk-white, Mook Orange (79), Amber white, Elder flowers and tall Dog-bane (79), Greenish white, Alaska and Dutch clover (98), veins of various leaves, of the lettuce kind and others.

YELLOWS.- Canary yellow, Diffuse Cinquefoil (107), Sulphur yellow, Evening Primrose (106), Primrose yellow, fringed loosestrife (88) Tone 3, Dandelion outer rays; Chrome yellow, Dandelion centre; and yellow Fritillary (4), and Gaillardia (69). Aureoline or But-

Service Bars for Railway Employees

The system of giving service bars to employees have been adopted by the Canadian Pacific Railway. There are now on their way to the coast arm badges which will be worn by many British Columbia employees of the company. Train conductors, who have been 15 years in the company's employ, will have the right to wear a vertical bar one and one-half inches in length and a little over a quarter of an inch wide, on their left coat sleeve. The bar will be of gold braid. For each additional five years of service a bar will be added. Trainmen (brakemen) will be allowed to wear a vertical silver bar for ten years' service and additional bar for each subsequent five years. Conductors of sleeping cars and stewards of dining cars will wear one bar (gold braid) for ten years' service and an additional bar for each five years. Sleeping car porters will wear a bar of silver braid for ten years in the company's service and one bar for each subsequent five years. It is stated that on the British Columbia division there are several employees who will be in a position to wear three or more bars.

Correspondence

Editor Kelowna Record,
Dear Sir,-On the part of all the people who live on the west side of the lake I wish to complain to the Kelowna storekeepers for the laxity in despatching our orders, in time to catch the Westbank Ferry. Very seldom has the ferry been able to start punctually owing to this and on many occasions we have had to remain over until a later one in order to get our stores sent down. Can these storekeepers complain if we send away for our goods. We get them cheaper, the same quality and we get PROMPT DELIVERY. They seem to forget we all help to keep them going. Let them return the kindness by seeing that all orders are dealt with promptly, are plainly marked with the name and arrive in time to catch the ferry.
Yours truly,
J. H. KITSON.

There is said to be no unemployment in London, England. A central organization formed to find work for the needy has been disbanded. Abnormally plentiful employment and exceptionally high wages have off-set the higher cost of living.

Amber yellow, flowers of Involucre Fly Honey-suckle (36), straw yellow, flower of "Prickly Pear" cactus (193), berries of Poison Ivy (137). Maize yellow, Coloma grandiflora (92). Some autumn tints are Indian yellow to saffron yellow.

ORANGES.- Reddish chrome, stems of Giant Mullen (115), Chinese or Persian Orange, Canada Lily (91), Scarlet orange or minimum, Indian Paint Brush, miniata (86). This wild-flower color talk will be continued next week with the permission of the editor.

SYNOPSIS OF COAL MINING REGULATIONS

Coal mining rights of the Dominion in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, the Yukon Territory, the Northwest Territories, and in a portion of the Province of British Columbia, may be leased for a term of twenty-one years at an annual rental of $1 an acre. Not more than 2,500 acres will be leased to one applicant.

Applications for the lease must be made by the applicant in person to the Agent or Sub-Agent of the district in which the rights applied for are situated.

In surveyed territory the land must be described by sections, or legal subdivisions of sections, and in unsurveyed territory the tract applied for shall be staked out by the applicant himself.

Each application must be accompanied by a fee of $5 which will be refunded if the rights applied for are not available, but not otherwise. A royalty shall be paid on the merchantable output of the mine at the rate of five cents per ton.

The person operating the mine shall furnish the agent with sworn returns accounting for the full quantity of merchantable coal mined and pay the royalty thereon. If the coal mining rights are not being operated, such returns shall be furnished at least once a year.

The lease will include the coal mining rights only, but the lessee may be permitted to purchase whatever available surface rights may be considered necessary for the working of the mine at the rate of $10 an acre.

For full information application should be made to the secretary of the Department of the Interior, Ottawa, or to the Agent or Sub-Agent of Dominion lands.

W. W. COBY,

Deputy Minister of the Interior.

What are You Kicking About?

—You men who think you're UNDERPAID

Don't "cuss" your luck because your pay is small. Don't blame it on the boss. Don't think that the reason others get more pay is that they have more "pull," because it is not so!

The men who get big pay are those who are trained to do work that is worth it. You have no special training, and you have to do work that any man with two hands can do; therefore your pay is small—and you, only, are to blame.

YOU can earn more—YOU can work with your head instead of your hands—YOU can give orders instead of taking them. No matter what you do, where you live, or how old you are, the International Correspondence Schools can come to you and train you for a better job.

Every year more than five thousand persons take the trouble to write to the I.C.S. that their salaries have been increased through this training. These who report are but a handful—tens of thousands of others are benefited.

For 24 years the I.C.S. have been training men having no education other than ability to read and write, no more time than the odds and ends so commonly wasted, and no more money than the little that could be saved out of small wages.

If you want to be a high-salaried man—to be somebody—prove your ambition—mined by the instructor or inspector. At the time of making the application for the packing school the responsible organization is requested to reserve two and a half to three boxes of fruit for each pupil. The harder varieties, such as Ben Davis are preferred. It not be graded, but must be in good condition and not smaller than 2 1/2 inches in diameter. If no local fruit is obtainable, the department should be notified at the time the application is made for the school.

In addition to the packing work, methods and equipment for packing, packing for exhibition, and the Fruit Marks Act, will be studied.

Pupils who score 75 per cent in the packing school and put up a creditable pack for the department prizes, the following autumn, will receive a diploma certifying to the same from the department.

Arrangements have also been made whereby a separate girls' class can be held if sufficient pupils can be got together. The packing of fruit by women and girls is a practice which has been growing every year in the valley, and this year it is stated that Kelowna is the only place where girls have not been employed. In Summerland the entire pack this year was put up by girls. There is every likelihood that next year there will be a serious shortage of packers owing to the large numbers of young men who have enlisted, and will yet do so. It is therefore very advisable that the girls should be prepared to fill the vacancies.

Classes can be started just as soon as pupils can get together.

Quick, Direct Results.
There is nothing to equal newspaper advertising for quick and direct results.
Watch the advertising columns and see the class of merchants and manufacturers that use this method of publicity. You will find they are the most successful in their respective lines. Many of them have tried other methods, but experience has shown them that newspaper advertising has no equal in bringing results. The reason for this is that the paper is read in the home, when the mind of the reader is in a receptive condition, and on the lookout for anything that will make life easier or more pleasant.
