City Council in Regular Session

The Park Menagerie to Be Discontinued

The city council held a meeting last Friday. During the absence of Mayor Jones, Alderman Sutherland was appointed acting-mayor and accordingly presided.

A letter was received from the office of the provincial secretary, conveying the information that Alderman R. A. Copeland and Mr. W. G. Benson had been appointed to the Board of License Commissioners for the year, and Alderman W. C. Duggan and Mr. W. M. Crawford to the Board of Police Commissioners.

The chief of police submitted his report for the month of February showing a total of six cases brought before the magistrate, five of them concerned with a Chinese gambling raid, and the sixth supplying liquor to a minor. A sum of $160 had been collected in fines and costs.

Temporary loan bylaw No. 216 was reconsidered and finally passed and bylaw No. 217 given a first, second and third readings.

The following accounts were passed for payment:

C. P. R., freight	$ 5.37
A. Mepham, sewerage work ..	2.00
H. Maidment, sewerage work .	8.50
E. Bonjean, waterworks work .	55.50
P. Cuffey, waterworks work . .	48.25
R. Paul, storage charges on band instruments	15.00
C. Ambrogio, wood contract ..	100.00
B. M. Hill, February salary . .	85.00
C. H. Dunbar, registration fees (tax sale)	1.15

A. J. Jones, powerhouse work	7.50
G. Balsillie, work, February . .	48.80
G. Markham, cleaning, Feb. . .	16.00
C. P. R., freight	1.30

Alderman Copeland reported having employed a man and team to go over the streets with a drag. He estimated the cost to be not over $50. The council confirmed Alderman Copeland's action in the matter.

Alderman Harvey on behalf of the Parks Commitee reported that at a recent meeting it had been decided that it was advisable to dispose of the two coyotes which were in captivity there. The council after discussing the matter authorized Alderman Harvey to dispose of them as he saw best.

Alderman Duggan reported the purchase of twenty-five cords of dry slabs from the Kelowna Sawmill Co., for use at the power house. He also stated that he had been requested by one of the contractors supplying power house fuel to ask the council to advance some money on his contract to pay the men for cutting the wood. The matter was referred to the Light and Water Cammittee for investigation.

A formal resolution was passed embodying the change of hours of the municipal offices as already advertised, viz: City Clerk's office 9 a.m., to 1 p. m. and 2.30 p.m. to 6 p.m.

Light, Water and Tax Collector's office 9 a.m., to 6 p.m.

On Saturdays both offices would be open from 9 a.m. to 12 noon only.

U.S. Will Proceed to Punish Mexican Rebels

The United States seems likely after all to have a little war of their own in Mexico. Villa and his bandit followers last Thursday crossed the border and raided the American town of Columbus, N.M., killing a number of people and burning up several buildings. They escaped across the line again, but the outrage was one which could not go unavenged and an American force is being assembled to track the rebels down.

At Rossland from a group of claims covering less than 500 acres $70,000,000 have been produced to date.

Rossland's chief of police has just notified the city merchants that drawings for prizes and guessing contests in connection with retail business are illegal.

The Canadian Forestry Association makes the statement that if Canada would take the simple measures to stop the plague of forest fires, the timber saved would pay the annual interest on the last Dominion loan of $100,000,000.

Cold Weather Makes Hospital Expenses High

The regular meeting of the directors of the local hospital was held in the secretary's office on Tuesday of this week.

Since the beginning of the year the following donations have been received and the board wish to thank the donors:

Cash Donations.—The McKenzie Co-$10.00; G. R. Binger, $5.00.

Donations in kind.—Mrs. Anderson, apples and potatoes; Watson Bros. two chickens; Mrs. Mumford 10 pounds pork; Mrs. D. W. Sutherland, eggs; Mrs. Cameron, leg of mutton; Mrs. Willits two chickens; J. Sutherland, buns.

Since the beginning of the year the expense account has been very high on account of the amount of fuel that has been required. During the cold weather the two heating systems were run to the limit. During the month of February there were in all fifteen patients treated, five in the maternity wing and ten in the general. Owing to the fact that some of those who were treated in the general were only in the hospital for a few days, the expenses for the month are larger than the amount which would be received if all the patients pay in full, so there was a loss of about $50.00 without taking into consideration the percentage of depreciation that should be charged against the month's business.

There are some improvements that are absolutely necessary and the Board trust that the public generally will give such consideration as they can. If this is done the Board will be able to continue, as they have in the past, to hold the standard of efficiency that has always been maintained.

Germany's canal-bound fleet is preparing to move. For many weeks information is received that the vaunted high seas fleet is to make an attempt to justify its proud title. The correspondent has learned that the famous toast, "Der Tag," is being drunk with an enthusiasm that heralds imminent action.

French Still Hold Back Verdun Offensive

German'y Failure Causes Rioting in German Cities—Are Fighting for Better Peace Terms

German reinforcements continue to arrive near Verdun. It is reported that the Swiss frontier has been closed to insure secrecy of troop movements. French aviators observed great bodies of German reinforcements marching. Swiss reports said that Von Mackensen is in command of the Verdun attack, and the Kaiser has summoned Von Hindenburg to assist. It is believed that the Germans will drive simultaneously at Goose Hill and Dead Man's Hill, striking also at Forts Devaux and Detavennes. The Paris correspondent of the Daily Mail declared that the lull in the infantry fighting was due partly to the redistribution of the German forces, and partly to the need of artillery preparation. It is said that the seventeenth and twenty-second divisions, which bore the brunt of the fighting at Bethincourt and Goose Hill, were so severely handled that they need rest and possibly will be entirely replaced by new men.

It is expected that the grand assault on Verdun has not begun. Berlin is silent regarding the operations around Verdun. The Germans claimed to have repulsed the British in the Ypres district. Several air battles are reported. Berlin claimed that three British and two French aeroplanes were disabled and brought down.

RIOTING IN GERMAN CITIES

Reports continue to be published in London of the rioting in German cities consequent upon the failure of the Crown Prince's army before Verdun. The Daily Express prints a despatch from Amsterdam to the effect that riots of the most serious character have been taking place almost daily in Cologne since the beginning of the Verdun offensive, and that police and troops have been called upon to keep order. The reason for the trouble is said to be popular indignation caused by the continual passage of wounded in trains from France. This is telling on the nerves of the Cologne people. For a fortnight past the trains have been running constantly in such numbers that it has been impossible to confine their passage to the nights.

PEACE TERMS IF VERDUN FALLS

It is authoritatively stated that President Wilson has been informed of the peace terms that Berlin is likely to make if Verdun falls. Col. House is said to have presented tentative terms, modified by the recent month's warfare. High German officials have testified as to the correctness of his outline. The demands follow:

Return of all German colonies. No indemnities. Montenegro, Serbia and Albania to be divided between Austria, Bulgaria and Greece. Autonomy for Poland Freedom of Turkey from British influence. Germany to return Belgium and Northern France. Russia to assume possession of Persia. Great Britain to remain as at present, giving and receiving nothing. High authorities said that neither side is in a position to demand indemnities. It is reported that there is no longer any thought in Germany of the Kaiser retaining Belgium.

Manitoba Goes Dry By Two Votes to One

The Manitoba Temperance Act which closes all hotels and bars, and all wholesale liquor stores in the province from June 1st next was carried by the people of Manitoba Monday by a vote of more than two to one. Liquor may still be imported by private persons from outside provinces, and the manufacture of liquor in the province for export is still permitted. These are the constitutional limitations placed on the province in legislation along this line by the federal authorities, but to remove these limitations a mass meeting of citizens last week, amid great enthusiasm, endorsed a resolution calling on Sir Robert Borden and his government at Ottawa to introduce a Dominion-wide prohibition act.

Mayor's Coast Visit Has Encouraging Result

City Gets Financial Assistance —Reassuring Promises Regarding Irrigation and C.N.R. Matters

The visit of Mayor Jones to the coast is likely to have beneficial results in many ways. Amongst other things he was able to make financial arrangements on behalf of the city which will do much to relieve the immediate pressure on the worried city council. This was in the form of a loan negotiated with the superintendent of the Bank of Montreal at Vancouver, which will enable the city to pay off all outstanding arrears of salaries both of the city staff and the school teachers, and also to furnish funds for urgent financial needs during the year. The mayor was also able to secure measures of relief from the Educational department for some of the rural schools who have found themselves short of funds.

The question of irrigation was also taken up with the Premier and members of the government by the mayor and a deputation from Kelowna, with a reassuring result. The government promised that pending definite legislation based upon the report of Mr. McKenzie who has been investigating irrigation conditions, that they would stand behind any system not able to take case of accidental breakdowns so that the water users would not be imperilled during the present season. The whole question would later be taken up and embodied in a bill calculated to put the irrigation needs of the valley on a firmer basis.

The question of the building of the C.N.R. was also made the subject of enquiry and the information was obtained that there seemed to be little doubt that the company now had their finances sufficiently in hand to make start with the construction during the coming spring. Money was also soon to be available for the purposes of the Agricultural Credits Act, and the mayor was assured that this district would receive its full share of the $2,000,000 which would be the probable amount of the first appropriation.

Red Cross "At Home"

The girls' Red Cross "At Home" held last Monday evening in Morrison's Hall, though not a "farewell" to the soldiers after all, turned out to be the most successful one held yet. Two hundred people were present. The door receipts were $60.25. Expenses $20.25, and the balance, $40.00 was handed over to the Red Cross. This was all the more creditable as the soldiers had free admission. The suggestion indeed has been made that at all social affairs during war time, that the soldiers should have free admission. The girls wish to thank all those who so kindly helped with the arrangements, and those who provided the music, Mr. Tod Boyd, Mrs F. Mawhinney, Miss A. Fisher, Mr. C. Quinn, Mr. Hopkins and Mr. Westerby. Although this will be the last "At Home" held this season, there will be various affairs organized during the summer by the Red Cross girls and other members. According to report to hand just lately the Red Cross will have to work harder than ever during the next few months as the demand for supplies will be very heavy and this means funds will have to be found to carry on the extra work. The girls feel sure the people of Kelowna will not fail in their loyal support after the way they have so ably helped during the past winter and year.

CAMPBELL-WATSON

A quiet wedding of interest to Kelowna people was solemnized at Vernon last Saturday evening when Miss Eva Watson, of Kelowna, formerly of London, England was married to Mr. James Campbell, of this city. The ceremony was attended by only a few personal friends and relatives of the contracting parties who went up to Vernon by motor on Saturday. After spending several days motoring about the northern end of the valley the happy couple returned to Kelowna on Tuesday evening and will take up residence here.

Graham Co.'s Evaporator to Operate Next Season

The Graham Co.'s evaporator closed down for the season last week-end and on Saturday night an interesting little ceremony, took place, which must have been very gratifying to those who have had charge of affairs there during the past few months. The event was a presentation made by the men workers to the manager Mr. Dan De-Shane, and also to his brother Mr. Adam De Shane, who had charge of the drying work. To the former was given a handsome fitted dressing case and a briar pipe, and to the latter a case of military brushes.

Mr. Chapman made the presentation on behalf of the men, and spoke of the good feeling and pleasant relations which existed throughout between themselves and Messrs. De Shane, of whom they entertained the highest opinion. It was the existence of this good feeling which had prompted the little tokens he was presenting.

Both recipients expressed their very sincere pleasure in the gifts and especially in the sentiments they expressed. Mr. Dan De Shane said he hoped that when the work opened again next fall he hoped he would be able to have the same staff again. He could assure them that every man of them could be sure of a job again if they wanted it. He attributed most of the success which had attended the operation of the plant to the men he had had under him.

While the main drying plant is being left untouched, workmen are busy this week making a few necessary alterations to place the building once more in shape for the season's operations of the cannery.

Mission Services at St. Michael's Church

The Right Rev. A. J. Doull, D.D., Bishop of Kootenay, commenced last Saturday afternoon a series of Mission services in Kelowna. The mission is part of a movement extending throughout the entire Anglican church in Canada, in accordance with a plan adopted by the heads of the church a few months ago. A special appeal was issued to engage in a special effort in every church centre throughout the whole Dominion, and accordingly arrangements were made for the holding of missions in every parish. The Bishop of Kootenay has with characteristic energy applied himself personally to the work throughout this diocese, and is making a tour of the churches. Previous to visiting Kelowna he was at Penticton and Nelson.

Considerable interest has been shown in the various services, particularly on Sunday evening when the church was crowded to the doors, a large proportion being visitors from other churches in the district.

Benvoulin Notes

(From our own Correspondent.)

The completian of the Manse is proceeding apace. Busy workers have been engaged for the past two weeks and it is hoped the financial conditions will enable them to continue until the whole of the work is done. All the work done has been voluntary and much credit is due to Messrs. Reeves, Reid, McEachearn, Rhumor, Grummett and others for the valuable services they have rendered. In order to strengthen the finances a social gathering will be held in the church on the 21st (Tuesday) and local talent will furnish an interesting program. As the proceeds will all be devoted to the Manse building fund it is hoped there will be a large gathering. Subscriptions towards this fund will also be gratefully received by the managers or by the minister.

Golden was one of two points in the whole Kamloops presbytery to vote against church union.

When the Highlanders (in kilts) first went to the front the natives couldn't make out what they were. One said to another: "It isn't a man —it has petticoats!" Another said: "It isn't a woman—it has whiskers!" Finally one exclaimed: "The English have a regiment called the Middlesex and no doubt this is it."

Attempt to Dissolve House on Legal Point

Special Act Passed to Extend Term to June 1st

A sudden and unexpected development arose in the House at Victoria Tuesday afternoon when the Premier announced that a legal doubt had arisen as to the exact date on which the legislature became automatically dissolved by the expiration of the term specified in the constitution. He offered an amendment to the Act which would remove any doubt and allow the government to remain in power until June 1st, thus enabling the business of the session to be completed.

As might have been expected the situation was gleefully seized upon by the opposition who saw in it a glorious opportunity to squeeze the party in power. Premier Bowser offered to withdraw all contentious legislation for the present session, such as the P. G. E. aid bill, Workmen's Compensation, and other measures such as the Liberals might name if they would allow the regular business of the session to proceed.

The excitement of debate grew more and more intense as the day passed, and every device was used by the opposition to obstruct the passing of the needed amending bill. With one amendment after another they held the House until after midnight, when the bill was finally passed making it certain that the government could exist until June 1st and yesterday afternoon the measure received the formal assent of the Lieutenant-Governor.

Much of the discussion centred around the Prohibition question which was of course greatly endangered by the situation, and the Liberals were freely accused of secret alliances with the liquor interests in endeavoring to force dissolution at once and postpone a vote on the question indefinitely, besides tying up the business of the country and preventing estimates being passed for necessary work.

It is probable the House will be prorogued and parliament dissolved about the middle of April, with an election towards the end of June or first of July.

Premier Bowser proposes to bring in a bill to give the vote to all British Columbia soldiers in the British possessions. Those in the old country will vote on the election here, but not those at the front, it being difficult to obtain necessary power to take the vote of men on foreign soil.

The Premier declares that despite the opposition of the Liberal members he proposes to carry through his prohibition campaign so that the people may vote on it at the time of the general elections. The Premier will endeavor to eliminate compensation from the issue it is said, although some of the Conservative members in caucus are willing to have this added either in the bill or on the referendum.

Kaslo Presbyterians voted solidly for church union. Not a single vote was recorded against the proposal.

Ronald Fraser, formerly of Kelowna but later of Salmon Arm was amongst the last batch of wounded coming home from France. He was gassed at Ypres.

It is reported to be the unanimous opinion of business people in Holland that Germany is striking her last blow at Verdun and must carry it off or go under. Neutrals just come from Germany report there is very real want and a feeling of anxiety all over the country. The financial position is serious and many banks are in severe straits.

Will all the ladies who have not already given their "housewives" to the men of the overseas force, please hand them in during the coming week at Lawson's store. There are still a number needed so any lady who has not done so, will kindly hand her name in at Lawsons where she will get a pattern. It is hoped that those who are able to will do their part with the other women of the city.

In common with municipalities, public bodies and private business concerns throughout the province many sweeping economies are just now being put into effect by the government and many branches of work are being greatly curtailed or abolished altogether. Amongst the latter is the Botanical office, which has been under the able superintendence of Mr. J. Davidson. During the few years this department has been in progress a great deal of useful work has been accomplished, most of it of a foundational character, and it seems almost a pity that now that some benefit is about to be reaped in the way of a complete botanical survey of the province, it should be found necessary to drop the work altogether. The organization of a corps of voluntary correspondents in different parts of the country which has been the result of patientwork over a long period will thus be rendered of no avail. The collections made are to be stored for the present in the university.

Several of the educational institutions and public bodies at the coast have forwarded resolutions urging the continuance of the department, which has a high educational value, as well as a practical and commercial significance.

Venice in Time of War

Venice has put aside her finery and jewelled splendor and has covered up her art treasures against the bombardment of hostile aircraft which has already attacked the city.

Venice today is not the Venice of streams and poetry, of magic and moonlight and black, silent gondolas. She is a city under naval jurisdiction, a strongly fortified naval base, which foreigners are not allowed to visit.

A correspondent who obtained permission to visit the city, went to the Plazza San Marco. He came upon a crowded square, but the people were joyless. The dazzling gold of former days was gone, for no one knows at what moment an enemy will appear in the sky, as the city is only one hour distant from the enemy's air base.

To guard her treasures against attack, Venice has seen to it that layers of sandbags 30 feet high protect the Sansovina bronzes; that the Logetta of the Campanile looks like a dugout; that sandbags guard the northern portal of St. Mark; that the mosaics are covered over and the delicate marble arches supported by brick columns three feet thick to prevent collapse in case the building is struck and that the four gilded bronze horses have been led from their pedestals to a stable in the main entrance archway of the Doges Palace, walled in between thick brick walls. The Venetians say the horses have gone to fight Austria.

In the Duomo sandbags are everywhere, tier after tier. Statues are swathed in thick cloth and the capitals of columns are encased in metal receptacles. The palace of the Doges looks like a fortress with a heavy pile of thick masonry between each arch and a brick tower at the corner. The loggia is supported by wooden reinforcements. Other places are protected by sandbags, while the work of entrenching still goes on.

During dinner in the only hotel now open the waiters bring in candles and the electric lights are turned out at 8.45 o'clock in the evening. One man was fined $30 for lighting a cigarette in the Piazza at night and all along the streets black figures pass in the shadows.

Deprived of her evenings, Venice compensates by getting up early. At four in the morning the population begins to stir itself and soon the streets are alive with people.

Plunder and Conquest Was Germany's Object

The appeals for peace from neutral countries, obviously inspired by German-Americans, German-Swiss or other hyphenated patriots, is an unmistakable sign that Germany feels her force is on the decline. That being so it follows naturally that the sooner she makes peace the better leverage for bargaining she will have. On the other hand, the entente powers are just as anxious for peace as Germany, but it must be peace on their terms. If the enemy is not ready to accept these terms, the war will continue until she is ready.

The subject of peace terms is therefore, of interest just now. It may be well to glance first at the terms Germany anticipated in case of defeat, when she was in the midst of her deliberate preparations for this war. They were published about seven years ago in a French magazine, in the form of a signed interview with a prominent German official, whose name was withheld for obvious reasons. The German stated that his countrymen had calculated the cost of defeat on the following basis:

The surrender of Metz and Lorraine to France.

The neutralization of Alsace.

The return of Schleswig-Holstein to Denmark.

An indemnity of $400,000,000 to France.

The cession of the Kameruns and Togoland to France.

The cessation of German east and southwest Africa to England.

The return of Heligoland to England.

The transfer of six German iron clads and twelve German cruisers to England.

An indemnity of $600,000 to Russia.

Boundary rectifications in favor of Russia.

It may now be interesting to glance at the terms of peace in the event of a German victory. They were published shortly after the outbreak of the war, and it was stated later that, owing to the "serious inconveniences" to which the allies had put poor inoffensive Germany, they would probably be made much more exacting when the time came to formulate them officially. The reader will notice the difference between the two sets of terms. The following represents the demands of a victorious Germany:

The cession of all France's overseas empire, amounting to 4,397,826 square miles, with a population of approximately 65,000,000.

The cession of north eastern France, which includes some of the richest iron districts in central Europe, and has numerous blast furnaces and iron works.

The demolition of all French forts on that frontier.

The reduction of the French army to 200,000 (from three million).

The signing of a treaty of commerce on terms to be dictated by Germany.

The payment of an indemnity of $4,000,000,000, Germany to practically occupy the country until two-thirds had been paid in gold.

France to abandon Britain and Russia and sign an alliance with Germany for a period of 25 years.

Those are only the terms to be demanded from France according to Professor Haskal. England was to be occupied by German troops and the British overseas dominions were to be taken over. Belgium was to be absorbed, together with her Congo territory in Africa. Poland was to be re-established as a part of Austria. The Russian Baltic provinces were to be given up to Germany.

The German idea of war is not self-defence but plunder, and this was strikingly illustrated when Bismarck visited London about half a century ago. He remained silent practically all the time he was being taken about the priceless treasures of the museum or the royal palaces or art galleries The historical associations of the venerable Tower of London left him unmoved. The exquisite haze that creeps about the river during the long English twilight had no interest for him. But when he had seen everything, he roused himself from a fit of abstraction and murmured ecstatically "Wass fur plunder!" ("What a place to plunder.")

It is rumored in legislative circles at Victoria that when the office of Minister of Agriculture is created the portfolio will be offered to Mr. L. A. Shatford, M.L.A., for the Similkameen riding. Mr. Shatford has already been appointed chairman of the ways and means committee.

DECLINE SUBSTITUTES

Striking a Balance

The right to use the sea Germany can only regain in two ways — by compelling Great Britain to relinquish command of the seas or by complying with the terms fixed by Great Britain as the price of the use of the seas. One would be the consequence of victory, the other of defeat. But up to the present moment Germany has not been able in the smallest way to exert any force upon Great Britain to compel her to give up the mastery of the seas. Every effort made by the German has ended in decisive defeat.

If you set against the German occupation of 8,400 square miles of French territory the British control of the sea, you have measured the exact conditions between the contending powers of the west. It is plain that no hardship of France is comparable with that of Germany, because France, thanks to British sea power, is able to get coal and iron from abroad. She has now been able to reorganize her industrial establishments in such fashion that what used to be made at Lille and at Roubais, at St. Quentin and Tourcoing—that is, the things essential to national life and comfort—are made elsewhere.

In addition France has lost many men and a few districts have been ravaged, either by reason of the actual conflict or because of German wantonness. This represents a capital loss, but it does not represent a capital loss greatly in excess of that suffered by Germany in her colonies and in the paralysis or destruction of her merchant marine. As for French casualties, they are certainly not in excess of German proportionately, and British are so far inconsiderable, compared with German.

Now if peace were to be considered, it is plain that Germany would have to evacuate France and Belgium as well. In no other way could she persuade the British to permit her ships to sail the seas, and she has no present means of compelling such British consent. But this would be to restore things to their exact status before the war. It would mean that for her tremendous sacrifices Germany had gained nothing from France or from Great Britain, but had lost all her colonies.

A Women's Institute is to be organized in Vernon.

The Union of B. C. Municipalities will present to the government a resolution providing for the election by municipalities of their own police and license commissioners.

A Zeppelin is a costly production and $200,000 is required to build such a military weapon and equip it for destructive purposes. The expense connected with these airships does not end here. Great sheds must be erected, and gas producing plants laid down, so that the Zeppelin may have its daily feed of hydrogen.

Several fast German scout cruisers with disguised auxiliary vessels, says an Amsterdam paper, conducted a successful reconnaisance in the North Sea and returned without encountering a British warship, Berlin dispatches asserted. Trawlers mistook these for dreadnoughts. This is thought to explain the story that the German fleet had left Kiel seeking the British fleet.

A Nova Scotia man, Sergt. Lawrence of Truro, is the inventor of a machine calculated to bring an unpleasant surprise to the Huns. On a trial of the machine, which, it is understood has been accepted by the war office, it was found that a shaft of flame could be projected for seventy feet. The heat of this flame is so intense that it literally burns up barbed-wire entanglements. At the same time a dense deadly gas is emitted. The machine can be kept in operation for half an hour if necessary. The apparatus can be carried on a man's back. Under Sergt. Lawrence's supervision, a large number of these machines are being manufactured for early use.

Eggs Are Cheap Now

HOUSEWIVES SHOULD USE MORE OF THIS VALUABLE PRODUCT

Amongst the many evils of the present war, some little good seems likely to result, and perhaps not the least important of these benefits is that of closer attention to the economies of foods. The pinch of hard times is forcing individuals an a small scale and nations on a large scale to consider more carefully the relative values of different food products with a view to purchasing the most actual bodily nourishment for the least money. And it is really astounding what even a superficial study of the subject will reveal. There is really a tremendous difference between the apparent and the real food value of different articles. Thus some of the expensive high-priced dainties, in common use, and in which in some cases the bulk of the weekly income is spent, are practically worthless, when measured by the scale of actual food value. On the other hand some of the simpler foods now being neglected for mere palate tickling dainties, have a high percentage of nourishing qualities.

The intelligent provider too, who takes note of things can save money and still feed the family as well if not better, by keeping a watchful eye upon the market prices. For instance eggs, probably one of the most valuable food products which man possesses are now down to a very low price. Buy more eggs, just now, and you are getting full value for every cent you spend.

It is hardly necessary to write of the food value of eggs for we all realize it and only limit our use of them when prices soar beyond our means. They contain in a concentrated form all the elements, in the right proportion, for the support of the body and the ease with which they can be made into an attractive and nourishing meal makes them a comfort to all housekeepers Without them, indeed, one is at a loss.

Wherever it is possible fresh eggs should be used for all purposes. It is as important to have them fresh for cooking as for use alone. They should be carefully kept in a cool place, quite apart from anything of strong flavor or small. If storage eggs must be used, then it is best to break the shell and turn the eggs out on a plate or into a bowl at least an hour before using them. This will tend to materially lessen the strong or musty flavor that is so disagreeable.

Having secured a supply of good eggs, the housepeeper will feel that she can face any emergency and speedily arrange a meal for even unexpected guests. The cakes, custards, puddings and savory dishes which can be quickly made with the help of the contents of the egg basket are innumerable.

In arranging a meal in which the main dish is to be made of eggs, there should always be provided with it some such food as rice, bread or potatoes, both because of the starch contained in them and because a certain amount of bulk is needed for the stomach to act upon.

Eggs should be cooked slowly, never with a hot fire. The albumen which the white of an egg contains in the purest form, becomes tough and difficult of digestion when the eggs are cooked in boiling water. To properly cook an egg in the shell, have the water boiling, put in the eggs, cover and set the pan back on the range where the water will not boil. Leave the eggs in the water for six or eight minutes for a 'soft boiled' egg and forty to forty-five minutes if you like it 'hard-boiled' Hard boiled eggs which are to be used for making dishes should, when taken from the hot water, be plunged into cold water to prevent discoloration of the yolk. The French cooks who excel in making omelettes and other dainty egg dishes, claim that to have them tender the eggs must not be beaten long. Many think the best results are got when the eggs are cut through and through and slightly beaten with a sharp bladed knife.

In scrambling eggs or making an omelette, cream stock or water is better than milk, as the casein of the milk is apt to toughen the albumen of the egg. In making an omelette a tablespoonful of liquid should be used for each egg.

In order to assist the housewife to use eggs to the best advantage and to make of them attractive and appetising dishes, we propose to give each week a few well-tried and reliable recipes for using eggs. Cut them out and paste them in your cook book.

A Few Favorite Recipes for Using Eggs

Egg with Cheese.—Six eggs, three tablespoonfuls of grated cheese, one heaping teaspoonful of onion juice, salt and paprika to taste. Mix the cheese, butter, paprika and salt in a hot pan and stir until the cheese is melted. Break the eggs into a bowl, mix them slightly, pour them into the cheese and stir until they all thicken. Serve with toast.

Swedish Minister on Peace Prospects

Baron Adelsward, ex-minister of finance of Sweden, now a member of the Swedish rigsdag and one of the outstanding figures of the movement in Europe who seek to pave the way for permanent peace, recently toured the countries at war, conferring with such men a former Poincare in France.

"I regret to say that the outlook appears darker during recent months than at any time since the war began," said Baron Adelsward. "I do not believe there is the slightest chance of peace at the present time or in the near future.

"In England," he continued, "I found among officials and the people at large that they look upon the war as just beginning. They recognize now that they were not ready for war at the outset and lacked men and munitions. But now it has taken firm hold of the whole people that the war is a tremendously serious question, and they feel they are only now beginning an effort adequate to the huge task before them, so that it is useless to talk peace to them when they are firmly convinced they are just beginning the war.

"In France there is indignation at the mere mention of peace, and the whole country is united in the policy of carrying on the war with the utmost energy.

"But in Germany there is undoubtedly a very strong public sentiment for ending the war. I have made four trips through Germany since the war began, and have observed the gradual growth of feeling that the war should end. This was most marked during my last visit, and extended to all classes, men and women exclaiming: 'My God! Who would have thought this terrible war would last so long?' The statement of the German chancellor appears to be designed to calm the public feeling in Germany in showing that the government is ready for peace, but cannot realize it owing to the opposition of the Allies.

"There is, too, a significant and rather ominous attitude among the German people of being ready to criticize men in high places— even the highest. Such a thing would not have been thought of a short time ago, but now it is general.

"For instance, men who direct large forces of employees were recently discussing the serious conditions arising from the war. 'The responsible ones will be punished,' said one. 'But the— is responsible, and will he, too, be punished?' Yes, I mean him, too, he is the one,' was the reply.

"And this is very typical of the way the ordinary people are talking, and it is a condition which might have the gravest consequences. And yet," Baron Adelsward added, "it is a mistake to think that Germany is exhausted and will be forced to peace through sheer exhaustion. She has many resources still, and can fight for a long time."

Baron Adelsward visited Aldershot, the great military rendezvous of England, also the grand fleet in one of the ports of Scotland, and later conferred with Premier Asquith and other British leaders.

"The British fleet in reality has three points of concentration," said he, "and we visited the main point, where most of the great battleships are gathered. It is a most impressive sight, not only of strength, but of alert readiness."

Kaslo women have sent one ton of jam to the Red Cross headquarters at Toronto, valued at $400.

Scotch Eggs.—Take one cup of cooked lean ham, chopped very fine, one-third of a cup of stale bread crumbs, one-third of a cup of milk, half a teaspoonful mixed mustard, cayenne to suit the taste, one raw egg and six hard boiled. Cook the bread and the milk together until a smooth paste. Add the cooked ham, the seasoning and raw egg. Mix thoroughly. Take the shells from the hard boiled egg and cover with the mixture. Lay in a frying basket and plunge into deep hot fat for about two minutes.

Eggs a la Waldorf:—Hard boil six eggs, cover them with cold water and remove the shells and cut the eggs in quartered baking dish that will hold three pints. Make a pint of white sauce as follows: Melt in a saucepan, four level tablespoonfuls of butter and stir in four level tablespoonfuls of flour. When smooth, add a pint of milk and cook and stir until it begins to thicken, then add a level teaspoonful salt and two dashes of white pepper. Chop fine and rub through a sieve a large white (Spanish) onion, and add to the sauce. Pour the sauce over the eggs, sprinkle half a cup of fine dry bread crumbs over the top after moistening them with a little soft butter, and sprinkle over the crumbs two tablespoonfuls of grated cheese. Bake in a hot oven for about fifteen minutes or until crumbs and cheese are delicately browned.

The guests of honor were Privates W. Bouvette, Geo. Reith, D. Stewart, E. Hereron, Alec Thayer and T. Watkins. Supper was provided after which a pleasant evening was spent in speechmaking, games and music.

The weather of the past week has been almost ideal for the time of the year, and affords some compensation for the strenuous winter. Not too warm to bring on a risky early spring and yet fine enough to gently loosen winter's icy grip. The snow has almost disappeared from the hills, except the high sheltered places and the danger of spring floods has now almost passed.

* * *

It is not often that the good people of Glenmore take thought to gather together in a public way for social purposes and therefore the social gathering announced for Friday, the 24th inst., is likely to be largely attended. A good time is assured. An interesting program of local and district talent is being arranged and the Glenmorians are in for quite a treat. There will be refreshments provided and no charge will be made for admission. A collection will be taken on behalf of the Presbyterian Manse Building Fund. * * *

The Kelowna-Westbank ferry is now running as usual. Although the lake cleared some time ago considerable ice remained on the Westbank side and it was necessary to land goods and passengers on the ice several hundred yards from the wharf. This barrier however is now almost gone.

* * *

The Kelowna Women's Institute, which has "adopted" a prisoner in Germany received a few days ago a grateful acknowledgement from him of the parcels of groceries and other goods sent. His name is Harry Chaine, formerly of South Vancouver. His present address is Giessen, Germany.

* * *

The regular boat service on the lake was resumed at the beginning of the week. The C.P.R. had the tugs at work last week-end cutting a way south from Summerland and on Sunday they succeeded in demolishing the last of the obstructing ice and getting in to Penticton. The warm winds too, helped, and the ice rapidly began to break up and drift up the lake before the breeze. Needless to say the Sicamous was heartily welcomed after her long absence by our neighbor at the foot of the lake.

Orders for Local Scouts

KELOWNA TROOP

Troop First! Self Last!

Orders by command for week ending March 25th, 1916.

Duties. Orderly patrol for week endlews; next for duty, Eagles.

Parades.—The combined troop will parade at the club room on Tuesday, March 21st, at 7 p.m.

The patrol leaders will parade at the club room on Saturday, March 25th, at 2.30 p.m.

Through this column we should be glad to hear from the Boy Scouts of East Kelowna where we know there is a patrol because we had two of them in camp with us last year at Penticton, and hope to have the whole patrol with us this year wherever we may camp. We should be very happy indeed to see some more patrols or troops formed in the district around us. We know that the district has the boys but expect the boys are waiting for their parents to take the initiative and provide a scout-master for them. We feel sure though that if a few boys get together who wish to become members of the great Brotherhood of Scouts and commence meeting together and working on their Tenderfoot work that it will not be long before a scout master will be found for them. We should also like to say here that any assistance which our officers or scouts can give towards promoting the formation of new patrols or troops in the district round about us, will be most cheerfully and gladly given. In particular what is the matter with Rutland and Ellison, or perhaps some district we have not named will be the first to fall in line. We hope that these remarks will fall on fruitful ground.

When you read this column remember that it has to be written every week and the editor is always ready for something suitable to put into it, so if you pick up an article that you think would be interesting for scouts, please give the same to Troop Leader Keller or Scout Master Weddell. So far only one article has been submitted.

HOW TO MAKE A USEFUL CAMP LIGHT

This is all there is to it:—Any sort of can may be used; an old tomato can or a lard pail being excellent. With a penknife cut two crosswise slits in the side. Be sure to cut slits well to the rear of the can, and do not make the opening in the tin any larger than is necessary to permit of the candle being squeezed tightly through. The bent corners must hold the candle firmly upright; when it burns down all you have to do is to push it up a little. After your hole has been cut, make a handle by winding wire around the can.

NOT ABREAST OF THE TIMES

A commercial traveller found himself in a remote village Inn, when a heavy downpour of rain set in. "I say!" he said, addressing the waitress "It looks like a flood." "Like what?" the girl inquired. "Like a flood. You have read of the flood, and how the Ark landed on Mount Ararat, haven't you?" No, sir" admitted the waitress, "I 'aint seen a newspaper for more'n a week."—London Opinion.

MOST GENEROUS

"Green is very generous," said Mr. Smart.

"Indeed!"

"Yes, he is always giving himself away." "Scout."

FRITISH COLUMBIA'S FORESTS

About a billion and a quarter feet are logged every year in British Columbia, according to government figures, while the annual growth is estimated to be about six billion feet. A considerable amount is killed every year by fires, but not so much actually burned, as the fires generally leave much standing that can be logged and put to good use. Cruisers have estimated that in last season's fires 23,000,000 feet of timber was "killed" but of this, 20,000,000 can be saved, so that the loss is not so serious as it appears.

It is estimated that four hundred billion feet of timber still stand to grace the hills of British Columbia, and to fill the needs of future generations. The best districts are probably those on Vancouver Island where beautiful areas of gigantic trees stand practically untouched.

Bagpipes in Battle

"As the men bombed their way along the German trenches after the first rush, two of the Black Watch pipers stood upright on the parapet under a terrific fire and played 'Hieland Laddie.' the regimental charge of this gallant corps. They stood in a terrific storm of fire with bombs bursting all round them, and flung their Highland battle air to the breeze, until one piper fell dead and the other was wounded."

This was what happened during the British attack on the German lines to the north of LaBasse some weeks ago and it is one of the many such epics that have been recorded for at least two centuries.

It is almost a tradition of our Highland regiments that the pipers have largely contributed to every victory gained by their countrymen, not only by the animating strains of their music, but by the coolness and self-possession of the pipers in the hour of danger.

When the 42nd Highlanders, who formed part of the attacking party that captured Fort Washington, in 1777, scrambled up the precipice determined to have their own share of glory, the first to reach the summit was one of the pipers, who, as soon as he had made good his footing, began to play. He continued sounding his war notes until at last his body riddled with bullets, fell from point to point, till it reached the bottom of the rock mangled and disfigured.

Again, at Waterloo, where the Camerons earned imperishable fame, it was Piper Kenneth Mackay who specially distinguished himself. In the thick of the fighting that raged round the farmhouse of La Haye Sainte, the Camerons charged the French columns. The enemy's cavalry came to the support of the baffled infantry, and the Camerons formed square. And, while Cuirassiers came thundering on, Piper Mackay stepped outside the square of bayonets, and marching around played the stirring "Cogadh no Sithe."

It was the strains of the pibroch that brought life and hope to the besieged garrison in Lucknow; it was the inspiration of the heroic pipers struggling up the ramparts of Tel-el-Keibir that goaded the British on to victory and it was Piper Findlater's playing of the "Cock o' the North" to the Gallant Gordons, while he lay on the ground badly wounded, that carried the heights of Dargai and won for him the Victoria Cross.

In the present campaign the pipers of the Black Watch have several times distinguished themselves when playing the "kilted warriors" into action.

It was at Loos that Piper David Simpson of the 2nd Battalion Black Watch, died on the field of glory. "All through the battle roar" wrote one of his comrades, "rang the soul-stirring notes of the charge of the piper, at once a stimulus and a rallying call to every man wearing the red hackle.

"Three lines of German trenches fell to the fierce assault. Then the command came down the line to have a try for the fourth.

"Piper Simpson at once got his pipes in position, turned to his company with the cry: "Come on boys!" and striking up the battle tune of the Black Watch, again ran, playing towards the foe. He took ten or twelve paces, a bullet through the breast brought him down and, with the exultant yell of his triumphant comrades in his ears, he died."

Describing the inspiring scene of the passage a kilted battalion along one of the rock roads of Flanders with the bagpipes skirling defiantly a British correspondent at the front wrote thus:

"The drone of the pipes seem to rouse a cold, calculating devil under the tartan. It is not altogether a pleasant sight to see a Scottish regiment being played into the trenches. You can see that there is killing ahead; see it in the grim determination of the men, the thrust of the jaw, the grip of ehe knotted hands on the rifle butt, and you feel that the wail of the pipes ahead is a battle cry fiercely urging them on.

"Mon," said a sergeant from Dumfries, to whom I mentioned this matter of bagpipes inspiration, "mon, when I hear 'Th' Cock o' the North.' I could kill yon Germans wi' me bare hands."

COULDN'T FOOL HIM

Coming fresh from the country a youth had just procured a position in a city grocery. As he had been carefully warned that the city folks would "josh" him because he was from the country he was very cautious. One afternoon a girl entered the store and said:

"I should like to get some birdseed, please."

Confident that he had detected a "josher" the the youth answered with a smile:

"No, you can't josh me. Birds grow from eggs, not seeds."

Calgary German Received Notice to Sell Out

The following story, which adds one more proof that the war was fully planned by Germany long before it actually broke out is contained in a letter to an Armstrong lady from a brother in Calgary and published in current issue of the "Review."

"A son of Mr. Geo. E. Wood enlisted here and went to the front early, acting as first aid to the wounded and was right in the big fights. It has practically made an old man of him. He was here lately for a couple of days, came over as an escort for some returned soldiers. He said he had given first aid to a young German who asked him where he came from. He told him from Calgary, and the German said he was from Calgary too. so the young man asked him how he happened to be there fighting. He said that three months before the war started, he received instructions to sell out and turn everything into money; that there was going to be war but that it would only last six weeks and that after that, Canada would be a German colony and those who obeyed the call would be given preference in the good things in Canada. He said he was sorry now that he had come."

A Practical Princess Dress

McCall Pattern No. 7063, one of the many new designs for April

Where good serviceable wear is desired there could be no better model than this frock. It is slipped on easily and may be kept in excellent order. An exceedingly attractive dress might be developed of serge, or satin, with contrasting materials for collar, cuffs and belt. A touch of the brightly colored embroidery now the vogue, would lend an effective finish Such trimming is much favored just now and it renders a dress distinctive.

Do Not Wait For the Hotter Days

NOW is surely a good time to get your Spring Sewing done. We have just placed in stock a lovely large range of everything in staples and fancy wash and dress goods. Realizing the uncertainty of the markets we believe our stock was never quite so well assorted. New Jap Crepes in every conceivable shade, also in Stripes.

New Wool Dress Goods, Tweeds, Shepherd Checks, Poplins, Serges, Worsteds, &c. In this department we have been unable to get every color which the dye situation has created. You will, however, appreciate the lovely range we have assembled.

A Simple Frock of Voile

McCall Pattern No. 7057, one of the many new designs for April

The pretty striped and figured lawns, voiles and other sheer wash fabrics make up well into models of simple cut, with here and there a touch of a vivid color blending with its own soft tones. Lace has its part in these pretty dresses and is used effectively for collars, vests and flouncings. Ribbon also shares in popularity, being used extensively in various ways for trimming the costume.
