The building inspector who had en asked to inspect and report on the condition of all overnging cornices and copings of high buildings in town sent in tatement to the effect that he nsidered them all perfectly safe h one slight exception, some cks having become loosened on corner of the Raymer block.

Mayor Jones called attention to e dangerous condition of the ooden sidewalk from the C.P.R. epot to the sawmill office. The oards were loose and liable to ive way when stepped upon. A dy had fallen there last Saturday nd nearly broken her arm.

Ald. Raymer mentioned several ther walks which were in a bad tate.

It was arranged that a man be ent round to repair any bad laces.

The finance committee, which ad been considering the question f remuneration of the city assesor, made a recommendation that 500 be paid to him for his serices. This was embodied in a esolution and passed.

Ald. Taylor said he would like o draw the council's attention to he "beastly, filthy, insanitary and isgusting state of the city's nuisnce ground." The horrible stench rising from it was a menace to he health of the whole city. The lace was evidently used for slaughering cattle and entrails of animals nd heads, hides and bones were ying around in all directions. ome time ago a number of carcases of pigs which had died of ome disease were lying unburied here. It was a disgrace to the ity to have such a state of affairs on its own property. He did not hink the council had ever given any permission for a slaughtering there. Permission had been given to A. R. Davy to use the place for pasturage but no mention had been made of slaughtering.

After some discussion the following resolution was passed: "That Mr. A. R. Davy be instructed to remove at once the slaughter house and pens which have been erected on the city's nuisance ground wilhout permission and thoroughly clean up and bury all heads, entrails, &c., lying around."

A petition was received for a sewer on Pendozi street and Lake avenue.

Mr. Lionel E. Taylor, of Bankhead, sent a verbal application for electric power for a 4 h.p. motor. The matter was referred to the committee the mayor remarking that if they approved there seemed to be no reason to object.

Ald. Raymer asked as to the cause of the variations in the light which were noticeable during the evening. The city clerk got into communication with Engineer Colquette for an explanation. The latter replied that the flickering occurred at certain intervals when change was being made from the small to the large generator or vice versa.

Ald. Copeland mentioned that Mr. F. E. R. Wollaston had spoken to him in reference to the opening up of the lane behind the Belgo-Canadian Co.'s offices. He had built a garage there but could not get his car in and out owing to the rubbish which had been piled in the lane.

The city clerk was instructed to notify owners of blocks to clear away all building rubbish.

Ald. Blackwood suggested that it might be good policy to increase the police staff especially at night, owing to the number of men around just now.

Mayor Jones said that Chief Sutherland had a number of men in town he could draw upon in case of need. He thought the council should leave the matter in the hands of the chief who would report at once if there was any need.

The meeting then adjourned.

Another Challenge for "Bob" Sutherland

To the Editor of The "Kelowna Record."

Dear Sir,—Would you kindly publish for me that I will challenge to wrestle Mr. Sutherland your Chief of Police in a catch-as-catch can match for the best two falls out of three? I have wrestled nearly all of the prominent wrestlers in America and would like to wrestle Sutherland before leaving this country as I understand he has a very good record as a wrestler. Thanking you for same, I remain,

Yours truly,
ED. TOLER.

[Chief Sutherland, it might be mentioned, has already signified his willingness to accept the challenge and a match will probably be arranged in the near future. Still another challenge was this week received from MacIntyre of Vancouver.—Ed.]

Royal Visitors Have Pleasant Impressions of Kelowna

Their Royal Highnesses the Duke and Duchess of Connaught and Princess Patricia with their Party Inspect Kelowna's Orchards and Industries

The Roval visit to Kelowna last Saturday, although not marked by the elaborate decorations and ceremonies which have taken place in some other cities, was yet pleasant and successful enough, the arrangements made by the council being carried through without any hitch. A general clean-up of the wharf had been effected by the C. P. R. staff and some effort made to disguise the ugliness of its buildings by streamers of red, white and blue. Flags were flying on a number of buildings in town, and some of the storekeepers had decorated their windows in pairiotic style.

The country folk turned out in large numbers, and it is doubtful if such a crowd of people, rigs and horses had been seen in Kelowna before.

At 2.25, the hour appointed for the arrival of the Duke the large crowd had gathered upon the wharf and its approaches. The school children, about 250 of them, all arrayed in their best, were lined up by the freight sheds many of them carrying flags and all ready to welcome the visitors with the songs they had been busy practicing for some time past.

There was no little excitement as the smoke of the s.s. "Okanagan" was at last seen around the point and the royal salute was given by the "Castlegar" which lay at the slip. At length the boat hove in sight with her flags gaily flying in the bright sunshine, the Royal Standard at the fore, the Union Jack at the stern, and between these the Governor-General's own flag and banners of the different towns in the valley.

The cheering was renewed as His Royal Highness made his appearance upon the upper deck, and in company with the Duchess and fair Princess Patricia was seen to descend to the gangway.

The party were received upon the wharf by His Worship the Mayor, Mr. J. W. Jones, and the various aldermen, the bearing of the royal party showing complete absence of the "side" which some of the more democratic had perhaps looked for.

Following the singing of "The Maple Leaf" by the children, who sang with all the enthasiasm of loyal young Britons, City clerk Dunn read the following address, a copy of which, beautifully engrossed on parchment and illuminated with a combination of ancient heraldric ornament and modern bijou paintings of valley scenes, the whole bound in red morocco leather was presented to theRoyal guest:—

To his Royal Highness, the Duke of Connaught and Strathearn, Earl of Sussex, Prince of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, Duke of Saxony, Governor General of the Dominion of Canada, Prince of Saxe-Coburg and Gotha, K.G., K.T., K.P., C.G.S.I., G.C.M.G., P.C.

May it please your Royal Highness, we the Mayor and Council of the City of Kelowna, on behalf of its citizens, beg to extend to Yourself, Her Royal Highness the Duchess, and Princess Patrica, a warm and hearty welcome on the occasion of this, your first visit to the Okanagan and our city as His Majesty's Representative.

We, as Citizens of the Sunset Province of the Dominion, and of this beautiful Orchard City of the Okanagan Valley, are delighted to be able to express to Your Royal Highness our pleasure on your appointment as Governor General and it is our sincere wish and prayer that your term may be productive of great good in binding by closer ties our fair Dominion to the great British Empire and the Mother Country, of which we are so proud to form a part.

We trust that Your Royal Highness, Your Royal Consort, and Yo ur Family may enjoy the great est happiness possible while representing our Noble Sovereign, King George the Fifth.

It has been your privilege to visit the different parts of this Province, and inspect the various industries that are being developed.

We were delighted when we saw that your Western Trip included the beautiful valley of the Okanagan. Kelowna is the centre of this splendid horticultural valley and has already attained sufficient success to be known far and wide as the Orchard City.

In the district we have 65,000 acres of choice fruit lands, all of which can be brought under irrigation. At the present time something like 7,000 acres are planted out in fruit trees, 130,000 trees being planted in 1911. Most of the holdings consist of 10 and 20 acre lots, so that in the very near future we shall have a dense population which will tend to make this one of the most prosperous districts in Canada.

Among the recent triumphs won by Kelowna fruit, we desire to bring before your attention only a few.

In 1908 at the International Fruit Show held in Spokane, Washington, Kelowna captured medals and prizes totaling $4,370.00.

Again in 1910 at the National Apple Show held in Vancouver, the greatest ever held in Canada, Kelowna carried off the premier prizes and medals, one exhibit, a car of Jonathan Apples, being declared by the judges to be the most perfect car of apples ever exhibited.

We are also pleased to bring before your attention, the successful growing of high class tobacco leaf in the district. Several of the plantations have produced splendid crops, yielding a handsome profit to the grower.

In the development of both fruit and tobacco lands, it was first necessary that large sums of capital should be invested in irrigation systems which would provide the necessary moisture to ensure success.

We are pleased to inform you that the different Land Companies who have assisted materially in opening up the district have at present invested one and a half millions of dollars in the most up-to-date irrigation systems on the Continent.

We trust that Your Royal Highness, Your Royal Consort the Duchess, and Princess Patricia, will carry away most pleasant memories of your visit to the Okanagan, and that we may have many similar opportunities of offering you a haarty and sincere welcome.

Assuring you with no little pride of our loyalty and attachment to the Throne and to His Most Gracious Majesty, King George the Fifth.

Signed this fifth day of October, 1912.

J. W. JONES,
Mayor.

G. H. DUNN,
City Clerk.

His Royal Highness, who had listened with a patience probably born of long experience, to the reading of the address received the copy with a few words of thanks and read the following reply.

Your Worship and Gentlemen:

I am very happy to have this opportunity of paying a flying visit to Kelowna, and thank you most sincerely for the good wishes you have expressed to myself as well as to the Duchess and to my daughter.

It is very interesting to hear what you have told me about the prosperity and expansion of the fruit-growing industry; and I am glad to know that a great number of the holdings are small, the increase of population in the vicinity being thus encouraged.

I had not heard before of the cultivation of tobacco in this district, and I wish the best of success to those enterprising people who have succeeded in growing it.

I am glad to learn that the land companies have come forward with large sums for investment purposes and I hope that their assistance may be of material and permanent value to your citizens.

I should like to take this opportunity of making a suggestion for the recreation of your citizens. I refer to the establishment of Rifle Clubs. In this country of wide spaces, it would not be difficult to find room for ranges, and I am sure that very many of you would appreciate the amusement, the sport of rifle-shooting would afford, as well as the numerous opportunities you would have of meeting the people of neighboring towns in team matches.

I hope that those amongst you who are keen on shooting may give my suggestion their consideration and see whether a general organization of rifle clubs would not be possible in the Okanagan Valley.

I shall have very great pleasure in conveying to the King your expression of loyalty and devotion, to the Throne and Person of His Majesty.

In accordance with custom a number of prominent citizens were presented to their Royal Highnesses, who including the Duchess and Princess, cordially shook hands with each one. Invitations had been extended to the following, and most of these took advantage of the privilege afforded:

Ald. Sutherland, Ald. Taylor

Meeting Discusses Woman Suffrage

Local Association Will Be Formed at Once

Quite a large crowd assembled last Thursday evening in Raymer's Hall to hear Miss Dorothy Davis, organizing secretary for the B. C. Political Equality League, on the question of "Woman Suffrage." About 150 people were present, the small hall being well filled. Mr. R. B. Kerr took the chair.

Miss Davis, who is a fluent speaker and an able advocate of the cause, delivered a most interesting and convincing address. In the course of her remarks she pointed out a number of the evils from from which the women of B. C. suffer by reason of the present laws. As an instance she stated that it was an actual fact that women had no legal rights over their own children. This had been strongly brought out recently in a case in Victoria, where a father had sold his own child. The mother begged hard to be allowed to keep the child, but the law could not assist her and the child had been sold. The circumstance, said Miss Davis, had been the means of converting the notary who had had the preparation of the necessary papers into a strong advocate of Woman Suffrage.

Again a father could give away the whole of his property to strangers without being under any obligations to provide for his wife and children. This should not be.

Another matter which needed reform was the marriage law which allowed a girl of twelve to marry, affording a means of getting around the law and selling young girls into "white slavery." Such cases were going on all the time at the coast. Women in Victoria had been trying for the past eighteen years to get the law altered, but without success.

In spite of all the millions of acres of land in Canada, said Miss Davis, a single woman could not take up a homestead as could be done in Australia, New Zealand and the United States.

A number of other matters were dealt with which serve to show the great disadvantage under which the law placed women. Every effort had been made to get these abuses abolished without the franchise, but without success. When the Attorney-General introduced a bill last winter to improve women's rights in her husband's property, everybody laughed so much that he had to withdraw it. There was absolutely no hope of remedying women's grievances without the franchise. In places where woman suffrage existed, most of these matters had been righted.

In spite of opposition the movement was spreading fast. Australia and New Zealand had adopted the equal franchise in all elections, state or Federal, in six of the States, California, Washington, Colorado, Utah, Idaho and Wyoming, in Norway and Finland in Europe, and in China, at least in the state legislature in Canton, and possibly in the federal legislature. In Great Britain women could be elected mayors and councillors, there being several ladies occupying the post of mayor in the Old Country. In Iceland the reform was going into law at the present time.

In all places where Woman Suffrage had been adopted a large number of laws had been enacted for the benefit of women and children.

A gentleman in the audience asked the speaker if she did not think that if women took part in politics, it would lead to neglect of the home.

This, of course, was the time-honored objection to Woman Suffrage and Miss Davis handled it in a characteristic fashion. Unless a person became a specialist in the world of politics, she replied, very little time was actually occupied. Most active and successful business men found plenty of time to go and cast their vote during the election. Not one person in a thousand devoted much time to politics,and under Woman Suffrage the proportion of women who gave up time to take active part in a contest would be about the same as men, and these would probably be persons who had no young children to look after. She also reminded the audience that there was a great and increasing number of women who were not confined to the home, and an increasing number of women who did not marry at all, but had to work for their living. Many wives and most widows had to work to support themselves. It was absurd to say that the sphere of such women was the home, and it was essential that women engaged in industries should have a vote to protect themselves. Miners all over the world were now being given eight hours a day because they had a vote, but plenty of women were working twelve or fourteen hours a day for a mere pittance because they had no vote.

Miss Davis was cheered enthusiastically upon resuming her seat and a resolution asking the legislature to pass Woman Suffrage at the earliest possible moment was passed by an overwhelming majority.

It was decided to form in Kelowna a branch of the B.C. Political Equality League, 34 names being handed in for enrolment.

Later it was arranged that an organization meeting be called for Friday, October 11th, at 4 p m, in Raymer's Hall.

Okanagan Apple Show

The Board of Trade has been asked to give the widest publicity possible to the forthcoming Okanagan Valley Apple Show to be held in Vernon on the 23 and 24 of October. This show is in no sense a "Vernon" show entirely, for next year it will be held in a different town in the Okanagan, this arrangement being made at a meeting of the Associated Boards of Trade of the Valley, and each succeeding year will see the show held in a different place. We understand that the A. & T. Association will be exhibiting some of the fruit shown at New Westminster. It is hoped that a large number of individuals will also exhibit, so that Kelowna may get her share of the splendid prizes offered. Prize lists may be obtained from Mr. G. A. Fisher, secretary of the Board of Trade at his office in the Crowley block.

Annual Hospital Aid Meeting

The fifth annual meeting of the Ladies' Hospital Aid Society was held Saturday last in the Opera House. There was rather a poor attendance, but much is hoped for this coming year in the way of larger attendances. The day for meeting for the ensuing year was changed from the first Saturday in the month to the last Monday of the same, it being thought this might benefit some ladies who have found Saturday an inconvenient day. The reports of the office-bearers showed very satisfactory conditions prevailing as to finance and the ladies are very grateful to the public at large for helping so worthy a cause.

The president, Mrs. Cameron, in her address pointed out the value of the work of the Aid, showing that every month there has been contributions of linen and many other needful articles to the hospital. This coming year will see the tiling of the operating room, as the public responded so generously on the annual tag day. She also pointed out the lack of interest taken by a great number of the residents of Kelowna and vicinity, as only 118 persons individually contributed in cash toward the maintenance of the hospital. During the past year 227 patients have been treated, showing an increase of 47 over the preceding year.

The treasurer's report showed upwards of $1,100 paid into the treasury, including the balance on hand from the previous session. Of this amount $370 was paid towards patient's fees, $196 towards linen and other requirements, leaving a balance of $514 on hand.

Votes of thanks were accorded the President, Secretary and Treasurer for their services during the year. The following ladies were elected to the executive committee:

Mrs. W. C. Cameron, President.
Mrs. G. A. McKay, 1st Vice.-pres.
Mrs. Shayler, 2nd Vice-pres.
Mrs. F. Armstrong, Secretary.
Mrs. P. B. Willits, Treasurer.
Mrs. McLennan, Mrs. C. Blackwood, Mrs. Kerr, Mrs. Dillon, Mrs. Peabody, Mrs. Ball, and Mrs. H. Newby.

Before the meeting adjourned the society extended a hearty vote of thanks to Mr. R. Duncan for the use of the Opera House, and to Mr. A. L. Meugins for auditing the books.

Acting as a special commissioner to enquire into the question of Doukhobor colonization in British Columbia, Mr. William Blakemore, editor of The Week, Victoria, recently concluded his enquiry in the Kootenays. Scores of witnesses were examined.

The British submarine B-2 was run down by the Hamburg-American liner "Amerika" near Dover last Friday. It sank at once, drowning fourteen of the crew. The officer in charge was rescued. This is the sixth disaster to British submarines, each of them involving the loss of from 10 to 15 men.

Here is a woman who speaks from personal knowledge and long experience, viz., Mrs. P. H. Brogan, of Wilson, Pa., who says: "I know from experience that Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is far superior to any other. For croup there is nothing that excels it." For sale by all dealers.

KING'S TASTER

An Important Appointment Held by a Man Whose Knowledge of Vintages and Special Wine Was Keen.

Very few people are aware of the fact that during the lifetime of King Edward a private appointment was held by a gentleman whose sole duty it was to "sample" wines intended for the Royal cellars. The responsibilities of this office were far heavier than may be imagined, for its holder had not only to be a judge and an expert in vintages and brands, but a shrewd business man, capable of dealing with the heads of great wine-growing districts and the countless representatives of firms of many nationalities soliciting the honour of a Royal order.

It was no uncommon thing for the King's taster to be confronted in a single day by an array of bottles which would have stocked a wine merchant's shop, while there were always correspondents whose letters conveyed inner news from the wine centres, or information regarding the discovery of bricked-up cellars holding priceless ports and sherries. And these could not be neglected, as it was always possible that they might lead to a real "find," rich and rare.

Samples had, of course, to be dealt with in a thoroughly systematic manner, and a large number of them were set aside unopened. Like most experts of great experience, the King's taster seldom put his lips to wines which were under consideration, and still more rarely swallowed them. The sense of smell is always the first and becomes the final test. A few drops of a wine rubbed in the palms of the hands reveal the quality and aroma of the vintage with a certainty which the most delicate palate cannot surpass.

It need hardly be said that no official in London was subject to more temptations and cajolery than the man who had the power of making a comparatively unknown brand of champagne famous by putting it on the King's table. But to a great extent the identity of this important personage was left unrevealed. Especially was this the case when periodical visits were made to France, Germany, Spain, and Italy during the grape seasons. Very often growers who received orders from an English buyer were quite unaware that they were dealing with the private representative of the King of England.

The man who sampled for King Edward had no place in the Royal household, and figured in no official list of those who had duties under the Sovereign. His salary, which was an excellent one, was paid out of His Majesty's private purse, and the post of wine-taster to the King was abolished altogether before King George came to the Throne.

THE CONGO DWARFS

Pygmies Whose Mischievousness and Good Nature Seem to Have Inspired Legends of Goblins In Story Books.

In certain respects the great Congo forest of western Central Africa is the most wonderful region in the world. There are ape-like negroes and curious little Congo dwarfs. These dwarfs are less than five feet high, and their behavior is strangely like that of the brownies and goblins found in fairy stories. Their remarkable power of becoming invisible by adroit hiding behind herbage and rocks; their habit of making a home in holes and caverns; their mischievousness and good nature, all seem to suggest that it was some such race as this which inspired legendary stories of a little race having supernatural attributes.

These dwarfs are good or bad neighbors to the ordinary natives, according to the treatment they receive. If their depredations on the banana groves, or their occasional thefts of tobacco or maize are ignored, or even if small gifts of food are left where they may easily find them, they will leave, in their nightly visitations, return gifts of meat or skins, and ivory.

These pygmies live entirely by hunting, although they eat wild honey as well as meat. They live separately, in tiny huts four feet high.

Although they are in some respects quite near the apes in their physical characteristics, they are more clever than the larger negroes.

"CONSECRATED GROUND"

Moliere died while performing a part in one of his own plays. The Archbishop of Paris would not allow his body to be inhumed in consecrated ground. Therefore the king sent for the archbishop and expostulated with him, but he was obstinate and would not willingly comply with his majesty's request. The king desired to know how many feet deep the holy ground reached. The bishop replied, "About eight." "Well," replied the king, "I find there is no getting over your scruples; let his grave be dug twelve feet; that is four feet below your consecrated ground."

SPEAK UP AND SHUT UP

Grenville Kleiser says to public speakers: "stand up, so that you will be seen; speak up, so that you will be heard; shut up, so that you will be liked." For this last injunction Mr. Kleiser shall be numbered among the gods.

"If non-Christian races do not respond to the official efforts of missionary organizations the cause is to be sought, not in the superiority of other religions to Christianity, but in the inferiority of the adventurers, the colonists and the officials of Christian European powers, dho have, for generations, exploited the weaker races of mankind."

Yeast: "He's spent a fortune, you know, on irrigation."

Elbowlifter: "Is that so? Land or throat?"

HORSES THAT CHEW

Learned the Tobacco Chewing Habit from their Masters, and Love the Weed Which is Considered Healthy.

"Whoa! Whoa!, there! Stop that horse!" shrieked a Kansas man at the junction of Eighth Street and Grand Avenue, as the animal was deliberately following another man who was walking on the pavement. The second man had in his hand a small package of tobacco, and when he turned at the sound of the alarm, it was seen that the horse was intent on getting to the package.

"Oh, now, don't get nervous, Kit," he said, soothingly to the animal. "I'll give you a chew."

Kit Smiled.

Then the man opened a package of fine-cut tobacco took an ordinary "chaw" for himself, and divided the remaining part of a newly-opened packet with the horse. The animal took the large quid, and actually seemed to smile as it munched away on it rhythmically as would a cow on her cud.

The owner of the horse, William J. McCafferty, an agent for the Illinois Central Railroad, explained that Kit was very fond of her "chew," and whenever he took one where Kit could see him she would follow him even up a pair of steps and into a house till she, too, was supplied.

"She doesn't seem to want tobacco unless she catches sight of someone in the act of taking a chew, and then she will have hers, no matter who the man may be who exposed the weed," he explained.

"What got your horse into the habit — how was it acquired?" asked a dignified-looking man who was in the little coterie which was watching Kit enjoy her wad of fine-cut.

"I did it," replied McCarty. "I began by nipping off a little every time I took a chew in the animal's presence and handing it to her, as she always was curiously nosing about to see what I had. It was not long before she would take a chew of tobacco in preference to a lump of sugar."

"Does the animal expectorate?" asked the dignified person, in all seriousness.

"Well, not so as to be noticed," replied her owner. "The horse swallows the juice from the tobacco, and finally the quid itself. And I am here to tell you that I have found the tobacco far more healthy for a horse once in a while than sugar every day, as is given to trick horses."

Good for Horses.

Arthur McKnight an old racehorse man and official starter at most of the big race-tracks in the States, chanced to be present when the tobacco-chewing horse was under discussion.

"I was born and reared down here in the West Bottoms," said McKnight, "and I recall Old Tim, a tobacco-chewing fire-horse that used to be on the track in engine-house No. 1, down on Union Avenue. Chief Hale will remember Tim. Why, he was so vicious after a chew if he saw anyone with a plug, that he would almost break his chain to get to you. And if you took a chew and passed him unnoticed, Tim would reward you with a kick. Yes, Tim was a confirmed chewer, and I have known of several good racehorses which had the habit. They are just like human beings; when once they get the desire for nicotine it sticks with them."

"How dreadful!" sighed the ministerial-looking spectator. "It is a pity that human beings could not keep their injurious habits without tempting innocent domestic animals."

"Tobacco at intervals is good for a horse," replied McKnight. "It prevents many of the ailments from which they suffer."

KING'S KINDNESS

There are many stories of the late King Edward's kindness of heart, and the following is a typical illustration of this:—

One of the most efficient and faithful officers on a certain Royal yacht was a captain of very moderate means. For some years he battled with the situation, but at last, worn-out and heart-sick, he determined to resign and enter the mercantile marine.

In some way or other King Edward heard of his resolve. Less than a couple of months after Captain E—— was surprised, and even alarmed, to receive a peremptory command from the King ordering him to report at Buckingham Palace forthwith. Although he knew that his papers were clean, he felt perturbed nevertheless. His reception by the late King, however, was one of the most cordial nature. After some preliminary remarks, His Majesty said:—

"I think you are entitled to a holiday in return for your many years' work on the ——, so you had better take this."

The astounded officer was handed an Admiralty order granting him a year's leave of absence on captain's full pay.

"You can renew that at the end of the year if you so desire," added His Majesty, with a significant laugh. "And, by the way, this may interest you."

The captain was then given a letter offering him the command of a superb and newly-built ocean liner. The letter was to the effect that the personal recommendation of the King was the cause of its being written. The overhelmed captain never quite remembered how he got out of the palace. But he became the monarch of the ocean liner.

The Cinematograph has just been utilized by the police of Prague in an original fashion. Henceforth all the shows in Bohemia will exhibit the portraits of criminals who are "wanted" by the police. The public will be invited to collaborate with the police in arresting malefactors.

DUMAS' MELONS

Entered Into a Contract With a Community to Supply Him With Melons in Exchange for His Best Books.

Here is a true story of the great Dumas and his liking for melons.

Alexandre Dumas, père, was extremely fond of melons, and an autograph letter of his has just come into the possession of the library of the town of Carpentras by legacy which proves the fact. It is perhaps one of the strangest contracts ever made by a man of letters. The letter is addressed to M. Seguin, the deputy maire of Cavaillon in the Vaucluse, in August, 1864, by the author of "Les Trois Mousquetaires," who was then living at St. Gratien, near Enghien.

He says: "On receipt of your letter, I have immediately arranged with my publisher, M. Michaud Levy, for him to send you the two or three hundred volumes which have already appeared of my works, and that in the future as they appear he will send you the others, and I am very pleased to be able to reply to the great honor which you do me. But please have the goodness to tell your honorable maire, M. Tourel, that I impose one condition. If the town and the authorities of Cavaillon like my books, I like their melons, and I desire that in exchange of my three or four hundred volumes there shall be constituted for them, by 'municipal decree,' a yearly income of twelve melons per year. The cost of carriage will naturally be at my expense."

Need one add that the contract was faithfully kept on both sides?

BOX-OFFICE BORES

The Box-Office Clerk's Power of Imagination and Description Severely Taxed by the Many Cranks Who Buy Tickets.

A theatre box-office clerk has a great deal to do besides issuing tickets, observed a member of the fraternity to the present scribe. He has to answer many absurd questions, and frequently act as guide, philosopher, and friend to potential patrons. For instance, it is no uncommon thing for some old lady or gentleman to refuse to book seats until I have furnished a brief plot of the play. If the plot contains anything morbid or sad, it is ten to one that no seats are sold, and I therefore have to employ considerable tact in my task.

Ladies very frequently inquire whether the play has a 'happy ending," and here I have to be very careful, for it is impossible to tell whether the questioner is one of those optimistic persons who insist on cheerful finales or whether she is an "Ibsenite," who prefers realism to sentiment. Once I made an unfortunate mistake. My questioner happened to be a dear old lady with rosy cheeks and a charmingly bright appearance. In reply to her query I answered (quite truthfully) that the ending was a most happy one, whereupon she frowned irritably, declared that she was "sick of happy endings," and marched out of the vestibule. One cannot always be guided by rubicund cheeks and optimistic eyes.

Many people have a morbid horror of draughts, and actually insist on inspecting the seats I propose selling them before completing the purchase. Others make anxious inquiries about the distance from the stage of the seats offered, seeming terribly afraid that they will be too close to the "make-ups."

I am also expected to know everything about the private lives of the ladies and gentleman in the company. Is Miss —— married or engaged? Does Mr. —— look as young off the stage as he looks on it? Does Miss —— really use the dentifrice associated with her name? And so on, and so on. To all these questions I am supposed to return intelligent and satisfactory answers, and it is a good thing, perhaps, that I possess a lively imagination.

When I was in a provincial box-office some years ago, and we had a melodrama visiting the theatre, ladies would frequently inquire whether there was "any shooting in the piece," declaring that their nerves would not stand such shocks. On the other hand, a rough collier once inquired of me how many "murders" were committed in a certain drama which was visiting the theatre that week, and on my informing him that I believed there was only one, he mumbled something about the previous piece having contained five, and quitted the box-office without buying a ticket. Evidently he wanted a lot for his money.

A Decided Novelty

The problem of pass-out checks was successfully solved, at practically no expense to themselves, by some ingenious entertainers when they decided to mark with a rubber stamp the hands of those of their patrons who wished to leave the show during the intervals. The idea possesses many advantages, including the impossibility of transference.

Wisdom's Whispers

Woman's views on woman's worth take on varied and far-reaching turns.

Most men have a sense of satisfaction in being able to attract the notice of big persons.

Women generally regard their women associates with a feeling akin to suspicion.

Porter: "Miss, your train is——"

Precise Passenger: "My man, why do you say 'your train' when you know it belongs to the railway company?"

Porter: "Dunno, miss. Why do you say 'my man' when you know I belong to my old woman?"

Amusements

"The Summerland Players" in "Cousin Kate."

It is with great pleasure that we are able to announce that "The Summerland Players" are going to pay us a visit on Tuesday, October 15th with Hubert H. Davies' delightful comedy, "Cousin Kate."

So far, we have only seen this company once since it was reorganized. Last winter the performance of "The Truth" stamped them as players of a very excellent quality.

Particularly noticeable was the attention to detail both in the portrayal of the characters and in the stage settings.

So often people go to amateur performances as a duty, but no such thought need enter anyone's head with regard to the "Players" for their last performance was so finished that it was difficult to realize when it was over, that they had not been watching professionals of real merit.

Mr. Sauter is a professinnal, familiar to some of us through his long association with Mr. E. S. Willard in such plays as "David Garrick," "The Professor's Son's Story," "The Middleman," and many more.

He was also manager and leading man of "The English Players," a company of English actors and actresses who came to Toronto from Daly's Theatre, New York, undoubtedly the best stock company Toronto has ever seen.

His expertence no doubt accounts, to a great extent for the "finish" so noticeable in "The Players," but as he says, his experience has nor given them the talent they possess, and which he was fortunate enough to discover.

Miss Higgin, so excellent as "Becky" in "The Truth" will again be seen in the leading part.

Miss Marion Cartwright whose delightful performances of Mrs. Crespigny was one of the most attractive features of "The Truth," will show us that her talents do not lie only in the direct n of low comedy. Mr. Villiers, whom we have not seen for some time, is also admirably cast as Rev. James Bartlett.

Mrs. Cecil Garnett, whom we have not seen before, will play Amy. Miss Dorothea Cooper, the maid, and young Edward Logie, the boy, while Mr. Sauter will be seen in the part of Heath Desmond.

The play centres around the jilting of Amy Spencer by Heath Desmond as the resu't of a lovers' quarrel. Heath is a jolly, light-hearted Bohemian artist (somewhat inconstant, it may be), and Amy is a sweet demure maiden of the sort that knits socks for the curate and embroiders altar cloths for the church. It is a very sad misunderstanding and Amy at least takes it very much to heart. The fact that Amy's people are relying on Mrs. Spencer's cousin, Kate Curtiss, to remedy matters and bring the lovers together again only makes things worse, for the mediator actually meets Heath Desmond on the train and, though they have never seen each other before, they proceed to exchange remarks and end by falling violently in love with each other.

Poor Kate, torn between her duty to the rejected Amy and her own secret love for Heath Desmond, passes through a very distracting time, but it must be said that she comes out of it remarkably well. The sympathy of the audience will go out to her in the series of perplexing situations in which she finds herself.

The cast is composed of seven characters as follows.

Heath Desmond....William Sauter.
Rev. Jas. Bartlett.....O. Villiers
Bobby Spencer.....Master E. Logie
Mrs. Spencer.....Miss Cartwright
Amy Spencer.....Mrs. C. Garnett
Jane.....Miss Cooper
Kate Curtis.....Miss E. Higgin

These performances are too good to miss, so let us give them a good house. The date is Tuesday October 15th.

The "Versatiles" are coming to the Opera House on Saturday, October 19th. This is an Old Country show with a world wide reputation. Their work is musical comedy of a very high order. This company is on their first Canadian tour and have already made a hit in Victoria and Vancouver.

When you have a bad cold you want the best medicine obtainable so as to cure it with as little delay as possible. Here is a druggist's opinion: "I have sold Chamberlain's Cough Remedy for fifteen years," says Enos Lollar, of Saratoga, Ind., "and consider it the best on the market." For sale by all dealers.

The System Was Brought About By An Act of Charity on the Part of Valentine Hauy To Beggar.

How did the blind learn to read? It was in this way.

A man named Valentine Hauy, who for a long time had wondered how he could bring happiness to these unfortunate people, was one day walking through an out-of-the-way boulevard, when he came upon a blind beggar.

Touched by the helpless sorrow of the man, he put his hand in his pocket and gave him a piece of money. But he had hardly taken a step forward when the beggar, an honest man, called him back.

"Surely, sir," he said, "you have made a mistake; you have given me a crown instead of a penny."

The astonished giver asked the beggar how he had been able to quickly to detect the different value of the money.

"Oh," said the beggar, "it is enough for me to pass my finger over it."

This was like a flash of light.

"If the blind," thought Hauy, as he continued his walk, "can distinguish at the least touch a piece of money, why should they not distinguish by the same means a letter, a figure, a mark — in short, any sign whatever so long as it is raised?"

On this foundation he set to work, and presently invented a method for teaching the blind to read. His first pupil was a blind boy whom he rescued from begging at a church door. This boy learned with astonishing quickness to read by means of raised letters. Very soon Valentine Hauy was able to show his pupil in public, and the sight of a child reading with his fingers excited the greatest surprise and admiration.

When his method was perfected, he appealed to the public for funds to carry on his work, and, thanks to the subscriptions which came to him from all sides, Hauy was soon able to open the first institute for teaching the blind to read.

What Water Can Do

No sooner are the London and Ottawa seasons over than we see announcements of various more or less great personages departing for some Continental or British Spa to take the waters, and allow their systems to recover from the fatigues of fashionable or political life. The drinking of the medicinal water is not the whole of the cure; change of scene, simplicity of diet, early hours, freedom from bustle and worry all play their part in the restoration of body and mind. It is quite possible, however, to have some of these benefits without the expense of going away from home, merely by the aid of pure drinking water. The human body consists of water in the proportion of about sixty per cent., and the water removed from the body by means of the breath, the perspiration, the urine and the bowels is the vehicle by which the body gets rid of the waste products resulting from the activity of its various organs. As a rule the more active a tissue is the more water it contains, and, therefore, within reasonable limits, an increase in the amount of water taken will lead to increased tissue change.

Pigs From All Quarters

Old prints, old books, old anything, postcards or paintings, are all fit subjects to form a collection. But one of the most curious, and one of the most interesting collections is a museum of pigs.

Not live pigs, mind you, but model ones. For some years now the wife of mine host of the Green Man Hotel, at Blackheath, London, has been gathering together a wondrous assortment of model pigs. There are pigs in pewter, china, and ivory, earthenware, silver, and gun-metal; pigs that stand a foot high, and pigs that measure less than half an inch over all; pigs in fancy-dress, and pigs in clover; as paper-knives, inkstands, or ash-trays. In every form and shape there are pigs.

They have come from all over the world, and practically every country is represented. People have stayed at the hotel, admired the collection, and later from some far-away spot has come a pig.

How many there are it would be difficult to say. Many a time has their owner begun to number them, but lost count.

ARABI PASHA.

When the late Arabi Pasha received his pardon ten years ago, and was permitted to return to Egypt, he was very grateful. He expressed a hope that he would be able to come to England to pay his respects to the King, and thank those who had helped him, but that hope was never realised. It is understood that it was on the recommendation of Lord Cromer that the exiled rebel was allowed to return to his native land, and the liberty accorded him does not appear in any way to have been abused. Arabi had sixteen children in exile with him in Ceylon, and the $250 allowance per month which he received from the Egyptian government he used to say was scarcely sufficient to provide for his large family.

How Garibaldi Died.

A book recently published thus describes the death of Garibaldi: "The end came in his white house at Caprera, on a June evening in 1882. The old sailor, farmer and fighter was propped up on the pillows to watch for the last time the sunlight gliding the waves and the granite rocks. While his life was slowly ebbing out, two little birds whom he had taught not to fear him fluttered in from the moor, and sat chirping on the window-sill. The attendants were about to drive them away lest they should disturb him, when that voice was heard once more by men, bidding them let the little birds come in, and always feed them after he was gone. And then the old warrior turned his face to the wall and quietly passed away."

Water Powers of British Columbia

The water-power resources of British Columbia are being investigated by the Commission of Conservation and the resulting information is to be published, as soon as it can be made available, in a report to be entitled "The Water Powers of Western Canada," which the Commission have in course of preparation.

The securing of even preliminary field information in a territory like British Columbia requires much more time than in a country less mountainous. Good progress, however, is being made. The British Columbia Government's Department of Lands, under the Hon. W. R. Ross, has made a substantial contribution to assist the Commission in its water-power research.

This practical assistance from the Department of Lands has enabled parties to be detailed for investigation on the mainland coast. These parties have been in the field since the beginning of August and are being directed by the Commission's engineer, Arthur V. White, who is in charge of the work.

The Commissioner has three field parties investigating the watershed of the Fraser River above Lillooet, extending to Tete Jaune Cache and westward beyond the Fraser Lake district.

To-day, if one views a map of British Columbia and asks what are the power possibilities of the interior of the province, no porson can inform one. After the Commission has completed its present reconnaisance survey, it will be possible, first to form some reliable conception of the water powers of British Columbia south of the line of the Grand Trunk Pacific, then later on, the country north of the new transcontinental line will be canvassed for information respecting its water-powers. It is pioneer work, and so to speak blazes the trail for the capitalist and the engineer, To describe and draw attention to these blazed trails is part of the work the Commission aims to accomplish through its publications.

Investiture of Sir R. McBride

Sir Richard McBride, who was recently created a Knight Commander of the Order of St. Michael and St. George at the time of the distribution of birthday honors, was last week at Government House invested by His Royal Highness, the Duke of Connaught, with the insignia of this distinguished order, the ceremony being of a private nature.

The insignia consists of a star, badge and riband of the order, the seven rays of the star surrounding a figure of St. George destroying the dragon, this encircled by the motto of the order: "Auspicium Melioris Aevi." The badge, which is worn on a ribbon pendant from a crown, is of a similar design, while the riband is of Saxon blue with a thin stripe of scarlet to be worn across the breast.

The ceremony was witnessed by Sir Richard and Lady McBride's children, the investiture taking place in the presence of Their Royal Highnesses and Princess Patricia.

It was by the especial wish of His Royal Highness that the children of Sir Richard and Lady McBride were present on this noteworthy occasion in their father's honored career.

Thos. Toole, of Armstrong, was killed last week in a runaway accident, a heavy wagon passing over him.

The body of James Cossar, who was drowned a few days ago near Okanagan Landing, was found on the beach just below that point.

All records for timber scaled by the government scalers were broken last month when a total of 16,000,000 feet of logs were passed by the government coast scalers.

The stingless bee is the next production of man's ingenuity. Mr. Burrows, an apiarist of the town of Loughton, in Essex, after two years of experiments, has obtained a species of bee which can be handled by a child with perfect safety.

If you have young children you have perhaps noticed that disorders of the stomach are their most common ailment. To correct this you will find Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets excellent. They are easy and pleasant to take, and mild and gentle in effect. For sale by all dealers.

SYNOPSIS OF COAL MINING REGULATIONS

Coal mining rights of the Dominion in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, the Yukon Territory, the North-west Territories, and in a portion of the Province of British Columbia, may be leased for a term of twenty-one years at an annual rental of $1 an acre. Not more than 2,560 acres will be leased to one applicant.

Application for the lease must be made by the applicant in person to the Agent or Sub-Agent of the district in which the rights applied for are situated.

In surveyed territory the land must be described by sections, or legal subdivisions of sections, and in unsurveyed territory the tract applied for shall be staked out by the applicant himself.

Each application must be accompanied by a fee of $5 which will be refunded if the rights applied for are not available, but not otherwise. A royalty shall be paid on the merchantable output of the mine at the rate of five cents per ton.

The person operating the mine shall furnish the Agent with sworn returns accounting for the full quantity of merchantable coal mined and pay the royalty thereon. If the coal mining rights are not being operated, such returns should be furnished at least once a year.

The lease will include the coal mining rights only, but the lessee may be permitted to purchase whatever available surface rights may be considered necessary for the working of the mine at the rate of $10 an acre.

For full information application should be made to the secretary of the Department of the Interior, Ottawa, or to any Agent or Sub-Agent of Dominion Lands.

Items from Ellison

(From our own correspondent)

A lecture entitled "My Travels in Italy," will be given in the Ellison Schoolhouse on Friday, the 18th inst., by J. W. Jones Esq., Mayor of Kelowna. Mrs. G. Whitaker, the popular English contralto and Mr. G. McKenzie of Kelowna will render songs, whilst Miss Cottingham, the famous pianiste from Berlin and Paris will give various selections on the pianoforte. As the proceeds will be devoted to the Hospital, it is hoped that a large audience will be present. The price of admission is 25c. for adults and 10c. for children. To commence at 8 p.m. prompt.

Business is prospering in our district. Everyone is now working at high pressure harvesting one of the most bountiful crops ever produced, and if prices would raise a little, the farmer would smile a smile that wouldn't come off.

Mrs. and Miss Bertha Geen have returned home and are looking much improved by their outing.

Mr. J. Carney went to Kamloops on Sunday's boat to attend the assizes.

Complaints are heard on every hand respecting the number of cattle that are being missed off the range, someone is doing some heavy rustling. It is to be hoped they will soon be caught and then do some long time for a change.

Don't forget the 18th at Ellison.

Okanagan Centre

(From our own correspondent)

Mrs. A. D. Monsees, Mrs. J. Metcalfe, and Mr. W. E. Leggatt, were amongst those who left for New Westminster to attend the Provincial Fair at this point.

Jack Leslie and his bailing crew got through bailing hay at E. J. McCarthys, and are now moved up the Mountain to the ranches of McClure and Clark, where there are some 150 tons of timothy hay to be put through the press.

The farmers are busy these days getting in the potato crop, which is a large one in the district this year. The Japs are very much in demand and for this work, being practically the only available labor. They demand $2.50 per day of ten hours from the time they leave their camp till their return, so that it cannot be considered cheap labor.

Frank Loveday was up from Penticton for a few days visiting his old friend here. Frank is packer for the Okanagan Fruit Union, at Penticton and reports a very busy season. Large quantities of peaches were handled this year by far the largest since the birth of fruit growing in this district.

Mr. J. Davidson has bought 21 acres of the Geo. Woollen property which adjoins the lot owned by Gus. Macdonnell on the south. The land has been partially cleared and it is Mr. Davidson's intention to finish the clearing and get it seeded down.

The hay ranch owned by Jack Hadyn on the hill above the Oyama schoolhouse has been sold to Fleetwood Wilson, of Carrs Landing. Part of this ranch is seeded to Timothy and clover, a large quantity of first-class hay being put up every year. Mr. Wilson has acquired this property with the intention of going in extensively for horse raising.

It is with feelings of sincere regret that we are called upon to record the death of Mr. Bob McKinley, who passed from our midst on Thursday last. He had been employed all summer by Mr. J. Bailey who had been installing an irrigation and water power system at Shorts Point. About three weeks ago symptoms of typhoid fever developed and he was taken to the Kelowna hospital. Here pneumonia set in and it was not long then ere the end came. The funeral took place on Saturday, the body being interred in the Kelowna cemetery. Bob was a son of Mr. J. McKinley of the east side of the lake and was a young fellow who was known as a good worker, saving and trustworthy. About two years ago he married Miss Freda Clark, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Clark, of Woods Lake; about two months ago a baby girl being born to them. The sympathy of the community goes out to Mrs. McKinley who has been called upon early to bear so great a sorrow.

THE SKIN ARTIST

Wonderful Designs Pricked on the Human Figure by Japanese Needle Artists. King George's Tattoo Marks.

A tattooed British bluejacket, having fallen on evil times, is now in a provincial workhouse. While in the East he submitted to the entreaties of a Japanese tattoo artist, who, during two years, was constantly at work on his skin. The tattooed patterns include a design of St. George and the Dragon, an arrangement of shields depicting the Union Jack and a full-rigged ship, and a picture representing the Rock of Ages with the figure of a woman surrounded by angels. Other designs are snakes and fishes, a porpoise-headed dragon, and a crescent.

Across the back of the man is a drawing of an angel, and below is portrayed a fight between an eagle and a snake. There are pictures of roses, trees, birds'-nests, birds and elephants. On the right arm is shown a British soldier standing over a fallen comrade. There are also drawings of Jack and Jill and a Scottish fisher las. On the sailor's legs there are numerous sketches of fighting-cocks, Indian chiefs, flowers, a giraffe, Scottish chieftains, mermaids, angels, and a stag's head.

Much has been heard of late of Leonardo da Vinci in connection with the stolen masterpiece from the Louvre at Paris, but it may not be generally known that his greatest painting, his famous fresco of the "Last Supper," is actually tattooed on the back of a lady. As is well known, the picture contains thirteen figures, and these, as well as the upper room and the long table, occupy the greater part of the space and are very faithfully depicted. Over the picture this motto is inscribed: "Do unto others as ye would they should do unto you," and on the table-cloth, which occupies the lower part of the picture, appears the text: "Love one another."

A lady who died recently actually had her will tattooed on her back. It was drawn up by a solicitor and witnessed in the usual way, and contained no fewer than 500 words. It is not generally known that King George, as befits a naval man, bears several tattoo marks. The fact is that when he was in Yokohama many years ago he submitted himself to a famous Japanese needle-artist, who did his work so well that the King will carry the impression he made upon him to his grave.

A well-known and popular Bishop, who shall be nameless, could also be identified, if it were necessary, by the marks of the tattooer's art upon his upper arm. The figure represents the Sum of Righteousness, surmounted by the Cross, crushing the head of a hideous dragon. Needless to say, religious subjects are popular with clergymen who submit themselves to the tattooer. Another well known clergyman bears upon his skin the picture of a skull with a serpent thrusting its head out of one of the eye-sockets, and a radiant butterfly flitting away. This picture is doubtless symbolical of death and the survival of the spirit.

There is a missionary, too, in Central Africa who bears an indelible mark upon his back. It is a copy of the famous "Ecce Homo," which can be seen in the National Gallery in Trafalgar Square — the head of Christ, crowned with thorns.

SOLDIER AND BISHOP

An interesting incident connected with the birth of the late Archbishop of York, Dr. Maclagan, who, before entering the Church, served in the Army, is thus related in the biography of him that has been recently published. The birth took place on a Sunday, the eleventh anniversary of the Battle of Waterloo:—

"From her bedroom Mrs. Maclagan overheard loud talking, almost like quarrelling, in the lower part of the house, and sent her nurse to see what was the matter. The nurse soon returned, and said:—

"'It's just Peter and Nellie, and they're fightin' ower the bit bairnie.'

"'Quarrelling about my baby? What do you mean?' asked the mother.

"It then transpired that Peter, who was the father's old soldier servant and had followed his master through the Peninsular War, was greatly delighted at the auspicious event, and exclaimed:—

"'Here's another bonny boy, born the day of the great victory! This one must be a soldier.'

"'No, indeed,' retorted Nellie, the old Presbyterian nurse, 'this boy is born on the Sabbath, and he must be a meenister!'"

It is not a little remarkable that the two old servants should both have been unconsciously true prophets.

Good Advice to Men.

Father Bernard Vaughan gave some advice to young men in a humorous address on the Minnetonka.

"Popularity among the ladies, is a great help to any young man," said Father Vaughan, "and there is nothing like generosity to make a young man popular."

"I heard a lady praising a young man the other evening.

"'He is so generous,' she said. 'He takes mother and I out to dinner nearly every week. We dote on him.'

"Then she smiled and added:—

"'In fact, we table d'hôte on him.'"

Howell and the Novelist

Just before the recent departure of William Dean Howells for Spain a popular novelist called. He told about his phenomenal sales. Then — fishing for compliments — he sighed and said: "I grow richer and richer, but, all the same, I think my work is falling off. My new work is not so good as my old." "Oh, nonsense," said Mr. Howells. "You write just as well as you ever did, my boy. Your taste is improving, that is all."

Little Vera Lawson then stepped forward with a bouquet of roses which she handed to the Duchess, Nellie Jones, daughter of the mayor, presenting a bouquet of sweet peas to the Princess.

The Duke was also presented by the council with a handsome album of photos of the district, the work of Mr. G. H. E. Hudson. This was supplemented by an interesting collection of photos from Mr. J. L. Pridham representing his orchard from its pioneer stages some 20 years ago to the present day.

These ceremonies concluded, the royal party proceeded to the waiting automobiles, the Duke and Duchess with the mayor being driven by Dr. Boyce in his fine Napier, the Princess following in the South Kelowna Co.'s car driven by C. Gowen. The rest of the party followed consisting of Miss E. Pelly lady-in-waiting to Her Royal Highness the Duchess of Connaught; Miss C. Adam, lady-in-waiting to Her Royal Highness the Princess Patricia; Lieut.-Col. H. W. Lowther, C.M.G., M.V.O., D.S.O., military secretary; Capt. T. H. Rivers Bulkely, C.M.G., M.V.O., comptroller and equerry; Major S. Worthington, R.A.M.C., M.V.O., medical officer; Capt. W. Long, D.S.O., aide-de-camp; Capt. H. C. Buller, aide-de-camp.

Accompaning the party was also the Hon. Martin Burrell, Minister of Agriculture, and Mr. W. R. Baker, C.V.O., representing the C.P.R.

The party made good use of the limited time at their disposal visiting Bankhead, where they were met by Mr. Lionel E. Taylor, who showed them through the orchard, one of the first and finest in the valley. The K.L.O. Co.'s 230 acre orchard was also inspected, under the guidance of the manager Capt. Brush. The Duke was especially interested in a visit which was paid to the headquarters of the British North America Tobacco Co. at the Mission, and asked many questions respecting the different processes of curing and preparing for manufacture. Mr. A. W. Bowser, the manager, explained the plans of the company in the district in the building of a new factory; and the steps which were being taken to market the product.

The party stopped for a moment to look at the old Mission Ranch, the pioneer settlement of the district, now in the possession of Dr. P. de Pfyffer.

On the return to town the Duke expressed his desire to see the cannery, and showed very great interest in the process of canning and the machinery used as explained by the manager, Mr. Fraser. There were over one hundred tons of tomatoes on the receiving platform at the time of the visit.

On his return to the wharf the Duke, whose eye was keen for anyone who had seen military service noticed the decoration on the breast of Mr. Joe Biggs, who is a South African veteran. His Royal Highness stopped to exchange a word with Mr. Biggs, who had opened the gate for him.

A gift of several boxes of choice apples pears and grapes, the latter from Mr. F. R. E. DeHart's gardens, was sent on board before the party embarked.

Their Royal Highnesses in taking their departure thanked the Mayor for the arrangements which had been make for their visit, which they had thoroughly enjoyed.
