Meeting of City Council

Lease of the Agricultural Grounds to the A. & T. Association - Question of the Acquisition of Water Rights by the City Discussed

A meeting of the City council was held Saturday evening, April 30th, the mayor, Ald. Jones, Stirling and Cox being present. The minutes of last meeting were read and confirmed.

The followiug accounts were referred to the finance committee, to be paid if found correct:

Layritz Nursery Co., 40 trees for Public Park	$ 18 00
R. Golightly, constable salary	70 00
D. Mills, sc venging salary	150 00
Dr. Kellar, rent	15 00
G. H. Dunn, Petty cash and salary	110 65
S. D. Colquette, salary	140 00
A. Blakeborough, salary	100 00
E. Fowler, salary	54 12
K. Draper, work on streets	42 32
Brent, Noxon & Co., cost of sending debentures to Toronto	18 87

A deputation from the Agricultural and Trades Association, consisting of Mr. DuMoulin, Mr. W. Blackwood and Mr. B. McDonald attended in reference to the leasing of the Agricultural and Athletic grounds to the association for a period of ten years.

A lease had been drafted out for the purpose of submitting to the council, but the wording of the lease as drafted was not altogether approved by the deputation themselves, inasmuch as it failed to protect their interests in respect to any improvements which they might make during the next few years.

Mr. DuMoulin pointed out that the A. & T. Association proposed spending this year about $1000 in improving the track and in other ways, and that a similar sum might be spent next and following years. They did not want to do this without some assurance of compensation in the event of the grounds passing into other hands.

The way in which this assurance could be given so as to be satisfactory to both parties was not quite clear, and several suggestions were offered, each being open to some objection. It was eventually decided that the points raised should be discussed in committee, and a fresh lease prepared embodying the necessary clause, to be submitted to the council at the next meeting.

As the A. & T. Association were anxious to start their improvements at once, the mayor assured the deputation that they might go a head with the work as a satisfactory solution of the difficulty would no doubt be arrived at.

Mr. DuMoulin thought the council ought to provide means of lighting, as the wires were already laid past the exhibition building. This was also left over for the committee to discuss. The deputation then retired.

On the motion of Ald. Stirling seconded by Ald. Cox, By-law No. 73 was read a second time. The by-law, it will be remembered, is to provide a special rate of 3 cents per foot frontage for watering the streets in the business part of the town. The rate is restricted to occupiers of premises within a limited area in the centre of the city.

As no objections were raised or modifications suggested, the by-law was read a third time.

Ald. Jones then introduced the question of irrigation within the city limits. This matter of irrigation, he said, was becoming an important one. People were wondering what was the exact position of the city in the matter, and what steps the council intended taking in respect to it. Three years ago, he believed, the matter had been dealt with by the council of that time, but had been dropped again. He would like to know whether it was the intention of the present council to do anything as regards the future management of the system.

Mayor Sutherland said that in 1908 Ald. Stirling and himself had taken some interest in the question of the city taking over the distribution of the irrigation water within the city, and they had gone so far as to travel to Victoria to interview the government commissioners on the subject. Summerland had also taken the matter up. An act had been passed, giving municipalities power to take over irrigation systems within their limits, and Summerland had taken over their's under that act. Summerland, however, was in a rather different position from Kelowna. They had to deal only with two or three land companies. The water could not be taken over without obtaining the consent of the present owners of the land, and it was a rather difficult matter for Kelowna to arrange with such a host of different holders of lots.

The discussion on this subject continued in a desultory fashion for some time.

Ald. Stirling held the view that what was wanted was a special act enabling the council to compel the people to hand over their water rights.

The Mayor said that in a conversation he had had with the Attorney-General, the latter had expressed the opinion that the government could give no greater powers in a private bill than in a general one. The government had no right to take away any power of that kind. It could no more take away a man's water rights than it could come into his house and take away his lamp. There were certain things the government could not do. The water had been turned over to the people without any restrictions, and it was impossible by any general or private act to take it away. The people could be asked if it was their wish that the council should take over the management of the water, and the question would have to be voted upon in the same way as a money by-law. If the vote was in favor then the council would proceed to make arrangements with the different holders. This was a difficult matter with the large number of holders of water rights in Kelowna.

Ald. Stirling said the city did not want to regulate the water. What they wanted was to obtain control so as to distribute water without doing damage to property. The government ought to give them this power. It was possible in other things when public interest demanded to compel a man to give up his rights. Expropriation was a recognized principal of government and was in operation in England and in all countries.

"What stage are we at?" asked Ald. Cox, after the discussion had continued for some time. "What course are we to take this year? The same as last?"

The mayor said the city had no responsibility in the matter. There was the point, too, that as the city's water works system was extended the need for the irrigation water would gradually diminish.

Ald. Stirling said there would always be people desirous of using the irrigation water. However, the city might grow there would always be open gardens and orchards for which people would want the water.

Ald. Jones pointed out that a public meeting of the water users would shortly be called, and the whole matter could be gone into and fully discussed then.

After a little further informal talk the subject was dropped.

Ald. Stirling said he would like to ask if some other time for the council meetings would suit the other aldermen.

Monday morning 10 o'clock was eventually decided upon, the next meeting to be Monday, May 16.

The committee who have charge of the arrangements for the Victoria day sports, are working hard to get an extra good programme this year. They expect by the end of the week to be able to publish the more important details.

Fire at the Hawkdale Dairy

House and Dairy Plant Completely Destroyed

Last Thursday afternoon the town, on holiday bent, was started by what is becoming the all too familiar sound of the fire whistle. Smoke was seen rising in clouds to the east of the town, and the information was soon handed round that the Hawksdale Dairy, the property of R. E. Harriss, was on fire.

The gasoline fire engine was brought out, and a team from Davy's livery hitched on as quickly as possible.

As the dairy is some three miles out, it was necessarily some little time before the brigade arrived. The house was then well alight and past all hope of saving. As there was no wind at the time very little danger was apprehended as to the surrounding buildings.

Some little delay was experienced in getting the engine started. A portion of the mechanism had been bent in the rough journey from town. Fortunately there was no urgent need for hurry and after awhile a jet of water was got into action.

The fire had started in the back portion of the house, and in a short space of time the dairy, which stood in the rear, was utterly destroyed, with all machinery and utensils which it contained.

Several people working in the orchards in the neighborhood noticed the fire and ran in to help. They were able to rescue the whole of the furniture from the house, and even the doors and windows before the fire got a real hold of it.

The loss of all the dairy utensils and machinery placed Mr. S. M. Gore, who is managing the dairy in the absence of Mr. Harriss, in an awkward fix. There were not even pails left in which to do the evening's milking, and these had to be procured from town vite all speed. A large quantity of butter and bottled fruits was destroyed, and a quantity of ice which had been stored for summer use, was deprived of its protecting shed, and considerably reduced in bulk by the heat.

Mr. Gore and his staff are at present living in tents, pending the re-building of the house. Mr. R. E. Harriss, who has been spending the winter in Trinidad, has been apprised of the misfortune, and will probably return home without delay.

The loss has only been roughly estimated, but will probably reach about $3000, two thousand of which is covered by insurance. Mr. Gore himself lost about $75 or $100 worth of personal effects.

Mr. and Mrs. C. Jones, who were employed by Mr. Gore, and who had came down from Vernon only about a month ago, lost practically all they possessed. They were living in a tent to the rear of the dairy, and in an early stage of the fire the tent was destroyed, and with it all their clothing, etc.

Had the fire reached the numerous other buildings the loss would have been very much greater, but stillness of the air at the time, and the efforts of fire brigade happily averted such a catastrophe.

Mr. and Mrs. S. M. Gore wish to thank the many friends who so kindly assisted them in saving the furniture and other goods during the fire at Mr. Harriss' house, and the fire brigade for their effective work.

A lacrosse match is arranged for Saturday afternoon next at 2o'clock. The Vernon High School team is to play the Kelowna High School boys. The event will take place in the city park, and a good game anticipated. Don't forget to turn out to see them—and bring some small change along, as a collection will be taken to defray expenses.

Westbank Notes

From our own correspondent.

Mr. J. Davis, who has been living for some time at the townsite, moved over to Kelowna last Monday, where he has purchased a city lot.

While out hunting horses last week, Mr. Wm. Smithson had the good luck to kill a two-year-old bear near Rose Canyon. Mr. Smithson had seen the bear signs before, and consequently was on the lookout foi Bruin.

A good rain would greatly please the settlers here, as besides doing the crops a lot of good, it would also settle the dust on the roads. Wonder if we couldn't transfer some from the coast!

Work is to begin soon on the road between here and Peachland.

Something must be coming off soon, judging from the happy, smiling face of one of our most popular young ladies.

Chinese Immigration Increasing.

The number of Chinese landed during the month of April was far in excess of the number brought in during any previous month since the head tax of $500 came into force. The total number who paid the poll tax during April was 378. Quite a number of these, probably fifty per cent., were men who had been in Canada previously, and were returning after the expiration of the twelve months allowed them to remain in China and still be eligible for return.

The sum paid by Chinese, mostly by the newcomers was $139,046. This is more than double the biggest total during any other month since the head tax went into effect, the largest receipts for Chinese prior to this month being in June, 1908, when the collections from this source were $67,539, head tax having been paid during that month by 135 new arrivals.

Naval Estimates Passed.

The naval estimate were passed through committee of supply Saturday, the total amount voted being $3,676,500, of which $3,000,000. is for the navy proper.

None of this money is for the construction of new vessels. Tenders will be asked at once for the construction of ten ships, but the first thing the successful tenderers will have to put up are shipbuilding plants in Canada. The purchase price of the Niobe, $1,075,000, will be taken out of the appropriation, also $50,000 for alterations and $363,000 for the pay of the crew, maintenance, upkeep, fuel, etc. The Rainbow was purchased last year for $250,000. Refitting her magazine and cooling apparatus will absorb $27,000, making her total cost when completed $277,000. It is intended to provide for 422 recruits on the two ships, made up of 225 of the seaman class, 170 of the engine-room rating and twenty-four others.

An address to the Woman's Missionary Circle was given on Tuesday evening in the Baptist Church by Mrs. D. J. Welsh, who took as her subject "Pandita Ramaibai." Mrs. Welsh told much that was both interesting and instructive about this remarkable woman, and her paper was highly appreciated by the large gathering. A collection amounting to about eight dollars was taken in aid of the womens mission work. Mrs. Leslie Dilworth sang two solos which contributed much to the evening's enjoyment.

Mr. E, Clement is going into the brick making business. He has leased the plant of Messrs. Harvey & Co. for a period of five years.

FRUIT WHICH WILL KEEP.

A conversation with Mr. B. Mc Donald of the Farmer's Exchange, the other day, elicited a few facts which will undoubtedly be of interest to the fruit grower and gardener.

Mr. McDonald is in a position to know what he is talking about, and appears to thoroughly understand and appreciate the situation both from the fruit grower's standpoint, and from that of the wholesaler or commission man, and this fact makes any suggestions or conclusions of Mr. McDonald all the interesting and valuable.

During the time the operation of the Farmers' Exchange has been under Mr. McDonald's charge, he has made many trips to eastern points, opening up markets for Kelowna produce, and has noted our fruit lying side by side in competition with that of various parts of America, and does, of course, in the ordinary details of his work, come in constant contact with the final test of all—the man who pays for it.

It was a pleasure to learn that excellent success had so far attended his efforts in placing Kelowna fruit, and meeting any and all competition, but as the market develops and the trade increases, many propositions will present themselves in the packing and growing of the fruit, propositions which will have to be met, and quickly too, if this rapidly growing market it to be maintained and competition fully met.

One of the propositions, said Mr. McDonald, was the putting of the best keeping quality into fruit and vegetables by judicious watering and the intellegent use of fertilizers. This did not affect the smaller retail trade so much as the trade with the larger wholesale houses, who buy in large quantities and placing the bulk in cold storage. This was the main market upon which we had to depend, and for which the fruit must be grown.

A change was rapidly taking place in this market, the buyers preferring to buy in smaller quantities, putting only sufficient into storage to carry them over the winter, getting clean fresh packed goods in the spring, and saving freight and risk upon the culls which develop in the stored fruit.

His experience, said our informant, all pointed to the fact that the keeping quality was largely in the hands of the grower. He strongly condemned the practice of many growers to push the growth of the trees and fruit unnaturally, by over irrigation, thinning and pruning, causing quick pulpy growth, unnatural and forced, having no staying quality, and developing water core and other defects.

A particular instance was given were a fine large sample of Wagners had been offered him and which he had been compelled to decline taking any risk. The fruit was much larger than the average Wagner, fine colored, and very attractive but the growth had been too unnatural, leaving the flesh much too sappy or pulpy, indicating to any one at all acquainted with storage, that a very large per cent of waste would occur, no matter how well the apples were stored. The fruit was taken in at the owner's risk, and turned out exactly as expected, over fifty per cent. culled before being placed on the market. A more natural, steady growth, both of tree and fruit, with a proper proportion of fertilizer to supply soil waste, is what is required, to put the best keeping quality into the fruit. The same applies to the growing of onions. The man who properly feeds his crops putting substance and body instead of water only, is the man who is going to have the steadiest market for his produce.

That this has already been recognized by the wholesaler is strongly evidenced as before stated, and places our local men in a position of having to use extra care in selecting the fruit for storage, and declining to take any risk on that which their experiences has taught them to avoid.

Fruit growers are wide-awake men generally, and Mr. McDonald's warning note will be welcomed by all those who delight to produce only the best, and so maintain the already high standard of Kelowna fruit.

Western Canada Making Big Jump This Yerr.

All the indications are that this is to be a record-breaking year in the annals of the development of Western Canada. The immigration during last month was the largest for any month since immigration to this country began. The total immigration last month was 33,065, of which 17,310 came from the United States and 15,755 came vie ocean ports. The magnitude of this total makes it look not at all unlikely that the estimates which were made early last month, that the year's immigration would reach the 400,000 mark, may be found to fall short when the actual total for the year comes to be added up. The evidences of growth and expansion are visible in all parts of the country.

The work of developing the resources of the West is going forward with great energyand rapidity New settlers in their tens of thousands are going in upon the land, and widening immensely the total area of fertile soil of the prairies and British Columbia. Construction work of all kinds is being undertaken, being only limited by the rate at which new capital can be secured. Business of every kind, according to the numerous trade journals, has received a considerable impetus during the past few months, and another period of rapid expansion seems to have set in.

The funny spectacle of two fat men climbing the Carsorso hill with an auto was witnessed last Sunday One fat man in the auto, and one pushing behind. Hot air and perspiration was added to the heat of the day. No pushing was needed on the return grade with the two heavyweights inside.

Kamloops Carpenters Strike for Higher Pay.

The carpenters of Kamloops went out on strike Monday morning. There is not up to the present time a union of carpenters in Kamloops but they are more or less organized and in February last a meeting was held at which it was decided to ask the employers for an increase of three cents per hour and a fifty hour week instead of fifty-four. It was proposed that instead of working a shorter day the four hours should be taken off on Saturday afternoon. The employers however have refused to grant their request, hence the strike.

Mr. V. D. Wade, who has for the past twelve months occupied the position of reporter for the Orchard City Record, has severed his connection with the paper, and is entering into the business of auctioneering in the city and district.

Mr. R. B. Kerr has consented to deliver a lecture to the young people of the Presbyterian Church next Monday evening at 8 o'clock, on the subject: "How Canada is Governed."

Dr. and Mrs. Knox made an interesting trip in their auto. Sunday last. Leaving Kelowna soon after breakfast for Kamloops, arriving at the Leland Hotel there in the evening in time for dinner, without any difficulty.

The marriage took place last Saturday at St. Michael's and All Angels church of A. L. Meugens and Miss McKillop, who was until lately matron at the hospital.

There is a movement on foot thoughout Canada to observe next Sunday, May 8th as "Mother Day." The movement was we believe started last year by the Home fournel, and has already received wide recognition. We have our Labor Day and Dominion Day and Victoria Day and why not a Mothers' Day? what more fitting to be honored than the mothers of the nation? The mothers who worked, and watched and suffered for our benefit? Who cared for us and loved us when we were young and helpless and probably ungrateful too? Why not?

The idea is a beautiful one and worthy of all support. The wholesome influnce on the young especially of a day set apart for the honoring of motherhood can not be estimated. And we would suggest to our young friends who are fortunate in still having mothers to be kind in that they remember her on that day with some little present. and won't she value it, however small! You see!

Every one is expected to wear a white flower on that day, so don't forget to get one.

Communications

Under this heading communications will be received upon any subject of interest. Letters must be signed, be brief, avoid personalities. The Editor does not necessarily endorse opinions given below.

Editor Orchard City Record,

Dear Sir,—Enclosed herewith is a letter taken from the Vancouver Daily Province.

The thought struck me that the people of this valley, who are enjoying a large measure of prosperity, would probably be glad of the opportunity of helping in such a work, if only the facts were brought before their notice. There are few of us who could not afford the ninepence (eighteen cents) necessary to give a day's outing to one of the poor little mites, and I would suggest that if you could see your way clear to open up a subscription list in your paper a substantial sum might be collected.

You will notice there is no "sifting through a ladder." Every cent subscribed is used directly for the for the chidren.

I may say that I came from London myself, and have seen something of the wretchedness and squalor in which they live, and know how much such a treat would be valued, but cannot, of course estimate the good results it may have on the child's life.

Trusting that this will meet with your approval, and a good round sum will be collected for so worthy an object, I beg to remain

Yours truly,
Wm. GAY

Editor Province,—Will you permit me to ask your readers to help me in the Fresh Air Fund, which exists for the purpose of giving the children from the worst slums of England, Scotland, Ireland, and Wales, holidays in the country. Last year, as the result of special appeals in my own newspapers and periodicals, and of kindly assistance given to the F. A. F. by editors and owners of other papers in placing such an appeal as this before their readers, the F. A. F. was enabled to send no fewer than 266,200 waifs away from the slums of our big towns and cities for a day's pure air and sunshine in the country, where these needy little guests were given two good meals and plenty of healthy and stimulating amusement.

The worst and most neglected cases—4050 in number—were treated in a special division, and were despatched to holiday homes and taken care of for a whole fortnight; and I can not easily over-emphasize the importance of this departure of the Fresh Air Fund.

A unique feature of the Fresh Air Fund is that no charge whatever is made for expenses in connection with it. There are no salaries of officials, rent has to be paid, none of the thousand and one expenses such as printers' bills and postage stamps which eat up so large a proportion of the revenue of most charities, is charged against the amount subscribed to the Fresh Air Fund. The journals with which I am connected defray the whole of these costs, and every penny goes intact to the benefit of the poorest of poor children. Thus, if anybody sends us the sum of ninepence, he or she can be absolutely certain one little one will be rescued for a day at least from the gloomy and grimy surroundings in which he ordinarily lives and moves, while a remittance of ten shillings ensures that a half-starved mite will have a whole fortnight's holiday attendance, relief and change. There is something peculiarly sad and poignant about the unwanted and unloved child of the slums, and I feel instinctively that I have but to summon up the image of its natural loneliness and unhappiness to make the hearts of your readers—who may have lost a little one, or have bright and healthy children of their own—beat very tenderly and generously in regard to the Fresh Air Fund. I remember, for instance, one of my workers telling me how one day she visited an unsavory district in the east end of London, taking with her a present for a little girl who had no parents, and seemed to have no friends, but lived on sufferance with some relatives, picking up a precarious meal where and how she could.

Before handing over the present (it was a dress) she chanced to say to the little one, quite at random, "Now Madge, here is the gift I promised you, but tell me first what you would like best." The little one looked wistfully at her for a moment, and then said very softly, "I would like to sit on your knee for a minute and pretend that I was your little girl."

An there are practically 300,000 Madges in our slums today, waiting in much the same plight, with the same pathetic wistfulness and eagerness for men and women they do not know to help the Fresh Air Fund secure them a day's sympathy and respite. I do therefore beg your readers to help the Fresh Air Fund now and at once; and further, to interest their own children in so humane and satisfying a social service to others, and persuade them also to become little Fresh Air Fund missionaries. The address of the honorary secretary of the Fresh Air Fund is 23, St. Bride street, London, E.C. I am, dear sir, yours faithfully,

C. ARTHUR PEARSON
23 St. Bride st., London, E.C.

[Our correspondent's suggestion is a good one. There is no doubt as to the deserving nature of the work which C. Arthur Peaison has made his hobby for some years past. It is difficult for anyone who has not lived in London or other of the great cities of the Old Country, to realize how utterly destitute and friendless are many of the children who live in the slum districts. Numbers of them have actually never seen a green field or a tree in the whole of their misrable lives, which have been entirely spent in the foul air and squalid conditions of the courts and alleys of the great cities A day in the country to such is like a day in Heaven. We shall certainly be pleased to receive donations for this worthy object, and see that they are forwarded to the proper quarter.–Ed.]

A Crazy Craft.

On its voyage down Kootenay lake last Thursday the steamer Kuskanook sighted a strange craft, a raft made of a couple of small logs and a biscuit box. Frank Karee a Finlander, had set sail from Kootenay Landing for Rossland to see his brother. His oars consisted of a single pole, to which was tacked a shingle, his provisions for the voyage consisted of five old bones and a bag of salt. Favored by the current the lonely navigator had then made four miles of his voyage, After landing passengers for the Crow the Kuskanook put about and overhauled Karee and took him aboard. He was evidently demented.

HIS BUMPS.

The Explanation Given by the Book on Phrenology.

They were newly married and were calling upon one of the friends of the bride who had been particularly pleasant upon the occasion of their wedding. The bridegroom, apropos of nothing, began to talk about phrenology and told how his wife had discovered two very prominent bumps on the back of his head. He was proud of them. So was she, and she passed him around that the host and hostess might feel the bumps and know of their existence. Then she explained:

"My book on phrenology says that they mean good memory and generosity."

It was evident that she was proud of the facts, and so was he. But the host, being of an inquiring turn of mind, wished to satisfy himself, so he got down a phrenological work from one of his library shelves and after much labor found the bumps on the chart. Turning to the notes, he read, seriously at first, then unsteadily. The bride became suspicious, but she was game and said:

"Read it out loud. Please do!" And the ho t read:

"These bumps are most frequently found on cats and monkeys."

Other topics consumed the remainder of the visit, which was brief.—New York Sun.

THE CABINET LEAK.

Daniel Webster Was Not Long In Discovering Its Source.

Once years ago, when Daniel Webster was secretary of state, there was an important foreign matter up for discussion before the cabinet, and the utmost secrecy was of course maintained, but the whole thing was blazoned about in a few hours after the cabinet meeting. So the president hastily sent for his cabinet to talk over this leak. Each man had a different idea of it.

Finally Mr. Webster arose, saying, "You, gentlemen, go on with your discussion, and I'll be back in a minute." In a few minutes he returned and repeated every word that had been spoken in the room in his absence. He explained that if by standing close to the door outside the cabinet room you held your ear to it you could not distinguish one intelligible word, but if moving back from the door and a little to one side upon a certain spot in the carpet you kept an attentive ear every word could be plainly heard as though whispered. Some enterprising eavesdropper had been experimenting with the door and had found that upon that exact spot there was some acoustic property of the door or room that conveyed the sound in perfect entirety.

"Going—Going"—

The auctioneer had auctioneered for the last time, for he was very ill and lay now almost at death's door.

Beside his bed stood the doctor and the auctioneer's wife, anxiously watching each symptom, each movement, each respiration.

"Doctor," hoarsely whispered the hammer wielder's wife, "what is his pulse now?"

The doctor raised the patient's wrist.

"His pulse," he answered, "is now going at 104."

The auctioneer sat up excitedly in bed.

"Going at 104!" he cried feebly. "Going at 104! Who'll make it 105? Do I hear 105 for a pulse that has been running steadily for forty-seven years and never once stopped? Will you bid 105? Who'll make it 105?"

But no one made it 105. And a minute later the auctioneer was going—going—gone!—Exchange.

How Eskimo Women Die.

On her first entrance to her new hut of snow an Eskimo woman is buoyed by hope of welcoming a son. What of her last incoming to those narrow confines? She knows that the medicine man has decided that her sickness is mortal when she is laid upon her bed of snow. She gazes upon the feebly burning lamp beside her, upon food and drink set close at her hand. She sees her loved ones pass out of the doorway that needs no tunnel entrance to keep chill airs away, for presently the door is sealed with snow. The chill of death pierces through her enveloping furs. Her tomb insures that no long tarrying will be hers. The soul, companioning with her, may refresh itself with food; but, starving and freezing, her feeble body will witness even that soul's departure and know that its hour has come to perish alone.—Harper's Bazar.

Paying For the Spots.

"I conceived a perfectly dandy scheme for saving my table linen and teaching Jack to be dainty about his carving," said a young married woman. "Every time he gets a spot on the tablecloth I have him cover it with a coin. The larger the spot the larger the coin, and more often than not it takes paper money to cover it all. Then Norah takes up the money when she clears the table, and we save it up to buy kitchen utensils."—New York Press.

Elephant Loose in Theatre.

A baby elephant which has been appearing at the Orpheum Theatre, Vancouver, broke loose from where he was fastened at the back of the stage, and started in to enjoyed himself. He lumbered around in the dark and upset several pieces of scenery. He put his tusk through a pail and then trod it flat, after which he demolished heavy plate glass mirror used in one of the acts, cleared a table of some statues, smashed a few chairs, tore down curtains, and finally arrived on the stage. Here he seized a broom in his trunk, and set to work to beat the music out of a piano for all he was worth. He was eventually secured, but not before he had done considerable damage.

Farmer and His Hogs.

A hog deal that furnishes another angle to the high cost of living discussion has just taken place at Salem, N. J. A farmer killed two hogs and a Salem butcher agreed to buy them, the price being satisfactory. The farmer said he would like to have the hams and shoulders, and again the butcher agreed. After the farmer put the hams and shoulders on his wagon he remarked, "Well, what's the balance coming to me?" The butcher figured a moment and replied: "The is nothing coming to you. You owe me $2.85." And he was obliged to pay it. The butcher's figures were correct—the farmer's were correct. The butcher bought the entire hog at wholesale price, and the farmer was charged at retail price for the hams and shoulders—although that was not understood when he made the bargain.

Sir E. Shackleton Would Explore Northwest.

A strong inclination to settle in Canada and engage in exploration of the great stretches of land in the North and Northwest possesses Sir Ernest H. Shackleton, the famous explorer of the Antarctic, who is at present in Toronto. His idea is to organize a corps of trained mineralogists and prospectors, men who are accustomed to rough work, but at the same time experienced in scientific exploration, to carry on a series of rapid surveys. In these they would discover the real value of the different regions of the Dominion which are still scarcely scratched, and make reports of the minerals, forests, and places suitable for townsites, the information being reliable and a safe guide for the public.

Bulldog and Horse Fight.

At Seattle the other day for fully fifteen minutes a vicious bulldog and a horse attached to an express wagon fought a desperate battle, the fight coming to an end when the horse gripped the bulldog by the back of the neck and threw him high into the air. Without the least provocation the dog attacked the horse, setting his teeth firmly in the latter's shoulder. The horse succeed in shaking off the bulldog, which time and again made fierce lunges at it. The horse kicked, pawed, and even bit the enemy. Once too often the bulldog leaped at the horse's head, and this time was caught by the neck and hustled high into the air. That took all the fight out of him and he quitted. A warrant has been issued against the owner of the dog for permitting a vicious animal to run at large.

John D. Rockfeller would go broke if he should spend his entire income trying to prepare a better medicine than Chambelain's Colic, Cholera, and Diarrhoea Remedy for diarrhoea, dysentery or bowel compliants. It is simply impossible, and so says every one that has used it. Sold by all druggists.

Canada's Trade Reaches Record Figure.

Canada's total trade for the fiscal year ending March 31st reached the record figure of $677,142,189. This is an increase of $117,506,238, more than twenty per cent., as compared with the preceding twelve months. It is an increase of $26,000,000 compared with the previous period of 1907-8. At present the monthly increases over the corresponding months of last year are running over $10,000,000 per month, and indications point to a total trade of about $800,000,000 for the current fiscal year.

Severe Storms in the Middle West.

In the most disastrous and far-reaching storm experienced in a generation, says a report from Chicago, damage to budding crops and fruits and vegetables amounting to more than thirty million dollars has been wrought in the middle west. The Michigan fruit belt, the backbone of the fruit country, is described as almost wholly wiped out. The frost in Illinois and Iowa has not only killed buds, flowers, and fruit, but also threatens to ruin oats. Experts estimate the losses in ten states as follows: Illinois, $6,000,000; Iowa, $10,000,00; Indiana, $2,000,000; Michigan, $4,000,000; Wisconsin, $2,000,000; Kansas, $1,000,000; Kentucky, $1,000,000; Missouri, $2,000,000; Ohio, $500,000; Nebraska, $1,500,000.

Vancouver's Horse Show.

Vancouver's third horse show closed with a record very satisfactory to all concerned. The number of entries was over 1100, which was more than 300 over last year, and horses were in attendance from Woodlands, California, on the south; Brandon on the east in Canada, and Lee's Station, Montana, in the States.

A touch of rheumatism, or a twinge of neuralgia, whatever the trouble is, Chamberlain's Liniment drives away the pain at once and cures the complaint quickly. First application gives relief. Sold by all druggists.

THE CAT AND THE BABY.

A Medical Opinion as to the Tradition of a Feline Danger.

Several physicians have investigated the ancient story that cats suck the breath of babies, and Dr. J. Rice Gibbs declares that the theory is ridiculous. Cats occasionally kill children, he declares, but they do it in a different fashion.

"It has been stated that a cat's nostrils are so formed as to make a perfect juncture with the nose of a baby," said Dr. Gibbs, "and that a little pressure would push them upward and make them a perfect fit. Then the cat's chin would rest over and below the baby's mouth, preventing it from opening to relieve the strangulation while the cat sucked its breath. That is all rot. The manner in which little children are killed by cats is this: A cat looking for a warm place to curl up and sleep lies down upon the chest of a little child, and, being quite heavy—many cats are as heavy as little babies—simply crushes the breath out of the child's lungs, and strangulation takes place, but not through sucking of the child's breath.

"The idea that only black cats kill little babies is equally ridiculous. It is simply because black cats are considered unlucky. In former times the black cat was considered the very genius of witchcraft. In those days when a baby died the blame was often fixed upon some hag who, the judges said, had sent a black cat to suck the baby's breath. And often hag and cat suffered death at the stake.

"Evil omen is still the cry in many parts of the world whenever a black cat approaches a cradle. Many persons are so superstitious that the appearance of a black cat in a sick room is considered equivalent to an announcement of approaching death. What could be more absurd?

"Mothers need not be afraid of cats, black, white or green, sucking their babies' breath and murdering them. It is time that this popular fallacy should be exploded."—New York World.

THE BASEBALL UMPIRE.

Very Different From the Fight Referee or the Race Judge.

Good umpires are rare. In the whole country there are not more than ten first rate ones. The combination of the keen eye, nimble brain and cold nerve is not a common one.

The umpire is the chain lightning of baseball. His decisions are rendered in the fifth part of a second. He renders them knowing that he must stand by them afterward, no matter what happens. Every man inside the fence, whether blinded by prejudice or loyalty to the home team, sees the same things and therefore feels that he has a right to his own opinion, but the umpire is the one man who is paid to know what he sees.

The prizefight referee sometimes has to decide which boxer won a hard battle. He has had time in which to review the situation. The whole moving picture of the fight stretches backward in his memory. Should the choice prove a difficult one there is always the comfortable middle ground—the draw decision, in which neither man wins or loses. The baseball umpire can render no draw decisions. The man is safe or he is out.

When two race horses come nodding down to the wire and two noses flash by the post so close together that a finger breadth means thousands of dollars to the backers, the race track judge may fall back on the dead heat. The baseball umpire has no dead heats. Watching foot and ball, he must know which one was first. He can confer with no one. Right or wrong, the judgment must be made in the twinkling of an eye.—O. H. Van Loan in Munsey's Magazine.

The Piano Virtuoso's Hands.

Contrary to popular belief, the piano virtuoso as a rule has extremely unattractive hands. "The artistic hand" is a phrase peculiar to the hysterical young woman who haunts musical recitals, but in reality the hand of the pianist is not at all artistic or beautiful when judged by the usual standards of the artist, the painter or the sculptor.

Had, Had Enough

A boy twelve years of age, with an air of melancholy resignation, went to his teacher and handed in the following note from his mother before taking his seat:

"Dear sir,—Please excuse James for not being present yesterday.

"He played truant, but you needn't whip him for it, as the boy he played truant with and him fell out, and he licked James; and a man he threw stones at caught him and licked him; and the driver of a cart they hung on to licked him; and the owner of a cat they stoned licked him. I licked him when he came home, after which his father licked him; and I had to give him another for being impudent to me for telling his father, So you need not lick him until next time.

"He thinks he will attend regular in future." The Christian Advocate.

A Hero

Tommy's mother had made him a present of a toy shovel and sent him out on to the sands to play with his baby brother. "Take care of baby now, Tommy, and don't let anything hurt him," was Mamma's parting injunction.

Presently screams of anguish from baby sent the distracted parent flying to the sands. "For goodness' sake, Tommy, what has happened to the baby?" said she, trying to soothe the wailing infant.

"There was a naughty fly biting him on top of his head, and I killed it with the shovel," was the proud reply.

The manifold delights of the days with the rod and line, the season for which is now so near at hand, finds some able opponents in the April number of Rod and Gun in Canada, published by W. J. Taylor, Woodstock Ont. The immense advantages of Algonquin Park for fishing vacations, and descriptions of some of its many wonderful lakes, are given prominence in a beautifully illustrated article, the writer having had the privilege of accompanying the hardy rangers on some of their rounds. The veteran angler, Mr. C. W. Young, gives an account of some new waters along the line of the new Transcontinental in Northern Quebec and many a fisherman will hope that during the coming summer he may possibly repeat Mr. Young's delightful experiences. The wanderings of a fishing party lost in the Rockies are well told by Mr. E. M. Allworth, the story illustrating the difference between fishing in the north and in the west. Mr. Allworth and his party had to walk home from the mountains to their prairie town. A defence of the catfish will be read with interest. Two good bear stories, one of duck hunting, a tale of a good dog and game bird hunting by a motor car add variety and give increased interest to an excellent number. Not merely no fisherman but no sportsman should be without its bright, imformative companionship.

At the Opera House

Juvenile Bostonians

The "Lethbridge Herald" says that the large audience which attended the Majestic Theatre last evening were given a great treat by those well known versatile young players, the Juvenile Bostonians. They went there expecting something goood, but never expected anything quite so delightful as the musical comedy, "The Ransom" as put on by the Bostonians turned out to be. The musical numbers, the dancing, and the acting were all splendid, and the audience was charmed. Babe Mason as White Pete: Lois Mason as Clarisse Hamilton: little Doris Canfield as Sir Reggie Stark, and in fact the whole caste, played their parts with cleverness and realism wonderful in ones so young. The Juvenile Bostonians have always held a warm place in the hearts of Lethbridge people, and last night they materially added to the affection with which they are regarded.

Grace Cameron

It is seldom that the management of the Kelowna Opera House places their personal stamp of approval upon an approaching attraction and in the past when the personal guarantee of the local management has been placed prior to the appearance of an approaching Theatrical event, the merits of the attraction itself have invariably sustained the management's recommendation.

We have never hithertofore made special mention of an approaching theatrical event with greater assurance and confidence than in this instance when it is our pleasure to announce the forthcoming engagement in this city of the dainty singer and commedienne, Grace Cameron and a superb acting company in C. Herbert Kerr's latest four act comedy, "Nancy" which occurs on Wednesday next. We take great pleasure in adding our guarantee to that of Mr. Kerr's that both the company and scenic environments he sends here will be of the highest order. During the action of C. H. Kerr's highly diverting comedy, "Nancy," which will be given at the Opera House, on Wednesday, May 11th, Grace Cameron will sing many high-class selections, as well as several of a catchy order.

AN IMPOSTOR'S TRICK.

The Cheerful Liar That Made a Fool of the Grand Monarch.

Louis XIV. was taken in once in a most humiliating way and by an impostor whose only art was lying. In 1667, just after he had returned from one of his most dazzling military successes against the Dutch, Louis le Grand received word that an embassy from Persia had just landed at Marseilles en route to the French court to bring salutations and presents from the shah. Pleased that his fame should actually have run around the world, he sent word that all the towns on the way from Marseilles to Paris should fete the ambassador.

As a result the journey to Paris was a march of triumph. Children sang and flowers were strewn along the way. Arrived at Paris, several regiments of the Swiss guard met the shah's representative and escorted him to a magnificent suit in the old palace of the Tuileries. Louis sent no less a person than the Duc de Richelieu to welcome the potentate and invite him out to Versailles to a special reception in the hall of mirrors.

The ambassador presented himself as Riza Bey of the Persian court and after showing his credentials advanced to kiss the hand of Louis le Grand and give him the shah's congratulations on his recent victories. A caravan of presents from his imperial sovereign were on their way and would arrive in Paris in a few days, said the ambassador.

Festivals followed at Versailles. The bey received magnificent presents from Louis and royal entertainment. He lounged gracefully on divans at the French court and smoked in Persian languor. He gave the grand monarque a few fragments of opal and turquoise, saying that they came from a Persian district bordering on the Caspian sea. The woods there were full of them, he explained, and he offered to divide with France—had planted the French flag there already, as it were!

At last the day came for the formal presentation of the shah's gifts, and on that morning early Riza Bey melted into space. He was never seen or heard of again. He had, as some one said, "gone glimmering through the dream of things that were." The gems that he had left were worth, if anything, about 15 cents apiece, being glass.—New York Tribune.

THE JURY DISAGREED.

A Fine Point In Equity That Never Was Decided.

An old time story of the fine points of law and equity which arose in carrying out an amicable contract is told in the Philadelphia Record. There were four brothers who had inherited a storage warehouse from their father. He had divided the property equally among them.

Among the appurtenances was a cat—a fine animal, excellent for mousing. This, too, was divided, the eldest brother owning the right front quarter, the second brother the left front quarter and the younger brothers the two hind quarters.

Now, unfortunately, the cat in one of its nocturnal prowls injured the right front paw, and the eldest brother attended to that portion of his property by binding the injured member with a greased rag.

The cat, thankful for this relief to its sufferings, went to sleep contentedly before the fire, but in the midst of its slumbers a falling coal ignited the rag, and the animal, howling with agony dashed through the warehouse and, coming in contact with some combustibles, set the building on fire.

When the loss came to be figured out the three younger brothers wished to throw it all upon the eldest on the ground that had he not tied up his part of the cat with the inflammable rag the building would not have been destroyed.

He, on the contrary, contended that had the cat only been possessed of the front right paw—his property—it would have stood still and burned to death. It was the three other paws that caused the damage.

The brothers argued the case until they died, but they never reached an agreement.

What Should She Say?

"I tell you, little wife, you can't imagine how lonesome I am when I am separated from you. You are the best little woman in the world, so different from Drigg's nagging and scolding wife. You know that a man must get ahead in the world and be free to give his business his full attention. My little girl isn't of the suspicious, doubting kind, is she? Why, dearest, this very night I ought to go down to the club. Brown of Brown, Kalibo & Co. is in town. They're among our best customers. Ought to know him socially, hadn't I? But unless you insist, my little sweetheart wife, I won't go. It may mean a loss to the firm, but I'll stay with my precious."

Well, now, what can a woman do? —Chicago Journal.

Unpleasant to Have Around.

"Are you still engaged to Mr. Briggs?"

"No. I broke it off last week. I was afraid to marry him. He knows too much. I gave him some ribbon to match. He found it in the first store he went to, and he bought it for 2 cents below the regular price."

The Barrier.

Blobbs—No; I shall never marry. Slobbs—But you don't seem like a woman hater. In fact, you seem very fond of the fair sex. Blobbs—Yes, and I talk in my sleep.—Exchange.

News of the Valley.

SUMMERLAND.

Summerland Board of Trade members have decided that the town needs a cannery to dispose of the ripe fruit which could not be shipped, and are taking active steps to get one going. A canvass of the district is to be made, and another meeting held.

The C. P. R. have decided not to build a slip for cars at Summerland this year. They are to have instead a special barge which can be moored alongside the wharf until the cars are loaded or unloaded.

Summerland is arranging a big day for the 24th of May. Aquatic sports in the morning, and field sports in the afternoon.

It is rumored that Stirling and Pitcairn, of Kelowna, will shortly build a large packing house at Summerland.

Messrs. Shields & Hatfield's blacksmith and woodwork shops were destroyed by fire last Thursday morning. There is said to be a loss of about $3,500 on the build- and plant, which carried no insurance whatever.

PENTICTON.

Supt. Kilpatrick, of the C. P. R., met the Penticton council last week with plans for new wharf and tracks which would cost when finished about $60,000, sixteen of which the company intended spending this summer, if they could get a grant of a certain part of the foreshore. The council wished to know if the C. P. R. and the Kettle Valley line, which would be in shortly, were prepared to pool their interests, or whether the Kettle Valley line would make similar demands. If not the council felt sure that the people would turn the proposition down.

The S. O. Canning Co. have decided not to operate their cannery this season.

ENDERBY.

The date of the Northern Okanagan Poultry Association show has been fixed for the last week in January, instead of the date previously made, in December.

VERNON.

Vernon curlers are forming a joint stock company for the purpose of building a curling rink that will give ample accommodation for a big bonspiel next winter. A bowling green is also contemplated in connection with the rink.

A young Swiss named James Baleston was badly hurt by a charge of stumping power while working with the government road gang at Cherry Creek. He was "spooning" out a misfire when it exploded in his face. His eyes are probably injured beyond recovery.

There is a rumor that a company will build a new hotel on the site of the Okanagan House, which was destroyed in the disastrous fire last summer.

The Magic Mirror

I went one night with my high-priced thirst to loaf in the booze bazaar,
And as I sampled the old red dope I leaned on the handsome bar.
My purse was full of the old long green, and my rainment was smooth and new,
And I looked as slick as a cabbage rose that's kissed by the nice wet dew.
Behind the bottles a mirror stood, as large as your parlor floor,
And I looked and looked in the shining glass, and wondered, and looked some more.
My own reflection did not appear, but there where it should have been, I saw,
The form of a cringing bum all crumpled and soaked with gin.
His nose was red his eyes were dim,
Unshorn was his swollen face, and I thought it queer
Such a seedy "bo" would come to so smooth a place.
I turned around for a better look at the effigy of despair.
And nearly fell in a little heap for the effigy wasn't there!
The barkeep laughed. "It's the Magic Glass," he said, with a careless yawn;
"It shows a man how he is apt to look years hence when his roll is gone."

Lineless Rhymes of To-day, Where the Sunflower Grows.

Two Bad Habits.

The following is from an address by Mr. Andrew Carnegie delivered an the opening of a gymnasium at St. Andrew's University:—

"There are two such habits very common among the young men of today. The first and most serious was the use of alcoholics. A dangerous habit very likely to cause grevious results all agreed; that it should cause no beneficial results all agreed. It was therefore the part of wisdom to abstain from the habit that might work evil and could do no good. That no ill effects were visible from indulgence during the vigorous period of youth rendered the danger of serious consequences in after life still greater than if the ill effects were visible from the beginning. They are playing with an insiduous foe. Viewing them as young steeds training for the race of life he knew of no one habit so likely to defeat them in the contest as the drinking of alcoholic liquors. That taken in excess they destroyed the character of men and rendered them useless members of society they all knew. The line between excess and sufficiency was so narrow that it was very seldom the drinker knew and observed it. Better be on the safe side. Why run into danger? As no possible good could result from indulgence no risk should be incurred. Believe him, in the stern game of life they had all to play, they could afford to throw no advantages away. He did not wish to preach to them. There was no sin in drinking a glass of wine, and, late in life, they might be ordered to indulge to that extent. He put the case to them simply as a matter of policy. There was one habit, and that the greatest danger in front of them against which, they could protect themselves completely in the campaign of life. It was good sense for them to do so.

"Drunkenness was the great rock ahead in the career of every young man. It was far more important that he insure himself against it than against death. A drink policy was worth ten life policies in their case. Abstain and evade the danger."

CAUGHT THE MOOD.

The Incident That Helped Verdi With His "Miserere."

Men of genius are confessedly creatures of mood. Grief and adversity have often been a real help to them rather than a hindrance. Poe, it is said, produced "The Raven" while sitting at the bedside of his sleeping but dying wife. Many similar instances might be cited, but an anecdote of Verdi, told by Carlo Ceccarelli, will suffice.

On one occasion when Verdi was engaged on his well known opera, "Il Trovatore," he stopped short at the passage of the "Miserere," being at a loss to combine notes of sufficient sadness and pathos to express the grief of the prisoner, Manrico.

Sitting at his piano in the deep stillness of the winter night, his imagination wandered back to the stormy days of his youth, endeavoring to extract from the past a plaint, a groan, like those which escaped from his breast when he saw himself forsaken by the world. All in vain!

One day at Milan he was unexpectedly called to the bedside of a dying friend, one of the few who had remained faithful to him in adversity and prosperity. Verdi at the sight of his dying friend felt a lump rise in his throat. He wanted to weep, but so intense was his grief that not a tear flowed to the relief of his anguish.

In an adjoining room stood a piano. Verdi, under one of those sudden impulses to which men of genius are sometimes subject, sat down at the instrument and there and then improvised the sublime "Miserere" of the "Trovatore." The musician had given utterance to his grief.

QUEER JEWELRY.

Telegraph Wire Necklaces and Insulators as Earrings.

The aesthetic and decorative uses to which barbarians will turn objects which to civilized races are things of the humblest utility are amusingly illustrated by this "fashion note" from West Africa taken from an Italian newspaper:

For some time the officials of the German colony in Southwest Africa noticed that the telegraph wires and other accessories of the electrical plant disappeared as by magic immediately after they had been put up. The most diligent inquiries remained fruitless.

From other parts of the German possessions came reports of strange predilections for articles of German commerce, as, for example, rubber heels, garters, buckles, and so forth, things which the natives of those countries do not generally use.

The governor of the colony gave an entertainment one year in honor of the emperor's birthday and invited the chiefs of the different tribes to it. What was his surprise when he saw these native gentlemen appear with his stolen telegraph wires twisted round their illustrious necks. The higher the dignity the more rings of the wire were round the neck.

Inquiries were soon started in the outlying villages, and it came to light that the white china insulators of the telegraph poles had become earrings. A young lady of the highest distinction in native society wore a rubber heel hanging from her nose, and a young man who was a well known dandy wore dangling from his ears a pair of beautiful pink silk garters.

A Soldier's Beginnings.

We were visiting at Sandringham. Sir Evelyn Wood, who is very deaf, crept up as near as he could to the musicians, and in one of the pauses he said to me, "Are you fond of music?" I answered, "Yes." "Do you play anything?" I said. "No." "Well," he went on, "I am so fond of it that, would you believe it, I began to practice scales at twenty-four. But one day my sister came up and put her hand on my shoulder and said, 'My dear boy, you had better give that up,' and so I did." He also told me that he began life as a sailor, then went to the bar and finally entered the army. The only profession he had not tried was the church, and his enemies say he would have tried that, only he did not know what church to choose.—"Life of Sir William Broadbent."

The Falling Branch.

In the grounds of Dalhousie castle, Scotland, is said to be a famous example of the sympathy of the vegetable world with human death. It was anciently believed in the neighborhood that a branch always fell from this oak when a member of the family died. Apparently the fall of the original tree early in the eighteenth century did not break the sympathy, for a new one sprang from the old root, and it is upon record that as lately as 1874 an old forester, seeing a branch fall from this on a still day, cried, "The laird's deed noo!" News of the eleventh Earl of Dalhousie's death soon followed.

Straightforward.

He—You mustn't believe every beggar who comes to your door. She—But this was no common beggar. He was a sea captain who had lost everything in a shipwreck. He—How do you know he was? She—He told a straightforward story about how his ship went to pieces on the coast of Switzerland.

The Higher Criticism.

A little fox terrier furnished an amusing incident on the departure of the boat Monday morning. It was being led unwillingly to the gangway with a large red label conspicuously tied to its collar. When it reached the side of the boat it evidently decided to make a final plunge for liberty, with the result that the collar and ticket were left in the hands of its guardian, while the dog made off up town again. No amount of coaxing could bring it back and the boat departed without it.

Methodist Annual Meeting

The annual meeting of the official Board of the Kelowna Methodist church took place last Thursday evening. The pastor's report showed that 42 persons had been received into the church, 19 removed, 2 died, total removed 21, leaving 121 communicants on the roll. The report of the steward, Mr. A. S. Cox, was very gratifying, showing that $1247 had been received in the weekly offerings. Mr. R. S. The grand total of the free will contributions of the congregation is $4,498.20. The reports were adopted with votes of thanks and appreciation to the officers.

The splendid work of Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets is daily coming to light. No such grand remedy for liver and bowel troubles was ever known before. Thousands bless them for curing constipation, sick headache, biliousness, jaundice and indigestion. Sold by all druggists.

AT LAST

it may be your privilege to own a Fruit Farm in the famous "Dry Valley" district. So many Kelowna people and others all over the country have been asking when we should be ready to put this beautiful property on the market, that we have decided to cut up about three hundred acres of the pick of the Valley into small Fruit Farms, which we shall offer for sale about the end of this week, when the maps can be seen at our office. These lots all lie within a mile of the City limits, and command a magnificent view of the Lake, town and surrounding country. No finer spot could be chosen for a SUBURBAN HOME, and no more fertile soil for an orchard.

The Water System Now Being Installed.

Our Company having set to work early in the year to put the water on this land, have already opened two miles of the main canal, and with the large forces at present at work, fully expect to have the ditch complete to the City limits by the end of this year, so that purchasers of the new sub-division are assured of water for next season.

The source of supply is our large storage dam at the headwaters of Mill Creek, and the water is to be conveyed across Mill Valley in a 32 inch rivited steel pipe, and distributed over the land by concrete lined ditches and cement pipe. A natural storage basin sufficient to hold about 500 acre feet of water situated at the upper end of the Valley will be used for a domestic supply.

The waste, overflow and seepage will be taken care of by laying a cement tile drain through the lowest part of the Valley.

What's In a Name?

Not much in some cases, but when choosing a new name for Dry Valley it means everything. Mothers often have difficulty in deciding on a suitable name for a promising baby boy. They can think of none that will cover all his good points. The officers of the Central Okanagan Lands, Limited, are in just the same predicament in choosing a more suitable name for Dry Valley, and to overcome this difficulty they have decided to offer a for what in their opinion is the most appropriate name suggested for this lovely district. Each competitor is allowed to send in not more than five names. The only condition attached being that he must have visited the valley within two months previous to the 12th inst. at noon, when the competition closes.

No officers of the Company are allowed to compete.

Who says the girls are not as smart as the boys? The Rutland girls seem to be able to run away with most of the honors every time, and the funny thing will happen when the little sister has to tell her big brother how to spell "man." Hurry up boys, don't let the girls always be ahead of you.

Report of Swine Commission.

The report of the Commission sent last year by the Dominion Government to Europe to study the swine rearing industry has been issued. It consists of a pamphlet of printed matter and a large number of striking illustrations.

The countries visited were England, Scotland, Ireland, Denmark and Holland. Demark and Ireland, being the strongest competitors of Canada in the British market, received most attention. The report described clearly how the hogs are bred and reared, and the various steps taken to develope export bacon trade. The far famed co-operative system, as applied by the Danes to the breeding and rearing of swine, the packing and marking, is fully described. Co-operative feed buying, which involves the purchgse of over six thousand million pounds of grain, oil cake etc., a year, is fully dealt with.

A valuable feature of the report is the attention given to the methods followed in countries for maintaining harmony between packers and farmers, and the securing of a uniform supply of pigs. Co-operation, not only between farmers, but between packers and farmers, is credited with excellent results. This especially true in England in bacon curing districts.

After dealing with the various phases of of production in the different countries, a chapter is devoted to the English bacon trade and another to lessons for Canadian farmers and packers. The report is comprehensive and practical, and therefore of value to every swine raiser in Canada. Copies may be procured free by writing the "Live Stock Commissioner" at Ottawa.

The sensation of the town

We congratulate Mr. Calder for business nerve and amacumen in introducing the most unique and gratest bargoin selling event ever attempted on the lake.

It's very unusual for a merchant to reduce prices, during what should be a profit making season. But Mr. Calder realizing that money is scarce and that the people need to make their money go a good deal further than usual, is taking time by the forelock, and is giving his entire stock over to the Everly Sales Co. Sale specialist of of Vancouver and Calgary, to reduce to smallest proportions and to give the people the time of their lives delving into such a high class stock of womens', mens' and child rens' goods at prices that simply astound.

We advise towns people to shop early Saturday morning the opening day as the crowds will rush in from all over the lake and the store will be crowed far beyond its capacity every moment of the day. Look for the sign of the whale which will spout for 15 days commencing Saturday, May 7th.

SOMETHING FROM NOTHING.

Things Thrown Out as Worthless Furnish a Living to Hundreds.

There are hundreds of families that live year in and year out on things that have been thrown away. The rag picker and the old clothes man are familiar to all housewives. These men, however, do not confine their business to articles that have been cast away as useless. They are really merchants in a small way. But apart from the collector of clothes and rags, there are scores who make tidy sums from articles that are absolutely thrown away—from things to which even the most frugal of persons attach no intrinsic value.

Boys and even men pick up cigar and cigarette butts and there are many families who make a living and educate their children from these butts. Modern science has found other uses for tobacco besides the pleasure of smoking. In the form of sprays and washes it annually saves the farmers of the country hundreds of thousands of dollars that would be lost but for the industry of the "snipe" hunters. The cigar and cigarette ends that are gathered in the streets of large cities run up into the thousands every day.

Taken home the snipes are emptied on a big table and the work of sorting commences. Cigars are placed in one heap, cigarettes in another. The wrappers are taken off and the tobacco in each pile is pounded into dust as nearly as possible. The amount in the heaps may run from 10 to 20 pounds, and far in excess of that on some days. The cigar dust is put into packages of one pound each, while the cigarette tobacco is placed in larger ones. This is because the cigars are more valuable from the viewpoint of the agricultural expert.

The tobacco is sold to any firm that deals in insecticides, sprays and washes for use on the farm. According to agricultural students tobacco is the most effective vermifuge known to them. The spray is not a whit injurious to plant life, and is used with impunity on the most delicate of orchids and the most fragile flowers without ill effects. A strong solution of the juice, with its strengtn of nicotine, will destroy larger insects, such as ants, cockroaches and potato bugs.

There are people who make money by gathering chewed gum that has been thrown away. There is a certain kind of shellac used for the outside of front stores that is greatly improved in gloss and adhesiveness when gum is melted and poured into it. Unchewed gum would be useless, as it contains sugar and other things that are hard and gritty. The grit would be absolutely fatal to the polish and smoothness of the shellac. It is the smoothness and clarity brought about by the constant chewing that makes it of value. So the gum picker gathers the lumps from the streets and gutters, getting his supply chiefly near school houses, department stores and cigar shops.

Bottles and cans thrown out have their value. Bottles are valuable for use in their original form. They are never melted again. Cans and tins of all varieties are remelted and made into roofing tin. Tin is a valuable metal and brings good prices. In the process of melting the tin a large quantity of lead that has been used in soldering the can together is extracted and this, too, is sold. Even the paper thrown away is valuable. The finer grades are sent to the factory, put through the same process that wood fiber and rags undergo and sent forth into the world as printing and wrapping paper.

The pieces of meat, bacon rinds, fat and bones that are thrown away with the expectation that some hungry dog will get them not often get to the dog, but are collected by the "picker" and sold. The fat melted down is valuable for axle grease. Then there are many who make a living from gathering coal knocked off the big wagons or picking it up along the railroad tracks.

No Latitude.

An Irish school inspector was examining a class in geography. He had propounded a question regarding longitude and received a correct answer from the lad undergoing the ordeal.

"And now,' 'he said, "what is latiture?"

After a brief silence a bright youngster, with a merry twinkle in his eye, said:

"Please, sir, we have no latitude in Ireland. Father says the British Government won't allow us any."—London Scraps.

A Considerate Composer.

It is not always the great conductor that shines as a composer, though unfortunately he often labors under the delusion that such is the case. On one occasion Hans Richter was present at a concert given by a brother composer at which the latter performed a long and not particularly interesting work of his own. When the composition came to an end Richter expressed his criticism in a very few words. "Well," he said, "I, too, haf written compositions to make a pile so high," raising his hand three feet from the ground, "but I haf burned them!"

A Mean Revenge.

The Monday ministers' meeting has yielded a new story. A clergyman in order to avoid unnecessary calls withdrew his name from the telephone book. Soon a lumber merchant with a similar name complained that the calls came to him. The clergyman regretted his inability to do anything in the matter. The next parishioner who called up the lumberman was requested to go to another climate and not "interrupt my sermon."

The clergyman's name is now printed in the book.

Saving One Storm.

When a certain Atchison man visits another town his wife complains, and so does his mother. Therefore, in order to avoid it, he says he is going out to get shaved and doesn't return until his visit is over. When he returns there is a storm, but under the old plan there were two storms, one before he went and another after his return.—Atchison Globe.
